In a day in which the collegiate faculty of the nation is beset by the tortuous dilemma of whether publishing can be allowed to pre-empt teaching, Randall Jarrell's solution was deceptively simple. He taught first, with a bubbling enthusiasm and a dedication which endeared him to his students. Then he wrote — "when I can, when it comes to me," as he put it — with a prowess that made him one of the five or six best contemporary American poets. Such two-faceted genius is extraordinary, of course, but the important thing was that one always knew which facet came first. And the results were also extraordinary —frothy, lighthearted satire in the poetry and burning, enthusiastic response in the minds of his students. This was no award-laden literary man who brought a ponderous introversion to his teaching, as writers-turned-teachers often do; this was a teacher who happened to win National Book Awards almost as a sideline, and who would have been a fine teacher had he been a creative desert.

Such a man fitted into the modern University community as if it were a leather reading chair, taking his place comfortably with the teachers who have become legend as well as the Richard McKennas, Paul Greens and others out of whom flow the institution's creative streams.

It is significant that he chose to settle at the University's Greensboro campus after traveling the rest of the country because "it has individuality." Randall Jarrell had seen America begin to conform to the hectic Age of Urbanization, and he felt that North Carolina was a very special place. It is only fitting that he, a teacher of unique abilities and a poet of distinction, be remembered by North Carolina as a very special man.

KING WILLIAM RESTAURANT

1½ Miles from Campus on 15-501 South

SPECIALIZING IN:

STEAKS CHICKEN SEAFOOD

"Choice Selection of Imported and Domestic Beverages"

All New and Modern, featuring

- Seating capacity of 300
- Spacious parking facilities
- Four private dining rooms
- Tasteful background music
- Catering facilities

Open from 8:00 a.m. 'til Midnight

SEVEN DAYS A WEEK

Parks anywhere

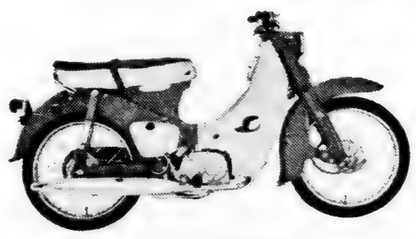
A Honda needs a mere 3'x6' space to be perfectly content. And that puts an automobile on a spot, about a mile away from its destination.

There are other sides to Honda, too. Hondas are fiendishly frugal. A gallon of gas will carry you up to 200 mpg, depending on which of the 15 Honda models you're driving. And insurance bills shrink to practically nothing. As for upkeep, a Honda needs little.

The shining example above is the remarkable Honda 50. It sells for about $215*. And there are 14 more models to choose from. Look them over.

See the Honda representative on your campus or write: American Honda Motor Co., Inc., Department C2, 100 West Alondra Boulevard, Gardena, California 90247.

HONDA
world's biggest seller!



*plus dealer's set-up and transportation charges

There's Activity Galore Today

TODAY

The UNC Debate Team meets at 6:30 p.m. in 105 Caldwell. Both varsity and novice debaters are expected.

Folk dancing at 7:30 at the Presbyterian Student Center.

The Campus Affairs Committee will meet in 205 Alumni at 4:15. The committee's Yack picture will be taken at 5 p.m. so all boys should wear coats and ties.

Rules committee will meet at 3:30 p.m. in Roland Parker No. 3.

There will be a meeting of the Student Committee on Honors at 4 p.m. in room 303 of Wilson Library. Attendance of all committee members is requested.

Charles Griffith, cellist, and Marianne Kremer, pianist, will present a piano and cello concert at 8 p.m.

The Hillel Foundation is having opening classes at 7 p.m. in beginning Hebrew and intermediate Hebrew, and at 8 p.m. in modern Jewish Philosophy, and at 7 p.m. Thursday in advanced conversational Hebrew.

All students who are interested in attending the State Student Legislature in Raleigh in February should have an interview from Tues.-Friday afternoon in Roland Parker I.

Any group wishing to sponsor a candidate in Yack beauty contest should submit the application by Friday, Oct 22. Any organization which did not receive an application form should contact the Yack office immediately.

Interviews for committee positions within the UP have been extended. Interested students are urged to come to the second floor of Davy Hall from 2-5 p.m. and apply for a position any day this week.

There will be a meeting of the Finance committee of the Carolina Symposium at 5 p.m. in Roland Parker III.

YWCA Cabinet meeting at 6:45 upstairs in the Y.

CWC will meet at 5 p.m. in Roland Parker II.

Meeting of WRC at 6 p.m. in Grail Room. Yack pictures will be taken.

Alpha Epsilon Delta the International premedical and predental honorary society will have its first rush meeting at 7 p.m. in 226 of the Medical School Building.

WEDNESDAY

All students interested in working with the mentally retarded children at Murdoch Center are invited to meet with the Murdoch Committee members in front of the Y at 2 p.m. Wednesday.

There will be a meeting of the Communications committee of SG at 5 p.m. in Roland Park II on the second floor of GM. All members are urged to attend as this will be an organizational meeting. For information contact Hurley Thompson at 929-5475.

Elections Board meeting at 3 p.m. in the Grail Room. Wear a coat and tie.

The International Relations committee of the YWCA will meet at 5 p.m. upstairs in the Y.

VIGAH, Program Development only at 7 p.m. in the Grail Room of GM.

Treasurers of all SG committees will meet in Roland Parker II and III from 7-8:30 p.m.

A debate of the Philanthropic Society "Should the U. S. Oppose a Unilateral declaration of Freedom by Southern Rodesia?" at 7:30 p.m. in Phi Hall, fourth floor of New East. Also the inaugeral ceremony of Press. G. Wright Doyle.

Ways and Means Committee at 3:30 p.m. in Roland Parker II. This is a regular meeting and Yack pictures will be taken.

LOST AND FOUND

Lost: Black loose - leaf notebook in the vicinity of the Medical School, Bio-chemistry notes inside. Call 942-5390 or return to the Medical School office.

Lost: Roxboro high school class ring; 1962. Lost at either the Glen Yarborough concert or at the fireworks display. John R. Davis, 310 Grimes, 968-9192.

Petition

(Continued from Page 1)

Attorney General's staff.

"We will complete our investigation as soon as it is physically possible," Attorney General Ingram said yesterday.

LAST TIMES TODAY

CAROLINA
CHAPEL HILL

"A MOVIE THAT YOU SHOULD NOT MISS!"
—JUDITH CRIST, on NBC-TV "TODAY" show

JOSEPH E LEVINE presents
Laurence Harvey · Dirk Bogarde
Julie Christie
"Darling"
an embassy pictures release

Varsity
NOW PLAYING

"THE KNACK ...and how to get it"

BEST PICTURE CANNES FILM FESTIVAL 1965

THIS PICTURE IS RECOMMENDED FOR ADULTS ONLY

STARRING RITA TUSHINGHAM
A WOODFALL FILM
A UNITED ARTISTS-LOPERT RELEASE

LITTLE BUT MIGHTY WANT ADS

FOR SALE. 1961 PEUGEOT Good mileage, good condition and good rubber. $500 or best offer. Contact Holloway Phillips, 66 Service Station at Eastgate.

FOR SALE: 1959 ENGLISH Ford. Blue. Engine just overhauled. Must sell! Call Allen Marshall at 968-9062.

FOR SALE: '61 METROPOLItan. Good condition, has given many miles of dependable service. $400. All offers considered. Call 929-5279.

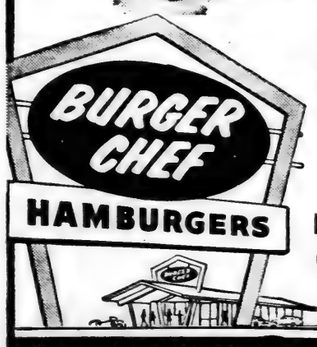
FOR SALE: HONDA CB 160 Ex. condition, 2400 mi., good mileage, perfect inexpensive transportation. Call 929-3117 after 8 p.m.

TRAILER FOR SALE OR rent: 1952 model 8 x 30 Robins with electric range. Fully furnished. Sale $675, rent $50.00 per month. Telephone 929-2605 after 5:00 p.m.

ROOM FOR RENT FOR BOY. Quet location. Call 968-3761.

WANTED: ONE OR TWO males to share comfortable, well furnished two bedroom apartment near campus. Air conditioned. All utilities for $115 - mo. Call evenings 942-3690.

people on the go... go BURGER CHEF



College budgets and Burger Chef belong together. Burger Chef . . . where 50¢ will buy a complete meal: open-flame broiled hamburger, a rich milk shake, and a heap of crisp golden fries.

337 N. ROSEMARY ST. OPEN 10 A.M. – 11 P.M.

Franchised exclusively by Burger Chef Systems, Indianapolis 7

Home of the World's Greatest 15¢ Hamburger!

Have a big weekend?

We make loans on typewriters, pistols, guns, radios, record players, musical instruments, watches, rings, cameras, microscopes, tape recorders.

FIVE POINTS LOAN CO.
339 W. Main St. . . . at Five Points Downtown Durham

BRADY'S

Now Open for Lunch

Specializing in

SEAFOOD STEAKS

and our famous

FRIED CHICKEN

Closed on Mondays

DURHAM ROAD

HELP WANTED!

Part-time Student with knowledge of H. O. Railroad or Air Planes
Apply in Person only

BILLY ARTHUR
Eastgate Shopping Center
Chapel Hill, N. C.

GM presents: Doc Watson

True folk music lovers at UNC are in for a sample of the real thing when Doc Watson appears in concert in the main lounge of Graham Memorial Wednesday, Oct. 20, at 4 p.m. Watson, a blind southern guitarist and vocalist, is considered one of America's greatest folk artists today.

The Chicago Daily News has acclaimed Watson as "the most talented singer and instrumentalist today with an authentic background in both American folk and country music – an amazing instrumentalist, perhaps the best folk and country guitarist around and a fine banjo picker too."

Watson, although a relatively late comer on the recording scene, fills only about half the requests for concert appearances that he receives because he enjoys being at home so much. He is known for his informal concerts and probably, as one of his album covers notes, "nobody loves a Doc Watson concert more than Doc." Following the concert there will be an informal reception for those who may wish to meet and talk with Watson.

Watson appeared at the 1963 Newport Folk Festival with such stars as Joan Baez, Bob Dylan, Earl Scruggs, Lester Flatt and the Foggy Mountain Boys. He has been recording about three years on the Vanguard label, producers of his latest album "Doc Watson and Son."

Sure we have desk jobs.

Desk jobs at Cape Kennedy, helping check out the Apollo moon rocket. Desk jobs at an air base, testing the world's most powerful jet engines. Desk jobs in Samoa, setting up a TV network to help teach schoolchildren. The most interesting desk jobs in the world are at General Electric.

(Have a seat.)

First, why not sit down with the man from G.E. when he visits campus. Talk with him about your goals. He'll talk with you about the hundred different avenues available at G.E. to help you reach those goals.

You may be working anywhere in the world, doing anything in the world. From marketing appliances like a new oven that cleans itself electrically . . . to designing a computer that's no bigger than a suitcase.

Interesting problems. Important challenges. Real rewards, in money and opportunity. They're all part of holding down a desk job at G.E.

Come to General Electric, where the young men are important men.

Progress Is Our Most Important Product

GENERAL ELECTRIC

The Goal: Pro Ball

By SANDY TREADWELL
DTH Sports Writer

To freshman and sophomores Jim Speight is a man who wears a faded blue uniform with the word "instructor" written in small letters across the jacket.

Early last spring, Jim Speight wore a different uniform, one that he really felt at home in. It was clean and white with red pinstripes sown in. He wore a bright red cap with the neat script "P" on its front. He scrambled around a well-tailored infield and tried desperately to make the Philadelphia Phillies.

To Jim Speight his three years with the Tar Heels were much more than a way to fill up long afternoon hours in the spring. Then baseball was his obsession. Now it is his livelihood.

"I've always wanted to play pro ball. I've never even considered doing anything else."

"After the 1964 season, I was riding on top of the world. We beat everyone in the conference, and I had my best year at the plate. The Phillies gave me a big league contract as soon as I graduated

Jim then set out to prove to Philadelphia that he could play baseball in the major leagues.

Speight earned a long look from Gene Mauch during the summer months of 1964. He was invited to the club's spring training camp in Clearwater. Fla

The Jim Speight I talked to yesterday was far different from the confident and happy boy he must have been after his final season at Carolina. His eyes showed both the pressure and the worry that he now lives with.

Speight is no longer on top. The Phillies had a tough and disappointing season this year. So did Jim.

His glove failed him at Clearwater. His bat, however, remained as hot as ever and he earned the coveted title of the designated player of the Philadelphia Phillies.

"Being the designated player of a major league club is a pretty big deal," Jim explained. "It means that you're the fellow that the front office has its eyes on."

"Gene Mauch is a good manager. He doesn't say much, but he's always got his eyes open. I couldn't show those eyes much. I only played in four games."

But pro baseball is a tough and impersonal business start his year, Jim fell down the ladder and wound up the year back in Miami.

Jim described what these months were like:

"You travel everywhere in buses, and you don't stay in the best hotels."

"Because I was the designated player of the mother club, I felt a lot of pressure on me. I got off to a slow start, and I began pressing all season long."

"I couldn't have picked a worse year to play poor baseball.

"This year must be the big one for me," Jim said. "If it doesn't turn out that way, I'm going to have to quit the game."

Speight shook his head and walked slowly back into Woollen Gym.

Baseball means everything to him.

Jim Speight is trying to survive in a world that makes survival one hell of a job.

No Booze, Weeds, Just Sweat, Guts

By SANDY TREADWELL
DTH Sports Writer

Wrestling Coach Sam Barnes stood at one end of the wrestling room a few days ago and spoke with the fire and brimstone of an Elmer Gantry. First, he congratulated his recruits on showing up.

"I'm a great believer in extra curricular activities. I don't care if it's sports, politics, or the Daily Tar Heel.

"There is more to education than just what can be found in the classroom. If you take part in some activity here you're one of the top 30 per cent of the students in this University."

Then Barnes got down to business.

"Anyone can wrestle if he is dedicated. If you'll try hard we can make a place for you," said Barnes.

"I'm sure some of you have lived an unclean life this summer. The two miles that you will run at the end of every practice from this day on are going to be tough. You will start moving forward right now, and you will continue to move forward every day until you finally complete that first two mile run."

The only laughter in the room came from Freshman Coach Grover Wilhoit. The faces of the rest of them were beginning to turn pale.

"We aren't asking you to train, we're telling you to train. You can't wrestle and smoke. You can't wrestle and drink.

'Coach Wilhoit and I won't go running to Harry's or the Rathskeller after you in order to keep checking up. We don't have to. We can tell whether or not you've been honest when we get you down on the mat with your shirt off.

"This is the toughest of the intercollegiate sports. We use the open stance, the most dangerous one. If you're not in shape you'll get hurt."

Seconds later Barnes had his recruits down on the mat tearing away at their stiff joints. Their groans and grunts indicated that they had been officially initiated into a tough blood - and - guts community.

The wonderful world of Sam Barnes.

Yesterday I asked the coach how the freshmen were holding up.

We've got the usual crop of good wrestlers, and we've also got a got of hustlers. But a group of bodies are also present. They won't last long. Already they're beginning to filter back to the safety of their PE courses. The number is now down to 47, and that figure will drop pretty fast."

"Any freshman who is interested in wrestling should speak either to me or to Coach Grover Wilhoit. It's not too late. We need to fill up the pipeline."

Top Ten

Arkansas, fresh from a 27-24 victory over last week's number one team, Texas, was named to the top spot in Tuesday's Associated Press poll.

Arkansas with a string of 17 wins, is in the top spot for the first time ever.

Unbeaten Michigan State valuted into third place and Nebraska slipped down a notch to fourth. LSU jumped back into the top ten after a week in nowheres land.

Only the three top teams received first place votes with Arkansas gaining twice as many as second place Michigan State.

Duke and Clemson were the only ACC teams in the top twenty.

1. Arkansas 28 5-0
2. Michigan State 14 5-0
3. Nebraska 8 5-0
4. Southern California 4-0-1
5. Texas 4-1
6. Purdue 4-0-1
7. Notre Dame 3-1
8. Florida 4-1
9. Louisiana State 4-2
10. Georgia 4-1

Men Of Steele To Meet Tonight

Lacrosse Coach Cony Steele has called a meeting of his frosh and varsity teams for tonight at 7 p.m. in Room 304, Woollen Gym.

If you interested in playing with the Men of Steele next spring, be there.

Harvey Stanley and Jeff Parker will co-captain this year's squad. For the past three years they have been Mr. Defense and Mr. Offense, respectively.

Stanley was not expected to play this spring — he could have graduated at the end of the fall semester, but he elected to take his last year of eligibility.

The lacrossemen won five, lost two last spring.

Morrison B Scores 12-6 Overtime Win

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

The Morrison B team scored a 12-6 overtime win over the Morrison G Bears in Monday's intramural tag football action. Tom Nevin and Bob Mooring scored the touchdowns for Morrison B while Carlos Hicks tallied for the G Bears.

The Stacy Studs crumbled the Graham Crackers, 20-0. Stu Hall, Bucky Layton and Mike DeBruhl all hit paydirt for the Studs.

The Morrison A Colts rallied in the second half to defeat the Morrison C Reds, 13-8. Down by 8-6 after the first half, Steve Shedd scored his second TD of the afternoon for the Colts to clinch the win. Jim Millikan scored for the Reds.

Logan White's touchdown and Clark Parker's extra point led the Joyner Savages to a 7-0 decision over the Alexander Playboys. It was the season's first defeat for the Playboys.

Morrison C-SS romped over Morrison I No. 1, 40-0. Scott Peterson, Ed Spencer, and Paul Kindley scored once and Rick Leonard twice to pace C-SS.

The Morrison G Colts edged the Morrison E Elations, 7-0, on a second-half touchdown by John Byrd. Ken Murphy added the extra point.

Morrison F defeated Morrison H Marauders in a wild affair, 29-19. Leading by only 13-12 at the half the F team scored 16 points in the second half for the win.

Pat Feagan's pair of touchdowns led the Aycock Aardvarks over the Everett Trojans, 22-6. Charlie Gold also scored for Aycock.

The Alexander Mooses edged the Joyner Rams by the odd score of 7-4. Richard Denby's second-half TD and Nick Nickells' extra point won the game for the Mooses, who trailed 4-0 at the half.

In Friday afternoon results, Terrill McGrath's three touchdowns led Avery No. 1 over the Parker Pack, 20-0. The Parker Fugitives salvaged something for their residence hall with a 38-0 bombing of the Teague Totalers.

The Mangum Mugs whipped the Grimes White team, 48-0; the Joyner Straps downed the Joyner Jokes in a family fued, 13-0; and Law School III won a 14-13 thriller over Victory Village.

Entries for the Co - Rec Sports Carnival, to be held on Oct. 28, are due this Wednesday. The Carnival combines men's and women's teams in badminton, table tennis, volleyball doubles, archery, carnival games, tether ball, box hockey and relays.

The Daily Tar Heel SPORTS

Wake Tickets On Sale

About 1,000 tickets to the North Carolina - Wake Forest football game, to be played Saturday at 2 p.m. in Winston-Salem, remain on sale at the UNC Athletic Ticket Office.

UNC will take a 3-2 record into the game; Wake is 1-4. The Deacons' lone victory was over Vanderbilt, 7-0. In the AC they have lost to N. C. State, 13-11, Maryland, 10-7, and South Carolina, 38-7.

UNC has wins over Ohio State, N. C. State and Maryland and losses to Michigan and Virginia.

Harriers Take On State; MacPherson To Make Trip

UNC's cross country team will have junior Trip MacPherson back in harness when it takes on N. C. State this afternoon at Raleigh.

MacPherson was running number two man, behind aptain Jim Meade, when illness sidelined him a week before the team's opening meet with South Carolina.

"I've only been working out for a week now," he said yesterday, "so of course I m not in shape. But State is a good team to come back against and see what I can do. We don't expect them to give us a very hard time."

The harriers take a 2-1 record into today's meet. They whipped USC easily in their opener, 23-38, lost the big one to ACC defending champ Maryland, 17-47, and then outran Wake Forest last Friday 23-38.

The Maryland loss broke a six meet win streak and served notice that Coach Joe Hilton's harriers have an enormous job on their hands in order to regain the ACC crown, lost for the first time since 1959 last fall.

The frosh, led by Chapel Hillian Jim Hotelling, will also run at State this afternoon. They take a string of 11 wins into the meetings.

The Baby Harriers won their last four meets in 1963, all five meets last fall and their first two test this season. The frosh have defeated South Carolina and Wake this year.

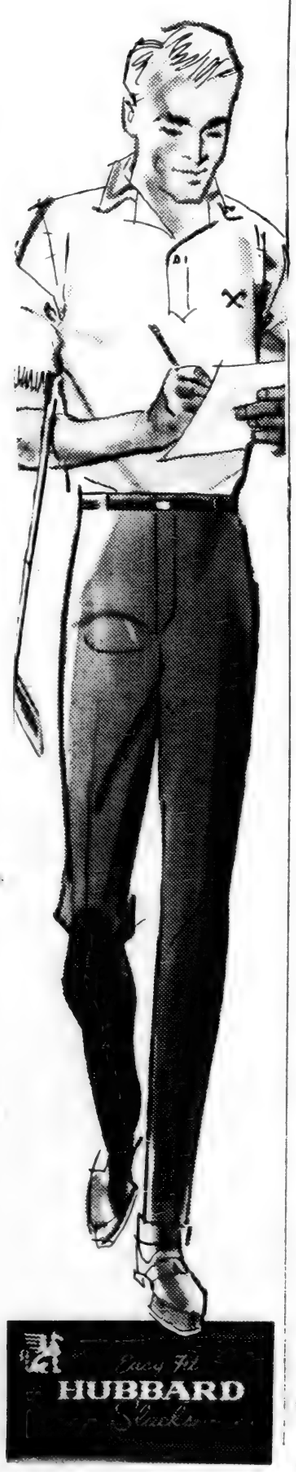
SMALL USE

Of some quarter million speces of higher plants, only a hundred are used by man.

The most walked about slacks on Campus are HUBBARD slacks with "DACRON"

Great Hubbard styling with the lasting neatness and care free comfort of "Dacron", in these slacks of 55% Dacron polyester, 45% worsted wool.* Styled in traditional Classic and Gay Blade plain front models, in all the favorite colors, at better stores everywhere. Also available in blends of 70% Orlon* acrylic, 30% worsted wool, or "Dacron" with "Orlon".

*du Pont Reg. T.M.



Every Fit HUBBARD Slacks

All Weather COATS

The perfect match for any occasion and the answer to any weather problem is an all-weather coat from THE HUB available in navy, olive, black, and natural. These dacron and cotton coats combine the comfort of a sweater with the warmth of an overcoat and the protection of a raincoat. Available with zip-on orlon pile linings at a price that make them a wardrobe must .....from 19.95

THE HUB OF CHAPEL HILL

Where Quality is a Tradition, Not a price

TOP COAT SEASON IS HERE

Top your favorite suit or sport coat in a masculine Cheviot Tweed from our wide selection.

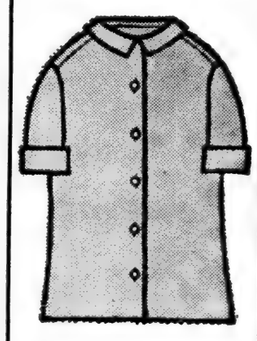
These coats are fully lined for extra warmth.

Pick your color from greys, browns, blues & heather shades.

and at reasonable prices

Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin

Lady Milton scintillating sophisticates



689 of our famous Lady Milton Shirts at a below cost give-a-way.

Choose from choir boy, button-down, flambeau cardigans—regularly to $10.95, now at impossible $1.99. $2.99 and $3.99.

Discover all the wonderful Lady Milton ensembles apart.

LADY MILTON SHOP

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

TROPHIES!

Trophies, Plaques Cups — awards for excellence in sports or other fields. We have for your choice a generous selection, and also offer

Engraving Service

IN OUR TROPHY DEPARTMENT

Sport Shop
—"It Pays to Play"—
151 E. Franklin St.

THE CLASSIC WINGTIP by FLORSHEIM

The most popular Traditional dress for all campus occasions comes in black, brown, scotch grain, and the new palamino cordovan. We can fit all sizes A-E

From 26.95

Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin St.
Clothiers of Distinction

ARROWHEAD GOLF CLUB

invites you to play on spacious bent grass green and lush bermuda fairways. A true championship golf course.
Green fees 1.50—Mon. thru Fri.
2.50—Holidays, Sat. & Sun.
1.00—After 3:00
Mon. thru Fri.
Exit on Mebane Oaks Rd. from Interstate 85

It's Old Book Week and there's dusty treasure for you at the Intimate only one of its kind

FOLKWEAVE® SUITS

Folkweave® woolens are completely exclusive. Woven by an honored Scottish mill, they are found only in Folkweave® Suits!

H. FREEMAN & SON

the label that means finer clothing

Julian's

GRAHAM MEMORIAL Presents

Doc Watson

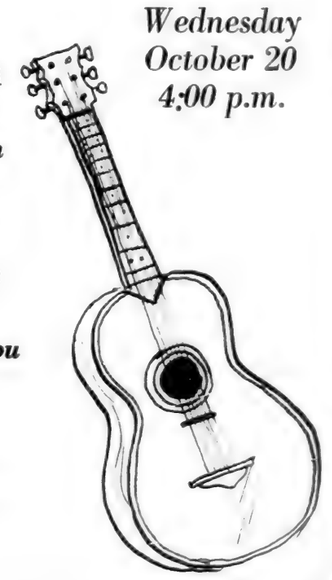
appearing in

GM Lounge

brought to you by

Graham Memorial

Wednesday October 20 4:00 p.m.



Old Spice...with that crisp, clean masculine aroma!

Candidates

Compulsory candidates meeting for all students nominated for class offices in the fall election tonight at 7 in Gerrard Hall. No candidate's name will be placed on the ballot who does not attend this meeting.

The Daily Tar Heel

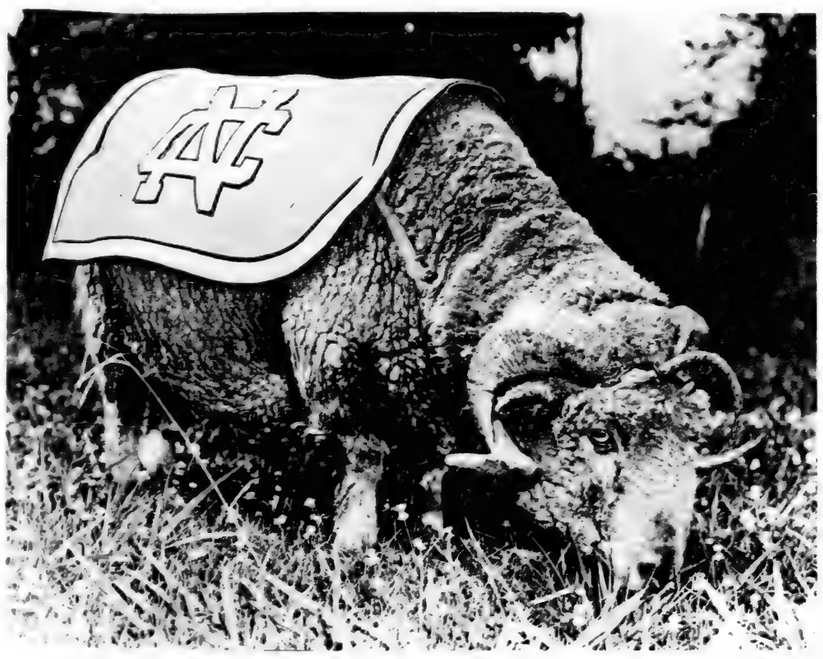
The South's Largest College Newspaper

Vol. 74, No. 31 | CHAPEL HILL NORTH CAROLINA WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1965 | Founded February 23, 1893

Lights Out

A shorted transformer knocked out lights in the north side of town including Franklin Street last night at 6:40 p.m.

The telephone company reported that the transformer, in the vicinity of 1403 E. Franklin St., outside Kutz Realty, started "burning and shooting sparks"



Three Men Kidnap Ram, But Not Carolina Mascot

By PAT STITH
DTH Sports Editor

A three man gang, which attempted to steal North Carolina's mascot, Rameses VIII, from Hogan's farm on Rt. 2 Monday night, is in for a disappointment.

They rustled themselves a ram all right — but they got the wrong one. They made off with Rameses VII, who was retired at the end of the 1964 football season.

Mr. George Thomas, news director at radio station WTOB in Winston - Salem, identified the gang as Wake Forest undergraduates. He told the DTH that Rameses VII was in Winston-Salem Tuesday morning but that he has since been taken to a farm somewhere in Forsyth County.

Mr. Henry Hogan, who has cared for North Carolina's rams since that animal was adopted as the UNC mascot in 1923, said that Rameses VIII and baby Rameses IX were safe. He said that Rameses VIII would be at the game Saturday when the Tar Heels take on Wake Forest at Winston-Salem.

"We have taken special precautions to see that Rameses VIII isn't stolen," Mr. Bob Hogan, Mr. Henry Hogan's son, said. "We usually don't start to worry about Rameses until Wednesday but Wake slipped up on us. It won't happen again."

The theft occurred sometime Monday night, according to Mr. Thomas. He said he knew who the rustlers were, but he refused to identify them.

"They told me that they intended to bring Rameses to a Wake Forest pep rally Thursday at 11 a.m. and then have him lead the Wake team onto the field at the game Saturday," Mr. Thomas said.

According to Mr. Thomas, the three entered an unlocked barn on Mr. Hogan's property and found three rams there — a big one (Rameses VII), a middle size one (Rameses VIII) and a baby one (Rameses IX).

Rameses VII, who was the UNC mascot during the 1963 and 1964 seasons, still has blue horns. Mistaking him for the current mascot, Rameses VIII, they stole him.

Mr. Bob Hogan told the DTH that the rustlers may have taken more than they bargained for.

"Rameses VII was retired because his horns had grown down in front of his eyes so that he can hardly see," he said. "Besides that, he's a pretty mean, ornery ram."

Student body president Paul Dickson has made an informal complaint to the Orange County Sheriff's Department. Deputy W. E. Clark told Mr. Dickson that he would call the sheriff of Forsyth County this morning and ask him to use his influence to have Rameses VII returned.

The theft of Rameses VII was not discovered until late Tuesday afternoon when radio station WTOB newsman Dave Perry called Mr. Bob Quincy, Sports Information Director for UNC, for a comment.

Mr. Quincy's comment was not quotable.

Dr. Harold Wayland Tribble, President of Wake Forest College, made himself unavailable for comment.

Mrs. W. D. Corle, secretary to Mr. Mark Reece, dean of students at Wake Forest, told the DTH, however, that she was "tickled to death."

Mr. Reece promised the DTH that he would do everything within his power to see that Rameses VII is returned immediately.

"I'm planning to attend an interfraternity council meeting tonight," he said last night, "and I'll try to find out who is responsible for this dastardly deed.

"I'll do my best not only to see that Rameses VII is well cared for but that he is returned."

North Carolina's mascot was last stolen in 1961 — by Wake Forest students prior to the UNC-Wake game. That time they stole Rameses VI, now deceased. They returned him before the game that time, at the request of the Wake Forest College administration.

Court Asked To Disqualify 11 Prospects

HAYNEVILLE, Ala., (AP) — The Alabama Supreme Court was asked yesterday to disqualify 11 prospective jurors who said at the outset of a Ku Klux Klansman's murder trial that they regard civil rights workers as inferior.

The court in Montgomery will hear arguments at 10 a.m. CST, Wednesday on the request by Atty. Gen. Richmond Flowers.

The question raised by the Attorney General brought a delay in the trial of Collie Leroy Wilkins, Jr., who is charged with the slaying of a white Detroit housewife and civil rights volunteer.

The trial judge, T. Werth Thagard, recessed the trial until tomorrow morning to give Flowers time to go to the Supreme Court after Thagard had rejected the Attorney General's claim that the prospective jurors should be disqualified for prejudice.

Yack Picture Schedule

Final pictures for the Yack will be taken from Monday, Oct. 18 through Wednesday, Oct. 27. Senior women should wear black sweaters and pearls. Other women should wear black sweaters.

Men must wear dark coats and ties. No madras can be worn.

Photos will be taken from 1-6 p.m. on the following schedule:

Oct. 19-22 — late juniors ($1 fee)

Oct. 19 — medical technology, physical therapy dental hygiene, and all nurses.

Oct. 20 — law; late medical technology, physical therapy, dental hygiene, and nurses ($1 fee). None of these categories except law will be accepted later.

Oct. 21-22 — law, pharmacy, dentistry, and first year social work.

Oct. 25 — medical school and public health; late law, pharmacy, and dentistry ($1 fee). Only medicine will be accepted at a later date.

Oct. 26 — medical school and public health.

Oct. 27 — late medical school and public health ($1 fee); late fraternity and sorority ($2 fee).

Students who cannot come on the scheduled day may come earlier.

Rinaldi Proclaiming Innocence As His Case Nears Completion

Frank Rinaldi told a jury yesterday "I did not do this dreadful thing," as he strongly denied a charge he hit his wife on the head with a flashlight and then smothered her to death in 1963.

"I protested my innocence" then, "and I protest my innocence now," said Rinaldi after he had taken the stand in a surprise move at his second trial on a first degree murder charge in his wife's death.

Solicitor Thomas B. Cooper Jr., pointed at Rinaldi and declared:

"I'll ask you if you didn't hit your wife on the head with a flashlight and then throw it into a cardboard box?" I'll ask you if you didn't tie a scarf around her head and smother her with a pillow and let her fall to the floor?"

"I did not" Rinaldi replied in a hushed, tense court room. He added, "I did not do the terrible thing."

Rinaldi, 36, who did not testify at his first murder trial, went to the stand in a surprise move shortly before noon and answered three rapid questions by defense attorney Barry Winston.

"Did you kill your wife?" Winston asked.

"No. I did not," Rinaldi replied firmly, learning forward slightly.

"Do you know who killed your wife?"

"No. I do not," Rinaldi replied quickly.

"Did you have anything to do with your wife's death?" Winston asked.

Again, Rinaldi replied firmly: "I did not."

The dramatic developments came shortly after several defense witnesses testified they had seen Rinaldi in Durham, about 10 miles from Chapel Hill, the morning of Christmas Eve, 1963.

His pregnant wife, Lucille Rinaldi, 34, was found sprawled on the floor of the living room in his apartment in Chapel Hill. A scarf had been tied around her nose and mouth and she had been beaten on the face and head.

Rinaldi, a former part-time instructor at UNC and full-time instructor one session at the University of Missouri, admitted under cross examination that he had taken one tranquilizer before the court session began.

A jury convicted him on a first degree murder charge last Nov. 18, but the State Supreme Court ordered a new trial because of errors.

Rinaldi, his face slightly flushed and his voice nervous, testified he and his wife, the former Lucille B. Begg of Waterbury, Conn., became engaged on Christmas Eve, 1962, one year to the day before she was killed.

A pathologist, Dr. N. F. Rodman Jr., testified Monday that death was due to suffocation or asphyxiation and estimated she died between 10 a.m. and noon.

John F. Sipp, a Chapel Hill insurance agent and close friend of Rinaldi, also testified Monday that he was on a Christmas shopping trip with Rinaldi the day the slaying occurred. He said he was with Rinaldi from 8:40 a.m. until 1:40 p.m. and that they found Mrs. Rinaldi's body when they returned to the apartment.

Mrs. Madget Spain of Durham testified yesterday that she sold Rinaldi a maternity dress at the Durham department store where she worked on Dec. 24, 1963. She estimated the time of the sale at between 11 and 11:30 a.m.

George M. Warren of Furham, an insurance agent; David D. Hardy, who manages an insurance office in Durham; and Julian E. Upchurch, a Durham druggist, all testified they saw Rinaldi at the Northgate Shopping Center in Durham on the morning Mrs. Rinaldi was killed.

The state contends Mrs. Rinaldi's death was motivated by a $20,000 double indemnity insurance policy issued on her through Sipp 27 days before the couple married. Rinaldi was named the beneficiary.

Cooper asked Rinaldi if he had suggested any motive for the slaying in his talks with

(Continued on Page 4)

University Party Condemns SPU For Peace Policy

By JOHN GREENBACKER
DTH Political Writer

Nearly 320 University Party members unanimously approved a resolution Monday night condemning the Student Peace Union and Students for a Democratic Society for their demonstrations against U. S. Viet Nam policy.

The resolution was introduced by senior Class Vice-President Armistead Maupin at the UP nominating convention in Carroll Hall.

"The University Party feels that the position taken by these organizations is totally unrepresentative of the feelings of most of the student body," the resolution reads in part.

"The overwhelming majority of the student body holds in contempt the seemingly unpatriotic and irresponsible actions of these organizations."

The resolution particularly cites the recent demonstration at the Fort Bragg Special Forces Center which was sponsored by the SPU.

It criticizes those student demonstrators who sought to "link the University with their irresponsible actions."

The resolution condemns "the abhorent and disruptive practices" which the SDS and the SPU have used in protesting the government's Viet Nam policies.

It said the demonstrations "have the effect of undermining or obstructing the full effectiveness of our nation's efforts to save South Viet Nam from communism."

Copies of the resolution were sent to the commandant of Fort Bragg, the Dean of Student Affairs and the officer in charge of the U. S. Navy's recruiting booth in Y-Court.

UP Nominees

The UP convention also chose its nominees for the fall elections, and Chairman Jim Hubbard reminded the party of the possible election of a UP nominee to run in the recall election for the student body presidency.

Rusty Clark, freshman basketball star, was acclaimed the UP nominee for president of the freshman class.

Other freshman nominees are Aaron Clinard, vice president, Anne Martin, secretary, Tony Gore, treasurer and Sara Mendelsohn, social chairman.

Sophomore class nominees are Dick Young, president, Dickson Gribble, vice president, Karen Gibbon, secretary, Eliot Dahan, treasurer and Liza Robb, social chairman.

Junior class UP nominees are Steve Salmony, president, Bill Nucciarone, vice president, Liz Scott, secretary, Susan Warren, treasurer and Becky Tatum, social chairman.

Student Party Nominates Slate For Fall Elections

Student Party members picked their slate of class officer candidates for the fall election at a lengthy nominating convention in Howell Hall Monday night.

Ben White of Atlanta was chosen over Buddy Farfour and Terry Blakesly for the number-one position on the SP freshman class ticket.

Farfour, a Morganton native, got the party nod for vice-president of his class, defeating Eugene Hughes and Scott Goodfellow.

Dean Mullis, Chapel Hill, and Phyllis Baldwin, Hickory, were acclaimed nominees for secretary and social chairman.

Lacy Reeves, Raleigh, rounded out the SP freshman slate, receiving the nomination for treasurer over Allen Moser.

Bill Long, Newton, and Mike Rabb, Miridian, Miss., were nominated by acclamation for sophomore class president and treasurer.

Bob Neely, Charleston, S.C., gained the SP nod for vice president over Bill Findlay.

Mel Wright, Elizabeth City, was acclaimed presidential nominee for the class of 1967.

Tom Gauntlett, Dallas, Pa., was selected for the number-two position on the SP junior class ticket over Jerry Wagner.

Penny Cromartie, Clinton, won the party nomination for secretary over Judy Whitaker and Natasha Kern.

Peggy Paul, Jacksonville, Fla., was nominated by acclamation for the office of treasurer.

Jan Wuehrman, Birmingham, defeated Holly Williams for the junior class social chairman nomination.

Eight Finalists

Eight finalists in the competition for UNC Homecoming Queen — 1965 will be selected tomorrow night.

The beauty who will reign over the Tar Heels' homecoming tilt with the University of Georgia Oct. 30 will be selected from the finalists in a campuswide poll a week from tomorrow.

Rick Kramer, president of the CAA, said yesterday the Student Athletic Committee will contact all contestants and arrange transportation to and from the field house.

Students Search For Victory Gong

Some 300 raving Maverick House students charged off to Wake Forest last night, not to get good seats for Saturday's game, but to retrieve their "Victory Gong."

They left en masse at 6:30 p.m.

At least, they were hoping to retrieve the gong. Maverick House president Ed MacMahan said yesterday the gong, fashioned from a goal post from the Duke - Carolina game two years ago, was reported missing Sunday morning from the first floor Craige lounge.

The Daily Tar Heel yesterday afternoon received a mysterious phone call from a male voice, who refused to be identified, but added, "I'm a Carolina gentleman."

"There is a report going around that the gong is missing," the caller said, "I just thought you might want to know about it." He said the gong "is worth a heck of a lot to Craige (residence hall) prestiege."

Roger Davis, whose job is to "keep an eye" on the gong, said the Maverick House Victory Gong is made of souvenirs from the 1963 Duke-Carolina game as well as a yard marker from the Gator Bowl game of the same year, in which UNC defeated the Air Force 35-0.

Davis said UNC won every game last year that the gong was taken to. The gong itself was a gift to the residence hall from a marine who acquired it in Japan, spokesmen said.

panied the angered Maverick residents last night on their counter - raid to Wake Forest. The results of their mission will be announced tomorrow.

Group Hears Talk On N.C.

North Carolina's governor doesn't have the veto power because of early North Carolinians' fear and mistrust of King George III and his totalitarian form of government, Dr. Donald Hayman, a University Political Scientist in the Institute of Government told UNC's Toronto Exchange students Monday.

Dr. Hayman's lecture on North Carolina state government is the first in a series of lectures designed to acquaint the University's 31 Exchange students with important and phases of this state's government and history. Canadian history and politics will also be emphasized.

Hubert Wooten and Sylvia Wall, co-chairmen of the Exchange hope that the lectures will help our students to discuss important issues more intelligently with the students from the University of Toronto.

The Toronto students will arrive in Chapel Hill November 18 for a three-day stay. Carolina students will leave for the anadian University after fall semester finals, staying about a week and returning in time for spring semester registra-

Carolina Gets Harris Data Center

By JOAN PAGE

Louis Harris, national public opinion analyst and syndicated newspaper columnist, has chosen his alma mater, the University at Chapel Hill, as the official repository for his survey data.

Chancellor Paul F. Sharp announced the establishment yesterday of the Louis Harris Political Data Center within the University's Political Science Department, and the appointment of Mr. Harris as lexturer on politics and public opinion.

In this role, Mr. Harris will be associated with the Political Science Department and will lecture here several times each year. The University has allocated $25,000 toward the initial establishment of the Data Center, to be housed on the second floor of Caldwell Hall.

Following conferences with Chancellor Sharp and other University officials, Mr. Harris has agreed to make available selected public opinion surveys which his national organization, Louis Harris and Associates of New York, has conducted. He will furnish the Center with computer tabulation cards, questionnaires, code books and other source data.

Prof. James W. Prothro, acting chairman of the Political Science Department, will be director of the Harris Center.

"I have always had a deep sentimental attachment to the University in Chapel Hill. In campus politics here, many of the first seeds of political interest were planted," Mr. Harris said.

"But my reasons for establishing the Center here go beyond this. The South has produced the leading empirical political scientists in the country and the University of North Carolina has led the way. Therefore, I consider it both appropriate and fitting that UNC be the home of the Center."

Chancellor Sharp said in announcing the establishment of the Center for the University as a whole and for the half of the University:

"We are honored that Louis Harris has selected the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill over all other contending institutions to be the official repository for his materials. We shall strive to live up to the confidence his decision reflects in the University."

The Center will be an asset in attracting scholars and superior students, Chancellor Sharp continued, and "will bring recognition to the University as a major center for the study of public opinion and political behavior."

Mr. Prothro termed the Center "a major break-through" for the Political Science Department. "We view the location of this major facility in the Department as a recognition of the quality of the existing program and as a challenge and opportunity to improve it still further. This invaluable data will give us a chance to develop further as a leading center for the study of political behavior."

A member of the UNC Class of '42, Mr. Harris was for 10 years associated with Elmo Roper in opinion research. In 1956, he established his own firm with headquarters in New York. His organization operates in all 50 states and employs several thousand people.

Mr. Harris rose to national prominence as President Kennedy's private poll-taker in the 1960 campaign. He is author of two books: "Is There A Republican Majority" and "The Negro Revolution in America."

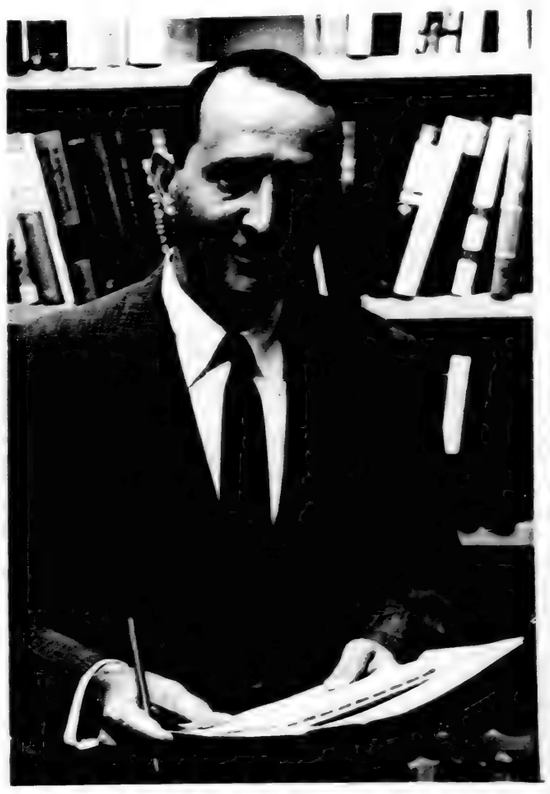
Before giving up polling for private political clients in 1963 to write his newspaper column and work for CBS News, Mr. Harris had surveyed in over 240 campaigns. Among his clients were 45 men who became U. S. senators and 15 who became governors.

Beginning in 1962, he developed the Vote Profile Analysis system (VPA) in co-operation with CBS and IBM. The system in the 1964 election. It is a computer model method designed to analyze early and accurately what has happened in an election.

In addition to his work in the political area, Harris' firm does marketing research on a continuing basis for clients such as American Telephone & Telegraph, American Airlines, Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, the New York Stock Exchange, Armstrong Code and IBM.

His weekly newspaper column, The Harris Survey, appears in 130 papers across the nation. He is under long-term contract with the Washington Post and writes a monthly feature for Newsweek Magazine. He has a similar long-term contract as a consultant to CBS News.

Mr. Harris lives in Riverdale, N. Y. He has three children, including a son, Peter, who is a sophomore at UNC. His daughter is a senior at Wisconsin and the younger son is a freshman at the University of California at San Diego.



LOU HARRIS

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of the Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. Letters and columns, covering a wide range of views, reflect the personal opinions of their authors.

ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR
JACK HARRINGTON, BUSINESS MANAGER

Politics Above Reason

Durham Morning Herald

Ordinarily the appointment of a federal judge is of little interest outside the state or district he is to serve. But the challenge to the credentials of Francis X. Morrissey, nominated by President Johnson to be a district judge in Massachusetts, has made his selection a matter of nationwide interest because it involves standards for the appointment of judges.

The chairman of the American Bar Association's Standing Committee on the Federal Judiciary testified before the Senate Judiciary subcommittee (which approved the nomination 6-3) that Mr. Morrissey, now a municipal court judge in Boston, lacks the intellectual capacity, the legal scholarship, the trial experience, and other qualifications a federal judge should have. His testimony concerning Judge Morrissey's legal education not only indicated that the Massachusetts appointee received his law diploma from a Georgia diploma mill but also contradicted Mr. Morrissey's testimony. Indeed, Mr. Morrissey's testimony before the subcommittee did not always agree with what the had told the Justice Department and the Bar Association.

Mr. Morrissey, after failing courses at the Suffolk Law School in Boston, went to Athens, Ga., where he claims to have studied three months in the Southern Law School, from June until September 1933. The ABA investigation showed that he went to Athens Sept. 7, received a diploma and was admitted to the bar under a Georgia law, already at that time repealed, which allowed holders of a law diploma to be admitted to the bar without examination, went to Atlanta the next day where he was admitted to practice before the Georgia Supreme Court and the federal District Court, and returned to Massachusetts Sept. 9. Mr. Morrissey, hazy over the sequence of events to his admission to the Georgia bar, says he stayed in Georgia for some nine months. As to his trial experience, he says that he has tried only one civil case and a few misdemeanors and minor felonies. One wonders what municipal judges in Boston do.

Judge Morrissey's chief claim to consideration is his faithful political service to the Kennedy clan. But John F. Kennedy understandably passed him by in making appointments to the federal courts in Massachusetts, although Mr. Morrissey had the endorsement of Joseph P. Kennedy. Now Mr. Morrissey has the backing of Sen. Edward Kennedy, and with that backing received the appointment from President Johnson.

While judicial experience is not a necessary preparation for a judicial appointment, learning in the law and the respect of the profession are. Mr. Morrissey seems to have neither. His preferment is a case of not what one knows, but of who one knows. And that is, we submit, a totally inadequate qualification for the judgeship of any court.

Horns Of A Dilemma

An anonymous herd of Baptist Wooly Bullies stormed the ramparts of Hogan's Farm Tuesday night and fleeced the University of North Carolina.

Well, almost.

The Demon Deacon rampage could have been a teetotal success if it weren't for the fact that the Goodly Brethen made off with Rameses VI rather than Rameses VII.

The ramifications of this oversight are obvious: Wake Forest is on the horns of a dilemma.

In the first place, the Elder Rameses is considerably more rambunctious than his youthful proteges. Being totally immersed in the jaded atmosphere of Carolina life, he is addicted to such excessive vices as drinking and dancing. Will it be possible, we wonder, for the Higher Ups at Wake Forest to shield these activities from the eyes of the impressionable youth at that institution?

In the second place, Rameses VI has never let anyone pull the wool over his eyes.

Armistead Maupin, Jr.

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; John Jennrich, associate editor; Barry Jacobs, managing editor; Fred Thomas, news editor, Pat Stith, sports editor; Gene Rector, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; John Greenbacker, political writer; Ed Freakley, Andy Myers, Lynne Harvel, Lynne Sizemore, David Rothman, Ray Linville, staff writers; Jack Harrington, bus. mgr.; Tom Clark, asst. bus. mgr.; Woody Sobol, ad. mgr.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all ap news dispatches.

Peaceniks Are Making News, But Not Sense

By JAMES RESTON
New York Times News Service

It is not easy, but let us assume that all the student demonstrators against the war in Viet Nam are everything they say they are: sincerely for an honorable peace, troubled by the bombing of the civil populations of both North and South Viet Nam, genuinely afraid that we may be trapped into a hopeless war with China, and worried about the power of the President and the Pentagon and the pugnacious bawling patriotism of many influential men in the Congress.

A case can be made for it. In a world of accidents and nuclear weapons and damn fools, even a dreaming pacificism has to be answered. And men who want peace, defy the government and demonstrate for the support of the Congress, but not only within their rights but must be heard.

The trouble is that they are inadvertent ly working against all the things they want, and creating all the things they fear the most. They are not promoting peace but postponing it. They are not persuading the President or the Congress to end the war, but deceiving Ho Chi Minh and General Giap into prolonging it. They are not proving the superior wisdom of the university community, but unfortunately are bringing it into serious question.

When President Johnson was stubbornly refusing to define his war aims in Viet Nam, and rejecting all thought of a negotiated settlement, the student objectors had a point and many of us here in the Washington press corps and the Washington political community supported them, but they are now out of date. They are making news, but they are not making sense.

The problem of peace now lies not in Washington but in Hanoi, and probably the most reliable source of information in the Western world about what is going on there is the Canadian representative on the Viet Nam International Control Commission, Mr. Blair Seaborn.

He flies regularly to the North Vietnamese capital with the Polish and Indian members of that commission, and he is personally in favor of an honorable negotiated peace in Viet Nam. He is a cultivated man and a professional diplomat. He knows all the mistakes we have made, probably in more detail than all the professors in all the teach-ins in all the universities of this country. What he finds in Hanoi, however, is a total misconception of American policy and, particularly, a powerful conviction among Communist officials there that the anti-war demonstrations and editorials in the United States will force the American government to give up the fight.

Not even the conscientious objectors on the picket lines in this country really believe that they have the power or the support to bring about any such result, but Hanoi apparently believes it, and for an interesting reason.

Ho Chi Minh and the other Communist leaders in Hanoi remember that they defeated the French in Viet Nam between 1950 and 1953 at least partly because of opposition to the Viet Nam war inside France. The Communists won the propaganda battle in Paris before they won the military battle at Dien Bien Phu.

Now they think they see the same surge of protest working against the government in Washington, no matter what Seaborn says to the contrary. They have not been able to challenge American air, naval or even ground power effectively since midsummer in South Viet Nam, but they apparently still have the hope that the demonstrations against the Johnson Administration in the United States will in the end give them the victory they cannot achieve on the battlefield.

So the Communists reject the negotiations the demonstrators in the United States want. They reject the negotiations the American government has offered, and the demonstrators are protesting, not against the nation that is continuing the war, but against their own country that is offering to make peace.

Not surprisingly, this is creating an ugly situation here in Washington. Instead of winning allies in the Congress to change the Johnson policy, the demonstrators are encouraging the very war psychology they denounce.

Senator Stennis of Mississippi, chairman of the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee, is now demanding that the Administration pull up the anti-draft movement "by the roots and grind it to bits."

Honest conscientious objectors are being confused with unconscientious objectors, hangerson, intellectual graduate school draft dodgers, and rent-a-crowd boobs who will demonstrate for or against anything. And the universities and the government's policy are being hurt in the process.

So there are now all kinds of investigations going on or being planned to find out who and what are behind all these demonstrations on the campuses. It is a paradoxical situation, for it is working not for in telligent objective analysis of the problem, which the university community of the nation is supposed to represent, nor for peace, which the demonstrators are demanding, but in both cases for precisely the opposite.

Curtain Up

Those involved in the business of education—whether in giving or receiving it—are the persons to whom the freedom of that education is the most essential. Since the North Carolina speaker ban went into effect, the most qualified argument against it has come from the university campus. Students and professors who have tried to express their views have seldom succeeded in being heard outside the campuses, however. Their opinions have been repeatedly discredited by accusations of attempts at subversion or of selfish motives or they have been blatantly ignored.

A Duke University professor who voiced his objection to the ban received a rebuttal amounting to little more than a "mind your own business." If the ban is not the business of every member of the academic profession then it is left to those on the state supported campuses. If it is not the concern of every North Carolinian as a voter then it is not the concern of legislature as government by the people. Political rejection of opinions voiced from outside the university campuses has not been followed by recognition of the university's right to be heard.

Letters To The Editor

UNC Needs 'Humane Code' For Carolina Non-Gentlemen

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Perhaps UNC needs a "Humane Code." The Honor Code and Campus Code apparently fail to prevent some of our Carolina Gentlemen from behaving like animals. As case in point, I here relate a shocking occurence at Saturday's UNC-Maryland game that should be an utter embarrassment to us all.

There are those of us who enjoy the lilting bars of "Dixie" but whose regional-national orientations are such that we choose not to stand in observance of its rendition. (Nor, incidentally, do we stand at the playing of "Marching Through Georgia" in New York City or Minneapolis or Seattle.) Fellow students seem to have respected this choice in the past. But, alas, I am a Caucasian and there may lie the explanation for such tolerance. Seated near me at the Maryland game was a Negro couple who remained quite understandably seated as the chords of "Dixie" penetrated the air. Taking quick notice of this, a male student a few rows behind struck up his own one-man chorus of shouts to this effect: "Hey, you burr-heads down there! Stand up!"; "Robert E. Lee was the greatest man who ever lived"; and "We want segregation." Neighboring Carolina Gentlemen added their own, "Stand up, you damn niggers" and "We shall overcome you."

Happily, nothing further developed, and my compliments go to the young couple for quietly ignoring such a show of Grade A ignorance. Now, I realize that the blind prejudices and biases of many of our students will never be overcome by any manner or means, but such despicable behavior as this should be inexcusable and intolerable at UNC. This is not a Selma or a Bogalusa. Let us attempt to keep it that way, my fellow students somewhere on the campus, by at least refraining from the kind of verbal abuse that marks one as an unmitigated bigot, at best. No university should really need a Humane Code. If you're here to get a quality education, get it and demonstrate it. If you're not, why waste everyone's time? Leave! They can use your type in the Alabama KKK or the San Diego Zoo.

Gary Tiedeman
Miller Hall

No Interest Seen In Campus Radio

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Now that the results of the campus radio referendum are in, it should be particularly interesting to see what the campus "leaders" do with the facts. Most undoubtedly, they will clamor that a majority has chosen to have campus radio and therefore that there is a need for it. But is such the case? No, it is not.

The referendum was to be an indication of campus interest so that the leaders could judge whether there was a "need" for a campus radio, "need" being used here as something that enough people are interested in and are willing to pay $34,000 for.

Just what were the final results. Out of about 12,000 students approximately 3,000 voted for a campus radio, 1,000 were definitely against it, and the other 8,000 couldn't have cared less either way what happened because they didn't care enough even to vote. These results hardly show a "need" for or an interest in a campus radio. It will be interesting to see how those "leaders" who are in favor of such a program will get around facts which so blatantly point the other way.

John W. Pettingell, I.
213 N. Boundary St.

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel welcomes letters to the editor on any subject, particularly on matters of local or University interest. Letters must be typed, double spaced and must include the name and address of the author or authors. Names will not be omitted in publication. Letters should be kept as brief as possible. The DTH reserves the right to edit for length or libel.

Quiet Spectator Dampens Cheers

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

After being a student at UNC for a little over two years, I thought I had seen just about everything. Well, I got quite a surprise at the Maryland game Saturday.

As everyone who was there knows, the game was very close, and at certain points in the game the Carolina rooters tended to be rather quiet. At several instances when quiet reigned on the Carolina side a friend of mine, who is never quiet, thought it appropriate to cheer our team as best he could. There was a student in front of us who had his wife and his mother at the game, who did not appreciate my friend's cheers, and on more than one occasion turned around and told my friend to be quiet. At one point he even threatened to have him thrown out by the police.

I want to state that my friend had had a few drinks, but every cheer he gave was a standard Carolina cheer, completely devoid of any vulgarity, with the exception of a few "hells."

On the other hand this "fan" in front of us almost never cheered. In fact the only times I heard him say anything were twice when he got up to curse our Coach Hickey and a few times when he yelled at our defensive secondary for letting Maryland complete a pass.

To me this was the most ludicrous exhibition of Carolina spirit I have ever seen! I would like to suggest that in the future that anyone who does not care to cheer for Carolina sit on the east side of the stadium. From that side they can curse out Coach Hickey all they want and they will only have to listen to "Carolina cheers" from afar.

Mark Emory
1039 Morrison

Women Protest

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

This letter is to protest, in general, the dual standards for men and women on campus and, specifically, the invasion of personal freedom which the housekeeping rules for resident women accomplish. Is it not an outrage to tell the students who rent dormitory rooms how these rooms must be ordered, short of actual damage to University property and a sanitation threat? It is petty and a usurpation of rights for the administration to issue call downs leading to campusment when a woman student fails to conform to a prescribed stereotyped and arbitrary arrangement of her possessions.

It is an unhealthy and restrictive policy in addition to being, on its face, and encroachment. We suggest to the tradition-minded that we are not here for a course in clothes-arranging and bed-making by 10 a.m. and that these are matters of individual concern and surely not the province of the administration. This policy is an anachronism and we ask the support of all students in condemning it.

Pat Thomas
Claudia .C Madeley
227 East Cobb

Louise M. J. Ambrosiano
424 East Cobb

MUM'S THE WORD. Samantha Townshend, social chairman of the Senior Class, has a secret. Watch for further developments. — DTH Photo By Ernest Robl.

New Dormitory For Girls

By LYNNE SIZEMORE
DTH Staff Writer

Stretching its nine floors upward, Granville Hall, the new graduate women's dorm, is an abode of luxury. Providing space for 492 women, this building is an excellent example of a luxury hotel with its wall-to-wall carpeting, elevators, air conditioning and private phones.

The dorm is a part of university approved housing and was built by Allen Brothers of Memphis, Tenn. Building began in August of 1964 and was complete by Sept. 1 of this year. The cost to live there is $247.50, double the cost of other dorms.

There are nine floors, but only two are occupied, holding 75 women. What happened to the other 417? There is a possibility that the dorm will become an undergraduate women's dorm. No more Winstons!

Graduate students may object to this move as at present they are allowed to remain out one hour later during the week and if they desire to remain out longer than 1 a.m. on weekends, for special occasions, they inform the housemother who will in turn let them in.

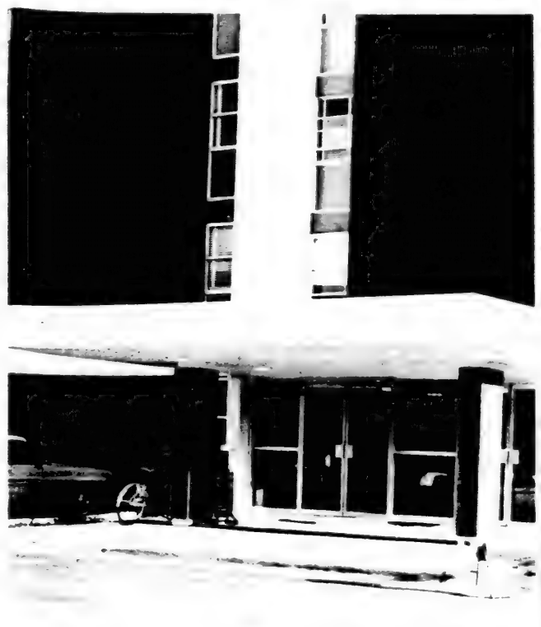
Mrs. Emily O'Neill, former housemother of the Alpha Gamma Delta sorority, is the housemother for Granville. Her apartment contains a living room, dining room, kitchen, bedroom and bath.

Each room in the dorm is either decorated in blue or gold with a bath - shower shared by a suite. Each girl has her own desk, bulletin board, and built-in shelves and drawers. There is a sink in each room along with two walk-in closets. A lounge with tables for bridge and a television set are provided on each floor. All halls are carpeted which provides excellent sound-proofing.

There is parking space for 246 cars, one space for every two girls. Wouldn't the rest of the campus like to have that much space! Of course not all spaces are filled but it is a city ordinance for the two to one ratio, guess that's for all places but Franklin St.

The lobby is decorated in blue and green with various statues, including a replica of the Pieta, used for ornaments. The columns leading into the lobby are fashioned from ceramic tile. Males are allowed in the main lounge and in the concourse lounge beneath the main floor. Laundry facilities and a fully equipped snack bar are also provided.

Officers have been elected and a full social program has been installed. Besides the graduates, several university employed personnel have rooms in Granville. What will happen in the future no one can really tell, either the price of the room will have to be raised or undergraduates will be allowed to live there. At one time it was thought that Granville was to be turned into a co-ed dorm with males living on the two top floors, but apparently this idea was discarded. Isn't that a shame.



LUXURY LIVING — This is the entrance to the new Granville Hall, a dormitory for graduate women. The plush rooms rent for twice the normal rate.
— DTH Photo By Ernest Robl

Zeta Beta Tau Tops '64-'65 Frat Academic Averages

Zeta Beta Tau fraternity topped the Greek academic list both semesters last year and turned in a 2.607 average for the 1964-65 academic year.

A list released last week by the Dean of Men's Office showed Delta Upsilon in second place with a 2.463 and Tau Epsilon Phi third with a 2.462.

Averages for spring and fall semesters and over-all averages for the academic year were ZBT 2.653, 2.575, 2.607; DU 2.458, 2.467, 2.463; TEP 2.381, 2.458, 2.426; Phi Delta Theta 2.511, 2.355, 2.419; Kappa Sigma 2.635, 2.2531, 2.411.

ATO 2.584, 2.286, 2.405; Beta Theta Psi 2.525, 2.2529, 2.357; Chi Psi 2.222, 2.447, 2.351; DKE 2.196, 2.276, 2.245; Delta Psi 2.188, 2.257, 2.218; Phi Gamma Delta 2.239, 2.149, 2.182.

Zeta Psi 2.134, 2.182, 2.154; Chi Phi 2.131, 2.160, 2.146; SPE 2.226, 2.0551, 2.128; Sigma Nu 2.159, 2.07891, 2.113; Pi Kappa Phi 2.114, 2.0561, 2.086; Sigma Chi 1.953, 2.184, 2.080; Lambda Chi Alpha 2.057, 2.07894, 2.068.

KA 2.051, 2.068, 2.062; Phi Kappa Sigma 2.161, 2.073, 2.034; PiKA 2.015, 2.019, 2.017; Pi Lambda Phi 1.972, 2.075, 2.016; SAE 2.085, 1.937, 2.004.

All-fraternity average 2.246, 2.236, 2.241.

All - men's average 2.205, 2.194, 2.200.

SMALL USE

Of some quarter million speces of higher plants, only a hundred are used by man

HELP WANTED!
Part-time Student with knowledge of H. O. Railroad or Air Planes
Apply in Person only
BILLY ARTHUR
Eastgate Shopping Center
Chapel Hill, N. C.

KING WILLIAM RESTAURANT
1½ Miles from Campus on 15-501 South
SPECIALIZING IN:
STEAKS CHICKEN SEAFOOD
"Choice Selection of Imported and Domestic Beverages"
All New and Modern, featuring
- Seating capacity of 300
- Spacious parking facilities
- Four private dining rooms
- Tasteful background music
- Catering facilities

Open from 8:00 a.m. 'til Midnight
SEVEN DAYS A WEEK

THE NEW YORK LIFE
Agent on your campus is a good man to know.
Write . . . Phone . . . Visit

GEORGE L. COKEHEAD, C.L.U.
208½ East Franklin
(Over Dairy Bar) Ph. 942-4256
NEW YORK LIFE
NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

UNC Graduate Students Eligible For $1,500 Grants

UNC is one of 18 U. S. colleges and universities whose students are eligible for $1,500 per year graduate scholarships in chemistry, physics, bacteriology, fresh-water biology, engineering, business administration and management.

The scholarships are sponsored by the Water and Wastewater Equipment Manufacturers Association for students who have maintained a record of high undergraduate scholarship and who indicate an interest in entering the field of public water supply.

Marital status and number of dependents of applicants, as well as any other indication of need, will be considered by the award committee.

Applications must be filed before Feb. 27, 1966. Winners will be announced by March 20.

Interested persons may obtain further information and application forms by writing American Water Works Association, 2 Park Ave., New York, N. Y. 10016.

SEE DOCTOR

An ounce of mirth is worth a pound of sorrow and an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, says the North Carolina Heart Association. Help prevent heart disease; see you doctor for a heart and health checkup.

Lipsitz Says Study Reds

By RAY LINVILLE
DTH Staff Writer

What attitude should be taken toward Communism?

"One of a student willing to learn," Dr. Lewis Lipsitz of the UNC political science department told the Westminster fellowship Sunday night.

"Given our wealth, power and security, we should be sensitive to the political problems in poor and developing countries, although we aren't," he said.

He told the group Communists are sensitive to these problems because their doctrine makes them so.

"They proclaim their doctrine as the champion of the oppressed. They use wars of liberation to exploit the grievances of poorer nations," he said.

"We are usually insensitive to these problems until they blow up in our face. We become sensitive too late. We think conservatively when concerned with social change," he said.

"We should become more sensitive to these problems for two reasons. First, they are not going to disappear, but will continue to grow. Secondly, we should approach these problems from a humanitarian point of view. If democracy doesn't bring about needed changes, undemocratic forces will."

Lipsitz said some people associate change with communism. For this reason, when they see unconformity, they yell "Red." He said anti-communism for some is a religion. Once wherever these persons saw deviance, they saw the devil. "Now communism is that devil," he said.

"Others use anti - communism for their own purposes. For example, some people label those working for Negro civil rights as communistic. They say communists always stir up trouble. But trouble cannot be stirred up. Only latent problems are made manifest," he said.

Lipsitz said sometimes our foreign policy is to protect our interests in foreign countries and not to promote democracy. He charged the U. S. has supported some undemocratic governments only to maintain a stable regime and keep the Communists out.

He said the major problems facing the United States this century would be (1) proliferation of nuclear weapons; (2) problems of poverty and the problems they instigate such as instability of government; and (3) China.

Lipsitz was asked whether he thought United States citizens would become more pacifistic or militaristic if the war in Viet Nam continued three or four more years.

He said because families would have relatives involved in the fighting, the war would become emotional, and peace plans would be favored.

He said he thought there would be a growth of intolerance toward dissenters and nonconformists such as happened during the Korean War.

"The Vietnamese war is confusing to most Americans. They're frustrated because they don't know why we're there," Lipsitz said.

Lipsitz graduated from the University of Chicago and received his doctorate from Yale where he taught before coming to Carolina.

CAROLINA
TODAY ONLY
THE EARTH-SHAKING EVENTS... THE THUNDERING BATTLES... OF THE WAR THAT SHOOK THE WORLD!

THE GUNS OF AUGUST
BARBARA W. TUCHMAN'S PULITZER PRIZE BEST-SELLER ABOUT WORLD WAR I

Don't miss the Old Book Week display at
The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Open Till 10 P.M.

HELD OVER!
"A MARVEL! ONE OF THE MADDEST MOVIES EVER MADE!" —N. Y. World-Telegram & Sun
"IT DAZZLES!" —N. Y. Times
"THE KNACK... and how to get it"

STARRING RITA TUSHINGHAM
BEST PICTURE CANNES FILM FESTIVAL
THIS PICTURE IS RECOMMENDED FOR ADULTS ONLY
Shorts: "THE PINK PHINK" and "THE PEACHES"
1:25, 3:19, 5:13, 7:08 & 9:03
RIALTO, Durham

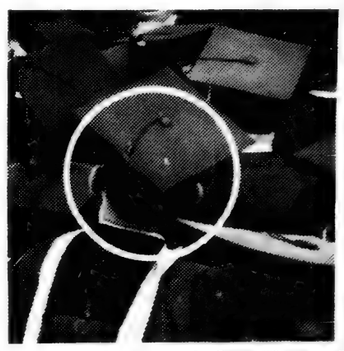
GM presents: Doc Watson

True folk music lovers at UNC are in for a sample of the real thing when Doc Watson appears in concert in the main lounge of Graham Memorial Wednesday, Oct. 20, at 4 p.m. Watson, a blind southern guitarist and vocalist, is considered one of America's greatest folk artists today.

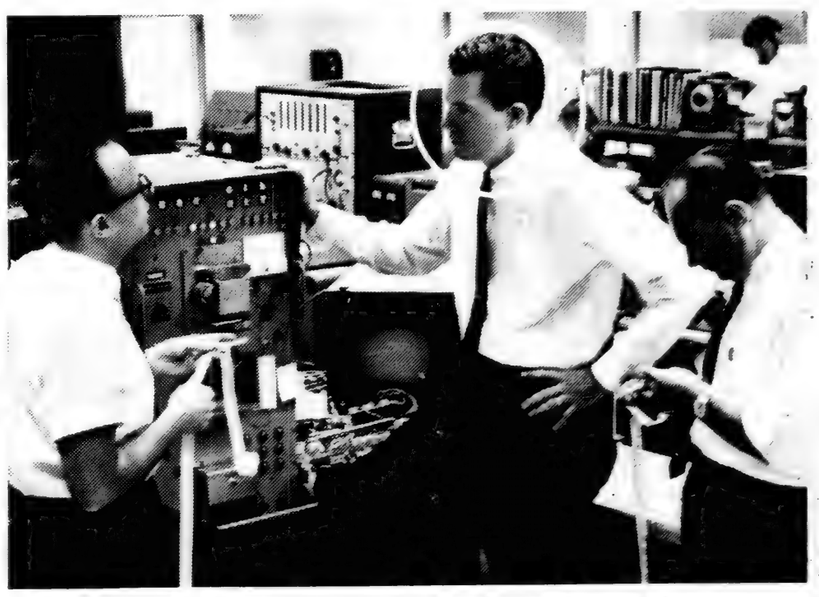
The Chicago Daily News has acclaimed Watson as "the most talented singer and instrumentalist today with an authentic background in both American folk and country music – an amazing instrumentalist, perhaps the best folk and country guitarist around and a fine banjo picker too."

Watson, although a relatively late comer on the recording scene, fills only about half the requests for concert appearances that he receives because he enjoys being at home so much. He is known for his informal concerts and probably, as one of his album covers notes, "nobody loves a Doc Watson concert more than Doc." Following the concert there will be an informal reception for those who may wish to meet and talk with Watson.

Watson appeared at the 1963 Newport Folk Festival with such stars as Joan Baez, Bob Dylan, Earl Scruggs, Lester Flatt and the Foggy Mountain Boys. He has been recording about three years on the Vanguard label, producers of his latest album "Doc Watson and Son."



John Lauritzen wanted further knowledge



He's finding it at Western Electric

When the University of Nevada awarded John Lauritzen his B.S.E.E. in 1961, it was only the first big step in the learning program he envisions for himself. This led him to Western Electric. For WE agrees that ever-increasing knowledge is essential to the development of its engineers—and is helping John in furthering his education.

John attended one of Western Electric's three Graduate Engineering Training Centers and graduated with honors. Now, through the Company-paid Tuition Refund Plan, John is working toward his Master's in Industrial Management at Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute. He is currently a planning engineer developing test equipment for the Bell System's revolutionary electronic telephone switching system.

If you set the highest standards for yourself, both educationally and professionally, we should talk. Western Electric's vast communications job as manufacturing unit of the Bell System provides many opportunities for fast-moving careers for electrical, mechanical and industrial engineers, as well as for physical science, liberal arts and business majors. Get your copy of the Western Electric Career Opportunities booklet from your Placement Officer. And be sure to arrange for an interview when the Bell System recruiting team visits your campus.

Western Electric MANUFACTURING AND SUPPLY UNIT OF THE BELL SYSTEM
AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER
Principal manufacturing locations in 13 cities □ Operating centers in many of these same cities plus 36 others throughout the U.S. Engineering Research Center, Princeton, N.J. □ Teletype Corp., Skokie, Ill., Little Rock, Ark. □ General Headquarters, New York City

—Rinaldi Testifies—

(Continued from Page 1)

the police. He replied "I never suggested any motive." He denied making statements to police on the night of his arrest.

Rinaldi told the court the officers must be wrong because "I know I'm right." He made the statement after being asked about statements he made to police officers Howard Pendergraf and James Merrill of Chapel Hill and a State Bureau of Investigation agent F. G. Satterfield Jr.

Satterfield testified last week that police might think Rinaldi killed his wife for three reasons: Financial difficulties, money, or another woman.

Rinaldi admitted during the lengthy cross - examination that he had visited a psychiatrist 14 or 15 times in 1962.

Rinaldi testified he and his new bride came to live in Chapel Hill in September 1963 after being married in July that year in Waterbury. His wife worked only three days in Chapel Hill and quit her job. She returned to Waterbury Sept. 9.

"I'll ask you if you didn't have quite an argument and that's the reason she went back?" the solicitor inquired.

"Certainly not," Rinaldi replied.

Alfred Foushee, a Negro waiter, testified last week that Rinaldi tried to hire him a dozen times or more to kill Mrs. Rinaldi in 1963. He told the court:

"Each time I said no."

Questioned about this, Rinaldi said, "I never asked Alfred Foushee any such ting."

"I'll ask you if you didn't try to sell everything your wife owned?" the solicitor declared.

"I did not," Rinaldi answered.

During the lengthy cross-examination, Rinaldi said the shirt he wore on the shopping trip with Sipp bore some blood stains. He said his wife had a nose bleed the night before. He said he was not aware the stains were on the shirt at the time.

Cooper asked him if he didn't tell Chapel Hill Police Capt. Roy Durham when the officer came to the Rinaldi apartment on Christmas Eve that "Someone has killed and robbed my wife."

Rinaldi denied this.

The defense succeeded in introducing a letter found on the coffee table in the Rinaldi apartment that had been written by Lucille Rinaldi.

The letter was addressed to Kevin Kerrane, who had roomed with Rinaldi. In the letter, she said her husband had gone on a shopping trip "to tell Santa what a nice girl I have been." Later in the letter was the sentence, "This Christmas is all we hoped it would be."

Solicitor Thomas B. Cooper Jr. probed into Rinaldi's background closely during his lengthy cross examination. Rinaldi attended Taft Prep School in Connecticutt and was graduated from Georgetown University where he majored in English.

A former employe of the Central Intelligence Agency, Rinaldi was asked by the solicitor if he wasn't "kicked out" of the CIA.

"I certainly was not," he replied.

"I'll ask you if they didn't fire you because of a picture that appeared in a Waterbury newspaper that identified you as a CIA agent," Cooper asked.

Rinaldi again replied, "No," adding "I say I was not fired."

Questioned about his military service, Rinaldi said he served three years in the Army at Ft. Knox, Ky., and Ft. Benning, Ga. During that time he attended but failed to complete an officers candidate school.

"Isn't it true your fellow officers rated you as unacceptable?"

"I have no idea of that," Rinaldi replied.

Cooper then asked him, "You didn't flunk out of OCS because of grades?"

Rinaldi answered that he did not.

"You were taught in the Army how to kill?" Cooper asked.

Defense attorneys strongly objected to this question and Judge George M. Fountain sustained the objection.

Rinaldi said he first went to Carolina in 1956 as a graduate student. The following year he began teaching at the University of Missouri, but quit because "I had a disagreement with my superior in policy making. An unfriendly situation developed."

TWELVE MORRISON RESIDENTS AND A TERP: That was last weekend's toll in Schroeder Swamp. The 13 grave markers appeared mysteriously Saturday morning in the soggy area behind the new Morrison dorm.
— DTH Photo By Ernest Robl.

Klansman Faces Congress

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Congressional investigators sought to show yesterday that Ku Klux Klan Grand Dragon Robert M. Shelton finagled the Klan's bank account by using disguised signatures on its checks.

The House Committee on Un - American Activities, opening long-awaited hearings on the Klan, called a government handwriting expert who also worked on documents in the trial of Alger Hiss.

The expert, Philip Schmitz, testified that signatures of James J. Hendrix on Klan checks actually were written by Shelton's wife, Betty L. Shelton.

He said another signature of T. M. Montgomery on a Klan check actually was the writing of Mrs. Carol Long, alleged to be a secretary employed by the group at its Tuscaloosa, Ala., headquarters.

Shelton, his wife and Mrs. Long pleaded the Fifth Amendment in refusing to answer all questions. They also invoked the First, Fourth and 14th Amendments in a long ritual which they repeated after each question.

Shelton, a slender 36-year-old in a conservative grey suit and flashing a diamond ring on his left hand, refused to answer 73 times. He seemed calm and self-possessed as he did so and as he refused to produce Klan documents subpoenaed by the committee.

As the hearing opened this morning, committee investigators said they had located 381 Klan units in a 10-month search, but were hampered by the terror they said the Klan inspires in many parts of the South.

"These people fear harassment, threatening letters, telephone calls, cross burnings on their property, beatings, bombings, and, yes, even death," said Donald T. Appell chief committee investigator.

The big House caucus room was crowded with spectators, newsmen, and photographers. Extra policemen were stationed in the room and outside. A plainclothesman sat facing the audience in the enter aisle watching for any disturbance, but there was none.

The morning session was devoted to an elaborate presentation by committee staffers of the history of the Klan since it was founded after the Civil War, its long record of violence, and its spread in the South and a few northern states in the past two years.

Maps of each southern state were flashed on a large screen, with dots representing the various Klaverns or local Klan clubs. At the end the investigators told newsmen that of the 381 Klaverns they found, 260 are affiliated with Shelton's United Klans, and others belong to a dozen splinter groups.

There was a murmur of laughter in the room when Appell flashed the mystic titles Klan officials use in their Klaverns, such as Exalted Cyclops (president, Klaliff (vice president), Klokard (lecturer), Kludd (Chaplain), Kligrapp (secretary), Klabee, (treasurer), Kladd (conductor), Klarogo (inner guard), and Klexter (outer guard).

With Shelton refusing to answer any questions, committee staffers read into the record evidence that he is president, or Grand Dragon, or Imperial Wizard, of the United Klans of America, the largest of the Klan groups.

They said this group operates out of Tuscaloosa, Ala., and uses the name Alabama rescue service for its bank account.

After a series of unanswered questions about signatures on Alabama rescue service checks and on bank signature cards, the committee wheeled up its big gun — handwriting expert Schmitz.

He testified he was trained in his profession by the FBI, and since then has worked for the Veterans Administration. Schmitz said he has testified as an expert in many trials besides the famous Hiss case. Hiss, a former State Department aide, was convicted of lying when he denied passing secrets to a Russian spy ring.

Using a slide projector with samples of the handwriting involved, Schmitz gave a detailed lecture on similarities he said proved the check signatures where written by the two women.

Committee chairman Edwin E. Willis, D-La., told Shelton in the case of the subpoenaed documents that invoking of the Fifth Amendment was not a proper grounds for refusal to produce them. He warned Shelton his refusal could lead to a contempt of congress citation.

Shelton had his response — citing the First, Fourth, Fifth and 14th Amendments — written out and he read it off each time. He finally was persuaded by Willis not to go through this ritual each time, but to the cite the grounds as previously stated. But soon Shelton reverted to the long form.

Hoover Hints Communists Behind Demonstrations

WASHINGTON (AP) — J. Edgar Hoover hinted yesterday that a communist youth group is pulling the strings in recent nationwide demonstrations against U. S. policy in Viet Nam.

Leaders of the W. E. B. Dubois Club of America, the FBI director said, "Were prominent among communists who attended a special youth leadership school sponsored by the party last June to prepare for a stepped - up campaign of recruitment and agitation among youth.

"Already this fall, there are signs that these training sessions have begun to bear fruit — in the form of defiant protest against law and authority," he said.

Hoover described the Dubois clubs as "an illegitimate spawn conceived by the Communist Party and nurtured by a trusted band of youthful adherents to the cause of world Marxism."

The clubs, Hoover said, are "standing in the forefront of the communist campaign to confuse the minds, distort the thinking and win the support of our young people . . ."

Hoover, in a speech prepared for the Supreme Council of 33rd Degree Masons for the Southern Jurisdiction, did not specifically link the Dubois clubs to the recent rash of anti-draft and anti-Viet Nam demonstrations that have erupted across the nation. But these have been paramount among the gatherings in the period to which he referred as "this fall."

The 70-year-old Hoover — himself a Mason for 45 years — also chose the masonic forum to renew his criticism of some of the nation's courts.

"The jousting in legal mumbo - jumbo resorted to by too many of our judges makes a farce of our judicial system," he said.

"Tragically, the atmosphere of many of our courtrooms is still polluted by some jurors who deliberately close their minds to the evidence before them.

"Too many of our judges seek out technicalities rather than guilt or innocence. A trial should truly represent an enlightened search for truth so that deception, surprise, technicalities and delay will be obliterated."

UNC To Hold Debates, 40 Schools Invited

Some of the nation's top collegiate debaters will be here tomorrow through Saturday for the Tar Heel Invitational Debate Tournament.

Participants from 40 schools will engage in eight rounds of debate on the topic — "Resolved: That law enforcement agencies should be given greater freedom in the investigation and prosecution of crime."

Bob Powell, president of the host UNC Debate Team, said yesterday debaters will come from a wide crosssection of colleges and universities — from Wayne State University and the University of Illinois over to Brooklyn College and West Point down to the University of Alabama and Emory University.

Debating will begin at 9 a.m. Friday in Gerrard Hall. All sessions will be open to the public.

Participants, including last year's top three teams in the nation, were selected from more than 150 schools.

"This should be one of the tournaments in the South this year. It will be a great opportunity for the student body to witness collegiate debating at its best," Powell said.

He also said timekeepers are needed for every round. Students interested in particiating in as well as hearing the debates may sign up for these positions at the GM Information Desk.

Merit Finalists

The National Merit Scholarship Committee of the Student Government has invited 321 National Merit semifinalists in the state to visit the campus Nov. 68.

The group will be guests of Student Government during the three day period.

They will attend the UNC Clemson football game, a banquet, tours of the campus and convocations with faculty and student leaders, according to committee chairman Wyatt McCallie.

Move Cars

Better move your car from the parking lot near the Cobb tennis court if it's parked there.

A crew will be installing lighting fixtures to permit nighttime tennis games, and Chief Beaumont said yesterday the autos would interfere with the work, which begins early Thursday morning.

Around Carolina

TODAY

Amateur Radio Club at 7:30 in Caldwell Y.

The Religious Interfaith Council will meet at 5 p.m. upstairs in Lenoir Hall.

The treasurers of all SG committees and the Budget committee meet at 7-8:30 p.m. in Roland Parker II and III in GM.

State Affairs Committee will meet in Woodhouse at 4:30 p.m. Project assignments will be made. Attendance is mandatory.

The Tar Heel Invitational Debate Tournament needs students to keep time for championship intercollegiate debates Thursday - Saturday. Sign up at GM Information desk or call 933-2155.

There will be a compulsory meeting of all the nominees for class officers in Gerrard Hall at 7 p.m.

Residence Hall Ad Hoc committee will meet with Dean Long and Brit Gorden in Roland Parker III at 4 p.m.

Student Audit Board will meet promptly at 5 p.m. in the lobby of GM. Please wear a coat and tie as the Yack Photo will be taken.

Stray Greeks will have a supper meeting at Brady's at 6:30 p.m.

All students interested in working with the mentally retarded children at Murdoch Center are invited to meet with the Murdoch Committee members in front of the Y at 2 p.m. Wednesday.

There will be a meeting of the Communications committee of SG at 5 p.m. in Roland Park II on the second floor of GM. All members are urged to attend as this will be an organizational meeting. For information contact Hurley Thompson at 929-5475.

Elections Board meeting at 3 p.m. in the Grail Room. Wear a coat and tie.

The International Relations committee of the YWCA will meet at 5 p.m. upstairs in the Y.

VIGAH. Program Development only at 7 p.m. in the Grail Room of GM.

Treasurers of all SG committees will meet in Roland Parker II and III from 7-8:30 p.m.

A debate of the Philanthropic Society "Should the U. S. Oppose a Unilateral declaration of Freedom by Southern Rodesia?" at 7:30 p.m. in Phi Hall, fourth floor of New East. Also the inaugeral ceremony of Press. G. Wright Doyle.

Ways and Means Committee at 3:30 p.m. in Roland Parker II. This is a regular meeting and Yack pictures will be taken.

Campus Briefs

UNC students are wanted to work with mentally retarded patients in John Umstead Hospital at Butner, N. C.

Robert E. Boone, chairman of the Umstead Committee of the YM-YWCA, said yesterday that students are needed to work mornings or after noons Monday through Friday and on weekends on programs of case aid, recreation, occupational therapy, and education.

Selection will be based on the volunteer's friendliness, dependability, and desire to work, he said.

An organizational meeting will be held Thursday at 7 p.m. in Gerrard Hall for all interested persons.

Michigan Congressman Paul H. Todd Jr. will review the history of the federal government's role in population policy at a seminar here this month.

The two-day seminar will be held by the University Population Program Oct. 27-29.

The major concern of the meeting will be discussion of a general population policy for the United States.

The League of Women Voters will hold an orientation meeting tomorrow morning at 10 a.m. at the home of Mrs. John Schwab, 1030 Highland Woods.

League policies and the coming year's program will be discussed. The featured speaker will be Mrs. Donald Hayman, past LWV president and former state chairman of the Development of Human Resources committee.

Dr. Amnon Rapoport of the UNC Psychology Department has won first prize of $1,000 in the Creative Talent Awards program.

The program is sponsored by the American Institute for Research in the Behavioral Sciences. Dr. Rapoport won for his dissertation entitled "Comparison of Four Models for Word - Frequency Distributions from Normal and Aphasic Speakers." There were 70 other candidates nominated for the award.

Interviews for positions on the UNCCH delegation to this year's State Student Legislature will continue today through Friday from 2 to 5 p.m. in Roland Parker Lounge I of Graham Memorial.

SSL, which will meet in February, is a mock state legislature with representatives from nearly all North Carolina colleges and universities.

Resolutions and bills concerning student welfare and state needs are introduced and voted on by the body.

All interested students are invited to apply.

N. C. FIRST

The first school of forestry in the United States was established at Biltmore, N. C., in 1898 by a German forester, C. H. Schenck.

All-State hairstyling champion Mrs. Georgia Rogers takes position with Aesthetic Hairstyling. Her model is Miss Peach Pearce, current Miss Gastonia and first runner-up in the Miss North Carolina Contest.

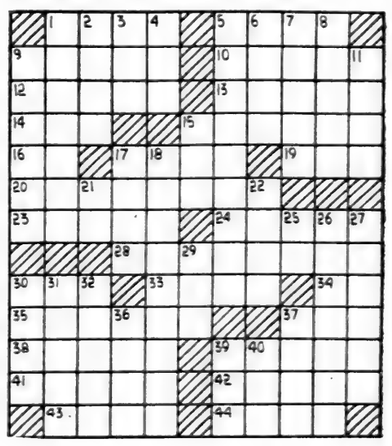
FOOTBALL AFTERMATH — This was the scene in Kenan Stadium yesterday as workmen went about cleaning up the last remains of the UNC-Maryland grid battle. Seemingly endless lines of soft drink cups, interspersed by occasional bottles stretched off into the distance, waiting to be gathered up and hauled away.
—DTH Photo by Ernest Robl.

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Sesame
5. Domestic pets
9. Plant tendrils
10. Correct
12. Think
13. Biblical mount
14. Western Indian
15. Transfer: Law
16. Recto: abbr.
17. Pineapple
19. Roman money
20. Student groups
23. Decree
24. Daggers
28. Tattler
30. "Stowe" character
33. Beams
34. Article
35. Imposed, as taxes
37. Candlenut tree
38. Husks of grains
39. Small herring
41. Put out
42. Mountain ridge
43. WW II Greek underground
44. Exclamation

DOWN
1. Walked through the tulips
2. Canal
3. Sea eagle
4. Fib
5. Cowardly
6. Leave out
7. Italian port-city
8. Trap
9. Golf or race can precede it
11. Loud noises
15. Mother of Irish gods
17. Early Britisher
18. Concerns
21. Diatonic note
22. Perches
25. Sun god
26. Oregon river
27. Where to find Bass, Moss, Cotton, etc.
29. Youth
30. German river
31. Liveliness
32. Benefit
36. King Atahualpa
37. Elder son of Zeus
39. Droop
40. For

Yesterday's Answer



LITTLE BUT MIGHTY WANT ADS

JEROME NEEDS A HOME. A monkey with cage and training equipment. Reasonable price. 942-3365.

TRAILER FOR SALE OR rent: 1952 model 8 x 30 Robins with electric range. Fully furnished. Sale $875, rent $50.00 per month. Telephone 929-2605 after 5:00 p.m.

WANTED: ONE OR TWO males to share comfortable, well furnished two bedroom apartment near campus. Air conditioned. All utilities for $115 - mo. Call evenings 942-3690.

FOR SALE: '61 METROPOLItan. Good condition, has given many miles of dependable service. $400. All offers considered. Call 929-5279.

FOR SALE: '65 TEMPEST 2-dr ht, 3 months old, 7,000 miles, radio, heater, straight drive. Owner leaving country. Call 967-1028.

SMALL USE
Of some quarter million speces of higher plants, only a hundred are used by man.

WRITE TO ENGLAND

if you would like a neat heraldic shield bearing the arms or badge of your university or college. These 7" x 6" wall plaques cost no more than $9.00 each ppd. Dignified, life-long souvenirs, from top British craftsmen and most flattering of personal gifts. Each plaque you desire is immaculately emblazoned for you by hand for interior decor. Send check direct to England with your instructions.

Wholesale enquiries welcomed

York Insignia Limited
YORK, ENGLAND

October 31st is the day of Halloween when all the witches can be seen at the PARTY SHOP picking out their Halloween needs.

DECORATIONS— FAVORS

Ledbetter Pickard STATIONERS

AN ACTUAL PERFORMANCE!
Through breathtaking new techniques in film making and highest fidelity sound.

THE LA SCALA PRODUCTION OF PUCCINI'S LA BOHEME

TECHNICOLOR® FROM WARNER BROS.

TODAY & THURSDAY

3:00 & 5:00 P.M.

Artistic Director and Conductor, Herbert von Karajan
Production Designed and Directed by Franco Zeffirelli

ADMISSION
Afternoon $1.25
Night $2.00

Varsity

TICKETS NOW ON SALE AT OUR BOX OFFICE

— ALL-STATE CHAMPION —

AESTHETIC HAIRSTYLIST SALON of Chapel Hill

is proud to announce the addition of 1964 All-State Hairstylist Champion, Mrs. Georgia Rogers, to their already outstanding staff. Mrs. Rogers was also North Carolina State Champion in 1961.

With her in the picture above are Miss Peach Pearce, a contestant in the Homecoming Queen Contest, which will begin tonight, and several of Mrs. Rogers' many trophies.

Gene Rector

ASSISTANT DTH SPORTS EDITOR

Two straight Tar Heel victories have begun to relieve the sting of the Virginia defeat.

A different group of determined young men have taken the field the past two Saturdays.

Against N. C. State, the Tar Heels played tough determined football. It was close — 10-7 in favor of the Tar Heels — but the men were around when the big play was needed.

Against Maryland last Saturday, the situation was much the same. Again only a few points separated the two—12-10 in favor of UNC—but Coach Jim Hcikey's men hung in there against a highly regarded football team.

Maryland could do little against the Tar Heels. The Terps, feared for their off-tackle power, found the going rough on the ground. The Tar Heel line, solid all season long, gave up precious little yardage.

"Except for two or three mental errors," said Coach Hickey, speaking at his weekly press conference, "we played a great game.

"Sure, we have a young team," he said, "and you can expect those mistakes. But we feel that we are improving every week."

Hickey was displeased with the punt returning in Saturday's game.

"We run like hell," he said jokingly, "but it's either sideways or after the ball. We're working on it, though. We'll improve."

Hickey gave this explanation for the two-point try after the second Tar Heel touchdown against Maryland.

"One point would not have been any good," he said "A Maryland field goal would have tied the game. If we had made the two-point conversion (They did not. Talbott's run failed.)," he said. "Maryland would have had to score two touchdowns to beat us.

"We were not going for a tie," he continued. "If we are going anywhere in the conference, we have to win all our remaining games. A tie will do us no good."

Hickey expects another close game with Wake Forest Saturday in Winston-Salem.

"The Wake Forest game," he said, "should be much the same as our last two — tough as the devil. We'll have to play good, hard-nosed football to win."

Assistant coach and chief scout Emmett Cheek agreed.

"Wake Forest is always after us," he said. "And of course we'll have to be ready to get them."

Harriers Outrun Wolf Pack, 18-48

By SANDY TREADWELL
DTH Sports Writer

Yesterday afternoon the North Carolina Cross Country team crushed State 18-48.

Jim Mead's performance was outstanding. He romped over the Woltpack's four-mile course in just under 21 minutes, and was the first man across the finish line.

"Jim held himself back to stay in the pack with the other boys," Coach Joe Hilton explained. "His time was only three minutes off the record. Who knows — if he had left ahead of the rest of the runners he might have cut one and one-half minutes off his time.

"But Jim stayed back. We had our first five boys over the line within 25 seconds of one another. That's what you've got to do in cross country."

The freshmen team also tore apart their State opponents 19-54.

Hotelling placed first. The Carolina freshman ran the 2 1-2 mile course in a time of 12:59.

State's Pete McManus was second.

Then the next eight runners across the finish were all wearing Tar Baby uniforms.

Hilton expressed his pleasure in the performances of the two Carolina squads.

The cross country teams face Clemson on Saturday. They meet Duke, one of the toughest teams in the conference, on the following Wednesday.

Carolina's victory over State brings their record to three wins against one defeat.

The top ten for the varsities in yesterday's meet were: (1) Jim Mead - UNC, (2) Janowitz - UNC, (3) Mel Woodcock-State, (4) Mcall - UN, (5) Worlie - UN, (7) Mike Williams - UNC, 8 Middleton-State, (9) Trip MacPherson-UNC, (10) Adams - UNC.

First five freshmen: Hotelling - UNC, (2) Pete McManus - State, (3) Truit Goodwin-UNC, (4) Joe Lasich - UNC, (5) Williams - UNC.

ACC Statistics

TOTAL OFFENSE

Hodges, Va.	157	954	6.1
Talbott, UNC	154	685	4.5
Glacken, Duke	99	681	6.9
Noggle, NCS	128	477	3.7
Fair, USC	115	59	4.0
Petry, Md.	100	452	4.5
Hauswald, WF	141	411	2.9
Chapman, UNC	88	375	4.3
Ray, Clemson	94	346	3.7
Calabrese, Duke	72	336	4.7

RUSHING

Chapman, UNC	88	375	4.3
Calabrese, Duke	72	336	4.7
Mauldin, Clem.	88	273	3.1
Garnto, USC	31	266	8.6
Heck, WF	89	247	2.8
Branson, USC	49	235	4.8
Manfield, NCS	64	200	3.1
Odom, Duke	47	175	3.7
Marciniak, Md.	43	161	3.7
Ruffner, Clem.	40	153	3.8
Noggle, NCS	64	153	2.4

PASSING

Hodges, Va.	114	67	4	875	3
Talbott, UNC	104	58	4	531	2
Glacken, Duke	75	46	4	672	5
Fair, USC	83	45	2	453	1
Hauswald, WF	90	39	7	539	1
Petry, Md.	69	33	4	338	1
Noggle, NCS	64	32	4	324	0
Ray, Clemson	60	22	2	259	3
Ashby, NCS	35	17	0	215	0
B .Davis, Va.	28	13	3	143	0

NBC Gets Rights

The major leagues sold the television and radio rights for baseball's World Series, All-star game and selected games of the week to the National Broadcasting Company today in a three year contract totalling $30.6 million.

The deal, calling for a 63 to 65 per cent increase over payments in the past, will net each of the clubs approximately $300,000 annually.

John E. Fetzer, president of the Detroit Tigers and chairman of baseball's TV committee, made the announcement.

The Daily Tar Heel SPORTS

FAUNTLEROY DISGUISED

Fauntleroy

Don't raise your voice,
Don't wave that stick.
Don't fuss at me,
Because I'm sick.

Ah-h-h-h-h-h. I guess you're wondering what happened to ol' "Perfect" Fauntleroy—Huh?

Don't worry. I'm still perfect. But I'm not superhuman. I've been sick, you see—out of my mind.

Delirious is a better word. I don't even remember making those picks last Saturday. (Actually, I'd like to forget it, but that is neither here nor there.)

Can you imagine it. Ol' Fauntleroy missed three of 10 picks— I must have been out of my mind. I came out of my coma Saturday afternoon —just in time to see my column in the Daily Tar Heel.

Well, quite frankly I was amazed with my predictions.

I had picked Duke to roll over Clemson—eech. Anybody would have known that Ol' Frank Howard was going to take that one.

And Davidson over William and Mary—that was a real loser. William & Mary cruised in 41-7. Now surely you don't believe . . .

But I'm better, sports fans. Yes, ol' Fauntleroy is regaining his strength.

You'll see, just watch Saturday's Tar Heel. "Perfect" Fauntleroy will be perfect again.

DKE Blue Rolls By Pi Lamb Phi

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

Tuesday's intramural football action featured a couple of high-scoring ball games and some fine individual performances.

Bob Toomey scored four touchdowns and led the DKE Blue team to a 50-0 romp over Pi Lambda Phi. Toomey also got credit for a safety. J. Ward scored two touchdowns and added two safeties and J. Edgerton scored the other TD for the DKE's.

Law I had a merry time rolling over the Navy Sea Bats, 59-6. Reef Ivey led the way with three touchdowns. Other scores were contributed by Dave Deramuse, Norman Madry, Jerry Vincent, Bill Howell, Larry McDevitt and Skeeter Olschlarger. R. D. Pierce saved the Navy ship from sinking completely with their only touchdown.

It just wasn't Navy's day as Victory Village pounded out a 25-7 win over the Navy Op Tars. Ward led the way with two TD's and an extra point for Victory Village while Hampton also scored. Larry Barber added two safeties.

PiKA won a squeaker from Lambda Chi, 21-16, after trailing 16-7 at the half. Lem Davis scored two TD's for PiKA, including the winning one near the game's end. Fred Stapp scored the other touchdown. Ambrose and Alsobrook accounted for the Lambda Chi scores.

KA Blue I erupted for three second - half touchdowns to blank Delta Sig, 18-0. Jim Bullock scored twice and Tom Christy once to pace the KA's.

The Phi Kappa Sig J-Birds, spotting Sigma Nu B a 7-0 halftime lead, rallied to pull out a 15-7 decision. Hop Hudson and Charles Gourley scored the TD's to win for Phi Kappa Sig. Jim Martin's first-half TD provided Sigma Nu with their lead.

Wallace Kirtley's touchdown was all the Kappa Sig Cossa Robbers needed to slip past KA Blue II, 6-2. Mike Munroe's safety was the only score for the KA's in the defensive battle.

DU Blue downed the DKE Red team, 18-6.

A Football Daddy

There's a new papa on campus, but you can bet that he won't be giving out cigars to his friends.

He is a Tar Heel football player, and his coach frowns on players smoking.

The new father is Landy Blank, 6-2, 200 pound cornerback. He is a starter of the freshman football team, and as far as we know the only freshman football player that is married.

Landy was married while he was in prep school, and the newest edition to his family is Michael, a nine-pound, one and one-half ounce boy.

The rookie footballer from Radnor, Pa., reports that his son and wife will come to hapel Hill in January to live. He is already looking for an apartment.

He will be allowed to live with his family next fall during the football season if he makes the team, but he will have to eat all of his meals at the team's training table.

REGULAR EXERCISE

Medical evidence seems to indicate that regular and moderate exercise may be one way to forestall heart attacks, says the North Carolina Heart Association.

Mum Is Word

Virginia coach George Blackburn had little to say about his team's 41-0 rush past previously unbeaten West Virginia last Saturday.

"We just had a good book on them," he explained. He said his scouts had noticed the Mountaineers played the same brand of football each game, calling the same plays and making the same mistakes.

West Virginia, fielding a team rated as one of the most powerful in the nation and ranked in the top 20, had entered the Virginia game unbeaten and untied in four games — averaging 44.5 points and 482 yards per game.

Soccer Sports Colored Ball

What is yellow, has black or brown spots, and flies through the air?

If you saw Friday's soccer game at Fetzer Field you could probably answer that question without hesitation.

It's a soccer ball.

The drab old leather sphere has been replaced by a yellow one covered with black or brown pentagons, making it strangely resemble a beach ball.

The soccer rules allow great freedom in the choice of balls, and the Tar Heels have adopted this as their official tool.

"Last year we bought one," said Soccer Coach Marvin Allen," and we liked it so well that we are using it for practice and games now."

The Ivy League is the only conference that requires it's teams to use colored balls.

When asked about the advantages of the new ball, Allen said, "It helps the boys to tell the spin and the speed of the ball. It also will last a little longer than the old ball."

UNC Shines In ACC Stats

Carolina fullback Max Chapman held on to first place in the AC rushing statistics this week with his 55 yards against Maryland.

Tar Heel quarterback Danny Talbott, the junior from Rocky Mount already being compared to Charlie Justice, held on to second place in the passing race behind Tom Hodges of Virginia.

Talbott also advanced a notch in the total offense column moving into second.

Chapman has carried the ball 88 times during the first half of the season averaging 4.3 yards per carry.

Talbott has hit 58 of 104 tosses for 531 yards, two of which went for touchdowns. Hodges has thrown for 875 yards and three touchdowns.

In total offense Hodges heads the list with 954 yards and Talbott is ahead of Duke's Scotty Glacken 685 to 681.

Carolina's Season Best In 15 Years

You'll have to go back 15 years to find a North Carolina football team which played better over the first five games than the current Tar Heels.

In 1963, for example, the Carolina team, destined for Gator Bowl laurels, compiled a smart 4-1 figure over the first half of the season. Yet, in one of those games Michigan State completely outclassed the Tar Heels, 31-0.

This season, with a 3-2 record, Carolina has been in the thick of every game. Widest margin of defeat was by seven points at the hands of Michigan, 31-24. In the loss to Virginia the Tar Heels led by 17 at one stage. Then blew it.

The total point difference between winner and loser in five UNC games to date is 27 points. Carolina won its past two games by a total of five points: 10-7 over N. C. State, 12-10 over Maryland.

When anyone mentions the loss to Virginia, Coach Jim Hickey goes pale. That game bugs him more than any other. His Tar Heels looked like a sure winner. How could a team kick away a 17-0 lead

Best example of that is the Arkansas - Texas bout of last weekend. Arkansas, now rated the nation's best team, led by 21-0. Next thing you knew Texas was in front, 24-21. Yes, it can happen anywhere.

Football leads are made to be overtaken. The Detroit Lions had the Green Bay Packers by 21-3 last Sunday, yet lost by a sizable margin. Modern football is a game of offense and the daring play.

This is most unusual because most coaches consider the defenses of today the best ever.

COEDS BEWARE!

The same irresistable clothing values that have made THE HUB Chapel Hill's leading men's clothier are awaiting your inspection in our co-ed corner. Priced to please the most modest taste, but styled to insure your greatest comfort and pleasure, these fine clothes defy you to leave our store empty handed.

SUITS: A distinctive selection that includes the latest in checks and plaids.

SKIRTS: A-lines and straight skirts in a rainbow of fall collors.

SWEATERS: V-necks and cardigans, available in alpacas, wools and cable knit.

BLOUSES: Round and button down collars in a limitless variety of colors.

CO-ED CORNER
THE HUB
OF CHAPEL HILL

Classic Understatement

100% Imported WOOL PULLOVER by PRINGLE

Everything about this soft, warm pullover speaks with full confidence. So it speaks quietly. Its fine gauge imported wool is sheer luxury to the touch. Classically styled with the V-neck in today's narrow rib.

14.95

Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin

JUST ARRIVED
New Shipment
FARAH
STAY PRESSED SLACKS
from 6.98

Traditionally Tailored, Perfect for Class. Select from our heather tones.

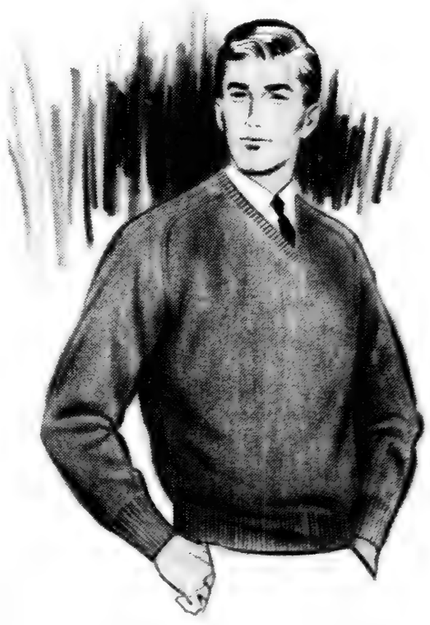
Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin

LA PIZZA RIDES AGAIN!!!
NOW MAKING DELIVERIES
7 to 11 P.M.
PIZZAS..
SPAGHETTI
RAVIOLI
CALL
967-1451

Alan Paine

FOUR-PLY PURE CASHMERE . . . MADE IN ENGLAND

A saddle-shoulder pullover made in England by Alan Paine . . . now available in 100% four-ply pure cashmere. Deeper, softer, richer . . . a most luxurious sweater to own or to give. In colors created by Alan Paine. Sizes 38-46.



Town & Campus

1. Talking to yourself?

Rehearsing a speech. I'm running for President of the Student Council.

2. Angela's idea?

She says it will help me develop a sense of responsibility.

3. What's your platform?

Do I need one?

4. You have to give people a reason for voting for you.

How about "A chicken in every pot"?

5. Already been used.

"Tippecanoe and Tyler too"?

6. Look, if you want to show Angela you're responsible, why not sign up for Living Insurance from Equitable. It's one of the most responsible things you can do—because Living Insurance will give your wife and kids solid protection.

"I would rather be right than President."

For information about Living Insurance, see The Man from Equitable. For career opportunities at Equitable, see your Placement Officer, or write: Patrick Scollard, Manpower Development Division.

The EQUITABLE Life Assurance Society of the United States

Home Office: 1285 Ave. of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10019 ©Equitable 1965
An Equal Opportunity Employer

Call Him Mr. Hustle

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

For the first time since he has a threeman coaching staff. Everyone knows head coach Dean Smith and fresh but few people are familiar with Smith's new assistant, John Lotz.

John is the brother of Danny Lotz, who played on the pionship team and captained the 1959 team. John played his college ball at Baylor University and East Texas State University, graduating from East Texas in 1957.

His coaching career started in Norwich, N. Y., in 1959. Taking over a team that had a dreary 117 record the year before, Lotz produced a squad that won 15 games in his one year there. From Norwich he moved to Berner High School, in Massapequa on Long Island.

With its first senior class and with Lotz as head coach Berner won a division championship in his second year. Lotz coached there until last year.

JOHN LOTZ

At Carolina Lotz's job will include not only coaching but also scouting and recruiting.

Coach Smith plans to have Lotz become the freshman coach after two years, switching places with Larry Brown.

Lotz is a coach steeped in "I come from a background where it is necessary to play defense," he said. "A player needs ability, but he needs desire to go with it. My players were always well conditioned.

"I have never been associated with a team that doesn't give a total effort on the court. We have a great group of boys with a wonderful attitude this year."

He cites the main difference in high school and college coaching as "the time element."

"In college you spend more time in different areas, especially. There is an enjoyment in working with these young athletes."

LUNCH from 1.10 to 1.65
DINNER from 1.75 to 5.50

Featuring U. S. Choice Steaks,
Back Fin Lump Crabmeat,
Baked Country Cured Ham
Breast of Young Chicken

Six attractive dining rooms of varying size and decor afford flexible facilities for serving

BANQUETS AND RECEPTIONS

Recommended by
Mobile Travel Guide
Best of Hillsway

Blair House

Durham-Chapel Hill Boulevard
Tel. 489-9128

Writer Leads UNC Scoring

Jackie Writer is doing what comes naturally again this year — leading his booting buddies in scoring.

He was the head man last fall with seven goals in nine matches. This year he already has six, in only four games, all victories.

Larry Heath trails him with five scores, John Loud and sophomore Jimmy Johnston have four each, Willam Polak has two, and Danny Galves and Co-captain Drew Murphy each have one.

North Carolina has rolled up 23 goals to only one for its opponents, defeating the Air Force Academy 4-0, East Carolina 13-1, American University 3-0, and N. C. State 3-0.

The Tar Heels play Pfeiffer here on Fetzer Field tomorrow at 3 p.m. in their next match and then host Belmont Abbey Monday. Then they dive back into ACC play with a road game against Virginia.

ACC Team Standings

CU	3-0-0	3-2-0
DU	2-1-0	4-1-0
UNC	2-1-0	3-2-0
USC	2-1-0	3-2-0
UM	1-1-0	2-2-0
UVA	1-2-0	3-2-0
N C	1-3-0	1-4-0
WF	0-3-0	1-4-0

CLEMSON

State	21-7
Virginia	20-14
Ga. Tech	6-38
Georgia	9-23
Duke	3-2

DUKE

Virginia	21-7
S. Carolina	20-15
Rice	41-21
Pittsburgh	21-13
Clemson	2-3

UNC

Michigan	24-31
Ohio State	14-3
Virginia	17-21
State	10-7
Maryland	12-10

SOUTH CAROLINA

Citadel	13-3
Duke	15-20
State	13-7
Tennessee	3-24
Wake Forest	38-7

MARYLAND

Ohio U.	24-7
Syracuse	7-24
Wake Forest	10-7
Carolina	10-12

VIRGINIA

Duke	7-21
Clemson	14-20
Carolina	21-17
VMI	14-10
West Va.	41-0

STATE

Clemson	7-21
Wake Forest	13-11
S. Carolina	7-13
Carolina	7-10
Florida	6-28

WAKE FOREST

VPI	3-12
State	11-13
Vanderbilt	7-0
Maryland	7-10
S. Carolina	7-38

The Daily Tar Heel SPORTS

Certificate Winners

Sarge Keller asks that all varsity and freshman athletes who have not picked up their certificates and-or letter jackets do so immediately.

Our watch and jewelry repair experts will restore your proud possessions to their original beauty and usefulness.

T. L. Kemp Jewelry
Charm Headquarters

FCA Expects Biggest Year

By RON SHINN
DTH Sports Writer

Carolina's chapter of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes (FCA) is now being organized for the fifth year.

FCA chairman Albert Long, himself the second and last three-letter man at UNC, is in charge of the program. The originator of the program at Carolina, Danny Lotz, is also back this year as an adult leader.

Long describes the Carolina chapter as "one of the outstanding chapters in the nation." The national organization is celebrating its tenth anniversary this year.

The FCA is a purely voluntary organization, connected in no way with the athletic department or the school administration.

Its purpose is to confront athletes — and through them the youth of the nation — with the challenge and adventure of following Christ in the fellowship of the church.

"Sixty percent of the American youth have little or no religious training," explains Long. "The FCA tries to reach those youth."

The local group meets every other Thursday night to discuss mutual problems and to report on their speaking engagements. Starting in November, Carolina athletes will begin to speak at youth meetings across the state, telling their audiences why they believe in Christ.

Officers this year are Mike Knowles (baseball) and Bill Edwards (football), co-presidents, and Bud Phillips secretary - treasurer. The UNC club will also become chartered this year for the first time.

Ken Willard, one of the UNC chapters most active members, summed up the club's attitude with a saying that he used frequently during his speeches.

"If being a Christian is sissy, then I'm one of the biggest sissies in North Carolina."

DON'T fight it.

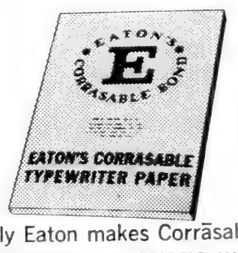
Get Eaton's Corrāsable Bond Typewriter Paper.

Mistakes don't show. A mis-key completely disappears from the special surface. An ordinary pencil eraser lets you erase without a trace. So why use ordinary paper? Eaton's Corrāsable is available in light, medium, heavy weights and Onion Skin. In 100-sheet packets and 500-sheet ream boxes. At Stationery Departments.



Only Eaton makes Corrāsable.®
EATON PAPER CORPORATION, PITTSFIELD, MASSACHUSETTS

Ledbetter Pickard

Smart Money is on The Winningest Filley—Crazy Horse

Follow this smart filley to our Lady Milton Shop and see the most complete and very different hrray of Crazy Horse. The argyle sets in shifts and two piece outfits. New and more complete assortment of those irrestible Poor Boys. Ink blue suits with mock lapels and pockets — with that smart and unusual swing. Patchwork two piece sets in charcoal tones for a full lift. Bell bottom trousers in navy, gray or olive —top it off with a Poor Boy. So see the wonderful world of Lady Milton in our newly expanded quarters.

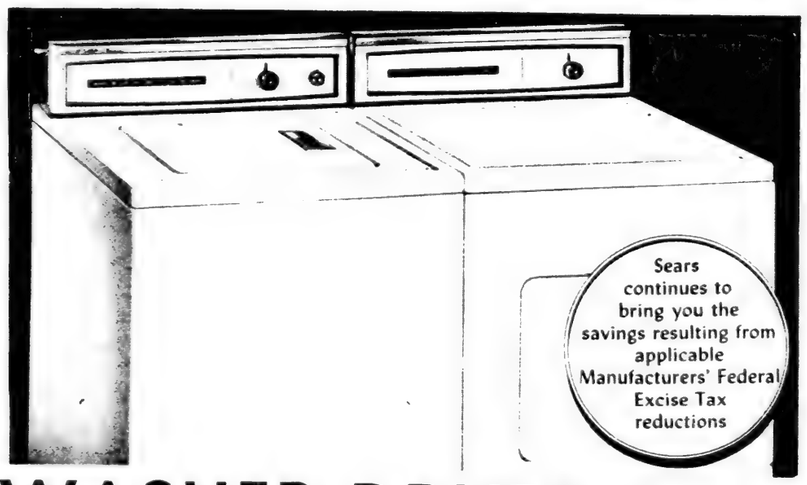
Lady Milton Shop

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

SEARS ROEBUCK AND CO

EASTGATE
Chapel Hill, N. C.

GIGANTIC SALE



Thursday – Friday – Saturday

HUNDREDS OF NEW RECAPPED TIRES

$6.25 up
Guaranteed 18 months
In Most Popular Sizes, Black and Whitewalls

WASHER-DRYER SALE

AUTOMATIC WASHERS from $129.95 up
ELECTRIC DRYERS from $79.95 up

The Famous KENMORE "70" WASHER $194.00 Delivered

Thursday—Friday—Saturday
FREE
ELECTRIC
DEEP FAT FRYER
with each Washer or Dryer

BRAND NEW TIRES
DISCONTINUED TREADS
Available in Most Sizes
Black and Whitewall
Thursday – Friday – Saturday
40% Off

SEARS CATALOG SALES OFFICE
Eastgate Shopping Center in Chapel Hill

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Chi Psi Second

A story in last week's DTH should have listed Chi Psi fraternity second in Best Fraternity on Campus judging. Fraternities listed second, third and fourth should have been third, fourth and fifth.

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Vol. 74, No. 32 | CHAPEL HILL NORTH CAROLINA THURSDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1965 | Founded February 23, 1893

Eat Wheat

Associated Press stock reports yesterday afternoon showed wheat prices opening at 1.49 3-4 and closing at 1.49 3-4. Somebody didn't eat their wheat flakes yesterday morning!

Rameses VII Returns Home

Mavericks Launch Crusade To Wake

By ANDY MYERS
DTH Staff Writer

Tuesday night's crusade by Maverick House to the Holy Lands in Winston-Salem failed to bring back Rameses VII.

But, though they lost the battle, they have won the war, because Rameses is back at UNC.

Dean of Men William G. Long yesterday contacted the Wake Forest Dean of Men, who promptly put out an APB for the woolly victim.

Long got a call late yesterday afternoon from the dean, who said the ram was on its way back. It arrived in Chapel Hill last night.

Tuesday night's raid party reported seeing Rameses at Lamda Chi house when they were in Winston - Salem. It was so heavily guarded that no attempt was made to rescue Rameses.

Clyde Clem, Maverick House resident who organized the mission, said Rameses appeared ot be in good health, but Wake's plans for UNC's mascot were to shave him, paint him black and present him with gold horns at a pep rally this morning.

Before Rameses' return by the Wake administration, Jones said yesterday, "We hope to keep him here until after Saturday's game, unless the administration makes us give him back," which they did.

Not enough people participated in the first rescue attempt, Clem said. They left Chapel Hill at 6:30 p.m. and arrived at the main gate of Wake Forest in Winston-Salem about 7:30 Tuesday night.

A crowd of some 400 rowdy students awaited them, so the six UNC cars parked off campus.

"We had covered our Carolina stickers with political posters," Clem said, "but forgot about the parking stickers.

"Anyhow, the crowd was still waiting for us when we began to infiltrate into their ranks, pretending to be Wake Forest students.

"We waited with them for over an hour until they finally started saying we weren't even coming. By this time, however, they had discovered our cars and set up a human barricade around them.

"We then saw Rameses VII being carried into the Lamda Chi house, but he was under heavy guard." The UNC students then attempted to get to their cars.

"We used diversionary tactics," Clem said. "Some os us began yelling aboout UNC students over by the Lamda Chi house."

This gave them enough time to get into the cars, all except for four UNC student who were kidnapped. There was a chase in the tradition of Charlie Chaplan, with Wake cars outnumbering UNC cars by "two to one," Clem said.

By 1 a.m. or so we had located all the kidnapped students but one, who was being held somewhere on the campus. But we got him later."

Hesitant KKK Witnesses Facing Possible Trouble

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ku Klux Klan witnesses who refused to answer questions about finances were warned yesterday of two kinds of possible trouble: Congressional contempt citations and federal tax action.

The House Committee on Un-American Activities had scores of questions about the flow and ultimate destination of Klan dues, donations collected at rallies and profits from the sale of $15 satin robes.

But the answers by Imperial Wizard Robert Shelton of Tuscaloosa, Ala., and James Robert Jones of Salisbury, N. C., described by the committee as Grand Dragon for his state, were a steady repetition of claims for Fifth Amendment protection against self - incrimination.

Chairman Edwin E. Willis, D-La., cautioned both men that their refusal to comply with subpoenas for production of Klan records might make them liable for contempt citations.

At one point in the questioning of Jones — who repeated the Fifth Amendment formula to all inquiries about filing of corporate and income tax returns — Willis said:

"I think you may be in worse trouble than a mere citation for contempt."

Chief Investigator Donald T. Appell put into the record information he said showed purchase by Jones of 3,757 yards of acetate satin and smaller quantities of other goods. Appell said a Klan robe takes about five yards of satin — at 69 cents a yard less 10 per cent discount — and sells for $15.

The best information the committee has, he said, is that the profits after whatever was paid to make up the robes for sale in North Carolina went to Jones.

Another series of questions Jones refused to answer related to a suggestion that Klan funds were deposited in a personal bank account of Jones and his wife.

Appell said that Shelton had reported Klan income of about $18,000 from all sources in fiscal 1965. But, Appell said, if Shelton had reported only the money made in Jones' North Carolina realm he should have reported $32,845. And that, Appell said, did not count the money coming in from other states.

The North Carolina Klan told the Internal Revenue Service that it was not filing a tax return because it was only a geographical subdivision of the United Klans of America, and not really an organization in itself, Appell said.

Shelton, in two days on the

(Continued on Page 4)

Gov. Moore Meets Britt, Two Others

Gov. Dan Moore held a brief meeting in his office yesterday with three men who would be key figures if a special session of the legislature were called.

The three were Rep. David Britt, chairman of the speaker ban commission, Lt. Gov. Robert, Scott, House Speaker Pat Taylor.

Taylor and Scott would preside over a special session if it were called, and Britt might report to the legislature the findings of his commission on the speaker ban.

However, Britt said yesterday that reapportionment was the main issue discussed at the 45-minute meeting.

"The speaker ban was mentioned briefly, but I told them the committee was not ready to report yet," Britt said. He was contacted at his home in Fairmont.

Britt said his commission would be ready to report to the legislators after Nov. 10. However, he said that "just by pure arithmetic," the legislators could not be called to Raleigh before January.

There would have to be a court ruling on the special session, if it were called, Britt said. That would most likely come around Nov. 15. And after that it would take until the first of the year to get the legislators to Raleigh.

Asked if the speaker ban were discussed at yesterday's meeting Britt said, "Yes, but it was purely a side issue. We are very concerned about reapportionment."

If the special session of the legislature were held after Jan. 1, Britt's commission should have finished its study of the ban, and could report them to the General Assembly.

Although Britt did not predict any action on the speaker ban if the session were called, he said "it remains to be seen," whether the General Assembly would have their chance to act.

Mystic Robe

WASHINGTON (AP) — It takes five yards of material to make a Ku Klux Klan robe. The finished product, including peaked hood, costs a Klansman $15, at least in North Carolina.

House investigators put those details in the record yesterday as they questioned James R. Jones, identified as Grand Dragon of the Klan's North Carolina realm. Jones refused to answer any questions.

Donald T. Appell, chief investigator for the House Committee on Un-American Activities, said records of Mill Fabrics, Inc., of Salisbury, N. C., showed Jones had purchased 3,757 yards of material there.

Appell gave the figures on robe - making and prices. After paying the cost necessary to make it into a robe," he said, "the $15 goes to Mr. Jones."

IFC Disbands For Concept Of 'Inactives'

By BILL GORDON
Special To The DTH

A resolution disbanding the concept of "inactives" in fraternity houses was passed at a special meeting of the Intrafraternity Council Monday night. The proposal, submitted by Kappa Sigma representative Neil Thomas, eliminated the former policy whereby "inactives" (initiated members who fail to maintain a 2.0 GPA two semesters in succession) were not allowed on fraternity property.

Such students will now remain fully active members.

Another motion, introduced by Sterling Phillips of Beta Theta Pi, was defeated in favor of Thomas's proposal. Phillips suggested a modification of the former policy which would allow the "inactives" to be on fraternity property for meals and all hours between midnight Thursday until midnight Sunday. This would allow the "inactives" to take part in the house social functions, which would, in turn, aid the financial status of the house.

Dean of Men William G. Long termed the IFC's action "rational and humane." Although he said this was his feeling and not necessarily that of the administration, Long felt that once a student had been initiated their academic shortcomings should not restrict them from their fraternity life. A conscientious student, he added, will not let his average fall below the 2.0 barrier; those that do, will do so whether they are an active member of a fraternity or not.

IFC President Frank Martin agreed with Long that the new policy would be beneficial to the fraternity system at Carolina. "The former ruling," Martin said, "involved so few people, as few as two or three in each house, that it was really a matter of excluding individuals from their fraternities. It definitely needed changing and I feel we did the best possible modification by eliminating the policy altogether."

Both Sides Rest Case; Jury To Start Deliberation Today

BLUEGRASS GROWN IN GM — 'Doc' Watson, said by some critics to be the greatest living bluegrass guitarist in the world, performed in the main lounge of GM yesterday afternoon. An over-flow crowd of UNC students turned out for the show.
—DTH Photo By Ernest Robl

By ED FREAKLEY
DTH Staff Writer

HILLSBOROUGH — A charge of first degree murder against Frank Joseph Rinaldi will be turned over to a jury of eight men and four women for their verdict sometime late this morning.

The eighth day of the retrial of the former UNC graduate instructor ended yesterday with the defense giving its summation. When court opens this morning the prosecution will deliver its final rebuttal and then Judge George M. Fountain will charge the jury at the special session of the Orange County Criminal Court.

Rinaldi, 36, was convicted last Nov. 18 for the murder of his pregnant wife, Lucille, on Christmas Eve day of 1963. The jury recommended mercy which in North Carolina automatically carries a life sentence.

Rinaldi was granted a new trial this summer when the North Carolina Supreme Court ruled first trial Judge Raymond Mallard had erred in admitting certain testimony.

Judge's Charge

Judge Fountain said he would submit three issues to the jury today: First degree murder, second degree or acquital.

The state charges Rinaldi hit his 18-weeks pregnant wife on the head with a flashlight and smothered her. A scarf was tied around her nose and mouth when she was found lying on the floor of their Chapel Hill apartment at 505 North St.

Robert L. Satterfield, a Hillsborough attorney assisting Cooper, began the arguments to the jury. He said, "I argue to you he planned and did it just as cool and calculated as anyone could."

The state claims a $20,000 double indemnity insurance policy which Rinaldi took out on his wife is the motive for the murder.

In the final summation defense attorney Gordon Battle said the evidence shows conclusively that Rinaldi was innocent.

Attack Testimony

He and the other two defense attorneys Victor F. Bryant and Barry M. Winston cited the testimony of pathologist, Dr. N. F. Rodman Jr., who testified Monday that Mrs. Rinaldi died of suffocation or asphyxiation between 10 a.m. and noon, and that of witnesses who said they saw the defendant in Durham at the alleged time of death.

John F. Sipp, Chapel Hill insurance agent and a close friend of Rinaldi, testified that he was with him from 8:40 a.m. until 1:40 p.m. when they returned to Rinaldi's apartment and found the body.

The three attorneys told the jury not to believe the testimony of Alfred Foushee, Negro waiter, who told the court Rinaldi had tried to hire him "at least a dozen times" to kill his wife.

'Changed Story'

Winston said Foushee had changed his story many times and that it raises a questionable doubt as to whether or not it can be relied upon.

Battle quoted from a letter that was supposedly written by Mrs. Rinaldi on the morning of the murder. The letter was addressed to Kevin Kerrane, who had roomed with Rinaldi.

In the letter, she wrote her husband had gone on a shopping trip to Durham "to tell Santa what a nice girl I have been." Toward the end she said, "This Christmas is all we hoped it would be."

Battle charged the jury with their responsibility saying, "If the judge makes a mistake an appeal will rectify it, but no one on this earth can correct a mistake if you make one."

The state and defense rested at noon yesterday after Solicitor Thomas A. Cooper Jr. attempted to introduce new testimony which he said would impeach the testimony of the defense's chief witness, Sipp.

With the jury out of the courtroom Cooper called postal inspector Edwin S. Shively Jr. of Charlotte to the stand. His testimony concerned a conversation between himself and Sipp in which Sipp allegedly told Shively that in his graduate work he wrote a thesis on "torture and bondage."

Earlier in the week Cooper asked Sipp if he hadn't received pornographic material in the mails. Sipp replied, "Yes, some people might think it was pornographic."

However, Judge Fountain ruled out the testimony.

"I just don't believe it is competent," Fountain said. Cooper then tried to get the testimony merely for the record in the absence of the jury, but Fountain ruled against this also.

Rinaldi, who didn't testify at the first trial, and was on the stand all day Tuesday, returned for a few minutes yesterday morning.

Cooper asked him if he didn't see a movie "A Place in the Sun," which is about a man who murders his wife, nine times.

Rinaldi told the jury he had seen at least 15 films 10 times, adding he was a drama critic at Georgetown University, where he graduated.

He testified he was interested in "A Place in the Sun" because of the artistry of it.

He said the movie pointed out "the false values in American society . . . Unfairness in prosecution tactics and slanted evidence."

Throughout yesterday's proceedings Rinaldi sat very still listening to his lawyers plead his case. He appeared calm and frequently whispered with Winston and Bryant.

His father, Paul, and his only brother, Pete, both of Waterbury, Conn., which is also Rinaldi's and his dead wife's home, sat behind him as they have since the trial began.

Mrs. Rinaldi's brother, William D. Begg Jr., a Waterbury attorney, has assisted the prosecution by supplying various information. The defense pointed to him as the source of several questions intended to discredit Rinaldi's reputation.

Rinaldi's Testimony

Rinaldi testified Monday that he did not kill his wife, did not know who did, and had nothing whatsoever to do with her death.

He and his wife had been married since June of 1963. He has spent 14 months in jail since his conviction.

Rinaldi also denied that he asked police on the night of the murder, "How can you sit next to me after what I've done?"

Solicitor Thomas B. Cooper in cross examination asked the defendant if he hadn't been fired by the Central Intelligence Agency.

He said he had not and the defense introduced a letter from the C.I.A. that stated Rinaldi had been released in good standing.

Protests Take On New Look —Favor U.S. Military Role

NEW YORK (AP) — A boomeranging counter - wave built up Wednesday to the demonstrations against U. S. military operations in Viet Nam. Protests spiraled against the protesters.

Both sides were rallying followers to dramatize their sentiments.

From college campuses — the same quarters from which some of the attacks came on U. S. military action — came some of the resurgent defense for it.

At Yale University, a group of students distributed pamphlets, calling for a mass rally Thursday to demonstrate backing for America's course in Viet Nam.

Claiming that most students disapprove the anti-administration demonstrations, the group included various student leaders.

"We feel that there is little support at Yale for groups which have attempted to impede troop movements and encourage students to obstruct the draft," the group declared in the pamphlet.

At the University of Mississippi in Oxford, the campus senate adopted a strong resolution supporting President Johnson's policies, and repudiating demonstrations against the American intervention in Asia.

At Lakeland High School near Peekskill, N. Y., the senior class prepared petitions to the president and the U.S. commander in Viet Nam, Gen. William Westmoreland, supporting the Viet Nam action.

Michael Lane, high school history instructor, said the class wanted to offset the anti-draft and peace demonstrations.

These demonstrations had burgeoned over the weekend, and the movement continued to press its opposition to the Viet Nam war, with more protest demonstrations planned, including a march next month on Washington, D. C.

It was in reaction to these widespread manifestations that the pro - administration groups began mustering their own followings to the field.

A newly formed citizens committee in New York said it was planning a massive Fifth Avenue parade of support for American effort in Viet Nam, rivaling the hugh Student march in New York

The National Jaycees announced a program of activities to undercut the anti-Viet Nam demonstrators — 'such as "packing" their meetings and circulating critical information about their leaders.

At Michigan State University a group of students, headed by William Webb, a Detroit junior, started a campaign for 15,000 student signatures on a petition supporting President Johnson.

Similar petitions were being circulated at West Virginia State College where the student council president, Glyn Knapp, said the goal was 1,800 signatures.

At Washington State University, the annual blood - donor drive based its appeal on aiding the Viet Nam Military effort.

At Temple University in Philadelphia, Alpha Phi Omega, a national service fraternity, voted unanimously for a "mail call Viet Nam" project — to make sure each of the 140,000 fighting men there get Christmas cards.

In Huntsville, Ala., the 2,500-member post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars launched "operation sweet tooth" to show support for Americans fighting in Viet Nam — by sending them packages of homemade cookies and candy.

Numerous other organizations and public figures entered the skirmish, challenging the protest demonstrations.

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower called them "silly and based on ignorance, without knowledge of the continuing threat of communism to this country." At a cattle sale in Culpeper, Va., he added:

"Now, I believe in free speech, but these people do our country a disservice . . ." He said he has been asked to take part in a counter-demonstration, but hasn't decided if he will.

In Providence, R. I., Gov. John H. Chafee said students have a right to demonstrate peacefully against American involvement in Viet Nam, but he deplored the suggestions for draft - evasion and blocking troop trains.

The governor, a marine veteran of World War II, remarked about draft-card burners:

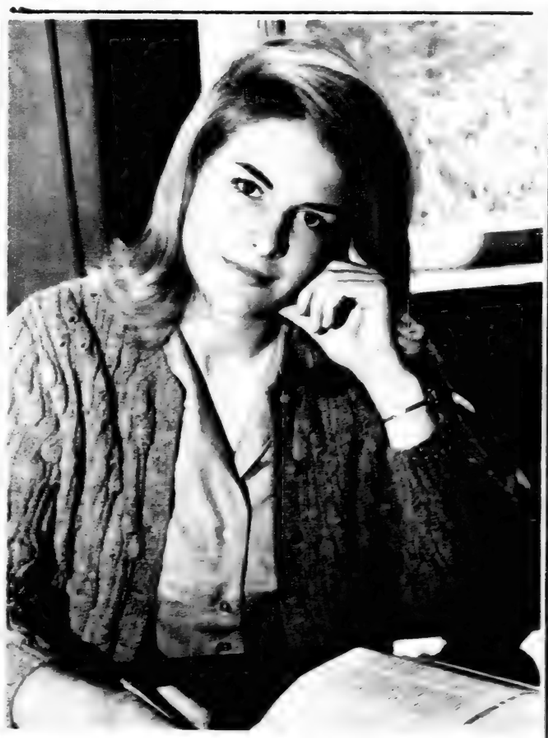
"I'd like to have those guys in my rifle company."

Anti-War Group Attacks Draft

CHICAGO — A radical student group vowed Tuesday that investigation and even prosecution by the federal government would not stop its "unqualified opposition" to the war in Viet Nam or its beat-the-draft program.

"The attacks . . . by the President and other public officials sadden us, but it is a comparatively small price to pay for our continued refusal to support this war," Richard Rothstein, national staff member of Students for a Democratic Society (SDS), said.

The Chicago - based organization is currently polling its estimated 10,000 members on the beat-the-draft policy Rothstein said. Results are expected in about four days, and if the vote is favorable the program will become "official" SDS policy.



PRETTY MARY KING, UNC coed and consolidated university queen is shown here filling out an "Operation Match" questionnaire. Wonder who will be the lucky guy . . .?
DTH Photo by Ernest Robl

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of the Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. Letters and columns, covering a wide range of views, reflect the personal opinions of their authors.

ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR
JACK HARRINGTON, BUSINESS MANAGER

The Ku Klux Klan

The Charlotte Observer

As public hearings on the Ku Klux Klan open in Washington, and the sad fact for North Carolinians is that this state will be featured as the one in which the Klan is having the greatest rate of growth.

In a state that has taken pride in its moderation on race matters since the Supreme Court's momentous school segregation decision in 1954, there will be shocked reaction to the success of the Klan organiizng efforts.

But even sadder than the statistical picture in North Carolina is the realization that the state has all but sat on its hands while this rapid growth and scattered acts of violence and intimidation have taken place.

In a comprehensive series of articles several months ago, The Observer bared details of the Klan's strategy and finances. But official North Carolina has mounted no real effort to delve into the Klan organization. It has remained for the House Un-American Activities Committee to do the job in Washington.

By way of comparison, Gov. Carl Sanders of Geogia has asked the state attorney general to look into the possibility of revoking the charters of five Ku Klux Klan organiaztions. Implicit in the request is a thorough investigation of the Klan at the state level.

Sanders has asked the attorney general to obtain a transcript of all testimony and evidence coming out of the congressional hearings on the Klan, with the aim of determining what action Georgia should take.

North Carolina would be well advised to follow Sanders' lead. The most that the state has done so far is to force the Klan to obtain a charter. More effort should be made to accumulate legal ammunition that could be used to revoke the charter, is necessary.

There is no great surprise in the fact that many North Carolinians are showing a personal interest in the Klan. The industrial and rural employment structures of the state have not laid great stress in the past on educational or intellectual attainment. The educational levels and the incomes of poor whites and Negroes have remained close enough to raise fears and competitive frictions. The great social changes taking place are understood least and feared most by those closest to the Negro on the economic ladder.

Klan grand dragon Robert Jones has been smart enough to capitalize on long dormant fears and to encourage deep-seated prejudices. Only superior North Carolina leadership and official denunciation of the hate forces during the past decade have spared the state the ordeals of some others in the South.

North Carolina leadership is called upon again to fill the vacuum, to set high the sights of the people, to calm the fears and appeal to the basic good reason of the North Carolinian.

The alternative is to allow the Klan to continue its unchallenged dissemination of intolerance and hatred through the state, the fruits of which will be turmoil, violence, corruption and injustice.

Junk Mail Justice

Raleigh News and Observer

A U. S. District Court judge in New York State was lenient in his punishment of a mailman who had thrown away so-called "junk mail." He wasn't condoning the act, the judge said, but it may have made happy some of those to whom the junk was addressed.

Still the stuff, often addressed only to "occupant" flows through the mails and is not thrown away by many postmen. But the remarkable thing about much of it is the expectation of the people who dispatch it. Some of it must be read even if much is quite legally and promptly thrown into their waste baskets by recipients. Of course, this New York mailman cannot be entirely forgiven, but he may have performed a public service by calling attention again to this indiscriminately dispatched junk mail which adds to the aches in the back of the mailman and of the Post Office Department, too.

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; John Jennrich, associate editor; Barry Jacobs, managing editor; Fred Thomas, news editor, Pat Stith, sports editor; Gene Rector, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; John Greenbacker, political writer; Ed Freakley, Andy Myers, Lynne Harvel, Lynne Sizemore, David Rothman, Ray Linville, staff writers; Jack Harrington, bus. mgr.; Tom Clark, asst. bus. mgr.; Woody Sobol, ad. mgr.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all ap news dispatches.

Letters To The Editor

NSA Description

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

The recently reappearing controversy over UNC's participation in NSA seems to be thoroughly confused by a widespread misconception of what the NSA is and a good bit of vocal and personal resentment against certain attempted abstractions of the resolutions of the recent national convention.

Judging from the descriptions and impressions given by the people who were actually at the convention, the National Student Association is an organization of over 300 student bodies across the nation for the purpose of their collective and individual improvement, the expression of their collective opinion and conscience in national affairs, and for representing the American student in direct dealings with students of other nations. The NSA, as everyone must know by now, provides certain services to individual students, such as the international student ID card, an insurance plan, and a guide to overseas job opportunities. It is an active forum for the exchange of ideas concerning the improvement of student government, the student government and its relations to the administration, the community, the students, the student judiciary, etc. We at Carolina are most fortunate to be in a position to offer more help and advice than we receive along these lines.

As for the effect of its resolutions or of even greater hysterical concern, the particular tint of them, no one can say for certain. However, it is a fact that the Vice-President of the United States deemed it important enough to attend the convention and deliver a one-and-three-quarter hour speech elucidating and explaining the actions and policies of the Johnson administration and sincerely asking what alternative ways could be put forth for handling the particular situations.

The subject of the spectral hue of resolutions is sicklied o'er by its stale grasp of thought. The clamor is raised that the NSA is a radical organization, incompatible with the Carolina way of life. But the Carolina delegation, it is countered, is composed of good staunch conservatives or moderates (at worst), who will dilute the acerbity of the organization's radicalist taste. It so happens that the radicals formed only a minority at the convention, and although they were effective in making themselves heard and even sponsoring some resolutions, the large body of delegates remained uncommitted to any particular political polarity. Indeed, several times members of the Carolina delegation spoke out against a specific proposal sponsored by the radical caucus and kept the convention from adopting it in its original form. But this is not the object of electing a delegation to the NSA convention, or indeed of the principle of representation used in the United States Senate. That is, we do not elect representatives solely to present the official Carolina political line and to convince as many others of the same.

Ideally, we should send delegates to this convention who have somewhat of a grasp of the various as well as predominant political sentiments of this campus, but who will participate with an open mind, exchanging opinions and ideas with representatives of perhaps widely differing orientation; and return broadened, perhaps enlightened, to our campus, having been one of the influences on every other delegate. The resolutions, all 107 pages of them, to which justice is hardly done by McCrary's and Otis's encapsulizations — I doubt whether either of them read the statements in their original form — are a product of the exchanges and, in some cases, battles among all the representatives there, as well as the additional information and points of view presented by the various speakers. Would we censure any possible enlightenment on the part of our delegates, or merely opinion changes which disagree with us in the end? Should we wish to divorce ourselves from a national student organization simply because a group of possibly better informed representatives from all over the country have come up with resolutions with which some number of students on this campus happen to disagree?

I hope the campus realizes that there is more to be said than what these individuals have put forth. I would urge all those interested in the issue of American Far Eastern policy to attend the speeches on and discussion of same sponsored by the Americans for Re-evaluation of Far Eastern Policy, October 24, this coming Sunday evening. Details of time and personalities can be found elsewhere.

Joel S. Simpson
1042 Morrison

DTH Circulation

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Every morning I open the door and am instantaneously frustrated. "Where is my Daily Tar Heel?" I ask myself, "The South's Largest College Newspaper"?

I tried to rationalize the situation, but it is of no avail. I have visited your offices twice to mildly request that it be delivered to 39 Old East. Am I not paying out of student funds for a daily subscription? If I was a subscriber to any other daily newspaper in the state it would be delivered to my door, or they would quickly lose a subscriber. Must I rise at six in the morning to rush to Lenoir Hall to fight with the townies for a copy?

Why, yes, why am I being discriminated against? Am I a second-class citizen? Should I immigrate to Alexander, Avery, or Aycock?

William L. Wicker
39 Old East

And More Letters

Maupin Editorials Criticized

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Inasmuch as you probably understand best that which is stated badly (witness your "editorial" of October 15) let me merely borrow the bad form of your argument, add a little new substance and see if somehow this might allow a bit of enlightenment to penetrate what seems to be impenetrable stupidity:

Most Carolina students think The Daily Tar Heel is an odious organization.

We disagree.

Odorous is a better word.

This august newspaper has made many intellectual and artistic contributions to the campus of the University. With increasing frequency it has graced the campus with its devotion to the darker of the achromatic colors.

But its enthusiasm has not stopped here. Through the past weeks it has shown its constructive dedication by misreporting activities, attitudes, and motivations of those with whom it does not agree, by printing "clever" editorials and "clever" cartoons.

We've got to admit it. Up till today, it was a pretty funny newspaper.

At that time DTH substitute editor Armistead (Jr.) Maupin of "Where Do People Like You Come From?" announced the manner in which he hopes to see the Student Peace Union viewed in Chapel Hill.

On October 14th and 15th The Daily Tar Heel urged all local residents to forego rationality and eat its editorial product instead. This effort is in conjunction with the nationwide effort to "sell" people on the wholesomeness of the American intervention in South Viet Nam. During these days editorial "demonstrations" and acts of civil idiocy were staged in many newspapers, radio and TV stations around America.

Daily Tar Heel editor (substitute) Maupin pointed out quite clearly why his group decided to use this technique in the DTH.

"People would notice a rational argument," he remarked, "by the damage it would do to our position and, besides, they wouldn't understand it in our context."

You are quite right, Mr. Maupin. They wouldn't understand it.

They wouldn't understand why American students — students blessed with the liberties that are unique in our democratic Republic — would want to undermine the efforts of those who seek not only to preserve our liberties but to make them stronger by using them in the exercise of the critical responsibilities of American citizenship. They wouldn't understand how even the most disrespected element on campus could find the stomach to direct its bitter fanaticism against other students whose efforts are directed toward determining whether the "cause" for which young Americans are now dying in Viet Nam is worthy of American support and blood. They wouldn't understand how you have perverted the exercise of the obligations of citizenship into an alleged manifestation of disrespect for human life.

No, Mr. Maupin, they wouldn't understand at all.

So, it seems, you settled on the scurrilous editorial idea. You decided to ask people to surrender their responsibilities as curious and critical citizens and to give their proxy to you and ultimately you would to "patriotism."

The Daily Tar Heel must have realized that no one objects to patriotism. No one could tolerate the sight of that which the DTH might be able to successfully portray as unpatriotic.

Some of us, however, grow a little nervous when the DTH becomes the judge of what is or is not patriotic.

It is a well-known fact that organizations have been set up during the last few years through which campus "radicals" could pledge aid — both personal and financial — to the forces of those who would sacrifice traditional democratic rights and responsibilities on the altar of false patriotism. The possibility that The Daily Tar Heel might directly be furnishing similar aid is both repulsive and frightening.

Mr. Maupin is aware that a political booth will be set up in Y-Court for discussion of the beliefs of the SPU. We think his dropping around is a healthy idea and we urge that he do so and that he momentarily clear his normally fogged mind to listen to the answers to a few of his "pertinent" questions.

Just don't get too close to an inquiring mind, Mr. Maupin, lest your fondest illusions be shattered.

Alden E. Lind
Department of Political Science

LETTERS

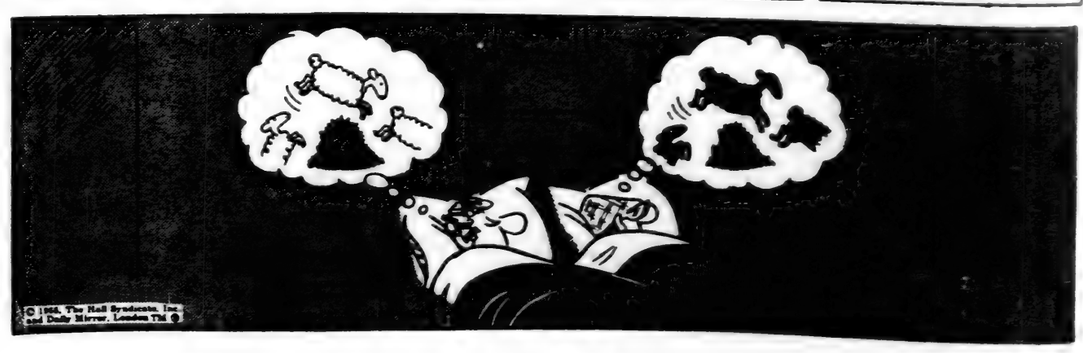
The Daily Tar Heel welcomes letters to the editor on any subject, particularly on matters of local or University interest. Letters must be typed, double spaced and must include the name and address of the author or authors. Names will not be omitted in publication. Letters should be kept as brief as possible. The DTH reserves the right to edit for length or libel.

Gory Golf

As the golf season begins to wane in many parts of the U. S., statisticians have come up with figures that make the game look like a Viet Nam casualty report. Before the end of the year, 10,000 players, caddies, and grounds keepers will have been skulled by flying balls; 1,600 will have been accidentally slashed by flailing clubs; 500 will have been felled by lightning, 2,000 by heat prostration, and 1,200 by overexertion; and 1,500 will have been either run down by or overturned in golf carts.

Student: If U. S. troops pull out of Viet Nam, there will be a communist take-over.
S.P.U.: So?

ANDY CAPP



Girls Enjoy Luxury In Winston Dorm

By SUE ANNA THOMSPON
Special To The DTH

Boys, boys, girls Yes, this is the delightfully one-sided ratio between Connor, Alexander, and Winston dormitories.

Football games with the pow der puff touch, feminine voices echoing from above, and just a whole new cheery atmosphere, are a few elements of the new look across from Emerson Field.

Silence may not reign supreme in Winston, but it does exist in the newly inhabited girl's dormitory.

On the first floor a large bare room has been transformed into an artistically decorated parlor, with modern art as mural master.

Cozy chairs and a television placed with a woman's touch, have successfully created a comfortable place for the girls to entertain their guests, and as always, a place where Carolina's men may wait patiently and in luxury for their late dates.

In the bedrooms those extra long beds have left proof of a previous sleeper, definitely not of the feminine sex, and further proof of who once lived in Winston is seen by coed Dian Reed, who has noticed "those amazingly expressive drawings imprinted on the doors and walls." She also says, "I had no idea that the average Carolina man was so artistically inclined."

However, Jinny Hollister, another new Winston girl, unlike Dian, notices what isn't there, when she says "I definitely think we should have rods for curtains in our windows, 'cause my curtains won't stay up. Also, a water cooler in front of my room would end these long journeys to the end of the hall."

However, her final comment just about sums up most of the girls' feelings about their dorm, when she says "I'll just say it's a pretty nice dorm."

It is a definite fact that Winston's girls want to live in sheer luxury and Margaret G verifies this fact. "Well," she says, "there could be more phones, full length mirrors in each room, bigger rooms, wall-to-wall carpets, and of course color television, but I have no complaints.

LAW SCHOLARS AND DEAN — Dean Dickson Phillips (seated) of the Law School at UNC is flanked by a quartet of first-year law scholars. Left to right are James Duggins, Fayetteville, who has won the Law Alumni Scholarship, Hugh Stevens, Burlington, winner of the Brandis Scholarship, John R. Taylor of Greensboro and McLeansville, winner of the Van Hecke Scholarship, and Hugh B. Rogers of Winston-Salem, who is the Wettach – Scholar.

Computers May Play Role In Hiring College Profs

A computer may one day help colleges find new teachers and teachers find new jobs. The Association for Higher Education is now considering such uses for the mechanical marvels.

David G. Brown, associate professor of economics here will be among the consultants for the Manpower and Talent Clearing House (MATCH) study. Brown has directed four separate national studies of the academic labor market and is the author of a recent book on the subject.

The association will launch the study with a $35,000 Esso Education Foundation grant and will aim at seeing how the task of bringing colleges and professors together might best be accomplished.

The computer program would not find or seek jobs, but merely match jobs and instructors from a store of information about college - level teaching talent collected in a central location, G. Kerry Smith, executive secretary of the association, stressed that the computer would not bypass the professional judgment of placement and employing officers in the colleges, but would merely act as a superspeed file to refer the professors to institutions which need them.

Director of the MATCH study will be George E. Arnstein, former associate director of the National Education Association's project on the educational implications of automation.

Job Interviews

The following companies will recruit on campus next week:

Monday, October 25 — Shell Development Company (summer jobs also); Wyeth Laboratories, Inc. (will interview women); Union Carbide Nuclear Division (will interview women); U. S. General Accounting Office (will interview women)

Tuesday, October 26 — American Smelting & Refining Company (will interview women); Housing & Home Finance Agency will interview women); Texaco, Inc. (will interview women)

Wednesday, October 27 — Tennessee Valley Authority (will interview women; National Cash Register Company (will interview women); E. E. Du Pont de Nemours & Company (will interview women; also summer jobs); Celanese Corporation of America; Radio Corporation of America (will interview women); Ernst & Ernst (will interview women; also summer jobs)

Thursday, October 28 — Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company; Kelsey - Hayes Company; Southern Research Institute (will interview women); E. I. Du Point de Nemours & Co.

Friday, October 29 — American Cyanamid Company (will interview women; also summer jobs);

Students desiring interviews with the company representatives should go to the Placement Service, 211 Gardner Hall.

Students Can Apply Now For Study Grants To Hawaii

American students have an opportunity to learn about the countries and people of Asia and earn a graduate degree at the same time in a scholarship program offered by the East-West Center in Hawaii.

The East-West Center is a national institution established by Congress to promote educational and cultural interchange among the peoples of Asia, the Pacific Basin and the United States. Each year students from the United States and 24 Asian - Pacific countries are brought to the Center where they live together in an international atmosphere and pursue graduate studies at the University of Hawaii, with which the Center is associated.

American students who are awarded East-West Center grants must major in a field of study related to Asia or the Pacific in both subject matter and language study. Qualified students also have an opportunity for field study in an Asian or Pacific country.

Approximately 100 American students are awarded scholarships each year. Awards normally are for one year and include tuition, books, health insurance, room and board, a small personal allowance and travel to and from Hawaii. Grants may be extended if the students' programs require additional study. The East - West Center also offers other scholarships of shorter duration for certain undergraduate and graduate students as well as teachers.

Applicants for 1966 scholarships should submit their completed applications and credentials by no later than December 15, 1965. Further information may be obtained from the dean of your college or by writing to: Director of Student Selection, East-West Center, Honolulu, Hawaii 96822.

MISS TIGER is the name of this F-11 Navy jet fighter. A Naval Aviation Information team, which brought an F-11 to campus, is winding up its four-day stay today. The plane and the team, headed by Lieutenant Commander Larry Atkin, are in Y-Court.
— Official Photograph "U.S. Navy."

Group Conducting English Class For Student Wives

United Church Women volunteers have organized a basic English conversation class for wives of foreign students in the area.

Under the direction of Mrs. Donald Hayman, the free class is beginning its second year.

During the class, which meets formally every other week, a nursery is provided for children of the students.

Mrs. Hayman said the class meets on the off weeks informally in various homes in the area. "This is mainly for conversational practice sessions," she said.

She noted that advisor to foreign students, Dr. A. C. Howell's lesson sheets for non-English speakers are used. "Other than those, we use teaching posters and other illustrative materials."

Besides Mrs. Hayman and Mrs. Sowter, who direct and co-direct the group, is Mrs. Douglas Alexander, who is in charge of transportation. Mrs. Marion Townend, Mrs. Colin Thomas, Mrs. B. H. Ram, Mrs. Pedro Moscoso and Mrs. Theodore Bell assist with the nursery and discussion groups.

SEAN CONNERY ...more dangerously alive than ever! THE HILL

HARRY ANDREWS · IAN BANNEN · ALFRED LYNCH · OSSIE DAVIS · ROY KINNEAR · JACK WATSON

NOW PLAYING CAROLINA

Plus LATEST NEWS

KING WILLIAM RESTAURANT

1½ Miles from Campus on 15-501 South

SPECIALIZING IN:

STEAKS CHICKEN SEAFOOD

"Choice Selection of Imported and Domestic Beverages"

All New and Modern. featuring

- Seating capacity of 300
- Spacious parking facilities
- Four private dining rooms
- Tasteful background music
- Catering facilities

Open from 8:00 a.m. 'til Midnight

SEVEN DAYS A WEEK

Let's take a trip with Saturn Airways! Dependable charter flights, any time, for special outings, football games, vacations. Anywhere in the States, Europe, Caribbean, Hawaii. College groups everywhere depend on Saturn. We're charter specialists. Over 17 years' experience. Luxurious DC-7C aircraft. Personalized service. Rock-bottom fares to write home about (or for). Phone or write for details.

Make advance reservations NOW for low-fare Spring/Summer transatlantic charters

Saturn AIRWAYS, INC.
Certificated Supplemental Air Carrier

GENERAL OFFICES: MIAMI, FLORIDA 33166
4471 N.W. 36th St.—TU 7-6725
New York, N.Y. .....545 Fifth Avenue. MU 7-2640
Chicago, Ill. .....6 North Michigan Avenue. AN 3-0663
San Antonio, Texas ...International Airport TA 4-6921
Los Angeles, Calif. .....P.O. Box 75-501. DU 1-1573
London, W. 1, England ..81 Piccadilly. Hyde Park 0167
1 Berlin 42, Germany
Zentral Flughafen, Templehof Airport. 69801

Topic For UN Day

Should UN Admit China?

Should the United State recognize Red China and start negotiations for the entrance of Red China into the UN? This will be the subject of much talk on Sunday when the National Students Association, in collaboration with CUN, will celebrate United Nations Day.

This event will also be sponsored by Americans For Reappraisal of Far Eastern Policy, a group which disagrees with the present U. S. policy in the Far East.

On this day in 20 other regional campus centers, students will meet to discuss problems in the Far East and to listen to various speakers. Coordination for Oct. 24 is being done through a national secretariat currently established at Yale University.

At 7:30 p.m., on Oct. 24, Rev. William Sloane Coffin, University Chaplain and Pastor of the Church of Christ at Yale University, will speak in Carroll on the reappraisal of U.S. policy in the Far East. Rev. Coffin is the leading figure in the campus ministry in the nation.

He is a member of the NAACP Legal Defense and Education Fund, "Crossroads Africa," and is presently serving as a member of the President's Advisory Committee on Civil Rights for the State of Connecticut.

In the fall of 1962, Coffin was one of the 100 men in America under 40 years old selected by Life Magazine as outstanding in "the take-over generation." At 8:30 p.m., following Rev. Coffin's speech, there will be an hour long nation wide telephone hookup. More formation concerning this will be given out in the next issue of the Tar Heel.

Colleges and universities that will be participating in this program Sunday will be UNC, Duke, N. C. College, UNC-G, Virginia, Randolph - Macon, Meridith, Bennett, Shaw and many more in this region and over the country.

Dr. Munson Gets Position

Dr. Paul Munson, a pharmacologist at the Harvard University School of Dental Medicine since 1950, has become chairman of the Department of Pharmacology at the University School of Medicine here.

He succeeds Dr. Thomas C. Butler, who has become director of a pharmacology and toxicology research and training center to be established here with the aid of a $17 million federal grant.

Dr. Munson is a native of Washta, Iowa. He is a graduate of Antioch College in Yellow Springs, O., the University of Wisconsin, and received his doctorate (Ph. D.) from the University of Chicago. He holds an honorary master of arts degree from Harvard.

HELPFUL HORMONES

Female sex hormones may be the reason why women under 50 are less likely to suffer from hardening of the arteries, says the North Carolina Heart Association.

Ya ever notice how fast and silent the road runner runs? Look carefully next time. He's riding a Honda, that sneak.

Heck, I always thought that he could run that fast. Observations by —

TRAVEL-ON MOTORCYCLE
504 W. Franklin
CHAPEL HILL

"SUPER-RIGHT" QUALITY HEAVY CORN-FED BEEF

ROASTS

BONELESS CHUCK ROASTS PER LB. 55¢

BONE-IN CHUCK ROASTS ★ LB. 39¢

MORTON BRAND — Value Priced Frozen Meat 11-Oz. Pkg. ★ Of Your Choice DINNERS 39¢

• "SUPER-RIGHT" QUALITY FRESHLY GROUND BEEF PER LB. 39¢

Prices in this ad eff. thru Sat. Oct. 23rd

A&P

• SPECIALLY PRICED MARVEL BRAND— ICE MILK 2 HALF GALLON CARTONS 75¢

APPLES

• JUICY FLORIDA WHITE MEAT GRAPEFRUIT 4 LB. BAG ☆ 29¢

3 LARGE SIZE 29¢

Today's Campus Calendar

All Campus Caldendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date (by 10 a.m. Saturday for Sunday's DTH). Lost and Found notices will be run on Tuesday and Saturdays only.

TODAY

UP party caucus will be held in the Grail Room at 6:30. All UP Legislators are required to attend.

Tennis Intramurals on the clay courts at 3:30. Hockey Club in the Women's Gym at 4 p.m. Both activities are sponsored by WAA.

Christian Science Organization at 7 p.m. in the Woodhouse Room. All interested students are invited to attend.

Orientation Committee will meet at 2 p.m. outside the Yack office to have Yack picture made.

Mrs. Viola Stevens and Mrs. Mabel Brittain will speak at the first meeting of the In-Service Training Program for staff members of the Office of the Dean of Women and for associates in room 105 of Hanes Hall at 4 p.m. Interested persons are invited to attend.

The Tar Heel Invitational Debate Tournament needs students to keep time for championship intercollegiate debates Thursday - Saturday. Sign up at GM Information desk or call 933-2155.

UNC Young Democratic Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. at Roland Park Lounge in GM. Speaker will be Bob Huffman, President - elect of the North Carolina YDC. For further information call Tom Bolch at 942-5981.

Housing for disadvantaged persons in Chapel Hill will be the topic when former Alderman Adelaide Walters address the Human Relations Council at 8 p.m. at the Robertson St. Community Center. Residents of Orange county are urged to attend. Mrs. Walters indicated that her speech would dig into the meaning of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 as applies to Chapel Hill.

Orientation meeting for the League of Women voters, at 10 a.m. - 12 p.m. at the home of Mrs. John Schwab, 1030 Highland Woods. Discussion will be held concerning the League's policies, procedures, and program. For further information, call 968-6136.

Intervarsity Christian Fellowship will have a song and testimony time at 6:30, upstairs in Lenoir Hall.

There will be a meeting of the Carolina Symposium Residence Hall Solicitors at 7 p.m. in 105 Haynes Hall. Both men's and women's solicitors should be present. At this meeting you will receive a soliciting permit (credentials) and the necessary information about the 1966 Symposium, as well as tips on soliciting contributions.

Orientation Reform Committee will meet in GM at 3:10 p.m.

The CCUN will hold a United Nations Day Festival on Sunday, Oct. 24, from 3-5 p.m. at GM. Everyone is invited to attend. Displays and talent from various countries will be featured. Refreshments will be served.

—Klan—

(Continued from Page 1)

stand, told the committee nothing but his name, his birthplace — Tuscaloosa, Ala., — and his age — 36.

Temporarily excused as a witness, Shelton described the investigation as an attempt "to curry political favor with a group that has flouted the law all over the country."

His statement, read to newsmen outside the hearing room, apparently referred to Negroes. He said the Klan would "find out who are the true manipulators behind this investigation."

The committee wanted him to talk about any share he received of dues and rally collections and about the financing of such amenities as a Cadillac.

'Big-Time' Magazine Jobs Offered

Would you like a chance to be a model in New York or to work for an internationally famous magazines?

Virginia Weissinger, College Competitions Editor for Mademoiselle Magazine will be in Chapel Hill today and tomorrow to talk with members of the administration, student leaders, dorms and sororities concerning job opportunities.

She will talk to interested students about the College Board Competitions which includes interests in photography, art, fashion, writing, design, editing and other fields of publications. Membership to the board carries over until graduation from college. Twenty people are chosen to serve as Guest Editor for Mademoiselle.

The members of the competition come to the offices of Mademoiselle during the month of June and help, on full salary, with the publication of the August issue of the magazine.

Winners will also have a chance to interview such famous people as Barbara Streisand and other entertainers. There are also permanent job opportunities and a chance for a trip to foreign countries on special assignments.

Miss Weissinger will speak today from 3:30 to 4:15 p.m. in 104 Peabody Hall. All students who are interested should present at this meeting. After her speech, Miss Weissinger will speak to any interested students. A tour of the UNC campus will also be included during her stay in Chapel Hill.

Further information concerning the contest will be given out at the meeting in Peabody. Application blanks for the contest are available in the DTH office.

MUM'S THE WORD. Kathy Cannon, treasurer of the Senior class, isn't telling anyone except Silent Sam. Watch for further developments.

—DTH Photo by Ernest Robl

Viet Cong Small Arms Hit Special Forces Garrison

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP) — Hard hit by daylight, a Viet Cong battalion pressed an attack with mortars and small arms yesterday on a special forces garrison of 300 Montagnard tribesmen and 10 U.S. advisers at Plei Me, in the central highlands.

The garrison held out with the help of heavy air strikes at the red guerrillas. U. S. planes flew 100 sorties in support of the defenders and dropped them ammunition.

The Viet Cong attacked Plei Me, in hills 210 miles northeast of Saigon, in one of two big strikes Tuesday night, both of which cost them heavy casualties.

They were estimated to have lost from 60 to 100 men around the special forces camp throughout the day. Twenty died on the perimeter barbed wire. Casualties among the defenders were reported light.

But four Americans were killed when a U. S. army helicopter was shot down during the battle. A B57 bomber believed to have been involved on a mission to Plei Me crashed and one crewman was injured.

A report from the government base at Pleiku, 25 miles north of Plei Me, said the action remained so brisk that medical helicopters were unable to land to evacuate the wounded.

The Viet Cong's other major move was an attack by two battalions on a government post in the Ba Long valley, about 400 miles north of Saigon and only a few miles from the frontier of North Viet Nam. That drive was repulsed.

U. S. advisers reported at one point officers had counted 94 Viet Cong bodies on the wire and in the mud around the post and "they're still counting." Vietnamese casualties were described as light.

The troops captured a wounded man who said he was a North Vietnamese regular. He said he joined a Viet Cong grouping in the area Monday.

"It was a long night," said Lt. Robert L. Helvey, 26, of South Charleston, W. Va., the senior adviser at the post.

Flareships helped the defenders in both cases, lighting the night sky so they would keep watch of Viet Cong movements.

Vietnamese militiamen reported they killed 15 Viet Cong and seized 195 weapons in the an Xuyen sector, near Viet Nam's southern tip.

Little News Fragments

YDC MEETING

Robert Huffman, president - elect, of the State Young Democratic Club, will address the UNC-YDC tonight at 7:30 in the Roland Parker Lounge of Graham Memorial.

Huffman, a graduate of UNC law school and past president of the UNC-YDC, won the presidency of the statewide organization Sept. 24, defeating A. J. Stevenson of Lillington.

A mixer with the YDC of UNC-G to be held Oct. 16 will also be discussed at the meeting.

The YDC membership committee's fall orientation drive netted a total of 350 new members.

RECALL PETITION

Elections Board Chairman Alvin Tyndall said yesterday the recall petition for the student body presidency has an actual total of 1,894 signatures.

It was originally announced that the petition had 1,912 names.

Tyndall said the petition needs 1,863 signatures to be successful.

The Elections Board is in the process of alphabetizing the names on the petition for validation.

PROFESSOR HONORED

Dr. Amnon Rapoport, of the psychology department has been named first award winner in the fourth annual Creative Talent Awards Program of the American Institutes for Research.

Rapoport received $1,000 for his dissertation entitled "Comparison of Four Models for Word - Frequency Distributions from Normal and Aphasic Speakers." His work was done under the direction of Dr. Lyle V. Jones. He is now a research assistant professor at the Psychometric Laboratory.

SSL INTERVIEWS

Interviews for students interested in serving on the UNC-CH delegation to next Febuary's meeting of the State Student Legislature are asked to apply today and tomorrow from 2 to 5 p.m. in Roland Parker Lounge I of Graham Memorial.

SSL, which is composed of delegations from most of North Carolina's colleges and universities, meets annually to pass bills and resolutions of interest to students and the state.

The chambers of the old state capitol in Raleigh are used for the SSL sessions.

GM PRESENTS

SATURDAY

COMBO PARTY

Rendezvous Room 8 p.m.

SUNDAY

ALL STAR JAZZ SHOW

G. M. Lounge 8 p.m.

HELP WANTED

2 persons — counter work. 5-10 p.m.

Apply in person

DAIRY BAR

Glen Lennox

The young bucks of America go clean-white-sock in the new crew Adler calls Adlastic

Meet the revolutionary crew of 65% lambswool plus 35% nylon with spandex for 100% stretch. Up and down. This way and that. That's Adlastic with the give to take on all sizes 10 to 15 and last far longer and fit far better. Size up Adlastic in 28 clean-white-sock colors. Clean-white-sock? The now notion with it even without the wherewithall. Whatever, get Adlastic at stores where clean-white-sock is all yours for just one young buck and a quarter. ADLER

THE ADLER COMPANY, CINCINNATI 14, OHIO. DIVISION OF BURLINGTON INDUSTRIES

Available at:

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

Chapel Hill, N. C.

LITTLE BUT MIGHTY WANT ADS

FOR SALE: '65 TEMPEST 2-dr ht, 3 months old, 7,000 miles, radio, heater, straight drive. Owner leaving country. Call 967-1028.

FOR SALE: '61 METROPOLItan. Good condition, has given many miles of dependable service. $400. All offers considered. Call 929-5279.

JEROME NEEDS A HOME. A monkey with cage and training equipment. Reasonable price. 942-3365.

EXPERIENCED RADIO AND record player technician needed immediately. Full or part-time. Phone 942-3556.

FOR SALE: HONDA CB 150 Ex. condition, 2400 mi., good mileage, perfect inexpensive transportation. Call 929-3117 after 8 p.m.

DAILY CROSSWORD

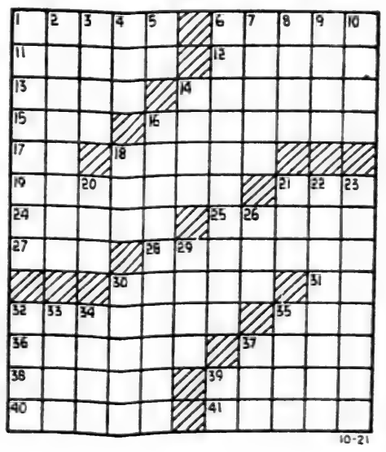
ACROSS

1. Frighten
6. Marks of wounds
11. Of a city
12. Test
13. Vegetable
14. Strut
15. Pithy remark
16. To speak against
17. Verbal ending
18. Group of three
19. Bellowing
20. Wing
24. Remains
25. Norwegian dramatist
27. Poetic contraction
28. Subject of Dreyfus court martial
30. Accumulate
31. Father
32. Confine: rare
35. South Saskatchewan or Hungry Horse, for example
36. Fitting
37. Slush
38. Bay window
39. Workers in the field
40. Fur skins
41. Fat

DOWN

1. Place under water
2. Wood preservative
3. Incite
4. Rodent
5. Plural ending
6. Wiriest
7. Hoisting device
8. River in France: poss.
9. Biblical term of reproach
10. Weaver's reed
14. Soreness or anguish
16. Mills for grinding grain
18. Attempt
20. Swiss river
21. Beast
22. Spotted African animals
23. People of Viet-Nam
26. Roulette bet
29. Spicy
30. Medieval helmet
32. Wet
33. Withered
34. Lime tree
35. Eat dinner
37. Queen of fairies
39. Exclamation

Yesterday's Answer



10-21

AN ACTUAL PERFORMANCE!

Through breathtaking new techniques in film making and highest fidelity sound.

THE LA SCALA PRODUCTION OF PUCCINI'S LA BOHEME

TECHNICOLOR® FROM WARNER BROS.

TODAY ONLY

3:00 & 5:00 P.M.

Artistic Director and Conductor, Herbert von Karajan

Production Designed and Directed by Franco Zeffirelli

ADMISSION

Afternoon $1.25

Night $2.00

Varsity

TICKETS NOW ON SALE AT OUR BOX OFFICE

ranch coat

WATER REPELLENT-WASHABLE-SNAGPROOF

HIJKLM NOPOR STUVW XYZ DEFG HIJ

KLSTUV WXYZA BDFGH IJKLMNOPQ

HIJKLM NOPQR STUV WXYZABI

carhartt

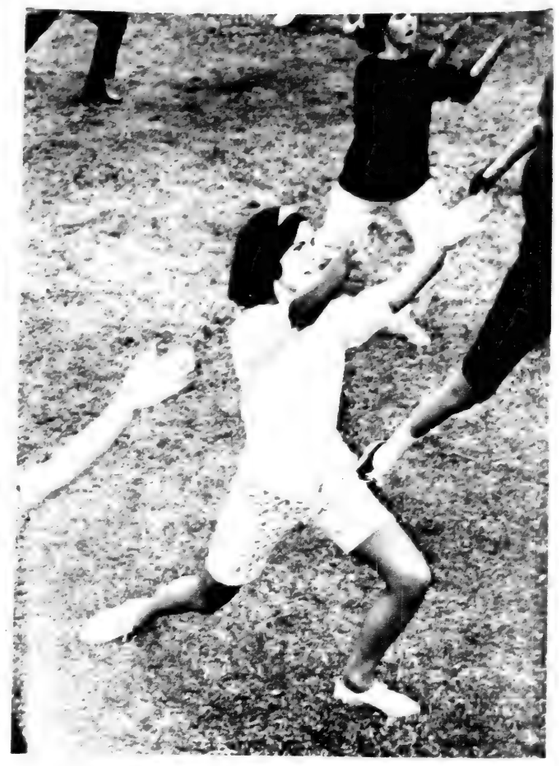
ONLY 14.95

RANCHTONE LINING BY J. P. Stevens & Co., Inc. (52% orelan acrylic, 48% cotton)

BELK-LEGGETT-HORTON

Chapel Hill, N. C.

Fledgling Cheerleaders At Work



Many eager freshmen, full of school spirit, in good physical condition, and blessed with loud voices, turned out this week for frosh cheerleader try-outs. Looking over the eager recruits is varsity Head Cheerleader Jerry Houle (with his back turned in the photo at upper right).

Nine girls and nine boys will be chosen to lead the freshman cheers. Some of the girls are seen here going through the routines. Judging by the expression on one coed, cheering must be hard work.

DTH Photos By Ernest Robl

How Many Americans?

The most desirable population for the United States will be the subject of one of the talks at a Seminar on Population Policy here later this month.

Dr. Joseph J. Spengler, professor of economics at Duke, will speak at 8 p.m. Oct. 27 on "The Optimum Population of the United States."

The Population Program of UNC will conduct the seminar under a grant from the Conservation Foundation of New York City.

Save money on rare old Western books at the Intimate this week.

people on the go... go BURGER CHEF

College budgets and Burger Chef belong together. Burger Chef . . . where 50¢ will buy a complete meal: open-flame broiled hamburger, a rich milk shake, and a heap of crisp golden fries.

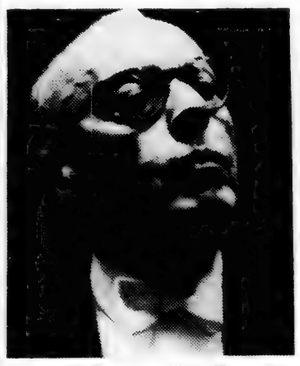
337 N. ROSEMARY ST. OPEN 10 A.M. – 11 P.M.

BURGER CHEF HAMBURGERS

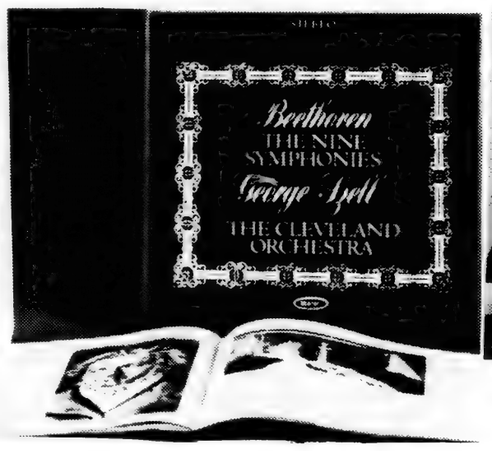
Home of the World's Greatest 15¢ Hamburger!

USE DTH CLASSIFIEDS

This Weekend At
THE RECORD BAR
All Epic Classics At Big Discounts



George Szell



Leon Fleisher

Featuring BEETHOVEN'S NINE SYMPHONIES
by George Szell and the Cleveland Orchestra
Complete on Seven Discs
Mono $35.00 value NOW $16.98 Stereo $42.00 value NOW $18.98

Also BEETHOVEN'S FIVE PIANO CONCERTOS
by Leon Fleisher and the Cleveland Orchestra with George Szell
Complete on Four Discs
Mono $20 value NOW $10.77 Stereo $24 value NOW 12.98

ALL OTHER EPIC CLASSICS
Mono reg. $5.00 NOW $2.99 Stereo reg. $6.00 NOW $3.49

OUR USUAL 25% OFF ON THE REST OF OUR ENTIRE STOCK

THE RECORD BAR
(Across from the Post Office on Henderson St.)
DURHAM (Downtown) JACKSONVILLE Florida DURHAM (Wellons Village)

SEARS ROEBUCK AND CO

EASTGATE CHAPEL HILL GIGANTIC SALE
THURSDAY–FRIDAY–SATURDAY
Hundreds of Recapped
18 MONTH GUARANTEE TIRES 6.25 UP installed

SNOW TIRES
ALL POPULAR SIZES
in BLACK or WHITE SIDEWALLS
NOW JUST 7.25 installed

All These Tremendous Values Now at SEARS CATALOGUE SALES OFFICE
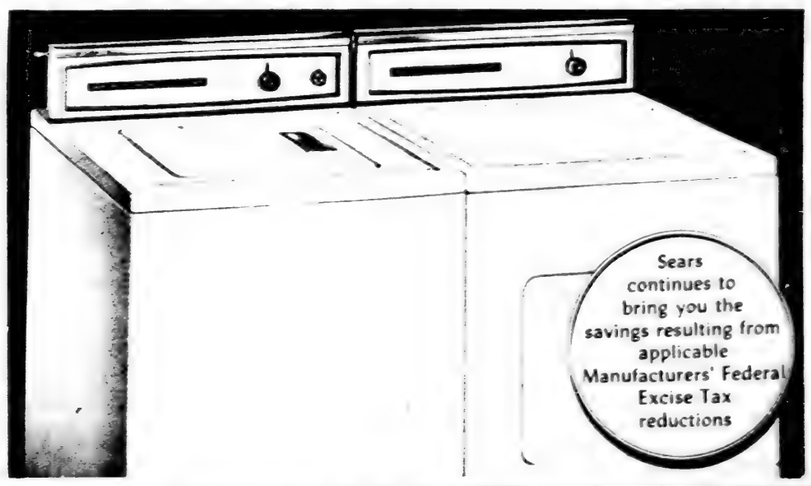
EASTGATE SHOPPING CENTER

BRAND NEW TIRES 40% off
ALL POPULAR SIZES

WASHER-DRYER SALE
AUTOMATIC WASHERS from 129.95 up
AUTOMATIC DRYERS from 79.95 up

Free with each Washer-Dryer Purchase
ELECTRIC DEEP FAT FRYER



Pat Stith

DTH Sports Editor

Sonny Pepper, President of the Men's Residence Council, suggested to his group last week that students march in mass on Athletic Director Chuck Erickson's home if a certain rumor that he had heard proved true.

Pepper had heard that students would be required to sit in bleacher type seats at basketball games in UNC's new Carmichael Auditorium.

In fact, this rumor is not rumor. Students, and only students, will occupy some 1,800 bleacher-type seats in the new auditorium.

And I say — so what?

A protest, en mass or in any other form, isn't called for. It would be both foolish and futile simply because the facts behind the seating arrangement doesn't justify a protest.

To start with, these 1,800 bleacher-type seats are not wooden, they are aluminum with plastic guards, purchased new at a cost of about $43,000. And they are permanent in the sense that once installed, they're in Carmichael to stay.

Each seat will be numbered so that when your ticket assigns you to the bleacher area you know that when you arrive there will be a place for you, unlike the situation at Woollen Gym in the past.

In addition, the bleacher seats will be located directly behind the North Carolina bench making them, position-wise, the best in the house.

Athletic Director Chuck Erickson will recommend to the committee, which will make the final decision of seating arrangements this week, that 75 per cent of the total number of seats in Carmichael Auditorium be reserved for students and faculty.

He also will recommend that students be assigned to every section in the auditorium. The final decision will be up to the committee, composed of one student, an alumnus, two faculty members and Erickson.

There are really only four alternatives:

1) Don't install bleacher seats, cutting the auditorium's capacity from 8,600 to 6,800.

2) Install permanent seats on the west side. (This can't be done for two reasons. First, there is no money for such a project and second, it would destroy the auditorium's value as an auditorium by eliminating the stage.)

3) Put the alumni, who will pay $3 each for tickets, in the bleachers. (This may sound nice, but it doesn't make any sense financially.)

4) Put in the bleachers and pack 'em with Tar Heel fans.

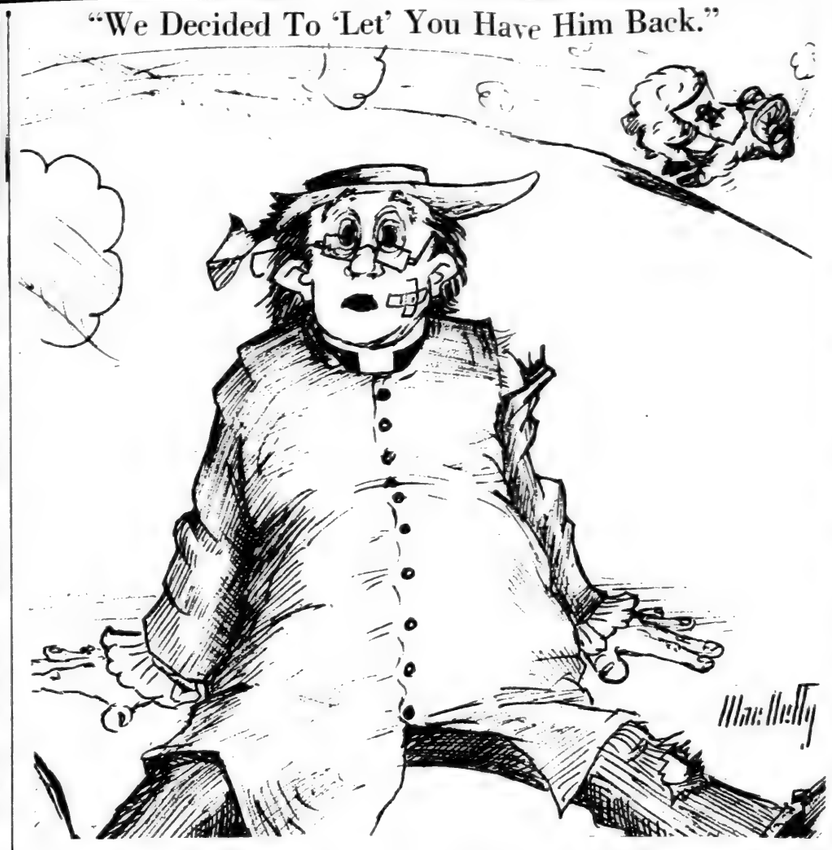
Chuck Erickson laments, "The basketball seating situation is 1,000 per cent better than ever before but we still won't make everybody happy."

No, Mr. Erickson, you won't.

Everybody, you and the Athletic Department especially, would like a 12,000 seat gym — make it 15,000. What we have is not what we wanted, agreed.

But I believe in this case, the Athletic Department is doing its best to give the student a fair shake. Sign waving may have its place somewhere—but not here.

"We Decided To 'Let' You Have Him Back."



"Used My Head" --Rameses

Well, I'm back — safe and sound — in good ol' Chapel Hill. Rameses VII is the name. I made a little unexpected trip to Wake Forest the other night. It seems they had some practical joke up their sleeves.

There is one thing that bothers me, though. Everyone is giving Dean Long the credit for my safe return. True, he did place a few calls to Wake Forest but that's not the real reason.

I used my head (well, I guess you could say horsn) to good advantage. Now I'm a gentle sort — slow to anger. But I was a little fed up. I mean I'm getting along in years and I need my rest.

Here came these young "whipper - snappers" in the middle of the night. Kidnapping — er-ah — RAMnapping was what it was. They didn't even ask if I wanted to go. They just woke me up in the middle of the night and carted me off.

Well, to make a long story short — I could tell they weren't up to nothing good.

So I just waited for an opening. They left this tall, fat guy in charge. He was sort of strange looking — a big, tall hat with a black cloak draped around his shoulders. Come to think of it, he looked something like a preacher — "'Deacon" I think they called him.

He didn't look so tough to me. He dropped that chain for a second and I cracked him good with my ol' horns. I didn't stay to watch him land — figured I'd read all about it in the Tar Heel.

I guess that showed them, though. Maybe I'll have some peace and quiet around here from now on.

Ram Tale Began 1924

Once upon a time North Carolina had no Rameses for a mascot.

Upon that time, in the fall of 1924, Head Cheerleader Vic Huggins was overwhelmed by an inspiration. The Tar Heel footballers of 1922 had thrilled sophomore Huggins with a 9-1 season (one of UNC's all - time greatest) and the gridders of 1923 had performed well enough to charge up junior Huggins even more.

By the time of his senior year, in 1924, Vic and his classmates had more school spirit than the campus bootlegger.

"I was elected head cheerleader," recalls Huggins, "and I wanted to do something big. Then it came to me. Teams like Georgia and N. C. State had mascots — a bulldog and a wolf. Why shouldn't Carolina?

"Well, I rememberd the 1922 team and its powerful fullback Jack Merritt (now on the Chapel Hill police force). They called him the 'battering ram.' That gave me an idea — what's wrong with a Ram for a mascot?

"I went to Charlie Woollen. I said, 'Mr. Wollen, let's have a little money and send off to Texas and get us a good, genuine Ram for a team mascot.'

"Mr. Woollen smiled a little, then eased out the money and said, 'Go get him.'

"Rameses the First came crated in the strongest box you ever saw. He was really a great ram, a he-man ram. I was so elated I didn't know what to do.

"We introduced him at the VMI game here that year. We had his hair all combed and fluffed up and had ribbons on his leash and a monogram blanket on his back. Really handsome.

"Well, for most of the game Carolina and VMI battled to a standstill. But late in the fourth quarter, Bunn Hackney stepped back to the 30-yard line and made a perfect dropkick for a 3-0 victory.

"The crowd was electrified. Rameses had done the job! There was a great new revival of spirit throughout the entire student body (won-lost record to date had been 2-4). The newspapers played it up big the next morning. Rameses was here to stay."

Everett Tops Stacy In Mural Football

The Everett Hustlers squeezed past the Stacy Colts, 10-8, in one of Wednesday's top intramural football games. Everett's George Soule matched touchdowns with Mike Langford of Stacy, but Everett scored two safeties to Stacy's one and that was the difference.

The Old West Stubs blanked Battle - Vance - Pettigrew, 12-0. Roy Alexander scored a touchdown in each half to lead Old West to the win.

First - half scores by Burch Williams and Bill Kenneday stood up for the whole game as the Mangum Wumps defeated the Mangum Mites, 12-0.

On Tuesday the ZBT Zooboys and Sigma Chi A battled to a 0-0 tie in overtime. Sigma Chi was declared the winner because they moved the ball farther during the overtime period in six downs than ZBT did in their six downs.

FCA Meets

The Fellowship of Christian Athletes (FCA) will hold its bi-weekly meeting at 7:15 tonight, room 302 Woollen Gym.

Chairman Albert Long urges all members as well as prospective members to attend the meeting.

Big Joe Hits Hard

By BOB PAGE
DTH Sports Writer

The most exciting football player to watch during Carolina's last two home games has been Joe Fratangelo.

You can easily miss him in a big pile-up, because he's usually at the bottom of things or in the defensive huddle, because he's small as football players grow, especially as middle guards grow.

Fratangelo weighs just 203 pounds and is 5-10. But its taking two and three 220-pound, or more, linemen to keep him from wrecking opposing backs.

Against Maryland, he pulled a dream play.

It was the Terps' ball, third down, and nine yards to go for a first near midfield. Maryland was driving in the third quarter for what could have been the winning score.

At the snap, Fratangelo was double - teamed. He bumped one red jersey aside, chased the quarterback Phil Petty, who was dropping back, shouldered another pass - protector out of the way, and forced Petry to toss his screen pass early. Then he cut across field to his right in pursuit of the receiver and made the tackle near the sideline.

Maryland was stopped two yards short of a first down and had to punt.

To the fans who saw it, Fratangelo's hustle and fire was just as exciting as a 60-yard touchdown pass.

If you can remember the pleasant parts of the Virginia game, it was Fratangelo who individually drew the crowd's cheers three times as his number 63 clobbered ball carriers for long losses.

JOE FRATANGELO

Enemy coaches and the press are noting that Carolina's tough in the middle of the line. Ohio State, which likes to do nothing better than beat hell out of middle guards with running plays, was forced to go to the air and stay there.

There in the middle of Carolina's defensive was Joe Fratangelo.

He's a native of E. Rutherfordton, N. J., and made high school All - America as a fullback in 1962.

His desire is the thing that will have more and more Carolina fans watching the blue jersey, numbered 63, and paying less attention to the ball.

The joy is that sooner or later, usually sooner, Fratangelo is on top . . . of the ball, the ball carrier and any opposing blockers that get in his way.

There is no reason to slight the play of guys like Hank Sadler, Bo Wood, Joe Churchill and Jim Masino, other stalwarts of Carolina's defensive line.

But in a world dominated by big guys, the smallest is the leader.

Allen's "Best" Hit Pfeiffer's Booters

By SANDY TREADWELL
DTH Sports Writer

The UNC soccer team is undefeated.

They will be fighting to keep building on to the win column when they meet Pfeiffer today. They'll also be working to earn Coach Marvin Allen's description of this year's squad. "They are the best team I've ever coached."

But today's battle will be nothing to laugh at.

Pfeiffer has given us tough games in the past," the coach explained. "They almost beat us last year."

"The game today won't be a pushover for us. We expect a good game. We'll face an aggressive team."

"The lineup will be about the same for us as it has been so far this season. John Loud has a pulled muscle, but I hope he'll be able to play. Everyone else is in good shape."

Co-captain Drew Murphy described the team strategy for today's game:

"Our scoring attack hasn't been clicking like it should the last few games. We've been concentrating on it in practice all week. We hope to score more goals, more quickly in the game against Pfeiffer."

Swimming Plaids from the Bonny, Bonny Banks

The most pleasant thing you can step into is a pair of pants from THE HUB. Available in a wide assortment of styles including the new plaids, hounds-tooth check and hopsack, these trousers are guaranteed to enhance any wardrobe while respecting any wallet. In wools and wool blends . . . from 10.95

THE HUB of Chapel Hill

"When you care enough to dress the very best . . ."

Milton's new glen plaid sport coats culminate Milton's quest for the ultimate in a smart extrovert plaid. Irresistible hand woven Scottish shetlands in the most striking plaids in our 17 years. You won't believe the combinations of colours that go into this smartest of looks—

Camel/Navy/Olive
Tan/Bottle Green/
Terra Cotta
Rich Olive/Claret/White
Olive/Tuesday Blue/White
Olive/Navy/Terra Cotta
White/Blue/Olive/Claret
Camel/Olive/Luggage

As Usual Milton's Full of All Those Smart Goodies that make Shopping So Exciting

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

FROM BRAZIL OPERATION CAMPUS

A trio of outstanding artists, brought to this country by the Brazilian Embassy and the Brazilian American Cultural Institute and presented on the UNC Campus by Graham Memorial, will begin a three-day visit on Monday, October 25.

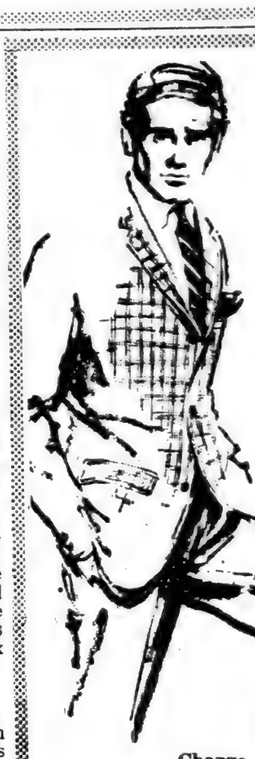
The opening presentation will be a lecture by the outstanding Brazilian painter, engraver and draftsman, Rubens Gerchman. Mr. Gerchman't topic will be "A Survey of Brazilian Modern and Contemporary Painting and Brazilian Architecture". The lecture will be illustrated and will be held on Monday, October 25 at 8:00 p.m. in 1-A Swain Hall.

Tuesday evening at 8:00 p.m. in Hill Hall, pianist Hector Alimonda and Mezzo-soprano Maria Lucia Godoy will share the platform in a joint recital of international and Brazilian music. Alimonda, Professor of Music from the University of Brazil at Rio de Janeiro, has given concerts throughout Europe, Latin America and the United States. Miss Godoy is already familiar to many in this area from her appearance in Raleigh last season as soloist with the Coro do Brazil. Her performances with this group brought the highest praise from both critics and audiences throughout the tour.

Wednesday, October 27, in the Main Lounge of Graham Memorial Student Union,, pianist Alimonda will present a lecture entitled "Brazilian Music Seen Through its Piano Music". Miss Godoy will be present to assist in the presentation.

A reception for Miss Godoy, Mr. Alimonda and Mr. Gerchman will follow the lecture.

All events of "Operation Campus" are open to the general public. There is no admission charge.



For the Traditionalist

Enjoy antique automobiles, the Flemish painttres, Greek tragedies? You're a man who appreciates expressions of style which are meaningfull and lasting. You want your appearance to reflect this attitude too.

Wear a classic Glenn Plaid Sport Coat by H. Barenstein from the VMW.

From $39.95

Charge Accounts Invited

Varsity Men's Wear

147 E. Franklin St.

ONE HALF OF
BIG CHICKEN
TOSSED SALAD
Heaps of FRENCH FRIES
TOASTED ROLLS
99c
Thur. 4:00-7:30
All the Ice Tea you can drink 15c
GRANTS EASTGATE SHOPPING CENTER

S. O. S.
STUDENT SURVIVAL KITS
Get yours now while the Supply Lasts
PRETZEL STIX, SARDINES,
COOKIES, CANDY, CHEESE,
RAISINS and PUMPERNICKEL BREAD
HICKORY FARMS

TODAY — TUES.
"A MARVEL! ONE OF THE MADDEST MOVIES EVER MADE!" —N. Y. World-Telegram & Sun
"IT DAZZLES!" —N. Y. Times
"THE KNACK ... and how to get it"

RITA TUSHINGHAM
THIS PICTURE IS RECOMMENDED FOR ADULTS ONLY
Shorts: "THE PINK PHINK" and "THE PEACHES"
1:25, 3:19, 5:13, 7:08 & 9:03
RIALTO, Durham

The sprite little butterfly shetland suit that can play so many parts in your hitherthither life. And it's as light as a handkerchief on your shoulders. Tailored with infinite care by John Meyer. Fully lined. In blueberry, redberry, glen green, peat brown, scone, blue skye, loch blue.

Town & Campus

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Vol 74, No. 33 | CHAPEL HILL NORTH CAROLINA FRIDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1965 | Founded February 23, 1893

Politicians

Governor Moore and Senator Edward Kennedy share the spotlight on today's editorial page. See page two.

The Deacons

What's the sports department's view of Wake Forest? Look at the cartoon on page four for the answer.

Jury Deliberations Begin In Second Rinaldi Murder Trial

HILLSBOROUGH (AP) — The guilt or innocence of Frank Rinaldi, charged with first degree murder in the Christmas Eve slaying of his wife in 1963, rested with a jury late yesterday as the DTH went to press.

Rinaldi, 36, his hands clasped, watched intently as Judge George M. Fountain handed the case to the jury at 12:49 p.m. The jury of eight men and four women went to lunch before beginning deliberations at 2:05 p.m.

Judge Fountain instructed the jury to return a verdict of first degree murder, first degree with a recommendation for mercy, second degree or acquittal.

However, Solicitor Thomas D. Cooper Jr. told the jury, "I'm not going to ask you to send him to the gas chamber. That is between a person and his conscience."

The long - drawn trial began Oct. 11 with the first three days devoted to selection of the jury.

Rinaldi, a native of Waterbury, Conn., and former university instructor, was convicted on a first degree charge last Nov. 18. But he won a new trial when the State Supreme Court ruled Judge Raymond Mallard erred in admitting certain testimony.

Rinaldi's wife, Lucille, 34, was found slain in his apartment in Chapel Hill. A scarf had been tied around her mouth and nose and she had been hit at least seven times on the face and head.

Rinaldi, who did not testify at his first trial, took the stand this time and strongly denied the crime. Solicitor Cooper told the jury in his argument that Rinaldi killed his wife to collect $40,000 on a $20,000 double indemnity insurance policy.

"No one else was to gain $40,000 from his wife's death," Cooper declared. "I think it has been proved the hardest way possible" he killed his wife.

The couple, both of Waterbury had been married only five months. An autopsy showed she was pregnant about 18 weeks.

The state based its case solely on circumstantial evidence. It relied chiefly on the testimony of Alfred Foushee, a Negro waiter; statements police said Rinaldi made on the night of his arrest, and the insurance policy.

Foushee testified last week that Rinaldi approached him October, 1963 and tried to hire him to kill Mrs. Rinaldi. He said Rinaldi asked him "to choke, strangle her or even rape her."

Foushee told the court Rinaldi asked him if he knew anyone who would do it for $500. He said he replied he did not.

A Chapel Hill police sergeant, James Farrell, testified Rinaldi asked him following his arrest, "How can you stand to sit in the same room with me after what I've done?"

John F. Sipp, an insurance agent of Chapel Hill and close friend of Rinaldi, testified he was with him on a shopping trip the day Mrs. Rinaldi was killed. He said they found her body when they returned to the apartment about 1:40 p.m. Several witnesses told the jury they saw Rinaldi with Sipp in Durham the morning of that Christmas eve.

Defense attorneys delivered their arguments to the jury Wednesday. Cooper told the jury Thursday that Rinaldi "did not even go near" his wife when he opened the door of the apartment and saw her lying on the floor.

LATE BULLETIN

Rinaldi Acquitted!!

The jury in Hillsborough Superior Court acquitted Frank Joseph Rinaldi of the Christmas eve 1963 slaying of his pregnant wife yesterday after eight hours and forty minutes of deliberation. The verdict was returned at 10:45 p.m.

Jones Faces HUAC; First Effort Made Linking Klan To Violence

WASHINGTON (AP) — House investigators made their first effort yesterday to link the Ku Klux Klan with violence, in a probe that has focused mainly on finances of the hooded order.

North Carolina Grand Dragon James Robert Jones was closely questioned before the House Committee on Un-American Activities about an alleged Klan official said by investigator Donald T. Appell to have pleaded guilty to charges growing out of bombings.

Appell said the series of bombings occurred Jan. 24 around New Bern, N. C.

Rep. Edwin E. Willis, D-La., committee chairman, said that during the trial the alleged Klan officials, whom he identified as Raymond Mills, changed his plea to guilty.

In their questioning the committee investigators alleged that Mills was not dropped from the Klan when he changed his plea and that the Klan had sought to raise a defense fund for him.

Willis asked Jones, "Isn't it a fact that while your organization pretends to have rules against violence and pretends to be against violence that you never expelled a member known to you to have committed violence?"

Jones declined to answer that and other questions, citing constitutional guarantees against possible self incrimination.

Jones has refused the committee any information other than his name.

The committee introduced as evidence a large, framed certificate which the investigators said was a Klan charter issued in the name of an improvement society of which they said Mills was an officer.

Appell suggested that this was only a cover for the Klan, asking "Isn't it a practice to issue charters under cover names, such as improvement associations?" Jones declined to answer.

Earlier the investigators prodded Jones about money by producing some of the records he had refused to turn over—income tax returns.

The Klan Dragon kept silent under sharp questioning about whether he had been reimbursed by the United Klans of America for deductions he had claimed, such as the cost of robes.

They said Jones enjoyed these fringe benefits as well:

— A brand new Cadillac, which Klan Klaverns all over the state were assessed to pay for.

— A new Dodge stationwagon they said was paid for out of Klan funds.

— A death benefit setup for widows of Klansmen with a built-in "enormous profit" for the Klan.

They also accused Jones of making a false accounting of Klan finances to a Klan rally at Rockwell, N. C., last Aug. 22.

As he has done since he started testifying yesterday before the House committee on Un-American Activities, Jones gave a stock reply that he declined to answer because it might tend to incriminate him, and cited the Fifth, First, Fourth and 14th amendments.

That answer, delivered in an unemotional southern accent, has been given more than 140 times, but today Jones shortened it by refusing merely on "the grounds previously stated."

Like Klan Imperial Wizard Robert M. Shelton before him, Jones has refused to deliver any Klan records and documents subpoenaed by the committee. He too was warned that he faces possible contempt of congress charges.

Chief committee investigator Donald T. Appel produced Jones' income tax returns, showing a 1960 income of $3,800; 1961 $1,630; 1962 $3,579; 1963 $2,766, and 1964 $8,923. That was the year he became Grand Dragon, or State Leader.

Appel said the returns show he claimed tax deductions of $6,931 in 1964, for expenses for robes, printing literature, travel and other categories.

Chiarman Edwin E. Willis, D-La., asked Jones if it wasn't a fact that he had already been reimbursed for these expenses by the United Klans of America. Jones refused to answer.

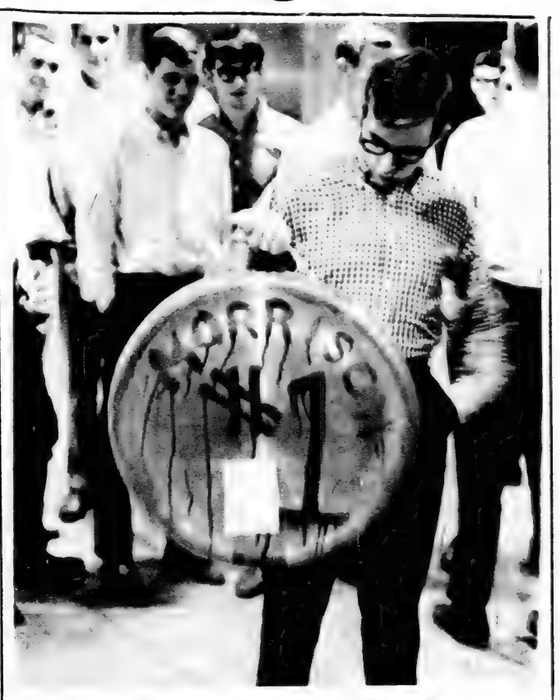
Ten Coeds Make Court

Ten Carolina coeds were selected Wednesday night for the 1965 Homecoming Court. Students will choose one of them to be queen in an election next Wednesday.

The girls selected are: "Peach" Pierce, a junior from Gastonia majoring in chemistry; Emily Cathey, junior, Louisburg, Tenn., history; Sharon Derrick, sophomore, Jacksonville, med tech; Patti Fields, junior, Chapel Hill, English.

Also Mary King, sophomore, Greensboro, political science; Judy Dudley, senior, Washington, N. C., English education; Toni Greenwood, junior, Los Angeles, art; Lois Shepherd, senior, North Wilkesboro, business administration; Peg McQueen, senior, Clinton, history; and Sharon Finch, junior, Thomasville, journalism.

Students will vote for one girl in Wednesday's balloting. Boxes will be placed at the Scuttlebutt, Graham Memorial, Y-Court, Lenoir Hall, the Circus Room, and Chase Cafeteria. ID cards will be stamped when the votes are cast.



IT'S BACK — Maverick House got its Victory Gong back Wednesday night. As the paint indicates, Morrison College students had it.

Nation-Wide Hookup Will Discuss Policy To China

Why the United States should reevaluate its policy towards Red China will be discussed by students and experts over a nation-wide telephone hookup Sunday at 7:30 p.m. in Carroll Hall.

Twenty colleges and universities across the nation will participate in the discussion, which is sponsored by Americans for Reappraisal of Far Eastern Policy in celebration of the twentieth anniversary of the United Nations.

The UN will be 20 years old Sunday.

Students will gather at a prearranged meeting place on their respective campuses and will hear a distinguished expert offer reasons why the United States should begin negotiations for the recognition of Red China and her admission into the UN.

UNC-CH students will hear Rev. William Sloane Coffin, chaplain of Yale University and former advisor for the Peace Corps.

Students will also hear a discussion of the topic by a panel of six experts over telephone.

Sitting on the six-man panel are Michael Harrington, author of "The Other America," Norman Thomas, distin- and Dr. John Fairbank, leading U. S. expert on far eastern affairs.

Also included are William Ryan, unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic mayoralty nomination in New York City, Al Lowenstein, former N. C. State professor who managed Hubert Humphrey's campaign for U. S. vice president, and editor Norman Cousins.

UNC-CH is coordinating the program for nearly 17 colleges and universities in North Carolina and Virginia.

Americans for Reappraisal of Far Eastern Policy is dedicated to education as a means of seeking support for its proposals rather than civil disobedience, according to local director Eric Van Loon.

Prof Heads Stat Program

Dr. W. J. Hall of the statistics department will head a national program of visiting lecturers in statistics.

Financed by the National Science Foundation, the series will also include Prof. Walter L. Smith, also with the statistics department, and 13 other speakers associated with UNC in the past as students or faculty members.

The program is sponsored by the American Statistical Association, the Biometric Society and the Institute of Mathematical Statistics.

Petition Check

The recall petition, now in the process of being validated, has at least two ficticious names attached to it, according to Alvin Tyndall, elections board chairman.

In addition, there were some names appearing twice on the petition, Tyndall said yesterday.

The actual total number of names on the recall petition is 1,894. At least 1,863 names must be valid for the recall to take effect.

It is an honor council offense to sign a fake name to a petition.

FBI Man Names Wilkins

HAYNEVILLE, Ala. (AP)— For the second time, an FBI informer yesterday pointed out young Klansman Collie Leroy Wilkins Jr., as the gunman who killed a white civil rights worker from Detroit.

Red - haired Gary Thomas Rowe, a former Birmingham bartender, told during 25 minutes of direct testimony how he and three other Klansmen followed a car in which Mrs. Viola Liuzzo, 39, was shuttling marchers back from Montgomery after the massive walk to the Alabama capitol March 25.

Rowe was brought into the courtroom through a side entrance under heavy guard of FBI agents and state troopers.

"Eventually, we pulled up," the 35-year-old Rowe said in describing the chase of the Liuzzo car which began in Selma.

"The first thing I knew, Wilkins stuck his arm out of the window, elbow length. Wilkins told Eugene Thomas to speed up. Just as he pulled up, the woman driving looked at us."

Rowe, who said he infiltrated the Klan five years ago at the request of the FBI, told the court that Wilkins fired two quick shots then several more, and Thomas and William O. Eaton fired several shots.

"I don't think you hit those people," Rowe said he told Wilkins.

"He smacked my right leg. He said, 'Baby brother, I don't miss. That bitch and that bastard are dead as hell."

The witness gave similar testimony at Rowe's first trial in May. That trial ended with a hung jury. Thomas and Eaton also are under murder indictments but their trials have not yet been set.

Wilkins, a 21-year-old Fairfield, Ala., crew-cut mechanic listened intently to the testimony, smoking cigarettes frequently.

Rowe said he met Wilkins, Thomas and Eaton in Bessemer the morning of the slaying. He said they drove to Montgomery and then to Selma, where they went to the Silver Moon Cafe about 7 p.m.

They stayed at the cafe about 45 minutes, Rowe said, then drove to the vicinity of the Browns Chapel A.M.E. Church, center of the Negro right-to-vote drive.

"Wilkins said, 'Looka there. Well, I'll be damned. Look over there, baby brother'" Rowe testified. He said they saw a white woman driving a car with a Negro man riding in the front seat.

"Thomas said, 'Let's get 'em,'" Rowe continued.

The witness said the car with the four Klansmen followed the other automobile approximately 20 miles on the road to Montgomery. They were prevented from catching up several times by oncoming traffic, once a state patrol car, but they finally pulled alongside and fired into it, he said.

The FBI informer said he had a pistol but did not fire it. He said Thomas told him to shoot. "I put my arm alongside Wilkins when he fired."

"'Baby brother, I didn't hear you fire,'" Rowe said Wilkins told him. "I said 'I fired two shots. Hell, I was afraid I was going to shoot you in the head.'"

Rowe said nothing further was said to him.

The witness told the court they went to a cafe in Bessemer, where Thomas later told them he had arranged an alibi. "Everything's taken care of," Rowe quoted Thomas as saying.

Rowe said he left and telephone the FBI.

On cross - examination Rowe said he joined the Klan in 1960 at the FBI's request.

"What inducement did they offer you?" asked defense attorney Arthur J. Hames, former mayor of Birmingham and former FBI agent.

"Merely that I would be helping the people of my country," Rowe said.

Doesn't Know About Klan

The sheriff of Orange County told the DTH yesterday he "has no idea" about the number of Klan members within his jurisdiction.

C. B. Knight said he "finds it hard to determine how many of the ones we see at the rallies are local people."

He added, however, he had seen "a few (Klansmen) I know.

"I've never been to a private rally, and I don't expect to be going to one," Knight said.

"I won't investigate them unless they violate the law," he commented.

According to Knight, three Klan meetings have been held recently within Orange County. "They had their first one over in Chapel Hill," he said.

A 27-year-old veteran with the Durham County Sheriff's Department told the DTH he has never met a citizen of his area he knows to be a Klan member.

"All I know about it is what I read in newspaper stories concerning the HUAC investigation," said the officer, who refused to be identified.

Asked if he had heard of the groups named in a House "There are so many of these outfits around it's impossible to keep track of them all the time."

The HUAC says the organization in Orange County is The Sportsman's Lakeside Lodge.

Escaped Con Caught Here

Chapel Hill police yesterday apprehended an escaped convict who was chased into the area last Friday by state police who spotted his stolen auto.

Chief William Blake said William J. Murray, 38, was picked up on Lone Pine Lane off Tennis Circle in the Estes Hills section.

"He readily gave up," Blake said. "He was carrying a bed roll, an electric shaver and a laundried shirt."

Blake said the house of James Tedder, a UNC student, was broken into and some of the articles found on Murray were missing from Tedder's house.

In addition, Blake said, three bottles of wine were missing from Tedder's house. Murray said he had been in the woods since last Friday.

State police said the car which Murray abandoned Friday on Carolina Ave. was stolen in Danville, Va. Blake said a federal charge would be placed against Murray because the car was transported across state lines.

Murray has been returned to Central Prison in Raleigh. He was serving an 18-month sentence for auto larceny when he escaped last week.

Blake said his men began finding beer cans and wine bottles in the woods earlier this week, so he suspected Murray was still in the area.

The Ye Old Tavern reported a quantity of beer missing Wednesday, Blake said. Murray will be charged with breaking and entering for the two Chapel Hill thefts, Blake added.

Embarrassed Students Get Gong Back

Maverick House residents stared red-faced Wednesday night as an elevator door opened and their missing Victory gong appeared, suspended from the ceiling of the elevator.

The unveiling took place during a clandestine ceremony at 8 p.m. Morrison College residents masterminded the return of the gong.

Chuck Longino, Morrison College housemaster, said he received an anonymous phone call early Wednesday evening.

The caller said he would return the gong to Craige on three conditions:

—that an officer from Craige be present in the main lobby of Morrison to receive the gong.

—that Byron McCoy, governor of Morrison, be there to make the presentation.

— that photographers be present.

At precisely 8 p.m. the elevator doors opened and the gong was seen hanging from the top. One on side was inscribed in red paint "Morrison No. 1," and on the other side was "Big Mo," the Morrison nickname.

A note taped to it read: "Whereas all Craige Dormitory boys are inept, and can't get their own gong back, whereas we, the men of Morrison College, wish to retain good relations with all dormitories, we have taken it upon ourselves to retrieve the gong and return it to the boys of Craige."

Maverick residents took the gong home, ringing it all the way.

Klan Keeps Own Kalendar

Washington (AP) — Time goes from dismal to dreadful, and from frightful to hideous in the strange world of the Ku Klux Klan.

The hooded society main- has given its own names to the days, weeks and months.

The Klan constitution designates the seven days of the week as Desperate, Dreadful, Desolate, Doleful, Dismal, Deadly and Dark.

And the weeks become Woeful, Weeping, Wailing, Wonderful — and, if there should be a fifth week in any month — Weird.

The 12 months, according to the Klan, are Appalling, Frightful, Sorrowful, Mournful, Horrible, Terrible, Alarming, Furious, Fearful, Hideous, Gloomy and Bloody.

The Klan dates its calendar from 1866, the year of the Klan's founding.

Campus Chest Committee Heads Named

Ellen Lentz and Dave Bruenner, the Co-chairmen for this year's Campus Chest, have announced their committee chairmen. They are as follows: Drive, Carol Wilson and Faison Kuester; Auction, Emily Cathey and Bayard Norris; Publicity, Linda McCutcheon and Jack Spalding; Carnival, Penny Cromartie and Bill Whitaker.

Other members of the executive committee are Patty Hamilton, secretary, and John Dunn, treasurer.

The Campus Chest is a nonprofit, fund - raising organization similar to the Community Chest in that the money that is made is given to different local, state, and national charities.

The efforts of this organization are concentrated on about a week-long period of various fund - raising projects such as a carnival, an auction, and a door-to-door campaign for donations in the dorms, the sorority and fraternity houses, and the apartments. This year drive is tentatively set for the end of March.

Interviews for the committees will be held in early November.

Pretty Sunrise, But No Comet

By JOCK LAUTERER

"Good - looking sunrise," said one sleepy student.

"We're nuts," said a drama professor.

Someone sneezed and no one said Gesundheit.

They had all gathered at the stone bench below Gimghoul Castle Thursday morning in the unknown hours to watch the highly touted Ikeya-Seki Comet flash spectacularly above the horizon.

But it didn't flash, nor sparkle, or even sputter. The whole thing was a dud.

A thick cloud bank in the eastern sky obscured the horizon. But the small group on the stone bench watched anyway as the sky grew brighter with the rising sun.

The gathering was a motley one, made up of students, townspeople and one professor and his two boys. One student wore shorts and no socks.

Associate Professor in Drama Kai Jurgensen looked as if he had been railroaded into the situation. "If this comet doesn't show up I'm gonna beat you two," he threatened his two boys. The students chuckled; outright laughing would have been too much like work this early in the morning.

The sun began to poke its way through the cloud bank.

An elderly couple smiled at the sunrise through binoculars pointed eastward.

"This is an occasion for me," mumbled one student. "This is the first sunrise I've ever seen."

"With a tail ter thousand miles long, how could we miss it?" Prof. Jurgensen asked.

The sunrise was rosy-pink and spectacular, even if there was no comet to precede it. Three students stayed to watch.

The rest of the crowd went off to get some breakfast.

"Oh, it'll be back in 200 years," the elderly gentleman soothed the remaining would-be comet watchers as he toddled off down the path.

The morning bells began ringing on campus.

AIR FORCE THANKS UNC — Col. John Driscoll, left, retired Air Force researcher and development engineer, presents an award of thanks to Prof. George E. Nicholson, chairman of the Department of Statistics at UNC and director ofthe Operations Analysis Center, from the Air Force. Colonel Driscoll brought the official award from Saigon to Chapel Hill in behalf of the Second U. S. Air Division in Viet Nam as a token of thanks for service of UNC faculty members in contributing to Air Force combat effectiveness against the Viet Cong. Prof. Nicholson accepts the award for the University.

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of the Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. Letters and columns, covering a wide range of views, reflect the personal opinions of their authors.

ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR
JACK HARRINGTON, BUSINESS MANAGER

DTH Editor Ernie McCrary is in the infirmary. During his absence the associate editor will serve as acting editor. Expressions of opinion appearing in this column do not necessarily reflect the views of the editor.

Special Session

From The Raleigh Times

Wednesday's conference between Governor Moore and legislative leaders should help impress upon the people of North Carolina the fact that legislative and congressional reapportionment is almost a sure thing, and also the fact that steps have been taken to have plans ready if the federal courts do order such steps.

Some sources believed that the meeting might bring creation of a special House-Senate Committee to consider proposals for reapportionment and have plans ready for any special session which might be called. Such a committee should be named. It could do its work without the haste and confusion which inevitably would accompany such steps if taken first during the actual session. And, such a special committee could have time before a session to explain its work to the legislature, and iron out most of the problems before the session were held.

The suit challenging North Carolina's current legislative and congressional apportionment plans is now before a three-judge federal court. Most North Carolina officials think that the court will order changes in the system on the basis of the one-man-one-vote ruling of the Supreme Court.

Since such a step seems almost certain, it is wise to get the planning done well before the legislature is brought back here in special session. In fact, it wouldn't hurt to have plans definitely drawn up and submitted to legislators in a series of meetings across the State, where questions could be asked and answered, and objections smoothed out as well as possible, before a special session convened.

Wednesday's conference was attended by the Governor, Speaker Pat Taylor, Lt. Gov. Bob Scott, and Rep. David Britt, the man regarded as being most likely to be elected Speaker of the 1967 House, and chairman of the special commission now studying the speaker-ban law. Britt's presence at the conference indicates that action on the controversial speaker-ban law also probably would be included on the agenda of a special session.

This would make sense. If the study commission recommended changes in the law, action should be taken on the matter as quickly as possible. If such a matter were left hanging for months until the 1967 session convened, more and more heat inevitably would be generated over the subject, and that would hurt all concerned.

If the study commission comes in with recommendations which would provide reasonable compromises for all sides, the matter should be sent to a special session for final action.

Sanctimonious Teddy

From The Greensboro Daily News

The pot and kettle school will note with some interest the sanctimonious comment of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy concerning his family's old friend, Francis X. Morrissey.

Alarmed over the impending Senate judgeship confirmation vote, Senator Kennedy has charged Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen with using Morrissey's nomination for "partisan political purposes."

The Illinois senator has indeed rallied a mountain of senatorial strength around his conviction that Morrissey is unqualified by intellectual capacity and legal training and experience to serve as U. S. district judge in Massachusetts. He may even be stirring up this particular furor for "partisan political purposes" as Senator Kennedy charges — but it is clear that he could never get away with it except by attracting a sizable segment of senators who oppose Morrissey's nomination on principle.

For Senator Kennedy to charge anyone else with using "partisan political purposes" to oppose what is patently an outrageous example of political backscratching ought to stagger the imagination of lesser men not wrapped up in such self-serving activities. But it happens to be pretty mild these days in Washington.

Still we can hope that such oratorical hogwash may one day get too sickening even for senators to stomach.

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all ap news dispatches.

"A Real Steal At $50!"

Letters To The Editor

Coeds Oppose Recall Motives

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

J'accused — et tu Brute?

Since Miss Sharon Rose has presumed to speak for the coeds on this campus and their ideals, it now seems necessary that we coeds holding a different opinion be allowed to express our attitudes on this subject. We support Dickson in the office of president of the Student Body. We have no knowledge that he has fallen from any personal or student ideal and certainly not that he has committed any immoral act. We elected him last spring believing him to be qualified for this position and we have had no reason to alter this belief.

His trial should never have been made a matter of public knowledge. The names of persons involved in Honor Council trials have always been inviolate information and for the administration to reveal this information and for student government officials to ask for his resignation was a betrayal of the inherent dignity of the individual on this campus as manifested in our honor system. For Miss Rose to demand a recall election because Dickson's conduct was "ungentlemanly" and to encourage this demoralization and subversion of student autonomy is much more detrimental to the ideals that coeds at UNC believe in than anything that Dickson has done.

Women students on this campus do have ideals; however, the only cause on this campus that coeds have a greater incentive toward (and which is possibly the real reason behind Miss Rose's support of this petition) is revenge upon those who have imposed this double standard upon them. Rather than being an attempt to adjust this standard in an adult manner, I think the true sentiment behind this petition is "since we can't go out and have fun — nobody else can either!"

Miss Rose, it is perhaps time that you came out of the shadows of The Cave into the sunlight.

Natasha Alexandra Kern
Virginia Cornue
Elizabeth Mabe
Paula Michalove
Whitehead Dormitory

Public Censure Will Harm Code

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

I can agree with the opponents of Dickson on only one point; in the past weeks student government has indeed lost prestige. However, I cannot agree that Dickson is responsible for this degradation. A reprimand is designed and intended to bring a sense of personal shame to the individual, and to him alone. It was the illegal disclosures and underhanded tactics of Dickson's opponents which brought, and continue to bring shame and degradation upon our entire student government.

When Dickson's opponents made his reprimand public, they committed the most blatant transgression in this entire affair. It is absolutely illegal to publicize the proceedings and conclusions of an Honor Council trial. In fact, we do not, and cannot legally know whether Dickson has received a reprimand.

This right to privacy is the essential basis of our Honor Code. Our Honor Code attempts to develop a personal morality among students. It is hoped that a convicted student will work out a true personal penitence and, through that, strengthen his own code. It is felt that public censure only develops defiance of false penitence, and that it is in no way conducive to the development of a personal moral code. If we now publicly censure Dickson, we will completely destroy the basis of our Honor Code.

Jeremy Thomas Monro
309 Grimes

Towing Standards

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Thank you, Mr. Robl, for that fine front page article on car-towing. You sure came right to the point and said absolutely nothing — not why the cars are towed, how many a week, or even where all the thousands of dollars go which come from the towing fines. It was just another in a long series of uninformative articles meant to take up space in the DTH.

The chill has gone up everyone's spines. Where can you park? Nowhere. If you're forced to park illegally in order not to have to walk three miles, you shake with fright all day. In most parts of the civilized world cars are towed away for two reasons:

1. they are in an accident and must be towed away for repairs.
2. they are illegally parked, i.e., liable to cause an accident.

The truly amazing thing about it all is that they distinguish between student and Chapel Hill residents. Come by fraternity court Sunday morning. The students try to park off the street and therefore they jam into fraternity court on the way to church. They constantly get towed away. But the cars parking away on the wrong side of Rosemary Street, sticking out dangerously and restricting traffic, are never touched. I thought we were getting rid of "dual standards."

The important questions are why these cars are being towed away all the time, where does all the money go, and doesn't anyone give a damn about the student and his problems anymore. Four thousand cars into two thousand parking spaces theoretically equals over $20,000 each time the towers come.

Jay Brilliant
107 Fraternity Court

Letters To The Editor

Rational Majority Advocates Pro-American Demonstration

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

In view of the recent irresponsible demonstrations, which have spread a blight across this land, condemning the Administration's stand in Viet Nam, it seems opportune if not necessary that the student body of some major university should advance a demonstration backing our Viet Nam policy.

As it stands now, a small minority of of United States student population is giving the world the impression that the American student is an irresponsible rabble rousing anarchist, easily swayed and motivated by shallow and insidious statements of the Far Left. That he is incapable of serious, rational, and coherent thought or consideration of world politics or aware of the extent and meaning of the communist threat.

It is time for the majority of the student population to shake off their apathy and show the world that the American student is first and always an American, proud of his heritage, enamored of freedom, and willing to give all for his country. The world should be made aware that this is his true image and that he is not the draft dodging dilettante which has become his stereotype.

However, it is unfortunate that those who have a rational view of the world situation are the serious students who have neither the time nor the exhibitionistic personality needed to march around carrying placards. It is, however, time for some demonstration which will allow the rational student to display his distaste for the small faction of exhibitionistic professional agitators, pseudo-humanistic ultra liberals, and their unfortunately ignorant dupes, who decry the presence of American troops in that troubled land, but see no wrong in the presence of Chinese trained, Russian armed North Viet Nam battalions in that same land.

These are the people who are quite justifiably horrified and indignant about the loss of innocent life due to American action, but who appear to approve of wholesale murder and terrorist campaigns conducted by VC in the same villages. These same people protest the American bombing of military objectives but apparently see nothing amiss in the VC bombings of cafes, bars, hospitals, and public buildings.

It is therefore time for the rational majority to express their views.

Harry A. Webb
Tom H. Ridgway
Lloyd E. Fox
Arthur F. Eidson
Frederick D. Vastine
Charles E. Twine
Walter C. Worsham
Chapel Hill

Wake Challenge

(The following letter was written to Claude Pickett, Jr., 201 Mangum, by a friend of his at Wake Forest. Claude submitted the letter to the DTH because he thought it might be interesting reading for a few other Tar Heels.)

Dear Claude,

Well, Saturday is the big day. I suppose that, considering what happened last Saturday, you Carolina students don't consider this game as a very difficult obstacle. However, I hope that you don't make the same mistake that you did against Virginia. We at Wake Forest are neither awed by nor impressed by the Tar Heels, and we will definitely not roll over and play dead when the "mighty Tar Heels(?)" enter Bowman Gray Stadium Saturday. As a matter of fact, we do not consider Carolina as tough as other teams we play such as Florida State, Maryland and Duke.

Don't forget last year, when we completely demolished a big Duke team, leaving four Duke players on stretchers in the process. Also, don't forget last year's Wake-UNC farce at Chapel Hill. You may rest assured that we haven't. That score will be evened this coming Saturday. See you then.

Bud Talley
Wake Forest College

Positive Comment

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Congratulations to Steve Lail for his front page article on Tuesday entitled "Quaker Graduate Student 'Stands Up For Decision.'" By closing with an argument opposing Coe's stand Lail suggests that perhaps he, himself, does not agree with Coe. All the more reason why his treatment of Coe as a human being with a dignity of his own and a right to be respectfully heard is so laudable.

I am thankful for this opportunity to make a comment on this subject in a positive vein.

Robert DeMaine
306 Connor

Puritan Element

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

The University of North Carolina has been plagued this year by many controversial issues that have threatened to impair it's image. However, unknown to many, we have discovered a latent threat to the liberal image which Carolina so proudly possesses.

There is, on this campus, an element of puritanism which must be cast aside. It was evident last year among the attire of many of the campus coeds. We are speaking, of course, of the hideous decorations on hidden legs. We hesitate to call them hose for they are indeed more like rattlesnake skins.

What possesses these girls to do such a foul deed? Are their legs in such poor shape that they must be hidden by these atrocities. If so, the remedy is much worse than the disease. Ladies, please cast off this element of puritanism before it destroys Carolina's true image.

Leg watchers of the Hill unite! Cast the evil eye upon these gross conceptions of beauty.

R. J. Angell
D. V. Lewis
231 Craige

Let's All Scream

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

In answer to the letter concerning cheerleading in the October 12 Daily Tar Heel, I would like to differ in opinion. Before transferring to Carolina, I was head-cheerleader at a college on the North Carolina coast. Therefore, I feel as though I have some authority to say the things I will. Soon after becoming a cheerleader, I learned that the actions of collegiate cheerleaders were kept to rather uncomplicated but exact movements. There were also fewer cheers, using chants or just a word in many cases.

True, the UNC cheerleaders differ from the ones we had in high-school, as they certainly should. Yes, the actions and cheers are smaller in number but this follows tradition too. The important thing is that the fans make the cheerleaders really worthwhile. In a school this large a few people can't do the cheering for thousands of us. The next game let's all back up the cheerleaders, show some real appreciation, because the lack of enthusiasm may have been in us, not in them.

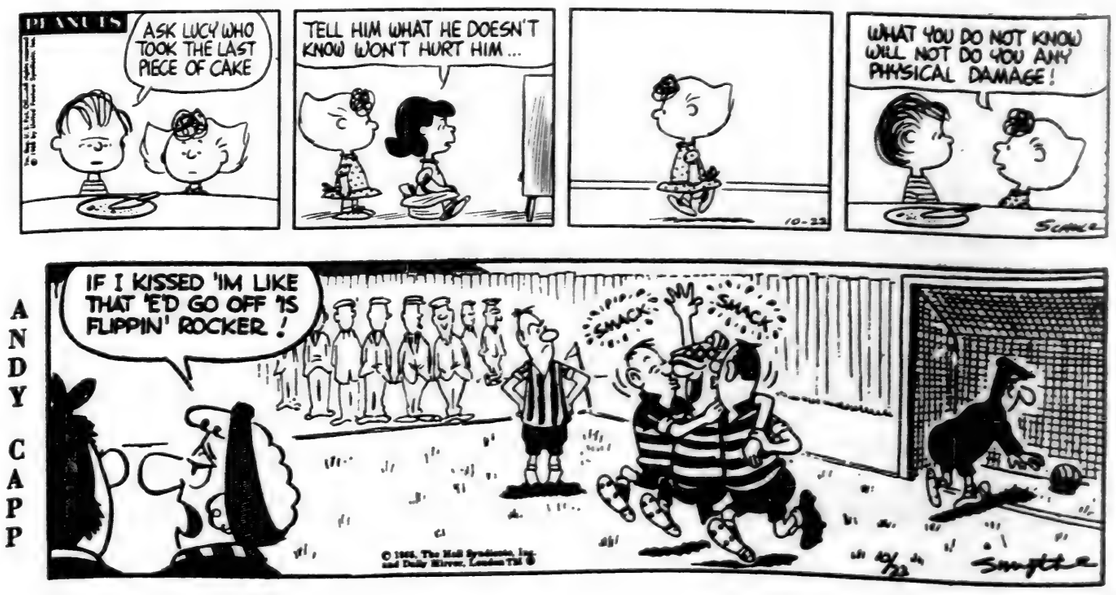
Michael Freeman
114 Graham

Barnard's Talent

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

First it was the nurses, now it's those students who don't subscribe to "Kill the enemy" commandment; why is Barnard wasting his talent in ridiculing groups of Carolina students? And why do you allow him to waste DTH space with his misguided and partisan comments? We get enough of that from you, and he should try to entertain us with some pleasant cartoons.

Kunio D. Kikuchi
401 Connor



I'M SO PROUD—
I JUST PICKED OUT A UNIQUE
GIFT FOR MY GIRL FRIEND

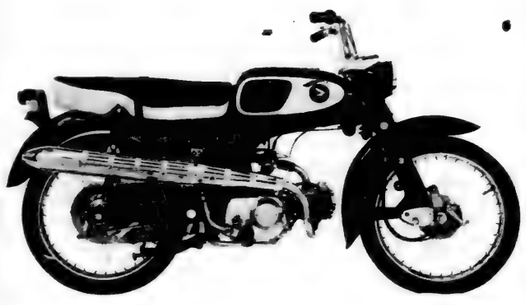
UNC
BEER MUGS
SCARFS — ANIMALS
PENNANTS
RED NIGHT SHIRTS

Ledbetter Pickard



Where you want, when you want

FOR 25c A DAY!!!

The Brand New 1966

SPORTS 65 – $323.00

Travel - On Motorcycle Co.
"Headquarters for Adventure"
504 W. Franklin St.
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Varsity
STARTS TODAY

STOP WORRYING!
HELP!
IS ON THE WAY!

The Colorful Adventures of
THE BEATLES
are more Colorful than ever...in COLOR!
EASTMANCOLOR A UNITED ARTISTS RELEASE

UNC Calendar Of Events

All Campus Caldendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date (by 10 a.m. Saturday for Sunday's DTH). Lost and Found notices will be run on Tuesday and Saturdays only.

TODAY

The Tar Heel Invitational Debate Tournament needs students to keep time for championship intercollegiate debates Thursday - Saturday. Sign up at GM Information desk or call 933-2155.

The CCUN will hold a United Nations Day Festival on Sunday, Oct. 24, from 3-5 p.m. at GM. Everyone is invited to attend. Displays and talent from various countries will be featured. Refreshments will be served.

Newcomers' Seminar on Foreign Policy at 8 p.m. in room 228, School of Public Health. Dr. Lewis Lipsitz from the Department of Political Science, will speak on "Vietnam."

The Philosophy Colloquim will hear Dr. Jon Wheatly speaking on the "Two Theories of Language," at 8 p.m. in room 213 of Caldwell Hall.

Anyone interested in a job as a paid intermural manager for Craige and Ehringhaus should come to the Intermural office in 214 of the Woollen Gym between 1-6 p.m.

The Baptist Student Union will have a supper - study program at 5:45 in the BSC Center. Dr. Hill will speak on "What Do We Do When We Do Theology?"

Hillel Foundation Sabbath Evening Services at 7 p.m.

All those interested in attending the State Newman Convention in Durham on Sat. at Woman's Campus of Duke University should call the Catholic Student Center before Sat. Morning. 942-2090.

SATURDAY

A hayride - seminar with the Miracle of Dialogue discussion led by campus intern Cliff Clack at the Baptist Student Center from 6:30 - 11:30 p.m. Cost is $2. per person.

SUNDAY

LSA supper and discussion meeting at 5:30 in the church. Topic for discussion will be "The Playboy Conception of Sex" presented by Dr. Clifford B. Reifler.

Interviews for membership in the Carolina Political Union will be held from 1-4 p.m. in the Grail Room Candidates must sign up for interviews and fill out application blanks at the desk in GM. Graduates and undergraduates are eligible.

A student forum on "A liberal view of the Book of Genesis" will be given at the University Baptist Church on Theological Questions — Two Views, which will feature a liberal view one week followed by a more conservative view on the same issue the next week. Mr. John Keith of the Temple Baptist Church in Durham will be Sunday night's speaker.

Westminister Fellowship presents "TC and TCG — Do They Exist?," a program on the role of men and women. Supper is at 5:30 p.m.

Inter - Varsity Christian Fellowship, Graduate Chapter will meet at 8 p.m. in Roland Parker III. This is a Bible study for all interested graduate students.

Newman Apostolate meeting at Chase Cafeterian in the Delta Room, at 6 p.m. The speaker will be Dr. Sam Hill, head of the UNC Religious Department.

LOST AND FOUND

Lost: one green soc. 51 book, Sociology — A sytematic Introduction. Call Dave Neilson at 968-6354.

Lost: An Angel Flight wing with the initials M. E. on the back. Call Michel Beaulieu, 205 Nurses' Dorm.

Lost: Two very important keys on a silver chain. If found, please call Gordon Fisher, 968-6562.

Found: A pair of men's heavy-framed brown glasses with clip on dark glasses in the Student Activities Fund office, 203 of GM.

Monroe Elected Dialectic Senate Head

Jerry Monro was elected president of the Dialectic Senate Wednesday night in New West Hall.

Other newly elected officers are Natasha Kern, secretary, Baxter Lenney, corrector, Charles Barwick, censor morum, and Dale Brownscomb, treasurer.

Inaugural ceremonies will be held Tues. night.

The topic for the inaugural debate will be civil disobedience today. The public is invited to attend.

The Dialectic and Philanthropic societies, established in 1795, are the oldest debate and literary societies in the nation.

The two organizations have a separate membership and set of officers, but at times meet together as the Di-Phi Senate.

STATISTICAL STUDY

Studies of 10,000 men from the Metropolitan New York area have established that heart disease is three times as common among men with high blood pressure or diabetes as among other men, says the North Carolina Heart Association.

ROOM FOR RENT

Very nicely furnished, private half-bath. Mrs. Bruce, Flemington Rd.

942-3561 or 942-5183

QUIK FOOD MART
Why Walk Blocks?
We Are a Stone's Throw From Campus
Cold Beer & Snacks
(On W. Franklin St. near Columbia St.)

SEAN CONNERY
...more dangerously alive than ever!
THE HILL

HARRY ANDREWS IAN BANNEN ALFRED LYNCH OSSIE DAVIS ROY KINNEAR JACK WATSON

NOW PLAYING
CAROLINA
Plus
LATEST NEWS

KING WILLIAM RESTAURANT

1½ Miles from Campus on 15-501 South

SPECIALIZING IN:

STEAKS CHICKEN SEAFOOD

"Choice Selection of Imported and Domestic Beverages"

All New and Modern, featuring

- Seating capacity of 300
- Spacious parking facilities
- Four private dining rooms
- Tasteful background music
- Catering facilities

Open from 8:00 a.m. 'til Midnight

SEVEN DAYS A WEEK

LITTLE BUT MIGHTY WANT ADS

FOR SALE: '61 METROPOLItan. Good condition, has given many miles of dependable service. $40©. All offers considered. Call 929-5279.

FOR SALE: '65 TEMPEST 2-dr ht, 3 months old, 7,000 miles, radio, heater, straight drive. Owner leaving country. Call 967-1028.

EXPERIENCED RADIO AND record player technician needed immediately. Full or part-time. Phone 942-3556.

DEPENDABILITY
for 26 years

WELDON'S JEWELERS
327 W. MAIN DURHAM
Student Jewelers for 26 Years

Sur-Sav
HEALTH AND BEAUTY AIDS

Oct. 22nd thru Oct. 24th

SAY HI TO A REAL SALE

Code 10 Hairdressing
Reg. 79c For 39c

CUTEX LIPSTICK 19c
Reg. 79c
POLISH 11c
Reg. 44c

VITALIS
Reg. 1.45
79c

100's — Reg. 1.39
Bufferin 1.07

Reg. 51c
Mum Cream ..39c

Reg. 1.09
Mum Spray 81c

SOFTIQUE — Reg. 1.25
Bath Oil 93c

Reg. 1.00
Ban Roll On 75c

Reg. 51c
Ban Cream 39c

60's — Reg. 98c
Exedrin 73c

IPANA — Reg. 75c
Toothpaste 57c

LISTERINE or MICRIN ONLY 58c

HEALTH & BEAUTY AIDS
You Always Save At
SUR SAV
DISCOUNT CENTER

VISIT EITHER STORE — CHAPEL HILL OR SANFORD

102 W. Franklin St. — CHAPEL HILL
Chapel Hill Store Hours
10:00 A.M. - 7:00 P.M. Each Day
Closed Sundays

108 Carthage St. — SANFORD
Sanford Store Hours
Fri. 9:00 A.M. to 9:00 P.M.
Sat. 9:00 A.M. to 6:00 P.M.
Mon. 9:00 A.M. to 6:00 P.M.

CHASE DINING HALL
OPEN DAILY

Continental Breakfast 9:00 - 11:00
Breakfast 7:00 - 9:00 Lunch 11:00 - 2:00
Dinner 5:00-7:15

FAST, PROMPT, COURTEOUS SERVICE

● STUDENT SPECIAL ●

Choice of Meat, Two Vegetables,
Rolls and Butter, Tea or Coffee . . . 50c
FRESH SALADS, HOMEMADE PIES, ROLLS and DESSERTS MADE DAILY

NEAR
Morrison, Ehringhaus, and Craig

GM PRESENTS

Some of the best representative jazz talent in the Triangle area will present an "All Star Jazz Festival" at 8 p.m. October 24 in Graham Memorial Lounge.

The "Jazz Souls," a seven piece non-professional jazz ensemble organized by Jim Hunt, decided to unite after playing together for several months at various local sessions in the Chapel Hill area. Hunt noted that the concert will bring out into the open this outstanding jazz talent which the public doesn't often get a chance to hear.

"We want to present listenable jazz which the audience and players will enjoy.

The sound of the group is modern emphasizing basic jazz and that representative of several main streams today such as West Coast which is cool and refined like Andre Previn, Jerry Mulligan and Dave Brubeck. Also included is Ray Charles and Bossa Nova, Hunt noted.

A native of Arlington, Va. Hunt is a senior math major here. He is a trumpet soloist with the Sinfonians and the UNC band as well as organizer of the Jazz Souls.

Hunt plays the Flugalhorn which, he explains, is an "old band instrument played like a trumpet with a larger bell that produces a mellow sound." It is being revised for use in modern jazz today.

A Carolina undergraduate and Dental School alumnus, Jim Crawford, plays the tenor sax for the jazz ensemble. He is a Raleigh dentist and a former Air Force Captain.

Trombonist for the group is Buddy Parker from Elizabeth City. A senior English major, Parker also plays with the Sinfonians.

On the piano is Keith McClelland, a senior political science major from New Rochelle, New York. He is music director and principal of the Sinfonians also.

On the alto sax is Bill Ammons from Burlington. He is a senior electrical engineering major at North Carolina State University.

Two members of the group hail from Raleigh including Fred Shehdan, who plays bass, and Jim Bradshaw.

Shehdan is an East Carolina College music graduate and has taught school for five years.

Bradshaw is a senior philosophy major at North Carolina State University.

According to Hunt the group plans to play the "old favorites and traditional standbys" such as "Girl from Ipanema", and Bosa Nova tunes.

Now! New Chevelle
SUPER SPORT 396

New Chevelle SS 396 Sport Coupe—with clean-sculpted all-new Body by Fisher.

by Chevrolet

Two new Super Sport beauties for '66—a hardtop and convertible —propelled by nothing less than the new Turbo-Jet 396 V8.

This remarkably efficient power plant, with aircraft-type valves, deep-breathing ports and other design advances, develops 325 hp in the standard version. And you're welcome to order more—in a 360-hp version—if you're so inclined.

Both Chevelle SS 396 models ride on a special flat-cornering chassis. A fully synchronized 3-speed transmission with floor-mounted stick shift is standard. Or you can order a 4-speed or Powerglide —also Strato-bucket front seats, center console and full SS instrumentation.

Your Chevrolet dealer's is the place to see how all this feels from behind the wheel. He's a great believer in letting the customers handle the merchandise.

CHEVROLET

See the new '66 Chevrolet, Chevelle, Chevy II, Corvair and Corvette at your dealer's

Booters Make It Five In A Row

Pfeiffer Goes Down, 5-2

By SANDY TREADWELL
DTH Sports Writer

Yesterday Pfeiffer College met — and lost to — the Tar Heel soccer squad on UNC's home field.

The crowd, which sat on the old concrete stands of Fetzer Field choked a number of times. All through the first half and into the opening minutes of the second it looked as though the booters' undefeated season might be in peril.

Pfeiffer put up a tremendous show against North Carolina and trailed at the end of the first half only 2-1. UNC finally won it, 5-2.

"All through the opening half we had trouble moving the ball," Gordy Cadwgan explained. "They were a better team than we thought.

"Pfeiffer had two big attackmen from Brazil. Onee of them chalked up seven goals in a game against St. Andrews," he said.

The game's first goal was scored by Carolina's co-captain, Drew Murphy. He took a ball headed by John Loud and pounded it past the Pfeiffer goalie. Five minutes later Drew's knee was injured and he was taken out of action and into the whirlpool.

UNC's second goal came late in the half. Loud and Bronson Van Wyck put together a beautiful give and go pattern. The goalie dove but Loud's firm shot was already sitting in the left hand corner of the net.

Pfeiffer scored their first goal on a penalty kick.

The only score in the third period came off of Van Wyck's agile foot.

A Pfeiffer player tripped Loud to set it up. Jimmy Johnson opened the fourth period with a successful penalty kick attempt. The score was now UNC 4, Pfeiffer, 1.

After a scramble by the Pfeiffer goal Morris Reider took a beautiful pass from Cadwgan and boomed the ball into the goal.

The game ended on a low note as a Pfeiffer player dribbled past four Tar Heels for their second and final score.

The Tar Heels played better ball in the second half, the team's play was riddled by passing difficulties.

Carolina has a tough schedule coming up. They fade Belmont Abbey on Monday. The next day they climb into a bus and meet Virginia Wednesday afternoon.

"It'll be some time before we have another practice," Coach Marvin Allen said. "From here on out the games are going to get rugged."

The biggest games in the future are Maryland, Navy and Trenton State.

The Tar Heels had their toughest game of the season yesterday — and from now on in they're going to get tougher.

Marvin Allen is now well into his 17th year as Carolina's head soccer coach. His victories now add up to 97. He wants three more wins, and he wants them all by the end of next week.

Pfeiffer controlled the ball here, but lost the game 5-2.

CAR WASH

A car wash will be sponsored by Pharmacy students Saturday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Institute of Pharmacy (across from O'Boy).

The cost is one dollar per car.

State Vs. Tin Can Trial To Commence

By SANDY TREADWELL
DTH Sports Writer

"Thirty days behind bars for excessive parking tickets."

A student broke down in tears and stumoled to the clerk.

The young judge smile triumphantly. "Now you will know better than to let them give you a T parking sticker," he laughed.

An old man rose to speak. "The case is closed. The trial of the state versus the Tin Can will not commence."

A wave of people swept through the oak doors and into the courtroom, grabbing at at vacant seats.

Many of them were dressed vacant seats.
tight tan pants. These were the gallery. They sat down hurriedly and broke into an excited chatter.

The trial that was about to commence was the most eagerly awaited in recent history. They had cut Logic 21 and Math 2 and lined up outside the courthouse for days in advance.

One of the people in the gallery turned to me. "I haven't had a bite to eat in over 44 hours," he said while taking mouthfuls out of his alpaca. "Boy, this is sure worth it. Hey, look. Here come the witnesses."

The gallery borke into spontaneous applause as a strange bunch of characters filed into the room.

They were caught by a group of reporters who descended upon them like a cloud of locusts. The courtroom exploded with the pops of flashbulbs.

"They're certainly the most colorful witnesses I've ever seen," an old woman whispered.

Some bore Olympic weights. They were dressed sneakers and their T shirts bulged with overdeveloped muscles. With jungle grunts they heaved the weights into one corner of the room.

Next came the wrestlers. They crowded around Sam Barnes, the father image. "Two laps," Barnes ordered, and the hooded figures with blue tights jogged around the room.

Jim Hickey passed through the doors with his helmeted gladiators.

The footballers commenced with a chorus of hisses as Walter Rabb marched in with his treasured pitchers.

The star witnesses for the defense ran into the room. These were the track men.

The old man again rose to speak and the courtroom became silent. "The court will rise."

A gray haired creature in flowing black robes marched triumphantly up some steps at the front of the room and placed himself down behind an oak paneled desk. He was the oldest judge in the state, and was regarded as the wisest.

The sound of his gavel echoed around the room.

"Bring in the defendant," the judge ordered.

A huge model of the tin can was then escorted to the dock by several Pinkerton security officers.

A series of hisses and cheers accompanied the entrance.

"Silence in the court," the robed figure commanded. "The trial will now begin."

To be continued.

"Beat Somebody" Is Deac Cry

More than the playing field will be changed when North Carolina tangles with Wake Forest in Winston-Salem tomorrow.

The Deacons of ACC-Coach of the Year Bill Tate hit the Kenan Stadium turf last season with "BEAT CAROLINA" on the backs of their white and black jerseys.

Their threat was no joking matter then. Wake Forest had won two straight before meeting UNC — beating Virginia 31-21 and Virginia Tech 38-21.

But Tar Heels were not dismayed. They romped the Deacons 23-0 — the worst Wake Forest defeat of the season.

The picture is quite different this season for the Deacons. Wake can claim only one victory in five games. Losses have been to Virginia Tech, N. C. State, Maryland and South Carolina. A 7-0 victory over Vanderbilt was the only success.

"We are certainly not feeling sorry for ourselves," Tate said. "We realize we must regroup our forces and get ready for a real good North Carolina team.

"We are determined to do better over the second half of the season," he added. "We had only one bad game and that was the one against South Carolina. We know we are capable of playing better than we have."

If the Deacons wear a sign on the back of their jerseys this time it ought to be something more appropriate — like "BEAT SOMEBODY." Because this year Wake Forest can't be particular. They'll accept any victim, especially Tar Heels.

Lose 30 Bucks?

Somebody is in for a bit of good luck — that is, if he is wise enough to read this notice completely through. This somebody, you see, is out 30 bucks.

There is a way he can get it back, if he reads on.

All he has to do is stop by the Athletic Ticket Office. That's where the six Georgia tickets he lost are waiting patiently for him to pick them up.

Time runneth out. . . . Have you nicked off your dusty treasure in the Old Book Week display at the Intimate?

ATO Blue Beats Chi Psi In Defensive Struggle

ATO Blue II scored a win over Chi Psi in overtime in Thursday's top intramural football game. With the score 0-0 at the end of the game, ATO moved the ball farther in the extra period and picked up the win.

The ZBT Zebes defeated SAE Blue, 12-6 on TD's by Eddie Natt and Bobby Schneider. Bob Horner scored for SAE.

TD's by J. Padgett and B. Wood paced the Beta Buckers over DU Blue I, 17-7.

Zete I got touchdowns from Lanny Harer, who had two, and Wallace Weeks in a 19-0 win over the Phi Kap Sig Skulls.

John Pope and Lane Anderson scored two TD's each and led SAE Blue I over DKE White, 26-12.

The Phi Delt Whites bombed Phi Delta Chi, 26-0; Sigma Nu beat the Phi Gam Whiteowls 15-6 on TD's by Jeff Parker and Roger Bats, 31-0.

On Wednesday the unbeaten Everett Rogah blasted the Aycock Aardwolves, 31-6; the Parker Pretzels were twisted by the Teague Trojans, 39-0; Lewis Red romped over the Graham Climbers 34-0 and the Graham Bells downed the Lewis White team 19-14.

'Beefeaters' Haven'
ANGUS BARN ltd
Raleigh-Durham Highway
Ph. 787-3505
FEEDING TIMES: MONDAY Thru FRIDAY 5:30 P.M. - 11:30 P.M.
SATURDAYS (During Football Season) 4:30 P.M. - 11:30 P.M.
SUNDAYS 5:30 P.M. - 10:00 P.M.

CASUAL AGREEMENT

Such is the Proprietor's goal, in the matter of sports coats. Agreement between rich fabric, hearty pattern, natural shoulder cut and the finest of tailoring. His success in this endeavor may be witnessed at first hand on the premises.

Town & Campus

There's no time like the present to stock your wardrobe to accompany the whirlwind activities of homecoming weekend. From the most casual sportswear to the dressiest of suits, THE HUB is ready, willing, and able to make your social calendar a real success. An experienced tailor guaranteed a perfect fit in:

SUITS: Muted plaids, solids, herringbones, and chalk stripes — in wools and wool blends, with vests available . . . from 59.95

SPORT COATS: in an exciting array of plaids, solids, and herringbones, plus a large selection of blazers . . . from 29.95

SWEATERS: Cashmere, alpaca, wool — name your preference and we're sure to have it in a color that will please . . . from 12.95

SHIRTS: The largest collection in the East, featuring the very latest stripes and colors. . . . from 5.95

THE HUB OF CHAPEL HILL

OPEN ROAD INC.
HONDA
This Week's Specials:
New 1965 Honda
Scrambler 250cc
Reg. $727 Now $677
New 1965 Honda
Hawk 250cc
Reg. $677 Now $627
New 1966 Honda
Dream Touring
Reg. $602 Now $557
New 1965 Gilera
Sport 125
Reg. $549 Now $498
Large Assortment of
New and Used Cycles and Scooters from $95
NO MONEY DOWN
EASY TERMS
Bring this ad for $25 off
on any used 150 or 160cc
Honda
616 W. Chapel Hill St.
DURHAM — 682-8228
Open Road Inc.
Where Service Comes First

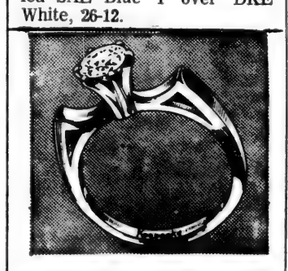
Traditionalist in the Contemporary Manner

This modified traditional model with center vent is available in a wide selection of worsteds, tweeds and shetlands in the season's newest colorings. Both in suits and sport coats.

This is clothing with a custom-made look that is always in good taste.

Sport Coats from 35.00
Suits from 59.95

Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin St.



A Wide Selection
Individual Terms
T. L. KEMP Jewelry
135 East Franklin
942-1331

TODAY — TUES.
"A MARVEL! ONE OF THE MADDEST MOVIES EVER MADE!" —N. Y. World-Telegram & Sun
"IT DAZZLES!" —N. Y. Times
"THE KNACK ... and how to get it"

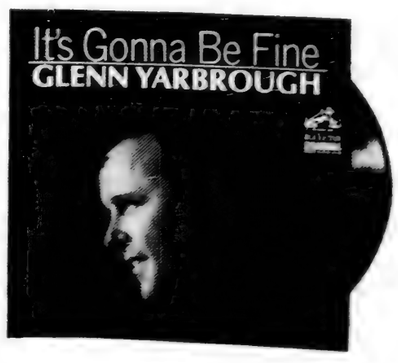
STARRING RITA TUSHINGHAM
BEST PICTURE CANNES FILM FESTIVAL
THIS PICTURE IS RECOMMENDED FOR ADULTS ONLY
Shorts: "THE PINK PHINK" and "THE PEACHES"
1:25, 3:19, 5:13, 7:08 & 9:03
RIALTO, Durham

ARROWHEAD GOLF CLUB
invites you to play on spacious bent grass green and lush bermuda fairways. A true championship golf course.
Green fees 1.50—Mon. thru Fri.
2.50—Holidays, Sat. & Sun.
1.00—After 3:00
Mon. thru Fri.
Exit on Mebane Oaks Rd. from Interstate 85

LUNCH from 1.10 to 1.65
DINNER from 1.75 to 5.50
Featuring U. S. Choice Steaks,
Back Fin Lump Crabmeat,
Baked Country Cured Ham
Breast of Young Chicken
Six attractive dining rooms of varying size and decor afford flexible facilities for serving
BANQUETS AND RECEPTIONS
Recommended by Mobile Travel Guide
Best of Hillsway
Blair House
Durham-Chapel Hill Boulevard
Tel. 489-9128

ONE MAN SHOW
GLENN YARBROUGH

When Glenn Yarbrough sings, the room vibrates with pulsating excitement. This new album is a superb display of his ability to sing any kind of song and make it seem as if it were composed just for him. It's a complete evening's entertainment with twelve different numbers including the title song plus "Ring of Bright Water," "An Island of the Mind," "Down in the Jungle," "Sometimes," "Never Let Her Go" and "Half a World Away." Sit back in the best seat in the house and treat yourself to a really great show.



RCA VICTOR

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

'The Victors'

Tonight's free flick is "The Victors." This Carl Foreman-directed epic stars, among others, George Hamilton and Elke Sommer. The moral is that war has no victors, only survivors.

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Vol. 74, No. 34 | CHAPEL HILL NORTH CAROLINA SATURDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1965 | Founded February 23, 1893.

Cartoon

DTH cartoonist today makes an attempt to bridge the gap recently created between himself and some of his readers. See his offering, page two .

Legislature Votes Against Establishing Radio Board

By JOHN GREEBACKER
DTH Political Writer

Campus radio suffered a serious setback Thursday night when Student Legislature voted 19-16 against a bill proposing establishment of a campus radio board of directors.

The defeat was the first vote taken on a campus radio proposal by SL, and it defied the results of a campus-wide referendum held on the issue October 5.

Students voted 3,301 to 1,099 in favor of the radio's establishment in the referendum.

The key organizational bill, one of two pieces of legislation designed to set up a non-commercial carrier current radio system on campus, was defeated by a bi - partisan vote of the body.

Campus radio's final chance for passage will come when the radio system's $35,000 appropriation bill clears the finance committee and is sent to the floor of the legislature.

Hope for reconsideration and passage of the organizational bill was generated by pro-radio forces who are relying on support from a majority of the 15 legislators absent from Thursday's session.

Campus carrier current radio is a means of transmitting a low power AM radio signal through existing power lines of a building, thus allowing the occupants to hear programming on their AM radios from within a five mile radius of more than 50 feet from the building.

Music and news of campus interest would be broadcast within a five mile radium of Chapel Hill by a five - watt FM educational station operated by students.

Transformers in each University residence hall would convert the FM signal to AM and send it through the power lines.

Radio's Critics

Critics of campus radio attacked its expense and the lack of AM programming for off-campus areas such as sorority and fraternity houses.

"A thousand referendums couldn't change my vote on this issue," Ways and Means Committee Chairman Sandy Hobgood (SP) told the body before voting against the bill.

"We may well spend $35,000 the first year to establish and operate campus radio," Hobgood said. "Thereafter we would spend $11,000 for more each year to operate it.

"I say we could put $35,000 into the Fine Arts Festival and make people all over the country know where Carolina is," he said.

Hobgood said the value of instantaneous news flashes to the student body was not as great as radio supporters claim, and told the legislature the campus was not "hurting" for music.

"The referendum is not binding on Student Legislature," he said. "We do not have to follow the desires of 3,301 students at UNC."

Hobgood said any but "the most reactionary forces" would approve the October 5 referendum as it was worded.

"If we approve this legislation," he said, "I think it can be truthfully said that, 'Never was so much spent by so few for so little.' "

University Party Floor Leader George Ingram criticized Hobgood's reasoning and asked, "Why don't we abolish the Yack and the Daily Tar Heel and put the money into a big speaker program?

"That would help make Carolina well known nationally, too," he said.

"We should be less concerned with what kind of image we have in the nation than we are with what sort of student this University produces," Ingram said.

Kathy Cauble (UP) opposed the bill and told the body campus radio was a failure at East Carolina College, which she attended before coming to UNC.

"I do not feel personally mandated by my constituents or by the student body to vote for this legislation," she said.

"Eight thousand students were so apathetic that they did not even go to the polls," Miss Cauble said in reference to the referendum.

"I don't feel the approval of one fourth of the student body permits an expenditure of this size."

She called upon SL to spend the money for "more pressing needs."

"Less than 5,000 people voted in the spring election for president of the student body," Ingram told her. "Do you think that vote should have been disregarded?"

"I don't think I should answer that question at this time," Miss Cauble answered.

The roll call vote on the bill came after numerous corrections had been made on its eight pages of provisions and the body had concluded all argumentation on its wording.

Dickson Speaks Out

In a statement issued yesterday, Student Body President Paul Dickson announced he was "greatly disturbed" by the defeat of the radio bill.

"While I feel that those who voted against the proposal did so with the best motives in mind," Dickson said, "I be-

(Continued on Page 3)

Past Klan Chaplain Tells Of Threat Against His Life

WASHINGTON (AP)—A former Ku Klux Klan chaplain told Congressmen yesterday he got a thinly disguised threat against his life after he quit the Klan and appeared on a national television program.

Earlier another Klansman, Joseph G. DuBois, of Goldsboro, resigned from the Klan while he sat in the witness chair before the House Committee on Un-American Activities. He said he places God and country above Klan vows.

The two dramatic scenes brought the committee's Klan hearings to life after three days of listening to monotonous refusals to answer questions by top Klan leaders, including Imperial Wizard Robert M. Shelton.

The chaplain, the Rev. Roy Woodle, a onetime bricklayer from Lexington, N. C., gave his testimony in staccato fashion, using the colorful rural turns of speech with which he used to exhort Klan rallies in North Carolina.

The most dramatic moment came when he was asked if he was threatened with bodily harm after he quit the Klan five weeks ago.

"I don't know if it is bodily harm," Woodle said. "But he said he had the authority to do away with me." Nervous laughter swept the room, in which chairman Edwin E. Willis, D-La., joined.

Then the minister was asked who did the threatening. He said it was Boyd Hamby and turning to the audience added, "He's the fella sitting back there with the mustache."

"No Comment"

Hamby, a tall, dark man with a black mustache, told a reporter "I have no comment." He was then called to the stand and declined to answer all questions about whether he knew Woodle, had telephoned him or had anything to do with the burning of a cross on the clergyman's lawn the night after the preacher appeared on a CBS television program about the Klan.

Hamby was identified by committee investigators as the "Grand Nighthawk" of the North Carolina realm of the Klan. They said it was his job to handle cross-burnings and "other things" for the Klan.

Willis, speaking to Hamby, said the minister "made that statement with you in the room . . . now is the time for you to deny that statement."

If Hamby di ddeny it, Willis went on, there would be a clear contradiction and "I wouldn't hesitate to send the record to the Department of Justice for appropriate action for perjury."

But Hamby refused, citing Constitutional guarantees against possible self-incrimination.

Woodle, 41, told of speaking at Klan rallies as a Grand Kludd, or chaplain, for 10 months.

But lately, he said, certain Klansmen began circulating stories that he was an agent of the Federal government and that the government had paid for his house and car.

"They said I was planted in the outfit to tear it up, and I never spoke to a government man until I came before this committee today," the witness said.

(Continued on Page 3)

'Bad' Signatures Found On Petition

Eighteen names attached to the recall petition are "questionable," according to Alvin Tyndall, chairman of the elections board.

He added, however, that he has checked only through the C's, so that many more names may be questioned.

Tyndall said yesterday only two names so far have been found to be fake, but at least 18 of them will have to be double checked. However, he added that this does not mean these names will be disqualified.

He is using the official enrollment list to check the petition. As of 4 p.m. yesterday his staff had checked through the C's, he said.

Tyndall refused to predict when the petition would be presented to Paul Dickson, student body president, but said Dickson will decide whether the petition is "in order."

There is a question of interpretation whether any more names would be accepted for the recall petition. The student constitution does not say when no more names can be accepted.

Tyndall said he is in possession of the "entire" petition. He indicated that no more names would be accepted, but added that a constitutional committee might have to rule if more names are submitted.

The petition demands a recall election for the office of president of the student body president. Tyndall said 1,896 names are on the petition and 1,863 are needed.

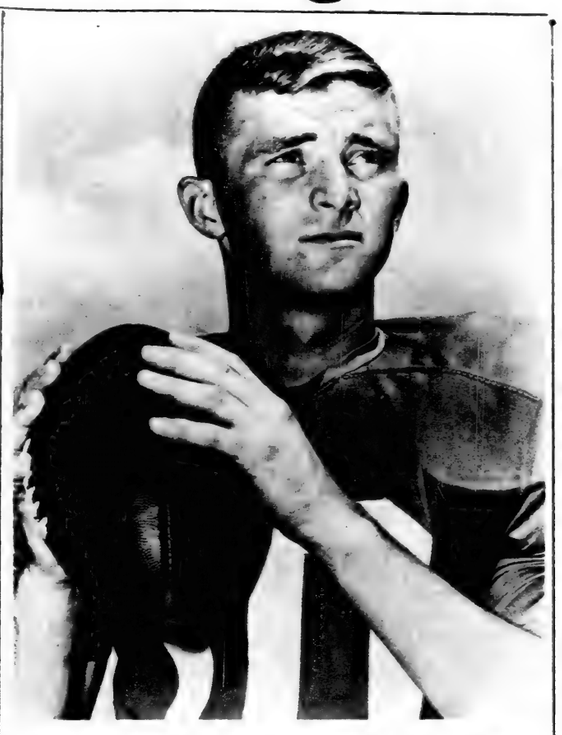
Honor Council Gives Acquittal

A student accused of lying to a campus policeman was found not guilty by the Men's Honor Council Thursday night.

The student had taken a telephone from his old dormitory room to his apartment, where he had the telephone company install it. He had previously paid all service charges to the company and said he hoped that by moving it himself, he would be able to speed up the connection.

A campus officer questioned the student about his action and specifically asked about the ownership of the telephone unit itself.

The boy claimed it was his, referring to his present possession and not to ownership. The officer understood him to mean ownership. The council felt the charge arose from a misunderstanding between the two concerning terms, and that the boy had no intent to lie.



DANNY TALBOTT will direct the Tar Heel offense against Wake Forest in Winston-Salem today. The junior quarterback has been an effective passer, runner, and place kicker for UNC this season. See page four for details on the game.

ROLL CALL

The student legislators who voted against the campus radio bill Thursday night were:

Dwight Allen (SP)	Don Johnson (SP)
Ellen Allen (UP)	Steve Jolly (SP)
Hugh Blackwell (SP)	Bryan McCoy (SP)
Jim Brame (SP)	Don McPhaul (UP)
Kathy Cauble (UP)	Jom Robinson (UP)
Clark Crampton (UP)	Dave Rowe (UP)
Miriam Dorsey (SP)	Alexa Smith (SP)
Gail Feik (SP)	Leon Soloman (UP)
Sandy Hobgood (SP)	Charlie Morgan (SP)

Those in favor of the bill were:

Roger Davis (IND)	Jim Little (SP)
Henry Skinner (IND)	Bill Long (SP)
John Strickland (UP)	Frank Longest (SP)
Bill Scott (UP)	Steve Hockfield (SP)
Janice Newton (SP)	George Ingram (UP)
Teddy O'Toole (UP)	Tony Ibins (SP)
Bert O'Neil (SP)	Susan Barber (UP)
Bill Purdy (UP)	Elaine Carbson (SP)

The members absent at the time of the vote were:

Anne Belcher (SP)
Julian Busby (UP)	Jerry Wagner (SP)
Piggy Potter (UP)	Craig Wardlen (UP)
Carole Southerland (UP)	Louisa Wilson (UP)

The six members absent from the session were:

Cliff Baggert (UP)	Joe Chandler (SP)
Hugh Hallsill (SP)	Don Wilson (SP)
Sharon Rose (SP)	De Halen Cleaver (AP)

Wilkins Found Innocent In Civil Rights Murder

HAYNEVILLE, Ala. (AP)—A young Ku Klux Klansman was acquitted yesterday of the slaying of a white civil rights worker. The jury reported after deliberating one hour and 45 minutes.

The Klansman, Collie Leroy Wilkins, Jr., 21-year-old Fairfield, Ala., auto mechanic, left the courtroom without commenting on the verdict. He smiled broadly and puffed rapidly on a cigarette.

Outside the courtroom he climbed into a late-model automobile and drove away after half a dozen of his friends, most of them husky men, leaned across the hood and blocked the windshield and the side windows to keep photographers from getting Wilkins' picture.

His parents also were in the car. His father, wiry, grey-haired Collie Wilkins, Sr., held a hat in front of face to keep from being photographed.

The courtroom crowd applauded noisily when the jury's verdict, acquitting the young crew-cut Klansman of the first degree murder charge in the killing of Mrs. Viola Liuzzo, 39, of Detroit last March 25, was read by the circuit clerk, Mrs. Kelly Coleman.

Atty. Gen. Richmond Flowers, who prosecuted Wilkins, said two other Klan members, also indicted for the Liuzzo slaying, will be tried despite the acquittal of the first de-

The Klansmen still awaiting trial are Eugene Thomas, 42, a Bessemer, Ala., steel company employe, and William Orville Eaton, 41, a retired steel worker also of Bessemer.

Thomas and Eaton were both in the courtroom. Eaton grinned with obvious relief and slapped the defense attorney's young son on the back as they walked out of the courtroom.

Flowers told newsmen "We prosecuted the best we could. The case was defended ably. We have no alternative but to abide by the decision of the jury."

Wilkins wore a black suit, dark tie and white shirt. At times his joy at the acquittal broke the smile on his face into a wide grin.

His attorney, former Birmingham Mayor Arthur J. Hanes, told newsmen he was "very grateful to you for your coverage of the trial."

The attorney told the newsmen that he had said from the outset that "I would have no part in having any organization or group or ideology on trial, that I insisted that Wilkins be tried as an indivjdual on the merits of the case.

"We had a fair judge and a good jury. I think that from the evidence, not only was the verdict justifiable but the evidence demanded this verdict in any courtroom in this country, in New York or Boston or Philadelphia or Kansas City."

It Took Strong Hands To Hold Back Mavericks

It took Dean of Men William Long and Campus Security Chief Arthur Beaumont to "hold back" Maverick House residents from storming Morrison residence college to retrieve their Victory Gong, according to Craige Residence Hall President Ed McMahan.

McMahan said yesterday there was "almost a total war between the two houses" because of the gong incident.

He made the following statement to the DTH:

"I would like it know that Maverick House was not embarrassed as was alleged by the residents of Morrison in yesterday's DTH. We knew the gong was stolen only as an act of immaturity and envy.

"Upon the request of Dean Long and Chief Beaumont, we sought no direct retailiatory action. We tried to discuss maturely the situation with Morrison's administration but found little cooperation from all echelons.

Campus Affairs Committees Set

The Campus Affairs Committee has been divided into four sub-committees to handle its work for the rest of the year.

The four committee members who have been appointed to sub - committee chairmanships are George Teague, Steve Hildenbrand, John Neely and Edward Hockfield.

Members of sub - committee A are: Garnett Smith, Zack Winston, Elaine Purdie, Susan Warren, Johnny Turner, Nita Wilkinson, Tony Gore, Ginney Waden, Joe Ely and David Simerly.

Sub - committee B includes: Jane Dodson, Charlie Hinton, Charlie Mercer, Pete Helebash, Brian Ray, Bill Davis, Sam Seldon, Bill Bullock, Carl Johnson and Tom Cannon.

Sub - committee C includes: Ray Snipes Sol Klooze, Robert Little, Mike League, Robert Read, Steve Hope, Francis Kelly, Marion Redd and John Harrison.

Sub - committee D includes: Kenneth Day, Sarah Mendelson, Bob Enten, Lloyd Simon, Chip Brethren, Amanda Davey, Sarah Nash, Mike Zimmerman, George Tennille and Suzie Warren.

CCUN Plans Big Weekend

A talent show and a display of items from foreign countries will highlight tomorrow's UN Day celebration.

The program, sponsored by the Carolina Council on the United Nations, honors the 10th anniversary of the founding of the UN and kicks off United Nations Week, which runs through Thursday.

The program will last from 3 to 5 p.m. Tables with the displays will be set up on the GM porch. The talent show, presenting talent from both the United States and foreign countries, will be held inside. It will begin about 3:30 and last about an hour.

Susan Cantor, chairman of the CCUN subcommittee on UN Day, points out that the program will also present an opportunity for discussion between Americans and foreign students. "We hope foreign students will wear their native costumes," she said.

Refreshments will be served.

MUM'S THE WORD — Patricia Rumley has a secret and only time will tell. Watch for further developments.

A Long Four Minutes For Rinaldi

By ED FREAKLEY
DTH Staff Writer

HILLSBOROUGH — The past two weeks had been long and trying on Frank Joseph Rinaldi. But the four minutes that elapsed between 10:41 Thursday night when the jury came back into the court room and 10:45 when the foreman stood and, looking straight into Rinaldi's eyes, said, "We find the defendant not guilty," will be the longest time of his life.

For the past 14 months Rinaldi had lived behind bars, wearing the brand of "wife killer." Now he is free from his living hell and able to walk the streets as any other man.

The jury left the court room at 2:05 p.m. for the next 8 hours and 36 minutes they reviewed the evidence.

Four Choices

In his charge Judge Fountain told them they had four choices to make: first degree murder, death; first degree murder, mercy, which would mean life imprisonment; second degree murder; or acquittal.

In his final argument before the jury Thursday morning Solicitor Thomas Cooper asked the jury to find Rinaldi guilty of first degree murder with a sentence of mercy or second degree murder. Following the acquittal Cooper said "I am disappointed in the jury verdict, but I never quarrel with a verdict.

Chapel Hill Police Chief William Blake said yesterday he did not know whether the case would be reopened or not.

During the long wait for the jury to return with its verdict Rinaldi talked with friends and occasionally smiled. But there were moments when he would sit silently with a blank look on his face.

Rinaldi's Reaction

After the verdict the filled courtroom turned into chaos. Rinaldi turned to his father saying, "It's over Pa. It's over." His brother Paul embraced the defendant and then slumped in a chair crying.

Rinaldi, tears in his eyes, embraced each of his attorneys — Gordon Battle, Barry Winston and Victory Bryant — and then he turned to many of his supporters who had been in the courtroom since the beginning.

He then pushed his way to a telephone where he called his mother and said two words, "Not Guilty!"

Going Home

Rinaldi said he is going to go home to Waterbury, Conn., but plans to return to Chapel Hill. "I am grateful to the people of Orange County for recognizing the truth when they hear it," Rinaldi said.

His brother tried to say the press was biased in reporting the trial but Rinaldi stopped him.

Frank Rinaldi was convicted last Nov. 18 for the murder of his wife Lucille in their Chapel Hill apartment Christmas Eve day 1963. He was serving a sentence of life imprisonment until the North Carolina Supreme Court ordered a new trial this summer after finding that certain evidence introduced by the state in the first trial was incompetent and that Judge Raymond Mallard erred in admitting it.

His second trial began Monday, Oct. 11, before a special session of the Orange County Criminal Court presided over by Judge George M. Fountain.

The first three days of the trial were spent selecting the jury. Because of the great amount of publicity many prospective jurors had formed opinions and said they felt they could not render a fair decision.

Special Venire

A special venire had to be called to select the jury of eight men and four women. Two alternates were also selected because the trial was going to last for a longer than usual period. Four members of the jury were Negroes, two men and two women.

And then it began. The state opened its case on Thursday morning. The prosecution built around the fact that Rinaldi, a former UNC graduate instructor, had a $20,000 double indemnity policy on his wife.

A Negro waiter, Alfred Foushee, testified that 36-year-old Rinaldi had tried to hire him at least "a dozen times" to kill his wife.

A Chapel Hill police officer told the court that Rinaldi said to him on the night of his arrest, "How can you stand to sit next to me after what I've done?" This evidence was not introduced at the first trial.

Defense Evidence

Early this week the defense presented its evidence. They showed that the time of death occurred between 10 a.m. and noon and then a string of witnesses went to the stand and told of seeing Rinaldi and John Sipp, a Chapel Hill insurance agent, in Durham and at Eastgate Shopping Center between 9 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. on the day of the murder.

Also introduced was a letter written by Mrs. Rinaldi on the morning of the murder. She told of how happy she and her husband were and said, "This Christmas is all we hoped it would be."

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of the Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. Letters and columns, covering a wide range of views, reflect the personal opinions of their authors.

ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR
JACK HARRINGTON, BUSINESS MANAGER

DTH Editor Ernie McCrary is in the infirmary. During his absence the associate editor will serve as acting editor. Expressions of opinion appearing in this column do not necessarily reflect the views of the editor.

The Non-Grad Yack

Since protest and anti-discrimination are all the rage now, it seems an appropriate time to register a grievance concerning the Yackety Yack and the disparity in its treatment of undergraduate and graduate students.

As the situation now stands, undergraduates pay an activities fee of $8.56 per semester. Graduates pay $7.56. One-third of each student's fee goes directly to Graham Memorial. The other two-thirds go to Student Government, which appropriates money for activities out of the lump sum of all student fees. No given part of anyone's fee is earmarked for any given activity, including the Yack.

Of all the Student Government services available to both undergraduates and graduates, there seems to be disparity only with regard to the Yack. The graduates don't get their pictures in the Yack and they don't legally receive a yearbook at the end of the school year. The graduates receiving books in the recent past got them only because many undergraduates failed to pick up their Yacks.

Many graduates are under the impression that they are paying for something they're not getting, but there's no way of proving whether this is true or false. The only evidence is the sixty-six cent difference in fees going to Student Government, and the Yacks surely cost more than sixty-six cents per student.

We called the Yack office to get their view on why graduates were not receiving the same service as undergraduates. A sweet young thing on the phone consulted a voice in the background and then said, "That's the way it's always been."

On the contrary. Graduates have been included in the Carolina yearbook from at least as far back as 1933 to as recently as 1961.

Hugh Blackwell, chairman of both the publications board and the Student Legislature's finance committee, is planning on doing something about this situation. He says that unless he changes his mind, he will soon propose a flat fee for all students, all of whom will then be eligible to receive the same general services, which will include the Yack, special services, such as money needed to run the men's residence colleges, will be paid for by those who receive the benefits.

We hope Blackwell will see fit not to change his mind and will use his considerable influence to reconcile a sixty-six cent disparity.

John H. Jennrich
Associate Editor

How Noble The Nobel?

The Greensboro Daily News

The Nobel prize for literature often goes to a natural. Thomas Mann was a natural; so were William Faulkner and the late Sir Winston Churchill. In other years, it is as much a comment on the state of mind of the Swedish academy as it is an obvious recognition of superlative literary attainment.

This is one of the latter years.

The prize will go, December 10, to Mikhail Sholokhov, who published the greater part of his great work on Russian Cossacks more than 25 years ago. Mr. Sholokhov is also the writer who once said, "I am first and foremost a Communist; only thereafter am I a writer" — a credo whose aesthetic novelty may be measured by the difficulty of imagining such a comment from a Faulkner, a Mann or a Churchill. "I am a Tory first; only thereafter am I a writer"? No; not likely.

Comrade Sholokhov, it must be admitted, is an exception to the dreary ideologues who call the official literary tune in Moscow. His trilogy, And Quiet Flows The Don is, one is told, a very powerful evocation of the traditional Russian themes of gusto for life, violence, self-scrutiny, endurance. That is to say that Sholokhov has managed to keep his politics, which are officially au courant, and his novels, which are traditional, well separated. For a first-rate artist, that is the requirement as yet in Russia, where the mid-Victorian prudery and hum-drum solicitude for the glorious proletariat of "socialist realism" remain the reigning aesthetic.

It will not escape comment, of course, that Sholokhov is getting, with official approval, the prize which Boris Pasternak in 1958 was compelled to refuse. At the time Sholokhov joined the chorus of vilification against Pasternak and his Dr. Zhivago, which brilliant novel committed the artistic treason of being not so much "wrongthinking" as non-political. It featured men and women who were too busy being human to think very much about politics, and in the ideological seas of the Soviet Union such people are very unnatural — and unacceptable — fish.

The scribes and pharisees of Leninism who polished off Boris Pasternak are still busy, one gathers; for just as it was announced from Stockholm that Sholokhov would receive the Nobel, it was reported from Moscow that a writer suspected of satiriizng "socialist realism" has been taken into custody. One window is opened; another is slammed. Too much fresh air, it seems, might produce such a sneeze as to blow away the whole aesthetic nightmare of "socialist realism."

In Hopes Of Not Offending Anyone . . .

John Greenbacker

Recall Election Will Involve Two Groups Of Opponents And A Tired Student Body

For ever a month now, students of this university have been bombarded with the charges, countercharges and petitions which are the stepchildren of the Dickson controversy.

Those who wish to see Paul Dickson out of office have taken the first major step towards attaining that goal by completing a petition which demands a recall election for the student body presidency.

As Dickson's supporters and Student Party associates well know, there are undoubtably a good many names on the petition which are fraudulent. There seems to be a conscientious campaign in some quarters to see the petition disqualified.

This, unfortunately, is a rather pathetic rear guard action, for even if the Attorney General's office disqualifies 30 or so names from the petition, its backers will only go out and scrape up more signatures.

The recall election will be held, and the toils and tribulations of a hard and nasty campaign will plague the campus.

Dickson's opponents fall roughly into two categories, those who stand to gain politically from his recall and those who firmly believe his administration will be bad for student government and the University.

It is doubtful that the recall petition would have been completed in the time it was without the help of skillful organizers within the University Party.

Like most politicians in the same situation, they would like to gain control of the SG executive branch and discredit the opposition party and its leader at the same time.

By running an attractive candidate such as Senior Class President John Harmon, the UP could reap the most benefit out of the charges against Dickson.

They could attack Dickson by saying he undermined the Honor System, discredited the University, gave ammunition to the "gag law" supporters, violated the students' confidence, etc. They could even say that the University administration will refuse to cooperate with the Dickson administration, and students will have no advocate in South Building.

Its a pretty good case, even if a bit exaggerated, and the power of the presidency is a comfortable thing for a party to have.

This is the primary motive of the politicians behind the recall petition.

There are, however, many recall backers who seriously fear for the future of Student Government and the University.

Among those, certainly, are the petition's sponsor, Sharon Rose, and many members of the student body and University faculty.

Unfortunately there are some within this group who do not care so much about Dickson's campus code violation as they do about Dickson's shortcomings as a leader in general.

It might be interesting to see how the same individuals would have reacted if a student body president of the same caliber as Bob Spearman had been placed in Dickson's situation.

The third and final group involved in the controversy is the final court of appeals, the student body.

Though speculation on their feelings is a bit presumptuous, it is almost certain that they are very tired of the whole thing.

Indeed, there are many who think Dickson's opponents are making a big issue out of a little problem.

How often does one hear something like this: "So he got caught taking a girl into a closed fraternity house." "Nice work if you can do it." "It might just as easily have been me or a friend of mine."

The students have a way of dealing only with the uncomplicated basic facts, and many campus political types might learn a few lessons from them.

When the recall election rolls around, Dickson will play the role of a martyr, and will ask the student body to support his administration and help get some of the 28 big Student Party bills through Student Legislature.

He will call any change in the student administration a terrible disrupting influence on Student Government, and will accuse his opponents of playing into the hands of University administrators.

Because his opponent is obliged to attack him personally, Dickson will probably win by a healthy majority.

The ironic thing about this is that many of the supporters of the recall feel Dickson will receive the student body's vote of confidence.

When Sharon Rose was asked if she felt the UNC students would appear to be "more irresponsible" in the eyes of the state if Dickson were reelected, she declined comment.

When the smoke is finally cleared away from this issue, the student body and Student Government will have wasted a lot of time for nothing.

Dickson will still be in office and the University will only have the increasing torment of its critics for consolation.

A little more vision and a keener eye for the practical might have prevented all of this.

Fred Thomas

Wake County Citizens Counsel Own Members

Nobody understands the white man.

That is, almost nobody. But let us thank God that there are still some white-blooded Americans who recognize their obvious superiority over all other races. And let us be equally grateful that there are organizations through which these chosen people can unite in an all-out effort to preserve the integrity of the white race.

Such an organization is the Wake County Citizens' Council. By their own admission, "The Citizens' Councils are now America's largest patriotic educational and action group."

Stating as their objectives to work for states' rights and racial integrity and to provide an effective voice for the majority community in the discussion of racial problems, the Wake County group has attacked, "the leftist-liberal political power structure which now dominates North Carolina government."

The council has noted that the Tarheel state denies representation to the majority and is built upon a combination of minority voting blocs. Although literature provided by the organization makes no reference to the "Speaker Ban Law," surely they would agree that this liberal piece of legislation is an example of what such minority voting blocs can do.

Early this month Citizens' Councils of North Carolina met in Raleigh to hear a special address by Selma Sheriff Jim Clark on "What really happened on the road from Selma to Montgomery and what you can expect when North Carolina is invaded."

Such philosophers as Sheriff Smith are in keeping with the five-point action program of the Citizens' Councils:

— Prevent Race-Mixing. Racial integrity is essential to civilization and liberty. The fate of the white man in the Congo and other new African nations is a stern warning.

— Avoid Violence. Experience has proved that where integration occurs, violence becomes inevitable. Peaceful operation of segregated schools in the South proves that social separation of the races is best for all concerned.

— Maintain and Restore Legal Segregation. As growing disorder in Northern cities shows, if segregation breaks down the social structure breaks down. The Communists hope to achieve disintegration through integration in America.

— Defend States' Rights. The states ar the source of all governmental power, local and Federal. Under the Tenth Amendment, the states have the reserved power to decide questions of segregation. Federal usurpation of any such power is a violation of the Constitution.

— Correct the Court and the Congress. Both the Supreme Court's "Black Monday" decision and the Congressional "Civil Rights" Act are obviously un-constitutional, based on false "science" in mockery of the law. If they stand, social segregation and laws against intermarriage are doomed. Such a prospect is intolerable! The "Black Monday" decision must be reversed, the "Civil Rights" Act repealed!

This is the plan and the reasoning behind the plan of the organization formed in Indianola, Miss., July 11, 1954, in the wake of the U. S. Supreme Court's school desegregation decision. And today this organization is availebl to you.

Often times one finds groups involved in a struggle for or against civil rights to be closed-minded — unwilling to hear arguments from opposing viewpoints. Not so with Citizens' Councils.

The Wilmington counterpart of the Wake County council recently issued a questionnaire seeking responses to quieries ranging from "Do you believe it is un-democratic and un-Christian to force parents to send their children to integrated schools against their will?" to "Are you willing to devote some of your time and money to an effort to elect to office officials who will work for a national election on the race issue?"

A paragraph at the bottom of the questionnaire demonstrated the council's determination to help abolish "minority voting blocs" and restore unconditional majority rule.

It read, "This questionnaire is not just for members of the white race. If you are not an integrationist you should fill in your answers and mail to the address shown on this page no matter from what race you originated."

David Rothman

Subversive Koob Egdelwonk Threatens To Join Marines

After Koob Egdelwonk arrived at Jerkeley and was nearly expelled from the school for refusing to join the Free Speech Movement, he got so disgusted he did a very anti-social thing.

He decided to join the Marines.

Once Koob's classmates learned of his decision, they did their best to put an end to this embarrassment.

"Koob," they warned, "if you join the Marines, you'll bring shame to us all. People will think our campus has been infiltrated by subversives. We're very concerned about the University's image."

"Have no fears," Koob advised his listeners, "I'm a patriot."

"That's what we mean," his classmates replied. "That's what makes you so subversive."

"Well," Koob said, "if I'm subversive, I'm bound to have some company. Twenty students from Jerkeley, you know, recently motored 150 miles to an Army post, where they walked up to the special warfare center and announced their plans to enlist."

"And they got what they asked for," Koob's companions added. "When they returned to our campus, they told us the Army considered them more useful at Jerkeley than in the military. Those NROTC sympathizers said the Army wanted them to set up a recruiting station at the University of Jerkeley. And you know what happened, Koob."

"Yeh," Koob answered. "When they set up a booth outside the Jerkeley YMCA building, they were surrounded by hecklers who had come to see the Student Peace Union demonstrate its latest picketing techniques."

"Let's face it," Koob's classmates said. "there's bound to be a few rotten apples in every crowd. Our advice to you is to stay out of this mess. In fact, we hear the FBI is investigating our campus to see if there are any patriotic, God-fearing Americans here. You wouldn't want to get caught with that bunch, Koob."

"I might," he bravely said. "I live in a free country. I know my rights and I'm standing for them. I insist I be allowed to join the Marines."

"It's true that you have your rights," the students told Koob. "Nevertheless, if you join the Marines, you will be abusing this liberty."

"But I'm a free American citizen," Koob protested.

"The hell you are!" a tall, bearded student shouted. He began pelting the patriot with ice cubes.

Soon 40 people gathered around Koob, poking fun at his short hair, neat clothing and clean, beardless face.

Then Koob dragged out his sign, which read: "Missiles Classify Power First, People Second. Why are American GIs Being Forgotten in Viet Nam?"

An angry bystander sneaked up from behind and pasted onto Koob's pants an SPU slogan: "I'm a left-wing extremist."

At that point, Koob decided it would be too risky to begin his "soupfast" on behalf of Radio Free Europe.

Jury 'Pretty Much Even' On First Of Five Ballots

HILLSBOROUGH (AP)—The foreman of the jury which acquitted Frank Rinaldi at his second murder trial said yesterday the jurors "were pretty much even" on their first ballot.

"We took a total of five ballots," said Donald E. Stewart, Chapel Hill architect. The eight men and four women deliberated 8 hours and 40 minutes before freeing Rinaldi on a charge of killing his wife on Christmas Eve, 1963.

Rinaldi, convicted last year and sentenced to life in prison, clasped a hand to his mouth and wept when he heard the verdict. His brother, Pete, jumped up and grabbed him around the neck. Their father, Paul, then embraced the happy defendant.

Some 17 minutes later Frank Rinaldi walked out of the court house a free man and left immediately with his relatives for their home in Waterbury, Conn. An uncle, Frank J. Rinaldi, was with them.

Rinaldi, 36, a one-time instructor at UNC, stands to collect $40,000 on a $20,000 double indemnity policy for his wife's death. The policy was issued by Predential Insurance Co. of America early in July, 1963, about a month before the couple married. Rinaldi was named beneficiary.

A Prudential official said in Raleigh "as far as I know we will pay" the claim.

With Rinaldi acquitted, it raised the question: Who killed his wife?

Chapel Hill Police Chief W. D. Blake said he would confer with his officers "to see if anything can be done about pursuing the case." Blake termed the verdict "a shock and surprise to me. I felt our case was stronger this time."

Rinaldi, tears in his eyes, said after his acquittal: "This is the second happiest day of my life. My happiest day was my wedding day." He sought out a telephone and quickly called his 60-year-old mother in Waterbury. He said his first words to her were "not guilty."

Rinaldi told newsmen, "I am grateful to the people of Orange County for recognizing the truth when they see it."

Stewart said "the time element in the pathologist's report" coupled with the testimony of several witnesses was a major factor in the jury's verdict. A pathologist testified death occurred between 10 a.m. and noon.

Flight Deposit Not Needed

Sutdents going on the charter flight to New York no longer have a deadline for their deposits, but must still pay $46 by Oct. 28.

The group leaves Nov. 24 at 2 p.m. and returns 2 p.m. Nov. 28. Twenty-five seats are left.

Money for the round-tip flight goes to Joel Simpson, 1042 Morrison, although check should be made out to Al Warren.

— Legislative Vote

(Continued from Page 1)

lieve that they did not adequately consider the overwhelming support campus radio received in the recent referendum."

Dickson said the financial burden of campus radio was not great enough to deprive funds for other needs.

"I will ask that the Student Legislature reconsider or rescind its action of Thursday night at the next legislative session," he said. "Full notice is being given of such an attempt."

Other Legislation

A bill appropriating nearly $4,700 to the Yackety-Yack for expansion of the yearbook was passed by the body, and numerous presidential appointments were approved.

A bill for a constitutional referendum to make the positions of secretary and treasurer of the student body appointive jobs under the student body president was sent back to the Judicial Committee.

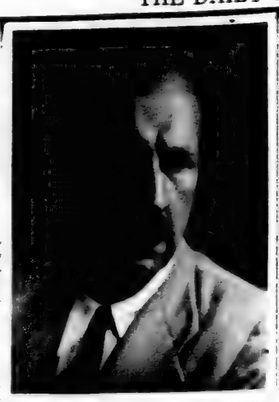
Another constitutional referendum bill making candidates for the student body presidency and vice presidency run on the same ticket was also sent to the committee.

Study Room

The Honors Seminar Room will be open Monday through Friday from 1:00 p.m. to 10:45 p.m. in 303 Wilson Library. Use of this room is restricted to members and alumni of the freshmen and sophomore honors group and departments in the Honors Program.

The room, to be used for study, seminars and as a lounge, has been set up through the efforts of the Faculty Council on Honors and the Student Committee on Honors.

Honors students are urged to make use of this room since its continued existence depends upon their interest.



ERIK KUEHNELT-LEDDIHN

Scholar Will Address Club

Dr. Erik von Keuhnelt-Leddihn, Austrian scholar and journalist, will address the Carolina Conservatives Club Monday at 8 p.m. in 8 Peabody Hall on "America-Europe: The Great Misunderstanding."

Keuhnelt - Leddihn, best known in the United States as a foreign correspondent for the National Review, has also written for Commonweal, Modern Age, and America.

He says, "I take my stand with no specific political camp; the label I would be least reluctant to bear is that of a 'Neo-Liberal'.

The Viennese - educated author began writing for periodicals and journals at 16. He has been to every European country as well as to every continent. He speaks eight languages and reads fifteen.

"My lecturing in American colleges and universities has been continuously rewarding to me, since it has kept me in contact with the younger generation of the country on which so much of the world's future depends," he says.

GOING HUNTING

Going hunting If you're a city dweller, don't try to keep up with rugged mountain men; don't strain to keep up with younger men or to impress your buddies, the North Carolina Heart Association urges.

UNC Calendar Of Campus Events

All Campus Calendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date (by 10 a.m. Saturday for Sunday's DTH). Lost and Found notices will be run on Tuesday and Saturdays only.

TODAY

Operation Match has been extended through Monday so some of the Raleigh Schools could finish their drives.

Carolina Political Union will meet in the Grail Room of GM at 8 p.m. Rev. Coffin of Yale will present a critique of U. S. policy in the Far East.

The Wesley Foundation's Sunday Evening Symposium will feature "The Foundation of Freedom in the Christian Faith and in Human Experience" given by Harold Grier McCurdy, Kenan Professor of psychology and author of Personality and Science.

National Merit Scholarship Committee will meet at 5 p.m. upstairs in Lenoir Hall. Pictures will be made.

The Rev. Banks O. Godfrey, the Methodist Chaplain of UNC, will speak at the Sunday Worship Service at the Wesley Foundation at 4 p.m.

The Honors Seminar Room will be open for use by freshmen, sophomores, and past members of these programs Mon.-Fri. from 1-10:45 p.m. in 303 Wilson Library.

Lost: A scrapbook of photographs in Lenoir Hall. Doug Stanton, 309 Joyner, 968-9185.

Lost: Girl's 1965 class ring from Harrington High School. Initials L.E.K. inside. Lost in front of Connor Dorm Call Bob Dillard, 226 Joyner, 968-9179.

Lost: One pair of government issue reading glasses in a tan vinyl plastic case. May have been found in 201 Saunders, 103 Caldwell, or in Lenoir Hall. Patrick H. Corbett, 711-D Hibbard, Victory Village, 929-2531.

A hayride - seminar with the Miracle of Dialogue discussion led by campus intern Cliff Clack at the Baptist Student Center from 6:30 - 11:30 p.m. Cost is $2. per person.

Anyone interested in a job as a paid intermural manager for Craige and Ehringhaus should come to the Intermural office in 214 of the Woollen Gym between 1-6 p.m.

LOST AND FOUND

Lost: one green soc. 51 book, Sociology — A sytematic Introduction. Call Dave Neilson at 968-6354.

Lost: An Angel Flight wing with the initials M. E. on the back. Call Michel Beaulieu, 205 Nurses' Dorm.

Lost: Two very important keys on a silver chain. If found, please call Gordon Fisher, 968-6562.

Found: A pair of men's heavy-framed brown glasses with clip on dark glasses in the Student Activities Fund office, 203 of GM.

SUNDAY

LSA supper and discussion meeting at 5:30 in the church. Topic for discussion will be "The Playboy Conception of Sex" presented by Dr. Clifford B. Reifler.

Interviews for membership in the Carolina Political Union will be held from 1-4 p.m. in the Grail Room Candidates must sign up for interviews and fill out application blanks at the desk in GM. Graduates and undergraduates are eligible.

A student forum on "A liberal view of the Book of Genesis" will be given at the University Baptist Church on Theological Questions — Two Views, which will feature a liberal view one week followed by a more conservative view on the same issue the next week. Mr. John Keith of the Temple Baptist Church in Durham will be Sunday night's speaker.

Westminister Fellowship presents "TC and TCG — Do They Exist?," a program on the role of men and women. Supper is at 5:30 p.m.

Inter - Varsity Christian Fellowship, Graduate Chapter will meet at 8 p.m. in Roland Parker III. This is a Bible study for all interested graduate students.

Newman Apostolate meeting at Chase Cafeterian in the Delta Room, at 6 p.m. The speaker will be Dr. Sam Hill, head of the UNC Religious Department.

The Tar Heel Invitational Debate Tournament needs students to keep time for championship intercollegiate debates Thursday - Saturday. Sign up at GM Information desk or call 933-2155.

The CCUN will hold a United Nations Day Festival on Sunday, Oct. 24, from 3-5 p.m. at GM. Everyone is invited to attend. Displays and talent from various countries will be featured. Refreshments will be served.

— Klan Chaplain

(Continued from Page 1)

Trying to pin down the alleged threat on his life the committee questioned him further about it. Woodle said "No . . . he said he had the authority. He didn't say he would kill me or anything."

Crossed Burned

But after the cross was burned on his lawn, Woodle said, "When I go to the door in the morning I look in the bushes, and I expect to be ready to live this way the rest of my life . . . When you get a phone call that somebody's hired to do away with you . . . that's Castro policy, communism . . .

"The Lord will take care of me. And if he can't I'm ready to go to heaven anyway."

When rumors were spread about him in the Klan and he was told he couldn't speak at rallies anymore, the minister said, he asked North Carolina Grand Dragon James R. Jones what he had done wrong and he would correct it. "I got the answer, 'We don't have to have a reason.' "

His main disillusionment with the Klan, the witness said was that its leaders merely used rallies to get money from poor people and then spend it on themselves.

"The people was like they was drowning—they're ready to grab the first thing that that comes along. They told them they'd give them victory, that the schools wouldn't be integrated . . . but there was no program."

When Klan leaders were traveling aroun dthe state, he said, they went "first class. It was rib-eye steaks and Cadillacs, that's what I saw . . . then on the other hand you see these poor people . . . who can't hardly pay their bills and they're living off them . . . and they're living off them."

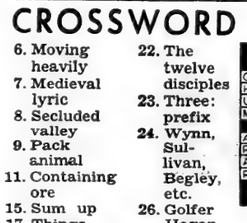
DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS

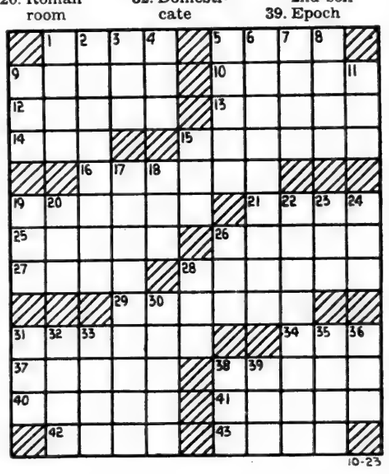
1. Vipers
5. Dross of metal
9. Place of worship
10. Call to attract attention
12. Short tails
13. Color
14. Sun
15. Canadian river
16. Childlike walk
19. Injured
21. Value
25. Pixielike
26. Two-footed
27. Periods of time
28. Spanish gentlemen
29. Sways
31. Steps
34. Duo
37. Forbidden
38. Lady of Troy
40. Catkin
41. Sharp mountain crest
42. Otherwise
43. Bulk

DOWN

1. Tropical dog
2. To cause to appear foolish
3. Caress
4. Relatives of Jrs.
5. Futurity verb
6. Moving heavily
7. Medieval lyric
8. Secluded valley
9. Pack animal
11. Containing ore
15. Sum up
17. Things left out
18. Lair
19. Of the Middle Ages: abbr.
20. Roman room
22. The twelve disciples
23. Three: prefix
24. Wynn, Sullivan, Begley, etc.
26. Golfer Hogan
28. Girl
30. Inscribed
31. Music: as written
32. Domesticate
33. Eve's child
35. Moistens
36. Single unit
38. Noah's 2nd son
39. Epoch



Yesterday's Answer



10-23

A Wide Selection
Individual Terms

T. L. KEMP
Jewelry
135 East Franklin
942-1331

Just call him "Dapper Dan"

HE'S WEARING "ORLON"®-worsted wool flannel Haggar Slacks. He wears them to class, to the game and out on dates . . . and still he looks dapper. They're styled with the trim fit he wants in fine dress slacks. Tailored in 70% "ORLON" acrylic-30% worsted wool. "Orlon" in the blend makes these slacks hold their knife-edge crease and shrug off wrinkles practically forever. No wonder the gals go for "Dapper Dan".
®Du Pont's Reg. T.M. 10.95

WIN A FORD MUSTANG or one of 50 other big prizes. See your Haggar dealer for details.

HAGGAR Slacks

Get Haggar Slacks
at fine stores everywhere

Varsity
NOW PLAYING

The Colorful Adventures of THE BEATLES are more Colorful than ever in COLOR!
EASTMANCOLOR A UNITED ARTISTS RELEASE

Saddle and Fox
STEAK HOUSE & OYSTER BAR
Chesapeake Oysters
Steamed or on the half shell
Prime Ribs of Beef
Banquets & Receptions
Inquire about our famous OYSTER ROASTS
Take 15-501 Durham By-Pass — Turn Right at Holiday Inn — Continue East 2 Blocks on Hillsboro Road.

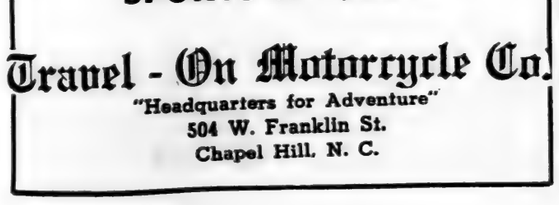
"A MARVEL! ONE OF THE MADDEST MOVIES EVER MADE!" —N. Y. World-Telegram & Sun
"IT DAZZLES!" —N. Y. Times
THE KNACK... and how to get it
STARRING RITA TUSHINGHAM
BEST PICTURE CANNES FILM FESTIVAL 1965
THIS PICTURE IS RECOMMENDED FOR ADULTS ONLY
Shorts: "THE PINK PHINK" and "THE PEACHES"
1:25, 3:19, 5:13, 7:08 & 9:03
RIALTO, Durham

LITTLE BUT MIGHTY WANT ADS

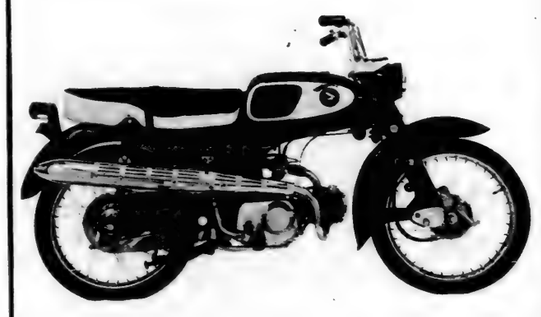
EXPERIENCED RADIO AND record player technician needed immediately. Full or part-time. Phone 942-3556.

FOR SALE: HONDA CB 150 Ex. condition, 2400 mi., good mileage, perfect inexpensive transportation. Call 929-3117 after 8 p.m.

SEAN CONNERY ...more dangerously alive than ever! THE HILL



HARRY ANDREWS · IAN BANNEN · ALFRED LYNCH · OSSIE DAVIS · ROY KINNEAR · JACK WATSON
NOW PLAYING CAROLINA
Plus LATEST NEWS



Where you want, when you want
FOR 25c A DAY!!!
The Brand New 1966
SPORTS 65 – $323.00
Travel - On Motorcycle Co.
"Headquarters for Adventure"
504 W. Franklin St.
Chapel Hill, N. C.

KING WILLIAM RESTAURANT
1½ Miles from Campus on 15-501 South
SPECIALIZING IN:
STEAKS CHICKEN SEAFOOD
"Choice Selection of Imported and Domestic Beverages"
All New and Modern, featuring
- Seating capacity of 300
- Spacious parking facilities
- Four private dining rooms
- Tasteful background music
- Catering facilities

Open from 8:00 a.m. 'til Midnight
SEVEN DAYS A WEEK

Competition and Sports Cars Ltd.
SAAB
LOTUS
Foreign Car Repairs & Accessories

Fauntleroy

The sixth big week of football's here,
Some teams may bite the dust.
But don't you worry, faithful fans,
Give Fauntleroy your trust.

Ah-h-h-h, yes — here we go again.

How do you like my disguise this week? It's pretty good strategy, I think.

You see, I've been molested the past few weeks by admiring fans and anygry coaches. Now, the fans I can stand. (After all, they've made quite a bit of money from by "CONTROL" of football games.)

But these angry coaches are the ones I've been looking out for. If you remember, the first few weeks ol' Fauntleroy was disguised as some luscious-looking doll. Well, quite frankly, the coaches just couldn't keep their hands off me. I guess they figured I owed them something after causing their team to lose.

Fauntleroy Disguised

Well, I saw right away that disguise would never work. The next week I came as a donkey. Even that failed — all they did was ride me all week long (Ha-Ha-eeeeeek).

Anyway, I hope I have the problem solved this time.

I'm not the prettiest thing in the world. (You'll have to admit that.) But I'm sincere — "all the girls like me."

Well, I had better get the show on the road. Here come the picks:

UPSET SPECIAL: LENOIR vs CHASE (Scoreless Tie).

CLEMSON vs T.C.U. — Ol' Frank Howard has been taking his lumps outside the conference this season. We'd better let him have this one. We don't want him to take his ball and go home. Pick Clemson.

DUKE vs ILLINOIS — The Blue Devils bit the dust for the first time last week. They'll think it's ground hog day this time. Pick Illinois.

MARYLAND vs. N. C. STATE—The Terps might be slower than the Wolfpack but they will be harder to move and even harder to run around. Let Maryland have this one.

VIRGINIA vs. V.P.I.— The Cavaliers crossed up everybody last week (except me, of course) by dumping West Virginia 41-0. We'll let this be close, but ol' Virginia should take it.

SOUTH CAROLINA vs LSU — The Gamecocks just might catch something they don't want this week. Baton Rouge is the site and few people have won there or near there since Andrew Jackson turned the trick at New Orleans in 1815. Pick LSU.

Other games:
EAST CAROLINA over THE CITADEL
NEBRASKA over COLORADO
SYRACUSE over HOLY CROSS
TEXAS over RICE
TENNESSEE over HOUSTON

Carolina Seeks 4th Win

THE Game For Deacs

By GENE RECTOR
Assistant DTH Sports Editor

UNC's potent but reluctant offense faces the defensively strong Deacons of Wake Forest today in Bowman Gray Stadium in Winston-Salem.

A near capacity crowd of 22,000 will be on hand to witness the Deacon's final home game.

The Deacons hope to break a three-game North Carolina winning streak in the rivalry. The Tar Heels have blanked the Deacons twice in succession — 23-0 at Chapel Hill last fall and 21-0 at Winston-Salem in 1963.

The Tar Heels, led by the ACC's leading rusher, Max Chapman, and one of the great quarterbacks, Danny Talbott, seek to ignite their offensive arm.

Even with fine performances from Chapman and Talbott, the Tar Heels have not scored more than two touchdowns since the opener against Michigan.

"We've had our opportunities but we haven't cashed in," said Coach Jim Hickey. "We are moving the ball too well not to score more."

UNC, with a 3-2 over-all record and 2-1 in the conference, still has its eye on the ACC championship. A victory today could result in sole possession of second place behind undefeated front-runner Clemson.

The Deacons, on the other hand, hope to counter the Tar Heel offensive with the ACC's fourth best defense. They will enter the second half of the season with only one win and four losses — including an 0-3 ACC mark.

Coach Bill Tate's crew hopes to bounce back from its worst setback in two seasons. After playing their first four games close to the vest, the Deacs were bombed with a five - touchdown second half at South Carolina last week. The Gamecocks, after trailing by 7-3 early in the third period, came on strong to win 38-7.

Except for the South Carolina lapse, the Deacons were off to their finest defensive start since 1956 — giving up only 35 points in their first four games. osses were to V.P.I. 12-3, N. C. State 13-11, Maryland 10-7, and to South Carolina. The lone Deacon success was a 7-0 victory over Vanderbilt.

The Tar Heels, on the other hand, have had offensive problems of their own.

"Luckily, our defense has played sound football for the most part," said Hickey. "We have won two of our games by the narrowest of margins — a 10-7 and 12-10 victories over N. C. State and Maryland respectively. However, I do think we can put more points on the scoreboard if we concentrate on our job."

Hickey considers Wake's defense equal to almost any his team has played.

"I hope we can take the ball away from them on offense and keep it ourselves," he said. "People kid those Ohio State folks for their possession football, but their style of play makes it mighty hard on the defense. And a tired defense that can be broken."

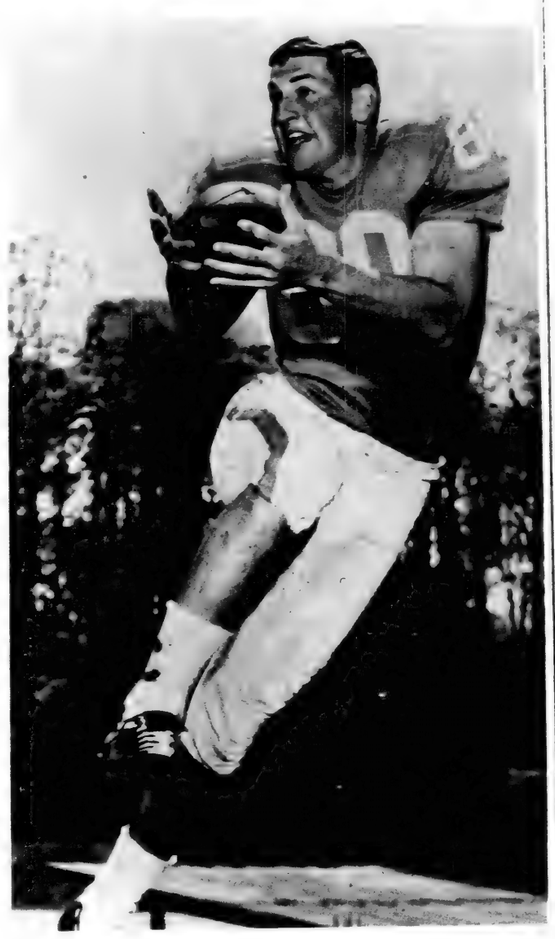
Hickey had little comment on Wake Forest's disaster at South Carolina last Saturday.

"That was a peculiar game," noted Hickey. "Wake was in it until the bottom fell out. They have a tough defense and they dare you to run against it. It isn't easy, believe me."

Harriers Hit Clemson In Tiger-Land Today

Cross Country shares the sports spotlight at Carolina today as the varsity and frosh journey to Clemson for an 11:30 a.m. match with the Tiger harriers.

The UNC varsity has a 3-1 record, their only loss coming at the hands of Maryland. The frosh are 3-0 this season and carry a 12 game win skein into the fray.



WIDE END CHARLIE CARR

Morrison B, G Score Wins

Teams in brand-new Morrison College battled it out in intramural tag football Friday, with Morrison B defeating Morrison A, 29-0. Bob Mooring scored twice for Morrison B and Charles Meyer added another paid of touchdowns. Meyer, Bob Thrift and Lew Doggett had extra points and Ralph Gingles scored a safety for the winners.

The Morrison G Bears hung on to beat the Morrison H 99'ers, 14-6. Roy Gaster and Joe Honeycutt scored in the first half to stake the Bears to a 14-0 lead. Ken Galloway's second - half TD cut the margin, but the 99'ers couldn't catch up.

Les Mitchell was the whole show for the Alexander Playboys as they blanked the Alexander Mooses, 19-0. Mitchell scored all three of his team's touchdowns, but allowed Sonny Lackey to contribute an extra point.

The Med Red team dealt the New Nine their first loss of the season, 26-6. Bud Thompson paced the doctors with two TD's while Tom Whitley and Allen Whitaker scored one each. Joe Kamph scored for the New Nine, who trailed by only 7-6 at the half.

Swimming Notes

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

The varsity squad was timed Wednesday as part of a physical fitness test. Showing up well were Pete Worthen, this year's big man, and Russ Sleeper. Coach Pat Earey said the man who was probably in the best shape on the squad was sophomore Gay Stratton.

* * *

Earey expressed much satisfaction for Sleeper's showing, saying that the junior freestyler, who came on strong last year, will be making himself known on this year's team. "We'll have to find a place for him somewhere," the coach said.

* * *

Thursday the squad began long distance swimming. "It's a traumatic experience for some of the sprinters," the coach grinned. Twenty lengths of the pool (over and back counting one length) was just a starter.

* * *

The general word is that this year's freshman squad is really loaded. Some top-notch boys have come to Carolina this year and the potential seems tremendous. Coach Earey, being realistic, says he'll start believing in the freshman when he sees what they can do.

* * *

A name to tuck away in your mind for the coming season — freshman diver Rob Carney, from Fork Union Military Academy. They say he can do things most varsity divers have never been able to do.

Frosh Meet Duke In Benefit Game

By RON SHINN
DTH Sports Writer

Carolina's Tar Babies, fresh from a 40-7 romp over the Virginia frosh last Friday, take on the Blue Imps of Duke today at Durham in their second charity contest of the season.

The event is the 13th annual Cerebral Palsy Classic, with all proceeds going to the Cerebral Palsy Hospital in Durham. Kickoff time is 2:00.

The Tar Babies' win last week was the second in as many starts. They carry a seven - game win streak into today's match. Duke lost its opener with Clemson but downed V.P.I. to even their record.

The series of UNC - Duke freshman games dates back to 1931 and over the years Duke has come out on top 19 times. Carolina has 11 wins and two of the games have been ties. Since the initial Cerebral Palsy Classic in 1953 the series stands at 6-5-1 with the Blue Imps again the lead-tests.

Both teams send highly explosive offensive powers into the fray. North Carolina has scored 49 points in two con-

The Tar Babies defensive team has not allowed a single point to be scored on them. The only score registered by the opposition was a ninety yard kickoff return for a touchdown by Virginia.

Carolina boss George Barclay says that his team is in top physical shape for the game. The only casualty is second - team center Sonny Taylor, who injured his ankle last week.

Barclay indicates that his starting crew will be essentially the same as those of the earlier games.

Peter Davis and Billy Warren will be at the ends, Mike Richey and Terry Rowe at tackles, Frank Coble and Mike Smith at guards, and Chip Bradley at center.

Gayle Bomar will direct the attack with Dick Wesolowski and Billy Dodson at the halfback spots. Mark Mazza will start at fullback.

Carolina's unscored on forward defensive wall is made up of Tom Buskey, Wayne Busick, Doug Thomas, Battle Wall, Tommy Gardner, Niel Rogers, and Dave Ringwalt.

Landy Blank, Ronnie Lowery, John Harris, and Johnny Blair make up the defensive secondary.

DICK WESOLOWSKI

If you're tired of football, spend a peaceful afternoon in the Intimate Bookshop

S. O. S.
STUDENT SURVIVAL KITS
Get yours now while the Supply Lasts
PRETZEL STIX, SARDINES,
COOKIES, CANDY, CHEESE,
RAISINS and PUMPERNICKEL BREAD
HICKORY FARMS

Tin Can Trial Continues

By SANDY TREADWELL
DTH Sports Writer

The judge clasped his hands together and cracked all the joints in his ancient fingers.

"Now we shall here the case of the prosecution."

A black haired oily man rose to address the judge. He slinked his way around the room in a manner befitting a snake-in-the-grass.

"Your Honor," he said, "the witnesses for the prosecution will be the fine folks in the gallery present here today."

"The judges' eyes sparkled as they scanned the eager animals in the pit at the rear of the courtroom. "Proceed, Counselor" he chuckled.

The counselor turned towards the rows of monogrammed sweaters and tight tan pants.

"Kind sirs, what do you think of the defendant — the Tin Can."

The self appointed spokesman of the gallery had decaying weejuns and his crew cut was bespeckled with dandruff. He was old, and the largest part of his anatomy was a grotesque and palpitating adam's apple.

"Your Honor, I represent all these young students. The Tin Can is an outrage!"

"Outrage," the gallery repeated.

"An eyesore!"

The gallery then broke into a rousing fight song:

"Rip it up. Tear it up. Bulldozer. Bulldozer. RAH, RAH, RAH."

The spokesman lead the song, and when it was over he clutched at his heart and fell to the floor. He died with a smile imprinted for eternity across his face.

"The prosecution rests," the snake-in-the-grass stated simply.

The young defense attorney trying to make good jumped to his feet once order had been restored.

"I demand order, your honor. This is mere hearsay. It should be disregarded. May I present my defense."

The judge stared coldly at this young whippersnapper. "You may proceed."

"I call Mr. Roy Armstrong and Coach Bob Fetzer to the stand."

Carolina's two distinguished and almost legendary figures were duly sworn in. Then they began answering questions.

"The Tin Can was built in 1923," Coach Bob explained. "It is the oldest temporary building in the world."

"When it was built people were awed by its magnificence," Mr. Armstrong added. "It was the envy of every college and university in the South. It was a basketball floor, incidentally still the finest floor on campus, which is the size of a football field."

Coach Bob continued. "Some great names played ball there. ACC records were made and smashed in the Can by great track men."

"It had two pot belly stoves," Roy remembered.

"And the player's benches were warmed underneath by powerful electric light bulbs. It was known as the world's largest icebox in the winter and the hottest incubator in the summer.

"The Tin Can," Armstrong concluded, "enabled UNC to take the forefront in mass physical programs. UNC became a leader because of that eyesore."

The gallery was enraged, and they staged a filibuster.

A young man rushed forward and leaped onto his honor's desk. His name was Joseph Beldoon.

"MILLARD FILLMORE LIVES," Joe yelled.

"MILLARD FILLMORE LIVES," the gallery chanted again and again.

The judge spoke through the uproar. "Due to this interruption the court will recess until tomorrow morning," And he pounded his gavel decisively down upon the desk.

Stay tuned to tomorrow's Tar Heel for the exciting conclusion to this action packed drama.

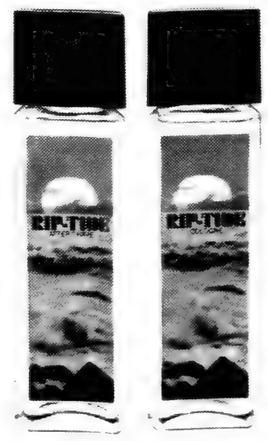
DON'T HUNT ALONE
The North Carolina Heart Association reminds all hunters — whether they have heart disease or not: Never hunt alone.

Women are Schizos

One minute they like milk chocolate the next dark chocolate. Good thing for Hollingsworth's assortment.

Hollingsworth's UNUSUAL CANDIES

SPLASH IT ON AND SHE'S SUNK



RIP-TIDE
After-Shave, $3.50, Cologne $4.00
Available at these campus stores:
JULIAN'S COLLEGE SHOP
THE MEYERS COMPANY

A button-down in a basket weave. (Something old, something new.)

This Arrow shirt gives you best of both worlds. (1) A long-pointed collar role in the most authentic tradition. (2) A husky-looking basket weave that updates ordinary oxford. For other interesting features, check the tapered body; back pleat and loop; back collar button. Lots of unusual stripes to choose from. $5.00. You expected to pay more?
Bold New Breed from ARROW

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870

Tin Can

The Tar Heel cagers have to practice in an old gym while waiting for Carmichael to be completed. DTH Sports Editor Pat Stith describes this Tin Can on page four.

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Shhhhh . . .

Mum's The Word, the enigma floating around campus for the past week, has finally been uncovered. To find out what the big secret is, see below.

Vol. 74, No. 35 | CHAPEL HILL NORTH CAROLINA SUNDAY, OCTOBER 24, 1965 | Founded February 23, 1893.

Determined Deacons Overhaul Carolina, 12-10

EIGHT OF THE TEN lovely coeds who will compete for the title of Homecoming Queen are seen on the steps of Kenan Stadium, scene of Saturday's Homecoming clash with Georgia. From left to right, the girls are: Mary King, sponsored by Maverick House; Sharon Finch, Morrison College; Patti Fields, Maverick House; Peach Pierce, Joyner Hall; Sharon Derrick, Spencer Hall; Judy Dudley, Parker Hall; Emily Cathey, Chi Psi; and Peg McQueen, Sigma Chi. Missing from the picture are Lois Shepherd, ADPi; and Toni Greenwood, Ehringhaus. The election for queen will be held Wednesday.

Johnson Trusts College Students

By DAVID ROTHMAN
DTH Staff Writer

Press Secretary Bill Moyers says he has never heard President Johnson doubt "the capacity of college students to express their judgment when all sides of any issue are beore them."

Moyers had been contacted by The Daily Tar Heel about the President's opinion on the speaker ban law.

He explained he was not able to discuss the law "in any detail" with the President.

"Any specific comment would not be based on hard information," the press secretary said.

But he added: "I do know that with regard to the general question of academic freedom, the President has a long and consistent record of encouraging full and frank discussion.

"His confidence in the youth of this country is well known," Moyers said, "and he has spoken frequently of their need to be well informed."

Moyers, whose official title is Special Assistant to the President, has been a close associate of Johnson for many years.

Last month, 1964 presidential candidate Barry Goldwater announced his opposition to the ban, which has also been denounced by several U. S. senators.

COPYRIGHT 1965
The Daily Tar Heel

Chaplain Speaks Tonight On Recognition Of China

Rev. William Sloane Coffin, chaplain of Yale University, will speak on why the United States should start negotiations for the recognition of Red China tonight at 7:30 in Carroll Hall.

UNC students present at the hall will also hear a discussion of the issue from New York by six distingusihed panelists, who will be connected to Carroll Hall by telephone hookup.

Nearly 20 colleges and universities across the nation are participating in the program, which is sponsored by Americans for the Reappraisal of Far Eastern Policy.

The admission of Red China to the United Nations will also be discussed.

The program is planned as a celebration of the 20th Anniversary of the United Nations.

Members of the national panel include Michael Harrington, Norman Thomas, Dr. John Fairbank, William Ryan, Al Lowenstein and Norman Cousins.

Students will be able to address questions to the national panelist through the telephone connection.

Americans for Reappraisal of Far Eastern Policy is dedicated to educational means of seeking support for its proposals, rather than civil disobedience, according to local director Eric Van Loon.

Mum's The Word

Mum's the word — October 30.

The posters on the bulletin boards and the pretty girls in the DTH have proclaimed this enigma for almost a week now.

Yesterday Armistead Maupin, Vice - President of the Senoir Class, explained what the three little words mean.

"It's really right obvious," said Maupin. "When we said 'mum', that's exactly what we meant. The Senior Class has made arrangements with Hill's Florist Shop in Carrboro for an extensive campaign to sell large white mum corsages for Homecoming."

Tickets for the corsages will be on sale in Y-Court, Lenoir Hall, and Chase Cafeteria for only three days — Monday through Wednesday of this week. The corsages may be picked up at the Tin Can on Saturday morning before the Homecoming game. They will sell for $1.50 each.

"The class is already rich as Croesus," said Maupin, "and the proceeds from this sale should provide for some really unbelievable parties this spring.

"In addition, we are planning a 'Senior Brain Bowl' some time before Christmas in which representatives of the MRC, the IFC, the WRC, and the Panhell will compete for a large cash prize in a battle of wits."

The corsages will be composed of a large white mum backed with ferns and tied with Carolina blue and white ribbons.

Church Woman To Celebrate

"Laity's Mission in World Affairs" is the theme of World Community Day which will be observed on Nov. 5 by United Church Women at the Community Church, at 10 a.m. the call to the celebration of the day challenges all church women to work for progress toward peace, and understanding through international cooperation as partners with peacemakers.

All women are invited to attend.

Committee Gets 2 Amendments

Two consitutional amendments will be considered at tomorrow's Judicial Committee meeting. One would make the positions of President and Vice President of the Student Body a single ticket, as in national elections.

The second would make the positions of Secretary and Treasurer of the Student Body appointive.

Anyone wishing to testify on either of these amendments is asked to attend the open hearings, beginning at 4 p.m. in Woodhouse room of Graham Memorial.

Honor Council

Candidates Must Attend Meeting

Candidates seeking endorsement for Honor Council seats must attend a general meeting tonight on second floor GM at 9 p.m.

They will also be required to attend a short Honor System lecture tomorrow at 7 p.m. and to take an exam on the lecture and handouts Tuesday at 7 p.m.

Incumbents are required to attend the first and last meetings only. They must take the exam.

Students attending all required meetings and passing the exam will receive the Honor System Commission's endorsement.

No student may run for an honor council seat without this endorsement. Qualifications the honor council follow:

— All candidates must have an academic average of "C" or better, or must be a new UNC student.

— Candidates for Men's and Women's Councils must be residents of the district from which they seek to be elected.

— No person shall be a candidate for an elective office simultaneously in more than one of the three branches of student government. (Executive branch, Student Legislature, Men's and Women's Council.)

— No person shall hold concurrently an elective position in one of the other branches while seeking office for the Men's or Women's Honor Council.

Districts in which seats are open follow:

Men's districts include one seat in MD II, one seat in MD III, one seat ihn MD VIII, one seat in MD X, one seat in MD XI and one seat in MD XII.

Women's districts include two seats in WD I, one seat in WD II, one seat in WD III, one seat in WD IV, one seat in WD V and one seat in WD VI.

Locations of Men's and Women's districts may be found by contacting Pat Taylor, chairman of the Honor Systems Commission.

Group Making Musician List

Music For Children, Inc. has requested all musicians in the area to submit their names for the annual Director of Music and Musicians.

Musicians are asked to send names, addresses and a description of their musical abilities to P. O. Box 408, Chapel Hill.

Music For Children is compiling the names as a community service. Instrumentalists, singers, teachers, soloists, groups, choir directors, organists and combos are asked to contact the group.

Fourth-Quarter Pass Wins Game

By GENE RECTOR
DTH Asst. Sports Editor

A fourth - quarter 41 yard touchdown pass from Wake Forest quarterback Jon Wilson to wide end Ken Henry crushed a UNC comeback Saturday and handed the Deacons a 12-10 victory over the Tar Heels.

Outplayed for three quarters and trailing 6-3, the Tar Heels put together their finest offensive display of the afternoon by moving 74 yards in 12 plays for a fourth quarter touchdown.

Halfback David Riggs was the fair-haired boy — taking a Danny Talbott pitchout on the Deacon 11 yard line and skirting left end. A Danny Tabott placement was good and the Tar Heels were in business 10-6 with 7:53 left in the game.

Then came he Deacon clincher. With first and ten on the Tar Heel 41, Wilson hit Henry on the UNC 10 and the fleet-footed Greensboro native went into the end zone for a 12-10 Wake Forest lead. Eddie McKinney, who had kicked two earlier field goals, missed the extra point.

But comeback time was not completely over for the Tar Heels. Taking the kick-off on their own 30, they moved 56 yards in eight plays. The Deacon defense stiffened on their own 14 and the Tar Heels elected to go for the field goal on fourth down and three.

Missed FG

The Danny Talbott attempt from the 21 was wide to the left with 2:12 remaining.

The last - ditch UNC effort came shortly. The Deacons unable to move the ball, punted to the Tar Heel 42 with 1:08 remaining.

First Downs	13	18
Rushing Yardage	163	172
Passing Yardage	54	172
Passes	8-16	14-26
Passes inter. by	0	2
Yards Penalized	5	20

Talbott rolled to the left for seven yards and lost two on a sweep. Then came the bomb — a perfect toss to fullback Tom Lampman on the Wake 17. Lampman was hit hard just as he caught the pass and Deacon safety Carlton Baker was there to recover the loose ball.

Tar Heel fans loved that fourth quarter. They had little to yell about before then.

Wake Forest scored the first time they had possession. Taking the ball on their own 27, the Deacons rode the passing of Wilson and the slashing rushes of fullback Andy Heck to the North Carolina 12. There the Tar Heel defense stiffened — batting down two Wilson passes on second and third down.

The field goal was the Deacon answer and senior fullback Eddie McKinney connected for a 3-0 Wake Forest lead.

The Tar Heels began to threaten in the closing minutes of that first quarter. On first and ten on the Wake 45, halfback Max Chapman circled right end for 18 yards to the Deacon 27. Chapman hit for five and Talbott for nine as the first quarter ended.

Defense Stiffened

On first down, Talbott again carried for five yards to the Deacon nine yard line. But the Deacons flexed some defensive muscles to their own and the Tar Heels settled for a Danny Talbott field goal from the 15.

Wake Forest stormed right back to take the lead. The Deacons moved from their own 32 to the UNC 4 mostly on the passing arm of Wilson and the rushes of Heck and left halfback Doug Golightly.

But the Tar Heels built a stone wall on their four yard line and three Deacon rushes gained nothing. McKinney salvaged three points for Wake with a field goal from the six and a 6-3 halftime lead.

A scoreless third quarter set the stage for the final-period fireworks.

UNC coach Jim Hickey had few post-game comments. "We just started a little flat," he said, "and never could really get going until the fourth

(Continued on Page 4)

'Baptism' Drowned Heels

By ED FREAKLEY
DTH Staff Writer

WINSTON - SALEM — You might say the Tar Heels got Baptized yesterday. And in the end you can say that they drowned.

An inspiring, never- ay-die band of Demon Deacons played their best game of the season against the Heels. The battle in Bowman Gray Stadium reversed last week's 12-10 Carolina win over Maryland.

It was two first-half Wake Forest field goals and a late fourth quarter touchdown that carried the Black and Gold over their arch rivals, 12-10.

You can sit back and speculate from now until next week and never come up with a good answer.

Danny Talbott, who again scored all of UNC's points, missed a field goal attempt from a sharp angle and it was a long way from being an easy boot.

With 17 seconds left in the contest Tar Heel fullback Tom Lampman raced from the North Carolina 45 to catch a perfectly thrown Talbott pass on the Wake Forest 25, but the two defenders slammed Lampman hard causing a fumble fumble which they recovered — recovering the ball game.

But in the end it was Wake quarterback Jon Wilson who passed over, around and through the weak Tar Heel secondary for 172 yards. It was left end Ken Henry who caught seven Wilson bombs for 103 yards, one for a 41 yard fourth-quarter touchdown.

The defeat, the first at the hands of the Deacons in three years, was also the result of a Carolina offense that puffed and sputtered until the fourth quarter. But even then it misfired after driving to Wake 14.

Deacon fans had a sign at the game. It read, "Ram Whiskey Hill" — and they did with a guy by the name of Andy Heck doing most of the ramming.

The 17,500 fans were treated to a good half-time show, which was by far the best event of the afternoon. As a matter of fact, the Marching Tar Heels got their first victory of the season. They easily bested Wake's band, but it didn't take much.

Carolina fans, needless to say were disappointed, and the band, who cheered loudest of all took the loss even harder.

The Maverick House gong - bongers ran around the field following each Carolina score. They were attacked by Wake fans each time and following the final Tar Heel touchdown they were pelted by oranges.

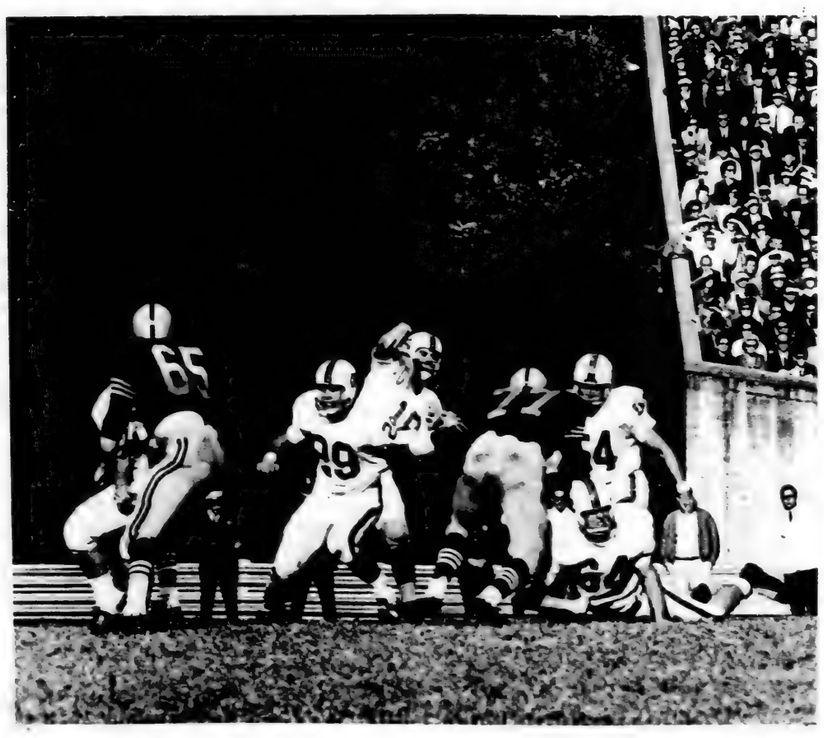
Now either them Baptists are fruit lovers, or they drink a lot of whiskey sours.

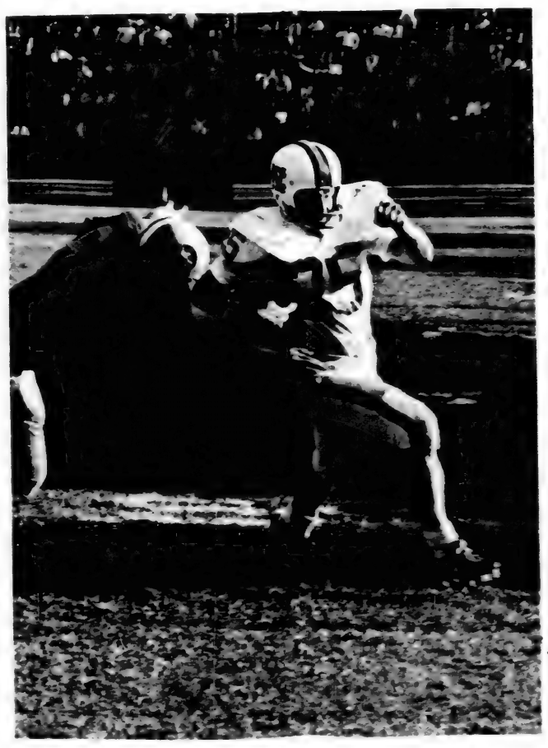
Up until yesterday they had a lot to be sour about. The Deac triumph over Carolina was their first ACC win of the season. They were thrashed by South Carolina, Maryland and State earlier this year.

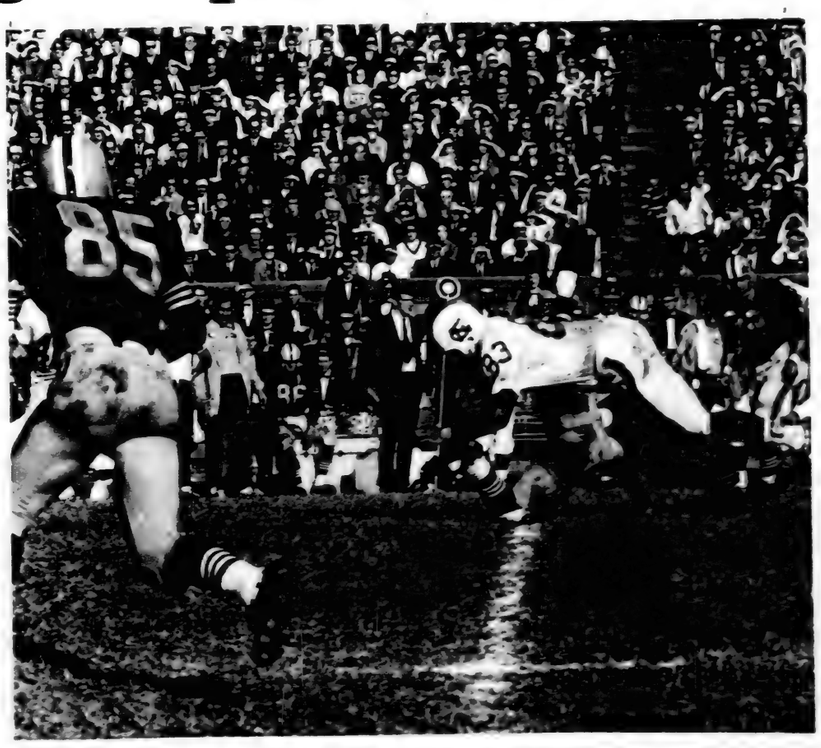
The game ended on a bitter note. After the horn sounded

(Continued on Page 4)

Action From Yesterday's Losing Trip To Wake







The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of the Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. Letters and columns, covering a wide range of views, reflect the personal opinions of their authors.

ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR
JACK HARRINGTON, BUSINESS MANAGER

DTH Editor Ernie McCrary is in the infirmary. During his absence the associate editor will serve as acting editor. Expressions of opinion appearing in this column do not necessarily reflect the views of the editor.

Monday's Space Flight

Greensboro Daily News

It is a measure of how blase we have become about manned space flight that the preparations for the mission on Monday of Gemini 6 have gone almost unattended by publicity. Where only two years ago a space flight commanded rapt attention from planning through completion, now the public seems to regard trips into orbit as little more than routine.

More than anything, this is a tribute to the success of the entire space program. Through six missions in Project Mercury and three in project Gemini, no lives have been lost — or, for that matter, seriously endangered. Even technical difficulties, such as the failure of a fuel cell during the flight of Gemini 5, have been surmounted with relative ease and accepted calmly by astronauts and ground crews alike.

The dangers are there, however, and during the flight of Gemini 6 they may be greater than in any previous mission. They will be posed not by the length of the flight — it is expected to end after a day or two — but by its complexity: for the first time, man will attempt to rendevzous and dock one space vehicle with another.

At least an hour and 41 minutes before Gemini VI is launched, an unmanned Atlas-Agena rocket will be put into orbit. When Astronauts Walter Schirra and Thomas P. Stafford follow it skyward in Gemini 6, their task will be to link up with it. The maneuvering will be intricate. Absolute precision will be required. The margin for error will be very narrow — and the danger thus considerable.

Yet whatever the dangers, the astronauts are well trained and the control centers remarkably resourceful; the mission would not be undertaken if space authorities were not confident of its success. That is a confidence the nation undoubtedly shares as it wishes Commander Schirra and Major Stafford a good flight and a safe return.

A Pretty Protest

Durham Morning Herald

Of all the petty, misdirected protests against this country's role in Viet Nam, burning one's draft card is the pettiest, most misdirected.

It is on a par with the shows put on a decade ago by fundamentalist preachers who burned revised editions of the Bible before carefully invited audiences of newsmen and photographers. In all such cases of contrived exhibitionism, the only thing shown is an unflattering commentary on the persons who contrive the exhibition.

Perhaps Congress inadvertently encouraged this nonsense by making destruction of draft cards a federal offense and thus offering an easy way to indulge the martyr complex that seems so much a part of the Viet Nam protest movement. Of itself a draft card isn't significant. Neither is the small fire it makes nor the strained gesture that results.

Those with an honest religious aversion to military service can far better demonstrate their belief and move others by the hard process of becoming a conscientious objector. Those who sincerely believe it is their moral duty to flout the law of the land so far as the draft and military service are concerned will find ample opportunities in time to follow through with this even harder demonstration.

If there were enough young men willing to make such painful demonstrations of protest, we have no doubt they would indeed make an impact on this country. But when a few seize on the flashy, contrived idea of flouting a dubious regulation, their power to move anyone is small and fleeting. Like those who burned the revised edition of the Bible, they expose their own urge for sensation and self-dramatization rather than any evils in what they put to the torch.

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; John Jennrich, associate editor; Barry Jacobs, managing editor; Fred Thomas, news editor, Pat Stith, sports editor; Gene Rector, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; John Greenbacker, political writer; Ed Freakley, Andy Myers, Lynne Harvel, Lynne Sizemore, David Rothman, Ray Linville, staff writers; Jack Harrington, bus. mgr.; Tom Clark, asst. bus. mgr.; Woody Sobol, ad. mgr.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all ap news dispatches.

'Let's Go Sunshine — It's Tennis Time!'

UNC And SPU Are Now Bound Together In Carolinian Minds

By FRED R. HARWELL

The time has come for student government to take action in the face of a grave danger to the University — a danger that already has attacked and weakened Carolina and a danger the student government can best and most effectively squelch.

"We're from the University of North Carolina" read one of the signs carried last weekend by a picketing member of the Student Peace Union when that group paraded around the John F. Kennedy Special Forces Center at Ft. Bragg. That demonstration was but a drop in the rain barrel that overflowed around the world last weekend as radical and pacifist (and radical pacifist) groups expressed their opposition to United States participation in the war in Viet Nam. It is this "We're from the University of North Carolina" and not the views of campus radicals that poses the most immediate threat to the shaky academic security of this University. And it is this danger that student government should and could move swiftly to kill.

Why the sign reading "We're from the University of North Carolina"? This is an excellent question. It has not been answered, but the obvious reason is that it was an attempt to link in some way the name of this University with the activities of the Student Peace Union. Specifically, of course, it may have been intended only to tie in the University with Sundays march. But the chance looms large and thunderous that this overture might be expanded into a complete symphony.

Considering the circumstances, it was a crude but well-timed move. It is just such campus radicals as these that lend justification all over the state to the speaker ban law. Twist motives and talk of legalities all you will, a majority of North Carolinians who support the law will say they do because of "those beatniks" at Carolina. Considering the circumstances as they appeared last weekend, it's hard to argue with these people. "We're from the University of North Carolina" only tied the knot tighter that binds UNC and SPU together in the minds of many North Carolinians.

It would, of course, be impossible to convince any intelligent person who is aware of the proportions of the facts that UNC has been taken over by the SPU and its radical approach to reality, or that the SPU is but an extension — or a voice — of secret views held by a University that is seeking to put an ultra-liberal or even communist hex on the young minds of this state. But to the person who does not see the facts in their true proportions, these ideas come effortlessly when there is something to light the fire. Several fires, undoubtedly were lit last weekend, but what is worse, many barely glowing embers probably burst into full flame.

There is no question whatsoever that the sign carrying pickets at Ft. Bragg last weekend damaged this University. There is little question these same pickets will go on damaging this University in the future, unless they are stopped. Whether their views inadvertantly correspond or conflict with the dominant strain of thought on campus, 20 do not represent 12 thousand. This misrepresentation will continue until something is done about it. It is for student government to take action.

Why student government? Obviously, for students to take action themselves would be the most effective means of eliminating the blight. Aside from the fact that students would be censoring students, they would at the same time be demonstrating the true feelings of at least a majority of the student body and expressing those feelings through an organ that could rightfully say: "We're from the University of North Carolina." Secondly, action by student leaders would absolve the University administration of the chance that it might have to take action sometime in the future to restrict student freedoms. The tolerance of the administration has a limit. It must not be exceeded.

What action? That is up to student government leaders. Those leaders should bear in mind, however, that the pickets last weekend broke federal laws and endangered the security of a United States military reservation. Although a precedent was set during the racial demonstrations here that participants would not be tried by the student courts for activities that resulted in civil or criminal actions, that precedent does not apply in the case of the SPU pickets last weekend, for two reasons. First, and of least consequence, their actions at Ft. Bragg last weekend carried far greater ramifications than did any civil rights demonstration in Chapel Hill. The picketers at the special forces center did not merely lie down in front of the traffic in a small town of 13,000, they attempted to interfere in operations of global significance. Secondly, the picketers defeated any hope of using the precedent as a defense by the very sign they carried. "We're from the University of North Carolina" clearly takes the demonstration at Ft. Bragg out of the realm of personal or moral convictions. It drags in every student who attend this University, and makes it impossible for any single individual who took part in the demonstration to defend his actions on the grounds he meant to express his opinion and his alone.

In its mildest interpretation, the demonstration at Ft. Bragg was "ungentlemanly." Student Government takes action when somebody makes a scene in front of thirty-five thousand fans at a football game and drinks too much. It is time Student Government did something about those who made a scene in front of four and one-half million North Carolinians — and the rest of the world, too.

Letters To The Editor

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel welcomes letters to the editor on any subject, particularly on matters of local or University interest. Letters must be typed, double spaced and must include the name and address of the author or authors. Names will not be omitted in publication. Letters should be kept as brief as possible. The DTH reserves the right to edit for length or libel.

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

On October 25, 1965 Dr. Erik von Kuehnelt - Leddihn will speak in 08 Peabody Hall, at 8 p.m. Dr. Kuehnelt - Leddihn informs us (the Carolina Conservative Club) that he prefers an openly hostile audience to a passive one, that he welcomes debate with the left.

Dr. Kuehnelt - Leddihn follows in the Middle European "Neo-Liberal" tradition, classifying 'liberals' into four basic schools: (1) "Pre-Liberalism: This was best represented by Adam Smith who was strongly deistic and advocated an economic philosophy which emphasized Freedom." (2) "Early Liberalism: This philosophy of the early 19th century placed less emphasis on economics. The most able writers of the group were Alexis de Tocqueville, Lord Acton, and Jacob Burckhardt.

Tocqueville once said 'I love with passion freedom, legality, and respect fpr rights — but not democracy . . . Liberty is the foremost of my passions.' Burckhardt, 'foreseeing the drive toward identity,' wrote 'tyranny will raise its head in the next (the 20th) century."

(3) "Late Liberalism: This school, best exemplified by the Manchesterians and Herbert Spencer, was strongly economic. Unlike the Pre-Liberals, their intellectual forebears, they were often agnostic, leading to their condemnation by Pius IX." (4) "Neo-Lberalism: This school derives its intellectual inspiration from the Early Liberals. They are strongly Manchesterian, oppose government intervention, seek to preserve competition, but unlike the Late Liberals, have a theological foundation for their philosophy of freedom."

Dr. Kuehnelt - Leddihn challenges the very intellectual identity of those on the American left, terming it "pure instinct," while stating that intellectual diversity is much stronger on the right: "it has a purely intellectual basis, wanting others to be not like themselves."

This gentleman's reputation as a scholar and a critic is most impressive. Having taught at Georgetown University, Ford ham University and Chestnut Hill College in the United States, and Beaumont College in England, Dr. Kuehnelt - Leddihn's experience in the academic community is substantial. In addition, he has contributed to Commonweal, America, Modern Age, and is currently European correspondent for National Review magazine.

This distinguished scholar challenges the latter-day liberal, and is prepared to engage all comers.

Wilson A. Clark, Jr.
President
Carolina Conservative Club

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Wednesday's DTH brought to light a real atrocity. I had no idea campus coeds had to make their beds by ten o'clock. "This policy (of bed making and-or dual standards) is an anachronism," intone three Cobb girls. From this statemet it logically follows that the policy in question was fitting for the coed of yesteryear. Hence, taken at their word, the coeds of today must be of better stuff than their ancestors.

Sadly, most males will admit they aren't the men their fathers were. This being true, and men and women being equal up to now in the eyes of God and nature, women have obviously become better than men. In this case, the dual standard should not be abolished but reversed!

Might I suggest that dorm girls take a page from the sorority book and employ white jacketed male wretches to perform the bothersome household tasks no modern woman should know. Perhaps a Boys Bedmaking Corps, the BBC, would be in order. They could make girls' beds (bringing to mind an old proverb) at that impossible hour of ten. The BBC would help boys dislocated in this sexual revolution. Also, the paltry wages (one shouldn't overpay a boy, he'll get uppity) would help finance the expensive weekend entertainments necessary for us drones to amuse today's intellectually jaded coed.

In my petty male way I've always harbored a grudge against dorm rule 15, which prevents me from taking my bicycle, or parts thereof, to bed with me during scary thunderstorms.

Dave Fox
128 Parker

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Are the "Craige Dormitory boys" really inept? Only to those other dormitories who merely boast of their greatness, especially Morrison Dormitory, may the men of Maverick House appear to be inept.

Inept at what? At the underhand tactics of stealing and humiliation, we may be inept, but at carrying on worthwhile and out standing activities, we are not. Who was the leading dormitory while Morrison was still an architect's problem struggling to raise its head above the mud and muck of Schroeder's Swamp? Maverick House, that's who.

Among the activities beneficial to both residents of Maverick House and the University carried on at Maverick House are the first successful inter-dormitory governing body, the Speaker Forum, the Outstanding Professor Award, the Motorcycle Scramble and the Gymkhana, and its own newspaper, the Tarpit. What has Morrison done?

Morrison said we couldn't get our gong back. We knew where it was, and we had formulated a plan on how to get it back, but we were asked by Dean Long and Chief Beaumont to refrain from disturbing Morrison's tranquility in order to return our gong to its noble institution.

Morrison had our gong, but the thieves were not men enough to return it in person. Instead they put it in an elevator and arranged the return in such a manner so as to humiliate Maverick House. Their attempts were unsuccessful. They only proved that there are some residents at Morrison who are childish and immature. Morrison's motto must be: If you can't beat them, play Mickey Mouse games and try to humiliate them.

Maverick House is number one and will continue to be number one. The only thing we have to worry about, as far as Morrison is concerned, is getting something stolen or getting hit by paper airplanes.

Louis J. Sipka, Jr.
219 Maverick House

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

"Inept?" Not the men, the boys of "Big Morri." Stealthily, with prowess and audacity the Moes infiltrated the hallowed halls of the "old Mave" and proceeded with the utmost of skill and polish to capture their prize. Their quest for the Golden Gong successful, the Moes had made a name for themselves. No longer need the marauding Moes be overshadowed by the daring deeds of the Mavericks, for they had profaned the unguarded, sanctified chambers of the Golden Gong and had taken it for their own.

Back into the dreary swamps went the "Moorisons." Their quest was won, their cause lost. "All that glitters is not gold." In uncouth hands the Golden Gong was not a symbol of prestige and spirit, but a disdainful piece of booty. Tired of that unwieldy toy, of gloating in their fleeting moment of stolen glory, beset upon by Chief Beaumont and other Mavericks, the Moes returned their ill-gotten prize with typical backwoods protocol and aptitude. Perhaps if accomplishment came as easy as stealing a gong, Morrison could, in fact, become number one.

Ralph C. Kirby
527 Maverick House

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

I was quiet impressed by Alden E. Lind's recent essay on Maupinism versus SPU'ism (Oct. 21, DTH). Seldom does one find such prose agility and command of the English language; and he argued his point with an engrossing clarity.

However, this dexterity does not make his reasoning correct.

For instance, I fail to recall a single case before now in which a group that, after turning its back on its country, was labeled as "patriotic." Nor have I ever known of a group which, having publicly demeaned its country in the eyes of the world was called "responsible citizens." I always thought that those people who actively supported an enemy to his nation were called traitors.

Lind, however, has taken just such a group, the Student Peace Union, and cuddled them in the arms of moral satire like a whipped puppy. Even in the face of the SPU's recent actions martyring the Viet Cong and decrying U. S. "intervention," he fails to see that this puppy is rabid to American democracy. Their aims are not, as Lind implies, to strengthen our democracy by exercising "the critical responsibilities of American citizenship," but to undermine it in every way possible. They hide behind a cloak of respect for the blood of young Americans in South Viet Nam to spit on human nobility. They spray mud on the robe of national integrity by openly supporting Communist aggression. To these creatures of vile reasoning, I offer nothing but animosity.

Proudly, then, I place myself, along with Armistead Maupin and the majority of Carolina students, in the rank of those Lind has chosen to call "inpenetrably stupid." If I must be "inpenetrably stupid" to support the righteous cause of my country, then I say so be it.

Russell A. Marion
434 Cameron Ave.

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

As I was standing in the YMCA building this morning (Oct. 20), the campus SPU chairman, Charles Schunior, came in. I think that the reason my attention was focused on him was due to his unusual manner of dress — a clean shirt and tie. He proceeded to the other side of the bulletin board, where the "For Rent" notices are displayed. As most people probably know, each notice is on a 3 x 5 card and is separately attached to the board by a single thumb tack. Or, at least they were.

What Schunior was doing was removing thumb tacks from some of the notices and then attaching two notices together with one thumb tack. He then took the thumb tacks which he had "obtained" and went outside, whereupon he tacked up a sign which asked people to contribute money to the SPU so that the SPU could contribute it to CARE. I would suggest that the SPU take the first fifteen cents from their contributions (assuming they collected at least that much) and go just a few steps further into the Y and purchase a small box of thumb tacks.

Leon W. Barber
170 Bagley Drive

Biblical Scholar Coming To UNC

DR. HARRY M. ORLINSKY

By DAVID ROTHMAN
DTH Staff Writer

UNC will be visited by a famous Bible scholar who believes:

—That the commandment against the "name of the Lord in vain is not an injunction against profanity.

— That the first word in the Bible should be "when," not "in."

— That the Israelities fleeing from their Egyptian bondage crossed the Sea of Reeds instead of the Red sea.

Dr. Harry M. Orlinsky will speak in Howell Hall Nov. 1 and 2 at 8 p.m.

He is the author of a new translation of the five books of Moses and the first Jew invited to participate in an authorized Christian translation of the Bible into English.

The editor-in-chief of the New Translation of the Hebrew Bible for the Jewish Publication Society of America thinks word-for-word translations of the Bible have led to misinterpretation of Hebrew idioms.

Rabbi Howard Rabinowitz of the UNC Hillel Foundation, who studied under him, says Dr. Olinsky made his discoveries by using archaelogy to understand the idioms' true meanings.

Dr. Orlinsky's "Ancient Israel" is a standard text in schools of religion across the country and is said to be the best short history of Israel available.

A graduate of the University of Toronto, Dr. Orlinsky received his Ph.D. from Dropsie College in 1935.

He is chairman of the American Friends of the Israel Exploration Society, a Fellow of Princeton University's Council of the Humanities and of the American Academy for Jewish Research, and a member of the Editorial Committees of Jewish Apocryphal Literature and the Society of Biblical Literature.

His talk is part of the third annual Rosa B. Weinstein Memorial Lecture on Religion, presented by the UNC Hillel Foundation.

Homecoming Lists Prizes

Five trophies will be awarded in Saturday's Homecoming display contest.

Prizes will be given in the following categories: Best All-campus; Best men's Residence Hall; Best Women's Residence Hall; Best Fraternity; and Best Sorority.

Judging will be based on beauty and originality. Judging will begin at 10 a.m.

Students with any questions about this contest should contact Rick Kramer, 968-9179.

FOURTH R

As school children settle down to the three Rs again, parents and teachers are concerned about the "fourth R" — rheumatic fever. Children of school age are the special targets of this cruel disease, the North Carolina Heart Association points out, noting that peak incidence occurs during the school year.

Information

The new phone number for information at Graham Memorial is 933-2285. Students should call this number for information on telephone numbers and addresses.

MUM'S THE WORD. Lois Shepherd has a secret. See the story on page one, if you're interested.

Jazz Festival Today

An "All Star Jazz Festival" will be presented in Graham Memorial Lounge Sunday at 8 p.m. The "Jazz Souls," a seven piece non-professional ensemble, will provide the music.

The group was organized by Jim Hunt, who notes that the concert will "bring out into the open this outstanding jazz talent which the public doesn't often get a chance to hear."

The sound of the group is modern, emphasizing basic jazz representative of several main streams today, such as that played by Andre Previn, Jerry Mulligan, and Dave Brubeck.

"We want to present listenable jazz which the audience and players will enjoy," said Hunt.

Hunt plays the Flugalhorn, which, he explains is an old band instrument played like a trumpet, but which has "a larger bell which produces a mellow sound."

Other ensemble members are Jim Crawford, tenor sax, Buddy Parker, trombone, Keith McClelland, piano, Bill Ammons, alto sax, Fred Sheehan, bass, and Jim Bradshaw.

According to Hunt the group plans to play "old favorites and traditional stand - bys" such as "Girl from Ipanema" and Bossa Nova tunes.

Pep Rally

A Homecoming fireworks display and pep rally will be held Friday night at 8. The football team will come, and the Homecoming Court will be introduced.

UNC Calendar Of Campus Events

TODAY

LSA supper and discussion meeting at 5:30 in the church. Topic for discussion will be "The Playboy Conception of Sex" presented by Dr. Clifford B. Reifler.

Newman Apostolate meeting at Chase Cafeterian in the Delta Room, at 6 p.m. The speaker will be Dr. Sam Hill, head of the UNC Religious Department.

Westminister Fellowship presents "TC and TCG — Do They Exist?," a program on the role of men and women. Supper is at 5:30 p.m.

Inter - Varsity Christian Fellowship, Graduate Chapter will meet at 8 p.m. in Roland Parker III. This is a Bible study for all interested graduate students.

Carolina Political Union will meet in the Grail Room of GM at 8 p.m. Rev. Coffin of Yale will present a critique of U. S. policy in the Far East.

National Merit Scholarship Committee will meet at 5 p.m. upstairs in Lenoir Hall. Pictures will be made.

Episcopal Student Congregation — Supper at the church, 6 p.m., followed by a program.

Sunday Evening Symposium 7:30 p.m. Address by Harold G. McCurdy, Kenan Professor of Psychology and author of Personality and Science, on "The Foundation of Freedom in the Christian Faith and in Human Experience."

University Baptist Church will present at 7 p.m. a student forum on "A Liberal View of the Book of Genesis." Speaker will be Mr. John Keith of the Temple Baptist Church in Durham.

C.C.U.N. will hold a United Nations Day Festival from 3 to 5 p.m. at G.M. Displays and talent from various countries will be featured. Refreshments.

MONDAY

Prof. Nancy Bowers of Duke University will speak to the Anthropolgy Club tonight at 8 on "Historical Problems in Highland New Guinea." The meeting will be held in the Alumni Building Lounge on the fourth floor. Slides will be shown, and the public is invited.

The Honors Seminar Room will be open for use by freshmen, sophomores, and past members of these programs Mon.-Fri. from 1-10:45 p.m. in 303 Wilson Library.

Tickets for a dance this Friday in the Maverick House night club go on sale today at 1 p.m. in Y-Court. Maurice Williams and the Zodiacs will provide music for the dance.

The deadline for Operation Match has been extended until today so some Raleigh schools can finish.

The Tennis Club of the Women's Athletic Association will meet today at 3:30 on the clay courts.

The Lampshades will meet today at 5 p.m. in the Nurses Dorm lobby.

The YM-YWCA Religious Emphasis Committee will meet today at 5 p.m. in Room 205 Y-Building.

Students For A Democratic Society will meet tonight at 8 i 205 Alumni to hear a presentation on student responsibility i nthe context of the current power structure of this University.

There will be an I.S.B. meeting tonight at 7:15 upstairs in the YMCA

The Academic Affairs Committee will meet in the GM Grail Room at 4 p.m. today

The Judicial Committee of Student Legislature will meet today in Woodhouse Room of GM. BJ-39-2 and BJ-39-4 will be considered.

The GMAB Publicity Committee will meet in Roland Parker 3 this evening at 5

The meeting will concern Nancy Wilson publicity; and all members should attend, says Chairman Dave Knesel

TUESDAY

The Student Committee on Honors will meet this afternoon at 4 in 303 Wilson Library. Pictures will be taken, and members should dress accordingly.

The Student Credit Commission will hold a short organizational meeting today at 4 p.m. in GM Roland Parker 1

Alpha Epsilon Delta, international pre-med and pre-dental honorary society, will hold its second rush meeting tonight at 7 in 226 Medical School Building. The meeting is open to all interested persons.

Art Lecture Will Be Presented Here

Luigi Borelli, professor of Italian and French, University of South Carolina, will give an illustrated lecture "Miniatures of Fourteenth and Fifteenth Century Manuscripts of The Divine Comedy" in Room 115, Ackland Art Center, Thursday, October 28 at 7:45 p.m.

The literary significance of the miniatures will be discussed by the speaker.

Sponsored jointly by the Italian Cultural Society (Dante Alighieri) and the Department of Art, the lecture is another observance of the 700th anniversary of the birth of the great Italian writer Dante Alighieri.

The lecture, in English, is open to the public.

HEART RULES

"His heart rules his head" may be one way of say.ng that a man's emotions rule his reason. On the other hand, it may be literally true because the heart, as the center of the circulatory system, in a sense, rules all parts of the body, says the North Carolina Heart Association.

Volunteers For Research

A sleep - dream research team at UNC wants to study in young adults the inability of the body to control urination during sleep (enuresis, or bedwetting).

Research techniques developed here have been used successfully to study children under the age of 14.

As far as the researchers know, however, enuresis in older age groups have not been studied with the new methods.

Volunteers with an enuresis problem will be paid for sleeping in the research laboratory in the medical school.

No pain or discomfort in involved and names of volunteers will be held in strict confidence. Persons interested in participating as volunteers may contact Dr. David R. Hawkins at Memorial Hospital (966-8377).

MONDAY ONLY Varsity

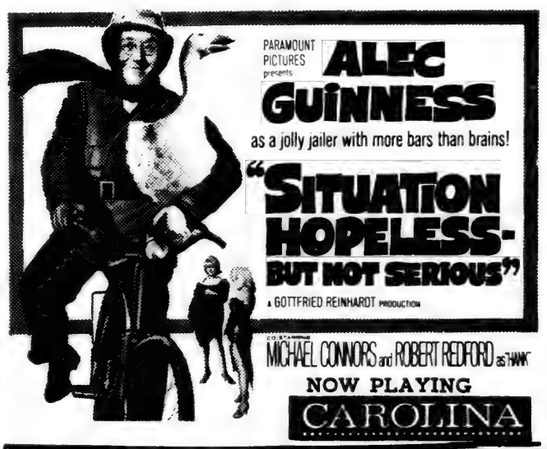
Reynolds Coliseum
Wed., Nov. 10, 8 P.M.

The Rolling Stones
Admissions $2.50, $3.00 and $4.00
• The Vibrations • Patti LaBelle and the Blue Bells • The Rocking Ramrods • Plus other acts
Tickets now available at Coliseum Box Office, Thiem's Record Shop, Village Pharm. Camera Shop and RECORD BAR Durham & Chapel Hill

Competition and Sports Cars Ltd.
SAAB
LOTUS
Foreign Car Repairs & Accessories

if she doesn't give it to you... —get it yourself!
JADE EAST®

Cologne, 6 oz., $4.50
After Shave, 6 oz., $3.50
Deodorant Stick, $1.75
Buddha Cologne Gift Package, 12 oz., $8.50
Spray Cologne, $3.50
Buddha Soap Gift Set, $4.00
Cologne, 4 oz., $3.00
After Shave, 4 oz., $2.50
SWANK, NEW YORK — SOLE DISTRIBUTOR



Insurance
Estates
Annuities
"Time Is All It Costs To Compare"
William M. Buell
The Northwestern Mutual Insurance Company
121 W. Rosemary St.
P. O. Box 1314
Bus. 942-6966 Res. 968-6622

Varsity
LAST DAY

GM PRESENTS
NANCY WILSON

Coming Sat. Nov. 6 at 8 p.m.
TICKETS GO ON SALE
THIS WED. — FOR U.N.C. STUDENTS
U.N.C. STUDENTS — $1.00
GENERAL PUBLIC TICKET SALES BEGIN
NOV. 3 — $1.50 for GENERAL PUBLIC

KING WILLIAM RESTAURANT
1½ Miles from Campus on 15-501 South
SPECIALIZING IN:
STEAKS CHICKEN
SEAFOOD
"Choice Selection of Imported and Domestic Beverages"
All New and Modern, featuring
- Seating capacity of 300
- Spacious parking facilities
- Four private dining rooms
- Tasteful background music
- Catering facilities

Open from 8:00 a.m. 'til Midnight
SEVEN DAYS A WEEK

CHASE DINING HALL
In addition to our regular student special (50c)
Now Features at Lunch a
HOT SANDWICH COUNTER
MONDAY SANDWICH
Hickory Smoked Barbecue on Bun, Cole Slaw, F-F Potatoes
60c
Open: Daily 7-2 5-7:15 Sunday 8-2 5-7:15
* POSITIVELY NO WAITING BREAKFAST OR LUNCH *

Pat Stith

DTH Sports Editor

It's ironic, the situation in which North Carolina basketball players have temporarily found themselves.

Carmichael Auditorium, their new multi-million dollar home is almost ready for occupancy, but until it is they are preparing for their opener with Clemson like Tar Heel teams of 40 years ago.

That is to say, they're practicing in a rusty, old Tin Can, a gym that was home to the Tar Heels back in the 1920's.

There is one little problem that makes Tin Can workouts unique. Players don't just catch passes — they feel for them. Sort of like looking for your light switch on a dark night, only those passes aren't stationary.

"It's so dark in there that you can hardly see the ball," said Bob Bennett, who is a senior and a probable starter. "To catch a quick pass you have to use your forearms and your chest as well as your hands."

Had the original plans been carried out on time, Carmichael would have been ready for Dean Smith's men long ago.

But there were delays, including a broken water pipe which flooded the place after the floor had been laid but before it had been sealed.

Assuming the new building would be ready on time, however, the Athletic Department went ahead and cut the court in Woollen Gym down to intramural length. The team was left with the choice of working out on an abbreviated court or in the dusty, dusky, Tin Can.

Smith swapped light for space and perhaps the decision was a wise one. At least one Tin Can predecessor did pretty well for itself. The 1924 club won 23, lost none, and captured the mythical national championship.

This year North Carolina must replace All America Billy Cunningham, the finest Tar Heel basketball player of all time, three year starter Ray Respess, and outside marksman Ian Morrison, who transferred to Florida State.

And that's not going to be easy.

Larry Miller, the sophomore of whom much is expected, is a good one — but he is no Cunningham-Respess combined.

This year's club lacks height. It might be possible for hustle, speed and smart basketball to make up the difference in those crucial few inches — but again, it isn't going to be easy.

One thing that may be running strongly in favor of success is team attitude. Bennett says it is the best he's seen in his four years here.

"Good team attitude is not something you can talk yourself into either," he said. "Either the guys like each other and want to work together or they don't.

"In the past, players have made passes to teammates that never should have been made — just to show them that they were trying to work with the team.

"That's not necessary on this team," Bob said. "If somebody takes nine straight shots, it's because he had them to take. And nobody looks sideways at him."

This team, which lost a proven star in Cunningham and found a bright new prospect in Miller, has all the markings of an unknown quantity. And maybe its fitting that an unknown quantity start out in the dark.

Wesolowski Leads Attack

Imps Crushed, 31-0

By RON SHINN
DTH Sports Writer

DURHAM — The Carolina Tar Babies put on a tremendous offensive display Saturday in Duke Stadium to down the Blue Imps 31-0 in the 13th annual Cerebral Palsy Classic.

The Carolina defense remained unscored on after three games as they completely stymied the Duke attack and allowed only 132 yards rushing.

The Tar Babies are undefeated this season and have an eight game win skein after Saturday's victory.

Dick Wesolowski, Carolina's hard - running Canadian halfback was the workhorse of the game. Wesolowski gained 160 yards in 24 carries for a sizzling 7.1 average per carry.

The total includes one 58 yard jaunt that was stopped just short of paydirt by a desperation shoe-string tackle.

Carolina struck midway through the initial period when Billy Dodson kicked his third field goal of the season. Dodson's boot was from the 19 yard line.

Duke missed a field goal attempt early in the second quarter and the Tar Babies marched 80 yards for the score. Wesolowski carried it in from the one and Landy Blank kicked the extra point.

A Duke punt in the third period set up another Tar Baby score. Quarterback Gayle Bomar carried the ball in to climax a 68 yard march and Blank kicked another point after.

The final stanza was Carolina's biggest as it scored twice. Bomer completed a pair of tosses and then threw to Peter Davis for the score. Dodson added the bonus point.

Quarterback Jeff Carter completed two passes to set up the final score. Danny Leigh put the icing on the cookie as he carried it in from the nine. Dodson kept his perfect string going by adding the extra point.

Carolina racked up a total of 315 yards rushing. Wesolowski gained over half of the total and Bomar accounted for 80 yards in 11 carries.

Jim: 'Waited Too Long'

By GENE RECTOR
Ass. Sports Editor

The Wake Forest aftermath was not a re-run of the Virginia diaster.

A calm, composed Jim Hickey held court. Across the way, a jubilant Bill Tate was celebrating his "greatest victory since last season's upset of the Duke Blue Devils."

"We weren't real sharp," said Hickey — with no sarcasm intended. "We simply waited too long to get going.

"We didn't play one of our better games," he said, "but we came back and did what we had to do. We just missed — that's all."

Hickey was refering to the Tar Heels' fourth quarter comeback which brought them from three points behind at 6-3, to a 10-6 lead with 7:53 left in the game.

"Wake Forest played the kind of game we all expected," he said. "They played tough, defensive football. They moved the ball well, better than they have all year as far as I'm concerned. They got a good effort from their new quarterback Wilson and their receivers. That cost us dearly.

"I'm disappointed," he continued, "but far from discouraged. We'll just have to work harder next week."

"We were ahead and let the bomb kill us, just as it did in the Virginia game. Then we had another shot at it, we missed — and then we almost had another shot."

The 41-yard pass play from Wake Forest quarterback Jon Wilson to wide end Ken Henry was much the same pattern used against the Tar Heels in past games.

"It was the same type of pattern," said Hickey. "It was just another boy this time."

Joe Fratangelo, hurt the first time Wake Forest had the ball, was sorely missed in the Tar Heel defensive forward wall.

"Joe hurt his ankle early in the game," said Hickey. "He had a half - sprained ankle earlier in the year and I guess he re-injured it today.

"We let him play for a few plays after the injury, but he was ineffective. He should be back next week. I don't believe the injury is serious."

Deacs Drop Heels, 12-10

(Continued from Page 1)

quartet."

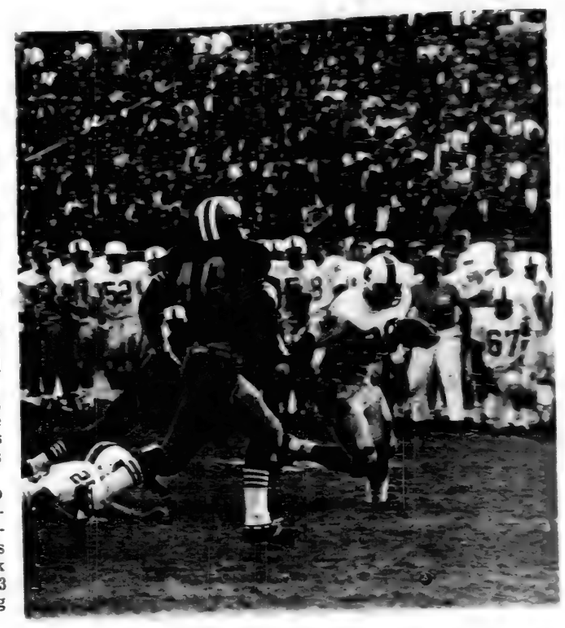
Quarterback Wilson, fullback Heck, and end Ken Henry were the major Deacon threats.

Heck gained more yards rushing against the Tar Heels than he had in five previous games. The junior fullback gained 118 yards in 24 carries — more than topping his 89 yards in five earlier games.

End Butch Henry caught seven passes for 103 yards including that 41-yard Tar Heel back-breaker.

Quarterback Jon Wilson, starting his first game for the Deacons, completed 14 passes in 26 attempts for 172 yards and one touchdown.

The Tar Heels had little to offer offensively. Max Chapman, the ACC's leading rusher, could gain only 38 yards in 13 attempts. Quarterback Danny Talbott offered only 43 yards in the air — completing six passes in 14 attempts.



HARD RUNNING Tom Lampman turns Deacon's left end late in fourth quarter.

Tin Can Case Concludes, Its Innocence Is Proven

By SANDY TREADWELL
DTH Sports Writer

The witnesses for the defense marched in a long procession up to the stand.

The weightlifters swatted at flies which circled around around them and every now and then took time out to say that the Can was the only place on campus where they could push their sagging bars up into the air.

The wrestlers and the trackmen spoke of the merits of the old juniper track.

"Without that track," Coach Hilton explained, "we couldn't send our best boys to the indoor meets during the winter."

JIM HICKEY and his football players also lift weights in the Can. "Without it," they said, "We couldn't broaden the muscles needed to move the mooses of Michigan, Georgia, and Notre Dame around the gridiron.

Walter Rabb and freshman coach Bill (the bear) Lovingood use the eyesore to keep pitchers' arms and legs in shape during the cold and wet afternoons in late February and early March.

Representatives from the residence halls and fraternities spoke of the invaluable use the building is to intramural basketball.

* * *

Finally, an old woman took the chair. "The most important use of this Tin Can," she squawked, "is in giving the girls a place for our picnics when it rains. Why only the other day I was telling Maud Fritter . . ."

"That will be quite enough thank you," the judge roared.

The defense counselor rose to his feet. "Your honor, the priceless value of the Tin Can has been simply and honestly established by these good people. The case for the defense rests. I ask for immediate acquittal.

The gallery rumbled with mutiny. Some even began making plans to remove it to some distant tobacco field and then blame the theft on Wake Forest.

Only the prosecuting attorney burned with excitement, for villainous cad had a large ace up his sleeve.

* * *

The judge turned his tired eyes toward the dock. "The defendant will rise."

The Pinkerton guards lifted the model onto their shoulders and the courtroom became hushed.

"I must agree with the young counselor," the judge stated. His gavel slowly and dramatically descended to the desk. "The state of North Carolina hereby. . ."

* * *

"One moment your honor," the prosecuting attorney said, while the gallery and the press broke into a surprised murmur. "The prosecution has one further witness."

The court watched in disbelief as an immaculately dressed gentleman took the oath. "It can't be," the people whispered. But it was.

"Your name," the snake-in-the-grass asked.

"Senator Beauregard T. Snippes." The people gasped.

"The state has had its eyes on the choice piece of property now occupied by the defendant." The Senator's words slowly built to a great crescendo. We don't know what we will use the land for as yet. But I can promise you one thing. It won't be too long before this Tin Can is destroyed."

The people in the gallery leapt from their seats and began to cheer. The crowd lifted the Senator, who was eagerly counting faces and newly won votes, into the air.

"The State can do no wrong," they yelled as they carried their hero out of the courtroom and down Franklin Street. "Up with the Speaker Ban Law. Up with Senator Snippes."

Only the model of the Tin Can and the judge remained in the courtroom.

* * *

"The case is closed," his honor whispered. And he ran into his anteroom and took a long awaited pull out of a bottle of whiskey.

'Baptism'

(Continued from Page 1)

the players started swinging for a few minutes. The Tar Heels should have used their energy playing football during the previous 60 minutes — it would have looked a little better.

So its back to Kenan next week and a strong group of Bulldogs. Well at least the Tar Heel will be "up" for this one — Georgia isn't exactly classified as sissy — like all the ACC opponents.

Wake coach Bill Tate called yesterday's win over Carolina greater than Wake's upset win over Duke last year.

"This is the happiest moment of our lives," Tate said. "It was a great team effort. We hit as well as we've hit all year. Our defense was superb."

Last year's coach of the year in the ACC pointed to Carolina tackle Hank Sadler and Danny Talbott as the top Tar Heel performers.

"We couldn't get anything over right tackle. That Talbott, he's a real football player," Tate said.

He singled out quarterback Jon Wilson for his magnificent play. It was Wilson's first starting role.

Tate also referred to end Butch Henry, the Deacon sophomore sensation who came up with the big play several times.

"They never gave up," Tate said, "I felt it would be a close one. We came back when we had to."

Referring to last week's loss to South Carolina, Tate said, "The ball bounced badly for us. This week it was the other way around. I hope we can stay with this bounce and win some more ball games."

Varsity, Frosh Swamp Clemson

CLEMSON — Jim Meade and Joe Lasich paced the North Carolina varsity and freshman harriers to wins over Clemson here yesterday. The varsity outran the Tigers 17-46 while the freshman won 17-43.

Joe Lasich set a record for the 3.2 mile freshman course with a run of 16:30, cutting 15 seconds off the old time.

The varsity cross country men took nine out of the top ten spots. Meade ran the 3.9 mile course in 20:08 to take first place. Mike Williams came in second and Bill Janowitz third. Fourth place went to a Clemson's Mark Miller.

In the freshman meet the Tar Babies took six of the first seven places. Jim Hotelling of Chapel Hill and Truett Goodwin crossed the line behind Lasich for second and third place.

The varsity victory was its fourth of the season against one loss. The sole defeat was to Maryland, 17-47. The freshman win was their twelfth in 13 starts and fourth this season.

The harriers have to face Duke next Wednesday in what shapes up as one of their toughest matches of the year.

The Duke varsity came within three points of beating ACC defending champ, Maryland, earlier in the season. The freshman Blue Devils have been the only team to defeat the North Carolina freshmen in the last two years.

Scores

Wake Forest	12
North Carolina	10
N. C. State	29
Maryland	7
Illinois	28
TCU	?
VPI	22
Virginia	14
Navy	16
Georgia Tech	37
Duke	14
Clemson	3
Pitt	28
Miami	14
Washington St.	8
Indiana	7

Villa Tempesta
IS OPEN
Dinner 5:30 - 9:30
from $1.95 - 2.50 complete

Thomas P. Lloyd, Jr.
942-6863
942-2208

The BLUE CHIP Company since 1846 that's low in net cost.

Superior management, investments, and risk selection have made possible our history of a dividend to every policyholder for 119 years.

Connecticutt Mutual Life

Neither rain nor snow nor heat nor Liz

can ever wrinkle h.i.s Press-Free Post-Grads

Nothing puts a crease in these pants where a crease doesn't belong. They hold their crisp, neat look hour after hour. No matter how often they get washed, they never, ever need ironing. Trimly tapered with belt loops and cuffs. Colors and fabrics for casual and dress wear. 65% Dacron® polyester/35% cotton, $6.98. Flannels, hopsacking, reverse twists, Acrilan® acrylic, $7.98. (Slightly higher in the West.)

INTERESTED IN SOUTHERN HISTORY

This week we've filled the old book feature case with ancient copies of the NORTH CAROLINA BOOKLET — Here's a chance to pick up reports of important events —written by the men who lived them.

Regularly $1.00
This Week 75c

THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP
119 East Franklin Street
Open Till 10 P.M.

"THE JAZZ SOULS"
TONIGHT
8 P.M.
G.M. LOUNGE

The Only Thing That Would Take This Load off my Back Is a STUDIO CARD

Ledbetter Pickard

Box 870

Corsages

Tickets for chrysanthemum corsages for Saturday's homecoming game are on sale in Y-Court today, $1.50. The sale is sponsored by the senior class.

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Vol. 74, No. 36 | CHAPEL HILL NORTH CAROLINA TUESDAY, OCTOBER 26, 1965 | Founded February 23, 1893

Services

The Wesley Foundation will hold a memorial service for the late theologian [illegible] today at noon. The service, at the new chapel at 214 Pittsboro St., will last about 30 minutes.

PEACH PIERCE
Joyner Hall

MARY KING
Maverick House

JUDY DUDLEY
Parker Hall

SHARON FINCH
Morrison College

TONI GREENWOOD
Ehringhaus

Homecoming Finalists Selected

EMILY CATHEY
Chi Psi

SHARON DERRICK
Spencer Hall

PATTI FIELDS
Maverick House

PEG McQUEEN
Sigma Chi

LOIS SHEPHERD
Alpha Delta Pi

— Daily Tar Heel Photos By Ernest Robl.

Attorney General Studying Klansman In Light Of Ban

By BARRY JACOBS
DTH Managing Editor

North Carolina Attorney General Wade Bruton has been asked for a ruling on the applicability of the speaker ban law to a Ku Klux Klansman who pleaded the Fifth Amendment.

He is now studying the question.

Consolidated University President William C. Friday made the request yesterday in Raleigh. The question concerns a scheduled speech by North Carolina Grand Dragon James Robert Jones on the North Carolina State University campus Nov. 22.

Jones repeatedly pleaded the Fifth Amendment when he appeared before the House Committe on Un - American Activities last week.

The leader of the North Carolina Klan refused to give the committee any information other than his name. In addition to the Fifth, Jones also cited the First, Fourth, and 14th Amendments as grounds for his refusal to answer.

President Friday said that the section of the speaker ban law which is relevant to Jones' case is Section 1-C.

This section forbids the use of a state school campus to anyone who pleads the Fifth Amendment concerning Communist or subversive connections or activities before a duly constituted legislative committee.

Bruton said yesterday he would have to do some research on the question. He said he didn't know when he would make the ruling.

Friday said that a transcript of Jones' testimony has been sent for, in order to determine what types of questions the Klansman refused to answer.

Should Bruton rule that Jones is barred by the controversial law, his decision could have wide significance. Other members of the hooded order who plead the Fifth, including Imperial Wizard Robert Shelton, might also be banned.

However, Friday pointed out that his question was concerned only with the specific case of Jones' scheduled speech in Raleigh.

Among the questions which Jones refused to answer were ones concerning Klan finances, the use of cover names for Klan charters, and one about the Klan's refusal to expel members known to have committed violence.

★★★★★★★

Trustees Refuse To Make Ban

RALEIGH (AP) — Trustees of the University, seeking relief from the speaker ban law enacted by the General Assembly declined to impose one of their own Monday.

The trustees, meeting in the old House chamber of the capitol, tabled without debate a policy resolution to prohibit Ku Klux Klansmen from speaking on any of the university's campuses.

Proposed by trustee Ernest E. Parker Jr., of Southport, the prohibition would have applied to members of the klan, members of organizations affiliated with the klan or persons taking the Fifth Amendment in answering questions regarding klan activities.

Trustee Luther Hamilton of Morehead City stepped in quickly with a tabling motion, harking back to the long controversy over the 1963 speaker ban law.

The trustees are on record as opposing the 1963 statute which denies a forum to Communists or persons pleading the Fifth Amendment in answering questions regarding subversive activities.

"Inasmuch as a kindred matter has been discussed at great length and with great volume, I do not see that any useful purpose can be served by this resolution," said Hamilton, former member of the State Senate. "I move that it do lie upon the table."

Hamilton's motion carried overshelmingly. Few "noes" were heard among the 100 members of the board.

Parker's resolution would have made the chancellors of the four university branches responsible for enforcing the klan ban.

Atty. Gen. Wade Bruton is preparing an opinion on whether the 1963 ban applies to the head of the North Carolina KKK, Grand Dragon Robert Jones of Granite Quarry.

Dickson Accepts 21 More Names; Petition Will Not Be Enlarged

Student Body President Paul Dickson approved 21 more names for the recall petition yesterday, but added that no more names will be accepted.

Rep. Sharon Rose, the originator of the petition, said the names had been secured before the petition had been handed in.

The elections board said yesterday that 18 invalid names have been found on the petition. The total number of "questionable" names, the committee chairman said, is at least 30.

Alvin Tyndal, the committee chairman, said most of the questionable names are illegible or were alphabetized incorrectly by his staff. five of the previously "questionable" names were located yesterday and found to be correct.

All the 21 names accepted yesterday were correct, Tyndall said. No names beginning with R, S and L have been checked yet.

Among the invalid names on the petition, Tyndall said were such signatures as "Dick Tracy."

Dickson said an election will be held Nov. 9, if the petition if valid.

The General Elections Law requires that nominations of candidates for the recall election must be submitted no later than midnight tomorrow.

"Nominations may be made either by the established political parties or by petition," Dickson said.

Dickson made the following statement to the DTH yesterday concerning the recall petition:

I have permitted 21 more signatures to be added to the original recall petition. These additional names were submitted to me by Rep. Sharon Rose who assured me that these names had been secured at the time of the submission of the original names. She also assured me that, to her knowledge, no further names were in the possession of anyone other than the Elections Board.

The Chairman of the Elections Board has ruled that further names would not be accepted. Rep. Rose has agreed to this ruling.

The Elections Board is still in the process of validating the petition So far, the petition has been neither validated or invalidated.

If the petition is validated, it is my intention to hold the recall election on November 9, 1965, the date of the regular fall elections.

The Chairman of the Elections Board has informed me that The General Elections Law requires that nominations of candidates for the recall elections must be submitted no later than midnight, between Wednesday and Thursday of this week. Nominations may be made either by the established political parties or by petition.

Sale Of Tear Gas Weapons Admitted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former North Carolina Ku Klux Klan official acknowledged today he once had been arrested for selling tear gas weapons.

But Richard Joseph Constantineau, a gundealer in Wilmington, N. C., told the House Committee on Un - American Activities at the time he didn't think he was acting illegally.

The committee is probing Klan affairs and its investigators earlier today pictured North Carolina Grand Dragon James R. Jones as a Kalnsman once disciplined for his radical conduct.

Constantineau said he was elected a state Klan kokann in 1964 but he actually appeared to have had little experience in the Klan, having joined in April or May of 1964 and resigning in August of the same year.

Constantineau explained his klavern, designated as the New Hanover County Improvement Association, had met for a while in a union hall, but then switched to a meeting room in Wilmington Motel.

The reason for the change, said Donald Appell, chief investigator for the committee, was the trade union learned the improvement association was actually a Klan klavern and refused further use of the hall.

Appell brought out that after the Klan dealer was arrested, another Klansman informed on tear gas sales at an obvious non-Klan business.

But Constantineau denied that he asked for the Klan to act against the other dealer.

Rep. Charles L. Weltner, D-Ga., said it appeared to him that Constantineau's gun sales went up sharply after he joined the Klan and Constantineau acknowledged his association with the Klan might have been the reason for the increase in gun sales.

But Constantineau said there was also "a seasonal factor" involved.

Jones was also depicted as once being expelled from the Klan for not paying his dues.

This was brought out as the committee put a series of questions to Arthur C. Leonard of Spencer, N. C., who the committee said preceded Jones as North Carolina grand dragon.

Leonard, as other Klan officials have done when questioned by the committee, refused to answer questions. He cited constitutional protections and possible self-incrimination.

The only statement Leonard made was to give his name.

Donald T. Appell, the committee's chief investigator, said another staff investigator had questioned Leonard before today, and that Leonard had said Jones had worked for him and that he had preceded Jones in the grand dragon post.

Appell said Jones and Imperial Wizard Robert Shelton met two weeks ago, when at that time both welcomed the committee's investigation of the Klan. He said they hoped it would "bring to light a lot of false thinking about the Klan."

Many Hear Policy Pleas

Nearly 200 students and faculty members heard pleas for a re-evaluation of U. S. foreign policy in the Far East Sunday night in Carroll Hall.

A panel of six distinguished Americans spoke on the issue to the group by means of a telephone hookup, and the audience later heard remarks by Rev. William Sloane Coffin, Yale University Chaplin.

The program was sponsored by Americans for the Reappraisal of Far Eastern policy in celebration of the 20th anniversary of the United Nations.

Coffin told the group mankind would only progress in the future through the concentration and unification of human knowledge and energies.

"United Nations Day is a grand time to reappraise the UN," Coffin said. "We need to launch an assault on absolute national sovereignty."

He called for the establishment of a standing UN army which would make the "forces of unity prevail" over the nations of the world.

Coffin called on Americans to show more flexability in its dealings with Red China and other nations.

He praised student activists on college campuses who bring crucial foreign policy and other issues into the public eye.

Dr. John Fairbank, noted foreign policy expert and a member of the six-man panel, supported Red Chinese admission into the United Nations.

"Fighting alone is not going to settle the conflict in Viet Nam and the rest of Asia," he said. "We must attempt to draw Peking into the rest of the world."

Fairbank emphasized the difference between Chinese and Western culture, and the long and separate histories which produced them.

Using the conflicts in Viet Nam as an example of the problems confronting U. S. policy in Asia, Fairbank said, "We're in a foreign nation far from home. The Chinese aren't.

"We can't withdraw militarily from Southeast Asia," he said, "but we can attempt to focus the problem on a larger plane."

He called for negotiations on Asian problems on an international level.

Editor Norman Cousins, Socialist Norman Thomas and author Michael Harrington condemned U. S. actions in Viet Nam.

Allard Lowenstein, former N. C. State prfoessor, said the United States was "ignoring the existence of the real China, Red China" by keeping that nation from joining the U. N.

Former Democratic New York City mayorial candidate William Ryan called for a reevaluation of U. S. foreign policy on all fronts.

Scott Speaks Here Sunday

Lt. Gov. Robert Scott will be the main speaker Sunday at dedication ceremonies for Scott Residence College, Avery, Parker and Teague Residence Halls.

Scott College was named in honor of the late Kerr Scott, past governor and U. S. Senator, Lt. Gov. Scott's father.

Speaking at 3 p.m., Scott will discuss "North Carolina and Higher Education. Trustees, legislators, university administrators, faculty and students have been invited.

Festivities will be conducted outside the main Avery, Parker, Teague area. A motorcade from the Morehead Planetarium lot at 2:30 p.m. precedes the ceremony.

A large picture of Kerr Scott will be unveiled and placed in the social room of Teague. Scott, the third residence college officially opened here, is the first one to be dedicated.

Robert C. Hunter, governor of the college which includes 650 students, said the system "is working well and has resulted in an improved spirit" among students.

Hunter is a political science major from Marion. Other officers of Scott College are Tom Mimms, secretary; Ed Blair, speaker of the Senate; Ed Little, treasurer; Mike League, Lt. Gov.; and Tom Jones, senator.

Bob Farris is president of Parker, Chuck Richards is president of Teague and Charles Morgan is president of Avery.

Philosophy Society Holds First Meeting

The Carolina Philosophical Society, a round-table discussion group, is now being formed.

According to Bill Woodall, organizer of the society, "The Carolina Philosophical Society hopes to fill the void that casual conversation in the various meeting places on campus leaves to the thinking student."

Woodall pointed out that many other universities have similar organizations. "Eventually we could debate other universities on philosophical topics," he said.

The society will hold interviews for interested students tomorrow and Thursday from 3-5 p.m. in Roland Parker I in GM. The society is open to all undergraduate students, but the membership will be limited.

Woodall emphasized that the meetings will be all discussion, with no lectures. The club will meet every two weeks in Caldwell Hall.

The group, said Woodall, "will seek to offer interested students of any major field intelligent discussion in the philosophical sphere, in much the same manner as the Carolina Political Union does in the political sphere."

The society has the support of the Department of Philosophy and will have a faculty adviser from that department.

Third Periods Quiet But Look Out Later

The third period is "quiet time" for North Carolina's football team and its opponents. The Tar Heels have scored only seven points during that period, their opponents only three.

By contrast a total of 75 points have gone on the scoreboard during the fourth quarter.

Symposium Drive Starts

The Carolina Symposium is launching this week its solicitations drive. Floor representatives in each dorm will visit each room and speak for approximately five minutes on the Symposium. It is hoped that $1 will be collected from each student.

The budget last year was $10,000, but it is being raised to $14,000 in order to increase the pay for the men who will be the featured speakers for the Symposium. Men are being brought to the campus from as far away as England.

Dean Allen Richardson, the minister of York Cathedral, will speak on "Myth in the Supernatural" as part of the total theme, "Man, Mind and Myth."

House meetings were held in each dorm on Monday evening to explain the financial setup of the Symposium. The soliciting began on Monday.

Senate Committee Issues Booklet On Viet Protests

By ANDY MYERS
DTH Staff Writer

The Senate Committee on the Judiciary has released a booklet titled "The Anti-Viet Nam Agitation And The Teach-In Movement."

Printed less than a week after the national anti - Viet Nam demonstrations Oct. 15-16), the booklet seeks to show the extent of Communist infiltration into the anti-Viet Nam movement in this country.

The 256 - page staff study was approved by the Senate on Oct. 13 in a resolution.

Some of the conclusions of the study include the following:

— "The great majority" of demonstrators acted for reasons ranging from "strategic considerations to pacifism."

— The Communist Party of America has given "all - out support to anti - Viet Nam demonstrations and teach-ins, have directed its members to participate in them, and have sought to influence them in the interests of Communist expansion."

— Many non - Communist organizations have neglected to demarcate "their position on Viet Nam or to repudiate Communist support or to establish . . . controls designed to prevent Communist infiltration and exploitation of their movement."

— Many "known Communists or (people) with long records of association with Communist fronts have been able to play a prominent role in" these movements.

— "The control of the anti-Viet Nam movement has clearly passed from the hands of the moderate elements . . . into the hands of Communists and extremists elements who are openly sympathetic to the Viet Cong and openly hostile to the United States."

— Teach-ins "have had absolutely nothing in common with procedures of fair debate or the process of education . . . they were a combination of an indoctrination session, a political protest demonstration, an endurance contest, and a variety show."

— The national teach-in of last May 15 "received complete support from the Communist and pro - Communist publications in the United States like the Worker, the People's World, the National Guardian, and the Militant."

Cadets Honored

Seven Air Force ROTC cadets have been named Distinguished Military Cadets by the Professor of Aerospace Studies, Lt. Col. Kenneth W. Slaker, Jr.

Distinguished Cadets are eligible to apply for a regular commission upon graduation.

The cadets are: Robert R. Bandy; Charles W. Finch; Ellis J. Harrington; Thomas C. Harville, Jr.; Charles R. Payet; Clyde G. Thompson; and Joe R. Warfel.

Negro Schoolhouse Torn By Explosion; None Hurt

KENLY (AP) — A Negro school in rural Johnston County was shaken by an explosion today. The blast, before school opened, ripped open a wall in the rear of the building and demolished one classroom.

No injuries were reported.

Principal B. L. Williams of the Bagley School of Rt. 2, Kenly said the damage was discovered by the janitor.

Williams had no damage estimate and did not know the type of explosive used. He said State Bureau of Investigation agents had been called to assist the Johnston County sheriff's department in the investigation.

About 250 Negro pupils attend the school.

"We haven't had any trouble down here that would lead us to expect this sort of thing," Williams said.

The blast apparently occurred sometime between midnight and 4 a.m., but on one in the area reported hearing the explosion.

The Ku Klux Klan has been active in the county in recent months and was pointed out by the U. S. attorney general's office as a center of Klan activity in the state.

The school is located on Highway 301 about three miles from Micro, 35 miles southeast of Raleigh.

Seminar Set On Computers

The last of two seminars on the Triangle Universities Computation Center will be held by the Department of Information Science and the Computation Center today at 2 p.m. in Room 1, Swain Hall.

The discussion topic for the seminar is "The Status and Plans of the UNC-Chapel Hill Computation Center." Detailed plans for the new computing facilities, service and changeover problems for the University will be presented.

All faculty members and persons interested in using the computer are invited.

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of the Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. Letters and columns, covering a wide range of views, reflect the personal opinions of their authors.

ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR
JACK HARRINGTON, BUSINESS MANAGER

Take Care Of Yourself

'Tis a sad tale, but true, dear readers. In the hope that it will serve as a warning to any of you who might tend to be careless about your health, I relate this Saga of the Infirmary.

It was two weeks ago today. For a couple days I had been fighting the Battle of the Strange Ailment Which Gives You That Rundown Feeling more or less successfully with a generous supply of aspirin. Suddenly, I didn't feel bad — I felt terrible.

A midnight trip to the infirmary "for some pills to tide me over" brought about this scene:

"I don't care what you've got to do tomorrow. If I let you walk out of here with a 103-degree temperature, I wouldn't have a job any longer," the nurse said. "By the way, you have a very good paper this year."

"That won't work," I said, still unconvinced that my place in life should be a bed on the third floor of the infirmary.

Finally a doctor came around to check. He probed, thumped, listened and looked.

"Hmmm. I think you're taking pneumonia."

"I'll stay."

Two days later, another doctor told me what I really had was mononucleosis, glandular fever and strep throat.

"But I wouldn't worry. The mortality rate is very low."

Another doctor modified this somewhat when he later said, "I never heard of anybody who died from it, anyway."

Be that as it may, the patient's reaction is that he is first afraid he'll die, then afraid he won't.

On the fifth day a meal finally stayed down, and the road to recovery — which they say is a pretty long one — was finally in sight.

Mono is a strange critter among diseases. Doctors say they aren't exactly sure where it comes from or where it goes. There is no real medical treatment for it. Some irreverent scalawags call it "the kissing disease," but more scientific research must be done to substantiate their claims that the disease is transmitted only by kissing.

I've been told that overwork can cause the malady, too, so I'll assume that was my downfall.

But now that I think about it, she did say she thought she had mono.

But I didn't believe her.

Be vigilant, my friends. Stay healthy. And send your requests for sanitary surgical masks to me, at the infirmary.

Please enclose $1

The Dragon And The Ban

They were warned that something awful might happen to them, but surely they didn't expect anything like this.

When leading non-spokesmen for the Ku Klux Klan — including our own Grand Dragon James Robert Jones of Granite Quarry — refused to answer questions last week before the House Committee on Un-American Activities, Chairman Edwin E. Willis warned them of possible grave consequences.

"I think you may be in worse trouble than a mere citation for contempt," he said.

Already his prophecy is coming true. Jones just might have slipped his red neck into the speaker ban noose.

The law bans speakers from campuses if they have pleaded the Fifth Amendment in loyalty cases. Jones has been invited to speak to a YMCA group at N. C. State on Nov. 22 and President William C. Friday has asked Attorney General Wade Bruton if Jones, because of his actions in Washington, is covered by the ban.

Bruton said yesterday he had got a copy of the law and would render his decision as soon as he can research the case.

We're glad to hear that he is getting around to studying the speaker ban law, and we trust that he will rule that Jones is eligible to speak.

The speaker ban is troublesome enough without extending it and stretching it to ridiculous lengths.

If Jones is man enough, by all means let him speak to the group. They might not have any burning crosses, but we'll guarantee those folks at State will give him a hot time.

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all ap news dispatches.

William Otis

Conservative Defends Maupin And Claims Campus Consensus

Although some persons seem unable to understand even the most lucid exposition, let me borrow a pattern seen frequently on the editorial page in recent days, add a little new substance and see if somehow this might allow a bit of enlightenment to penetrate what seems to be thoroughly encrusted righteousness:

Most Carolina students think the Department of Political Science is an odious organization.

We disagree.

Odorous is a better word.

This august assemblage has made many intellecutal and artistic contributions to the campus of the University. With increasing frequency it has graced the campus with its disposition to villify persons and convictions with which it disagrees.

Its enthusiasm has not stopped there. In past months it has shown its constructive dedication by the bald indoctrination of unsuspecting students, and by abuse of the advantaged position its faculty enjovs.

But we've got to admit it. Up unti Thursday, it was a pretty funny crew.

At that time, Alden E. Lind, of "People Like You Come Only From The Political Science Department" announced the manner in which he hopes the student body will view Armistead Maupin, who as of late has lent his considerable literary talent to the pages of The Daily Tar Heel.

On Oct. 21 Lind urged all readers of the DTH to forego rational thought and swallow his snapping soup instead. This effort is in conjunction with a campus-wide campaign to "sell" students on the idea that American military opposition to the Viet Cong is in reality a plot hatched by the capitalist war machine. On this occasion uncivil slander and forensic "demonstrations" were to be seen in the pages of the DTH.

Political science scholar Lind pointed out quite clearly why he had chosen this technique to defame Maupin.

"People would search for a rational argument in our letter, and, finding none, they would doubt the sagacity of our words. And even if they found one, they wouldn't understand it."

He's quite right. They wouldn't understand it.

They wouldn't understand why some American students seek to revile those men who daily sacrifice their lives in a foreign land to preserve for others the very freedoms they so haphazardly abuse. They wouldn't understand how even the most stultifying element of the campus could find the stomach to direct its fatuous fanaticism against students who support those seeking to prevent the imposition of serfdom on the peoples of South Viet Nam. They wouldn't understand why you cloak your disdain for the American servicemen in a sham of concern for human life. They wouldn't understand how you have perverted the exercise of responsible citizenship into a cabal against those more concerned with the preservation of liberty than the oxidation of draft cards.

No, they wouldn't understand at all.

So, it seems, Lind settled on his defamatory letter idea. He decided to ask people to erode their convictions as responsible citizens, to deny their dedication and unity in the face of the enemy, and surrender to him the obligations of concerned citizenship.

The political science department must have realized that no one objects to "concerned citizenship." No one could tolerate the sight of that which the political science department might be able to successfully portray as apathetic.

Some of us, however, grow a little nervous when such persons as Alden Lind become the judge of what constitutes concerned citizenship and what does not.

It is a well known fact that there exists organizations through which campus radicals can pledge aid — both personal and financial — to the forces of those who revile persons whose right -of- center political convictions differ from their own. The possibility that members of the political science department might directly be furnishing similar aid has ramifications both repulsive and frightening.

Lind is aware that the consensus on this campus is substantially different from his own views. We think it would be a healthy idea for him to avail himself of some contrary opinion so that he might dissolve, if only momentarily, the encrustation of his mind.

Just don't get too close to an opposing belief, Mr. Lind, lest the next time you get apoplexy.

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel welcomes letters to the editor on any subject, particularly on matters of local or University interest. Letters must be typed, double spaced and must include the name and address of the author or authors. Names will not be omitted in publication. Letters should be kept as brief as possible. The DTH reserves the right to edit for length or libel.

Mike Jennings

Another Chapter In The Life Of Alberta, The UNC Patriot

I was strolling past the Planetarium, eating a Snickers, when Alberta the St. Bernard came loping past me from behind. She had a rolled sheet of paper between her teeth.

"Whoa, Alberta," I said.

She came to a halt and turned around. When she recognized me she dropped the roll of paper, which was tied with a pink ribbon, between her paws.

"Hello," she said. She was panting heavily.

"Where are you going with that?"

"I'm taking it to the Student Government office. It's a petition."

"For what?"

With as much gravity as she could muster, Alberta said, "For the preservation of respect for the worth of every living being."

"Oh," I said. "I guess I'm for that. Want me to sign?"

"It's your patriotic duty to sign."

I carefully put my Snickers in my coat pocket. Then I picked up and untied the petition.

I began unrolling it from the top. The resolution read:

The undersigned agree that Mortimer Grinkley, human student, should be hung by the thumbs for three hours as punishment for kicking Butch, collie, in the ribs on August 10.

I unrolled the petition to its full length. Below the resolution were hundreds of paw prints and four signatures. Each signature had "esq, ASPCA" after the name.

"Alberta," I said, "what does this have to do with the preservation of respect for the worth of —"

"Everything," Alberta burst in. "Just everything." Alberta came up next to my feet, sat down, and looked earnestly at me. "Don't you see the damage this incident could cause? Such a mockery of decency could damage the reputation of the University. It reflects on our moral values, our laws, our great institutions. How could any of us retain our faith in ourselves and in our leaders if this injustice were not righted? What will our children say of us when they learn of our shame? How can our system survive such ignominy?"

With one paw raised and her tail twitching furiously, Alberta bellowed, "Why, this outrage strikes at the very roots of our civilization!"

Before making a reply I allowed Alberta to calm down. Finally I said, "Alberta, I have no doubt of your sincerity. But one thing strikes me as odd."

"What's that?"

"How do you explain the fact that there are hundreds of paw prints on this petition and only four human signatures?"

"Dogs have more moral consciousness in matters like this."

"It has nothing at all to do, then, with the fact that it was a dog that happened to be kicked?"

"Nothing at all."

"I see." I rolled up the petition without signing it, tied it with the pink ribbon, and handed it back to Alberta. She left in a huff.

I plunged my hands into my coat pockets as I turned away.

My right hand squashed the Snickers all over my pocket.

David Rothman

Jerkeley ROTC Criticized For Upholding The Draft

Koob Egdelwonk, the nonconformist at the University of Jerkeley, finally decided to go through with his "soupfast" on behalf of Radio Free Europe.

But he made up his mind not to join the Marines after being blasted in the Daily Cowlifornian, Jerkeley's student paper.

During this period, a major student government party apologized to the Free Speech Movement for the behavior of 18 Jerkeley students who had motored 150 miles to an Army post to enlist.

Sponsored by the campus ROTC, the trip drew this reaction from the political party:

"We view with concern the abhorent and disruptive practices which the ROTC has used in protesting the policies of the Viet Nam Day Committee and the Free Speech Movement.

"We are especially alarmed by the full effectiveness of the ROTC's efforts to uphold the Selective Service system.

"We likewsie criticize the ROTC for its attempt to link our University with God, Mother and the Flag.

"We believe the overwhelming majority of the Jerkeley student body holds in contempt the seemingly patriotic and anti-communist policies of this organization.

Copies of the statement were sent to the Student Peace Union, Students for a Democratic Society and the W. E. B. Dubois Club of America.

Speaking on the Jerkeley campus, Oleo Daddio blasted a special youth leadership school established by the Young Republicans.

"Already this fall," Daddio said, "there are signs that this training has begun to bear fruit — in the form of defiant protest against anarchy and pacifism."

Daddio described the Young Republican clubs as "an illegitimate spawn conceived by Young Americans for Freedom and nurtured by a trusted ban of youthful advocates to the cause of patriotism and the U. S. Constitution.

"The Young Republicans," Daddio continued, "stand in the foretront of the campaign to confuse the mind, distort the thinking and make our college youth loyal Americans."

Commenting on the ROTC, a prominent national columnist wrote:

"Students who honestly want to get drafted are being confused with those wishing to serve their country.

"In my opinion, we should face up to the fact that not every college-age youth wants to do the right thing and become a draft dodger.

"Let's be realistic — let's realize that not everybody's interested in filling out a conscientious objector's form.

"As for those demostrations by ROTC groups across the nation — I am worried they will convince the communists the United States actually wants to stay in Viet Nam.

"Not surprisingly, this is creating an ugly atmosphere in Washington. Indeed, I think it is time for Sen. Wayne Morse to dig up the ROTC movement and grind it to bits."

Draft Card Death

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Under present Federal Law the penalties that can be imposed on a person who ills another to prevent him from exercising his civil rights are a fine of not more than $5,000 or imprisonment of not more than 10 years, or both. In the case of a person who burns his draft card (if we may assume that such act may proceed from a conscientious objection to killing) the penalties are a fine of not more than $10,000 or imprisonment of not more than 5 years, or both.

Granted that no valid conclusions can be reached by mere juxtaposition, the fact that it can be made in regard to the above strikes me as an odd commentary on our society and times.

Richard French
105 Johnson St.

Marceau Coming To Duke

"By breaking through the wall of languages, a panto-mime can become a brother to audiences anywhere." These are the words of Marcel Marceau, the famed French pantomimst who will be appearing in Page Auditirium on the campus of Duke University on Oct. 28.

His one-man performance is entitled "The Art of Silence." He has appeared on the Red Skelton Show, the Maurice Chevalier Show and the Dinah Shore program. He has performed all over Europe. He believes that pantomime is a universal art and a means of communication for people all over the world.

His program at Duke on Thursday evening, sponsored by the Duke Student Union, will present several of his famed "BIP" sketches.

Tickets may be obtained in advance through the Student Union, West Campus, by phone or mail (Box KM, Duke Station, Durham 27706; phone 681-0111, Ext. 2911), or at the box office which will be open each afternoon, beginning Monday, Oct. 25.

SLOT RACES
Tues. & Thur. Nites
7:30 P.M.
PRIZES
2 TRACKS, 16 LANES
Billy Arthur
Eastgate Shopping Center
Chapel Hill

ALEC GUINNESS
"SITUATION HOPELESS-BUT NOT SERIOUS" A PARAMOUNT PICTURE
LAST TIMES TODAY
CAROLINA

LUNCH from 1.10 to 1.65
DINNER from 1.75 to 5.50
Featuring U. S. Choice Steaks,
Back Fin Lump Crabmeat,
Baked Country Cured Ham
Breast of Young Chicken
Six attractive dining rooms of varying size and decor afford flexible facilities for serving
BANQUETS AND RECEPTIONS
Recommended by Mobile Travel Guide
Best of Hillsway
Blair House
Durham-Chapel Hill Boulevard
Tel. 489-9128

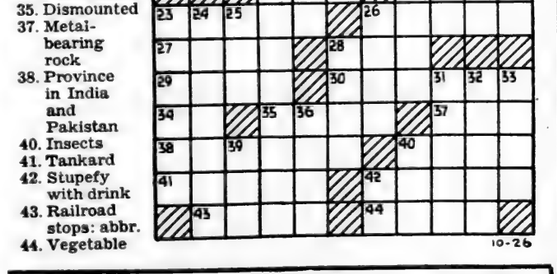
DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Soviet news agency
5. Scrutinize
9. The eyelashes
10. Wheeler
12. Greet
13. Tenant
14. Anger
15. Legislature
16. 3.937 inches: abbr.
17. Howitzer, for one
19. Competent
21. Frost
22. Regretted
23. Earthenware
26. Gusty
27. Moon
28. Fabulous bird
29. River: Czech.
30. Historical mountain
34. Author's work: abbr.
35. Dismounted
37. Metal-bearing rock
38. Province in India and Pakistan
40. Insects
41. Tankard
42. Stupefy with drink
43. Railroad stops: abbr.
44. Vegetable

DOWN
1. Coronet
2. Foreign
3. Yellow pigment
4. Samarium: sym.
5. German admiral
6. Central American republic
7. Than: Ger.
8. Heckled
9. Smart
11. Cure
13. Measuring cord
15. Wharf
18. Borders 6 down
20. Kind of roll
23. Ascends
24. Apples
25. Single unit
26. Pot herb
28. Wading bird
31. Stir up
32. Cant
33. Examination
36. Licks
39. Negative
40. Honeymaker
42. Size of shot

LACES		FAUST
AGONE		UTTER
SINGE		STELE
HOT		MEASLY
	EASIER
LANDED		SCAB
ELD	INIGARE
GASP		RAGLAN
	ROOMED
BEMOAN		REP
AMENS		EVOLT
SINGE		SINSE
STOSS		CASES

Yesterday's Answer



10-26

GM PRESENTS
NANCY WILSON

Coming Sat. Nov. 6 at 8 p.m.
TICKETS GO ON SALE
THIS WED. — FOR U.N.C. STUDENTS
U.N.C. STUDENTS — $1.00
GENERAL PUBLIC TICKET SALES BEGIN
NOV. 3 — $1.50 for GENERAL PUBLIC

Neither rain nor snow nor heat nor Liz

can ever wrinkle
h.i.s®
Press-Free Post-Grads
Nothing puts a crease in these pants where a crease doesn't belong. They hold their crisp, neat look hour after hour. No matter how often they get washed, they never, ever need ironing. Trimly tapered with belt loops and cuffs. Colors and fabrics for casual and dress wear. 65% Dacron® polyester/35% cotton, $6.98. Flannels, hopsacking, reverse twists, Acrilan® acrylic, $7.98. (Slightly higher in the West.)

KING WILLIAM RESTAURANT
1½ Miles from Campus on 15-501 South
SPECIALIZING IN:
STEAKS CHICKEN
SEAFOOD
"Choice Selection of Imported and Domestic Beverages"
All New and Modern, featuring
- Seating capacity of 300
- Spacious parking facilities
- Four private dining rooms
- Tasteful background music
- Catering facilities

Open from 8:00 a.m. 'til Midnight
SEVEN DAYS A WEEK

Coming Campus Events

WRC Women's Residence Council meets at 6:45 in the Grail Room in GM.

Anyone interested in the Mademoiselle Editoral Contest should sign up in 202 South Building.

Contestants for the Maid of Cotton should sign up in 202 South Building.

UNC Student Wive's Club presents Judy Hallman's Wigs and Hairpieces at 8 p.m. in 09 Peabody Hall.

YM-YWCA Executive Council meets tonight, 6:45, upstairs Y-Building.

Last interviews for state student legislature will be held today from 3-5 p.m. in Roland Parker II of GM.

Models for Ackland desperately needed from 8-10 a.m. MWF. See Prof. Howard in room B18 of Ackland, 933-2015. Both male and female needed.

The Honors Seminar room will be open for use by freshmen, sophomores and departmental honors students and past members of these programs Mon.-Fri., 1-10:45 p.m. in 303 Wilson Library.

Anyone interested in paid intermural manager for Craige and Ehringhaus come by the Intermural office in 214 Woollen Gym between 1-6 p.m.

Toronto Exchange will meet at 5 p.m. in Roland Parker II. All members please be present.

Interviews for membership in the Carolina Political Union will be held from 6:30 - 8:30 p.m. in Roland Parker I. Candidates must sign up for interviews and fill out application blanks at the desk in the GM offices. Graduates and undergraduates are eligible.

WEDNESDAY

All students interested in serving on the Murdoch Committee and working with mentally retarded children at Murdoch Center meet at 2 p.m. in Y-Court.

Interviews will be held for membership in the Carolina Philosophy Society Wed. and Thur. from 3-5 p.m. in Roland Parker I in GM.

There will be a meeting of the Circulo Hispanico at 7:30 p.m. in the Dey Hall faculty lounge. Dr. John E. Keller will speak.

Ticket sales for UNC students only will begin Wed. at the GM Information desk to the Nancy Wilson show in Carmichael Auditorium. Tickets will cost $1 for students, and $1.50 for the general public. Ticket sales for the general public begin Nov. 3.

Graham Memorial social committee meeting at 4 p.m. in Roland Parker II.

Ways and Means Committee meeting at 3:30 p.m. in Roland Parker II. Excellence study board, other bills to be considered.

LOST AND FOUND

Lost: Scotch grain billfold with ID Phone John Parsons, 968-9184.

Lost: Textbooks left on wall which surrounds Caldwell parking lot. If found, please return immediately to John Dietz, 116 Everett Hall, 968-9056.

Lost: Black billfold containing ID and other papers in or between Murphy Hall and Phillips Hall. Reward for return. Call Patrick Antrim, 202 Manly Hall.

Lost: A child's tricycle, turquoise and white, rusty. If found please call 929-1446, 227-B Jackson Circle in Odum Village.

Di Senate Meets Tonite

The inaugural meeting of the Dialectic Senate will be held tonight at 7:30 in New West Hall.

The topic for debate will be civil disobedience today.

Chuck Schunior, president of the Student Peace Union will be the principle speaker in favor of this policy. A member of the Carolina Conservative Club will debate in the negative.

Newly elected president Jerry Monro will deliver his inaugural address during the session.

The public is invited to listen, speak and enjoy refreshments afterwards.

FOR RENT: COMPLETELY furnished 2 bedroom, air conditioned 10 x 45 mobile home. Available Oct. 30. $80 per month. Call 942-3268 or 942-1749.

FOR RENT: QUIET ROOM very near West Campus for graduate woman student. 428 Westwood Drive. Telephone 942-3498.

Varsity
TUESDAY

OPEN ROAD INC.
HONDA
This Week's Specials:
New 1965 Honda
Scrambler 250cc
Reg. $727 Now $677
New 1965 Honda
Hawk 250cc
Reg. $677 Now $627
New 1966 Honda
Dream Touring
Reg. $602 Now $557
New 1965 Gilera
Sport 125
Reg. $549 Now $498
Large Assortment of
New and Used Cycles and Scooters from $95
NO MONEY DOWN
EASY TERMS
Bring this ad for $25 off
on any used 150 or 160cc
Honda
616 W. Chapel Hill St.
DURHAM — 682-8228
Open Road Inc.
Where Service Comes First

This is an ad for the Volkswagen Station Wagon.
As you can see, this wagon is loaded with reasons for owning a VW Station Wagon.
There's too much stuff, and not enough wagon. Only about 85 cubic feet worth.
If you owned a box-shaped Volkswagen, you could take all that stuff off the roof and put it inside where it belongs.
The VW holds 170 cubic feet; about twice as much as most regular wagons.
Which means you can seat 9 people and still have room for all their luggage.
(All their luggage means 13 pieces. And you can load it through 5 big doors.)
Aside from capacity, you also get a sensible little engine that averages 23 miles on a gallon of regular gasoline.
And you never have to pay for antifreeze or radiator repair.
There isn't any radiator.
So every time they make a conventional station wagon, they also make an ad for the Volkswagen Station Wagon.
(Secretly, we wish them every success.)
Also Fine Selection of Used VW's
TRIANGLE VOLKSWAGEN
3822 Durham - Chapel Hill Blvd.
Durham Phone 489-2371
Durham-Chapel Hill Area's Only Authorized Volkswagen Dealer

"I know all about General Electric. They make toasters and irons and things like that."

"Right. Things like the world's most powerful jet engines, the world's largest turbine-generator, the world's first Man-Made® diamonds. Things like nuclear power plants, suitcase-size computers and a whole new family of plastics."

"Yeah, yeah. Things like that."

Only about one quarter of G.E. sales are in consumer goods. All the rest are in industrial, aerospace and defense products.

A variety of products (over 200,000 in all). A variety of activities (everything from research and development to advertising and sales). A variety of challenges for young men who want to be recognized for their talents and rewarded for their work.

Important responsibilities come to you early at General Electric. Talk to the man from G.E. about coming to work for us.

This is where the young men are important men.

Progress Is Our Most Important Product
GENERAL ELECTRIC

Pat Stith

DTH Sports Editor

Now, after North Carolina's 12-10 loss to the ACC's number eight team, is as bad a time as any to expose the myth of the tough Tar Heel schedule.

UNC has played six games now, winning half of them — but who have they played?

At this point only one of those six, Ohio State, has a winning record. The Buckeyes are 3-2. Virginia has split its six games and the others are all losers.

Mighty Michigan, defending Big Ten champ and Rose Bowl winner, is 2-4; ditto with N. C. State and Wake Forest. Maryland, the pre-season ACC favorite, is 2-3.

Their combined records, knocking out the Carolina games, add up to a paltry 11-17 (.392), which isn't exactly what you call top-notch opposition.

Of course, North Carolina has the big end of the batting order yet to face in Georgia (4-2), Clemson (4-2), Notre Dame (4-1) and Duke (4-2).

But even combining the 16-7 record of these tail-enders with the records of Carolina's first six opponents you come out with only a 30-27 record. And that's nothing to beat a drum about.

Odd thing about it is that Jim Hickey's team will probably give a good account of themselves over these last four games.

Clemson, this week's opponent, and Duke are leading the race for the ACC crown; Georgia has the best won-lost percentage in the Southeastern Conferenceand Notre Dame is far and away the best independent team in the country.

While North Carolina may be fresh meat for squads like Virginia and Wake Forest, which rank sixth and eighth respectively in the ACC, they like going against the boys with the reps.

Take a look at their past performance. They whipped Ohio State, which is currently tied for third in the Big Ten race, and lost to Michigan, which is currently dead last.

They whipped Maryland, when the Terps were 1-0 in conference play and rated to go all the way, and N. C. State in it's own home territory, only to lose to also-rans Virginia and Wake.

Cross out the Carolina games and the three opponents UNC beat have a combined record of 7-6. The three teams they could not whip (Michigan, Virginia and Wake) have a 4-11 mark.

So it goes with the Tar Heels. Heaven knows they don't TRY to lose the little ones, but then they don't have to. For Carolina it comes automatically.

But things will be looking up from now on. There is nothing left to play but Big Leaguers.

Belmont Abbey Falls To Carolina, 3-1

Booters Score Sixth Win

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

Carolina's undefeated soccer team took its sixth straight victory, a sluggish 3-1 decision over Belmont Abbey Monday afternoon at Fetzer Field.

The Tar Heels dominated the game and controlled the ball through most of it but couldn't punch over a goal despite golden opportunities. The visiting Belmont squad scored first, striking with a sudden swiftness that stunned Carolina.

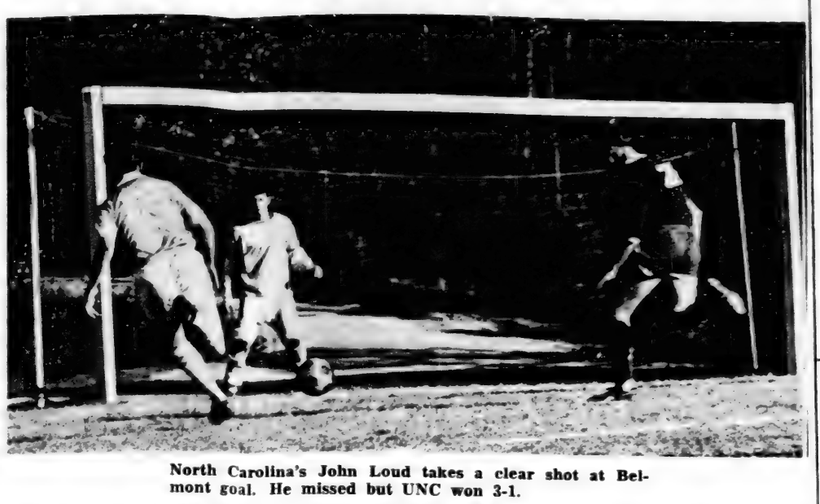
With the Tar Heels on the attack, Desloge of Belmont Abbey suddenly booted the ball out of the pack and down to the Tar Heel end of the field. Abbey's Farmer took the long pass and found himself with only one man in front of him. He moved around him and slammed the ball into the net by goalie Bob Johnson with only 1:10 gone in the game.

Carolina never did mount much of a threat in the first period, but late in the quarter started one which resulted in a goal. As Carolina milled around the Belmont Abbey goal, Bronson Van Wyck passed to John Loud. Loud did not get a good kick at the ball, but it squirted past the diving goalie and trickled into the left corner of the net to tie the game.

Right near the end of the first period Van Wyck injured his ankle and went out of the game.

The second quarter was one of frustration for the Tar Heels They spent almost the entire period in Belmont Abbey's half of the field and took numerous shots, but were thwarted again and again. Setups were continually muffed and kicks sailed high, wide and everywhere but in the net.

Finally, with 21:00 gone, Bill Polak took a pass from Jack Writer and scorched a shot which spun off the Belmont goalie's hands into the net, giving Carolina a 2-1 lead.



North Carolina's John Loud takes a clear shot at Belmont goal. He missed but UNC won 3-1.

Fourth-Quarter Momentum May Boost Tar Heel Hopes

By GENE RECTOR
DTH Assistant Sports Editor

Close to 20,000 fans jammed Bowman Gray Stadium in Winston-Salem this past Saturday to watch Wake Forest in their last home appearance of the season against the Tar Heels.

The Deacons took command from the start. The Tar Heels did tie the score at one point in the second quarter 3-3, but Wake pushed ahead at the half 6-3.

Something was wrong with the Tar Heels Saturday. Chapman, the ACC's leading rusher, just could not shake loose. The reliable arm of Danny Talbott just could not find the open receivers. Punter Bill Edwards worked overtime.

Three quarters slipped by and that big Wake three point lead was bigger than ever.

Then a strange thing happened. The Tar Heels, who had been down all game, found they could move the ball. They caught fire. The Talbott arm began to find the receivers. Max Chapman and David Riggs began to hit the Deacon line as Willard and Kessler did just a year ago.

Seven points was the result and the Tar Heels led 10-6. It was a comeback — a little one. But Wake must have been reading the season-long script on the Tar Heels. The bomb was their weapon — a 41-yard pass from quarterback Jon Wilson to wide end Ken Henry. Wake led 12-10.

Do not judge too quickly. If they can carry that fourth-quarter drive into their four remaining games, there could be some surprises.

Law IV Crushes New Nine, 25-0

Law IV, one of the strongest intramural teams on campus, rolled to a 25-0 victory over the New Nine Monday. Sammy Thompson led the way with two touchdowns and was supported by Richard Vinroot and Dave Frey, who added one TD each.

The Joyner Straps smashed Connor, 38-13. Bill Day and Glenn Mays scored two touchdowns each while Don Royal and Bob Brainard scored once for Joyner. Bill Field and Don Reber accounted for the Connor touchdowns.

SALES POSITION

Due to expansion of our Northgate Store, we have part-time positions open for salesmen. Also, taking applications for Christmas work. Apply.

Manager
The Young Men's Shop
Northgate Shopping Center
Durham, N. C.

Big Four Games Hinge On Kicker

Take the foot out of football and Coach Jim Hickey would be riding high against Big Four competition. In Hickey's seven seasons as headmaster of the North Carolina Tar Heels the only manner in which Wake Forest, Duke and North Carolina State have beaten him is by a boot.

Latest in this unusual chain of events took place at Winston - Salem last week. Wake Forest scored a touchdown and two field goals for the margin of victory, 12-10. Wake won in 1960 by 13-12 and in 1961 by 17-14.

Hickey, who took over reins when Jim Tatum died in 1959, stands 4-3 in his personal duel against the Deacons. Neither team has scored more than three touchdowns since the year Jim took over.

"The only way we're hurting this week is our feelings," said Hickey on Monday morning. "I felt we would play a much better game. But, frankly, I've never seen Wake play with more determination."

Let's turn to the Duke series and the Hickey - Bill Murray friendly feud. The teams have played six times featuring the two mentors and Hickey leads, 4-2.

Duke won by 6-3 in 1961 and 16-14 in 1962. Carolina wins have been by 50-0 in 1959, a 7-6 edge in 1960, by 16-14 in 1963 and 21-15 last season. So intense is this age - old rivalry the game is usually a sellout far in advance. Tickets have been gone for the coming Nov. 20 fray for several weeks.

Against North Carolina State, the Tar Heels have given Hickey a 4-3 edge over the chattels of Earle Edwards. It was State by 3-0 in 1960 and by 7-6 in 1962. The Wolfpack tripped Carolina, 14-13 last year. The Tar Heels won, 20-12, 1959. It was 27-22 in 1961 and 31-10 in 1963. A field goal won for Carolina this fall, 10-7, in a thunderous defensive battle at Raleigh.

Now comes an old foe for the Tar Heels, the University of Georgia. The Bulldogs will bring their bark (and perhaps a bite) into Kenan Stadium on Saturday. More than 40,000 will be on hand for the scuffle.

Georgia and Carolina have met one foe in common: the Michigan Wolverines. The Wolves topped the Tar Heels, 31-24, at Chapel Hill in the season's opener. Then Georgia went north and licked Michigan in its own stadium, 15-7. Coach Vince Dooley's doggies fight hard and give ground grudgingly.

"We won over Alabama and we won over Michigan simply by not giving up," points out Dooley. "We've lost our last two games — but without alibiing everyone knows we have suffered drastically from injuries. We weren't a deep squad at the start of the season. Wounds have cut our efficiency."

This is all quite true, but Coach Hickey and his staff shed no tears for Georgia. They know the Bulldogs always play tough and aggressive football.

"We played a poor game down there last season," notes Hickey. "I think every member of our squad will want to right that wrong. I feel certain we're ready to play our best football of the year."

Baby Booters Edge Warren Wilson, 2-1

The Tar Baby booters slipped by Warren Wilson, 2-1, here yesterday. Stuart London and Jeff Perry booted the two points for North Carolina.

The victory was the freshmen's third straight this season and their seventh straight since last year's 11-0 defeat to Warren Wilson.

London kicked the first point of the game in the second quarter. Wilson them came back in the third period to even the game up. Perry's boot in the final quarter provided the winning margin.

The soccer team's two previous victories have been against Duke and Clemson. They beat the Imps 5-0 and edged the Tigers 3-2.

The freshmen have to face Virginia here on Friday.

THING

"Frame your mind to mirth and merriment, which bar a thousand harms and lengthen life," said Shakespeare.

Alpaca has an Air

The one sweater that answers casual need . . . with finesse. Its slim rangy look makes a man feel pleasantly unbulky. Name your color . . . in 100% pure Alpaca. V-Neck & cardigans. From 24.95

Varsity Men's Wear

Clothiers of Distinction
147 E. Franklin St.
Charge Accounts Invited

It's Fall Bargain Time

at the Intimate

Early Birds get the widest choice

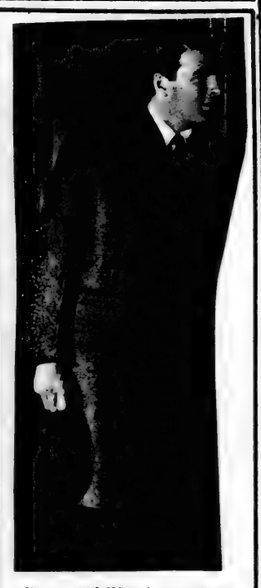
119 E. Franklin St. Chapel Hill

Ne Plus Ultra

Milton's Winternational Edition of Outdoorables Are Literally the Living End!
Basic Convoy coats with hoods in camel or navy $25.00
The handiest jacket ever concocted — the Monkey Parka — three great colours $11.95
Large assortment of mothproofed wool outershirts from $12.95
Monkey's uncle — just like the monkey parka with hood but orlon pile lined $19.95
Cotton heeksuede lined jackets with that rugged outdoor look $39.95
Sport coat patterns in olive crowfoot with brown alpaca collar and lining $40.00

Lots of good looking gloves to go with our outdoorables.

Milton's
Clothing Cupboard



Compatability is a matter of taste, and it is for this reason that The HUB offers a wide selection of the finest topcoats available. Loomed from the finest imported wools, these coats are available in plaids, herringbones and solids. A range of colors that includes navy, camel, olive, and brown insures the perfect accent for any wardrobe. With set in shoulders and patch pockets, these "natural style" overcoats should cost more, but don't .... from $9.95

THE HUB OF CHAPEL HILL

Wherever you are, you'll look good in NATURAL SHOULDER TROUSERS®

Our Natural Shoulder cut, always correct, fits all men comfortably. Choice fabrics and colors are in abundance. Own one. They're the best. Ask for Corbin at your favorite store, or write: CORBIN LTD., 385 Fifth Ave., New York, N.Y. 10016.

TROUSERED BY CORBIN

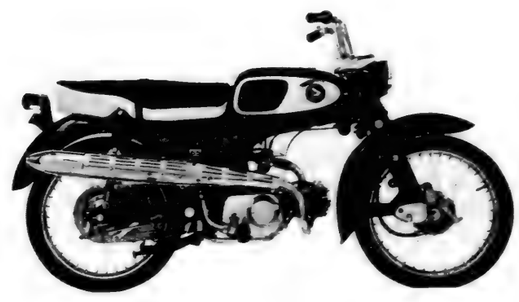
Town & Campus

149 East Franklin St.



Three Minutes from Craige to Lenoir . . . . IMPOSSIBLE??

Our new price for C.B. 160 is only $560.00

Travel - On Motorcycle Co.
"Headquarters for Adventure"
504 W. Franklin St.
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Corsages

Today is the last day to buy tickets for chrysanthemum corsages for Homecoming. Tickets will be on sale in Y-Court.

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

N. Y. Flight

Last call for Thanksgiving flight to New York. $46 round-trip. 25 seats left. Call or write Joel Simpson, 1042 Morrison, 929-5288.

Vol. 74, No. 37 | CHAPEL HILL NORTH CAROLINA WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 27, 1965 | Founded February 23, 1893

COMEDIAN WOODY ALLEN

Germans Present 'Platters', Allen

The 1965 edition of Fall Germans Weekend will feature Woody Allen and "The Platters" Saturday at 8 p.m. in Memorial Hall.

Allen is best known on the college scene for his film debut — both as actor and screenwriter — in "What's New, Pussycat?"

The 27-year-old comedian has been hailed as "the most refreshing comic in many months . . . one who thinks funny, says it funny in most literate style . . . the best young American new-wave comedian" by critics from coast to coast.

He has written ad libs for Sid Caesar, Art Carney, Garry Moore, Peter Lind Hayes, Herb Shriner, Pat Boone and Hermione Gingold.

"Now I'm writing them for myself . . . and hope some day to be able to afford it," Allen says.

"The Platters" made their UNC debut last spring at Jubilee and drew a demand for two encore numbers.

"Oldies but goodies" such as "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes" and "The Great Pretender" received a standing ovation from the massive student congregation at Polk Place.

Thirteen social fraternities comprise the UNC German's Club. They are Phi Delta Theta, Beta Theta Pi, Delta Psi, Kappa Alpha, Sigma Nu, Delta Kappa Epsilon, Phi Gamma Delta, Kappa Sigma, Alpha Tau Omega, Sigma Chi, Pi Kappa Alpha, Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Zeta Psi.

Bids for the concert are handled through these fraternities. Persons who wish to attend the Saturday night performance should contact a member of the Germans Club.

GI's Looking For Pen Pals

It's mail call for U. S. troops in Viet Nam.

How important is that letter from someone back on the home front? Apparently it is pretty important.

A letter arrived at Student Government offices yesterday from six marines who are fighting in Viet Nam asking for coed pen-pals. The letter read:

"Hi Folks! There are six of us sitting here around four candles on the doorstep of our beautiful little cloth mansion in Viet Nam.

"We were engaged in an 'intellectual' conversation, and the name of your college popped up. One of the guys lives in North Carolina, and he says all southern girls are 'nice and friendly.'

"Now for our brainstorm. We thought it would be a good idea to converse in letters with a few of you people. Please don't get us wrong — this is not to be any of this lonely hearts junk. We just think it is a good idea and that it might turn out to be a lot of fun.

"You people don't realize how hard it is to write one letter to an entire college. So we'll cut this off, hoping the idea is across.

"Enclosed are the names and a few characteristics of the people in our mortar section who would like to play along."

Names and addresses (and "characteristics") are available at Student Government offices, second floor, GM.

Roger Davis Killed In Auto Crash

By ED FREAKLEY
DTH Staff Writer

Roger A. Davis, one of Carolina's most outstanding student leaders, died last night in North Carolina Memorial Hospital as a result of injuries received in a one car crash yesterday afternoon.

The 21-year-old Davis died at 5:55 p.m. He was taken to the hospital by an ambulance from Walker's Funeral Home shortly after the wreck which occurred about 4:15.

At first the hospital reported that the Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., native had a compound fracture of the right leg, lacerations of the face and arms and was listed in satisfactory condition.

According to Dean of Men William G. Long, complications developed on the way to the operating room. Doctors tried resuscitation for 45 minutes, but to no avial.

Davis was trapped in the wrecked vehicle until the driver of the ambulance put a splint on his leg and lifted him free. Davis was conscious at that time.

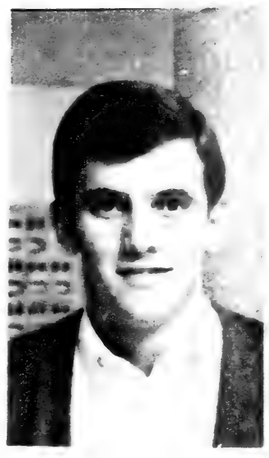
A Chapel Hill Fire truck was also at the scene. However, it wasn't needed.

Chapel Hill Police Lt. Amos Horne, said Davis, a senior in education, was traveling east on N. C. 54 in the inside lane when the accident occurred.

Hit Curbing

Horne said Davis apparently hit the curbing on the four-lane road about 100 feet in front of the U. S. 15-501 overpass in front of Glen-Lennox Shopping Center.

From here the car went up the merdian strip tearing off a four by four, three-feet high wooden post. It then slammed into the first bridge abuttment and then the second, turning around and sliding across the east bound lane before coming to a halt about 150 feet past the bridge.



ROGER DAVIS

Horne said the speedometer in the Davis car was stuck at 95 m.p.h. He stimated the speed at the time of impact was about 70 m.p.h.

Scattered Parts

Parts of the car were scattered from the bridge to where the auto finally stopped.

At the first abuttment was the left front door and the left fender. Near the second abuttment was the front bumper, a mangled hubcap and the radiator.

In the middle of the road were various engine parts, including the oil filter and what used to be a generator.

The hood of the red and white late model compact was resting on the bank where the auto stopped.

Student Legislator

Davis was a member of the Student Legislature representing Maverick House (Craige Resident Hall). He was the orginator of the Maverick House idea and was also a National Student Association delegate.

"Roger Davis was an outstanding and creative person," lamented Dean Long.

Student Body President Paul Dickson contacted in Raleigh said, "I am humbly and sincerely saddened by Roger's death. He was a fine person and a hard worker. He was devoted to this University and to Student Government.

"Roger spent many long hours here at Carolina working to improve resident hall life. I knew him personally and this loss of a friend hurts me very much."

Brit Gordon, vice president of the Student Body said: "On behalf of all of us who have worked so closely with Roger, I wish to express our deepest grief at the loss of a friend, a devoted servant of Student Government and of the University.

"Roger's natural creativity, genuine enthusiasm and cheerful sense of cooperation, have won him the respect and admiration of his fellow students

"The spirit of Maverick House which Roger helped to create will serve as an inspiration to those who seek to fulfill his concept of resident hall life in all areas of the campus."

DEATH VEHICLE

—DTH Photo by Andy Myers

NROTC MIDSHIPMEN paraded and passed in review yesterday on Fetzer Field in commemoration of Navy Day today. Navy Day is celebrated annually in commoration of the first congressional resolution authorizing American warships in defense of the colonies in 1775. The theme of Navy Day, 1965, is "U. S Navy-Mark of a Man." Photo by Ernest Robl

Election Date Challenged

By JOHN GREENBACKER
DTH Political Writer

University Party Vice-Chairman David Broadhurst charged Student Body President Paul Dickson yesterday with "usurping the powers of Student Legislature" by personally setting the date of the presidential recall election.

Dickson announced Monday the recall election for student body president will be held Nov. 9, the same date as the fall elections, if the recall petition proves valid.

Broadhurst quoted a section of the Student Constitution which states, "The dates of all elections shall be established by an act of the Student Legislature."

He said he was prompted to speak to Dickson about the matter after a Student Pary official told him the University Party had to submit to the board the name of a candidate for the recall by tonight.

"How can they ask us to do that," Broadhurst said, "When the legislature hasn't set a date for the recall?"

"I think the manner in which Dickson has handled this thing has been most improper," Broadhurst said.

"I don't want to see this thing lowered to take the form of a party squabble," he said. "This is an important campus-wide issue."

Dickson said yesterday he had set the time of the date after reading a section of the constitution which empowers the president to call for a recall election for the office in question if recall petition is declared in order.

Dickson said he would have to speak to his advisors before making further decision.

Recall Petition

Elections Board Chairman Alvin Tyndall said yesterday 158 names on the presidential recall petition have not been checked for validity by the board.

When these signatures have been checked, the board's investigation will be complete, according to Tyndall.

The board has already disqualified 18 names on the petition, and 90 names are currently in question.

The recall petition, to be successful, needs 1,863 valid signatures on it. It currently has a total of 1,917 signatures.

The 90 questionable signatures, most of which are illegible, will be sent to the Constitutional Council tomorrow for ruling.

"This investigation has racked the Elections Board physically, mentally and academically," Tyndall said.

"At least five board members have worked on the petition every day for a week," he said. "Sometimes we have worked from two in the afternoon until eleven at night."

Tyndall said the Elections Board would be finished with its phase of the investigation by early this afternoon.

Population Center Gets $800,000

Grants to the Population Center at the University were increased to more than $1 million Tuesday with an $800,000 grant from the Ford Foundation.

The Ford grant will support research, consultation and teaching on population problems.

Previously the Agency for International Development (AID) of the U. S. State Department approved a $267,984 grant and the Conservation Foundation in New York added $3,500.

The Chapel Hill center will undertake a broad program of research in family planning, including the effects of family spacing on health and the development of methods for spacing births, and patterns of fertility change.

The center's staff also will assist overseas institutions with programs of family planning research and training.

The center's broad chairman is Dr. John B. Graham, a pathologist of UNC's Medical School faculty Campus-Wide Voting, 8 A.M.-5 P.M.

Students Will Pick Queen Today

SHARON FINCH
Morrison College

Students will select by campus-wide ballot today the lovely lady they want to reign over UNC's homecoming tilt with Georgia here Saturday.

The Queen will be announced during halftime ceremonies.

Voting boxes at Chase Cafeteria, Lenoir Hall, Pine Room Circus Room, Scuttlebutt, Y-Court and Graham Memorial will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Rick Kramer, president of the CAA, said yesterday.

This is the first time Carolina students as a whole have participated in choosing a Homecoming Queen. In past years selection has been made by a panel of judges appointed by the Student Athletic Council.

A field of 75 contestants was originally entered by residence halls, fraternities and sororities.

Judges Chuck Erickson, athletic director; C. O. Cathey, dean of student affairs; Mrs. Douglas Fambrough, of Graham Memorial; and Mrs. Gene Wells, of the physical education department were assigned the task of picking eight finalists.

In judging last Wednesday night the panel narrowed the field to 10 contestants. "They just couldn't eliminate two more," Kramer said. "So we'll have 10 names on the ballot instead of eight."

A pep rally headed by UNC cheerleader with the pep band and fireworks will be held on Emerson Field at 8 p.m. Friday.

The homecoming Court and the football team will be presented to the student body then.

Contestants are Sharon Derrick, Spencer Hall; Patti Fields, Maverick House; Lois Shepherd, Alpha Delta Pi; Emily Cathey, Chi Psi; Peach Pearce, Joyner Hall; Mary King, Maverick House; Judy Dudley, Parker Hall; Sharon Finch, Morrison College; Toni Greenwood, Ehringhaus; and Peg McQueen, Sigma Chi.

TONI GREENWOOD
Ehringhaus

EMILY CATHEY
Chi Psi

SHARON DERRICK
Spencer Hall

PATTI FIELDS
Maverick House

PEG McQUEEN
Sigma Chi

LOIS SHEPHERD
Alpha Delta Pi

PEACH PEARCE
Joyner Hall

MARY KING
Maverick House

JUDY DUDLEY
Parker Hall

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of the Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. Letters and columns, covering a wide range of views, reflect the personal opinions of their authors.

ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR
JACK HARRINGTON, BUSINESS MANAGER

Prolonging The Agony

If a fellow tries hard enough, he can make almost any job more complicated than it needs to be.

When Alvin Tyndall was appointed chairman of the Elections Board by Paul Dickson, he surely didn't expect to have to supervise the handling of a petition asking for Dickson's recall.

But he has handled it . . . and handled it . . . and handled it. In fact he has handled it so much that we wouldn't be surprised to find out that the sheets of the petition are falling apart from overuse.

Tyndall, conscientious soul that he is, has had possession of the petition since it was presented to Dickson almost a week and a half ago on Oct. 18 He has worked hard. Ask him. He'll tell you.

But we find his technique of name-checking a little too laborious and time consuming to be really credible. Was it really necessary to copy all the names off the petition onto file cards and then make another alphabetical list?

Tyndall says he is about through with the petition, and it's high time. We have little sympathy for the "tough job" he's had because members of the board will agree that the emphasis has not exactly been on speed and efficiency. As one checker said yesterday, "There must be an easier way to do this."

Tyndall's boss, Dickson, tried a neat little maneuver Monday when he decided to set the date of the recall election himself. The Student Government constitution says, "The dates for all elections shall be established by an act of the Legislature."

If Dickson did not know that, it's just another example of his executive incompetence. If he did know it, it's an example of an attempt to "put one over" on the student body. Obviously Dickson would not be opposed to so arranging it that he is the only candidate who can legally run in the election.

But we don't hold it against Dickson. He just does what his "graduate advisers" tell him.

Let's face it. There is going to be an election. Let's quit prolonging the agony and get it over with.

What A Dirty Trick

Those Ivy Leaguers, apparently with too much time and money on their hands, are at it again.

Sunday morning Harvard men found a special edition of their newspaper, the Crimson, at their doors. The paper said that Harvard President Nathan M. Pusey and the board of overseers had decided to end intercollegiate football there after this season.

It seems that Dartmouth had just beat Harvard 14-0 the day before. And actually the Harvard "extra" was printed by the staff members of the Dartmouth newspaper.

Now that was an awfully dirty trick, and not even a very original one. Last February Cornell pulled the same stunt on Princeton, delivering a bogus edition of the Princetonian which said All-America basketball player Bill Bradley had been injured and would not play in the crucial game against Cornell that week. Both teams had only one conference defeat at the time, and the trick reportedly caused a few convulsions and near-heart attacks on the New Jersey campus.

Such frivolity is a useless waste of valuable student time and energy. Those decadent Ivy Leaguers deserve to be soundly condemned.

Now you'll have to excuse us. We have to get busy on the next issue of the Wake Forest Old Gold and Black.

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; John Jennrich, associate editor; Barry Jacobs, managing editor; Fred Thomas, news editor, Pat Stith, sports editor; Gene Rector, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; John Greenbacker, political writer; Ed Freakley, Andy Myers, Lynne Harvel, Lynne Sizemore, David Rothman, Ray Linville, staff writers; Jack Harrington, bus. mgr.; Tom Clark, asst. bus. mgr.; Woody Sobol, ad. mgr.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all ap news dispatches.

"I Don't Care If It Is Me–Check It!"

The Case Of The Rugged Individual, Or How To Get Through Life Without Help

(Editor's Note: The following article is from a newsletter sent by Sen. Stephen M. Young (D-Ohio) and reprinted in The Lather, official publication The Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers International Union. The Lather comments that this article "puts into rather good perspective, we think, the independent, ruggedly individualistic position of some of the far-right-wingers.")

A young man lived with his parents in a low-cost public housing development in Hamilton County. He attended public schools, rode the free school bus, enjoyed the free lunch program. Following graduation from high school, he entered the Army and upon discharge kept his National Service Life Insurance.

He then enrolled in an Ohio university, receiving regularly his GI check. Upon graduation, he married a Public Health nurse, bought a farm in southern Ohio with an FHA loan.

Later, going into the feed and hardware business in addition to farming, he secured help from the Small Business Administration when his business faltered. His first baby was born in the county hospital. This was built in part with Hill-Burton funds.

Then, he bought considerable additional acreage adjoining his farm, and obtained emergency feed from the government. He then put part of his land under the Eisenhower Soil Bank Program and used the payments for not growing crops to help pay his debts.

His parents, elderly by now, were living comfortably in the smaller of his two farm homes, using their Social Security and Old Age Assistance checks.

Lacking electricity at first, the Rural Electrification Administration supplied the lines, and a loan from the Farmers Home Administration helped clear the land and secure the best from it. The agent suggested building a pond, and the government stocked it with fish. The government guaranteed him a sale for his farm products.

The county public library delivered books to his farm door. He, of course, banked his money in an institution which a government agency had insured up to $10,000 for every depositor.

His son attending the Engineering School at Ohio State University receives financial assistance under the National Defense Education Act. His daughter is taking her nurses training with assistance from the Nurses Training Act.

As the community grew, he signed a petition seeking federal assistance in developing an industrial project to help the economy of his area.

About that time he purchased business and real estate at the county seat aided by an FHA loan.

He was elected to office in the local Chamber of Commerce. It was rumored he joined a cell of the John Birch Society in the county seat. He wrote his Senators and Congressmen protesting excessive government spending and high taxes, and enclosed John Birch pamphlets, some containing outlandishly false statements.

He wrote, "I believe in rugged individualism. People should stand on their own two feet, not expect government aid. I stand on my own two feet. I oppose all those socialistic trends you have been voting for and demand return to the free enterprise system of our forefathers. I and my neighbors intend to vote against you next year."

Foolish War

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

I should like to say that I consider Henry Coe's conduct admirable and do affirm his belief that the people are being forgotten in Viet Nam. It seems we neglect the people where ever we are involved . . . whether Viet Nam, Cuba, Brazil, or the Dominican Republic.

War has solved so little for mankind. Terror and misery follow it everywhere. Is it not time that we used our confidence and power more persuasively with our enemies without killing and war?

Rallying to the colors and severing relations is invariably followed by stupid killing, creation of unthinking hate, and prejudice unerased for centuries. Blindness in broad daylight by the seeing it is!

I say what I have with a degree of emotion. The Bolshevik Revolution killed my grandmother, my grandfather died of torture in Japanese occupied China in WWII, my father was lost as a POW in the Pacific, one uncle died a prisoner in Communist China and another freely of suicide as a result of the war. This is not an unusual sequence of events for many of the world's families. Is it any wonder there are those who see little solution in war?

Again, however, another cycle has begun: misunderstandings leading to insults, insults to the severing of communications, severing communications to rumor and hate, rumor and hate to the whole bloody mess again.

F. Dixon Jordan
414 Connor

Letters To The Editor

SPU Interviews Suggest Tragedy

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

"Go down to Y-Court and listen to what the SPU has to say." my Mod. Civ. instructor said.

So down I went. I won't argue, I thought. I'll keep my mouth shut and listen. There was a circle of students grouped around a lone thin pacifist who was arguing with in turn and didn't have sense enough to put down a set of obviously heavy books he was carrying.

Then I was in it. We fought the Asian war from Hanoi to Peking and then down to Saigon, he and I. He thought the U. S. a bully: an outsider in a national struggle.

"Why is there a Berlin Wall?" I asked. "Why are people fleeing Cuba? Why was the Hungarian revolt crushed?" He appeared very thoughtful for a few seconds and then, when someone else challenged him, forgot me entirely.

Next, I stopped by a girl — very attractive and neat — who stood behind a sign that read, "Let's make love instead of war."

"I'm all for that." I said. But she was the same as the first. My questions were answered with questions; my most basic contentions repudiated: I had to argue in the fifth dimension or not at all.

I left the Y-Court feeling sick and sad. Some of them were clean; most were intelligent; but, all were lost. "Be open minded." one of them said, yet their minds are narrow and closed. It is sad that they must claim humanitarianism as their cause, for they profane it. Anyone who takes the matter seriously must feel a sense of loss, or even tragedy.

Joseph Sanders
426 Morrison

Sacrificial Saving

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

A member of the administration has taken to publishing clinical details of campus code offenses in the News of Orange County. Some students think that we can save the University from attack if only we will sacrifice someone. And people are saying that pacifists are "ridiculous." What a crazy place!

How far is the good dean going to go in his manifest zeal to see that harm is done to someone he wants harmed? What revelations will next week's publications bring to us?

After Dickson, who? Will we turn next on "beatniks," out-of-state students, graduate students, or students with "B" averages? Who shall we sacrifice next, hoping thereby to win the favor of the witch-hunters?

And when did pacifism become ridiculous? At the very least, pacifism is in keeping with the Commandment; this alone should suffice to suggest that there are at least two sides to the issue at hand. People seem to be advocating exceptions to the Commandment, "Thou shalt not kill." Sure — they say — the Commandment is okay in its place. But it certainly doesn't mean that we shouldn't kill dirty people, foreign people, people who disagree with us. But again: what exceptions will come next? How about the Commandment against adultery? What is the Official Groupthink on this? I await the announcement with anticipation.

These are things that are happening now; and they are tough acts to follow. What's going to happen next? After we are done with vendettas, human sacrifice and a little killing here and there, what will we do for an encore? The prospect charms me not. What a crazy place!

James F. Perry
102 King St.

UNC And NSA

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

On University Day, Chancellor Paul Sharp requested the people of North Carolina to have faith in UNC. This is well and good, for it is a shame that this great institution has recently had its name marred by the violent controversy over H. B. 1395.

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel welcomes letters to the editor on any subject, particularly on matters of local or University interest. Letters must be typed, double spaced and must include the name and address of the author or authors. Names will not be omitted in publication. Letters should be kept as brief as possible. The DTH reserves the right to edit for length or libel.

We all agree that our true image must be made clear if this institution is to thrive.

But, can anyone blame the citizens of North Carolina for being concerned over the activities at UNC when we continue to belong to an organization which, among other things, has unconditionally condemned the U. S. intervention in the Dominican Republic, called for American sponsorship for the admission of Red China to the U. N., endorsed immediate cessation of bombings and offensive military action in North Viet Nam, and termed the Berkeley riots "responsible action"?

Are you kidding me? Are these the things our students believe in? I don't think so. Certainly there are a few who might adhere to one or more of these convictions, but just as certainly, this is a small minority. Nevertheless, it is this minority opinion which we, as members of the National Student Association, are represented by. Why then do we continually belong to, pay dues to, and send delegates to the National Student Association Congress? Let us not have the gross misconception that we might moderate the action of radical left-wing students by remaining in the NSA, for moderation — and especially responsibility —are evidently rarities at the Congress. And certainly, let us not use the old philosophy of "if ya' can't like 'em, join 'em."

If we really want to clear our image and if we really want the people of North Carolina to have faith in UNC, let us begin by showing some responsibility and withdraw from a student association which represents a minority student opinion. We must bring this issue to our electorate now, and we must relinquish our NSA membership.

Joe W. Yates, III
ATO House

Clean-Cut Attack

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Just a glimpse of their clean-cut good looks and neat but not ostentatious dress will tell you that here is American manhood at its finest; nor do their actions disappoint us. In their attacks on groups whose opinion is not that of their majority they have shown that they do not intend to stand by and let these minority odd-balls undermine the democratic principles which made this country great — not when they can do it so much more effectively themselves. Still, effective action needs an atmosphere of encouragement, and many have gained new inspiration from the way in which The Daily Tar Heel has been putting all those in their place who were behind the door when the rest of us were cast in the true mold.

If we're looking for meaningful issues at UNC we should forget Viet Nam and turn to the problem of stamping out the cancer of minority opinion (and minority dress and behavior, as well) right here at home.

Barnard should already have received something more than the mere admiration of his friends for his work along these lines, but I would ask him to do even more by trying his hand at something instructional as well as inspirational: perhaps a scene (suggested by recent incidents in the Y-Court) demonstrating some effective method of distributing SPU literature — all over the ground. (Some students deep down really want to strike a blow for democracy, but just don't know how to go about it.) I know I needn't instruct the staff cartoonist on how to make it crystal clear with whom we should be identifying, nor on how to make the raunchy victim sufficiently ridiculous to tickle our funny bone as well as instruct us.

I leave the details, and further thinking along these lines to you, trusting that my main call to duty has been heard and understood.

Robert DeMaine
306 Connor

Stop! Look! Listen! Here's What's Going On Today

TODAY

All students interested in serving on the Murdoch Committee and working with mentally retarded children at Murdoch Center meet at 2 p.m. in Y-Court.

Interviews will be held for membership in the Carolina Philosophy Society Wed. and Thur. from 3-5 p.m. in Roland Parker I in GM.

There will be a meeting of the Circulo Hispanico at 7:30 p.m. in the Dey Hall faculty lounge. Dr. John E. Keller will speak.

Ticket sales for UNC students only will begin Wed. at the GM Information desk to the Nancy Wilson show in Carmichael Auditorium. Tickets will cost $1 for students, and $1.50 for the general public. Ticket sales for the general public begin Nov. 3.

Graham Memorial social committee meeting at 4 p.m. in Roland Parker II.

Ways and Means Committee meeting at 3:30 p.m. in Roland Parker II. Excellence study board, other bills to be considered.

Anyone interested in the Mademoiselle Editoral Contest should sign up in 202 South Building.

Contestants for the Maid of Cotton should sign up in 202 South Building.

UNC Student Wive's Club presents Judy Hallman's Wigs and Hairpieces at 8 p.m. in 09 Peabody Hall.

Models for Ackland desperately needed from 8-10 a.m. MWF. See Prof. Howard in room B18 of Ackland, 933-2015. Both male and female needed.

The Honors Seminar room will be open for use by freshmen, sophomores and departmental honors students and past members of these programs Mon.-Fri., 1-10:45 p.m. in 303 Wilson Library.

Anyone interested in paid intermural manager for Craige and Ehringhaus come by the Intermural office in 214 Woollen Gym between 1-6 p.m.

UNC Physics Colloquium at 4 p.m. in room 215 Phillips Hall. Heinz R. Pagels will speak on "The Anomalous Magnetic Moment of the Electron and the Nucleons." Tea and coffee will be served one-half hour before the talk in the lounge, room 227 Phillips Hall.

There will be a meeting of all committee chairmen and executive officers of the Carolina Symposium at 4:30 p.m. on the 2nd floor of the Y Building. Yack pictures will be made at this time.

Anyone wishing to sponsor a candidate in the Yack contest should contact Samantha Townsend at the ADPi house.

Late fraternity and sorority pictures will be made today (a $2 late fee will be charged). This is absolutely the last day photos will be made.

German Club pictures for the Yack made today only in the basement of GM.

The Golf Club meets at 3:30 in the Women's Gym.

The Dance Club meets at 7 p.m. in the dance studio.

Film Committee meeting from 3-4:30 p.m. in the Woodhouse room.

MRC meeting at 7 p.m. in Di Phi Hall, New East. Photos will be taken.

Operation Campus — tonight is the last presentation of the series, Pianist Hector Alimonda will present a lecture entitled "Brazilian Music Seen Through its Piano Music." Mezzo - soprano Maria Lucia Godoy will assist in the presentation. A reception will follow the lecture. Main lounge of GM at 8 p.m.

THURSDAY

Mathematics Colloquium at 4 p.m. in room 332 Phillips Hall. Prof. James B. Kooertson from Cornell University will speak on "Prediction Theory and the Conjugacy Problem." Coffee and tea will be served in the Common Room (Ph. 385) at 3:30 p.m. preceding the Colloquium.

Hockey Club meets in the Woman's Gym at 4 p.m.

The Co-Rec Carnival will be held in the Woollen Gym at 7 p.m.

NAACP meets in 203 Alumni at 7:30 p.m. Members and prospective members are urged to attend.

There will be a meeting of students concerned with continuing the dialogue from last Monday's discussion of Far Eastern Affairs at 4:30 in the Faculty Club.

Christian Science Organization will meet in Woodhouse Room, GM, from 7-7:30 p.m. All interested students are invited to attend.

The Thanksgiving Day Committee will meet at 3 p.m. in the Woodhouse Room of GM. This is an organizational meeting.

HEART RULES

"His heart rules his head" may be one way of saying that a man's emotions rule his reason. On the other hand, it may be literally true because the heart, as the center of the circulatory system, in a sense, rules all parts of the body, says the North Carolina Heart Association.

Interviews

Interviews for positions on the UNC-CH delegation to this year's State Student Legislature will be conducted from 2 to 4 p.m. in the Grail Room of Graham Memorial.

SSL will meet for a weekend in the Senate and House chambers of the old North Carolina State Capitol this February.

Representatives from North Carolina colleges and universities will debate and pass legislation of interest to college students.

All interested students are asked to apply.

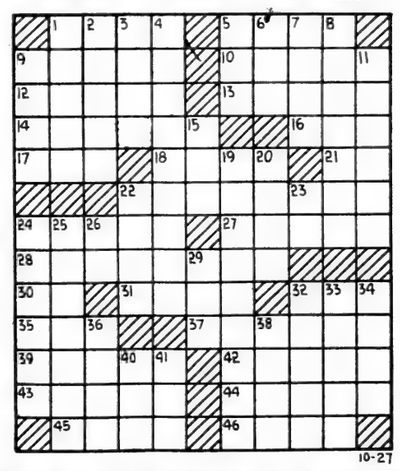
FOR RENT: COMPLETELY furnished 2 bedroom, air conditioned 10 x 45 mobile home. Available Oct. 30. $80 per month. Call 942-3268 or 942-1749.

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Wade across
5. Persian coin
9. Canterer
10. Ankle bone
12. Choice group
13. Perform
14. Best
16. Varying weight: India
17. Digit
18. Not firm
21. Music note
22. Large numbers
24. Female
27. Dull pains
28. Revengers
30. Norse god
31. Anglo-Saxon serf
32. Chinese pagoda
35. Epoch
37. Subsiding
39. Quick
42. Large artery
43. Master: Hindu
44. Algonquian Indians
45. The Old Sod
46. Sheep ticks

DOWN
1. Largest book
2. Think
3. Network
4. Applications for wounds
5. Course or way: abbr.
6. Man's name
7. Exclamation
8. Lake in Switzerland
9. Remaining
11. Tension
15. Sanskrit school
19. Backward flame
20. Muscular twitches
22. Hair on horse's neck
23. Exclamation
24. Vacillates
25. Cow
26. Pronoun
29. Compass reading
32. Weary
33. Puts in a poker stake
34. Moslem titles
36. Armadillo
38. Caliber
40. Wurttemberg measure
41. Clamor

Yesterday's Answer



10-27

CAROLINA OPEN 8-11 AM PM COFFEE SHOP

New York? Norfolk Asheville Memphis? Denver?

Trailways has NO CHANGE service to these cities—and more!

Take your first trip on Trailways —you'll never go any other way!

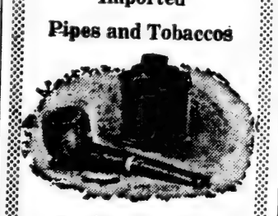
Travel in comfort on Trailways, arrive fresh and relaxed. America's most modern buses. Helpful, safety-trained drivers.

From Chapel Hill	1-way
NEW YORK (Thru Exexpress—frequent departures)	$17.05
NORFOLK (Thru Express—reserve the seat of your choice)	$ 6.05
WASHINGTON (Thru Express—reserve the seat of your choice)	$ 8.55
ASHEVILLE (Thru Express—convenient departures)	$ 7.45

UNION BUS TERMINAL
CHAPEL HILL, N. C.
311 W. Franklin St. Telephone 942-3356

TRAILWAYS®
Easiest travel on earth

Imported Pipes and Tobaccos



• Pouches • Humidors • Accessories
VARLEY'S

THE NEW YORK LIFE Agent on your campus is a good man to know.
Write . . . Phone . . . Visit

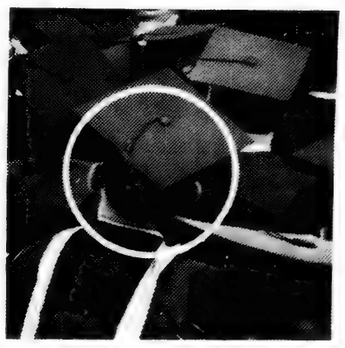
GEORGE L. COXHEAD, C.L.U.
203½ East Franklin
(Over Dairy Bar) Ph. 942-4356
NEW YORK LIFE
NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

CAROLINA
Shows at 2:00—5:00-8 P.M.
TODAY ONLY
STEVE McQUEEN
JAMES GARNER
RICHARD ATTENBOROUGH
JOHN STURGES' "THE GREAT ESCAPE"
COLOR by DE LUXE PANAVISION RELEASED THRU UNITED ARTISTS

Varsity
TODAY ONLY
"THE AMOROUS GENERAL"
starring PETER SELLERS
THURSDAY ONLY

'GLORY TO PETER SELLERS!' —Brendan Gill, The New Yorker
The Wrong Arm of the Law
"YOUR SIDES WILL BE SORE FROM LAUGHING!" —Redbook

It's Fall Bargain Time at the Intimate
Early Birds get the widest choice
119 E. Franklin St. Chapel Hill



John Lauritzen wanted further knowledge

He's finding it at Western Electric

When the University of Nevada awarded John Lauritzen his B.S.E.E. in 1961, it was only the first big step in the learning program he envisions for himself. This led him to Western Electric. For WE agrees that ever-increasing knowledge is essential to the development of its engineers—and is helping John in furthering his education.

John attended one of Western Electric's three Graduate Engineering Training Centers and graduated with honors. Now, through the Company-paid Tuition Refund Plan, John is working toward his Master's in Industrial Management at Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute. He is currently a planning engineer developing test equipment for the Bell System's revolutionary electronic telephone switching system.

If you set the highest standards for yourself, both educationally and professionally, we should talk. Western Electric's vast communications job as manufacturing unit of the Bell System provides many opportunities for fast-moving careers for electrical, mechanical and industrial engineers, as well as for physical science, liberal arts and business majors. Get your copy of the Western Electric Career Opportunities booklet from your Placement Officer. And be sure to arrange for an interview when the Bell System recruiting team visits your campus.

Western Electric MANUFACTURING AND SUPPLY UNIT OF THE BELL SYSTEM
AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY EMPLOYER
Principal manufacturing locations in 13 cities. Operating centers in many of these same cities plus 36 others throughout the U.S. Engineering Research Center, Princeton, N.J. Teletype Corp., Skokie, Ill., Little Rock, Ark. General Headquarters, New York City

CHASE DINING HALL

In addition to our regular student special (50c)
Now Features at Lunch a HOT SANDWICH COUNTER

TODAY'S SANDWICH
Barbecue Chicken on Bun, Cole Slaw, F-F Potatoes
50c

Open: Daily 7-2 5-7:15 Sunday 8-2 5-7:15

• POSITIVELY NO WAITING BREAKFAST OR LUNCH •

GM PRESENTS
NANCY WILSON

Coming Sat. Nov. 6 at 8 p.m.
TICKETS GO ON SALE THIS WED. — FOR U.N.C. STUDENTS
U.N.C. STUDENTS — $1.00
GENERAL PUBLIC TICKET SALES BEGIN NOV. 3 — $1.50 for GENERAL PUBLIC

Riggs Gets Call Saturday

By GENE RECTOR
DTH Asst. Sports Editor

David Riggs, the scrappy sophomore from Morganton, will crack the Tar Heel starting line-up for the first time against Georgia Saturday.

Riggs, who was the leading ground gainer last Saturday against Wake Forest, will replace senior Max Chapman.

"Riggs looked real good running the ball against Wake Forest last Saturday," said Hickey at his Tuesday press conference at the Pines. "Of course Chapman will probably play as much as usual, but Riggs will have his chances to show what he can do."

Hickey plans no changes in the Tar Heel defensive secondary.

"We have no reason to believe anyone who hasn't been playing could do a better job," he said. "We knew at the start of the season we had four boys in the secondary who had never played before.

"You expect mistakes from sophomores," he continued. "Of course by now they shouldn't be playing like sophomores, but we're working on our pass defense."

Hickey was both pleased and displeased with last Saturday's performance against Wake Forest.

"We didn't play too well for three quarters," he said, "then we played good football in the fourth quarter.

"I was pleased that we could come back and go ahead after being behind the entire game," he said. "Of course then we had that break-down in our pass defense.

"We just didn't play as well as we could. Our defense wasn't over confident. Wake used the same stuff they had been using all year. We just didn't stop them at the right time, that's all.

"Of course that was the first time all season our defensive line didn't play well," he added.

"When your secondary is not covering and your line is not giving you that good rush," he said. "It's hard to defend against that long touchdown pass."

Georgia, who owns victories over Michigan and Alabama this season, is Saturday's homecoming opponent.

Chief scout Emmett Cheek who saw Georgia in their 28-10 loss to Kentucky last Saturday had few soothing words for Tar Heel hopefuls.

"Georgia has a fine football team," said Cheek. "Of course they have had quite a few injuries, but they haven't lost everything by any means.

The Bulldogs who won their first four games before losing to Florida and Kentucky, will be without senior tailback Bob Taylor.

"Taylor broke his leg in the Florida game," said Cheek. "He was quite a runner. I saw him in films of the Clemson game and he was a big leaguer all the way."

One bright spot for the Bulldogs will be quarterback Preston Ridlehuber, most valuable player for Georgia in the Sun Bowl last season.

"He's a great runner," said Cheek. "He likes to run that belly series were he fakes to the fullback and cuts to the outside.

"He'll be tough to stop," said Cheek. "So will the entire Georgia team. Sure, they have had their problems the last two weeks, but they'll be all right — don't worry.

ARTERIES

An artery - clogging condition that underlies most heart attacks is known as atherosclerosis, says the North Carolina Heart Association.

The Daily Tar Heel SPORTS

Chapman Slips

North Carolina's Max Chapman slipped from first to second place in total rushing in the ACC after the Tar Heels' 12-10 loss to Wake Forest last Saturday.

Chapman, who has gained 413 yards in 101 carries, was topped by Clemson's Hugh Mauldin's 417 yards. Chapman was held to 38 yards last Saturday while Mauldin was grinding out 144 yards against TCU.

Fauntleroy

Don't throw that fist,
Please don't be mad.
Keep calm and cool,
For I've been had.

Er-ah-h-h-h-h-h. Forgive me for not standing. I'm-ah-tied up at the moment. As a matter of fact — I've been tied up all weekend.

Oh — it was horrible. You see, I had just finished with seven of my "controlled" picks last Saturday when this shady-lookin' guy came into my office.

Now, I'll admit he looked suspicious, but I thought he was a well-meaning fan coming to thank me for all the free information I have been handing out.

Well, he wasn't well-meaning and he wasn't a fan. He grabbed me — threw me to the floor — and tied me up. (I was really mad.)

But to top it all, he started messing around with my SUPER ATOMIC CHANCE REDUCER. He flipped the control knob to the Virginia-V.P.I. game and pressed the button for V.P.I. He did the same thing for N. C. State in their game with Maryland and Rice in their meeting with Texas.

I mean it was really embarrassing. Here I had favored the other teams in my Saturday column. Here he was trying to make me look like a fool.

Well, I kicked and scratched. I screamed and hollered, but it didn't do any good. He just laughed — can you imagine that?

Frats Head Mural Action

The Beta Buckers downed the DKE White team in one of Tuesday's top intramural football games, 20-0

The Phi Delt White team won 17-0 over the Phi Kappa Sig Skulls as Andy Goddard and Don Lesley scored the touchdowns.

All the scoring was done in the first half as DU Blue II beat the Phi Kappa Sig J-Birds, 20-6.

Safeties by Don McLeod and Charles Dozier were the only scores in the game as the Pi Kappa Phi Dwarfs edged Phi Delt Rd, 4-0

The PiKA's stomped St. Anthony Hall Blue, 50-7. Nolan Lenard scored twice and Clem Davis, Fred Stapp, Guy Smith, Jim Hall and Jerry Pearce all added one TD.

SALES POSITION

Due to expansion of our Northgate Store, we have part-time positions open for salesmen. Also, taking applications for Christmas work. Apply.
Manager
The Young Men's Shop
Northgate Shopping Center
Durham, N. C.

Milton's New M3
fit, comfort, style

The three +'s that make our new trousers a must. Many years of experimenting are engulfed in this most exclusive-ours olane. Perfect seat contous with smart taper without sacrifice of comfort. The finest real breakthrough in a finer fitting trouser. Choose from our new permanent creased chic wool hopsack in desert tan, pheasant brown, on-the-town gray, or Tuesday blue heather — $17.95. Fancy pants in black/white or black/brown wool pin-check or glen unquhart plaid $19.95.

Another in a series of smart exclusives you expect from Milton's Clothing Cupboard.

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

1st PRIZE get your HOMECOMING Display Supplies
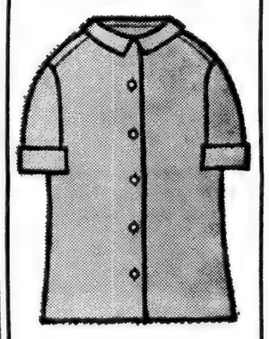
at
BILLY ARTHUR
Eastgate Shopping Center
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Lady Milton scintillating sophisticates



689 of our famous Lady Milton Shirts at a below cost give-a-way.

Choose from choir boy, button-down, flambeau cardigans—regularly to $10.95, now at impossible $1.99, $2.99 and $3.99.

Discover all the wonderful Lady Milton ensembles apart.

LADY MILTON SHOP

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

See the "ZORBA" Dances, live tonight only – 8:30
Greek Music Accompaniment

When Zorba talks–
you listen.

When Zorba drinks–
you taste it.

When Zorba loves– you feel it.

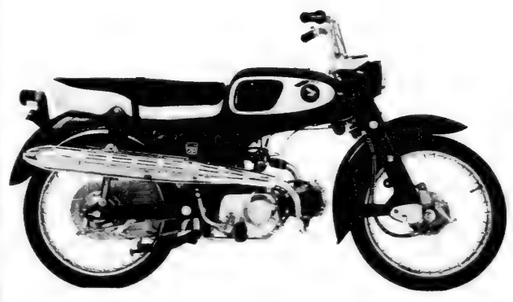
"He is the fire of life itself, a piece of the sun in the shape of a man."—Time Magazine

ANTHONY QUINN
ALAN BATES · IRENE PAPAS
in the MICHAEL CACOYANNIS PRODUCTION
"ZORBA THE GREEK"
From the Novel by NIKOS KAZANTZAKIS with LILA KEDROVA GEORGE FOUNDAS
Produced and Directed from His Screenplay by MICHAEL CACOYANNIS
AN INTERNATIONAL CLASSICS PRESENTATION

STARTS TODAY RIALTO DURHAM

DAILY AT 1:05 — 3:30 — 6:00 — 8:30
Last Show Starts at 9:00 P.M. Tonight Only

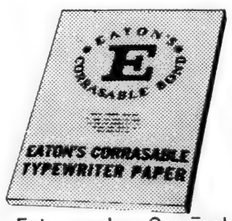


Where you want, when you want
FOR 25c A DAY!!!
The Brand New 1966
SPORTS 65 – $323.00
Travel - On Motorcycle Co.
"Headquarters for Adventure"
504 W. Franklin St.
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Anyone can
GOOF.

With Eaton's Corrāsable Bond Typewriter Paper, you can erase that goof without a trace.

Not a telltale smudge remains. A special surface permits quick and easy erasing with an ordinary pencil eraser. For perfect papers every time, get Corrāsable. In light, medium, heavy weights and Onion Skin. In handy 100-sheet packets and 500-sheet ream boxes. At Stationery Departments.



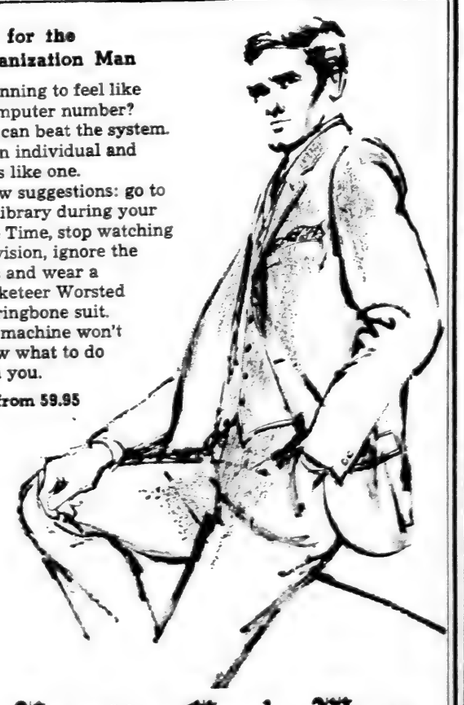
Only Eaton makes Corrāsable.®
EATON PAPER CORPORATION, PITTSFIELD, MASSACHUSETTS

Ledbetter Pickard

Hot for the Organization Man

Beginning to feel like a computer number? You can beat the system. Be an individual and dress like one. A few suggestions: go to the library during your Free Time, stop watching television, ignore the girls and wear a Cricketeer Worsted Herringbone suit. The machine won't know what to do with you.

... from 59.95



Varsity Men's Wear
Clothiers of Distinction
147 E. Franklin St.
Charge Accounts Invited

THE COED CORNER, the first and only place to shop for styles that are subtly but richly feminine.

SUITS: In all the "right" colors. Perfect compliment for a homecoming weekend. in a rainbow of colors.

BLOUSES: With round or button down collars, in an assortment that includes one for everybody.

SWEATERS: Truly the high mark of this fall, cardigans and V-necks that are perfect for what you now have and whatever you're doing.

AND: Belts, purses, knee socks, and all the others that will round out your wardrobe completely.

Co-Ed Corner
THE HUB of Chapel Hill

BRITISH BUFFERCOAT

SUEDE CLOTH with half half inset sleeve and shawl collar. Pure wool body lining in contrasting colors.

$49.50

Julian's

Norelco®

THE COMPANION that Helps You Learn

Norelco Carry-Corder '150'

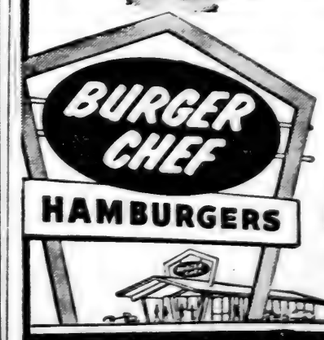
Tiny tape cartridge loads in seconds, records for an hour

Revolutionary tape recorder, features reusable snap-in cartridges, one button control to start, stop, wind/rewind tape. Separate volume controls for record and playback. Weighs only 3 lbs. with 5 flashlight batteries. 1 7/8 ips constant speed capstan drive. Has dynamic microphone with detachable remote switch. Superior sound quality with frequency response of 100 to 7000 cps. Connections for recording and playback directly with radio, phono, TV or another tape recorder, 7¾ x 4½" x 2¼". Prepacked in Deluxe Case with 4 cartridges (each in a dust proof container with index card), microphone, fitted carrying case, mike pouch, patchcord and tape mailer.

Wholesale Prices on Tubes, Speakers, Tape Recorders, Tape, Batteries, Microphones, Hi-Fi and Stereo Components, Kits, and Wires, etc.

Vickers Electronics
506 EAST MAIN STREET
Phone 684-0527

people on the go... go BURGER CHEF



College budgets and Burger Chef belong together. Burger Chef . . . where 50¢ will buy a complete meal: open-flame broiled hamburger, a rich milk shake, and a heap of crisp golden fries.

337 N. ROSEMARY ST.
OPEN 10 A.M. – 11 P.M.

Home of the World's Greatest 15¢ Hamburger!

KING WILLIAM RESTAURANT

1½ Miles from Campus on 15-501 South
SPECIALIZING IN:
STEAKS CHICKEN SEAFOOD
"Choice Selection of Imported and Domestic Beverages"
All New and Modern, featuring

- Seating capacity of 300
- Spacious parking facilities
- Four private dining rooms
- Tasteful background music
- Catering facilities

Open from 8:00 a.m. 'til Midnight
SEVEN DAYS A WEEK

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Heaven Forbid!

Heaven forbid! Girls living in the lower quad? Sounds amazing, but it will be true in a few years. Find out why UNC will be building new men's residence halls, but will renovate old buildings for women. See story below.

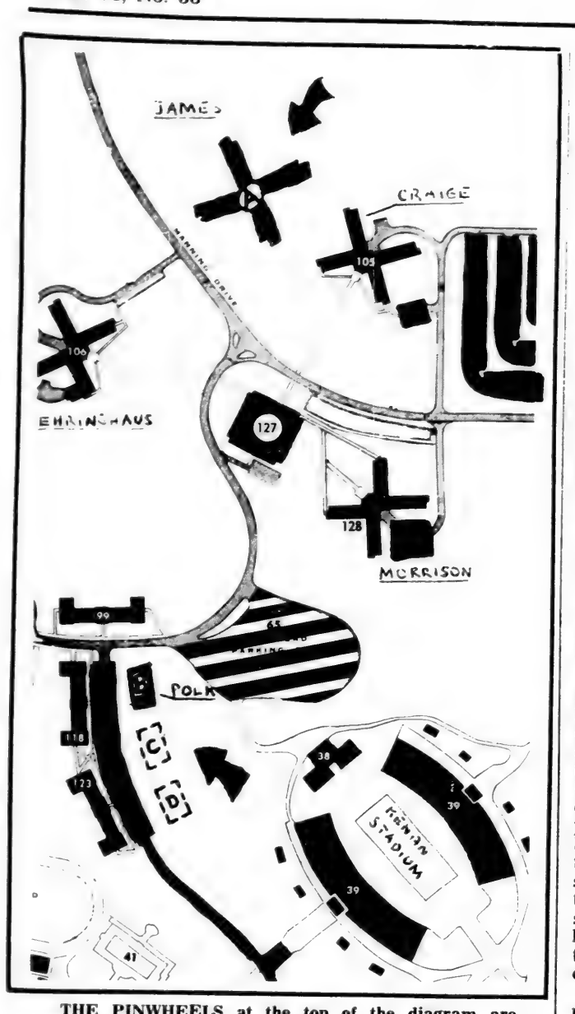
The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Vol. 74, No. 38 | CHAPEL HILL NORTH CAROLINA THURSDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1965 | Founded February 23, 1893

The Governor

Gov. Dan K. Moore spoke on the importance of public education in Hill Hall yesterday. Read his opinion on page three.



THE PINWHEELS at the top of the diagram are actually men's residence halls. Hinton James residence hall (A) will be out past Craige. James Knox Polk residence hall (B) will be in the woods across from Parker. Buildings C and D are still in the planning stage.

Board Declares Petition Invalid; Rejects Attempt To Add Names

By JOHN GREENBACKER
DTH Political Writer

The presidential recall petition was declared invalid by the Elections Board last night after 55 signatures on it were disqualified.

A final attempt to add more signatures to the petition was rejected by the board, and pro - petition forces said last night they intend to appeal the board's decision to the Constitutional Council of Student Government.

The petition, which demands Paul Dickson's recall as president of the student body, failed to attain the endorsement of 15 per cent of the student body after false or duplicated signatures had been eliminated from consideration.

The petition needed 1,863 signatures for a recall election to be held, and a total 1,917 signatures were presented to the board for investigation.

Elections Board Chairman Alvin Tyndall said yesterday the full investigation of all the petition's signatures would not be completed once the board had ruled it invalid.

Pro - petition forces made a final effort to head off the board's ruling last night when freshman class vice president Buddy Wester, acting as an agent of the petition's sponsor Sharon Rose, attempted to submit an additional 17 signatures on the board.

Tyndall told Wester the board could not accept any more signatures.

Dickson allowed an additional 21 signatures to be added to the petition last week after Miss Rose said they had been collected before the petition was originally submitted to the board.

"Sharon agreed that no more signatures would be submitted," Tyndall told Wester.

Miss Rose telephone Tyndall shortly afterward and asked him to accept the signatures, which she claimed had also been collected before the petition was originally submitted.

"I cannot accept them on the list," Tyndall told her.

Miss Rose announced her intention to appeal Tyndall's decision to the Constitutional Council.

Dickson said yesterday no more signatures could be submitted to the petition, according ot his interpretation of the Student Government Constitution.

He referred to a section of the Constitution which reads, "The petition to recall shall be handed to the president of the student body and shall not be valid unless it contains the signatures of at least 15 per cent of the qualified voters."

Dickson said no signatures could be added so long after the petition had been accepted.

False signatures were the bulk of those disqualified.

Tyndall said the board disqualified all signatures which were duplicates or in which the signer had used and informal "nickname" that made the signature untraceable.

Dickson's recall was demanded by Miss Rose a student legislator and member of Dickson's student political party, after the news of his summer school Honor Council conviction was made public.

Dickson was convicted last August on a Campus Code violation after he took a coed into a closed fraternity house.

Dickson received an official reprimand and the coed was suspended from the University.

Miss Rose said yesterday she would withhold comment on the situation until the petition is officially proclaimed invalid by the board in a statement.

Ingram Refutes Editorial Attack

The following statement was issued by Attorney General John Ingram yesterday afternoon concerning an editorial appearing in The Daily Tar Heel Tuesday, Oct. 26.

Several points were raised in Tuesday's Daily Tar Heel which need to be clarieied.

UNC has had two recalls in its history. In both recalls the President of the Student Body established the dates of the recall elections. In dealing with this recall, every effort has been made to follow the procedures established by these two precedents, and it was on the basis of these two precedents that President Dickson, in consultation with the Chairman of the Elections Board, and myself, expressed his intention to have the recall on Nov. 9, 1965, the date of the regular fall election.

Mr. McCrary asks, "Was it really necessary to copy all the names off the petition onto file cards and then make another alphabetical list?"

No it was NOT necessary, and if fact that procedure was not followed. No file cards were used and only one list was made, categorizing the names according to the first letter of the last name.

This was necessary in order to speed up the process of checking the names against the University enrollment list and insuring that the same name did not appear on the petition more than once. In fact, several names have been found which appeared twice.

Mr. McCrary implies that there has been a conscious effort on the part of the president to slow up the validation process. President Dickson asked the chairman to have the petition validated by last Friday. On numerous occasions I have heard him ask Mr. Tyndall to speed up the process of validation.

Unfortunately, the validation has not preceded as fast as it was originally foreseen.

It is true that Article V, Section 1 provides that the dates of all elections shall be established by an act of the Student Legislature. However, Article V is entitled "Elections, Recall, Initiative and Review."

It is clear that this title and other provisions of the constitution draw a distinction between elections and recalls, initiatives and reviews.

The section of Article V which deals specifically with recalls provides that the President shall direct the Elections Board to conduct the recall. Setting the date of the recall is a fundamental part of directing a recall to be held.

Other provisions of the Constitution specifically dealing with initiatives and reviews make it clear that the President sets the dates of the vote.

To interpret the phrase "the dates for all elections shall be established by the Student Legislature" to include recall, initiative and review would mean that provisions in the same Article of the Constitution are in conflict.

For Article V to make any sense at all, the term elections must be used in a narrow sense not to include recalls initiatives and review. Any other interpretation would render the entire Article V meaningless.

The Student Legislature does not meet this Thursday. Its next regular session will be on

(Continued on Page 5)

GOVERNOR DAN K. Moore stressed the importance of public education in a speech to 600 educators in Hill Hall yesterday. The Governor said that such education is a "bedrock responsibility" of state government and must get the attention it deserves. See the story on page three.
— DTH Photo by Ernest Robl.

New Dorm To Be Named For UNC's First Student

By ANDY MYERS
DTH Staff Writer

Rumor has it that Hinton James, the first student at UNC, walked all the way from Wilmington to Chapel Hill to come to school.

Therefore, it is fitting that UNC's newest residence hall, named for James, will be located somewhere between Chapel Hill and Wilmington.

Hinton James Residence Hall, expected to be completed by September 1967, will be on Manning drive out past Ehringhaus and Craige.

Dean of Student Affairs C.O. Cathey said Hinton Hall will look just like Morrison Residence Hall on the outside, but more inside room will be devoted to social facilities.

Three other residence halls are in the planning stage, according to Cathey. Located in the area between Scott residence college and Kenan stadium, the three structures will house 1,000 men each.

The first of these three has been named James Knox Polk Residence Hall. The building will house 50 men on a floor and will be 21 stories tall.

Polk is the only UNC alumnus of UNC to become president of the United States. He graduated in 1818 and returned to study for his masters here. He was awarded an A.M. degree in 1822.

Cathey said the housing problem at UNC will be "caught up" by 1970. Stemming from the great enrollment increase after World War II the University has been in a housing bind ever since.

None of the new dorms will be designed to allow three men in a room. Cathey said the three-man situation has been forced on the school because of its commitment to the state.

"Since we must admit certain numbers of students," Cathey said, "we have an obligation to house them." He noted the difference between UNC and a private university which has no binding obligation to keep its doors open to increasing numbers of students.

"A private school can impose an arbitrary cut-off in enrollment," he said. But UNC must expand as the state expands.

By 1970, Cathey said, changes in student housing will be something like this:

— Girls will be housed in the lower quad (Everett, Stacy, Aycock, Graham, Lewis).

— James Residence Hall will house new students and displaced men from the lower quad.

— Polk residence hall will house 1,000 men.

— Two, as yet unnamed residence halls, will house another 1,000 students each.

— Every room on campus will house two students or less.

— Every room on campus will be provided with a telephone.

Cathey said the University has chosen to build new housing for men only because of the prohibitive cost of new women's residences.

The state allows the University to spend a maximum of $3,000 per student bed in any dormitory. At this figure, Morrison residence hall came close to the ceiling of $3 million and they couldn't put air conditioning in the building.

UNC gets no money from the state to build student housing. Residence halls are built by funds from private sources, room rent, grants and matching federal funds.

However, Cathey said, the legislature has set the limit of $3,000 per student for housing. This applies to both women and men.

Thus, since women's residence halls require more money to house fewer students women will be housed in renovated men's residence halls in the future.

Inflation is a serious problem in building new student housing, according to Cathey. The $3,000 limit will not be enough to build even men's dorms in a few years, he said.

House Probes KKK Unit

Washington (AP) — House investigators probed yesterday at a mysterious Ku Klux Klan unit known as "the underground."

It was brought out as the House Committee on Un-American activities questioned Furman D. Williams. Williams was identified as having headed the unit in South Carolina until last month.

He refused to answer when asked if it wasn't a fact that members were "trained in the use of rifles, explosives and are advocates of violence."

Chief Investigator Donald T. Appell suggested that this group — "known in Klan circles as the underground" — was somehow an offshoot of the United Klans of America's klavern in Gaffney, S. C., known as Cherokee Sportsman's Club.

Williams, a stocky man with a high - pitched voice, also refused to say whether there were similar units associated with other klaverns.

But after Williams was dismissed, and the hearing closed for the day, Committee Chairman Edwin E. Willia, D-La., said the subject of the "underground" was far from closed.

South Carolina Grand Dragon Robert E. Scoggin may be questioned about it tomorrow before the committee turns its attention to KKK's Georgia realm.

Williams was ordered to return to the stand Nov. 15 — the same day Imperial Wizard Robert Shelton has been ordered to return.

A KKK chaplain was pictured at today's hearing as a black - robed figure collecting money, denouncing police, and declaring: the "message of Christian love is a tool in Communist hands."

George Franklin Dorsett, 48, identified as the Imperial Kludd — or chaplain — of the

(Continued on Page 3)

Memorial Service

A special memorial service for Roger A. Davis was held last night in the main sanctuary of the First Presbyterian Church here.

Funeral services will be held Friday at 3 p.m. in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., at the First Presbyterian Church.

Russia Okays New N-Negotiations

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — The Soviet Union agreed yesterday to new negotiation in Geneva on how to stop the spread of nuclear weapons, but said priority must be given to its own proposals.

The Soviet Union submitted a resolution to the General Assembly's main political committee asking for U. N. backing of a proposed Soviet treaty aimed at blocking any North Atlantic defense arrangements involving use of nuclear weapons.

The United States filed a rival resolution Tuesday asking for resumption of the Geneva talks as soon as possible without imposing any condition on whether the U. S. or Soviet treaty proposals should be discussed.

U. S. sources called the Russian resolution one - sided and unacceptable. They said they did not see it as a softening of the Russian position and speculated that the Soviets were merely trying to improve their bargaining position with a U.N. endorsement of their treaty.

The Soviet draft expressed willingness to have the Russian proposal examined in detail by the 17-nation disarmament committee, but made no mention of the U. S. draft treaty.

In debate before the committee Tuesday, Soviet Ambassador Nikolai T. Federenko opposed a U. S. call for a resumption of the Geneva talks, urging instead a fullscale discussion at the United Nations. Fedorenko called the U. S. appeal for a return to Geneva an attempt to stall agreement.

The Soviet Resolution, however, called for the General Assembly committee to come to an early agreement on halting the increase in nuclear states on the basis of the Russian proposals and to submit the issue to the Geneva negotiators.

William C. Foster, top U. S. disarmament negotiator, reiterated the U. S. appeal for a resumption of the Geneva talks, telling the 117 - nation committee it was too large for reaching a meaningful agreement.

"If real progress is to be made," he said, "we must turn to the difficult but necessary task of negotiation. Any attempt now to press for further agreement on principles or guidelines in this large committee is bound to result in a reiteration of known positions."

Foster also denied Communist charges that the U. S. treaty proposal contained loopholes that would permit nuclear weapons for West Germany or any other nations, within or outside of NATO.

Since the start of the General Assembly session in September, Communist countries have hammered on the charge the United States plans to arm Bonn with atomic weapons by a multilateral nuclear force (MLF) or similar scheme within the Atlantic Alliance.

Viet Cong Hit Bases

DA NANG, Viet Nam (AP) — Viet Cong guerrillas launched simultaneous attacks with mortars and infiltration teams at an air facility near Da Nang and at the Chu Lai airfield shortly before midnight yesterday.

U. S. Marines are based at Da Nang and Chu Lai. A Marine Corps spokesman said "a couple of aircraft were destroyed" at each air installation.

The spokesman said two helicopters were destroyed at what is known as "Da Nang East Air Base" just across the Da Nang River from the big Air Force base here. The main base in Da Nang was not attacked.

The East Air Base facility at Marbled Mountain has about 40 Marine helicopters.

The spokesman reported that probably a couple of A4 Skyhawk jet attack bombers were destroyed at Chu Lai Air Base, a Marine center about 52 miles south of Da Nang which is home base for a Marine jet fighter - bomber group and a helicopter group.

Di Affirms Effect Of Civil Disobedience

By JOHN GREENBACKER
DTH Political Writer

Members and guests of the Dialectic Society voted 20 to 12 Tuesday night in affirming the question, "Is civil disobedience today still effective?"

Charles Schunior, president of the UNC chapter of the Student Peace Union, defended civil disobedience as a part of the citizen's freedom to dissent.

"The recent totalitarian-minded attacks on the anti-Viet Nam war demonstrations are vastly ironic," Schunior said, "for the country which these pompous superpatriots so dotingly eulogize in fourth of July speeches was founded on dissent."

Schunior attacked the tendency to look at the law as "absolute and immutable.

"A sincere dedication to the concept of the law requires us to constantly question its human revelence," he said.

"Of each law we must ask ourselves, 'Is this a law that I should obey?'" he said. "'Is this law so unjust that it needs to be resisted from the very inception, and cannot await the slow process of parliamentary reform?'"

Drawing a distinction between covert evasion of the law and open civil disobedience, Schunior said civil disobedience is frequently the best way of protesting a grievance.

He deplored a "rising tide of neo-McCarthyism" in the nation and recent criticism of demonstrations at the University.

Conservative Speaks

William Otis, secretary of the Carolina Conservative Club, denounced "irresponsible and indiscriminate use of civil disobedience" in recent weeks.

Though he praised the use of civil disobedience in such areas as the field of civil rights, Otis said, "Civil disobedience is haphazardly abused in the current rush of 'get out of Viet Nam' protests.

"Very few will argue that civil disobedience is never justified," he said, "but few still will contend that there never arise circumstances in which it cannot be tolerated.

"It appears that we are presented with a situation more nearly approximating the latter," he said. "Our society scarcely can, and should, continue to put up with the demonstrators.

"When the practitioners of civil disobedience wish to initiate a responsible, dispassionate and well-reasoned assault on our 'mistaken' ideas, we will meet with them," he said.

Members and guests of the society took opposing sides of the question or called for civil disobedience which does not infringe upon the rights of others.

Jerry Monro was inaugurated as president of the Dialectic Senate.

He called on the society to continue to be an open forum for all opinion.

LIKE LOCUSTS, over 400 two-wheeled contraptions have invaded Chapel Hill this year. Motor scooters, cycles and bikes of all descriptions seem to be the answer to the parking problem . . . But are they? See tomorrow's DTH for a report on transportation and parking at UNC.
— DTH Photo by Ernest Robl

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of the Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. Letters and columns, covering a wide range of views, reflect the personal opinions of their authors.
ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

Roger Davis

Warm southern sun,
Shine softly here.
Warm southern wind,
Blow gently here.

Green sod above,
Lie light, lie light.
Good night, dear friend
Good night, good night.
MARK TWAIN

The people who knew Roger Davis remember the little things. They remember his remarkably infectious smile and the funny nervous way he shuffled when he talked to you. They remember the little gold "M" he wore.

They remember his boyish enthusiasm and his aversion to things that were stuffy or pedantic. They remember his uncompromising loyalty to his friends — to his "house" — to his school. They remember, and they almost wish they couldn't.

For Roger is gone now. The warm human spirit that was somehow everywhere is now somehow gone. The vibrant and genuine person that once met his friends for coffee in the Pine Room has left an incomprehensible vacuum behind him. A special part of us is gone, and we can hardly believe it.

We only know that we shall miss him. We shall be thankful for what he did to make our lives more happy and complete. We shall remember Roger.

And we shall be sure of one thing:

Somewhere in a remote, yet populous, corner of Elysium a happy and dedicated unit of once-disoriented cherubim are donning cowboy hats of Carolina blue and marching across a sunlit field beating a golden gong.

And we know who started it all.

Armistead Maupin, Jr.

Sure Winners This Saturday

The results of yesterday's voting for Homecoming Queen won't be known until Saturday, but we're not a bit worried. With such a choice group of beauties in the running, there's just no way to make a mistake in the selection.

We've seen a good many homecoming courts come and go, but there isn't one in memory that could top this one. In fact, we think any university in the country would be hard pressed to gather a better looking congregation of femininity.

If the football team performs the way the homecoming court looks, Saturday ought to be a very pleasant day.

Moore Speaks Up For Us

Considering the fact that he is chairman of the University of North Carolina board of trustees, Dan Moore has said surprisingly little to that organization.

But his statement read at the last meeting of the board is a refreshing departure from his usual silence and may even mark the beginning of a warming trend in relations between the administrations of the University and the state government.

"We are now at a critical time for constructive, forward movement in the university. I feel this board of trustees should gather its strength, get behind the president and with him aggressively seek the highest quality program and staff for our university," Moore said.

"I intend to give the university and the president every reasonable support I can in fulfilling its mission."

For those who prefer action to words, the board then approved a yearly increase of $87,700 for the operating budget of President William C. Friday's office. Arrangements were made to create two new vice presidencies and fill two vice presidential vacancies in the Consolidated University office.

A conscious effort is being made to strengthen Friday's office and improve University relations with the state and General Assembly. It's nice to finally have some support from the state executive that is at least mildly outspoken.

Never On Sunday

Some little posters have been appearing around campus. They show a ban-the-bomb sign and say, "Student Peace Union; Sunday, 3:00 at Silent Sam; Make Love, Not War; Everybody Welcome."

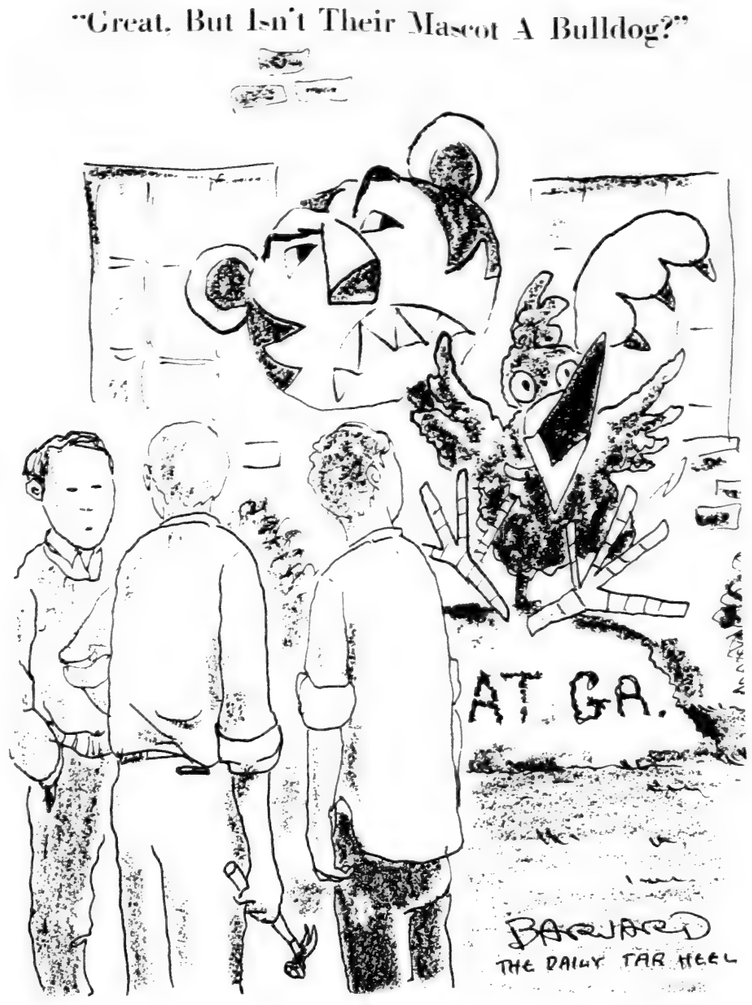
Let no one ever say that the SPU can't come up with some good ideas. But really now. Sunday afternoon in front of Silent Sam just isn't the time and place to make love.

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

"Great, But Isn't Their Mascot A Bulldog?"



Campus Radio Defeat Was Result Of Two Legislative Factions

By JOHN GREENBACKER
DTH Political Writer

No one expected the defeat of the campus radio organization bill last Thursday in Student legislature, not even the radio's opponents.

When the surprising roll-call vote was over, it became apparent that two main factions within SL had defeated the bill.

Legislators representing off-campus and fraternity - sorority districts opposed it. Campus radio's signals would only reach their constituents by FM beam, and it might be some time before an AM signal could be broadcast to them.

The second faction opposed the issue because of the risk and financial effort involved.

Campus radio had the misfortune to come before SL for consideration during a year of high Student Government expenditure.

The Dickson administration has introduced a veritable pork barrel of nearly 25 financial bills, which the Student Party leadership and legislative caucus have vowed to see enacted.

The expense of this legislation, plus that of establishing campus radio, threatens to shave an $80,000 surplus of Student Government funds down to about $25,000 to $30,000. This surplus has been building up since 1946.

It has been estimated by student financial experts that Student Government needs between $25,000 to $30,000 to stay in the "black" and still operate before students fees are collected by the University each semester.

This year more than any other, the legislature would be less inclined to spend $35,000 on a radically new program, especially when some legislators continually claim that campus radio has been a failure elsewhere.

The unfortunate aspect about this whole situation is that there are no problems in establishing campus radio which could not be worked out with a little effort.

Transformers could be placed in areas of high student off-campus concentration which would convert the radio's FM signals to AM, if only town district legislators and their constituents are willing to wait a year or two.

Student Government could be operated on a sound financial basis even if the full legislative agenda were passed as it stands now, providing no extra expenditure is incurred.

It is, however, impossible to imagine the finance committee of Student Legislature not cutting at $5,000 from the new appropriation bills. They could even eliminate some of the more extravagant bills and save between $10,000 and $15,000.

If this were known, then why did the legislature sacrifice campus radio? Only the legislators themselves can explain this.

Some have tried to discredit the results of the referendum on campus radio held October 5, claiming SL should not accept the mandate of only one fourth the student body on this issue.

Unfortunately this is nearly the same number as votes in any all-campus election, the very type of election which put the legislature in office. Even though there was little publicity or campaign involved, the students who voted supported campus radio's establishment three to one.

The need for quality radio broadcasting of student interest is quite apparent in this area. By daytime the student is bombarded with five minutes of music, then five minutes of commercialism harped by simpering adolescence. At night he has no radio signal at all to amuse him.

Quality, non-commercial broadcasting, personalized for the students on this campus would be a great benefit. The further advantage of instant, personal communication would increase campus unity at a time when the ills of an expanded university are beginning to plague Chapel Hill.

One need only ask himself how a good campus radio station might have helped avoid last year's situation in Berkeley, California.

The record of Thursday's roll call vote and the names of the legislators absent indicate campus radio will have a very difficult time seeking passage through SL. The odds are it will be defeated finally within a week, unless those legislators who have committed themselves change their minds.

The loss to the student body will be great if this occurs. Their enthusiasm crushed, the supporters of campus radio are compelled to sit and suffer in silence. A year's solid effort has apparently come to nothing.

A distinguished political commentator once said that for every man who looks to the future there are ten men appointed to guard the past.

Though the validity of such guardians' claims may often be great, this is neither their time nor their issue.

For the sake of the student body and the future of the University, Student Legislature must reconsider and pass the campus radio legislation.

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel welcomes letters to the editor on any subject, particularly on matters of local or University interest. Letters must be typed, double spaced and must include the name and address of the author or authors. Names will not be omitted in publication. Letters should be kept as brief as possible. The DTH reserves the right to edit for length or libel.

Letters To The Editor

Young Students Lack Discipline

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

I have gotten so tired of wars and rumors of war. It seems so hopeless to ever dream that man would one day learn to settle his problems at the conference table instead of on the battle field. I have the greatest sympathy with our young men who are the first to go to the front. But when I see the protests of the Student Peace Union, and Students for a Democratic Society, I recall Thomas Jefferson's famous pronouncement — "The tree of liberty must be watered by the blood of Patriots every twenty years," and I realize how right he was. Long periods of peace seem to debase man, and weaken him, instead of strengthening and ennobling him.

Should lasting peace ever come in this world, would man find the moral equivalent of war, and build a more wonderful, beautiful world? The verdict of history seems to imply that he would not. When the Romans reached the peak of their power — world dominion — they became so corrupt as a people, that the barbarians had only to move in and take over. This has been true of the other great powers who have succumbed to the barbarians.

I am glad that this draft-dodging group represents a small minority of our youth. Who can tell but long periods of peace might greatly increase their numbers.

Pericles speaking to the men of Athens over two thousand years ago said in these memorable words — "The secret of happiness is freedom, and the secret of freedom, a brave heart, not to stand idly aside from the enemies onslaught."

It might seem not apropos to bring in the UNC campus in conjunction with the above comments, but I think I shall. I met a law student on the campus yesterday. He said, "Mrs. Connor, I wish you would come to our dormitory (Carr) and watch TV with us, and see how careless and untidy the students are in our reception rooms. I wish you would write about it."

Well, I didn't tell him I would, because I didn't know what I would say. But I have thought for a long time as I see the litter on the campus and the lack of thoughtfulness in Graham Memorial — they read the newspapers and magazines, throw them on the floor, and never return anything to its proper place — that what is needed for these young people is universal military training, not to prepare them for war, but to put them through strict, harsh discipline, to train them for living in an ordered society. It is evident that the young people of today receive no discipline whatever in their homes, and at the same time they are opposed to the colleges standing in loco parentis to them. The only solution seems to be military discipline.

What should be done for the girls? I don't know. I see very little of the girls. Perhaps strict female institutes, patterned after the old fashioned schools whose chief reason for being was to turn out ladies.

One thing is certain, if young people don't learn discipline, they are going to find it hard sledding when they go into the business and social world. They will learn that they are not acceptable anywhere.

Mrs. Otelia Connor
Chapel Hill

Speaking Out

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

The right to speak one's mind is not license to libel. If I want to stand on campus and say that U. S. policy in Viet Nam is wrong, that is my right. If you would like to stand beside me and proclaim your disagreement with the views I express, that is your right. If, however, you insist upon hurling personal insults at me, you have entered the realm of libel.

It is intellectually immature to use ad hominem arguments instead of arguing the issues. The opinions voiced by SPU and SDS members deserve a good deal of thoughtful attention. To summarily dismiss them because of an irrational prejudice against beards and sneakers is to disregard one's responsibilities as a citizen

Helen R. Samuels
Miller Hall

Higher Plants

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

"Of some quarter million species of higher plants, only a hundred are used by man."

We do not mean to criticize, but did want to let you know that the above, with the exception that "species" was always misspelled "speces," has appeared three times in the October 19 and 20 editions of the DTH.

Johnny Norvelle
Galen Elliott, Jr.
432 Morrison

David Rothman

Historical Restoration Creates Tourist Haven

What happened after funds from the UNC Student Peace Union reached the village of Supe Can Knee?

Koob Egdelwonk recently toured the area to get the full dope.

"We decided to restore it just the way it was originally," said Goreman Uncle, editor of the Saturweek Review, who was showing Koob the hamlet destroyed by U. S. Marines.

"Watch out!" Egdelwonk yelled. "We're encountering some machine gun fire from those agrarian reformers."

"And isn't that great!" exclaimed Uncle. "We of course had trouble finding some World War I vintage weapons to replace the ones captured by the Marines. But now the poor peasants have once again been given the tools of their livelihood."

"What about those booby traps and hedgerows?"

"They're supposed to keep wild water buffaloes away from the rice paddies," Uncle replied.

"And the dugouts?"

"Supe Can Knee is a peaceful, pastoral home of impoverished villagers, but from time to time, it does have problems with noisy helicopters. It is to these dugouts that the people then go to find peace and quiet — separation from the rest of the world so they can better communicate with the Almighty."

"Why has the Peace Union given the people hand grenades?"

"I'm surprised you'd ask that question," Uncle declared. "Hand grenades, as you well know, are used to dig holes in the soil for crops. The jagged scraps of iron make very good fertilizer."

"I'm still somewhat skeptical," Egdelwonk insisted. "Why are the villagers so intimate with the Viet Cong guerrillas? Why'd they decorate that building over there with V. C. posters?"

"Oh — that building. It's simply the home of the Supe Can Knee USO."

"I swear — I think I see firing holes."

"No you don't. It is through these holes that the weary, peace-loving soldiers stick their telescopes to admire the beautiful scenery."

"Why are the walls made of asbestos?"

"Many of the soldiers smoke in bed, and a few are quite careless with their cigarette lighters."

"And those loud-speakers blaring out anti-American propaganda?"

Uncle frowned and sternly reminded Egdelwonk: "We reinstalled them because that's just the way things were originally."

"Since you've done such an excellent job of restoration, do you intend to make Supe Can Knee a tourist attraction — sorta like Mount Vernon or the White House?"

"We think it has great possibilities as a place to be visited by Americans of draft age."

"Will you have special hotel rates for children?"

"Yes, the Viet Cong freedom fighters like to have lots of children and women around them. The agrarian reformers say they provide a 'shield.' I'm told this has something to do with toothpaste commercials."

"And those hidden escape tunnels?"

"The Viet Cong soldiers often get tired of using the Supe Can Knee USO. They flee to the jungles whenever the Americans visit the place."

Moore Stresses Education

By ERNEST ROBL
DTH Staff Writer

"Public education is the bedrock responsibility of state government. We must always insist that it get the degree of attention which is in keeping with that responsibility," Governor Dan K. Moore told an audience of 600 educators in Hill Hall yesterday morning.

Moore delivered the keynote address at the Eleventh Annual Delegate Assembly of the N. C. State School Boards Association. He was introduced by Chancellor Paul F. Sharp.

"A strong system of public education," Moore said, "was never more important in our state than it is today. North Carolina is advancing steadily in industry, in agriculture, and in business and commercial activity. Our opportunities for further growth, for a better state, are unprecedented."

In his speech, the governor enumerated educational improvements made in North Carolina during the past year and concluded by pledging complete cooperation in the development of schools. The audience gave Moore a standing ovation.

"The General Assembly which convened last February took many positive steps to advance public education," Moore said. "As a first step, the legislature appropriated funds for 1,472 additional teachers to reduce pupil loads.

"The choice, on the basis of available funds, was to cut class sizes by one in the eight elementary grades, or to cut class sizes by three in the first three grades. I felt, and the legislature agreed, that the second choice was the better of the two.

"Motivation for learning must be instilled in a child during his first school years, and this can best be done in smaller classes," he explained.

Other points mentioned by Moore included improvement of the remedial teaching program, reduction of book fees, and an upcoming increase in the salaries of teachers.

"One of the great handicaps for numbers of our school children," Moore said, "has been hunger in the classroom . . . and I am gratified that the General Assembly . . . acted to eliminate hunger from the classroom."

Moore also criticized increasing federal involvement in public education. "I appreciate the assistance of the federal government in education," he said, "so long as it does not interfere with the rights of our people to govern themselves.

"I have expressed my fear of the federal government's involvement in public education. I think it is unwise that the federal government has sought to deal directly with local districts and bypass the state educational agency.

"We must maintain this all important link if our schools are to continue to fulfill the needs of children of North Carolina.

"I ask this question. Who knows better than North Carolinians the needs of our children and who can better set programs for these schools in North Carolina?"

The governor departed from his prepared text to put in a strong plug for the upcoming road bond issue. He urged the educators to "get the schoolbusses off the dirt roads. Vote for road bonds. Vote for the road to progress."

Other speakers at the day-long session included State Superintendent of Public Instruction Dr. Charles F. Carroll; Ralph McAllister, director of operations of the Learning Institute of North Carolina; and Allan Markam of the Institute of Government.

Dr. John Otts, acting dean of the UNC School of Education introduced these guest speakers.

SL To Honor Roger Davis

Tonight's regular session of Student Legislature will be devoted to a memorial service for Representative Roger Davis.

The session will be held at 7:30 in New East Hall.

A bi-partisan resolution in tribute to Davis will be introduced at the session by the party leaders for President Paul Dickson and Vice President Brit Gordon.

The resolution will be presented to Davis's parents when they arrive here Friday.

"Anyone who wishes to enter comments to the minutes of the legislature may do so through his respective representative," Gordon added.

Davis was an independent legislator from Craige dormitory.

House Probes KKK Unit

Continued from Page 1

United Klans of America declined to answer when he was questioned about his collections and speeches for the Klan.

But after he was dismissed, he read a statement to newsmen saying:

"I have sworn, before God almighty, to cleave to the high code of ethics and morality that are the guiding principles of the United Klans of America, and I shall remain steadfast and faithful to that oath, knowing full well that should I violate it, I would risk eternal damnation of my mortal (sic) soul."

Dorsett, of Greensboro, N.C., state Klan official as well as imperical chaplain, was called as the last witness in the North Carolina phase of the House Committee on Un-American Activities' probe of the Klan.

The ruddy, hawk - faced Dorsett was confronted with photographs showing him counting money in his black chaplain's robes and with new accounts and transcripts of his speeches at Klan rallies.

Committee Investigator Donald T. Appell noted that a section of the Klan oath requires Klansmen to assist law enforcement officers but pictured Dorsett as becoming enraged when police copied down license numbers of automobiles at Klan rallies.

When state troopers turned up at a rally near Henderson, N. C., last April 17 Dorsett was quoted as saying they "must be part nigger . . . if they had any guts and were decent white men they would take off their badges and be resurrected."

Dorsett also was quoted as denouncing a policeman identified only as Sgt. Cook as "a disgrace to his race, his uniform and the state of North Carolina."

Some photographs presented by the committee showed Dorsett in the military uniform of the Klan's security guard.

Rep. John M. Ashbrook, R-Ohio, said the uniform reminded him of the outfits worn by what George Lincoln Rockwell calls his Nazi storm troopers.

Appell noted that Dorsett drums hard on communism in his speeches and asked him what knowledge he has about communism.

Morrison Sets Go-Go Parties

It's going, going gone weekend for Morrison Residence College Friday and Saturday nights.

"Halloween-A-Go-Go" will be kicked off at 8 p.m. Friday, featuring "The Castaways" and Morrison Go-Go-Girls in the main lounge.

Admission is $1 per couple. Door prizes will be given.

Saturday night's feature is "Homecoming-A-Go-Go" with "The Seductives" and Morrison Go-Go-Girls from 7:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. in the main lounge.

Admission will be $1.25 per couple.

All students are invited to both night's parties.

Homecoming Judging Set For Saturday

The hammering and sawing will be wrapped up Friday night, and homecoming displays will be judged Saturday morning.

Four members of the Student Athletic Council will begin judging at 10 a.m. on a basis of originality and attractiveness.

Rick Kramer, president of the CAA and chairman of the Student Athletic Council, said yesterday no entry fee is required and contestants from residence halls, fraternities and sororities do not need to file their entry.

However, he noted, since the judges' set route includes only the Greek - residence hall circuit, any other student organization that wishes to have a display judged should contact him today (968-9179).

The winner in each of the five divisions will be announced during Saturday's halftime ceremonies at the same time the homecoming queen is announced.

Trophies will be awarded for best all - campus, best men's residence hall, best women's dormitory, best fraternity and best sorority displays.

In past years only three trophies have been given — best fraternity or sorority, best dormitory and best all-campus.

Kramer said judging was extended to five divisions after the IFC agreed to furnish the two additional trophies.

Jones Cancels State Speech

RALEIGH (AP) — Robert Jones, grand dragon of the North Carolina Ku Klux Klan, said yesterday in Washington he would cancel his scheduled Nov. 22 speech at North Carolina State University.

Jones said he may be called back to Washington for further testimony before the House Committee on Un - American Activities during late November.

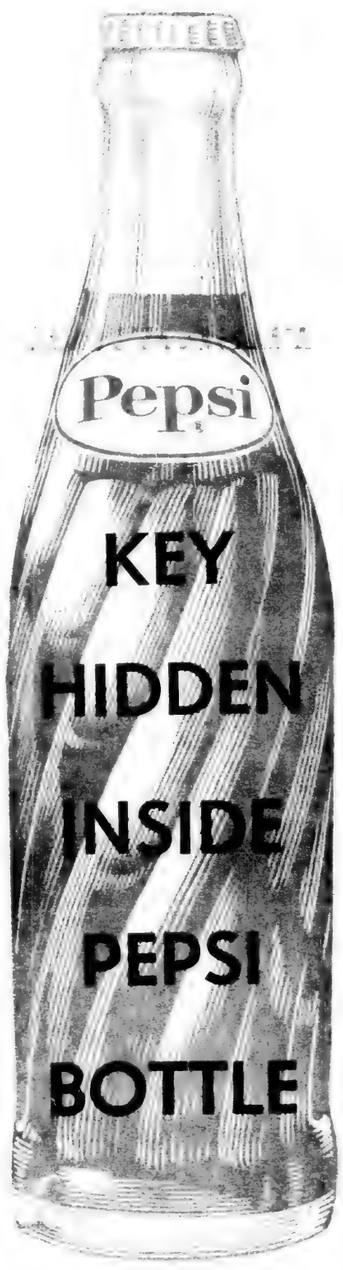
The scheduled appearance by Jones had brought an official request from Consolidated University President William C. Friday for a ruling on whether Jones would be permitted to speak on the campus.

During recent hearings on KKK activities, Jones pleaded the Fifth Amendment to all questions.

FROM PEPSI & YATES

Win a BARRACUDA Free

If You Find The Key



PEPSI BARRACUDA HUNT

Somewhere In Chapel Hill — Carrboro Area

New Clues Broadcast Every Day On

WCHL Radio — 1360

CONTEST CLUES START TODAY

CO-SPONSORED BY PEPSI COLA and YATES MOTOR CO.

Coast Guard OCS Planned

Graduates and seniors who will graduate before February 1, 1966, who are between the ages of 21 and 26, may become officers in the United States Coast Guard Reserve.

The Coast Guard has announced that its next Officer Candidate Class will start on Feb. 12, 1966, at the Coast Guard Reserve Training Center in Yorktown, Virginia. The 17-week program demands the highest degree of physical and mental ability in a curriculum covering communications, navigation, seamanship, leadership, ordance and gunnery, damage control, military drill, anti - submarine warfare, military justice and Coast Guard orientation.

Graduates of OCS are commissioned Ensigns and required to serve in the Coast Guard for three years. They join the 3,000 Coast Guard officers who are charged with enforcing federal laws and protecting life and property on the high seas and navigable waters of the United States.

Ensign Gordon K. Swain, U. S. Coast Guard Reserve will be in Y-Court today and tomorrow to interview or pass information on to interested applicants.

MARCEL MARCEAU, famous French pantomimist, gives a one-man performance tonight at Duke University. He will appear at Page Auditorium. His act is entitled "The Art of Silence." Tickets may be purchased by phoning 681-0111, Ext. 2911, or at the box office, which will be open this afternoon.

SHOP A&P FOR TRICK & TREAT GOODIES-PRICE LOW-COME SEE

A&P BRAND YELLOW POP CORN 2 Lb. Bag 27c

JANE PARKER CAKE DONUTS 12 Count Pkg. 19c

YUKON CLUB BEVERAGES 15 12-FL. OUNCE CANS $1.00

PRICES IN THIS AD EFFECTIVE THRU OCT. 30

● ALLGOOD BRAND ● SLICED BACON 1-Lb. Pkg. 59c

MARVEL BRAND ICE CREAM 2 ½-Gal. Ctns. 95c

A&P

WORTHMORE CANDY

14-OZ. CANDY CORN
16-OZ. HARVEST MIX
13-OZ. INDIAN CORN
11½-OZ. Candy Magic
14-OZ. JELLY BEANS
10-OZ. SOUR BALLS
10-OZ. Butterscotch Candy Balls

Each Pkg. 29c

● SPICE DROPS
● GUM DROPS
● ORANGE SLICES
● GUM SLICES

★ 1-Lb. 4 Oz. Pkg. 33c

PRE-PRICED LABEL ON A&P PURE INSTANT COFFEE 10-OZ. JAR $1.09

Five New UNC Buildings Are Christened By Trustees

Four proposed buildings and one now operating were given names by the Board of Trustees in Raleigh Monday.

The proposed structures are the Hinton James and James Knox Polk residence halls, the Robert Ervin Coker Institute of Fisheries Research building at Morehead City, and the Elizabeth Scott Carrington Hall (School of Nursing building).

The building now operating is the School of Public Health, which was named for Milton Joseph Rosenau, an important figure in the founding of the division of public health in the School of Medicine and later the School of Public Health. He was dean of the school until his death in 1946.

Dr. Roseneau served also as director of the Hygienic Laboratory of the U. S. Public Health Service (later known as the National Institutes of Health) and was the first full-time professor at the world's first department of preventive medicine and hygiene, established at Harvard in 1909. Rosenau Hall, which cost $1,685,000, was dedicated in 1962.

James residence hall, named for the first student to enroll at UNC when it opened its doors in 1795, will be located southeast of the present Craige College. Ten stories high, it will be constructed on the same plan as Craige, Morrison and Ehringhaus dormitories and will cost about $3 million. The new hall, which will house approximately 1,000 students, is planned for use by the fall of 1967.

James was a native of Wilmington and later served as mayor of that city and as a state legislator.

The other new residence hall will be named for UNC alumnus and president of the United States from 1845 to 1849, James Knox Polk. It will also have room for 1,000 students and will cost about $3 million. To be built of a new tower design unlike any current residence hall, Polk is expected to be ready by the fall of 1968. It will be constructed west of Scott College.

Polk, who was awarded an honorary Doctor of Laws by UNC in 1845, was born in Mecklenburg County. He had received his A.B. here in 1818 and his A.M. here in 1822.

Both of the new residence halls will be financed under a self - liquidating plan approved by the legislature.

Mrs. Elizabeth Scott Carrington, for whom the new school of nursing building will be named, served as the first chairman of the School of Nursing Committee of the Medical Foundation of North Carolina, Inc. Now a resident of Burlington, Mrs. Carrington is credited with providing impetus for many programs at the present UNC School of Nursing.

The $1,535,000 cost of Carrington Hall will be financed in part by a $805,000 state appropriation. Now in the early planning stages, the building will be placed in the medical complex.

The new Institute of Fisheries Research Building at Morehead City, to cost $530,000, will be named for Robert Ervin Coker, one of those instrumental in the establishment of the institute. Dr. Coker was also head of the zoology department here, a Kenan professor and chairman of the Division of Natural Sciences. This structure will be built with funds of $380,000 from a General Assembly appropriation and a National Science Foundation grant of $150,000.

WIDELY ACCLAIMED female singing star Nancy Wilson is coming to the Carolina campus. She will give one performance in Carmichael Auditorium at 8 p.m., Saturday, Nov. 6. Down Beat magazine has rated Miss Wilson as the second most popular female vocalist in the country, and she has had a succession of best-selling albums. Tickets for "An Evening with Nancy Wilson," a special Graham Memorial presentation, are now on sale at the GM desk.

Job Interviews

The following companies will recruit on campus next week:

Monday, Nov. 1 — Harold E. Linder, CPA; F. W. Woolworth; R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company; Johns - Manville Products Corporation

Tuesday, Nov. 2 — Graduate School of Business, Columbia University; J. B. Ivey & Company; Tennessee Eastman Company (summer jobs for juniors and above in chemistry); Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph; American Telephone & Telegraph; Western Electric; Armstrong Cork Company; First Union National Bank

Wednesday, Nov. 3 — Woodrow Wilson School in Public & International Affairs, Princeton University; Heritage Furniture Company; Allied Chemical Corporation; Armstrong Cork Company; Southern Bell Tel. & Tel.; American Tel. & Tel.; Western Electric

Thursday, Nov. 4 — Kroger Company; Sinclair Research Inc.; United Aircraft Corporation; U. S. Naval Weapons Lab (summer jobs for juniors and seniors); Southern Bell Tel. & Tel.; American Tel. & Tel., Western Electric; Clemson University

Friday, Nov. 5 — Mead Corporation; Blue Bell, Inc.; Kroger Company

Students desiring interviews with the company representatives should go to the Placement Service, 211 Gardner Hall.

Maurice Williams Highlights Parties

Maurice Williams and the Zodiacs will highlight Fall Mavericks this weekend. Six rooms of the nightclub will be open for the affair.

Maurice will kick off the weekend Friday night at 8, following a banquet in honor of Patti Fields, Miss Maverick, 1965. The party will celebrate the first anniversary of the Maverick social program.

On Saturday the Mavericks will sponsor their annual homecoming antics, including displays and streamers at the game, and a halftime show.

The second annual Maverick House pageant will follow the game. The pageant features the following Maverick Maids: Zackie Murphy, Toni Greenwood, Janet Blake, Katie Talbert, Mary King, Margo Teasdale, Jackie Cole, Brenda Ballard, and Anita Wilkinson.

Miss Maverick 1966 will be selected and crowned at this ceremony. A minstrel show will highlight this affair.

Following a Saturday night banquet for house residents, there will be an "Old Fashion" Halloween Party featuring the recording "Vibratones" and a back-up band.

For both evenings the Maverick A Go-Go, the Voo-Doo Room, the Red Garter Room, and the Sweetheart Room will be open. This is the first of three weekends planned for house members this year.

Prof To Talk

Dr. Violet Wurfel, chairman of the Department of Political Science at North Carolina College in Durham, will be the speaker at the World Community Day observance by the United Church Women of Chapel Hill, at the Community Church, on Friday, Nov. 5, at 10 a.m.

Dr. Wurfel received her Ph. D. at the University of Virginia. Before accepting the position at N.C.C., she was a visiting professor at UNC. Previous to this, she has taught at the University of the Philippines, University of California, and University of Maryland. In 1963 she spent the summer in Peru and Colombia. Her keen interest in and wide knowledge of world affairs make her a valued speaker for World Community Day.

First Meeting

The UNC chapter of the Americans for Reappraisal of Far Eastern Policy will hold its first meeting today at 4:30 p.m. in the Faculty Lounge of the Monogram Club.

ARFEP is a national organization with chapters on 20 campuses throughout the United States. Central headquarters is at Yale University.

The purpose of the organization is to transmit the ideas of: a reappraisal of American policy toward Red China and to suggest the admittance of China into the UN.

The major purpose of the meeting is to set up committees and programs in coordination with the ARFEP National Committee. Debates and guest speaker programs may be arranged in the future.

CELESTIAL CALENDAR FOR NOVEMBER

MERCURY Too near sun for observation
VENUS In Sagittarius, low in SW at sunset
MARS In Sagittarius, low in SW at sunset
JUPITER In Gemini, rising soon after sunset
SATURN In Aquarius, setting shortly after midnight
MOON First ¾, 1st; Full, 8th; Last ¼, 15th; New, 22nd

AT THE MOREHEAD PLANETARIUM Chapel Hill, N. C.

Through November 22
"THE EARTH IN THE UNIVERSE"

Opens November 23rd, 8:30 P.M.
STAR OF BETHLEHEM
Scientific and Spiritual Story of Christmas
Daily School Program at 11, 1, 4
Daily at 8:30 P.M.
Saturdays at 11, 1, 3, 4 and 8:30
Sundays at 2, 3, 4 and 8:30

Write for School Program Schedule

The Morehead Planetarium gratefully acknowledges the generous cooperation of this newspaper in presenting this program listing.

Harvard Offers Teaching Fellowship For Seniors

Harvard University is offering a special $4,000 fellowship in Teaching for a senior enrolled at a college or univer in North Carolina.

The Harvard - North Carolina Fellowship in Teaching—a $1,700 scholarship and a $2,300 teaching intership —will enable a graduate of a college of arts and sciences to enter the Master of Arts in Teaching Program at Harvard for 1966-67.

The M.A.T. Program is designed to prepare outstanding liberal arts graduates for positions of leadership in the public schools. No previous course work in education is expected.

The one-year program includes courses in the candidate's teaching field under the Harvard Faculty of Arts and Sciences and professional courses under the Faculty of Education. The M.A.T. represents the first step in a sequence of study and teaching which may lead to a doctorate in the candidate's teaching field.

An applicant must rank in the upper fifth of his class and present a major in biology, chemistry, economics, English, French, history, mathematics, physics, or political science.

Applications must be received by February 15. Unsuccessful applicants for the Harvard - North Carolina Fellowship will automatically be considered for other scholarships, loans, and teaching interships awarded through the Master of Arts in Teaching Program.

Additional information and application forms are available from James G. Harvey, assistant to the dean, Longfellow Hall, Harvard University, Cambridge, Massachusetts 02138.

Georgia Coeds Conquer Men In Debate Tourney

Two poised and smooth - talking young ladies from the University of Georgia successfully debated their way through nine rounds of debating here this past weekend, to take top honors in the First Annual Tar Heel Invitational Debate Tournament.

They were the only co-eds who qualified to compete in the elimination rounds, and successfully defended their position from then on, against gentlemen from Princeton, Washington & Lee, and finally, Emory University in the Championship Round.

The tournament was sponsored by the UNC Debating Union, and hosted over 45 teams from colleges and universities all over the country. Participating teams included the University of Illinois, Ohio University, Wayne State at Detroit, the U. S. Military Academy, Princeton, Georgetown, Kentucky, Brooklyn College, as well as Duke University, Wake Forest College and Davidson College in the state.

The teams were debating the intercollegiate debate topic for this year: RESOLVED: That the U. S. should have greater freedom in the investigation and prosecution of crime.

Each team debated six rounds beginning Friday morning, and going through Saturday morning, Oct. 22-23. At the end of the six rounds, the top eight teams out of the 48 were selected to compete head-on for the championship.

In winning that championship Georgia carried home a three - foot high silver wine cooler, the revolving championship award, plus the permanent award, a 21-inch diameter engraved Revere Bowl. Trophies also went to the second place team, Emory University, and the two semi-finalists, Washington & Lee, and Georgetown.

The host school, UNC, posted a 5-1 record. They were eligible for the elimination rounds, but withdrew in favor of another visiting school, as is the custom. Bob Powell of Carolina took fifth place in the tournament as an individual speaker.

KING WILLIAM RESTAURANT

1½ Miles from Campus on 15-501 South

SPECIALIZING IN:
STEAKS CHICKEN SEAFOOD

"Choice Selection of Imported and Domestic Beverages"

All New and Modern, featuring

● Seating capacity of 300
● Spacious parking facilities
● Four private dining rooms
● Tasteful background music
● Catering facilities

Open from 8:00 a.m. 'til Midnight

SEVEN DAYS A WEEK

"THE MUST-SEE PICTURE OF THE YEAR! A THING OF WONDER!" - Archer Winsten, New York Post

"Superb!" —Cue Magazine
"Brilliant!" —Redbook Magazine
"Hypnotic!" —Time
"Beautiful And Awesome!" —Bosley Crowther, N.Y. Times
"Exciting And Breath-takingly Beautiful!" —Rose Pelswick N.Y. Journal American
"Best Foreign Made Picture Of The Year!" —National Board of Review
"A Thrilling And Completely Fascinating Adventure Film Right Out Of The Futurama!" —Judith Crist New York Herald Tribune

COLUMBIA PICTURES presents JACQUES-YVES COUSTEAU'S WORLD WITHOUT SUN

Music by "SERGE BALDO" Commentary written by JAMES DUGAN AL RAMRUS and JIM SCHMERER, Produced by JACQUES-YVES COUSTEAU and JACQUES MAUGER Directed by JACQUES YVES COUSTEAU

UNDERWATER COLOR

Shows at: 1:00 - 2:32 - 4:04 - 5:43 - 7:20 - 9:11
TODAY ONLY
CAROLINA

UNC Calendar Of Campus Events

All Campus Caldendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date (by 10 a.m. Saturday for Sunday's DTH). Lost and Found notices will be run on Tuesday and Saturdays only.

TODAY

Mathematics Colloquium at 4 p.m. in room 332 Phillips Hall. Prof. James B. Kooertson from Cornell University will speak on "Prediction Theory and the Conjugacy Problem." Coffee and tea will be served in the Common Room (Ph. 385) at 3:30 p.m. preceding the Colloquium.

Hockey Club meets in the Woman's Gym at 4 p.m.

The Co-Rec Carnival will be held in the Woollen Gym at 7 p.m.

NAACP meets in 203 Alumni at 7:30 p.m. Members and prospective members are urged to attend.

There will be a meeting of students concerned with continuing the dialogue from last Monday's discussion of Far Eastern Affairs at 4:30 in the Faculty Club.

Christian Science Organization will meet in Woodhouse Room, GM, from 7-7:30 p.m. All interested students are invited to attend.

The Thanksgiving Day Committee will meet at 3 p.m. in the Woodhouse Room of GM. This is an organizational meeting.

VIGAH, Program Development committee only. Will meet in Roland Parker I at 3 p.m.

Student Party legislative caucas at 6:30 p.m. in Roland Parker III.

Fellowship of Christian Athletes at 7:30 p.m. in 304 Woolen Gym. This is a huddle group meeting.

Orientation Reform Committee will meet at 3 p.m. at GM.

The Hillel Foundation will have an advanced conversational Hebrew class from 6:15-7:15 at Hillel.

Sign up for the ping-pong tournament this week at the GM Information Desk. This is an all campus tournament. The winner will be awarded a trophy.

FRIDAY

Hillel Foundation Sabbath evening services at 7 p.m.

Informal reception, bridge and other indoor sports will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Student Center, sponsored by the Westminister Fellowship.

All students interested in working at Umstead Hospital with mental patients please leave their name and address and phone number at the YMCA office.

PARTIES

Friday from 8-12 p.m. at Morrison Residence College a "Holloween - A - Go - Go" with the "Castways" and the Morrison go-go girls, in the main lounge. $1 per couple—door prize.

Friday from 8-12 p.m. at Maverick House Maurice Williams and the "Zodiacs." Tickets are on sale every day this week from 1-3 p.m. in Y-Court.

Saturday from 7:30 p.m.-1 a.m. in Morrison Residence College, "Homecoming - A - Go-Go" with the "Secutives" and 2 go-go girls, in the main lounge. $1.25 per couple.

Saturday at 8 p.m. the German's Club will sponsor Woody Allen and "The Platters" in Memorial Hill. By bid only.

UNC Establishes Daddy Ross Fund

A fund of teaching and research at the University School of Medicine will honor a retiring department chairman.

The Robert A. Ross Obstetrical and Gynecological Society, organized earlier this year, has reached two-thirds of its goal for setting up a chair in honor of Dr. Robert A. Ross, chairman of the UNC Department of Obstetrics and Gyneclogy since 1952. He is retiring as chairman to return to teaching and research here.

The 70 - member society elected Dr. John A. Kirkland of Wilson as its first president. Other officers are Dr. Art R. Summerlin of Raleigh, vice president and president - elect, and Dr. William E. Easterling of Chapel Hill, secretary - treasurer.

Dr. Hugh M. Shingleton of Chapel Hill is in charge of the fund-raising activities.

TRANSPORTATION

Throughout a lifetime, the blood carries tons of food, molecule by molecule, to the body's trillions of cells, according to the North Carolina Heart Association.

— Ingram Refutes

Continued from Page 1

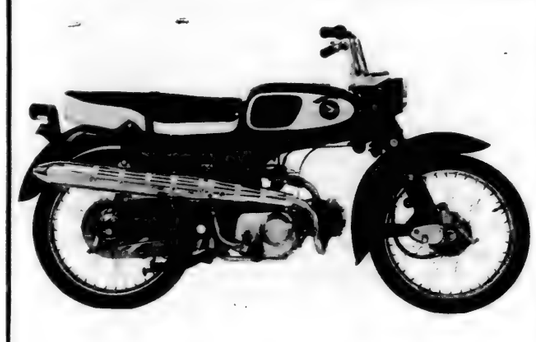
Nov. 4. The nearest date on which a recall could be established by an act of Student Legislature would be Nov. 16, one week after the date established by President Dickson.

It is even questionable whether the recall could be held on that date. Laws dealing with elections cannot normally go into effect within 30 days of the day of the vote.

If that is the case the nearest date on which the recall could be held would be on Dec. 14. To have the legislature to establish the date would be to prolong the agony, something McCrary says he wishes to avoid.

It would appear that the initiators of the petition have had plenty of time in which to find someone to run against President Dickson. The deadline for the filing of candidates was in line with the General Elections Law and previous recall precedent.

John Ingram
Attorney General



Where you want, when you want

FOR 25c A DAY!!!

The Brand New 1966

SPORTS 65 – $323.00

Travel - On Motorcycle Co.
"Headquarters for Adventure"
504 W. Franklin St.
Chapel Hill, N. C.

"We Absolutely Refuse to Be Undersold"

CHASE DINING HALL

In addition to our regular student special (50c)

NOW FEATURING AT LUNCH DAILY A HOT SANDWICH COUNTER

Open: Daily 7-2 5-7:15 Sunday 8-2 5-7:15

• POSITIVELY NO WAITING BREAKFAST OR LUNCH •

Anniversary Sale

Home of World Famous BEEF STICK Reg. 1.45 pound lb. $1.29

Famous Hickory Farms CHEESE BALL $1.79 BONUS A Free Box of Hickory Farms' Crackers or Brenners Crackers.

Reg. 98c lb. IMPORTED CANDY 79c lb.

Advance Showing Christmas Gift Packages and Baskets
Special Attention to Commercial and Executive Accounts

Open Monday - Friday — 9:30 a.m. 'til 9:00 p.m.
Saturday — 9:00 - 6:00 Sunday — 1:00 - 6:00

Friday, October 29th through Sunday, November 7th

HICKORY FARMS

Eastgate Shopping Center

Varsity TODAY ONLY

'GLORY TO PETER SELLERS!' —Brendan Gill, The New Yorker

The Wrong Arm of the Law

"YOUR SIDES WILL BE SORE FROM LAUGHING!" —Redbook

A WALTER READE-STERLING PRESENTATION

people on the go... go BURGER CHEF

College budgets and Burger Chef belong together. Burger Chef . . . where 50¢ will buy a complete meal: open-flame broiled hamburger, a rich milk shake, and a heap of crisp golden fries.

337 N. ROSEMARY ST.
OPEN 10 A.M. – 11 P.M.

BURGER CHEF HAMBURGERS

Franchised nationally by Burger Chef Systems, Indianapolis 7

Home of the World's Greatest 15¢ Hamburger!

CAROLINA COFFEE SHOP
OPEN 8-11 AM PM

ANNUAL FALL BARGAIN BOOK SALE!

Hundreds and hundreds of handsome books, their prices chopped to the bone!

ART BOOKS • MUSIC BOOKS
TRAVEL BOOKS • DRAMA
MUSIC • NATURE BOOKS
ARCHITECTURE • FICTION
COOK BOOKS • HISTORY

Most titles reduced to half-price or less!

All fresh copies — no damaged books

Come Bargain-Hunting This Week at

The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill, North Carolina
open evenings

SALES POSITION

Due to expansion of our Northgate Store, we have part-time positions open for salesmen. Also, taking applications for Christmas work. Apply.
Manager
The Young Men's Shop
Northgate Shopping Center
Durham, N. C.

Visit Chapel Hill's Favorite Night Spot

Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill, North Carolina
open evenings

WANT ADS

FOR SALE — FOUR-STRING tenor guitar. Excellent condition, new strings. Light - colored face, mahogany back with plastic trim. $35. Call Bob Brainard, 226 Joyner, 968-9179.

BEDROOMS FOR RENT FOR boy. Call 968-3761.

FLY — CHARTER FLIGHTS for three persons. 8 cents per mile per person. Two aircraft available. Departure from Chapel Hill. Advance notice please. Contact Bob O'Quin. 968-9033.

FOR SALE: 1960 RENAULT 3 speed. Good condition. $175. Call 968-5064.

FOR RENT: COMPLETELY furnished 2 bedroom, air conditioned 10 x 45 mobile home. Available Oct. 30. $80 per month. Call 942-3268 or 942-1749.

ANGEL BIG CLASSICS

CALLAS

SALE

SCHWARZKOPF

Buy any Angel Classic LP Album at our DISCOUNT PRICE get an Angel excerpt LP FREE

includes selections by Menuhin, Callas, Corelli, Fischer-Dieskav, Richter & Schwarzkopf

ALL Angel
4.98 LP's . . . ONLY 3.59
5.98 LP's . . . ONLY 4.34

only one Free LP to a customer

THE RECORD BAR

(Across from the Post Office on Henderson St.)

DURHAM (Downtown) JACKSONVILLE Florida DURHAM (Wellons Village)

Booters Win 7th; Shut Out Va. 2-0

Charlottesville — North Carolina shutout Virginia 2-0 here yesterday, bringing the team its seventh straight win without a defeat.

Larry Heath scored both of the Tar Heel's goals. The first came in the third quarter and the second in the final period.

"We played a good second half," Coach Marvin said. "Goalie Tom Roberts and fullback Jim Hammer turned in good performances."

Roberts was credited with 17 saves in the game. Carolina dominated the game with 35 shots without letting the Cavaliers penetrate their defenses.

It was the fourth shutout of the year for the Tar Heel booters. They have allowed opponents only four points while scoring 33 themselves. Pfeiffer, East Carolina, and Belmont Abbey have been the only teams to get past the Tar Heel goalies, Roberts and Bob Johnson.

The win was the 99th for Coach Allen in his career here.

The big one comes next Monday on Fetzer Field when UNC's booters face Maryland in a try for victory number 100 for Allen and the ACC crown.

The Daily Tar Heel SPORTS

CHECK-UP

Have a complete physical check-up before you plan your hunting trip, the North Carolina Heart Association advises.

Meade Wins Personal Duel

UNC Harriers Upset Dook

The happiest man in Chapel Hill is Joe Hilton.

Hilton's cross country runners laughed at the odds makers and turned in a 28-29 victory over Duke yesterday on Carolina's home course.

The Tar Heels and the Blue Devils met at the starting line with equal Conference records. Both teams had fallen before powerful Maryland. Carolina lost 16 to 47, a margin of a cool 31 points. Duke, by the slim margin of three.

Duke had one final card up their sleeves which pointed to a victory yesterday afternoon.

Paul Rogers cleaned up on the Maryland runners. Some said he was the fastest man in the Conference.

But the odds makers proved wrong and the ace turned out to be only a jack.

Jim Meade is Carolina's finest long distance man and yesterday he ran the best race of his life. When he and Rogers came out of the woods at the far end of Fetzer Field it was a very close thing. Jim had Paul by about two strides.

The remainder of the course consisted of one lap around Navy Field and then onto the cinder track for the finish. Meade is known to be slow on the flat and it seemed too much to hope that he could cross the finish line ahead of his greatest rival. The crowd at Fetzer cheered as Jim emerged all alone from Navy Field. He had pushed way ahead of the Duke number I and was an easy winner.

But a victory in the first spot by no means ensures a team triumph. A teammate of Rogers, Billy Guy, finished third. The next man over the line had to be wearing a light blue T shirt.

Carolina's Bill Janowitz and Duke's Zodda entered the track with Bill clutching a lead of only a few feet. The Duke man poured it on around the final turn and made their individual duel for the fourth spot a heart stopping affair. Bill held on and crossed the line first.

Carolina's Mike William was sixth. A Blue Devil, Belly Welden, finished seventh. Then seven out of the next eight men were running for Carolina.

Before the varsity contest the freshmen crushed an undefeated Blue Imp team 24-2[illegible] and established themselves as the number one frosh squad in the conference.

Top ten for the in the varsity meet were: Jim Meade (UNC) 21:48.2, Paul Rogers (Duke) 22:15, Billy Guy (Duke 22:25, Bill Janowitz (UNC) 23:07, Zodda (Duke) 23:10, Mike Williams (UNC) 23:25, Billy Welden (Duke) 23:29, Fred McCall (UNC) 23:44, Charlie Worley (UNC) 23:50, Bill Basset (UNC) 24:03

First five for the frosh squads were: Stenberg (Duke) 15:37.5, Hotelling (UNC) 16:10, Goodwin (UNC) 16:13, Lasich (UNC) 16:16, More (Duke) 16:30.

Mural Co-Rec Games Today

The 18th annual Co-Rec Sports Carnival will be held tonight at 7 p.m. on the main floor of Woollen Gym with 42 teams entered.

The relays, with each team consisting of four men and four women, will involve such things as the block exchange, potato spear, paper plate slide and balloon burst.

Mixed doubles will be held in badminton, table tennis, volleyball, and archery while women will compete in tether ball and men in box hockey.

Then come the carnival games, with such items as a worm relay, hammer the devil, blow and burst, funnel volley, bean bag toss, wash day, paper plate flips and bean straw.

Winners in each event and overall winners will receive awards, trophies and plaques.

In intramural tag football action on Wednesday, the Alexander Mooses scored a TD in each half to defeat the Joyner Heels, 14-0. Scoring honors went to Ken Giles and Al Johnson on TD's and Dick Hamilton on a safety.

The Alexander Playboys exploded for four touchdowns in the second half to bury the Joyner Rams, 28-0. Bill Hamlet, Les Mitchell, Bayard Harris and Robin O'Bryan did the scoring.

The Town Tuffs used TD's by Warren Bloom and Larry Cox and beat Victory Village, 16-2, and the Everett Rogah smashed Lewis White, 38-0.

My Neighbors

"Ugh! What kind of witches'-brew is that!?"

Welcome the Tar Heels home in fashions purchased at THE HUB, the leader among Chapel Hill clothiers for over 10 years, THE HUB is ready to welcome in this homecoming with the very finest in men's fashions.

SUITS: In the inimitable natural shoulder that has made The Hub a leader in plaids, herringbones, solids and stripes. Vests available .... from 59.95

SPORT COATS: In the most colorful plaids, handsome stripes, and tweediest tweeds. .... from 29.95

SWEATERS: Cardigans and V-necks in a pleasing array of colors and sizes. .... from 12.95

TROUSERS: A guaranteed match for any coat or sweater in the store, including plaids and houndstooth checks. .... from 10.95

AND: An assortment of topcoats, shirts, ties, belts and other wardrobe accessories.

THE HUB OF CHAPEL HILL

Smart Money is on The Winningest Filley—Crazy Horse

Follow this smart filley to our Lady Milton Shop and see the most complete and very different hrray of Crazy Horse. The argyle sets in shifts and two piece outfits. New and more complete assortment of those irrestible Poor Boys. Ink blue suits with mock lapels and pockets — with that smart and unusual swing. Patchwork two piece sets in charcoal tones for a full lift. Bell bottom trousers in navy, gray or olive —top it off with a Poor Boy. So see the wonderful world of Lady Milton in our newly expanded quarters.

Lady Milton Shop

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

Classic Understatement

100% Imported WOOL PULLOVER by PRINGLE

Everything about this soft, warm pullover speaks with full confidence. So it speaks quietly. Its fine gauge imported wool is sheer luxury to the touch. Classically styled with the V-neck in today's narrow rib.

14.95

Varsity Men's Wear

147 E. Franklin

only one of its kind FOLKWEAVE® SUITS

Folkweave® woolens are completely exclusive. Woven by an honored Scottish mill, they are found only in Folkweave® Suits!

N. FREEMAN & SON

the label that means finer clothing

Julian's

A Wide Selection Individual Terms

T. L. KEMP Jewelry

135 East Franklin

942-1331

ONE HALF OF BIG CHICKEN

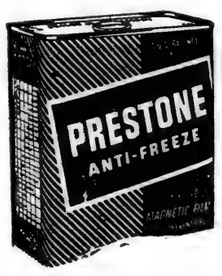
TOSSED SALAD
Heaps of FRENCH FRIES
TOASTED ROLLS

99c

Thur. 4:00-7:30

All the Ice Tea you can drink 15c

GRANTS EASTGATE SHOPPING CENTER



ROSES

Protect Your Car Now
ANTI - FREEZE
GALLON . . . $1.59
QUARTS . . . $ .56

SLOT RACING FANS

25% OFF LIST PRICE ON ALL RACING EQUIPMENT

Jim Hall's Chaperelle By Cox | COX CONTROL HANDLE

Deansgate

the Deansgate sport coat for campus or career

A sport coat with a warm and friendly look in markedly different colorings . . . and Deansgate natural shoulder tailoring makes all the difference for the man who believes in this younger point of view.

Town & Campus

Belk-Leggett-Horton Co.

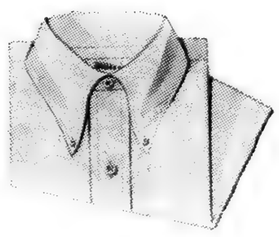
brings you the most exciting new idea in men's gift-giving...

BRITISH STERLING

EXCLUSIVE TOILETRIES FOR MEN

From $3.50 to $10.00

ALL THAT'S MAGIC IN A SHIRT Is Wrapped Up In Milton's Own M2



A Milton M2 is a perfect roll button-down shirt with a slightly higher collar for added comfort and smartness under a jacket with just the right taper for trim effect. This shirt is so different that even our whites are unlike anyone else's. A white M2 starts with the 330 count Greenwood fine combed oxford found in some quality whites but this is where the similarity ends. A Milton shirt is treated with a special parchment finish, special shade No. 99, to give it an English creamy white look, a wanted departure from the white white. Our shirts are tailored with the fabric on the right side for added lustre. In our authentic single needle shirt you can count twenty stitches to the inch, and the pocket margins are lock-stitched. To this add lock-stitch buttons from Pochester Button Co. that will not chip or break. The final pressing is done by hand for a smart flat package. All these details comprise 57 different operations plus three sewing room and two pressing inspections. These meticulous touches make our M2 the most wanted wardrobe additive. Finest white oxfords. $5.95

After trying our fabulous M2's you'll know why Miltons became the fashion leader in all the land.

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

Homecoming 1965

Welcome Alumni

BEFORE THE GAME
FOR THE GAME
AFTER THE GAME

BE GLAMOROUS IN:

Sportswear

After Five Cocktail and Dinner Dresses

EVENING BRILLIANCE from J. B. ROBBINS —
The House of Fashion in Chapel Hill for The Carolinas
THE WOMEN'S STORE FOR FASTIDIOUS, PARTICULAR WOMEN

Complete Apparel — Millinery — Sportswear — Accessories — Shoes

J. B. Robbins

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill

PEP RALLY

The Daily Tar Heel

TONIGHT AT 8

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Vol. 74, No. 39 CHAPEL HILL NORTH CAROLINA FRIDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1965 Founded February 23, 1893.

Group Threatens Accrediting Action

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The acting director of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools said Thursday the association likely will "take some action, possibly probation" against North Carolina state-supported colleges and universities unless the speaker ban law is changed.

This prediction came from Dr. Don Agnew. He said action by the association probably will come Dec. 1 at a meeting in Richmond, Va., "unless action is taken by the North Carolina legislature or the governor on this speaker ban."

Agnew said that if the legislature meets and amends the controversial law "in such a way as to be acceptable to the institutions and to us, this would change our thinking radically. It is what we had ben hoping for."

The speaker ban law forbids Communists or persons who have pleaded the Fifth Amendment in loyalty cases from speaking on the campuses of state - supported institutions.

The Southern Association has taken the position that the speaker ban violates the principle of academic freedom and takes from the college trustees the authority to say who shall speak on the campuses. The association has said the ban threatens the acreditation of North Carolina's state-supported colleges and universities.

"I can't tell what the association will do," said Agnew. "I express the opinion there will be some action, possibly probation, unless the legislative acts."

Boggs Here Next Month

Representative Hale Boggs, Majority whip of the U. S. House of Representatives, announced this week that he will address the student body on Monday, Nov. 22.

The visit of Congressman Boggs is sponsored by the Carolina Forum, a branch of Student Government.

Boggs, D-La., is on the Ways and Means Committee, the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, and Chairman of the Subcommittee on Foreign Economic Policy.

He is also presently serving as Vice - Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, has served as a member of the President's Commission on the Assassination of President Kennedy and was Parliamentarian of the 1964 Democratic National Convention.

A graduate from Tulane University in 1935, Boggs joined a "small group of businessmen" which combated corruption in the Louisiana government caused by the heirs of the political system set up by former governor Huey P. Long.

After serving with this group Boggs was elected to the Congress in 1940.

He served in the Naval Reserve during WW II and was reelected to the House in 1946

Boggs has not stated the topic of his address.

Moore Won't Confirm Call For Session

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Dan Moore declined yesterday to confirm speculation that he will call a special session of the General Assembly next month to amend the state's speaker ban law.

"I am waiting for the report of the Speaker Ban Commission before making plans to call a special session," Moore said in answer to questions at a news conference.

He said he expects the commission's report to be completed "in the next week or so."

Moore also commented on Ku Klux Klan strength in the state in a statement read at the news conference. He said information from "official sources" indicates there are only 618 "hard core" Klan

(Continued on Page 5)

Pep Rally Tonight

"The biggest pep rally ever at this school!"

That's what Head Cheerleader Jerry Houle and CAA President Rick Kramer prophesied about tonight's yelling session in preparation for the Tar Heel's homecoming game with Georgia Saturday.

The shouting will begin at 8 p.m. on Emerson Field. Sound and aerial fireworks will paint the backdrop behind the UNC pep band and cheerleaders.

Even brighter than the sparkling fireworks will be the smiling faces of the homecoming court.

The pep rally will be wrapped up with the introduction of the football team.

"We want every student who possibly can be there to come to the pep rally," Houle said. "We want the team to know we're really behind them, and besides, what better way could there be to start off a great homecoming weekend."

A CROWD OF CARS at Bell Tower parking lot illustrates the congested situation on the UNC campus. Dean of Men William G. Long discusses this problem in the article below. — DTH Photo by Ernest Robl.

Dean Of Men Discusses Campus Parking Situation

By ANDY MYERS
DTH Staff Writer

If all the cars on the UNC campus were stretched end to end there would be a traffic jam from here to Durham and back in the other lane.

And that's not stretching it either, according to Dean of Men William G. Long.

"We have a long way to go in solving the parking problem," Long says, "but in the meantime, all we can do is try to work with the facilities we have."

Last year, when the fight for space began to assume characteristics of a full scale war, Long decided it was time to put the zone system into effect.

Some statistics graphically show why.

"We have just 2,508 parking spaces on campus," Long said, "and at the end of the year some 5,254 cars were registered."

The office of the Dean of Men was charged with compiling data on the new zone system, Long said. After the initial registration period there were 3,908 cars with stickers.

There was a total increase of 34.4 per cent from the beginning to the end of the year. Bob Kepner, assistant to the Dean of Men, used a projected figure to compute how many cars will be registered here in June.

"Disregarding T stickers, (cars not allowed on campus), there will probably be almost 4,000 cars registered," he said.

As of last week, there were 3,339 cars allowed to park on campus. Some 1,380 students hold T stickers.

The total number of spaces lost this year because of restricted parking along South Road, Raleigh Road and Franklin Street comes to about 77.

There were slightly more than 300 motor scooters registered at the end of last year. But this year already 435 motor scooters are on the books.

Long said the scooter parking problem is the most critical right now. Plans are under way to build more scooter lots and enlarge the present pads around campus.

Kepner used much of last year's data, some other miscellaneous figures, and a lot of pure guess work to come up with the zone system.

He said that only 33 cars have been towed out to the car compound so far. Some $250 has been collected on towing fees.

No rental fees have yet been collected, he said, since all students have claimed their cars within 24 hours.

Money collected from car registration this year comes to about $22,220. That brought the total amount in the registration fund to more than $40,000.

Kepner said this amount of money is being deposited in a special University trust fund. It is used to defray the administrative expenses in parking regulations and to pay for the construction of new parking facilities.

Long said that UNC will probably be working under new regulations next year, but his staff has not yet worked out the details.

"There won't be any more changes this year," he said. "I think we've already had enough."

Some things coming to UNC as car space becomes dearer: — faculty parking meters (outside Hanes and Bynum Halls only).

— a Tiger train similar to the one used at LSU. This facility will probably run from the Craige, Ehringhaus area to campus at regular intervals. Cars, towed by an engine, will be attached as they are needed.

— enlargement of the scooter parking areas and construction of new pads for two-wheeled vehicles.

A great part of this year's monies collected in registration fees went towards putting up signs near parking zones, buying parking meters, paying the traffic counselor's salary, construction of the car compound, insurance for towed cars, construction of scooter pads, purchase of registration permits and the printing of the parking regu-

(Continued on Page 5)

Accept Ruling, Says Sponsor Of Petition

By JOHN GREENBACKER
DTH Political Writer

Sharon Rose, the student legislator who sponsored the recall petition for the student body presidency, urged students yesterday to accept the Elections Board's decision that the petition is invalid and called for support of Paul Dickson as Student body president.

Miss Rose, a member of Dickson's own student political party, made the announcement yesterday afternoon in a release to The Daily Tar Heel.

She said a majority of students here accept Dickson as their leader.

Pro - petition forces may appeal the Election Board's decision to the Constitutional Council of Student Government within the next few days in spite of Miss Rose's statement according to petition organizer David Kiel.

The petition, which was presented to the Elections Board Oct. 18 for validation, was disqualified by the board Wednesday after 55 signatures on it were declared invalid.

Miss Rose and her supporters had collected 1,917 signatures for the petition, which needed 1,863 valid signatures to order a recall election to be held.

Duplicated signatures, ficticious names and signatures with untraceable "nicknames" rather than proper first names or initials were disqualified by the board.

An attempt made Wednesday by pro-petition forces to add more signatures to the petition was rejected by Elections board Chairman Alvin Tyndall, who said he was not authorized to allow any more signatures to be added.

"I respect the decision made by the Elections Board," Miss Rose said.

"I naturally regret that there weren't enough valid signatures on the petition," she said, "however, I feel this evidence concludes that the majority of Carolina's student accept Paul Dickson as their leader.

"I'd like to urge those students who have felt differently on this issue to accept this decision with the best of faith and join together in working for the betterment of our university," she said.

Miss Rose said she felt the majority of students on campus had "disassociated themselves with the problem" and were "fed up" with it.

Dickson said yesterday he had little to add to Miss Rose's statement.

"I have never doubted that Sharon's actions these past weeks were motivated by a sincere concern for Student Government and a devotion to this university," he said.

"Her statement today is an expression of that concern and devotion."

Miss Rose and other concerned students circulated the petition seeking Dickson's removal from office after it was made public that Dickson had been convicted by the Men's Council last August for a Campus Code violation

Dickson received an official reprimand for taking a coed into a closed fraternity house

"I respect the opinion that Sharon Rose has expressed and I consider it a privilege to have been associated with her in this matter," Kiel said yesterday.

"I have heard some questions raised about the disqualification of many of the signatures," he said. "I think there is a possibility that it may be necessary for the Constitutional Council to review the petition."

College Dedication Will Have Scott

Lt. Governor Bob Scott will speak on North Carolina and Higher education when he dedicates Scott Residence College Sunday at 3 p.m.

Scott College was named for former governor and U.S. Senator Kerr Scott, the lt. governor's father.

Campus beauties Peach Pearce, Toni Greenwood, Zacki Murphey, Mary King, and Sharon Waite will serve refreshments to the guests.

The motorcade will pass down Franklin St., up Columbia St. past Big Fraternity Court and turn down Cameron Ave. to the Upper Quad.

It will proceed behind the library, around Memorial Hospital, past Ehringhaus, Craige and Morrison Residence Halls, and will arrive at Scott College at 3 p.m.

Scott will greet crowds from a convertible automobile.

Chancellor Paul F. Sharp, Scott and Scott College Governor Bob Hunter will address the crowd.

One thousand chairs will be set up in the street in front of Teague Hall, and the speaker's box will be constructed on the sidewalk.

Three giant banners on Avery and Teague halls will celebrate the event.

After the dedication, Lt. Gov. Scott and his mother, Mrs. Kerr Scott, will go to the new $4,000 social room in Teague Hall, where Mrs. Scott will cut a ribbon and unveil a portrait of her husband donated by the Young Democratic Club.

Former governors, state legislators, trustees of the University, members of the councils of state, faculty, administration, students and interested persons are invited to attend.

"This will be the biggest event on campus this year with the exception of University Day and Jubilee," Hunter said yesterday.

"There has already been a terrific improvement in the spirit of Scott College residents since the completion of the social room," he said. "I expect the dedication ceremonies to be a big boost to the residence College System at Carolina.

The street in front of Scott College will be blocked from 1 a.m. Sunday morning until 6 p.m. Sunday night.

Three "walkie - talkies" will be used to coordinate the program.

Hunter said a brass band may accompany the motorcade on the last stages of its trip.

Germans Expect Capacity Crowds

A capacity crowd of almost 2,000 is expected to hear "The Platters" and comedian Woody Allen at Saturday night's Germans Club concert in Memorial Hall at 8 p.m.

But at least half the crowd — the male half — will give part of their attention to the 13 lovely ladies representing member fraternities in the club.

Bill Schmidt, president of the Germans Club representing Delta Kappa Epsilon, and his wife are the ceremonial and official leaders of this fall's Germans festivities.

University women's closing hours have been extended to 2 a.m. Saturday night by the Dean of Women's Office.

Sponsors of Fall Germans, pictured above, and their escorts are Mrs. Schmidt, Jacksonville, Fla.; Diane Morton of Washington, D. C., with Geoffrey V. B. Parker of Mexico City, Sigma Nu, vice-president of Germans Club.

Nickye Yokley of Nashville, Tenn., with George C. Venters of Richlands, Zeta Psi, treasurer; Kathy Hamilton of Hendersonville and Jacksonville, Fla., with Olin G. McKenzie III of Miami Shores, Fla., Kappa Alpha, secretary.

Second row: Mary Ann Goodwyn of Dallas, Texas, with Richard Staggers, of Metairie, La., Kappa Sigma; Ethel Livingston of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., with William Keating Jr. of Savannah, Ga.; Carol Sandlin of Jacksonville, N. C. with Richard Baddour of Goldsboro, Sigma Nu.

Third row: Sandra Marian Grizzard of Roanoke Rapids with Manton M. Grier of Greenwood, S. C., Alpha Tau Omega; Connie Roper of Charlotte with William Elzie Bolen of Charlotte, Beta Theta Pi; Ann Plaster of Elkin with Tony G. Misenheimer of Salisbury, Pi Kappa Alpha.

Fourth row: Doly Cannon of Charlotte with Borden Parker of Goldsboro, Kappa Alpha; Jenny Sargatanus of Durham with James B. Black III of Richmond, Va., Zeta Psi; Margaret Cotten Skinner of Kinston with Hubert Parrott of Kinston, Phi Gamma Delta.

Representing other fraternities are James Joseph Wright III of Greensboro, Phi Delta Theta; John C. Egbert III of Cincinnati, Ohio, Delta Kappa Epsilon; Robert K. Cate of Winnetka, Ill., Sigma Chi; Lyman Goe Welton of Charlotte, Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

The Germans Club presents concerts each fall and spring. Bids are handled through the 13 fraternities comprising the club.

Woody Allen has been hailed by reviewers nation - wide as one of America's best young comedians.

The 25-year-old performer is best known for his role in "What's New Pussycat?"

"The Platters," who claim a large collection of gold records, made their first appearance on the UNC campus last spring at Jubilee.

Their rendition of such well-known hits as "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes" and "Twilight Time" were applauded by a standing student congregation on Polk Place.

A REPLICA OF THE GREAT PUMPKIN was presented to the girls of Smith Dormitory yesterday by members of APO, national service fraternity. J. C. Holding of APO made the presentation to Ann Cameron, president of Smith. Looking on are Ronnie McManus, Hubert Seymour, Susan Hays, Cheryl Wollcroft, Bill Marks and Phyllis Little. —DTH Photo By Ernest Robl.

Campus Briefs

FLU VACCINE

Flu vaccine is available at the Infirmary for all UNC students for $1.

Dr. E. M. Hedgepeth, director of the Student Health Service, said students may receive the vaccine from 9-11:30 a.m. and from 2-5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Between 2,000 and 3,000 doses of the preventative medicine are now on hand, and more can be obtained if necessary, according to Hedgepeth.

There are no side effects with the vaccine, he said.

PARKING REFUNDS

Friday, Nov. 5 is the deadline for collecting refunds for "T" parking stickers. Students who paid $5 for such a sticker should go to the Dean of Men's office in the basement of South Building to get a $2.50 refund.

COBB SPEECH

Mrs. Bernard Boyd spoke to Cobb Dormitory women on "Restorative Revelry" Wednesday night in the first of a series of dorm speeches planned by Cobb this year.

Geared especially to the freshmen, her talk centered around the need for everyone to set aside a few minutes every day for a little "spot of quiet" in order to evaluate himself and check his course.

After her talk an informal tea was held. Mrs. Boyd is the wife of Dr. Bernard Boyd of UNC's Department of Religion.

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of the Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. Letters and columns, covering a wide range of views, reflect the personal opinions of their authors.
ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

General Assembly And Us

Rumors have been flying around Raleigh lately the Gov. Dan Moore will call two special sessions of the General Assembly, one to deal with the speaker ban law and one to handle reapportionment.

The reasoning is that the speaker ban would be considered first because things are likely to be considerably shaken up after reapportionment and the General Assembly might be full of lame duck legislators who won't feel like doing anything.

Rep. David Britt, chairman of the speaker ban study commission, has said his group will make its recommendations about what should be done to the law by Nov. 10 — possibly earlier.

It is expected that the commission will ask that the law at least be amended to return control of campus speakers to the schools' trustees.

Once his pet road bond issue is out of the way after Nov. 2, Moore should be in a good position to call the special session just as soon as he gets Britt's report.

The acting director of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools said yesterday that he thinks the group, when it meets in Richmond Dec. 1, will "take some action, possibly probation" for North Carolina's state-owned schools "unless action is taken by the North Carolina legislature or the governor."

So the special session must come between Nov. 10 or thereabouts and Nov. 30 and it must change the speaker ban law.

Or we're in trouble.

Get Out The Stationery

UNC coeds, where is your patriotism? Here's your chance to really do something for the morale of our soldiers serving in iet Nam, and so far only about 20 of you have inquired about taking advantage of it.

Six marines in Viet Nam have sent a letter which is in the hands of Student Government which says, "We were engaged in an 'intellectual' conversation, and the name of your college popped up. One of the guys lives in North Carolina, and he says all southern girls are 'nice and friendly' . . .

"We thought it would be a good idea to converse in letters with a few of you people. Please don't get us wrong — this is not to be any of this lonely hearts junk. We just think it is a good idea and that it might turn out to be a lot of fun."

Writing letters to the soldiers isn't a particularly unique idea. The North Carolina American Legion has started a campaign to send letters and Christmas cards to the fellows, and students at Pfeiffer College say they are going to try to send cards and letters to every GI in Viet Nam.

But we're in a special position and ought to feel even m ore obligated because the soldiers have written to us first.

Reports are that about 15 girls have come by the Student Government office to get the names and "characteristics" of these marines, and about four have called. At least some of the girls said they would put the information up on bulletin boards in their dormitories.

That's a great idea and we heartily encourage all you non-draftable girls to take a little time out of your busy school life and send a bit of cheerful correspondence to some guys who can certainly use it.

Is The Great Pumpkin Here?

The Great Pumpkin? Don't be ridiculous. Everybody knows he only exists in the mind of Peanuts' Linus.

Or at least that's what we always thought — until yesterday. We're not so sure anymore because at least one student has received a whole boxful of gifts clearly marked "from the Great Pumpkin." The student swears that it just can't be a hoax and he is a man of such honor that we can hardly doubt his word.

"I'm a believer," he said. "You have to be a believer before the Great Pumpkin comes."

Nevertheless, we're still a bit skeptical. The Great Pumpkin is supposed to rise up out of the pumpkin patch and go about delivering his goodies to "those who believe."

But that package we saw was delivered by mail. Santa Claus wouldn't operate that way, and the Great Pumpkin shouldn't either.

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all ap news dispatches.

The Charlotte Observer

Letters To The Editor

Sixty Band Members Rise To Own Defense

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

This letter is in response to the many remarks made by Ed Freakley about the Marching Tar Heels in his stories concerning football games. We've read all we want to read of his comments. There are many reasons why the band is the way it is. Not many people know what these are, and it's high time everyone is told.

Number one: The students at this university seem to complain about and criticize everything and support nothing. They don't know what to appreciate. For instance, at the Maryland game the UNC band did not get any applause. Yet, its drill was much more complicated and exact than the Maryland band's. It did a darned good job and got no thanks or sign of appreciation from the students or faculty. Incidentally, footballs were being thrown which could have been done during the quarters. Freakley told one band member that he and other students thought UNC should have at least 185 band members out of 12,000 students. Well, we've got news for him, this university will never have such a band. Why? — because the students don't seem to give a darn about the band. They don't seem to care whether the band marches or not, except they wouldn't have anything to laugh at or to make cracks about.

Number two: The band members feel that we get very little support from the "fine" music department. It appears that it would be all right with this department if the band just disappeared.

Number three: This is the greatest reason of all why the band is as it is. The UNC Athletic Association expects miracles out of very little. First of all, the band gets much less than what all the big school bands in the nation get. The UNC band gets approximately $6,000 to $7,000 a season. Maryland gets $20,000 a season, excluding bus fare to away games. The University of Miami band gets $70,000. All expenses of the UNC band have to be taken out of its amount: instruments, repair, bus fare to away games, food, cleaning and altering of uniforms, music, etc. Unfortunately, the band suffers and so does the entire school from this lack of money. Secondly, the physical education department will not let band members be excused from fundamentals for marching season. Admittedly, it does exempt other band members and gives P.E. credit for half a semester, but the other requirement prevents a large number from participating. The band lost at least thirty members due to the immediate requirement of fundamentals. Academically or otherwise, you can't tell us that if a football player were needed, the Athletic Department wouldn't make an exception.

Number four: Time is also a good reason. The band gets to practice from 4:30 'til 6 on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday. On two of these days at least eighteen band members can't be there because of lab and class conflicts which no one wanted to change (in cases that were possible) in order to help the band have everyone present for every rehearsal. It's extremely difficult to learn and practice a show with even eighteen absent.

These are only a few reasons, but we hope that they will sink into some hard heads around this university.

The band works very hard and does well under all the above circumstances. If anyone wants to complain or thinks he can do better, we would like to extend a personal invitation for the "anyone" to come and join the band and see what it's like.

In regard to Freakley's comment in Sunday's DTH, the UNC band did an excellent job at the Wake Forest game. There were no mistakes, and at least the Wake Forest people gave a big applause. Freakley will never see 185 band members as long as the students continue to act as they do and as long as the other important factions of the university persist in giving only mediocre support.

At least 85 people at this university want the University to have a good band and they are willing to make the effort at a personal sacrifice; and if it weren't for them, this university wouldn't have a band at all.

We need EVERYONE'S support!

Jackie Crabtree, Denny Caldwell, Bill Mims, Jr., Jim Ogburn, Jim Dilda, Kenny May, Rick Elliott, Gene Irons, Tom McLintock, Flip Jones, Charles Lewis George Newman, David Chamberlain, Robert E. Pittman, Gray Tuttle, Thomas Easte, Randy Ferguson, Charles Shore, Nita Wilkinson and Jim Allran.

Also Paul Weinberg, Duane Rominger, Ralph Cooke, Sam Fulk, John Southern, Bruce Buckner, Louis Bregger, Douglas Lain, Mike Goodson, Anne Daugherty, Paul Thompson, Philip Marivn, Thomas Beal, Ronald White, and Michael Smith.

Also Ricky Marks, Greg Barton, Ray Beshears, Robert Taylor, Margaret Howell, Kathryn Howell, John Whitehurst, Leonard Brendel, Perry T. Carroll, Edward Walton, Richard Yarbrough, Ken Lemons, Norman Leach, Frazier Glenn, Ronald Shuping, Steve Hoar, and Harry D. Hollingsworth, Jr.

Letters To The Editor

Rejoice Alabama, Wilkins Is Free

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Rejoice, Alabama, because Collie Leroy Wilkins is a free man today. Be of good cheer for "Never before have so few" made so grand a mockery of the sacred institution of Justice. Two hours it took to deliberate and acquit the accused woman-killer — two hours, characteristic of swift "Alabama Justice" that strikes like a bullet in the night — quick and effective.

Hayneville, Alabamians have good reason to be proud — a woman who deviated from a few norms we've grown up with and never questioned was murdered along with a list from the past of other Negroes and their friends, and no one, no one has been brought to trial and convicted for these travesties of justice.

Be happy for you "have the Negroes 'in their place' "; you have them "scared" and you've added one more block to the society you are seeking to build. Would you like to know what this society of white authoritarians will be like if you complete it — ask the survivors of Nazi Germany or Fascist Italy. Ask them what it was like to sit by while a minority's rights were taken away, then mass killing of that minority group was accomplished (6 million Jews!) and finally the rights of all Germans or Italians were altered or destroyed by the "Mad Painter" with his poisonous tongue and the cocky, black-shirted Italian. Ask them.

You are creating a society of brute force over logical, civilized institutions. You are seeking Darwinism in its harshest form — survival of the fittest, and do you know who are the "fittest"? They are those with the most guns, quickest fists and greatest violence capacity. There is not much room at the top of this society as far as leaders are concerned.

If you are lucky you might claw (that's right, I said claw) your way to the top of this animal society of dead civil rights workers, Negro beatings and intimidated, enlightened individuals. Be of good cheer for you might be one of the leaders; however, do not be surprised if after you succeed in building this society of terror you too might be forced to cower under the stronger principals if you disagree, in the slightest, with their warped aims and whims, but that won't be too bad; they will all be good "Christians," "anti - communists," all American, pure-blooded whites. What more could you ask?

Ask the people of Germany and Italy!

Neil Smith
1513 E. Franklin St.

Great Crusade

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

I'd like to carry the crusading banner for the Carolina Playmakers, the Ackland Art Gallery and Graham Memorial.

The Carolina Playmakers work long and hard to produce plays on the campus; some years ago the theatrical group was one of the best on any American campus. Nowadays their productions are both good and bad, but neither the good ones or poor ones receive much publicity in The Daily Tar Heel.

There were a few articles previous to the recent "Mikado" production, but there was no review of the play. If the performance is good — and the "Mikado" was — then students should learn that it is, so they may be more motivated to see it. If the production is a bomb, the DTH should tell them, too. In any event, the Playmakers deserve more publicity and credit for their work.

The Ackland Art Gallery has within it some very fine works that students rarely see. In addition, it has occasional special exhibits, including works by students. Through more publicity of such cultural events, The Daily Tar Heel can perform the great service of increasing students' art appreciation.

Graham Memorial, like The Daily Tar Heel receives a great deal of money from students. And the GM Activities Board naturally must spend some of this money on publicity. GMAB's publicity budget could probably be economized if The Daily Tar Heel gave its sponsored events better coverage.

Recently, one of the best "real" folk singers in the country, Doc Watson, gave a great performance before a packed GM lounge audience. The GMAB publicity committee apparently had short notice to publicize the event and felt compelled to purchase advertising space in the DTH. Why couldn't the DTH have saved them some money by running at least one story about the concert beforehand.

Now GM has scheduled a jazz festival for October 24 and has bought an ad in the DTH to publicize it. And singer Nancy Wilson will appear here in November. But neither event has received news lineage in The Daily Tar Heel.

May I suggest that the DTH look to the campus for more news rather than use the Associated Press copy so much.

The campus newspaper should inform the students about world and national news, but this can be read in the state's fine dailies.

You can't read about "The Mikado" or Nancy Wilson in The Charlotte Observer, though.

Alan Banov
550 Ehringhaus

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel welcomes letters to the editor on any subject, particularly on matters of local or University interest. Letters must be typed, double spaced and must include the name and address of the author or authors. Names will not be omitted in publication. Letters should be kept as brief as possible. The DTH reserves the right to edit for length or libel.

SPU Represents Minority Opinion

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

While not denying the right of individual belief, we wholeheartedly condemn the false representation of majority opinion. Because of this, we speak in support of the article by Fred Harwell in Sunday's DTH. As a dissenting voice, the SPU has proclaimed its beliefs throughout the state, whereas the majority opinion of the student body has not be expressed.

A situation such as this often exists where a minority faction attempts to discredit the beliefs and actions of the majority. We are referring to the SPU impliance that they represent the majority of student body opinion in their demonstrations by carrying signs that read "We're from the University of North Carolina." One has only to observe other students arguing with the SPU members in their Y-Court booths and scoffing at the SPU picketers to realize that this organization is hardly illustrative of popular student opinion.

If a poll were taken on our campus we believe that most students would come out in support of American military policy and in opposition to practices of the SPU which tend to undermine the reputation of the University of North Carolina.

Connie Roberts
Angel Flight Commander

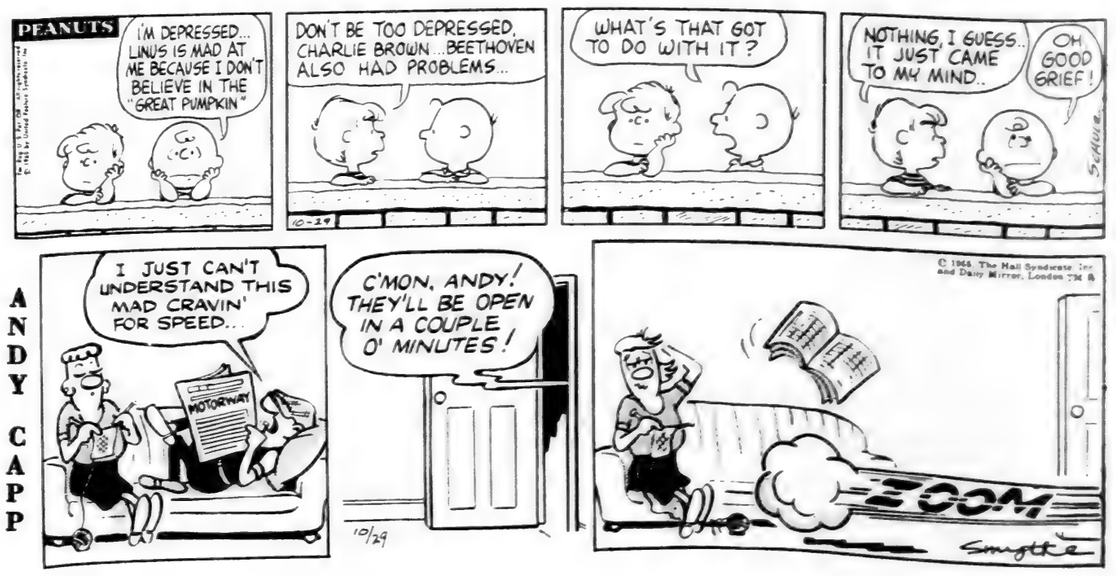
Elaine Carlson
Legislator, WD II

Fascinating Heads

From PARADE

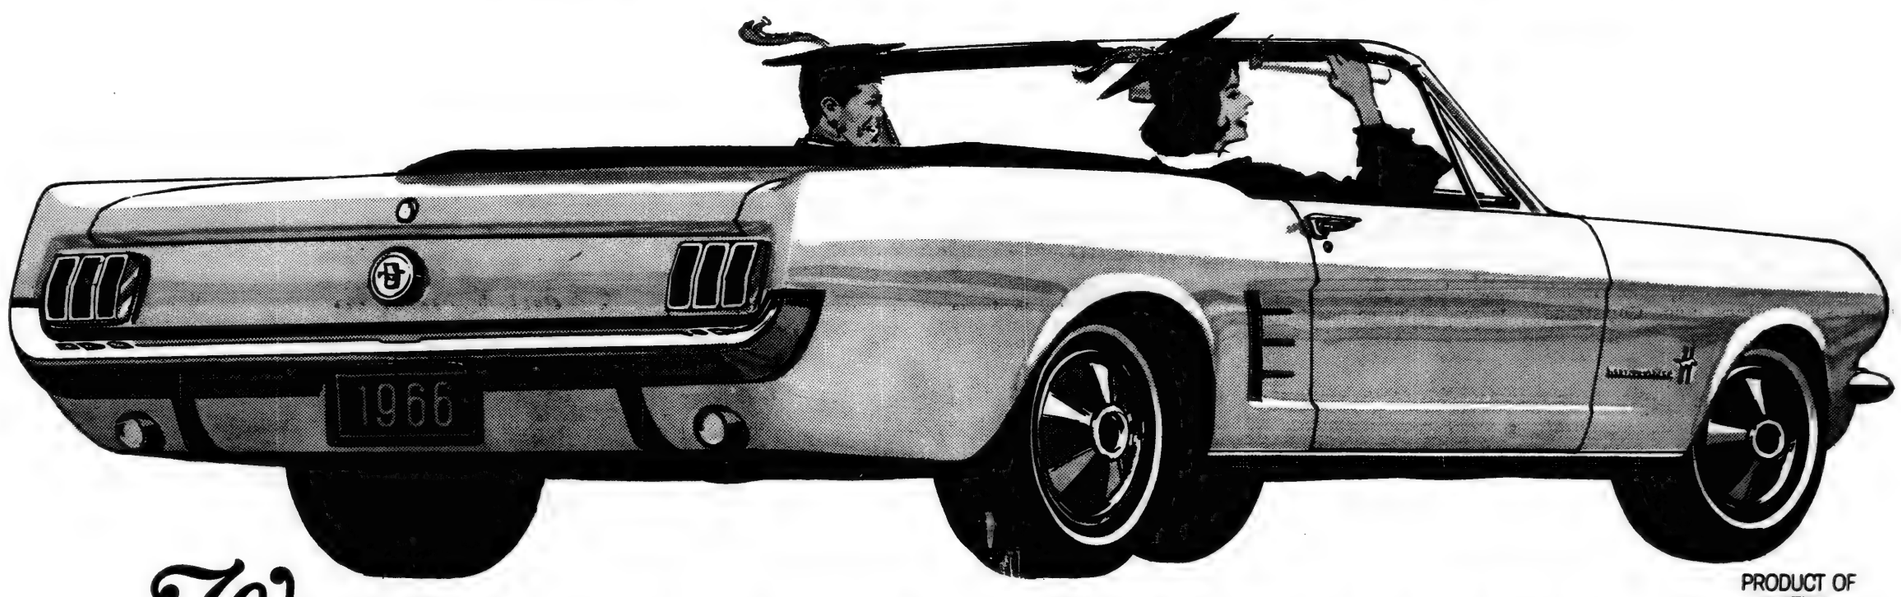
What newspaper headline would most compel a woman to read on? One hundred and fifty women editors were recently asked this question. Some of their answers: "Jacqueline Kennedy Remarries," "U. S. Declares Tax on Bachelors," "Instant Cure for Fatness," "Human Life Found on the Moon," "Woman Elected U. S. President," and "Widows Exempt from Property Tax."

"The right angle to use in doing a hard job is the try-angle."



ENTER FORD'S MUSTANG COLLEGE SWEEPSTAKES

(OPEN TO COLLEGE SENIORS AND GRADUATE STUDENTS)



PRODUCT OF Ford

WIN THE USE OF ONE OF 500 MUSTANGS FOR TWO WEEKS AND A CHANCE TO WIN A MUSTANG FREE AT GRADUATION

IT'S EASY—NO RIDDLES, RHYMES—NOTHING TO BUY

SWEEPSTAKES RULES

Nothing to buy, just mail the entry coupon before November 15, 1965.

1. Only college seniors and graduate students will be eligible to enter the Mustang College Sweepstakes.

2. Coupon must be received by no later than November 15, 1965, to be eligible to win the use of a Mustang.

3. Each winner will be required to produce evidence that he or she is a college senior or graduate student before any prize is awarded. Decision of judges is final.

4. A winner of the use of a '66 Mustang must be a licensed driver. Loan-outs are for two weeks only. Winners are responsible for returning the loan-out Mustang to the depot from which it was delivered.

5. Offer void wherever prohibited or taxed under state or local laws.

FILL IN AND MAIL THIS COUPON TODAY!

FORD'S MUSTANG COLLEGE SWEEPSTAKES
P. O. BOX 1317
DETROIT, MICHIGAN 48231

I am a ☐college senior, ☐graduate student. Please enter my name in the Mustang College Sweepstakes.

PLEASE TYPE OR PRINT

Name_____

Home Phone Number_____

College_____

College Address_____

City_____ State_____ Zip_____

Home Address_____

City_____ State_____ Zip_____

Are you planning on buying a car in ☐ 6 mos. ☐ 12 mos. ☐ 2 yrs.

Do you own a car now? ☐ yes ☐ no

Signature_____

MAIL TODAY! Coupon must be received by November 15, 1965

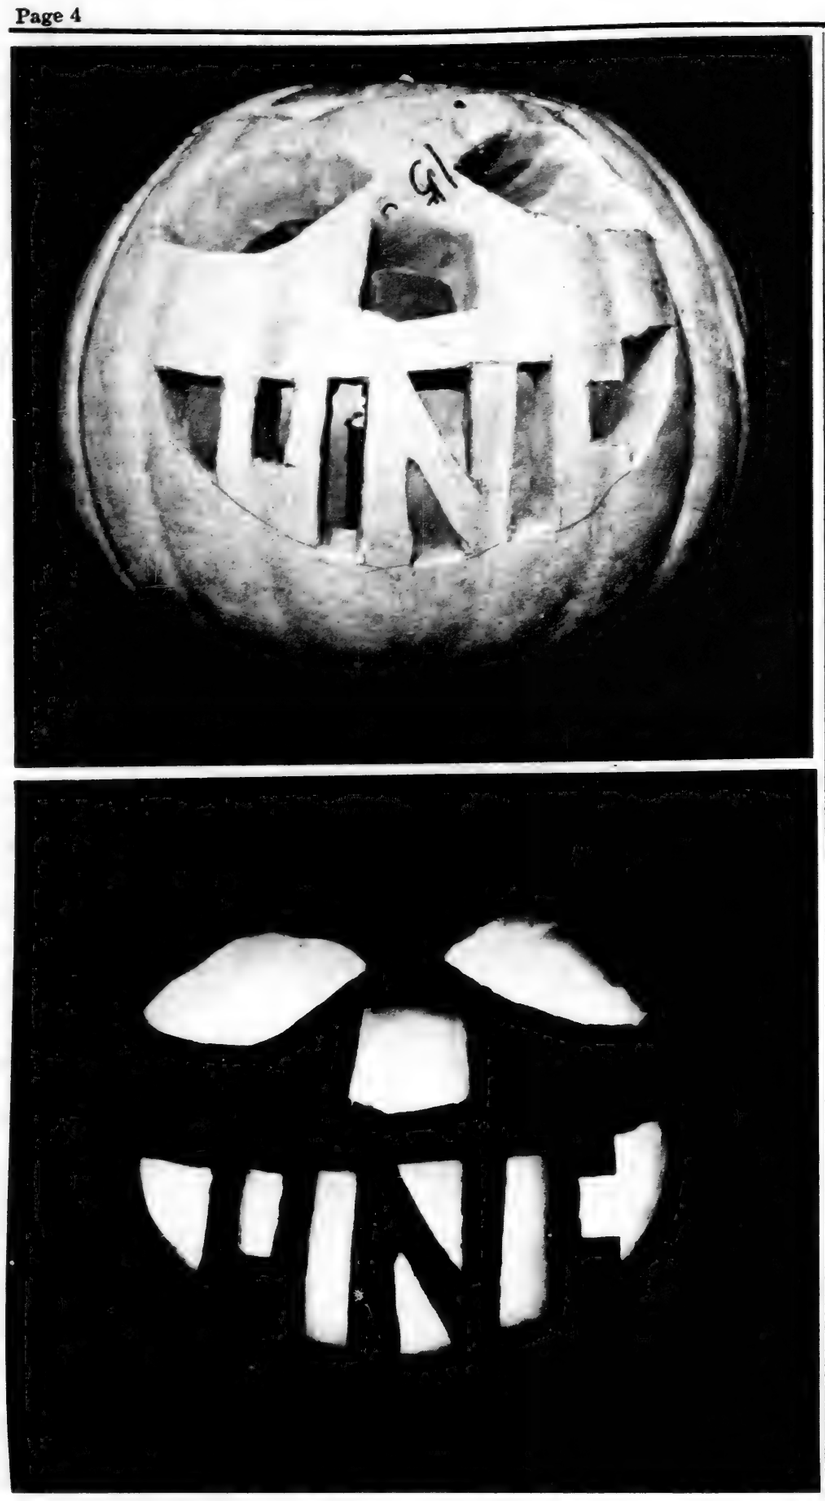
EVERYBODY'S A WINNER!

AMERICA'S TOTAL PERFORMANCE CARS

FORD

MUSTANG • FALCON • FAIRLANE • FORD • THUNDERBIRD



UNLIKE THE UNFORTUNATE LINUS, DTH photographer Ernest Robl caught the Great Pumpkin rising out of the official UNC pumpkin patch. The G.P. explained that he had not really gotten his dates mixed up, but was only making a practice run before Saturday night's Halloween celebration.

CBS Newsman Speaks At Duke

Martin Agronsky, award-winning CBS newsman, will lecture on "World Crisis and the United States" tonight at Duke University.

His talk is scheduled for 8:15 in Baldwin Auditorium, East Campus. It is open to the public.

Agronsky has covered Washington events for the past 20 years and is widely acknowledged as one of the top reporters and news analysts in the nation's capitol.

He won the Alfred I. DuPont Commentation Award for his coverage of the Eichmann trial in Israel a few years ago. He received the George Foster Peabody Award for his "At Issue" program.

He also has won the National Headliners Club Award and served as president of the Radio and Television Correspondents Association.

Millions of Americans saw him during last year's Republican and Democratic conventions, the ninth and tenth national nominating conventions he has covered.

Agronsky began his career in 1940 as Balkans correspondent for NBC news. During World War II, he covered the British Army in North Africa, RAF bombings over Italy, the Japanese attack on Singapore, and General MacArthur in Australia.

Japan Study Aid Available

Students interested in study at Japanese universities under the Mombusho Scholarship Program for Research Students should request information from the Office of Student Aid, 2 Hanes Hall.

The Consulate - General of Japan has announced that application may be made before Nov. 10, 1965, for the 1966 program. An applicant must be a college or university graduate, must be under the age of 35, and must take the Japanese language test.

This program is made available by the Ministry of Education, Government of Japan, for students who wish to continue study at a university in Japan in the field of the Humanities and Social Sciences or the field of Natural Sciences.

UNC Music Professor Will Present Recital Tuesday

Dr. William S. Newman will present a program of French keyboard sonatas Tuesday night at 8 in Hill Hall. Dr. Newman is Alumni Distinguished Professor of Music and head of the piano department.

This will be the fourth concert in the 1965 - 66 Tuesday Evening Series and is open to the public free.

Since his last recital in Chapel Hill, Dr. Newman has traveled 25,000 miles giving concerts and lectures in 20 cities in 13 states.

Despite this rigorous performance schedule, Dr. Newman teaches a full load of courses in music appreciation, music history, and graduate musicology. He has published two volumes of a projected history of the sonata.

Playmakers Hold Tryouts

The Carolina Playmakers will hold tryouts today at 5 and 7:30 p.m. in Gerrard Hall for a bill of one - act plays by William Butler Yeats.

The bill, including "Calvary," "Purgatory," and "Resurrection," is planned as part of "A Yeats Festival" sponsored by the Cooperative Program in the Humanities of Duke and UNC and commemorating the 100th anniversary of Yeats' birth.

To be produced in Baldwin Auditorium at Duke on Nov. 17 and in the Playmakers Theatre at UNC on Nov. 18, the three plays require about 20 male actors.

The directors, Randolph Umberger, Linda Benson, and James Boothby, all graduate students in the Department of Dramatic Art, have announced that tryouts are open to all students, faculty and townspeople, and to anyone within a commuting distance of Chapel Hill.

Scripts are available at 307 Bynum Hall.

Nancy Wilson Here Nov. 6

Nancy Wilson, famed female vocalist, makes a one-performance stop here Saturday, Nov. 6 at 8 p.m. She will sing at Carmichael Auditorium. Tickets are now on sale at the GM desk.

Miss Wilson has made a rapid rise to popularity through a succession of best-selling albums as well as through her night-club and concert appearances.

Down Beat magazine has rated her the second most popular female vocalist in the country, topped only by Ella Fitzgerald.

Her unusual singing style has been dubbed "that wonderful Nancy Wilson way." She sings with a gentle, sparkling wit and unique senses of dramatic timing and emphasis.

Miss Wilson is a tall, vivacious girl with a personality to match her singing style. Her unique interpretations of standard songs and special material have contributed to her rapid rise to stardom.

Her record sales now run into the millions, and she always stays on the best-selling record charts. She has received outstanding reviews, and she has been praised for her stage presence and style of delivery.

Miss Wilson has previously teamed up with such artists as Cannonball Adderley and the George Shearing Quartet.

High Fidelity has called her "a young singer with an excellent jazz feeling and a flair for handling ballads."

MEN HIT HARDEST

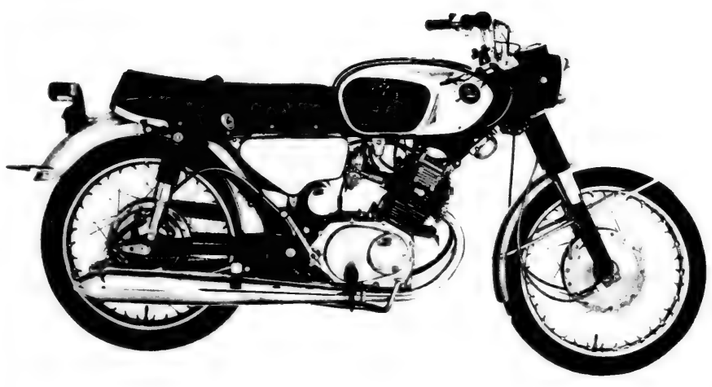
Coronary heart disease (heart attack) is about twice as frequent in men as in women, at all ages.

RELIABILITY
For 26 Years

WELDON'S JEWELERS
327 W. Main Durham
The Students' Jeweler for 26 years

KING WILLIAM RESTAURANT
1½ Miles from Campus on 15-501 South
SPECIALIZING IN:
STEAKS CHICKEN SEAFOOD
"Choice Selection of Imported and Domestic Beverages"
All New and Modern, featuring
- Seating capacity of 300
- Spacious parking facilities
- Four private dining rooms
- Tasteful background music
- Catering facilities

Open from 8:00 a.m. 'til Midnight
SEVEN DAYS A WEEK



Three Minutes from Craige to Lenoir
. . . . IMPOSSIBLE??

Our new price for C.B. 160
is only $560.00

Travel - On Motorcycle Co.
"Headquarters for Adventure"
504 W. Franklin St.
Chapel Hill, N. C.

"WE ABSOLUTELY REFUSE TO BE UNDERSOLD"

SEARS ROEBUCK AND CO
EASTGATE
Chapel Hill, N. C.
THE SECOND STRAIGHT WEEKEND
GIGANTIC SALE

Friday – Saturday
HUNDREDS OF NEW RECAPPED TIRES
In Most Popular Sizes, Black and Whitewalls
$6.25 up INSTALLED
Guaranteed 18 Months

BRAND NEW TIRES
DISCONTINUED TREADS
Available in Most Sizes
Black and Whitewall
Thursday – Friday – Saturday
40% Off

SEARS CATALOG SALES OFFICE
Eastgate Shopping Center in Chapel Hill

Moore Won't Confirm Call

Continued from Page 1

members in North Carolina.

"It is important for everyone to realize that the KKK represents a very small group that is not providing any leadership in our state, and we are determined that it will not become a threat to the orderly development and growth of North Carolina," said Moore in a statement read at his weekly news conference.

Hearings by the House Committee on Un-American Activities have indicated North Carolina is the most active state in number of Klan units.

Asked what he meant by "hard core" Klan members, Moore said he meant members who travel around attending rallies over the state.

Moore said that while the Washington Klan hearings "may serve some useful purpose in informing the public concerning the KKK, I regret very much that the State of North Carolina should have been the location for such activities."

"I want to make clear to the people of North Carolina and to the nation," Moore declared, "that neither the KKK nor any other such organization will impede the progress of North Carolina."

"We must keep this matter in proper perspective," the governor said of reports on Klan strength in the state. "According to the KKK, they have never claimed more than 10,000 members in our 5 million population." He said he doubts the 10,000 claim "very much."

"Our information from official sources as of yesterday indicated a total of 618 hard core members in our state," Moore said.

"We don't want North Carolina to have an image of being a state that tolerates a group such as this," he declared.

Parking Situation

(Continued from Page 1)

lations.

Other expenses included administrative and filing costs. Money collected from parking tickets goes to the town of Chapel Hill.

A breakdown of car registration by classes shows that last year:

— 28 freshmen had cars registered. (By special permit only or for reasons of physical disability.)

— 866 sophomores had cars registered.

— 1,238 juniors had cars registered.

— 1,548 seniors had cars registered.

— 350 medical and dental students had cars registered.

— 2,112 graduate students had cars registered.

No such figures have been compiled for this year.

Klan Accused Of Training Members To Use Violence

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ku Klux Klan in Georgia has been training members in bombing and fire-setting techniques as well as use of firearms, house investigators said yesterday.

The state's grand dragon, Calvin F. Craig of Atlanta, sat silent except for invoking the Fifth Amendment while this evidence was laid before the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Investigator Philip Manuel put into the record a description of courses in such subjects as blowing up an automobile and making a fire bomb for use against a department store that integrated its lunch counter.

Manuel said one Klan course was conducted on the farm of O. C. Mixon, about nine miles northeast of Macon, Fa., off Route 49, in October 1961. Instructors William B. Crowe and William A. Anderson, he said, showed klansmen how to:

— Set up dynamite booby traps ignited by sparks from flashlight batteries.

— Rig various types of fuses, including those allowing time for getaways. One of these combined a lighted cigarette, folder of matches, and cotton soaked with lighter fluid.

— Build a small fire bomb in a medicine bottle using a potassium compound and a capsule of sulphuric acid; Crowe was quoted as saying a person could try on a suit in a department store that had integrated its facilities and leave the bottle in the pocket. In the demonstration it produced an intense blue flame.

— Use a firecracker and jar of gasoline to set up an explosin an automobile, faster than anyone could escape from it.

— Convert sodium phosphate fertilizer into an explosive.

Manuel said the training was followed by revolver and rifle practice. He said Craig and Imperial Wizard Robert M. Shelton, Tuscaloosa, Ala., were among the Klansmen in attendance.

Another training course was conducted Oct. 17, 1964 on the farm of Robert L. Bind in Henry County and was sponsored by Clayton County Klavern Co. 52, Manuel said.

Daniel Bruce and Charles M. Bartlett, not otherwise identified, were in charge, Manuel said, and instruction ranged over such subjects as:

Assembling and stripping the M1 rifle; constructing Molotov cocktails and small dynamite bombs; setting up booby traps activated by strings across paths; making fuses. Manuel said there also was a guerrilla warfare exercise simulating the takeover of a radio station and power plant.

He put into the record what he said was an order Craig issued for another training course, in firearms use, judo and karate, last January.

The investigation swung to Georgia after the committee finished, for the present, questioning Robert E. Scoggin of Spartanburg, grand dragon of South Carolina.

Chief Investigator Donald T. Appell implied in his questioning that Scoggin had made misrepresentations to the Veterans Administration in connection with benefits he draws because of World War II wounds.

Intramural Scores

The Med School Blues upended Law II in intramural football yesterday, 16-11. George Newsome and Ellis Fisher provided the touchdowns for Med School with Butch Gallagher scoring for Law II.

The Kappa Sig Cossa Robbers smashed the Phi Delt Red team, 37-6. Doger Stokes scored three times to pace Kappa Sig while Chris Coates and Neil De Reimer scored one each. Cummings provided the lone tally for Phi Delt.

PARKING

The following areas will be closed to parking and traffic tonight at 11: the area between Woollen Gym and the Tin Can; Bell Tower Road between Bell Tower and Parker Dormitory; Ram Varsity parking lot behind Kenan Field House; and the area behind the nurses' dormitory adjacent to South Gate No. 6.

Upcoming Events On UNC Campus

All Campus Caldendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date (by 10 a.m. Saturday for Sunday's DTH). Lost and Found notices will be run on Tuesday and Saturdays only.

TODAY

Sign up for the ping-pong tournament this week at the GM Information Desk. This is an all campus tournament. The winner will be awarded a trophy.

Hillel Foundation Sabbath evening services at 7 p.m.

Informal reception, bridge and other indoor sports will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Student Center, sponsored by the Westminister Fellowship.

Freshman football at 2 p.m. in Kenan Stadium. UNC vs. N. C. State.

Fall meeting for the general faculty in Carroll Hall Auditorium at 4 p.m.

All students interested in working at Umstead Hospital with mental patients please leave their name and address and phone number at the YMCA office

SUNDAY

The Olin T. Binkley Baptist Church, church school series, with Jim Cansler as leader this Sunday. Coffee will be served at 9:30 a.m. and the class will begin at 10. Morning worship will follow at 11 a.m. with Dr. Robert Seymore speaking on "If Luther Were Alive Today." The Sunday night seminars and supper will begin at 6 p.m. and will be led by Rev. Bill Currin. Sunday's student group will be led by Dean Smith as he discusses "The Morality of the Social Whirl." Rides to Binkley can be obtained at Y Court, Chase Cafeteria, and the Nurses' Dorm at 9:30 and 10:40 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Westminster Fellowship presents a Halloween party at 5:30 p.m.

LSA meeting in the church at 6 p.m. Supper will be served followed by a reformation service.

Graduate Christian Fellowship from 8-9 p.m. in Roland Parker III in GM. Bible study on John for all interested graduate students.

An open forum on applying Christian principles will be presented by Dr. Foy Valentine, author, lecturer and executive secretary of the Southern Baptist Christian Life Commission, at the University Baptist Church at 7 p.m.

Student Peace Union will gather at 3 p.m. in front of Silent Sam.

PARTIES

Friday from 8-12 p.m. at Morrison Residence College a "Holloween - A - Go - Go" with the "Castways" and the Morrison go-go girls.

Picnic Slated For Sunday

All members of Phi Eta Sigma who received notices of the picnic and business meeting and who have not yet replied are requested to do so by telephone (929-5224) to Jonathan Gibson as soon as possible.

The picnic will be held Sunday from 4:30 to 7:30 p.m. at Camp New Hope.

All members who can attend should meet on the west side of the Y-Building Sunday at 4 p.m. Rides will be leaving from Memorial Hall Parking lot at that time.

FLY — CHARTER FLIGHTS for three persons. 8 cents per mile per person. Two aircraft available. Departure from Chapel Hill. Advance notice please. Contact Bob O'Quin. 968-9033.

FOR SALE: 1962 COMET 4-door, radio, heater. Excellent condition. Best offer accepted. Bob Payton, 212 Teague, 968-9190.

FOR SALE: 1961 PEUGEOT. Good gas mileage, good condition and good rubber. $400 or best offer for immediate sale. Car located: Holloway Phillips 66, Eastgate.

LOOK HERE: 1953 Plymouth station wagon. Big enough for camping or small enough for town. Radio and heater. A good car for $100. Call 942-6101.

FOR RENT: COMPLETELY furnished 2 bedroom, air conditioned 10 x 45 mobile home. Available Oct. 30. $80 per month. Call 942-3268 or 942-1749.

WHAT'S REALLY WRONG ON CAMPUS

The only thing not changed on campus since the war is human nature. Competition for admission is fiercer; undergraduate temper more excitable. This special Atlantic Supplement discusses students in revolt; the fate of the small college; academic freedom; why some students take drugs — why others drop out; problems of college for Negroes; do women learn anything; faculty pressures and privileges; free speech and much, much more.

NOW ON SALE at your newsstand

"A decided must-see! Anthony Quinn is brilliant! His Zorba in this tempestuous picture possesses all the energies and urges of the great ones of history and myth. He is Adam in the Garden of Eden, Odysseus on the windy plains of Troy."
—Bosley Crowther, New York Times

WINNER OF 3 ACADEMY AWARDS!
ANTHONY QUINN
ALAN BATES
IRENE PAPAS
MICHAEL CACOYANNIS PRODUCTION
"ZORBA THE GREEK"
LILA KEDROVA

RIALTO, Durham
Fri.-Sun. at 1:42, 4:07, 6:33, 9:00
Mon.-Thurs. at 1:05, 3:30, 6:00, 8:30

WOOD'S
PRESTONE ANTI-FREEZE
99¢ Gal.
with each $5 purchase
Eastgate Shopping Center

WELCOME UNC GRADS

And those who didn't make it. After the ball game, come by and choose one of our unique gifts to suit this affair.

UNC
BEER MUGS
STATIONERY
SWEAT SHIRTS
and EVERYTHING

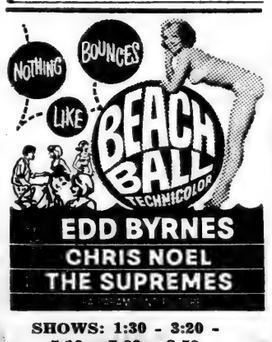
Ledbetter Pickard

LUNCH from 1.10 to 1.65
DINNER from 1.75 to 5.50
Featuring U. S. Choice Steaks,
Back Fin Lump Crabmeat,
Baked Country Cured Ham
Breast of Young Chicken
Six attractive dining rooms of varying size and decor afford flexible facilities for serving
BANQUETS AND RECEPTIONS
Recommended by Mobile Travel Guide
Best of Hillsway
Blair House
Durham-Chapel Hill Boulevard
Tel. 489-9128



EDD BYRNES
CHRIS NOEL
THE SUPREMES
SHOWS: 1:30 - 3:20 - 5:10 - 7:00 - 8:50
NOW PLAYING
CAROLINA

Varsity
NOW PLAYING
M-G-M's GREATEST OUTDOOR COLOR DRAMA!
ESCAPE FROM FORT BRAVO
STARRING
WILLIAM HOLDEN
ELEANOR PARKER
JOHN FORSYTHE
AN M-G-M PICTURE

Hey!
Are you all fixed for your parties this weekend?
CHECK THESE:
BEER
CHIPS
CHEESE
COLD CUTS CRACKERS
WINE
CHAMPAGNE
ICE
MIXES
OLIVES
NUTS
QUIK FOOD MART
Near the Main Intersection of Town
OPEN DAILY 'TIL 11:30 P.M.

CAROLINA COFFEE SHOP
OPEN 8-11 AM PM

FARM FRESH STORE

Chapel Hill's First Drive-In Convenience Food Store
COME AS YOU ARE — SHOP FROM YOUR CAR
Open 7 Days a Week — 8 a.m. to 11 p.m.
Pine State Milk and Dairy Products
Cheeses
Party Items and Chips
Groceries
Meats
Pizzas
Ice
OUR PRICES ARE VERY REASONABLE
CHAMPAGNE By the CASE or the Bottle
For Fraternity, Sorority, and Dorm Parties
KEG BEER or SIX PAKS
E. Franklin St. at Bolin Creek
Phone 942-2626

The University Baptist Church
in Downtown Chapel Hill
cordially invites
UNC STUDENT and FACULTY
to hear
DR. FOY VALENTINE
Author, Lecturer, Minister, and Executive-Secretary of the Christian Life Commission of the Southern Baptist Convention
SUNDAY, OCTOBER 31
11:00 A.M. — BELIEVE AND BEHAVE
5:30 P.M. — THE CROSS IN THE MARKET PLACE
7:00 P.M. — FORUM ON APPLYING CHRISTIAN PRINCIPLES

ANNUAL FALL BARGAIN
BOOK SALE!
Hundreds and hundreds of handsome books, their prices chopped to the bone!
ART BOOKS • MUSIC BOOKS
TRAVEL BOOKS • DRAMA
MUSIC • NATURE BOOKS
ARCHITECTURE • FICTION
COOK BOOKS • HISTORY
Most titles reduced to half-price or less!
All fresh copies — no damaged books
Come Bargain-Hunting This Week at
The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill, North Carolina
open evenings

GM PRESENTS

FRIDAY NIGHT
7, 9:30 p.m. in Carroll Hall "GIGI"
Starring Leslie Caron, Maurice Chevalier, and Louis Jourdan; lyrics and music by Lerner and Loewe. The captivating story of a young girl's entrance into life in 19th century Paris; one of the most elegant and tasteful musicals that M-G-M has ever put out.
SATURDAY NIGHT
7, 9:30 p.m. in Carroll Hall "GASLIGHT"
Starring Charles Boyer and Ingrid Bergman. A chill classic of dementia, about a pianist who murders his wife's wealthy aunt, and then, gradually drives the girl to insanity to inherit her fortune.
COMBO PARTY
Rendezvous Room 8-12
with "The Viceroys"
SUNDAY
VAMPYR: one of the few serious and really brilliant filmic creations of the macabre. It sets the pattern for dozens of "horror" films to follow, but still stands unequalled in artistic achievement. Carl Dreyer implants the situations, atmosphere and ideas in the audience's mind, for them to create their own horror in their own imagination. 77 mins.
UN CHIEN ANDADOU: in 1928 Luis Bunuel and Salvador Dali teamed to make this film which has become the most widely of all surrealistic films. Its purpose was to shock! In the opening sequence a man calmly slits the eyeballs of an equally calm young woman. Dali said: "Our film ruined in a single evening 10 years of psuedo-intellectual post-war advance-guardism." 16 mins.
OLYMPIA DIVING SEQUENCE: scenes of men's diving competition from the 1936 Olympics in Berlin. Leni Riefenstahl's masterpiece of sound and motion. 5 mins.
PLUS: McLaren Abstracts, A Movie, and Desist Film.
CLIP THIS OUT FOR REFERENCE THIS WEEKEND

Unbeaten Frosh Play State Today

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

North Carolina's freshman football team tangles with the N. C. state frosh for the second time this year today at 2 p.m. in Kenan Stadium.

The Wolflets will be out to avenge a 9-0 setback at the hands of the Tar Babies earlier this year in Riddick Stadium. Since then they have blanked South Carolina 7-0 and crushed Wake Forest, 50-7.

The Tar Babies have cruised to three straight victories, including a 40-7 romp over Virginia and a 31-0 blasting of Duke. Their defense is unscored on, the only touchdown having come on a kickoff return. Sparking the Carolina freshmen's offense is the Canadian cannonball, Dick Wesolowski. Dick picked up 107 yards in the first game against State and blitzed Duke for 169 yards.

Others looking good for the Tar Babies have been halfback Billy Federal, fullback Mark Mazza and quarterback Gayle Bomar.

Stretching back to last year's squad the Tar Babies have ripped off eight wins in a row.

State, however, will by no means lay down and play dead.

"That was a different State freshman team I saw last Saturday night," Carolina coach George Barclay said. "They hit harder and they moved the ball with finesse. We're in for a real battle."

State will rely on fullback Bobby Hall, who has gained 152 yards in three games, and halfback Leon Mason, who has 123 yards. Hall is the scoring leader with 18 points. At quarterback the Wolflets play both Jack Klebe and Dick Schirippa.

The Tar Babies are hefty, as their weights show. The offensive line runs 217 pounds and the offensive backfield hits 198.

Tackles are manned by Mike Richey of Charlotte (250) and Terry Rowe of York, Pa., (255). Frank Coble, Little Rock, Ark., (200) and Mike Smith, Wheeling, W. Va. (235) are the guards and Chip Bradley (208) of Asheville is the center. At the ends are Peter Davis of Clarksville, Va., and Billy Warren of Rocky Mount.

Wingback and field goal kicker is Bill Dodson of Alexandria, Va. He had field goals of 35 and 45 yards against Virginia and added another three-pointer in the Duke contest last week.

State sports such linemen as center Curtis Walker of Atlanta, Ga. (264), tackle Mike Richards of Augusta, Ga. (245) and tackle Sam Orr of Etowah (239).

Pat Stith

DTH Sports Editor

Jimmy Shackleford, a starter on last year's freshman basketball squad, has dropped out of school for medical reason.

His departure left the number of boys trying to make coach Dean Smith's 12-man team at 15. Smith expects to cut three more from his roster in a week or so.

"I'm in no big hurry to make the cut," Smith said. "And when I do make it it won't be completely final. I intend to send three boys down to work with the freshman but if one of them begins looking good and somebody on the varsity isn't producing, I'll change them around."

The loss of Shackleford is not a serious one. He was a sharp passer but a poor shooter as a freshman and would have had an extremely difficult time making the 12-man team.

* * *

Cartoonist Jeff MacNelly has a brainstorm solution to the basketballer's Tin Can plight. It is dark enough in there to serve as an indoor lovers' lane and MacNelly suggests—miners' caps?

* * *

Coach Jim Hickey said Tuesday at his press conference, in explanation of the failure of his defensive secondary, "You expect mistakes from sophomores. Of course by now, they shouldn't be playing like sophomores."

That's a pretty good explanation, except for the fact that for the most part, his defensive secondary is NOT made of sophomores.

Both defensive deep men, Alan McArthur and kicker Bill Edwards, are, in fact, seniors. Both linebackers, Jay Malobicky and Ronnie Kaplan, are also seniors. Left corner back Billy Darnall is a junior and right cornerback Jack Davenport is a sophomore — the only sophomore in the group.

Some say it takes a year to develop a good defensive secondary and that's probably a pretty fair estimate. But it makes no sense to take your licks all season breaking in a pass defense crew only to lose the bulk of them and start over next fall.

Hickey says he plans no changes in his defensive secondary but why not give co-captain Hank Barden a try? He was good enough to be a starter in that role as sophomore.

Swimmers Slightly Behind

By BILL HASS
DTH SPORTS WRITER

Swimming coach Pat Earey said yesterday that the varsity team is "a little slower rounding into shape than we had anticipated at this point." He said there was no cause for panic and the team could catch up if the boys aren't pushed along too much at once.

* * *

Varsity freestyler John Sheldon has been stung by a yellow jacket and had both eyes swollen shut. He missed all this week and will miss all next week's practice. "He's the only distance freestyler we have an this will throw the program way behind," Earey said.

* * *

Plans for Phil Riker, who swam in the 1964 Olympics, are uncertain. He is working out with the freshmen and should be granted another semester's eligibility to swim with the yearlings. He will be eligible for the varsity by spring, but Earey said he hasn't decided if Riker will be moved up or not.

Bulldogs Go Airbound?

What do you expect from Georgia? Jim Hickey was asked. The North Carolina coach gave the obvious answers.

"I expect them to pass," he shrugged. "They have made a number of changes in their running game because of injuries. They really don't know how well they can run. But they have good receivers and they can throw.

"I'm sure their scouting report told them how Wake Forest beat us: with the bomb. That's no secret. It has happened to us in other games. Virginia, for example."

Hickey isn't down on his secondary. He knows the defensive back have made mistakes, mistakes which have cost games. He looks at the human side of the picture.

"Our secondary is completely new," he points out. "It's true — they should be beginning to play like veterans, but they still are green for the most part. I know those kids will hit and I know they're doing their best. I expect better football out of them for the Georgia game."

Georgia hasn't been at full strength since the Clemson game, three weeks ago. Their No. 1 quarterback, Kirby Moore, suffered a nose break last week and probably will be seeing duty only as a punter.

"I know they have made shifts and have new men at many positions," comments Hickey. "So do we. We'll be starting Billy High at a guard. He has been a tackle all year. David Riggs, our running back, will be starting his first game."

Equipment Man Has Seen The Best Teams, Players

By WAYNE HURDER
DTH Sports Writer

Morris Mason has worked in the Kenan Stadium Field House for 38 years. A heavy set, friendly Negro, he has been at his job longer than anyone at the university.

Morris is the equipment man for the football team. As such he has to make sure Carolina's athletes have the jersies, shoes and helmets needed for Saturdays' games.

Having worked with football players for so many years he probably knows more about them than they themselves. He thinks this year's team is a good one but not as good as they could be.

"This team is one of the greatest I have had the pleasure to wait on. If they would play ball, and I know they can, they would be the greatest. They shouldn't be any worse than 5-1 (that one being Michigan) and they didn't have any business letting those guys go up the field."

Morris is a great believer in trying.

"I don't understand why they lose them. They never let up against Ohio State. That's what it takes to make a sound football team. Every minute they're out there they should give it all they got. Everyman should give it everything when he's out there. Everyman should do his job."

He doesn't like people that know nothing about coaching and try to pin the blame for losing on them.

"I don't go to Coach Hickey for a broom and he doesn't come to me for coaching advice. If everybody would stay out of the other man's job things would be a lot better. Nobody wants to win more than the coach, therefore he must be doing all he can do to win.

As for the rest of the coaches:

"The whole coaching staff is fine, that's why I can't understand why they aren't winning. I think we'll beat Georgia if these boys will play the kind of ball I know they can play. At Ohio State they were put to the test and went through. You're doing all right to win in front of 80,000 fans in Columbus against OSU."

As for the fans he can't understand why they were for the team when they returned from playing Ohio State but turned against them after they lost a few.

Morris has seen a lot of great football players in his years with the team. Among those greats were Charlie Justice, 'Doc' Blanchard, and Ken Willard. He thinks Danny Talbott will be ranking up there with them someday.

"He's going to be a great football player. He's a good leader. Talbott tries harder than anyone else and takes a lot of beating."

He first came to the job in 1927 when he was 18. He is now 56.

As a special feature of his work he gets to go with the team on trips. This has taken him as far away as California to play Southern Cal.

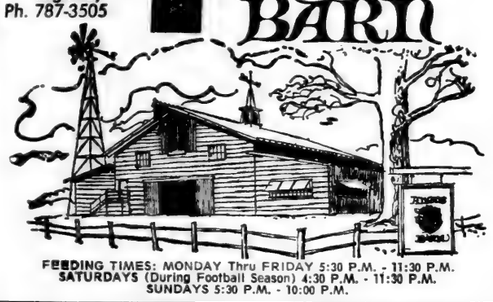
Morris enjoys his job because he likes working with people. He loves Carolina football and its players. He is no fair weather fan but sticks with them all the time and always has the greatest confidence in them.

Old Well Charms

Sterling Silver $4.00
Gold Plate $5.00
Solid Gold $17.00

T. L. KEMP JEWELRY
The Home of the Old Well Charm
135 East Franklin St.

'Beefeaters' Haven'
Raleigh-Durham Highway
Ph. 787-3505
ANGUS BARN Inc



FEEDING TIMES: MONDAY Thru FRIDAY 5:30 P.M. - 11:30 P.M.
SATURDAYS (During Football Season) 4:30 P.M. - 11:30 P.M.
SUNDAYS 5:30 P.M. - 10:00 P.M.

Belk-Leggett-Horton Co.
brings you the most exciting new idea in men's gift-giving...
BRITISH STERLING
EXCLUSIVE TOILETRIES FOR MEN

From $3.50 to $10.00
MADE IN U.S.A.

The Daily Tar Heel SPORTS

U.N.C. Vs. N.C. STATE
FROSH FOOTBALL
Today on WCHL
2:00 P.M. 1360

At Sharyn Lynn
The sweater with the Fairyland Look
Long sleeve Cardigan with multi-color yoke sizes 34 to 40 in Heather Green & Heather Yellow
only $14.98

Matching A-Line SKIRTS
at only $11.98

Plaid pleated SKIRTS to blend
at only $12.98

See our Collection of DYED TO MATCH SKIRTS & SWEATERS by Bobbi Brooks, Garland Brownie & Tami

SHARYN LYNN SHOPPE
Chapel Hill Durham (uptown)

True-To-Tradition
3 Piece WORSTED SHARKSKIN SUITS

An air of confidence distinguishes the man whose choice is based on the rich texture of worsted sharkskin. It's a suit that's perfect for whatever you decide to do. Tailored meticulously of imported and domestic fabrics in our understated authentic natural shoulder model. In a choice of colors . . . plains and plaids by College Hall naturally.

From 59.95
Varsity Men's Wear
Charge Acc. Invited

The Carolina Gentleman

The lean and learned look is yours in our soft shouldered natural gentleman clothing, whether you prefer the University look, the richly conservative look, or a more adventurous style, there is something to please you at THE HUB. There is top quality in the fabric, tailoring, and fit of any of the fine values that await you.

SUITS: For any occasion, in an unbelievable variety of styles, including plaids, herringbones, stripes and solids . . . from 59.95

Be at home anywhere — plaids, Herringbones, tweeds and elegant blazers . . . . from 29.95

SHIRTS: A generous selection of sport and dress shirts, tailored in the finest tradition. Solids and stripes. . . . from 5.95

THE HUB OF CHAPEL HILL

Smart Sweaters for Sartorial Sophisication

Milton's fall sweater collection is our proudest yet. Let's start with the ultimate in a fine shetland — Scotland's J & D McGeorge—a by-word at Milton's for over 17 years—our own special higher V-neck and classic cardigans — full fashioned raglan shoulders — from $16.95. Cox Moore English Lambswool V-neck or cardigan — saddle shoulder, full fashioned — from $15.95. Cox Moore "75"—75% Cashmere, 25% nylon, V-neck —$25.00. Imported alpaca cardigan in all sartorial shades—$27.50.

Discover the unusual items and exclusives that have enhanced our reputation through the entire region and have influenced knowledgeable folks everywhere.

Milton's
Clothing Cupboard

FLORSHEIM
Tassle Loafers
Florshiem uses only the very finest quality leather in their tassle loafers.
Fully leather lined in cherry brown and Palamino Cordovan. Also in antique Scotch Grain.
All sizes ..... from 27.50
Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin

OPEN ROAD INC.
HONDA
This Week's Specials:
New 1965 Honda
Scrambler 250cc
Reg. $727 Now $677
New 1965 Honda
Hawk 250cc
Reg. $677 Now $627
New 1966 Honda
Dream Touring
Reg. $602 Now $557
New 1965 Gilera
Sport 125
Reg. $549 Now $498
Large Assortment of
New and Used Cycles and Scooters from $95
NO MONEY DOWN
EASY TERMS
Bring this ad for $25 off
on any used 150 or 180cc
Honda
616 W. Chapel Hill St.
DURHAM — 682-8228
Open Road Inc.
Where Service Comes First

Campus
The skirt and sweater, a couple of sharp pencils, your lipstick, and you're all set. The sweater is the classic ribbon front cardigan, full fashioned of pure wool. It comes in twenty-three colors, enough to satisfy the most ardent collector. Sizes 34 to 40. The skirt is a panel A-line of pure wool, fully lined. In all seven VILLAGER® colors. Sizes 6 to 16.

Town & Campus

Reference Desk
Wilson Library
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Fauntleroy

Who is Fauntleroy going to let win today's big football games? See page four for the answers.

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Vol. 74, No. 40 | CHAPEL HILL NORTH CAROLINA SATURDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1965 | Founded February 23, 1893

BEAT GEORGIA

Carolina Faces Georgia In Homecoming Contest

Petition Organizer Intends To Appeal Board's Ruling

By JOHN GREENBACKER
DTH Political Writer

David Kiel, an organizer of the presidential recall petition, announced yesterday he intends to appeal of the Student Government Constitutional Council an Elections Board ruling that the petition is invalid.

The board ruled last week that the petition was invalid after 55 of its signatures were disqualified for being ficticious, duplicated or untraceable.

The petition contained 1,917 signatures when presented to the board, and needed 1,863 valid signatures for a recall election to be held.

Petition backers seek the ouster of Paul Dickson as student body president.

Dickson was convicted last August by the Men's Council for a Campus Code violation.

Kiel announced his intention to appeal the board's decision in spite of a statement issued Thursday by the petition's original sponsor, student legislator Sharon Rose, which said she accepted the board's action.

"Since yesterday afternoon," Kiel said, "I have been contacted by many persons who are greatly disappointed with the manner in which the recall petition has been handled.

"Admittedly the chairman of the Elections Board has been in the most difficult position of trying to examine a petition concerning the recall of his boss and of trying to do so under tremendous partison pressures," he said.

Kiel referred to Elections Board Chairman Alvin Tyndall.

"I wish to suggest that the Elections Board be unburdened with the tremendous clerical task of checking the petition," Kiel said. "This can be done by turning 'untraceable nicknames' and other questionable signatures over to the Department of Central Records for location."

Kiel said the department's clerical staff would quickly determine whether the names are valid.

"I wish to announce," he said, "that because the Constitutional provisions for recall are ambiguous and because provisions which do exist have not been entirely followed, I am asking the Constitutional Council to convene at the earliest possible time to consider the status and validity of the recall petition.

"I continue to feel that the students have manifested their desire for, and deserve, a voice in this important matter," he said.

Hoover Opposes Letting Reds Speak On Campus

J. Edgar Hoover told The Daily Tar Heel in a letter dated Tuesday that he doesn't believe Communists should be allowed to speak on college campuses.

In a letter to DTH columnist Michael Jennings, the FBI director said that while he believes in academic freedom and freedom of speech, "I do not feel these privileges grant license to deliberately present distortions and falsehoods."

Hoover said that the Communist Party is trying to increase its influence among the nation's young people and to "create a new image of respectability and legitimacy" as a liberal political faction free from foreign domination."

As for communists on campuses, the veteran crime fighter claimed that campus speeches are used by the Party to gain respectability. "One principal objective," Hoover said, "is to gain status by appearing on the same platform with legitimate political leaders and educators."

North Carolina's speaker ban law bars communists and persons who take the Fifth Amendment on loyalty questions from speaking on the campuses of state - supported schools. Hoover did not specifically refer to this law and made no comment on speakers other than communists.

Hoover said that some students can recognize propaganda, but others cannot. "Therein lies the danger," he added, "because communists have made and are making recruits in our schools, colleges and universities."

Hoover's complete letter is reprinted on page two.

SDS Program

Students for a Democratic Society will present "The Free University in a Political State" Monday night at 7:30 in Carroll Hall.

Rev. Banks Godfrey, Chaplain of the Wesley Foundation; Norman Gustaveson, director of the YMCA; and Michael Katz, professor law, will discuss various aspects of the duty of students to dissent. An open question-answer and discussion period will follow.

The public is invited.

Rep. Weltner Speaks Here In December

Charles L. Weltner, liberal Democratic Congressman from Georgia, will address the student body Dec. 13, according to Carolina Forum Chairman George Nicholson III.

The speech will be sponsored by the forum and the YMCA Human Relations Committee.

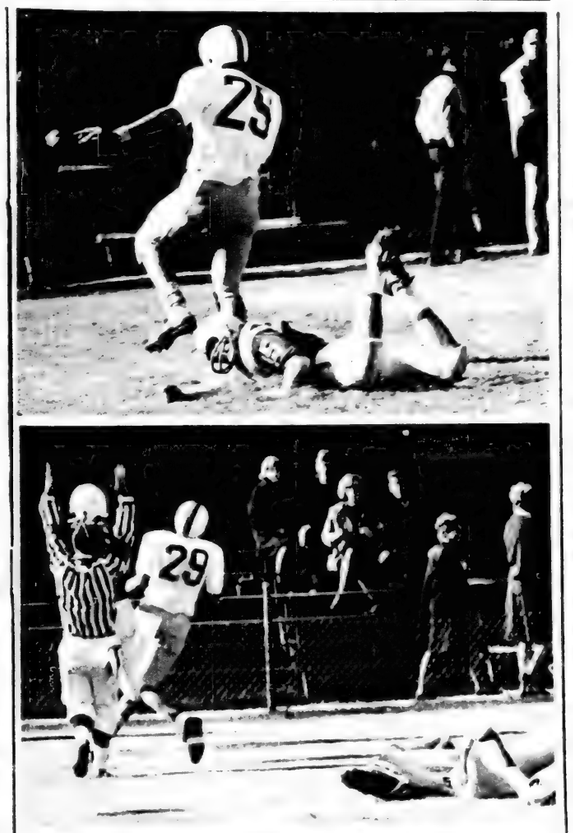
Weltner, a member of the House Un-American Activities Committee, will speak on the current investigation of the Ku Klux Klan.

A recent CBS documentary film on the Klan will also be shown during the program.

A second term congressman from Atlanta, Ga., Weltner is a graduate of Oglethorpe and Columbia universities.

Weltner, a member of a distinguished Georgia family whose members include the first chief justice of the state supreme court and a Confederate general, was the only deep South representative to vote for the 1964 Civil Rights Bill.

Last February he rose on the House floor and demanded a congressional investigation of the Klan, saying "It will plague us tomorrow unless we quash it today."



TAR BABY Wingback Billy Dodson eludes Jack Lleb of the State frosh to score UNC's first touchdown in yesterday's game. The tally came on a 37-yard pass from Gayle Bomar. Carolina won, 21-13.

Invading Bulldogs Defeated Michigan

A homecoming crowd of some 45,000 will pack into Kenan Stadium to eye a pretty queen, a running back named David Riggs and the Tar Heels of North Carolina duel Georgia.

Riggs replaces senior Max Chapman, who led the ACC in rushing through the first half of the season with 375 yards and then was benched after UNC loss to Wake Forest last week.

Chapman gained only 38 yards in that one while Riggs, his understudy, picked up 41 on only five carries. Coach Jim Hickey said that Chapman would play but that Riggs would start and would be given a shot at the job.

Georgia comes into today's game with a limp. The Bulldogs have lost their last two games (Florida State University and Kentucky) after winning their first four.

Early victims include Alabama, ACC leader Clemson and Michigan. The Wolverines are the two teams' only common foe. Georgia beat them 15-7 away and North Carolina lost 31-24 here in Kenan Stadium.

Georgia will be limping today literally speaking. Its injury chart is too long to list. Suffice it to say that the Bulldogs are minus their star tailback Bob Taylor, who was averaging 5.1 yards per carry when he broke his leg against FSU.

The Bulldogs completed 11 of 18 passes for 137 yards last week, the most attempts and completions in the past two years, since All America Larry Rakestraw graduated.

Hickey expected to see more of the same today.

"I'm sure their scouting report told them how Wake Forest beat us —with the bomb. That's no secret. I has happened to us in other games, Virginia, for example."

If it comes down to a field goal, as Carolina's last four games have, Georgia is prepared to play football. Their kicking specialist, Bob Etter of Chattanooga, has booted eight so far this season, which ties the Georgia record.

Georgia holds the edge in 70 year series, 13-12. Two games have been tied. The Bulldogs won last season in Athens 24-8 in a game described by Coach Vince Dooley the Bulldogs best of the year.

Georgia Athletic Director Joel Eaves offered to forfeit that game after it was discovered that Georgia used ineligible players but UNC AD Chuck Erickson declined the offer.

Crowning of the 1965 Homecoming Queen will highlight halftime ceremonies.

Zacki Murphey, 1964 queen, will crown the winner of last Wednesday's campus - wide balloting.

The winners of homecoming display judging will also be announced at halftime.

Awards will be made for best fraternity, best sorority, best men's residence hall, best women's dormitory and best all - campus entries. Displays will be judged between 10 a.m. and game time today.

Harvard Dean Will Preach At Wesley

Dr. Samuel H. Miller, dean of the Harvard Divinity School, will preach the regular service at the Wesley Foundation Chapel tomorrow.

The service will begin at 4 p.m. in the chapel of the new Wesley Foundation building, 214 Pittsboro St.

Dr. Miller is an ordained Baptist minister. He served as pastor of Old Cambridge Baptist Church before being named dean of the Divinity School.

He is the author of numerous books, including the Lyman Beecher Lectures at Yale, entitled "The Dilemma of Modern Belief."

The 80-voice University Chorus, directed by Wayne Zarr, will sing three selections at this serrvice.

Dr. Miller will also speak at 7:30 tomorrow night at the Wesley Foundation Symposium on Dostoevski's "The Grand Inquisitor," along with Dr. Kenneth Reckford of the Department of Classics.

The services are non-denominational and are open to all members of the university community and to townspeople.

Registrars Sent To More Counties

WASHINGTON (AP) —Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach stepped up his efforts under the 1965 Voting - Rights Act yesterday by ordering federal registrars into 12 more southern counties.

It was the largest number of counties designated at one time so far, and boosted to 32 the total of counties where special registrars have been called on to list eligible voters under the voting - rights law signed Aug. 6.

South Carolina was added to the list for the first time — Clarendon and Dorchester counties. Other states and counties where registrars were dispatched are:

Mississippi, 6 — Jefferson, Neshoba, Hinds, De Soto, Homes and Walthall. Populous Jackson, the state capital and often a focus of civil rights activity, is in Hinds County.

Alabama, 3 — Elmore, Autauga and Greene.

Louisiana, 1—West Feliciana Parish.

Previously, Katzenback had dispatched registrars to nine counties in Mississippi, seven in Alabama and four in Louisiana. A total of 56,119 Negroes have been listed by federal registrars in those counties as eligible to vote.

Some civil rights groups have complained that the Attorney General was not using his powers under the new federal law quickly enough or in enough places. But Katzenbach has insisted that local and state officials be given every opportunity to comply voluntarily with the law.

The law prohibits use of literacy and other tests as a requirement for voting in the states which come under the statute's definitions — Alabama, Alaska, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina, Virginia and at least 26 counties in North Carolina.

Today, in announcing his new action, Katzenbach said of the Voting - Rights Act, "We look for full compliance — not only the suspension of unlawful literacy tests but the provision of reasonable access to new applicants."

There have been complaints that registrations of Negroes have been discouraged by limiting the time registration offices are kept open.

"Where masses of unregistered citizens are seeking to register for the first time," Katzenbach said, "local registrars must take the necessary steps to meet this new demand promptly."

The registrars being sent into the 12 counties will set up operations early next week and begin listing voters immediately, Chairman John W. Macy of the Civil Service Commission said.

The latest prior designation of registrars was Oct. 1, when Montgomery County, Ala., became the first big-city area selected.

Move Cars

Scott College residents will meet at 2 p.m. Sunday in the Ramshead Parking Lot for the start of Lt. Gov. Scott's motorcade.

The street facing Parker, Teague and Avery Halls will be blocked off between 1 a.m. and 6 p.m. Sunday. Cars which are not moved before this time will be towed away.

CHANCELLOR PAUL F. Sharp signs the proclamation making tomorrow Scott College Day. Robert Hunter, governor of Scott Residence College watches the signing. The college will be dedicated tomorrow.

Chancellor Sharp Makes Sunday Scott College Day

Chancellor Paul F. Sharp yesterday proclaimed Sunday "Scott College Day" in celebration of the dedication of Scott Residence College by Lt. Governor Robert W. Scott.

The dedication ceremonies will begin at 3 p.m. tomorrow in front of Teague residence hall after Lt. Gov. Scott's motorcade arrives from a tour of the campus.

Sharp, Scott and Scott College Governor Bob Hunter will speak at the ceremonies, which will also feature performances by the UNC band and the Glee Club.

High state officials, former governors, students and guests are all invited to attend.

Scott College, consisting of Parker, Teague and Avery Residence Halls, is named for W. Kerr Scott, former North Carolina governor and U. S. senator.

Mrs. W. Kerr Scott will be present for the dedication.

In his proclamation of Scott College Day, Sharp said, "At a time when forces seem to propel us toward an ever expanding University and the ever increasing possibility of anonymity, I am pleased officially to note the creation of the Residence College System.

"This organization of a limited number of residence halls into college areas promises to make a significant contribution toward providing a better enviroment for the study, recreational, social and political life of our students," he said.

The band will accompany the motorcade for the final distance of its tour, and the Glee Club will entertain spectators before the ceremonies.

Here is the schedule for the program:

— Invocation by Rev. James Cansler, Scott College Chaplain, at 3 p.m.

— Welcome and introductions by Hunter.

— The hymn "God of our Fathers," sung by the Glee Club and accompanied by the band.

— Presentation of a portrait of W. Kerr Scott by Thomas Bolch, President of the Young Democratic Club.

— Greeting from the University by Chancellor Sharp.

— Speech "North Carolina and Higher Education" by Lt. Gov. Robert W. Scott.

— "Hark the Sound," sung by the audience.

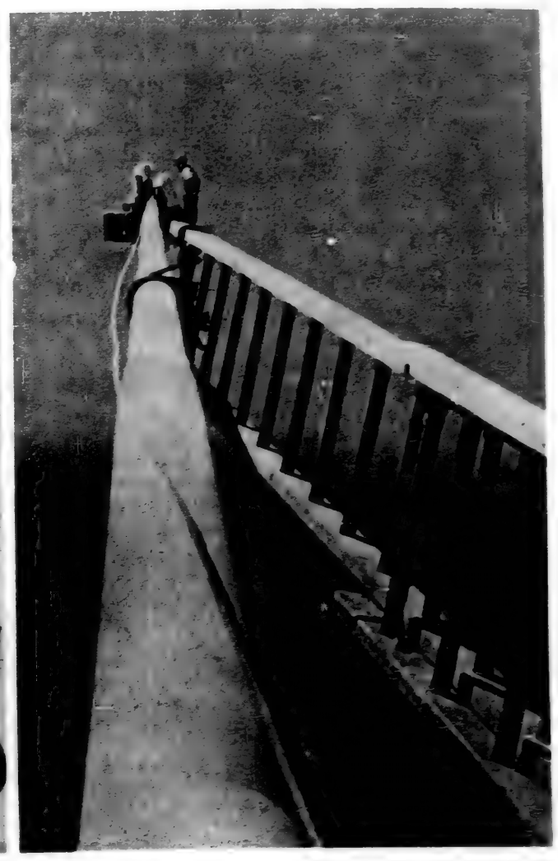
— Benediction by Rev. Cansler.

A reception will follow the ceremonies in the Scott College social room of Teague Hall, which will be dedicated by Mrs. Kerr Scott.

Middies Hear Sub Officer

Cdr. Robert E. Crispen. USN, commanding officer of the Fleet Ballistic Missile Submarine, USS Nathanael Green, spoke to UNC NROTC midshipmen Wednesday night on the opportunities of the Navy's nuclear power training program.

Cdr. Crispen has serve in the nuclear power program since 1955. He started as an Insturctor in the Nuclear Power Division of the Submarine School at New London, Conn., followed by three tours aboard nuclear power submarines, including the USS Nautilus before his present assignment.



GO-GO GIRLS AND FLAG POLE SITTERS came to Chapel Hill yesterday. Actually, the open air discotheque took place in the little fraternity court with girls imported from (of all places) Greensboro. The man on the pole is perched atop the Post Office flag pole finishing up a paint job. DTH Photos by Andy Myers

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of the Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. Letters and columns, covering a wide range of views, reflect the personal opinions of their authors.
ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

Residence College Success

Tomorrow's dedication of Scott College, featuring an address by Lt. Governor Robert Scott, is an example of the residence college plan functioning at its best.

The governor of the three-hall college, Bob Hunter, estimated, without exaggeration, that 500 man-hours have gone into the preparation of the Sunday program. Literally hundreds of Parker, Teague and Avery residents have been involved in the work, and without doubt they all feel a new sense of closeness and mutual accomplishment.

And that's what the residence college system is all about. It's to help students avoid the danger of getting lost in the shuffle with no chance to do anything about it. By breaking a big university up into smaller pieces, more people have a chance to taste its real flavor. The men of Scott College and the other two colleges now in operation, Morehead and Morrison, have already proved the value of the system during their short existence. Already involved are 2,300 students — about half the men on oampus — in these three colleges.

Plans call for four more colleges to be established that will include all residence halls, and petitions are now being circulated in some of the halls, calling for the establishment of the colleges.

Dean of Men William G. Long says it is very likely that all seven colleges will be in various stages of operation by the end of this year.

"I continue to be astonished by the amount of enthusiasm students have demonstrated in this area," he said.

We expect this enthusiasm to continue because students know a good thing when they see it. We congratulate those who are already in full swing and encourage the others to get their colleges going as soon as possible.

Let The Breezes Blow

There's at least one thing to be said for those cute little wrap-around skirts worn by a good many coeds.

They go very well with windy weather.

The Mumsters

The senior class flower sale is without doubt an odorous affair. No one is quite certain what the proceeds from this mumumental endeavor are going for.

There have been many conjectures wafting about concerning this.

The local chapter of CORE sees it as a racist conspiracy in that only white flowers are being sold and that Armistice Mumpin is backing it.

Student Legislator Sharon Sharalike is suspicious of the project because some of its supporters stayed up all night working on it.

The senior class purports that the profits will be used to supplement its social fund.

But no amount of mummery will disguise their little scheme. We're on their scent. We have learned that this is a mumstrous plot to raise funds for that infamous organization — CORSAGE (Committee On Restoring Southeast Asian Guerilla Encampments).

The senior class in all manner of flowery language has tried to make their heinous scheme seem lily-white, but their true colors will be seen.

We also see an even greater danger.

If the senior class is willing to sell their mums today, tomorrow they may be selling their poppies.

Jim Smith

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; John Jennrich, associate editor; Barry Jacobs, managing editor; Fred Thomas, news editor, Pat Stith, sports editor; Gene Rector, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; John Greenbacker, political writer; Ed Freakley, Andy Myers, Lynne Harvel, Lynne Sizemore, David Rothman, Ray Linville, staff writers; Jack Harrington, bus. mgr.; Tom Clark, asst. bus. mgr.; Woody Sobol, ad. mgr.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all ap news dispatches.

David Rothman

SAD Leader Admits Communist Members

The leader of the UNC Students Against a Democratic Society (SAD) confesses that his national organization has Communist members.

Olio Scabio added, however: "SAD is very selective about admitting these people. We seriously believe that although 95 per cent intend to overthrow the government, the remaining ones are reds for humanitarian purposes.

"Or because there's something missing from their lives. These people are sick, and SAD intends to help them."

Koob Egdelwonk asked Olio how he's so competent at distinguishing dedicated Communists from the ones who can be "rehabilitated."

"It's easy," Scabio said. "Really I'm an undercover agent for the FBI. In fact, don't tell anybody this, but SAD was really created by J. Edgar Hoover and members of the House Un-American Activities Committee. SAD may be radical on the surface, but actually our only intention is to rehabilitate as many Communists as possible."

"But once they're rehabilitated, won't you have trouble getting them accepted into society?"

"Not exactly," Scabio explained. "The solution to making the rehabilitated Communists seem respectable is to make Communism seem respectable. We do this by staging protest rallies against the anti-communist war in Asia.

"And so far, we've been very successful. You shoulda seen how Radio Moscow's public image went up after they reported that thousands of college students want U. S. troops out of Vief Nam!"

"Yes," Egdelwonk said, "I'm sure the demonstrations helped rehabilitate lots of Communists. But where do you get your funds?"

"I'm not authorized to give you the full scoop," said Scabio. "However, I must say I was quite disturbed by the refusal of the Community Chest to cooperate in our program to improve the mental health of Communist party members. The Community Chest claimed the FBI was already interested in the members' welfare."

"How come SAD leaders last spring said U. S. troops in Viet Nam are guilty of 'racial genocide'?"

"We believe the Communists will feel more comfortable if they see their views being accepted," Scabio said as he affectionately patted a portrait of Lenin.

"What happens if the demonstrations actually do force the troops to withdraw from Viet Nam and Saigon has to surrender?"

"That will be very therapeutic for Mao Tse-Tung."

"We are also concerned about the mental health of Brezhnev and Kosygin."

"Why is President Johnson so mad at SAD even though it has FBI support?"

"This is simply a minor disagreement with the FBI over the the best therapeutic technique."

Roger Davis—First Maverick

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Roger Davis has passed from this scene leaving a void which cannot be filled. He had an intense love for Carolina. The very air he breathed here intoxicated him with energy and whetted his inexhaustable appetite for activity.

Roger will be remembered in many ways. He possessed a searching intellect, a razor-sharp wit and a genius for promoting anything from political campaigns to beauty contests. As a campus figure he was both colorful and controversial. As a person he was warm, sincere and instantly likeable.

Roger Davis was all of these things and many more, but we will remember him most in these lines from a poem I once read.

Here lies one who took his chances
In the busy world of men
Battled luck and circumstances
Fought and fell and fought again
Sometimes won but did no crowing
Sometimes lost but didn't wail
Took his beating but kept on going
And never let his courage fail
He was fallable and human
Therefore loved and understood
Both his fellow man and woman
Whether good or not so good
Kept his spirit undiminished
He never fell down on a friend
Fought the fight 'til it was finished
And lived a sportsman to the end.

Don Carson
For Maverick House

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Oh, God!
What plan do You pursue?
Have You another joy to fill
The void that in the heart then grew?
Does Justice laugh; can this be right?
You alone can know . . .
But it's not but You alone who cares!
For seven hundred stand as one this night:
One mind, one heart, one prayer-

Charles F. Crawford
Maverick House

Letters To The Editor

J. Edgar Hoover Says Communists Should Be Banned

(Editor's Note: The following letter was sent to DTH columnist Mike Jennings, who requested that Hoover write a letter for publication.)

Dear Mr. Jennings:

Upon my return I read your letter of October 12th and want to thank you for your interest in my views on communists speaking on university campuses.

With respect to your inquiry, I wish to reiterate that the FBI has no authority to prevent communist speakers from appearing on college campuses. The Communist Party, USA, is most anxious to expand its influence among the youth of our Nation. Communists are following an extensive program seeking young members and in those instances where actual converts are not made, the Party hopes to create a new image of respectability and legitimacy as a liberal political faction free from foreign domination.

Communist speakers cleverly espouse Soviet views on peaceful coexistence, disarmament and other similar issues. One principal objective is to gain status by appearing on the same platform with legitimate political leaders and educators. The communists are highly trained and skilled in the ways of deception and distortion of the truth. These conspirators are not bound by any obligation to be honest or factual in their statements. While we all believe in academic freedom and freedom of speech, I do not feel these privileges grant license to deliberately present distortions and falsehoods.

Some students are capable of recognizing and exposing communist propaganda and propagandists — others are not. Therein lies the danger because communists have made and are making recruits in our schools, colleges and universities. For that reason, I do not believe that communist spokesmen should be allowed to speak on our campuses.

Sincerely yours,
J. Edgar Hoover
Director,
Federal Bureau of Investigation

Former Resident Strongly Opposed To Speaker Ban

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

As a former resident of the State of North Carolina and as the holder of the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in History from the University of North Carolina, I am compelled to do my part in the effort to protect the University and the state from the madness which possesses a good part of the legislature and the people.

Unless you pledge yourself to fight the Speaker Ban law, and unless you exert the total power of your office in that effort, whatever ephemeral success you may enjoy in politics will be of little comfort to you. Historians of North Carolina, of the nation, of freedom of speech and thought, and historians of this country's struggle to improve the world in which we live, will recall your administration with loathing and contempt. I must remind you of what others undoubtedly tell you: that a great University exists at Chapel Hill, but that the soil in which it grew and now florishes is a tender soil, one which supports the tree of liberty only after constant care and attention, with a great deal of hard effort and sacrifice. That University is the by-product of the labor of generations of Carolinians and others from throughout the United States and the world. Is that great University which provided refuge for Alfred Brauer to be brought down by the likes of Beverly Lake? Is the center of free and responsible inquiry which nourished Rupert Vance, Bartold Ullmann and Thomas Wolfe to be denigrated, humiliated and reduced to an incredible condition by a new race of penny-ante Hitlers, who would build power out of utter corruption? Tyranny, Sir, is a weed which florishes in any soil. But what of freedom? It is at best a grand but fragile plant. Do you really want to be reclaimed from the pages of the state's history as its murderer?

Arthur Joseph Slavin
Assistant Professor
U.C.L.A.

Marching Band Gains Support

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Congratulations to the Marching Tar Heels.

After taking it since the beginning of the current football season they have bitten back.

However in their letter to The Daily Tar Heel the band made a factual error. This writer never said he felt there should be 185 members in the band. Admittedly he feels there should be more than there are at present.

The band also failed to mention that this writer specifically asked one of their number to bring him a list of grievances so that the writer could write an article explaining the problems which face the Marching Tar Heels.

To this request the writer was told the executive committee, or some such group, decided this would not be wise because the Athletic Department or Music Department might fire Major Yesulaitis, the band director, who is highly respected by the band members.

Instead the band sent in their letter containing 60 signatures.

If all they say is true, they have a legitimate complaint and one the students of this University need to look into.

They say the students don't support them. We ask how can they be given support if the students don't know about their problems.

The Marching Tar Heels say we don't get this and no one cares about that.

If we didn't care we wouldn't take the trouble to criticize.

Supposedly the facts are now in the open.

1. The music department does little to support the band. To our way of thinking this is a ridiculous tune for the music department to whistle. The band is exposed to the students and public more than any other part of the music department. Shouldn't they have the best support

2. The Athletic Department puts out little in the way of money. Obviously we don't know the whole story here, but it is plain they aren't getting their money's worth from the football team.

We sincerely hope the University and the students will look into this unfortunate situation and something will be done about it.

That goes for the Marching Tar Heels too. We appreciate their efforts and their problems. We hope they will now take positive steps in attempting to rectify this situation.

You can say that 86 people, not 85, care about the band. If you only knew that this writer's comments, sarcastic that they are, are aimed toward bringing your problems to light and having something done about it.

And good luck at the Georgia game.

Ed Freakley
Howell Hall

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel welcomes letters to the editor on any subject, particularly on matters of local or University interest. Letters must be typed, double spaced and must include the name and address of the author or authors. Names will not be omitted in publication. Letters should be kept as brief as possible. The DTH reserves the right to edit for length or libel.

the Sport Shop, inc.
"It Pays to Play"
CHAPEL HILL, N. C.
151 E. Franklin Phone 942-4064

KWIKEE TAKE OUT FOODS
Fresh Pizza
Barbecue
Fish, Chicken
DIAL 942-1453
And give us your order
We'll have it ready when you drive in!
Convenient Location
Eastgate 15-501 By-Pass

Julian's
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Homemade Doughnuts
Cold Beer to Take Out
THE DAIRY BAR
203 E. Franklin Street
Phone 942-5356

J. B. Robbins
The House of Fashion
in Chapel Hill – for the Carolinas

NORTH CAROLINA NATIONAL BANK

cheese
Cheese
CHEESE and more CHEESE
at
HICKORY FARMS
In the Eastgate Shopping Center

ROSE'S 5 and 10

WE'RE No. 1
MORRISON COLLEGE
(Where the MEN Live)

Come Home for Homecoming on a cycle from
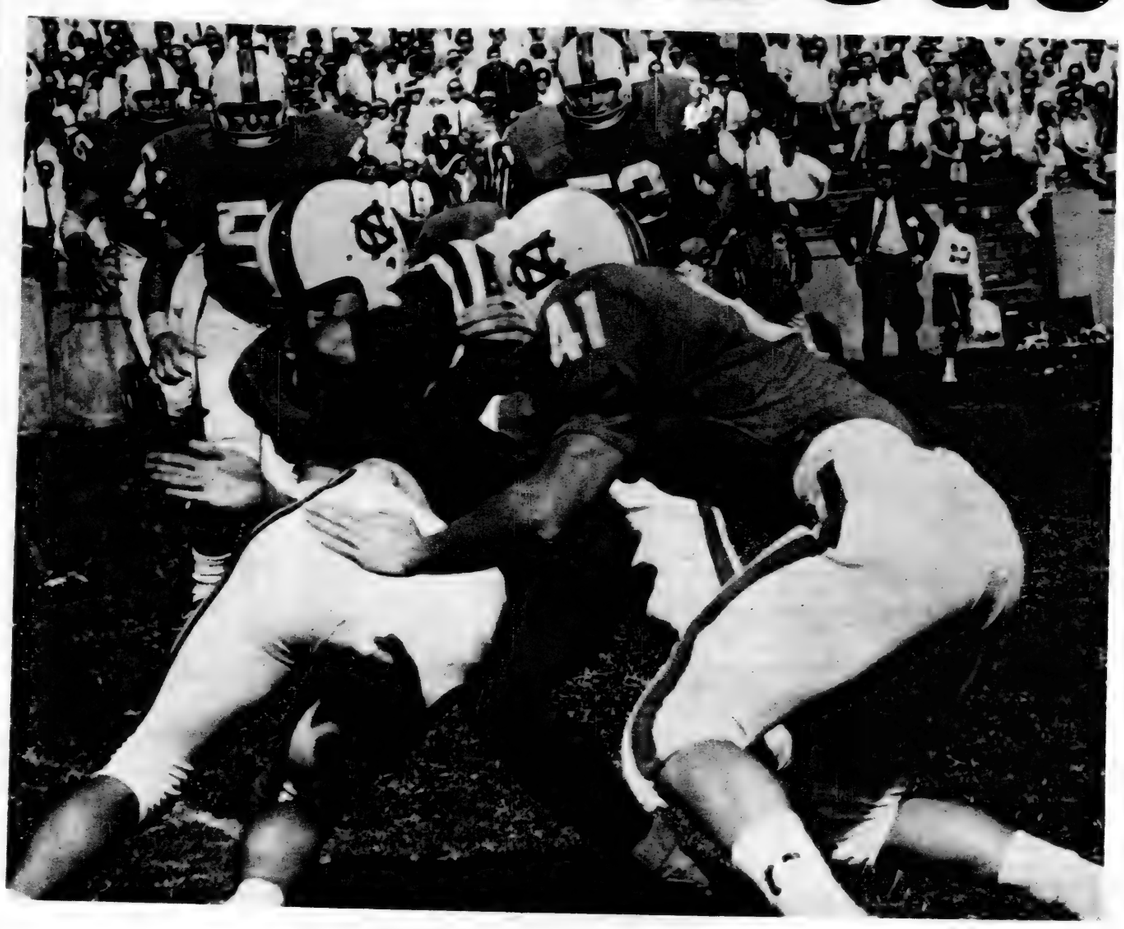
Travel - On Motorcycle Co.
"HEADQUARTERS FOR ADVENTURE"
504 WEST FRANKLIN STREET
CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA
929-2364

House "A" Morrison says –

BEAT THE ... ...BULLDOGS



LINE-UPS

CAROLINA:

OFFENSE		DEFENSE
80	Charlie Carr ..... LE	81	Bo Wood ..... LE
68	Lee Davis ..... LT	74	Joe Churchill ..... LT
62	Charlie Davis ..... LG	63	Joe Fratangelo ..... MG
52	Ed Stringer C	71	Hank Sadler ..... RT
56	John Harmon ..... RG	45	Jim Masino ..... RE
57	C. Alexander ..... RT	51	Jay Malobicky ..... LLB
83	John Atherton ..... RE	66	Ron Kaplan ..... RLB
10	Danny Talbott ..... QB	41	Billy Darnall LC
34	Max Chapman ..... LH	27	Jack Davenport ..... RC
42	Bob Hume ..... RH	39	Bill Edwards ..... LS
28	Tom Lampman ..... FB	23	Gene Link ..... RS
			OR
		33	Alan McArthur ..... RS

GEORGIA:

80	Frank Richter ..... LE	71	Edgar Chandler ..... RT
75	Ken Pillsbury ..... LT	97	Pat Hodgson ..... RE
67	Harold Steely ..... LG	10	Kirby Moore ..... QB
51	Ken Davis C	12	Preston Ridlehuber .. TB
64	Jimmy Denney ..... RG	35	Stu Mosher ..... WB
		44	Ronald Jenkins ..... FB

Ledbetter Pickard

See ALL of the Action
tasco Extra Wide
Quality Binoculars
SPECIAL LOW PRICES
Foister's Camera Store
161 E. Franklin Street Phone 942-3026

HOUSE "A" MORRISON wishes to thank
The Castaways, and the Gentlemen and Coeds who helped make last night's Halloween Party such a success.
DON EASON, President

For the Best in Wilson Sporting Goods and Converse Sneakers, shop at
EASTGATE HARDWARE
Eastgate Shopping Center
Phone 924-2920 TV Rental

TONIGHT!
GO-GO GIRLS
AND THE SEDUCTIVES
At Morrison Residence College
7:30 - 1:00 P.M., Main Lounge

W.K.I.X.
10,000 Watts 850 K.C.
Follow the Tar Heel Action on WKIX in Raleigh

Since 1898 and Reaffirmed Each Year
"Wherever Prices Can Be Lowered, Eckerd's Will Lower Them"
ECKERD'S DRUGS, Inc.
Eastgate Shopping Center

COLLEGE SHU-FIXERY
Two Doors from Post Office
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Visit Chapel Hill's Favorite Night Spot
THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP

Town & Campus

THE RECORD BAR

Compliments of
Wentworth & Sloan Jewelers

Featuring the Finest in Men's Clothing
and
THE CO-ED CORNER
THE HUB of Chapel Hill
Chapel Hill's Leading Clothiers
1$3 E. Franklin St. Phone 942-1252

Otelia Connor Tells Her Life History To J-Student

By LYNN BARRON
Special to the DTH

EDITOR'S NOTE: The little lady whose umbrella has known the heads of many ill-mannered UNC students in Lenoir Hall and whose dissertations on manners and campus beauty have dotted the pages of newspapers all over the state talked with a UNC journalism student this week. Here is the student's record of her exclusive interview with Otelia.

Otelia Connor, dressed in a suit and a large hat, sat in the Graham Memorial lounge reading the latest issue of Time. She was very glad to meet me, offered me a cigarette, and said that I "wasn't a bit late." A good start for a novice in her first interview.

Sitting on a comfortable red couch, one of UNC's "campus wonders" began her life story. The little lady who has made the improvement of Carolina manners her life's mission is from a long line of Tar Heels. Her grandfather, an 1840 UNC graduate, and her father were trustees of the University.

Connor Dorm is named for one of her relatives.

As she lit her second cigarette, Mrs. Connor's eyes became distant, remembering her childhood on a North Carolina plantation.

"I had a governess until I went to high school in Durham. Then I went to Duke for a year before getting a two year diploma in physical education at Saratoga Springs."

Before her marriage, Otelia taught in Durham schools for three years. She has two grown children — a married daughter who was a student at UNC-G and a son who graduated with honors from law school here, in 1957.

"When my husband died, I retired here, and now I fee like I own the place," she said with a big smile. "UNC has too many problems for Otelia to solve, but I just like to get people to think about things."

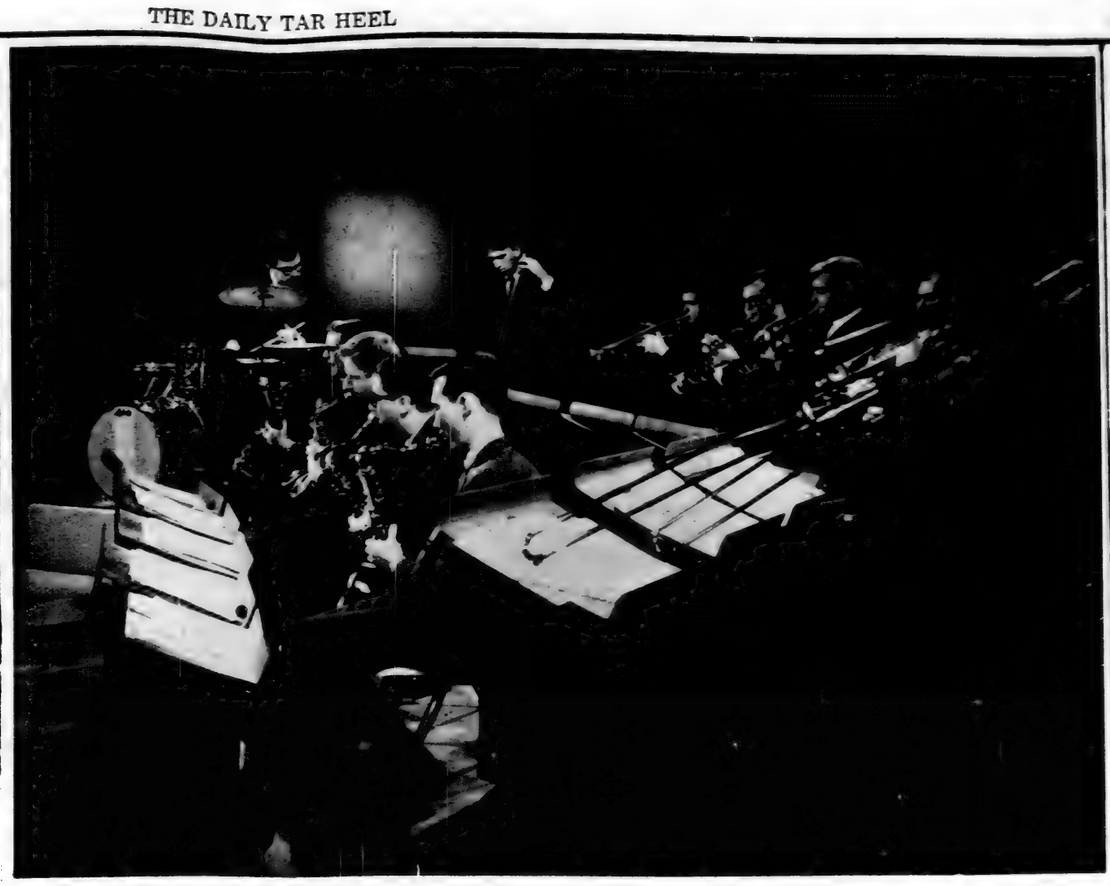
The highlight of her rise to fame was in 1963 when the July issue of Time commented on her interest in "doing something about students' manners." She had just given a talk at Duke "whose manners are worse than ours" when CBS and NBC started calling.

Otelia feels, however, that her most effective method is to "catch students in the act" and tell them what she thinks. People know she loves the University, but "if I didn't do it, no one would" sums up her approach.

Now Otelia spends much of her time reading and writing. While reaching for another cigarette, she produced two articles "waiting to be printed." One was concerned with student attitudes toward Viet Nam.

"That one's been sitting in the Tar Heel office for three weeks. I don't expect to get everything printed, but that's a little long, don't you think?"

After all, what would we do without her?



THE SINFONIANS IN PERFORMANCE ON WUNC'S FOCUS

'Sinfonians' Show Trend To Jazz

The sound of music on campus is strictly jazz, according to "The Sinfonians." Billed as a "concert-dance jazz band," this group of 15 artists has demonstrated in the past year that Carolina students are not as completely lacking in musical taste as most of the Saturday night combo parties might indicate.

"We see a definite trend among both fraternities and residence halls away from a constant dose of rock 'n' roll," says Gus Dearman, who plays baritone sax. "Cocktail parties, pledge weekend formals, and formal banquets are events where jazz combos and big bands are really in demand. The DKE's, DU's, and ADPi's are calling us regularly for these gigs."

A recent example of jazz in residence halls was "Southern Serenade," presented by Morrison, Craige, Ehringhaus, and Scott College. This concert of jazz music was held on the Maverick House lawn after the Maryland football game.

Byron McCoy, governor of Morrison, was well - pleased with the success of the project. "We modeled the program after both Carolina's Jubilee and the Newport Jazz Festival," he said. "Most of the guys had dates and relaxed on blankets, although chairs were available too. We plan to do this again in the spring, as soon as it warms up. We'll put on a bigger show and it will be open to the entire campus."

The Sinfonians had their biggest audience ever at last spring's Jubilee. They appeared on the Saturday night program with The Platters, which was attended by over 7,000 students. Gene Kee, musical director for The Platters, praised the band as "the best we've worked with all year."

The Sinfonians are led by Keith McClelland, who also plays vibes and piano in the band. Most of the members of the group are students at Carolina. However, The Sinfonians have become so well-known throughout the state that many of the top jazz men in nearby areas travel to Chapel Hill to play with them.

Among the band's soloists are Jim Hunt, Buddy Parker, and Jim Crawford. "We also have a brand-new feature with the band," reports McClelland. "A very well-known campus beauty queen has been hired to sing with us. I'm not mentioning her name yet, but she will be making her debut at "The Fall Festival of Jazz."

"The Fall Festival of Jazz" will be presented at Memorial Hall on Nov. 12. The program will feature The Sinfonians, The Jazz Souls, and the "mystery campus queen."

Reserved Seat Ticket Sales Begin Monday

Season ticket holders for the Playmakers Theatre can buy reserved seats for "The Summer Tree" beginning Monday. These tickets become available to the general public Thursday.

The play will run Nov. 9-14 with a Sunday matinee. The evening performances have a new curtain time, 8 p.m. The matinee begins at 2:30 p.m.

Coupons may be exchanged at the Playmakers' Business Office, 214 Abernethy Hall and at Ledbetter - Pickard. Tickets can be reserved by phone for later pick-up at 933-1121.

Mail orders should be sent to the Business Office with a self-addressed stamped envelope enclosed. Additional tickets cost 12 each.

DECEMBER 3-4-5

Heart Institute Approves Grant To Study Breathing

UNC is due to get a five-year grant to use computers to study the human body during breathing. The $91,000 award was approved by the National Heart Institute.

The research could be significant in the treatment of patients with lung disorders and in the care of patients during and after chest surgery.

Project director is Dr. Richard M. Peters, professor of surgery in charge of chest surgery and co-director of the Clinical Heart - Lung Laboratory at the School of Medicine.

With computer techniques devised in laboratories here, a research team will seek a better understanding of the amount of work a person must do to breathe.

Such work is of great importance in the comfort of sick patients and often in their survival. Many patients with acute lung problems need help in breathing for a successful recovery.

Studies of breathing have been going on here for 13 years with federal support.

Afghan Program

Chancellor Paul F. Sharp will deliver an introductory address at a program presented by Afghan students Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Carroll Hall.

The program, entitled "An Evening in Afghanistan" will tell about the people, foreign policy, geography and legal system of Afghanistan.

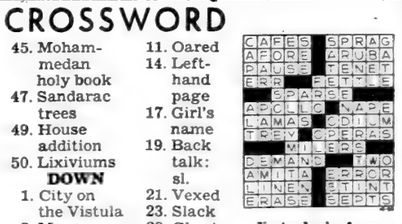
After the discussion period movies will be shown depicting various aspects of Afghan culture.

All interested persons are invited.

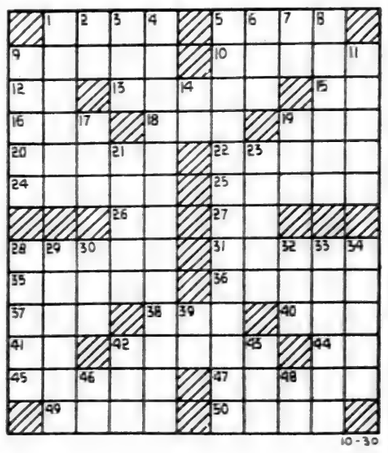
DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Cry
5. Saul of Tarsus
9. More rational
10. An early ___ (worm-catcher)
12. Hesitation sound
13. Pry
15. Leave
16. Third king of Judah
18. Speck
19. Mandate
20. Ship-to-shore communication
22. Choice group
24. Abound
25. Lassoed
26. Books in the Old Testament: abbr.
27. Negative
28. Gloss
31. Necktie or scarf
35. Himalayan mammal
36. Annoy
37. Single unit
38. Aesir
40. Gain
41. Approve
42. Norwegian inlet
44. Newspaperman: abbr.
45. Mohammedan holy book
47. Sandarac trees
49. House addition
50. Lixiviums

DOWN
1. City on the Vistula
2. Measure
3. Elongated fish
4. Prevailing
5. Out of the ordinary
6. Melody
7. Pronoun
8. Papal envoy
9. Scorches
11. Oared
14. Left-hand page
17. Girl's name
19. Back talk: sl.
21. Vexed
23. Slack
28. Ghost
29. City on the Yangtze
30. Chemical suffix
32. Bird's cry
33. Varieties of willow
34. Waits on
39. Moth
42. Follower
43. Arid
46. New Eng. state: abbr.
48. Diphthong



Yesterday's Answer



10-30

CONGENITAL DEFECTS

About 25,000 babies with heart malformation are born each year in the country, the North Carolina Heart Association reports. About half of these infants die during their first year of life.

Varsity
NOW PLAYING
Hell to Eternity
JEFFREY HUNTER
DAVID JANSSEN
VIC DAMONE
PATRICIA OWENS
CAROLINA
NOTHING BOUNCES LIKE BEACH BALL
TECHNICOLOR
EDD BYRNES
CHRIS NOEL
THE SUPREMES
SHOWS: 1:30 - 3:20 - 5:10 - 7:00 - 8:50
NOW PLAYING

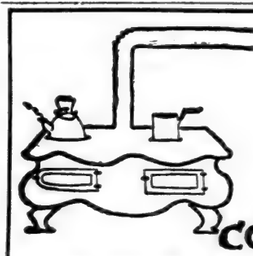
WELCOME U.N.C. GRADUATES
Let us make your Homecoming Weekend an enjoyable one.
Specializing in:
SOUTHERN FRIED CHICKEN
STEAKS B-B-Q SEAFOOD
BRADY'S RESTAURANT
Durham Rd. Chapel Hill

CAROLINA COFFEE SHOP
OPEN 8-11 AM PM

ANNUAL FALL BARGAIN
BOOK SALE!
Hundreds and hundreds of handsome books, their prices chopped to the bone!
ART BOOKS • MUSIC BOOKS
TRAVEL BOOKS • DRAMA
MUSIC • NATURE BOOKS
ARCHITECTURE • FICTION
COOK BOOKS • HISTORY
Most titles reduced to half-price or less!
All fresh copies — no damaged books
Come Bargain-Hunting This Week at
The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill, North Carolina
open evenings

KING WILLIAM RESTAURANT
1½ Miles from Campus on 15-501 South
SPECIALIZING IN:
STEAKS CHICKEN SEAFOOD
"Choice Selection of Imported and Domestic Beverages"
All New and Modern, featuring
• Seating capacity of 300
• Spacious parking facilities
• Four private dining rooms
• Tasteful background music
• Catering facilities
Open from 8:00 a.m. 'til Midnight
SEVEN DAYS A WEEK

OPEN ROAD INC.
HONDA
This Week's Specials:
Now 1965 Honda Scrambler 250cc
Reg. $727 Now $677
Now 1965 Honda Hawk 250cc
Reg. $677 Now $627
Now 1966 Honda Dream Touring
Reg. $602 Now $557
Now 1965 Gilera Sport 125
Reg. $549 Now $498
Large Assortment of New and Used Cycles and Scooters from $95
NO MONEY DOWN
EASY TERMS
Bring this ad for $25 off on any used 150 or 160cc
Honda
616 W. Chapel Hill St.
DURHAM — 682-8228
Open Road Inc.
Where Service Comes First



"The coffee's freshly ground and the larder's fully stocked."
10 A.M. - 5 P.M.
Mon. - Sat.
THE COUNTRY STORE
113 W. Franklin CHAPEL HILL, N. C.

Old Well Charms
Sterling Silver $4.00
Gold Plate $5.00
Solid Gold $17.00
T. L. KEMP JEWELRY
The Home of the Old Well Charm
135 East Franklin St.

HIGGINS and "DACRON" make the Campus scene!
HIGGINS slacks of 55% Dacron® polyester, 45% worsted wool (as shown) make a winning combination on any campus! Great Higgins styling, plus the built-in neatness of Dacron. Other top favorites are made of 70% Orlon® acrylic, 30% worsted wool, as well as special blends of "Dacron" and "Orlon". Tailored in traditional Yale and Trim Fit plain front models. At your favorite stores everywhere.
®du Pont Reg. T.M.
HIGGINS slacks FAMOUS FOR FIT

FOR SALE: 1962 COMET 4-door, radio, heater. Excellent condition. Best offer accepted. Bob Payton, 212 Teague, 968-9190.

FOR SALE: 1961 PEUGEOT. Good gas mileage, good condition and good rubber. $400 or best offer for immediate sale. Car located: Holloway Phillips 66, Eastgate.

FOR RENT: COMPLETELY furnished 2 bedroom, air conditioned 10 x 45 mobile home. Available Oct. 30. $80 per month. Call 942-3268 or 942-1749.

FLY — CHARTER FLIGHTS for three persons. 8 cents per mile per person. Two aircraft available. Departure from Chapel Hill. Advance notice please. Contact Bob O'Quin. 968-9033.

Weekend Activities On Carolina Campus

TODAY

Morrison Residence College will sponsor a "Homecoming-A-Go-Go" with the Seductives and 2 go-go girls from 7:30 p.m. - 1 a.m. in the main lounge of Morrison Dorm. $1.25 per couple.

Scott Residence College will sponsor a combo party with the "Sensations" from 4-6 p.m. and 8-12 p.m. in the Scott Residence College Room.

The Joyner Social Room is having a combo party with the Rogues Combo at 8 p.m.

Ping-Pong tournament sponsored by GM will be held Nov. 8-12 in Woollen Gym. There will be both singles and doubles competition. The winners are to represent UNC at the Regional V tournament and amateur status is required. Sign up for the tournament from Nov. 1-7 at GM Information Desk.

All seniors who have not selected Yack proofs please do so before Wed., Nov. 3.

SUNDAY

The Olin T. Binkley Baptist Church, church school series, with Jim Cansler as leader this Sunday. Coffee will be served at 9:30 a.m. and the class will begin at 10. Morning worship will follow at 11 a.m. with Dr. Robert Seymore speaking on "If Luther Were Alive Today." The Sunday night seminars and supper will begin at 6 p.m. and will be led by Rev. Bill Currin. Sunday's student group will be led by Dean Smith as he discusses "The Morality of the Social Whirl." Rides to Binkley can be obtained at Y Court, Chase Cafeteria, and the Nurses' Dorm at 9:30 and 10:40 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Westminster Fellowship presents a Halloween party at 5:30 p.m.

LSA meeting in the church at 6 p.m. Supper will be served followed by a reformation service.

Graduate Christian Fellowship from 8-9 p.m. in Roland Parker III in GM. Bible study on John for all interested graduate students.

An open forum on applying Christian principles will be presented by Dr. Foy Valentine, author, lecturer and executive secretary of the Southern Baptist Christian Life Commission, at the University Baptist Church at 7 p.m.

Student Peace Union will gather at 3 p.m. in front of Silent Sam.

Dr. Samual H. Miller will be the speaker at the Sunday University Worship at 4 p.m. at the Wesley Foundation.

The Sunday Evening Symposium at the Wesley Foundation at 7:30 p.m. will feature "Reformation Day: The Journey of Freedom in The Brothers Karamazov, 'The Grand Inquisitor,'" by the Rev. Samuel Miller.

LOST AND FOUND

Lost: Gold Zippo lighter with the initials J.D.R. Call John David Richardson, 968-6411.

Lost: Large male Bassett hound named Yoder. Reward. Call 968-2521.

Lost: A London Fog jacket in the Carolina Barber Shop. A pair of glasses in the pocket. Coats could have been switched. Victor Buchanan, 306 Carr Dorm, 968-9195.

Lost: Gray frame glasses on intramural field No. 7. Bill Earp, 403 Joyner, 968-9090.

Lost: Black and white herringbone sport coat last weekend; also a blue pullover sweater. Contact Steve Lail, 03 Old West.

MONDAY

The Academic Affairs Committee will meet in the Grail Room at 4 p.m.

The Graham Memorial Publicity Committee will meet at 5p.m. in Roland Parker III.

The Annual Weinstein Lecture will be held Mon. and Tues. at 5 p.m. in the Howell Hall Auditorium. Dr. Harry Orlinsky will lecture on the subject, "The New Jewish, Protestant and Catholic Translations of the Bible," on Mon. Evening, and on "The Bible as History in the Light of Archaeology" on Tues. evening. The public is invited.

Interviews for the men's and women's attorney general staff will be held Mon. and Tues. from 2-4 p.m. Interviews are open for freshmen and sophomore men and freshmen, sophomore, and junior transfer women. Apply at 213 GM.

There will be an organizational meeting of the Carolina Symposium Publicity Committee with Chris Wright at 6:30 p.m. in the Woodhouse Room of GM.

The newly formed UNC Weightlifting Club will hold its first organizational meeting at 7:30 in 304 Woollen Gym. All interested persons are urged to attend.

UNC Statistics Colloquium, featuring Dr. V. P. Bhapkar speaking on "A Class of Nonparametic Tests" will be held at 4 p.m. in room 265, Phillips Hall.

Tennis Club will meet on the clay courts at 3:30.

WAA Representatives meeting in the Women's Gym at 5:15.

Splash Club meets in the pool at 7 p.m.

TUESDAY

Order of the R.P.C. from 7-8 p.m. in Roland Parker III, GM.

UNC Debate Team meets in 105 Caldwell at 6:30. Both varsity and novice debaters are expected. "An Evening in Afghanistan," will be presented at 8 p.m. in Carroll Hall. Discussion and movies on people, foreign policy, geography, legal system and the culture will be presented by Afghan students.

20th Century-Fox
WINNER OF 3 ACADEMY AWARDS!
ANTHONY QUINN
ALAN BATES
IRENE PAPAS
with MICHAEL CACOYANNIS PRODUCTION
"ZORBA THE GREEK"
LILA KEDROVA
RIALTO, Durham
Fri.-Sun. at 1:42, 4:07, 6:33, 9:00
Mon.-Thurs. at 1:05, 3:30, 6:00, 830

FOR RENT

House on 207 Short Street. For graduate students or couple. Unfurnished $115 per month. Call

Fisher & Fisher Realty
929-1188

Catholic Chaplain Speaks To Lutherans Tomorrow

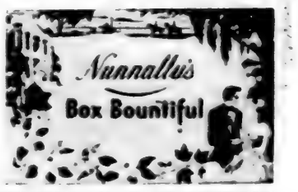
Effects of the Ecumenical movement will become visible in an unusual way tomorrow evening when Father Joseph Woods, chaplain to Roman Catholic students at UNC, speaks at a Reformation Day Service sponsored by a Lutheran group.

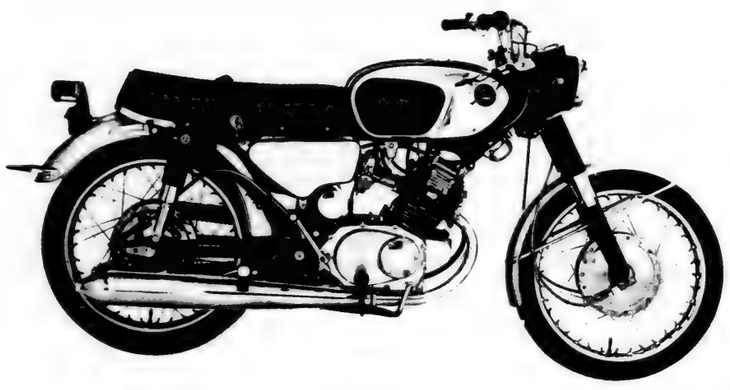
The Service, sponsored annually by the Lutheran Student Association, will be held at 7:30 p.m. in Gerrard Hall. Father Woods will be Mr. Robert Shoffner, LSA vice president. Music will be provided by an ensemble led by Mr. Billy Mims.

Feminine Tranquilizer

Oh what a quieting, soothing effect a delicious box of chocolates has on the feminine world. Try a box and see.

Nunnally's
THE CANDY OF THE SOUTH





Three Minutes from Craige to Lenoir
. . . . IMPOSSIBLE??

Our new price for C.B. 160
is only $560.00

Travel - On Motorcycle Co.
"Headquarters for Adventure"
504 W. Franklin St.
Chapel Hill, N. C.

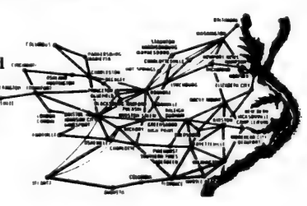
"WE ABSOLUTELY REFUSE TO BE UNDERSOLD"

¡Vamanos!
Allez ons!
Let's go!

In any language, the going's better when you fly.

For one thing, flights operate on schedules to meet your travel needs (which eliminates finding a ride, enduring long trips). For another, you enjoy complete comfort—modern F-27 prop-jets and 404 Pacemakers are radar-equipped, air-conditioned and pressurized.

So get going. Call Piedmont or your travel agent for service that's fast, convenient and economical.



PIEDMONT AIRLINES

don't!
don't!
don't!
don't!
don't!
don't!
don't!

NO

additives, please!

We have nothing against salt. On radishes. Or french fries. But not in beer.

Putting salt in your beer, some say, perks up the head . . . or livens up the taste . . . or makes the beer "drier." With Budweiser®, though, all salt can do is make it salty. Budweiser is complete . . . a ready-to-drink beer if there ever was one.

Keep an eye on your Budweiser as it goes splashing down the center of the glass. That fine head of foam is a sure sign of something special below . . . wonderful clarity, real beer aroma, a taste and smoothness we know of in no other beer. No brewmaster in the world has ever found a way to give you that distinctive Budweiser taste without Beechwood Ageing.

So leave the salt in the shaker. We put heart, soul and our exclusive Beechwood Ageing into Budweiser. All you need to enjoy it is a glass . . . and a taste for the real thing.

it's worth it...it's Bud.®

ANHEUSER-BUSCH, INC. • ST. LOUIS • NEWARK • LOS ANGELES • TAMPA • and soon HOUSTON, TEXAS

CHASE DINING HALL

HOMECOMING 1965

— Welcome Alumni —

TODAY'S HOURS

Breakfast	7:00-11:00
Lunch	11:00- 1:00
Dinner	5:00- 7:15

A New Modern, Free Flow or Scramble Type Cafeteria

Planned For Your Convenience

FEATURING ALL-TIME FAVORITES

Student Special
HOT SANDWICH COUNTER
WRAPPED SANDWICHES
ASSORTED FRUIT

ONLY ONE BLOCK FROM KENAN STADIUM

JUST ARRIVED
Now comes something new in men's gift-giving . . .

BRITISH STERLING
EXCLUSIVE TOILETRIES FOR MEN

A smashing after shave and a cologne that lasts from dusk to dawn. Make him a legend in his own time, give British Sterling (You may both go down in history).

From $3.50 to $10.00

Wentworth & Sloan

MADE IN U.S.A.

Bomar, Wesolowski Star

Frosh Beat State

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

Carolina's freshman football team put on a tremendous offensive show in Kenan Stadium um yesterday as they downed the North Carolina State yearlings, 21-13, for their fourth straight win this year.

Halfback Dick Wesolowski and quarterback Gayle Bomar supplied most of the punch for the Tar Babies. Wesolowski scored a touchdown and gored the State defense for 130 yards in 26 carries. Bomar ran for one score, passed for another and set up the third, gaining 126 yards rushing.

Altogether the Carolina frosh piled up 328 yards rushing and 94 passing for a total of 422 yards offense. Bomar hit five out of 12 passes and had two intercepted.

State racked up 228 yards on offense, 158 rushing and 70 passing on only four completions in 18 attempts. Leon Mason gained 108 yards.

The teams spent most of the first period trading the football.

Finally the Tar Babies picked up a first down on their 31. Bomar completed a pass to the Carolina 43 to end Peter Davis who fumbled, with State recovering.

Leon Mason did most of the work in bringing State down to the UNC 14 yard line. Then State fullback Bobby Hall bumbled at the nine and defensive halfback Ronnie Lowry pounced on the ball for Carolina.

The two teams exchanged punts again before the Tar Babies' drive stalled at the State 46. Carolina kicked, then held the Wolflets on three downs, forcing a punt. Then the fireworks began.

* * *

Starting on the Carolina 46, Bomar completed a pass to wingback Billy Dodson on the State 40. Two plays later Bomar rolled to his left and hit Dodson all alone behind the State secondary for a 37 yard touchdown pass. Dodson converted to put the Tar Babies in front, 7-0.

State wasted no time in getting even. After the kickoff was returned to the 29 yard line, quarterback Jack Llebe ripped off 18 yards to the State 46. On the next play Mason, a thorn in Carolina's side all day, took apitchout, waded through the line, found himself open and raced 54 yards for atouchdown. The conversion tied the score, 7-7.

This was the first touchdown of the season scored on the Tar Baby defense.

Wesolowski took the kickoff back to the 35 and Carolina began a 65 yard touchdown march in 12 plays, all on the ground. Wesolowski, Bomar and fullback Mark Mazza took turns carrying the ball until Bomar rammed it over from two yards out. Dodson's conversion gave the Tar Babies a 14-7 halftime lead.

Neither team did much through the third period. late in the quarter. Landy Blank picked off a State pass and Carolina had the ball on its own 35. Then Llebe intercepted a Bomar pass and State had the ball back on the Carolina 48.

A long pass from Llebe to Wayne Lewis put the ball on the 14. Llebe moved to the 12, Mason to the 5 and fullback Hall burst up the middle for the score. The extra point was missed and Carolina kept the lead at 14-13.

Wesolowski returned the kickoff to the Carolina 31. Bomar rolled out, kept running and scampered 51 yards to the State 18 yard line. On the first play of the fourth quarter Wesolowski dragged half the State team over with him from seven yards out. Danny Leigh converted to put the Tar Babies ahead by 21-13.

Fauntleroy

Don't take a chance.
Don't lose that buck.
Let Fauntleroy
Improve your luck.

BANG BANG BANG PLUNK PLUNK BANG BANG —

Whew — I'm glad that's over .Well, fans, you're safe now. That guy can't get in again.

I've spent all morning nailing up my windows and doors. I'll guarantee you he can't mess up my football picks now.

You know, it's a shame that a mild-mannered, self-respecting genius like myself can't control these football picks in peace and quiet.

If it's not one thing it's another. I've had to switch my telephone number several times because coaches and fans insisted on calling at all hours of the night. These people demand that I select their team to win on Saturdays — what a blow.

But last week was the worst of the lot. I mean this guy had the common injustice to sneak into my "Control Room," tie me up, and foul up my controls.

Well, I showed him — he can't get out now.

But before I give you my picks, I think I'll go get a coke. I'll be back in a minute, though, just make yourself at home.

I'll just open the door, here. UGH —UGH —UGH —COME ON — OPEN UP. OH, this is ridiculous. I'M "NAILED" IN —

UPSET SPECIAL — UNC Band to march over Ed Freakley.

CLEMSON vs WAKE FOREST — Well, it looks like Ol' Frank Howard has his ACC title in the bag. Wake played a good game against you Tar Heels, but I think they'll take their lumps this Saturday. Pick Clemson.

DUKE vs GEORGIA TECH — Without Glacken the Dukes won't be crackin' — Pick Tech to roll.

MARYLAND vs SOUTH CAROLINA — That rock-hard line of the Gamecocks might just be a little too hard for the Terp ground attack. Pick South Carolina in a close one.

Tar Babies Please Barclay

By SANDY TREADWELL
DTH Sports Writer

The home team's locker room in Kenan Stadium was a warm relief after watching 60 minutes of hard-nosed football yesterday afternoon.

The team whopped and yelled, and one of them did an enthusiastic twist despite the burden of his shoulder and hip pads.

Soon all the white jerseys surrounded quarterback Gayle Bomar and halfback Dick Wesolowski.

"The boys in the line opened up the holes for me," Dick said. "There's not much to say. I had trouble hitting those holes."

There's a lot more to say than Wesolowski takes credit for. Dick is one of the finest running backs ever to play ball as a Carolina freshman. He compiled 130 yards against the Wolflets yesterday. Soon he will fill Kenan Stadium on Saturday afternoon in the fall.

Bomar, the frosh field general, wrestled his helmet from his head. "The State team out here today was by far the toughest team we've faced The line did a good job."

Bomar set up a touchdown in the third quarter with a beautiful 51 yard scramble. He chalked up 126 yards rushing and was the games second leading ground gainer, a distinction far and above the call of duty for any quarterback.

Freshman coach George Barclay followed his boys into the locker room. "State was real tough," he said. "They were a different team from the last time we faced them.

"I was generally pleased with our performance. The line blocked real well and the defensive stopped their passing attack. But we fumbled too much, and we got into holes we couldn't climb out of in the first and third periods.

"Bomar did an excellent job Wesolowski also turned a good performance."

Silence prevailed in the State locker room. The Wolflets marched off to the showers with downcast faces.

Phi Mu, OW Win Co-Rec

Phi Mu 2-Old West nosed out the Kappa Delta 2-Alexander team by 1-3 point for first place overall in the 16th annual Co-Rec Sports Carnival Thursday night.

The Co-ed team of Phi-Mu sorority and Old West residence hall took the trophy with 12 1-3 points against the 12 points of Kappa Delta 2-Alexander.

Spencer 1-Lambda Chi and Pi Beta Phi tied for third with 10 points each.

Individual contests Kappa Delta 2-Alexander won first place in archery and Kappa Gamma 2-Parker won the trophy for the relay.

Spencer 1-Lambda Chi won the badminton contest while Phi Mu 2-Old West took the honors in ping-pong.

The Pi Beta Phi-Grimes team outscored all opponents to gain first place in volley ball. Nurses 1-Delta won in tether ball while Smith-Kappa Psi did the same in box hockey.

In the carnival games Kappa Delta 1-Morrison E won seven points to take first place.

Cold weather was the big thing in intramural tag as four teams forfeited their games. In those that were played the Alexander Poobahs crushed Connor 44-9 and the Navy Op Red tripped up the Med School Reds 14-9.

Ngambi Goals Lead Frosh Soccer Win

Wisdom Ngambi, Carolina's African soccer whiz, booted three goals yesterday and led the Tar Babies to their fourth straight win, a 6-0 blanking of Virginia's Cavayearlings.

Jeff Perry and Bill Paulsen scored early for Coach Clarke Herdic's club, and Ngambi added two goals before 12 minutes had elapsed in the match.

They're Unmentionables

Whatchamacallits for underskirts
Whozits for under slacks and thingamajigs for under dresses
ALL CAN BE FOUND AT
KoKo's Lingerie

HAMLET isn't hard when you let Cliff's Notes be your guide. Cliff's Notes expertly summarize and explain the plot and characters of more than 125 major plays and novels—including Shakespeare's works. Improve your understanding—and your grades. Call on Cliff's Notes for help in any literature course.

125 Titles in all—among them these favorites:
Hamlet • Macbeth • Scarlet Letter • Tale of Two Cities • Moby Dick • Return of the Native • The Odyssey • Julius Caesar • Crime and Punishment • The Iliad • Great Expectations • Huckleberry Finn • King Henry IV Part I • Wuthering Heights • King Lear • Pride and Prejudice • Lord Jim • Othello • Gulliver's Travels • Lord of the Flies

$1 at your bookseller or write:
Cliff's Notes
CLIFF'S NOTES, INC.
Bethany Station, Lincoln, Nebr. 68505

PINE ROOM & SNACK BAR

CHICKEN BOXES

Saturday Noon for Football Games

$1.25 Complete

with Southern Fried Chicken, Potato Salad, Boiled Egg, Pickle, Roll and Cake

AT THE

PINE ROOM

SNACK BAR and CAFETERIA

Open Football Saturdays 7 A.M. - 11:45 A.M.

Anniversary Sale

Home of World Famous
BEEF STICK
Reg. 1.45 pound
lb. $1.29

Famous Hickory Farms
CHEESE BALL
$1.79
BONUS
A Free Box of Hickory Farms' Crackers or Brenners Crackers.

Reg. 98c lb.
IMPORTED CANDY 79c lb.

Advance Showing
Christmas Gift Packages and Baskets
Special Attention to Commercial and Executive Accounts

Open Monday - Friday — 9:30 a.m. 'til 9:00 p.m.
Saturday — 9:00 - 6:00 Sunday — 1:00 - 6:00

Friday, October 29th through Sunday, November 7th

HICKORY FARMS

Eastgate Shopping Center

On Campus with Max Shulman

(By the author of "Rally Round the Flag, Boys!", "Dobie Gillis," etc.)

TWELVE IS A MANY-SPLENDORED THING

Today I begin my twelfth year of writing this column in your campus newspaper.

These dozen years have passed like a dozen minutes. In fact, I would not believe so much time has gone by except that I have my wife nearby as a handy reference. When I started this column, she was a mere slip of a girl—supple as a willow bough and fair as the morn. Today she is gnarled, lumpy, and given to biting the postman. Still, I count myself lucky. Most of my friends who were married at the same time have wives who chase cars all day. I myself have never had this trouble, and I attribute my good fortune to the fact that I have never struck my wife with my hand. I have always used a folded newspaper, even during the prolonged newspaper strike of 1961 in New York. During this journalless period I had the airmail edition of the Manchester Guardian flown in daily from England. I must admit, however, that it was not entirely satisfactory. The airmail edition of the Guardian is printed on paper so light and flimsy that it makes very little impression when one smacks one's wife. Mine, in fact, thought it was some kind of game and tore several pairs of my trousers.

But I digress. For twelve years, I say, I have been writing this column. That is a fact, and here is another: I shave every morning with Personna Stainless Steel Blades. I bring up Personna Stainless Steel Blades because this column is sponsored by the makers of Personna and they are inclined to brood if I omit to mention their products.

Not, let me hasten to state, that it is any chore for me to sing the praises of Personna—as you will agree once you try this sharpest, smoothest-shaving, longest-lasting blade ever devised by the makers of Personna Blades—now available both in Double Edge and Injector style. Personna, always the most rewarding of blades, today offers even an extra reward—a chance to grab yourself a fistful of $100 bills from a $100,000 bowl! The Personna Stainless Steel Sweepstakes is off and running, and you're all eligible to enter. Visit your friendly Personna dealer soon to pick up an entry blank (void where prohibited by law).

And, by the way, while you're at your friendly Personna dealers, why don't you ask for a can of Burma Shave? It comes in Regular or Menthol; it soaks rings around any other lather, and it's made by the makers of Personna.

But I digress. For twelve years, I say, this column has been discussing, forthrightly and fearlessly, such burning campus questions as "Should students be allowed to attend first-hour classes in pajamas?" and "Should deans be retired at age 25?" and "Should foreign exchange students be held for ransom?".

Today, continuing the tradition, we take up the thorniest academic problem of all: the high cost of tuition. Let me tell you how one student, Lintel Sigafoos by name, solved this problem.

Lintel, while still a boy in Straitened Circumstances, Idaho, had his heart set on college, but, alas, he couldn't afford the tuition. He applied for a Regents Scholarship but, alas, his reading speed was not very rapid—only two words an hour—and before he finished even the first page of his exam, the Regents had closed their briefcases crossly and gone home. Lintel then applied for an athletic scholarship, but he had, alas, only a single athletic skill—balancing an ice cream cone on his chin—and this, alas, aroused only fleeting enthusiasm among the coaches.

And then he found the answer: he would get a student loan! Of course, he would have to pay it back after graduation, but clever Lintel solved that, too: he kept changing his major, never accumulating enough credits to graduate until he was 65 years old. Then he repaid the loan out of his Social Security.

Where there's a will, there's a way.

* * *

©1965, Max Shulman

The makers of Personna® Stainless Steel Blades and Burma Shave® are happy to bring you another season of Max Shulman's uncensored, uninhibited, and unpredictable column. We think you'll be happy, too, when you try our products.

livelier lather for really smooth shaves! 1.00 lasting freshness glides on fast, never sticky! 1.00 brisk, bracing the original spice-fresh lotion! 1.25

SHULTON

Old Spice...with that crisp, clean masculine aroma!

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Vol. 74, No. 41 | CHAPEL HILL NORTH CAROLINA SUNDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1965 | Founded February 23, 1893.

Mississippi Justice

Mississippi Justice prevails, at least in panty raids, that is. Read about what happens when you get caught with a pair of yellow panties in Mississippi in Ernie McCrary's editorial, page two.

Soccer Tomorrow

Come to Fetzer Field tomorrow at 3 p.m. to see soccer coach Marvin Allen and his team play in the AC championship. If we win, it will be coach Allen's 100th victory.

Georgia Wins With Big Fourth Period, 47-35

Bulldogs Trample Carolina Defense

By ED FREAKLEY
DTH Staff Writer

Sad, sad city.

The boys in red got together in the fourth quarter and decided to march through Carolina — like they hadn't been doing it all afternoon.

Football is hell and so it was again for the Tar Heels yesterday, 47-35 hell.

General Talbott, Cols. Riggs, just promoted, and Lampman along with the rest of Carolina's finest poured through the Georgia defense all afternoon.

Trouble was the so called "lame" Bulldogs poured back and did so two extra times.

But the Tar Heels can't blame the bad breaks. It was the Bulldogs who fumbled and all but gave away the afternoon.

Again yesterday it was a leaky secondary and poor kickoff and punt coverage that resulted in the Tar Heel's fourth loss.

Dave Riggs, who replaced Max Chapman at running back, drove time and again through and around the Georgia defense. Several times he was within an inch of breaking clear.

Danny Talbott was in his usual top shape. Tom Lampman also looked good.

The 82 points amassed by the two teams provided the near capacity crowd with thrill after thrill.

If you didn't care about the ball game there were plenty of pretty girls wearing their mums, and little white footballs you could try to catch on the crisp football afternoon.

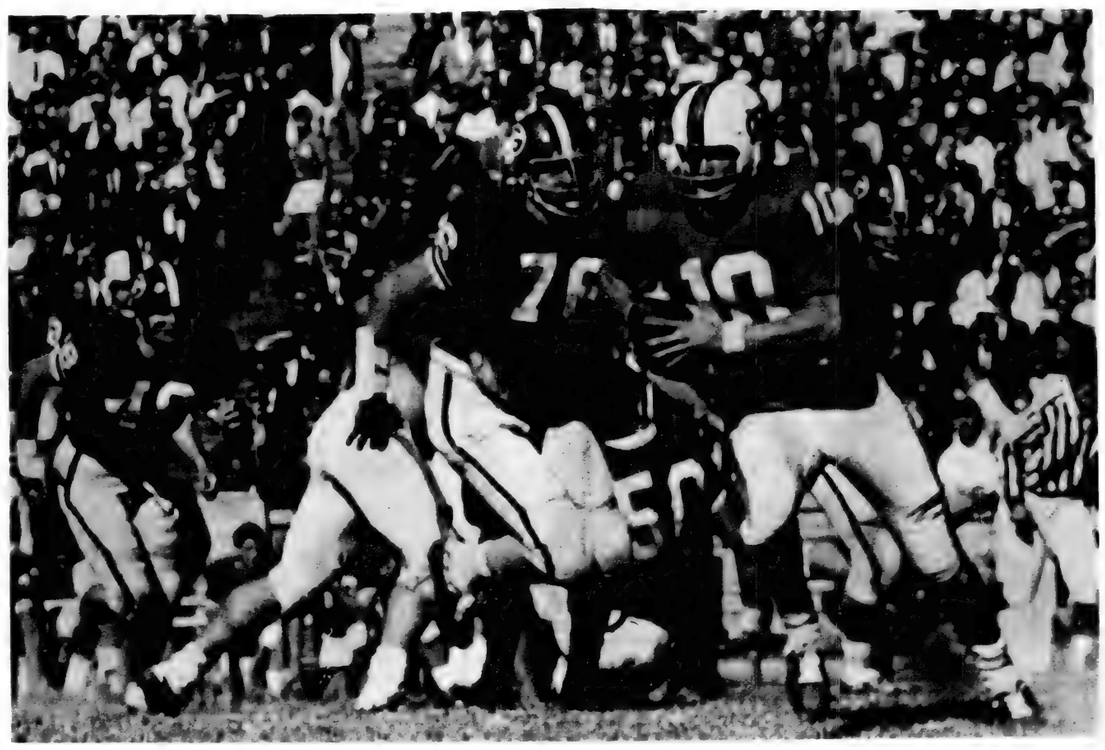
There was the band too. They were the best they have been all season — they did much better than their opponents yesterday. Truthfully, Fauntleroy was right in his pick, they did win.

Lovely Mary King, sponsored by Maverick House, was crowned Homecoming queen at halftime. She also won the Miss Consolidated University title earlier this season.

It was a disappointing loss for the Tar Heels. They played hard football, but in the end the inspired Georgia team couldn't be beaten.

It is just too bad the Tar Heels don't play all their games the best they can, as they did yesterday.

Three opponents are left, Clemson and Frank Howard next week, Notre Dame and then the big one — Duke. You can bet the Tar Heels are going to be "up" for those, if they aren't it will be 3-7.



TAR HEEL Quarterback Danny Talbott streaks for some of the 102 yards he gained rushing against Georgia. Turning to pursue Talbott is Bulldog Tackle George Patton (76). Talbott set a new school total offense mark for a single game with 318 yards.—DTH Photo by Ernest Robl.

Talbott Shatters Justice's Record

By GENE RECTOR
DTH Asst. Sports Editor

A legend was broken. A record was set. And a game was lost yesterday in Kenan Stadium as the Georgia Bulldogs outscored the Tar Heels 47-35.

Dandy Danny Talbott, Tar Heel quarterback deluxe, cracked Charlie "Choo-Choo" Justice's single-game total offense record against the Bulldogs. The Rocky Mount junior rushed for 102 yards in 11 carries and passed for 216 yards on 12 completions.

The 318 yard total broke the Justice mark of 302 set in 1948 against these same Georgia Bulldogs.

The Kenan Stadium goal line had its busiest day in history. The 82-point total easily broke the 69-points scored in a 49-20 Tar Heel victory over Maryland in 1948.

Records are nice but they are little consolation.

Poor Defense

The Tar Heel defense, porous all season long, was nonexistant Saturday. The Georgia show was little better. Georgia struck for 436 yards total offense including 25 first downs. The Tar Heels had 448 yards and 19 first downs.

The Tar Heels set the scoring pace from the opening gun, driving 74 yards in seven plays. A 64-yard pass play from Talbott to end John Atherton was the big blow. Fullback Tom Lampman had the clincher — hitting over left tackle for three yards and a touchdown. Talbott added the point after for a 7-0 lead.

The Tar Heels wrote the same story the next time they had the ball. A bad snap from center resulted in an eight-yard Georgia punt and the Tar Heels were in business on the Bulldog 38.

Running back Dave Riggs gained 11 yards in two carries. Then Lampman struck for his second touchdown — hitting off tackle again for 27 yards and the score. Talbott booted the point after and the Tar Heels were ahead 14-0.

But the Georgia giant was only sleeping. Georgia quarterback Preston Ridlehuber returned a Bill Edwards punt 38 yards to the Tar Heel 24. Five plays later massive fullback Ron Jenkins hit for the score with 23 seconds left in the first quarter. Bobby Etter added the point after — 14-7 UNC.

Set Tempo

That three - touchdown first quarter was the scoring tempo and both teams worked hard to keep it up.

With 9:45 left in the half, Georgia second-unit quarterback Lynn Hughes hit Jenkins for 30 yards and a touchdown. The point after was good, and both teams had 14 points.

The last nine minutes of the half were action packed. Talbott capped a 71-yard drive with a scoring toss to end Charlie Carr. The point after was good.

Georgia came right back, driving 42 yards in nine plays with Jenkins driving for the final three yards. Etter's placement was perfect and the score stood 21-21 at the half.

Georgia kept up that scoring pace in the second half — the Tar Heels could not.

Four For Eight

The Bulldogs had the ball eight times. Three fumbles and a Tar Heel interception took care of the first four. Four consecutive touchdowns were the story in the final four.

Quarterback Lynn Hughes had three of those touchdowns — scoring on runs of one, four, and one yards. Alternate quarterback Ridlehuber added the other on a 31-yard run.

The Tar Heels on the other hand could salvage but two second-half touchdowns, both coming in the third quarter on seven - yard runs by Dave Riggs and Talbott.

The Bulldogs had more thorns to offer than the Tar Heels had sides.

Ridlehuber rushed for 84 yards in 16 carries and returned six punts for 179 yards. Tailback Randy Wheeler added 115 yards in 15 rushes. Jenkins hit for 81 yards in 19 carries.

Running back Dave Riggs joined Talbott in the Tar Heel offensive — gaining 74 yards in 19 carries. End John Atherton caught two passes for 83 yards.

	UNC	GA.
First Downs	11	17
Rushing Yardage	232	285
Passes Attempted	24	14
Passes Completed	12	11
Passes Intercepted	2	1
Net Yards Passing	216	151
Total Offense Gained	448	436
Punting Average	35.8	20.5
Total Yards Pen.	60	50
Fumbles Lost	0	3
Final Score	35	47

'New Wine' Deals With Morality

By PETER COWAN
Special to the DTH

Editor's Note: The Fall issue of "New Wine" goes on sale tomorrow. The cost is $.50 per copy. It can be purchased at Y-Court, Lenoir Hall, Chase Cafeteria, Bull's Head Bookshop, Kemp's, Carolina Coffee Shop, and Graham Memorial. It can be ordered by mail from Box 509, Chapel Hill. Following is a review of the magazine.

"New Wine," a publication of the Westminister Fellowship of UNC, offers in its Fall 1965 issue several essays relating to the controversial "new morality," defined by Bishop J.A.T. Robinson in chapter 1 of his "Christian Morals Today."

The discussions and literary critiques which follow the lead article all pertain in some aspect and in varying degrees to Robinson's definition of "new morality."

"New Morality"

In its simplest terms, Robinson's thesis states that there is no place in society today for a list of inflexible "do's" and "don't's" by the degree of adherence to which we are judged to be moral or immoral.

The action, Robinson says, must not be judged on a standard of absolutism, but rather by virtue of the contextual setting.

Political, sociological and psychological factors must be considered in judging action.

This, then, is the "new morality," which Robinson argues is not antithetical, but complimentary to the "old morality," the two providing mutual support.

Rebuttal

James Doone, book review editor of "Christianity Today," attempts a rebuttal of Robinson's argument. This critic either has conveniently ignored or has failed to understand the concept he argues against, and in so doing, reacts against a distorted and generalized version of Robinson's premises.

In short, the result is a false conclusion of his own point, reinforcing Robinson's primary reason for giving a detailed defination of "new morality."

In "The Problem of Legal Censorship," Kenneth Penegar, an assistant professor of law at UNC Law School, discusses the solution toward adherence to the philosophy espoused by Robinson.

Penegar suggests an increasingly important area for research — the psychological effects of a weak or strong ethnical system upon the developing individual.

"Dirty Words"

Howard Moody, a pastor in New York's Greenwich Village, attacks the "peddlers of prudery" who, he says, entertain a misguided view of the concept of obscenity.

His view is that what is obscene is what debases humans. "Dirty words" are no more obscene than blasphemous utterances, he says. Moody criticizes traditional absolute values pertaining to communication and aligns himself strongly with Robinson.

John Clayton, an associate professor of Radio, Television and Motion Pictures at UNC, heroically aligns himself with what he presumes to be the minority opposed to "ends justify means" ethical standards.

If the success of his attempts at wit are questionable at times ("Back before the last ice age when kids wore corduroy knickers . . ."), Dr. Clayton does present an original analogy between his concept of the archetypal "corporation man" and James Bond.

UNC Law Dean

In "Civil Disobedience and the New Morality," Dickson Phillips, Dean of the UNC School of Law, points to the dangers posed by our legal system by groups which place their goals (whether worthy or not) on a foundation which they consider more firm and abiding than the one on which the existing order rests.

In an incisive essay, Dean Phillips defines civil disobedience as a pitfall prevalent to the new morality, although the latter philosophy is not entirely devoid of worth.

Scott McMurray's failure to sustain a logical coherence in his argument and his refusal to define terms central to his thesis make "to Bed or Not To Bed" a vague and rather uninteresting bit of reading.

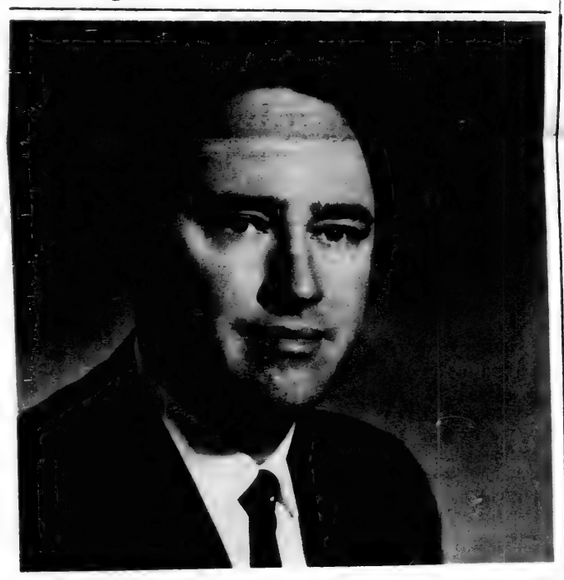
Misuses of terms (e.g. sexology) and undocumented sociological references only serve to confuse the reader to the major issue at hand.

Harold G. McCurdy, professor of psychology at UNC, Banks Godfrey, associate methodist chaplain at UNC, and Christopher Jencks, a noted sociologist, offer critiques of three recent books published in 1964.

The words reviewed are: "Sex and the College Girl," Gael Green; "Ethnics in a Christian Context," Paul Lehmann; and "No New Morality: Christian Personal Morality and Several Morality," Douglas Phymes.

Display Winners

Chi Psi Fraternity won the best homecoming display on campus yesterday. Other awards were: Ehringhaus, best men's dorm; Nurses, best women's dorm; Sigma Nu, best fraternity; and Tri-Delt, best sorority.



LIEUTENANT - GOVERNOR Robert W. Scott will deliver an address at today's dedication ceremonies for Scott Residence College. He will speak on the subject of North Carolina and higher education. The dedication ceremonies begin at 3 p.m. Scott College was named for Scott's father, former governor and U. S. Senator, Kerr Scott.

SDS Presents Speakers On University And State

The UNC chapter of Students for a Democratic Society will present a forum on "the free university in a political state" tomorrow night in Carroll Hall.

Three half-hour speeches will be given by law school professor Michael Katz, Norman Gustaveson of the UNC-YMCA, and Wesley Foundation chaplain Banks Godfrey.

Katz will speak on the topic "should the student dissent, Gustaveson will speak on "the student of the future" and Godfrey will speak on "the gift of the speaker ban law."

SDS President Jim McCorkle assured the University administration yesterday that the forum would not be used to violate the "speaker ban" law.

"We are not going to concentrate on the speaker ban law itself," McCorkle said, "but rather we are interested in an analysis of the issues behind the law, such as why it is important to have free speech on a campus.

"SDS is of the opinion that the campus should always be a center of debate, a forum for disagreement and dissent," he said.

Questions from the floor are entertained after the speakers make their addresses.

Students and faculty are invited to attend, and those wishing to continue their discussion with the speakers may retire to the Wesley Foundation after the program.

Playmakers In Rehearsal

A talented and experienced cast is now in rehearsal for the Playmakers' second production of the year — the world premier of "The Summer Tree" — Nov. 9 through 14 in Playmakers Theater.

"The Summer Tree" is set in Raleigh in 1919, and concerns the loss of innocence of a 16-year-old girl.

The young girl, Mare, is played by Kristine Hoover of Virginia Beach, Va. Bill Smith of Raleigh and Anne Peacock of Charlotte play Mare's parents, and Ben Jones, Chapel Hill, the grandfather.

The cast also includes Pat Tone of New York City, Wendy Farer, Manchester, N. H., Paul Baker, Clintwood, Va., Janes Lenz, Scarsdale, N. Y., Jene Williams, Weissport, Pa., and Sandy Linker, Kannapolis.

Reserved seat tickets will be available for season ticket holders Monday, Nov. 1, and for the public Thursday, Nov. 4. They may be purchased at the Playmakers' Busines Office, 214 Abernethy Hall, and at Ledbetter - Pickard's in downtown Chapel Hill.

MARY KING (left) receives the crown of Homecoming Queen from last year's queen, Zacki Murphy, at halftime of yesterday's game.—DTH Photo by Ernest Robl.

PRESTON RIDLEHUBER, (12), Georgia quarterback, drives for tough yardage in the Bulldog-UNC game. Ridlehuber gained 84 yards rushing.—DTH Photo by Warren Nye.

FULLBACK TOM LAMPMAN stirs up the dust in the end zone as he scores one of Carolina's early touchdowns. Despite Lampman's heroics, Georgia came from behind to beat the Heels by two touchdowns.—DTH Photo by Ernest Robl.

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of the Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. Letters and columns, covering a wide range of views, reflect the personal opinions of their authors.
ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

Let Down By A Dragon

Grand Dragon James Robert Jones has really let us down. He didn't even wait for Attorney General Wade Bruton to tell him if he could speak at N. C. State. He just pulled out before we even had a chance to find out if he's covered by the speaker ban law.

Ku Klux Klan leader Jones has taken the Fifth Amendment so liberally lately that UNC President William C. Friday asked the Attorney General to rule whether or not Jones had non-talked himself into being covered by the law.

Anybody who has refused "to answer any question, with respect to communist or subversive connections, or activities, before any duly constituted legislative committee, any judicial tribunal, or any executive or administrative board of the United States or any state" is subject to the ban. Some folks consider the Klan "subversive," so Friday asked for the ruling just to be on the safe side.

Jones was supposed to speak to a YMCA group at N. C. State Nov. 22. He backed out because he said his subpoena from the House Un-American Activities Committee requires him to stay in Washington until Nov. 14.

We aren't too sure just what that has to do with a speech scheduled for Nov. 22, but we know Jones wants to give the HUAC every consideration.

He's being awfully inconsiderate of those fellows at State, though, and of Wade Bruton — who had even obtained a copy of the speaker ban law to study before making his decision. We would hate to see any of Bruton's efforts wasted so we hope he still gives his interpretation of the ban in this case.

You never can tell. Jones might be asked to speak again. He might accept and he might not go back on his word, so the ruling wouldn't really be wasted.

Unless the General Assembly gets on the stick in a special session and amends the trifling thing.

Mississippi Justice?

It isn't often that we hear of an attempt at a really first-class panty raid, but 17 fellows at the University of Mississippi pulled one off a couple weeks ago that was good enough to get them all kicked out of school.

Details are scanty, but it seems that the boys scooted over to Blue Mountain College, an all-girls' school, one dark night. They were, said one of the captured culprits, "in search of fun."

They tore down a screen and about half the group entered the girls' dormitory. "We didn't go with the intention of tearing up anything," said a spokesman, "but we did have a good time though."

Even though some of them got inside the dormitory, they didn't get anything else, so they returned to Oxford where the police neatly scoffed them up and carted them off to jail for the night.

If the cops were sore, at least the Blue Mountain girls weren't. They sent a box to the boys while they were still cooling their heels in the hoosegow. The box contained cookies — and a pair of yellow panties.

The raiders were tried by the Ole Miss Student Judicial Council which recommended some kind of punishment, the exact nature of which was not disclosed. The school administration didn't care to see things handled that way, though, so the Dean of the Division of Student Personnel, with the approval of Chancellor J. D. Williams, overturned the decision of the student judiciary and gave the students the boot — four of them for two semesters and the other 13 for one semester.

The students have appealed, but their fate is still unlearned.

Mississippi justice? Don't belittle it. This case clearly demonstrates that civil disorder will not be tolerated and criminals will not go unpunished there.

But we still can't figure out how those guys got into that dormitory and back out again without stumbling across at least one pair of bloomers.

They deserve to be suspended.

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; John Jennrich, associate editor; Barry Jacobs, managing editor; Fred Thomas, news editor, Pat Stith, sports editor; Gene Rector, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; John Greenbacker, political writer; Ed Freakley, Andy Myers, Lynne Harvel, Lynne Sizemore, David Rothman, Ray Linville, staff writers; Jack Harrington, bus. mgr.; Tom Clark, asst. bus. mgr.; Woody Sobol, ad. mgr.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all ap news dispatches.

UNC Presidents

Graham Faced Enrollment Problems During Depression

(This is the concluding article in a series on Presidents of the University.)

By OTELIA CONNOR

Under President Chase's administration, 1919-1930, the University completed the transfer, begun under President Venable, from a good college to a great University. On the material side, the South Campus was planned and developed as far as the Library building; Spencer dormitory for women, and the eight men's dormitories south of Cameron Avenue and east of the old Raleigh Road were built. Over a ten-year period the Legislature appropriated upwards of $6,000,000, a whopping sum for the State of North Carolina at that time.

Despite all the expenditures of the twenties, President Frank Porter Graham, on taking office in June, 1930, was confronted with securing provisions for the ever-increasing enrollment at the University.

The Great Depression period of the '30's seemed a worse time to think of expanding the University and of asking the Legislature for more money than the 1917 period. What magician's lamp did Frank Graham go about rubbing to get the needed money?

Roughly speaking, here is what happened: Under the Act passed by the Legislature of North Carolina, Public Laws of 1935, state institutions were enabled to participate in the program of the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works. Through the sale of revenue bonds the State supplied 55 per cent of the total cost of new buildings, supplemented by 45 per cent PWA grants.

The buildings erected with the aid of PWA grants were Wollen Gymnasium; three handsome dormitories for women — Alderman, McIver, and Kenan,, facing an open court on the old Raleigh Road; two men's dormitories — Whitehead and Lewis; Lenoir Dining Hall; additions to the Carolina Inn on the Pittsboro Road south of the Inn; the Public Health and Medical Building, the Clinical Annex and Infirmary completed in 1939. The zoology building, Wilson Hall, completed in 1940. Of the money that the State spent in this six-year period, 35.4 per cent was self-liquidating bonds making the cost to the State a very small sum.

Dr. Archibald Henderson closes his chapter on the New Deal and the University with this summary: "The material expansion at the least proportionate cost to the State in any similar period of the University's history took place during the years 1935-41. Thirteen great new buildings had risen as if at the rubbing of Aladdin's lamp, together with handsome additions and extensive remodeling. The number of buildings, on and off the campus, had increased from 53 to 66; and their valuation had increased by $3,500,000 during that period. Yet of this total expenditure, the State of North Carolina contributed the comparatively small percentage of about 19.6 per cent—a total of only $697,000 . . . Thanks a million, almost three million, to the New Deal, PWA, FDR and FPG."

In the spring of 1942 the Navy Department established four Pre-Flight Schools, the University of North Carolina being selected as the location for one of these schools because it could supply facilities for housing and feeding and a program for 1,875 Navy Pre-Flight cadets. This called for the renovation of ten dormitories in the upper and lower quadrangles, additions to Lenoir Dining Hall, and a new athletic field.

Because the University was able to supply adequate facilities and personnel for assisting in the task of implementing the Navy Pre-Flight program, it made a great constructive contribution to the conduct of World War II.

The principal structures erected upon the campus for aiding in the effective conduct of the war were: Barracks 1 and 2, 1942; Navy Hall — now the Monogram Club; Naval ROTC Armory; Canteen ("Scuttlebutt"); Infirmary, since taken over by the University as a college infirmary; NROTC and V-12 units, both permanent and temporary.

Swimming as a survival activity was strongly emphasized in the Pre-Flight program.

Commander Oliver Owen Kessing, first commanding officer of the Pre-Flight School here, recognized the necessity for an outdoor swimming pool. Four months after the arrival of the first cadets in May, 1942, construction of the pool was begun. It was finished in August, 1943, and named Kessing Pool in honor of Commander Kessing.

Dr. Graham served as President of the University from 1930 until 1949 when he was appointed to fill an unexpired term in the United States Senate by the late Governor W. Kerr Scott. He was defeated for re-election in 1950 by Willis Smith. He is now a mediator with the United Nations and for the past several years has been concerned with the India-Pakistan dispute.

Definitely An Inkling In Chappell's Novel

By MARY RICHARD VESTER
DTH Staff Writer

To read The Inkling by Fred Chappell is to be inside the mind of a retarded girl who gradually loses all touch with reality. To read "The Inkling" is often to feel you are out of touch with reality.

It is a short book, easily read in one sitting, which is good because that is all your time it is worth. A psychiatrist might enjoy exploring it further, but the story is too far removed from normal experience to please most readers. Faulkner - type characters are carried to the extreme.

Most of the crazy antics of five chief characters take place in a six-room house about half a mile outside a North Carolina town. The husband burned to death in the war about two years ago. His wife invited her brother Hake to move in, hoping he would somehow fill the void. He does take up space, but that is the extent of his usefulness, aside from helping some with bills. "I ain't no daddy, I ain't no family man," he tells her. "You better stick to your guns and find some guy that will take care of you, some guy that wants a ready-made family." It is hard to imagine the "glum, uninterested, rather stupid" sloven and his slender, pretty sister are of the same family. This lazy bum swats a greasy bedroom slipper at his nephew Jan and Jan's retarded sister Timmy, one year older, whenever they come within range.

The mother is wearing herself down to a frazzle after work at the town's single industry, a paper plant. Uncle Hake refuses to contribute, but Jenny has to have a housekeeper. After running through three or four who cannot endure the crazy house with its foreboding sense of fatality, one finally comes who fits. She fits in so well with disgusting Uncle Hake (their minds run the same no-good track) that she elopes to South Carolina one weekend with the 52-year-old slob. The newlyweds move in with Jenny at her request. She now seems too weary to protest the lousy marriage.

Finally the long-suffering woman silently withers away and dies. Jan, a weird boy with piercing eyes that make everyone uneasy, stays home from his mother's funeral. Most of his time is spent in the barn caging rats or meditating. He likes keeping to himself and being his sister's "protector." But Lora, who isn't discriminating, has had an eye on him all along. She hurries home without going to the graveside in order to entice puberty-stricken Jan by feigning a broken zipper. For the next two weeks she leads him around as if by a ring through his young nose. The situation builds to their predictable discovery, an intensely violent climax.

Fred Chappell's basic parts are simple enough, but they combine to form a structure so complex that at most points an "inkling" of his intended meaning is all that shine through.

This second book resembles his first in 1963, It is Time, Lord,in only one way: It blends imaginativeness and realism for a peculiar flavor that will appeal to only a few palates because Chappell's imagination obliterates the story's credibility. He goes so far with it that we are unwilling to suspend our disbelief, which is a deciding factor of a book's excellence.

Outside the dialogue, Chappell sprinkles rare words that are dead giveaways of his desire to impress. The dialogue is natural and convincing, but that alone is not enough. Neither is it enough that the book is unified; beginning and ending are densely but cleverly tied together. Nor enough that it progresses at sufficient speed to hold the reader's attention. More is expected of a book.

It does seem one North Carolinian would be able to communicate with another. The author, son of a furniture dealer and a former school teacher, majored in English at Duke University after graduation from Canton High School. Somehow he managed to have various articles, stories and some poetry published while he was at Duke, in "The Paris Review," "Transatlantic Review," "Sewanee Review" and "Renaissance Papers." He left college for a period during which he was associated with his father in the furniture business, drove trucks and farmed. Perhaps he should return to such endeavors. He graduated from Duke in 1961 after entering in 1954. Presently he is writer-in-residence at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

In all fairness, Chappell did one thing excellently: choosing his title. The retarded girl has an inkling of what will happen throughout the book, and so does the reader. But more appropriately, an inkling is a vague idea, and that must be what Chappell had while he wrote.

Letters To The Editor

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel

I have been sending copies of The Daily Tar Heel home since the beginning of school, so my parents have been kept abreast of the Dickson case. My father wrote a letter a few days ago, and I thought that an outsider's opinion, one that is not influenced by students, campus politics, etc., might be of interest:

"I find your student government disconcerting, if that is the right word. Paul Dickson certainly deserves sympathy, and he is undoubtedly going through a private "hell." However, his office commands a dignity that is above reproach. Whether right or wrong, he has no alternative. It reminds me of the school teacher who was caught drinking a glass of beer. All hell broke loose, and the town drunk was the one who made the loudest noise. Ridiculous, yes! But the school teacher has a code to live by, and has no choice. At least Dickson and the school teacher know it — in one way, they are lucky. It has been spelled out, perhaps not in words, but by custom, and is inherent in their acceptance of position. There are others who have equal obligations — the leaders, the gifted, crowned or uncrowned, who, through their talents and abilities, have an obligation to do the best they can do for all. This is altruistic thinking for sure. I do feel that lucky is the person who can recognize his obligation and shape his life to fulfil it."

Karen Gibbon
221 Spencer

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

I would like to reply to Dixon Jordan's letter of Oct. 27.

Your appeal to emotion is a moving one, Mr. Jordan, and I join you in a sincere desire for peace. No one here wants to kill. No one here wants to die. No one here wants the agony of war.

As we know, however, appeals to emotion all too often lack rationality. I am afraid this is the case with your letter. I would call to your attention that Alden Lind and his colleagues have made a rather — to use one of his words — "stupid" semantic error.

The fact is that it is impossible to be for or against "war." The word "war" is a description of an occurrence. One cannot to be for or against a description. What one can and should be against, however, are those who create war: the aggressors. (In this case — as always — the collectivists.) Perhaps you will tell me now that it is the South Vietnamese who are attacking North Viet Nam. That it was South Korea who attacked North Korea, that it was Hungary who attacked Russia, and that it was the United States who built the Berlin Wall. Perhaps, judging from your letter, you might even be prepared to say that it was the rest of the world who initiated aggression against collectivist Nazi Germany, or, if not, that the proper thing for the rest of the world to do was to surrender to Nazi storm troopers.

Lind and followers may feel that the world should finally be run by the Collectivist Mob, by a band of helpless parasites and mindless looters and killers. He may be prepared to beg their mercy. I am not.

Peace will always be my policy. But the policy of peace, unfortunately, can only be successful when it is bilateral. The word "peace" like the word "war" is only a description of a state of affairs. It takes two to keep the peace.

And now, as always throughout man's history we find that it is not the individual (who asks only to be left alone), but the Collectivist Mob (determined to enslave those who refuse to join it) which defends the ideas of coercion.

One cannot help but wonder sometimes. Just what is the position of the UNC political science department. Is Lind really speaking for the entire department? Or are its other members too busy with more pressing affairs to care that they have proponents (however sincere their misguided "humanitarianism") of collectivist aggression in their midst.

Paul A. Smith
654 Ehringhaus

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Fred Thomas' article, "Wake County Citizens Counsel Own Members," is not worthy of the high journalism standards employed by The Daily Tar Heel. It seems that Thomas should not be a student at Chapel Hill, but a Klan member at Salisbury.

Stewart Rosen
503 Morrison

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

The art of "cartooning" has been advanced to a higher cultural level by Barnard's cartoon in the Oct. 23 issue of The Daily Tar Heel. This cartoon is a vivid example of the highest standard of art and is one of the best intellectually stimulating and colorful portrayals of real human life. I suggest that the DTH send a copy of this masterpiece to every major museum in the world. Let the world know of Barnard's great artistic talent!

Roy H. Miller
803 Morrison

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel welcomes letters to the editor on any subject, particularly on matters of local or University interest. Letters must be typed, double spaced and must include the name and address of the author or authors. Names will not be omitted in publication. Letters should be kept as brief as possible. The DTH reserves the right to edit for length or libel.

Here Are Parties, Meetings And Other Activities On UNC Campus

All Campus Calendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date (by 10 a.m. Saturday for Sunday's DTH). Lost and Found notices will be run on Tuesday and Saturdays only.

TODAY

The Olin T. Binkley Baptist Church, church school series, with Jim Cansler as leader this Sunday. Coffee will be served at 9:30 a.m. and the class will begin at 10. Morning worship will follow at 11 a.m. with Dr. Robert Seymore speaking on "If Luther Were Alive Today." The Sunday night seminars and supper will begin at 6 p.m. and will be led by Rev. Bill Currin. Sunday's student group will be led by Dean Smith as he discusses "The Morality of the Social Whirl." Rides to Binkley can be obtained at Y Court, Chase Cafeteria, and the Nurses' Dorm at 9:30 and 10:40 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Westminster Fellowship presents a Halloween party at 5:30 p.m.

LSA meeting in the church at 6 p.m. Supper will be served followed by a reformation service.

Graduate Christian Fellowship from 8-9 p.m. in Roland Parker III in GM. Bible study on John for all interested graduate students.

An open forum on applying Christian principles will be presented by Dr. Foy Valentine, author, lecturer and executive secretary of the Southern Baptist Christian Life Commission, at the University Baptist Church at 7 p.m.

Student Peace Union will gather at 3 p.m. in front of Silent Sam.

Dr. Samual H. Miller will be the speaker at the Sunday University Worship at 4 p.m. at the Wesley Foundation.

The Sunday Evening Symposium at the Wesley Foundation at 7:30 p.m. will feature "Reformation Day: The Journey of Freedom in The Brothers Karamazov, 'The Grand Inquisitor,'" by the Rev. Samuel Miller.

MONDAY

The Academic Affairs Committee will meet in the Grail Room at 4 p.m.

The Graham Memorial Publicity Committee will meet at 5p.m. in Roland Parker III.

The Annual Weinstein Lecture will be held Mon. and Tues. at 5 p.m. in the Howell Hall Auditorium. Dr. Harry Orlinsky will lecture on the subject, "The New Jewish, Protestant and Catholic Translations of the Bible," on Mon. Evening, and on "The Bible as History in the Light of Archaeology" on Tues. evening. The public is invited.

Interviews for the men's and women's attorney general staff will be held Mon. and Tues. from 2-4 p.m. Interviews are open for freshmen and sophomore men and freshmen, sophomore, and junior transfer women. Apply at 213 GM.

There will be an organizational meeting of the Carolina Symposium Publicity Committee with Chris Wright at 6:30 p.m. in the Woodhouse Room of GM.

The newly formed UNC Weightlifting Club will hold its first organizational meeting at 7:30 in 304 Woollen Gym. All interested persons are urged to attend.

UNC Statistics Colloquium, featuring Dr. V. P. Bhapkar speaking on "A Class of Nonparametic Tests" will be held at 4 p.m. in room 265, Phillips Hall.

Tennis Club will meet on the clay courts at 3:30.

WAA Representatives meeting in the Women's Gym at 5:15.

Splash Club meets in the pool at 7 p.m.

WRC Coordinating Board meets in the Woodhouse Room of GM at 5:30 p.m.

TUESDAY

Order of the R.P.C. from 7-8 p.m. in Roland Parker III, GM.

Dr. Harry Orlinsky will lecture on the subject, "The Bible in the Light of Archeology" at 8 p.m. in the Howell Hall Auditorium. An informal reception honoring Dr. Orlinsky will be held at the Hillel Building from 4-5 p.m. All are invited to attend these events.

Ping - Pong tournament sponsored by GM will be held Nov. 8-12 at Woollen Gym. There will be both singles and doubles competition. The winners are to represent UNC at the Regional V tournament and amateur status is required. Sign up for the GM Information Desk.

FOR RENT

House on 207 Short Street. For graduate students or couple. Unfurnished $115 per month. Call

Fisher & Fisher Realty 929-1188

CAROLINA COFFEE SHOP
OPEN 8-11 AM PM

The University Baptist Church
in Downtown Chapel Hill
cordially invites
UNC STUDENT and FACULTY
to hear

DR. FOY VALENTINE

Author, Lecturer, Minister, and Executive-Secretary of the Christian Life Commission of the Southern Baptist Convention

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 31

11:00 A.M. — BELIEVE AND BEHAVE

5:30 P.M. — THE CROSS IN THE MARKET PLACE

7:00 P.M. — FORUM ON APPLYING CHRISTIAN PRINCIPLES

FLY — CHARTER FLIGHTS for three persons. 8 cents per mile per person. Two aircraft available. Departure from Chapel Hill. Advance notice please. Contact Bob O'Quin. 968-9033.

FOR SALE: 1962 COMET 4-door, radio, heater. Excellent condition. Best offer accepted. Bob Payton, 212 Teague, 968-9190.

FOR SALE: 1961 PEUGEOT. Good gas mileage, good condition and good rubber. $400 or best offer for immediate sale. Car located: Holloway Phillips 66, Eastgate.

FOR RENT: COMPLETELY furnished 2 bedroom, air conditioned 10 x 45 mobile home. Available Oct. 30. $80 per month. Call 942-3268 or 942-1749.

Insurance
Estates
Annuities

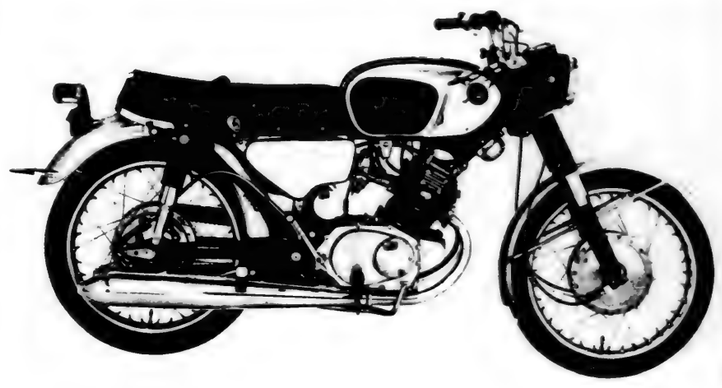
"Time Is All It Costs To Compare"

William M. Buell

The Northwestern Mutual Insurance Company

121 W. Rosemary St.
P. O. Box 1314
Bus. 942-6966 Res. 968-6622

Shows at 1:15 - 3:15 - 5:15 - 7:15 - 9:15
SUN. - MON. - TUE.
CAROLINA

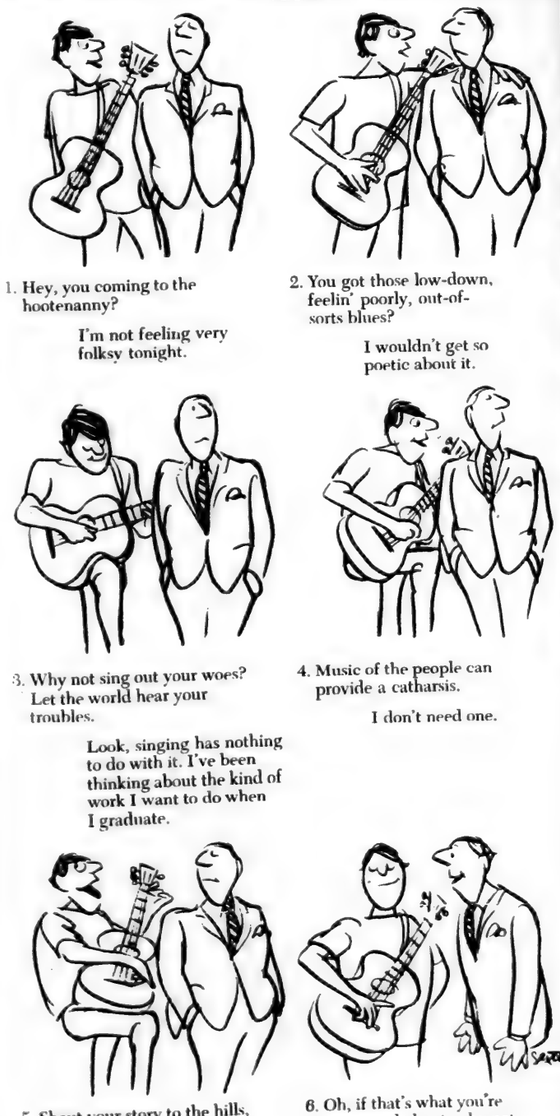


Three Minutes from Craige to Lenoir . . . . IMPOSSIBLE??

Our new price for C.B. 160 is only $560.00

Travel - On Motorcycle Co.
"Headquarters for Adventure"
504 W. Franklin St.
Chapel Hill, N. C.

"WE ABSOLUTELY REFUSE TO BE UNDERSOLD"



1. Hey, you coming to the hootenanny?
I'm not feeling very folksy tonight.

2. You got those low-down, feelin' poorly, out-of-sorts blues?
I wouldn't get so poetic about it.

3. Why not sing out your woes? Let the world hear your troubles.
Look, singing has nothing to do with it. I've been thinking about the kind of work I want to do when I graduate.

4. Music of the people can provide a catharsis.
I don't need one.

5. Shout your story to the hills, the sands, the far-away seas. And listen for an answer from the winds.
I doubt if the winds will tell me where I can get a challenging job with good pay and plenty of opportunity to move up.

6. Oh, if that's what you're concerned about, why not get in touch with Equitable. They're looking for college men who have demonstrated a potential for above-average achievement. I'm sure you'd be happy in one of the special development programs because the work is fascinating, the salary excellent, and the opportunities unlimited.
Say, how about a medley of John Henry, Rock Island Line and Michael, Row the Boat Ashore.

For career opportunities at Equitable, see your Placement Officer, or write to Patrick Scollard, Manpower Development Division.

The EQUITABLE Life Assurance Society of the United States
Home Office: 1285 Ave. of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10019 • Equitable 1965
An Equal Opportunity Employer

The Young Man in the Know knows Du Pont nylon.

Counts on jackets of 100% Du Pont nylon insulated with Dacron* 88 polyester fiberfill for warmth without weight, foolproof wash & wear care. Take your pick of colors at fine stores everywhere.
*Du Pont's registered trademark.

DU PONT
Better Things for Better Living . . . through Chemistry

GM PRESENTS

NANCY WILSON

With SI ZENTNER and His Band

Coming Sat. Nov. 6 at 8 p.m.

TICKETS GO ON SALE
THIS WED. — FOR U.N.C. STUDENTS
U.N.C. STUDENTS — $1.00
GENERAL PUBLIC TICKET SALES BEGIN
NOV. 3 — $1.50 for GENERAL PUBLIC

WINTERIZE YOUR CAR NOW!

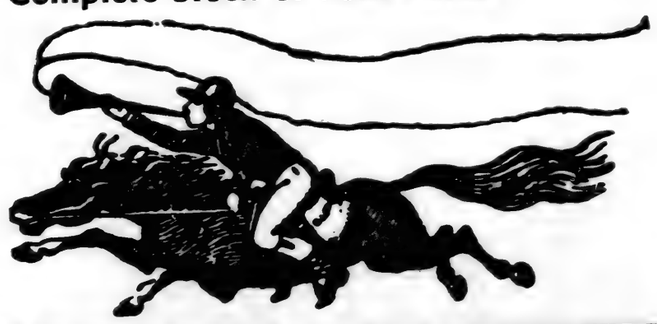
Your Authorized Ford Dealer

Serving Chapel Hill for more than 40 years

- DON'T BE A HIGHWAY HAZARD
Let us service your car regularly
- Factory trained Mechanics
- 24 hour Wrecker Service
- Body Shop
- Radiator Service
- Carburetor and Ignition Service

ADD ANTI-FREEZE NOW!

Complete Stock of Ford Parts



Crowell Little Ford

"Where Satisfaction Is Standard Equipment"
Durham Rd. at Eastgate (Dealer Lic. 1087) Phone 942-3143

Pat Stith

DTH Sports Editor

Before Marvin Allen's booters kicked off their season here against the Air Force Academy he called them the best soccer team ever assembled at North Carolina.

And in seven matches since then, all victories, his boys have justified his faith in them.

The Academy fell 4-0, then East Carolina's first year club went down 13-1 and American University and N. C. State were beaten 3-0. After that it was Pfeiffer, 5-2, Belmont Abbey, 3-1, and Virginia, 2-0.

That's 33 goals for UNC, four for its seven opponents.

In 17 seasons as head soccer coach Allen's teams have posted 99 wins against 44 losses. Tomorrow afternoon on Fetzer Field they go for No. 100.

Only this is not just another game — it's Maryland. And in the history of Atlantic Coast Conference competition, the Terps have never been defeated.

The Tar Heels have come close before. Two years ago here on Fetzer they played them to a 1-1 draw with just ten minutes to go only to lose 2-1.

Maryland is more than just a conference power in soccer. Two of the past three years they've finished in the top five in the nation and they are a regular in the national playoffs.

But all that could change tomorrow. North Carolina players will tell you that this is their year, they'll tell you that Maryland can be had — but they are not above asking for support.

"We need our people pulling for us," Co-captain and goalie Tom Roberts said. "We promise to show them the best soccer game that has ever been played in this state — and we'd like to promise them victory."

Maryland, not Duke, has always been THE game for Allen's booters. And with the conference title, a spot in the national playoffs, and their coach's 100th game riding on the outcome of tomorrow's battle, that is especially true this year.

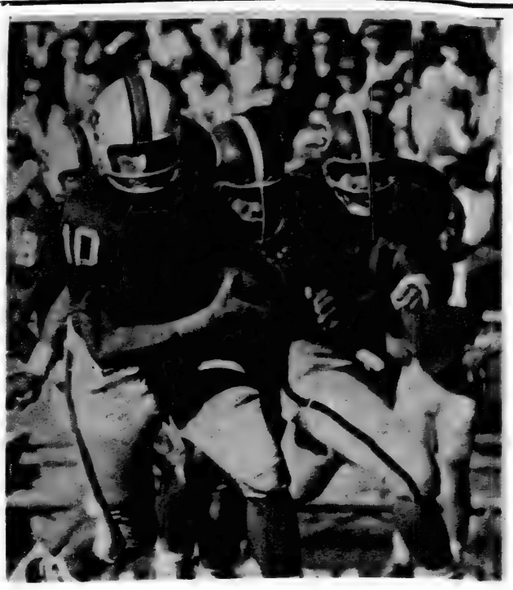
Allen will start a predominently junior club against Maryland — a junior club that is co-captained by seniors and quarterbacked by a sophomore.

The offensive leader and perhaps the most talented soccer player on the club is center forward Jimmy Johnson. In the wings are juniors Jackie Writer and co-captain Drew Murphy. Insides are juniors Eddie Belmont of Lima, Peru, and John Loud, an All Southern pick last year.

Halfbacks are juniors Danny Galves and Gordon Cadwgan. These two have been the key to Carolina's defense by keeping headed back to UNC line and away from opposing offensive players.

Fullbacks are juniors Terry Henry and Jim Hammer and senior Billy Reeves. Roberts is the starting goalie.

Tomorrow is the big one. Three o'clock. Fetzer field. If you like to see a deserving Carolina team take a crack at the big boy — be there and give 'em a helping hand.



Danny Talbott is shown eluding Bulldog tacklers in yesterday's 47-35 loss to Georgia. Talbott his for 318 yards total offense.

No Excuses From Hickey

By SANDY TREADWELL
DTH Sports Writer

Coach Jim Hickey marched up the stairs from the locker room in the Kenan fieldhouse like a man headed for the gallows.

The Coach fell down upon a chair facing a small group of reporters.

"I ain't got a hell of a lot to say," Hickey began. "We had the lead but we couldn't hang on to it, and that's about the size of things."

Hickey shook his head and placed his hands behind his neck. His voice lowered to a whisper.

"Georgia's offensive changes from week to week. But every game they run like hell and block like hell on the kickoff returns."

The head coach walked to a blackboard and chalked in small v's representing Carolina's defenders. Then he wrote in the Georgia power machine with small circles. The chalk stopped at one position of the circles. And he ground it into the board.

"Their fullback Jenkins gave us one hell of a mouthful. A fullback usually has a blocking assignment on pass patterns. But Jenkins went downfield as a receiver. Our linebacker had to quickly drop back and try to cover him.

"This play surprised us. In order to iron out the problem we shifted to a man to man defense.

"Then Georgia pulled another surprise out of their hats. They began stuffing passes to an eligible tackle. Oh boy, did that hurt.

"The Bulldogs were real strong on the ground. Preston Ridlehuber, their quarterback, is one of the best runners we've faced. He directed an overpowering attack up our middle.

"We couldn't stop them when they rammed at us in the final minutes and that was the ball game.

"We couldn't stop Georgia when we had to. If you can't do that then, buddy, you're in trouble.

A hint of a smile passed over the coach's face. "It was a great afternoon for offense. Ours as well as theirs."

"Riggs played a great game in his first starting job. Lampman was another standout. And so, of course, was Talbott.

"We expected Georgia's onsides kick in the fourth quarter. Our boy couldn't see the ball until it was right up on him because of the sun. The ball got lost between his legs and a red shirt found it first. That play probably changed the outcome.

"On our last march up the field we took a page out of situation. Danny passed to Tom Ingle. Tommy couldn't hold their playbook on a third down onto the ball. That also hurt real bad.

"Georgia was the best club we've faced all year, and that includes Michigan. If they hadn't lost Bob Taylor, their honey of a running back, there is no telling where they'd be today."

'Talbott's The Best' Says Georgia Coach

By RON SHINN
DTH Sports Writer

Georgia Coach Vince Dooley stood in a state of joyful disbelief Saturday.

His Bulldogs, ranked fourth nationally early in the season, had finally got back into the win column after two straight losses by downing North Carolina, 47-35.

Dooley just muttered the score when he first met reporters.

"I just can't explain it," said the Georgia boss. "I really hadn't expected that kind of score. I've never coached a game like this one. We were completely out of it twice, but each time we came back. I'd say that this was by far the most courageous game we've ever played."

He echoed all of the other coaches that have had to face Carolina quarterback Danny Talbott this season.

"Talbott is the finest athlete that our team has ever played against."

Talbott broke the single game total offense record set in 1948 against the same team by Charlie Justice. He had a total of 318 yards to eclipse the old record of 302.

Dooley reached back deep into his bag of play tricks to pull out a deciding maneuver.

"Our tackle - eligible pass play was a big factor today. We had used it once against Auburn but other than that not at all. We threw to sophomore Don Hayes twice, and both times were crucial gains."

He explained his team's falling behind twice as their inability to adapt to the Carolina defense.

"Carolina spread out more than we had expected. By the time that we had figured them out we were two touchdowns behind. When we compensated for it, they threw something else at us."

"Carolina's game plan was terrific. We had planned a combination of throwing and ball control, but we didn't plan all of this scoring."

The questioning finally got around to his decision to go for the two point conversion late in the fourth period instead of the safer one point attempt that would have tied the score.

"We've been in this type of situation before. When it comes down to a tie or a possible win, we usually go for it. The odds are against us, but we still like to win."

The Georgia coach singled out a recovered on-sides kick as the biggest play of the game. "Billy Cloer did a good job for us on that play. He had only played in two games prior to this one."

With that Dooley turned to the dressing room and his players, still shaking his head and muttering about the unbelievable high score.

Another Record Set

The 82 points scored in the UNC-Georgia game broke the Kenan Stadium record of 73 set in 1936 by UNC-Virginia.

Reynolds Coliseum
Wed., Nov. 10, 8 P.M.

The Rolling Stones
Admissions $2.50, $3.00 and $4.00
• The Vibrations • The Rocking Ramrods
• Patti LaBelle and the Blue Bells • Plus other acts
Tickets now available at Coliseum Box Office, Thiem's Record Shop, Village Pharm, Camera Shop and RECORD BAR Durham & Chapel Hill.

RAND
JAZZ BUFFS
Handsewn hand stained slipons with foam inside. Leather lined. And all that jazz. Smooth or grain cordo. Olive or golden harvest grain. Rand Shoes $12.95 to $20.95.

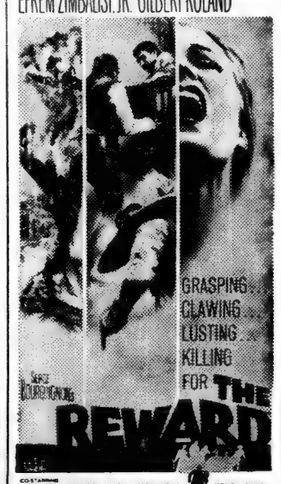
Budget not up to Rand, young man? Ask for Randcraft Shoes $8.95 to $10.95.
Wouldn't you like to be in our shoes? Most of America is. International Shoe Co., St. Louis, Mo.
Available at these fine stores:

CURRIE & ANDREWS CLO. CO. 124 W. Wade St. Wadesboro, N. C.
QUERY-GOODMAN SHOES Lexington, N. C.
WEST & CALL SHOE STORE Winston-Salem, N. C.
MEBANE SHOE CO. Rocky Mount, N. C.
HERLEY'S SHOE STORE Fayetteville, N. C.
FAMILY SHOE STORE Leaksville, N. C.
PHILLIPS SHOE STORE Charlottetown Mall Charlotte, N. C.
PHILLIPS SHOE STORE 2943 Fredom Drive Charlotte, N. C.
A. V. WRAY & 6 SONS Shelby, N. C.
SMITHEY'S DEPT. STORE Newton, N. C.
STOWE MERC. CO. Belmont, N. C.

JUST ARRIVED
Now comes something new in men's gift-giving . . .
BRITISH STERLING
EXCLUSIVE TOILETRIES FOR MEN
A smashing after shave and a cologne that lasts from dusk to dawn. Make him a legend in his own time, give British Sterling (You may both go down in history).
From $3.50 to $10.00

Wentworth & Sloan
MADE IN U.S.A.

Varsity
SUN. & MON.
20th CENTURY FOX PRESENTS AN AARON ROSENBERG PRODUCTION
MAX von SYDOW YVETTE MIMIEUX
EFREM ZIMBALIST, JR. GILBERT ROLAND



EMILIO FERNANDEZ · NINO CASTELNUOVO · HENRY SILVA
Produced by AARON ROSENBERG CINEMASCOPE
Directed by SERGE BOURGUIGNON COLOR BY DELUXE
Screenplay by SERGE BOURGUIGNON and OSCAR MILLARD

For SALE or RENT
at Varley's
Formal Wear
RENTALS FOR WEDDINGS AND ALL FORMAL OCCASIONS
Varley's Men's Shop
Since 1938 Ph. 942-3673

Villa Tempesta
IS OPEN
Dinner 5:30 - 9:30
From $1.95 - $2.50 complete
CLOSED SUNDAYS

Thomas P. Lloyd, Jr.
942-6863
942-2208
The BLUE CHIP Company since 1846 that's low in net cost.
Superior management, investments, and risk selection have made possible our history of a dividend to every policyholder for 119 years.
Connecticutt Mutual Life

WHAT A WEEKEND!
SEND ONE OF OUR CARDS TO PUT THE CHERRY ON TOP
STUDIO CARDS
Ledbetter Pickard

KING WILLIAM RESTAURANT
1½ Miles from Campus on 15-501 South
SPECIALIZING IN:
STEAKS CHICKEN SEAFOOD
"Choice Selection of Imported and Domestic Beverages"
All New and Modern, featuring
• Seating capacity of 300
• Spacious parking facilities
• Four private dining rooms
• Tasteful background music
• Catering facilities
Open from 8:00 a.m. 'til Midnight
SEVEN DAYS A WEEK

When you can't afford to be dull, sharpen your wits with NoDoz™

NoDoz Keep Alert Tablets fight off the hazy, lazy feelings of mental sluggishness. NoDoz helps restore your natural mental vitality... helps quicken physical reactions. You become more naturally alert to people and conditions around you. Yet NoDoz is as safe as coffee. Anytime ...when you can't afford to be dull, sharpen your wits with NoDoz.
SAFE AS COFFEE

INSTANT MILDNESS
yours with
YELLO-BOLE

Aristocrat, Billiard Shape, $5.95 and $6.95

No matter what you smoke you'll like Yello-Bole. The new formula, honey lining insures Instant Mildness; protects the imported briar bowl — so completely, it's guaranteed against burn out for life. Why not change your smoking habits the easy way — the Yello-Bole way. $2.50 to $6.95.

Official Pipes New York World's Fair
Free Booklet tells how to smoke a pipe; shows shapes, write: YELLO-BOLE PIPES, INC., N.Y. 22, N.Y., Dept. 100.
By the makers of KAYWOODIE

SIXTH HIGHEST
North Carolina's death rate from cardiovascular disease is the sixth highest in the nation.

WINNER OF 3 ACADEMY AWARDS!
ANTHONY QUINN
ALAN BATES
IRENE PAPAS
in the MICHAEL CACOYANNIS PRODUCTION
"ZORBA THE GREEK"
LILA KEDROVA
RIALTO, Durham
Fri.-Sun. at 1:42, 4:07, 6:33, 9:00
Mon.-Thurs. at 1.05, 3:30, 6:00, 830

This Week in the Old Book Feature Case

A Lady's Library

Here's a nice big clump of books about things ladies like. It includes COOK BOOKS, GARDENING BOOKS, and books about ANTIQUES and OLD HOUSES.

Later on it will be broken up on our shelves, but it looked like it had been so much fun to collect that we thought it deserved a first showing just as it is.

The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill
Open Till 10 P.M.

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Tough Loss

North Carolina lost a heartbreaking soccer game to Maryland yesterday, 1-0. Read about the Heels' first loss on page four.

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Vol. 74, No. 42 | CHAPEL HILL NORTH CAROLINA TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 2, 1965 | Founded February 23, 1893.

Calendar

Wondering what's coming at UNC? Read the Campus Calendar on page three to find out.

Voters Deciding On Roads, Court

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina voters will decide today the fate of a $300 million road bond issue and a proposal to establish an intermediate court of appeals.

Despite efforts by Gov. Dan Moore and other state officials to arouse voter interest, a light turnout of 360,000-400,000 is expected.

The center of pre-election attention has been the road bond issue. It would permit North Carolina to borrow $300 million to finance road construction and to repay the loan from the one-cent-a-gallon gasoline tax enacted in 1949.

The other issue would give the legislature authority to establish the court of appeals. It would operate at a level between the superior and state supreme courts.

Both issues have had many vocal and active supporters. A scattering of opposition has been noted on the bond issue, none of the appeals court.

Joe Hunt, chairman of the State Highway Commission has stumped the state in support of the bond issue. He has asked for a heavy turnout and overwhelming approval.

Gov. Moore has called for passage of the $300 million proposal in almost every speech he has made in recent months. He said the money is needed to insure a continuing increase in tourism and industry for North Carolina.

The governor, who will cast his vote in his home precinct at Canton, said North Carolinians have everything to gain and nothing to lose by voting and asked for its passage.

Kelly Alexander, president of the North Carolina chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said Negro voters would support the road bonds.

The civil rights leader estimated some 290,000 Negroes were registered to vote Tuesday.

The only organized opposition has come from the Ku Klux Klan. Robert Jones, North Carolina grand dragon, asked all klansmen to vote "no" on the bonds.

A few yellow and pink leaflets, attacking the bond issue, were distributed last week in three areas of Raleigh.

The court reform amendment has received the staunch support of supreme and superior court justices, plus the State Bar Association.

The state bar has appointed committees in every section of the state to serve as information centers for the amendment.

The proposed intermediate court would reduce some of the heavy work load now borne by the supreme court.

Polls are open from 6:30 a.m. until 6:30 p.m.

THE TAR HEELS have control of the ball in this action from yesterday's soccer game with Maryland. However, the undefeated Terrapins remained that way by handing UNC its first loss of the season, 1-0. See the story on page four. — DTH Photo By Ernest Robl.

State Delegates Chosen For Student Legislature

Delegates, alternates and observers to next February's meeting of State Student Legislature in Raleigh were announced by the SSL Committee of Student Government yesterday.

Delegate members will sit in session with other representatives of North Carolina colleges and universities in Raleigh's old capitol building to pass mock legilsation of interest to students.

Delegates include: Britt Gordon; Charlie Mercer; Baxter Linney; Caron McKnight; Eric Van Loon; Mary King; Barry Schochet; Bob Powell; Franklin Freeman; Jim Little; Jeff Adams; Jim Brame; Kathy Cauble; David Kiel.

Alternates are: John Greenbacker; Steve Jolly; Eva Lee Blaine; Jim Smith; Bob Wicker; Sherry O'Donnel; Sandy Hobgood.

Observers are: Dwight Allen; Lanny Shuff; Bob Wilson; Janice Newton; Dudley Price; Patty Delany; Jerry Price; Pete Hellebush; George Teague; Ed Bristol; E. J. Simmons; John Henley; Phil Kirstein and Dwight Thomas.

Also: Frank Longest; Bill Purdy; Sandra Burden; Dick Young; Steve Hockfield; Paul Dickson; Sterling Phillips; John Lovell; Don Wilson; Jerry Rutledge; Johnny Winborne; George Ingram; Johnny Turner; Paul Whitton; Ken Starling; William Anderson; Natasha Kern; Steve Thomas.

ANITA WRAY WILKINSON, one of UNC's majorettes, was crowned queen of Morrison Residence College in a ceremony Saturday night; Mrs. William Long, wife of the dean of men, crowned the sophomore fine arts major from Durham. In the background is Jim Brame, Miss Wilkinson's escort. — DTH Photo By Ernest Robl.

Morrison Chooses Nita

Nita Wilkinson was crowned "Miss Morrison College" during the intermission of "Homecoming-A-Go-Go in the Morrison main lounge Saturday night.

The sophomore and former Miss Durham was selected by the Morrison College Executive Council from a court of 10 sweethearts — one from each house in Morrison.

She represented the Cavalier House (fourth floor).

Mrs. William G. Long crowned the queen before 700 students as "The Seductives" provided a background of "September Song."

After the crowning Dean William G. Long was presented a plaque making him the honorary house father of Morrison College for 1965-66.

Opposes Speaker Ban Law

Newsman Cancels Speech At State

Tom Wicker, Washington bureau chief for The New York Times, has canceled a scheduled spring speech at North Carolina State because he is opposed to North Carolina's speaker ban law.

Wicker, an alumnus of UNC, had been tentatively booked for a May 6 speech at State.

However, yesterday he said, "I have just written Lee McDonald (assistant program director at Erdahl-Cloyd Union) that I was withdrawing from my engagement to speak on May 6."

Wicker added that this was a "purely personal" matter with him and that he was not trying to lead a crusade.

Last week Wicker turned down an invitation to appear on the Carolina Fourm. He wrote George Nicholson, III, chairman of the Forum, that he would not be able to come to UNC bcause of two previously scheduled speeches in North Carolina, at State and at Wake Forest.

However, he added that even if he had had time to speak, he would have hesitated because of the "Speaker Ban Law."

"I am fiercely opposed to such a limitation as that on free speech," he wrote, "and, while the ban could not apply specifically to me, I believe that it might well be that anyone concerned for freedom of speech should refuse to appear at the University while the ban is in effect."

Wicker was at first under the impression that the ban applied only to UNC. However, when he learned that all state-supported colleges, including North Carolina State, were affected, he canceled his speaking engagement at the Raleigh campus.

"I have rectified the inconsistency in my position," he said after writing McDonald.

Wicker emphasized that the real issue is not whether he speaks in North Carolina, but whether the ban is repealed.

Won't Make Ruling

No ruling will be made on whether Robert Jones, North Carolina Grand Dragon of the Ku Klux Klan, would have been barred from speaking on a state supported campus.

In a letter from Attorney General Wade Bruton to Consolidated University President William Friday, Bruton stated that since Jones cancelled his scheduled talk at N. C. State the "need for advice" was no longer necessary.

Friday had requested a ruling from Bruton after Jones took the fifth amendment to avoid answering questions before the House Committee on Un - American Activities last week.

Jones said he would not speak at State because HUAC had asked him to return to Washington to testify. He was to speak at State later this month.

Friday said he received Bruton's letter Saturday morning. It read:

"Since receipt of your letter, all press reports indicate it is general information and knowledge that Mr. Jones has canceled this scheduled appearance and all others made to speak on campuses of State-supported institutions, and the need for the advice requested terminated. Without further request, I shall so conclude."

Friday said he would make another request for a ruling "should a similar situation arise." He added that Bruton usually advises the University on interpretation of statutes enacted by the General Assembly.

European Study Offered

The American Language and Education Center of Michigan State University will offer European study programs for college students during winter, spring and summer terms beginning next year.

Programs aimed at promoting use of foreign language and offering opportunity for students to learn more about their European contemporaries are scheduled for Paris, France; Lausanne and Neuchatel, Switzerland; Florence, Italy; Cologne, Germany; and Barcelona and Madrid, Spain.

Winter programs start Jan. 10, and the spring programs, April 18, with the exception of the Madrid course which begins April 11. The deadline for winter term applications is December 10, and for spring term, March 18.

Details for the summer credit and informal courses will be available soon.

The programs will feature classes in conversation, composition, grammar and reading. Participants will also visit points of historic and geographic interest, which become the topics of lectures and seminar-type discussions covering cultural, political, social and economic institutions of the country in which they are residing.

A descriptive brochure and application forms can be obtained by contacting AMLEC, 58-A Kellogg Center, Michigan State University, East Lansing, Mich.

Announcers

WUNC-TV, the University's educational television station, has openings on its announcing staff for experienced announcers.

Applicants should be mature, dependable, versatile and have the ability to communicate to an educational television audience.

The part-time work will require nighttime availability three nights a week. Interested persons should contact David Miller in 216 Swain Hall.

German Club Sets Meeting

The German Language Club will hold a fund raising and organizational meeting tomorrow night at 7:30 in the faculty lounge on the fourth floor of Dey Hall.

Dr. Ramson Taylor will speak about a recent 15 month trip to Europe. Taylor's address will be followed by music, singing and a discussion of future programs which include a full length German movie, a Christmas party, and a spring picnic.

Refreshments will be served and anyone who has an interest in German culture of the German language in invited to attend.

The newly elected officers of the club, who are also officers of the national German honor fraternity Delta Phi Alpha, will preside over the meetings.

The new officers are Blane Yelton, president, Eric Van Loon, vice president, Mary Susan Kirk, secretary, and Ralph Levering, treasurer.

Delta Phi Alpha will hold its fall initiation meeting Nov. 17 at 7 p.m. Thirty-five new bids will be accepted at the meeting.

HILL APPOINTED

Watts Hill Jr. of Chapel Hill, chairman of the State Board of Higher Education, was appointed last week by Governor Dan Moore to the board of control for Southern Regional Education Board.

Attorney General Receives Appeal Of Board Ruling

Attorney General Van MacNair received a formal appeal yesterday of the Elections Board's recent ruling disqualifying the presidential recall petition.

The appeal of the board's decision was made by David Kiel, an organizer for pro-petition forces.

MacNair said yesterday he would convene the Constitutional Council of Student Government, the body which will rule on the board's decision, at the "earliest possible time."

The petition seeks the recall of Student Body President Paul Dickson, who was convicted by the Men's Council last August for a violation of the Campus Code.

Petitions for recall of students occupying campus-wide positions must be signed by 15 per cent of the student body.

The presidential recall petition was disqualified by the board Oct. 29 after over two weeks of investigation when 55 signatures on it were ruled invalid.

Duplicated or false signatures and signatures which utilized untraceable "nicknames" were disqualified by the board.

Kiel made the appeal after "some questions were raised about the disqualification procedure."

Kiel took over the leadership of pro-petition forces after the petition's original sponsor, student legislator Sharon Rose, urged students to accept the Elections Board's decision in the matter.

She said the majority of students on campus support Dickson and the board's decision was just.

Tryouts Set For Today

The Playmakers will hold final tryouts for three plays by William Butler Yeats today at 4 p.m. in the Playmakers Theatre.

The plays — "Calvary," "Purgatory," and "Resurrection" — will be presented as part of a festival commemorating the birth of the Irish poet - playwright. They will be performed Nov. 17 in Baldwin Auditorium at Duke and Nov. 18 at the Playmakers Theatre here.

The festival is sponsored by The Cooperative Program in the Humanities of Duke and UNC.

Directors Randolph Umberger, Lynda Benson, and James Boothby, all graduate students in the Department of Dramatic Art, have announced that excellent parts are still open for the three plays, which together require 20 male actors. They have invited all students, faculty, and townspeople to tryout.

Special Session

Student Legislature will hold a special session tonight at 7:30 p.m. on the fourth floor of New East.

Important legislation selected for vote by the floor leaders will be considered, and all legislators are expected to attend and have their Yack picture taken afterwards.

Scott Supports Trustees

By JOHN GREENBACKER
DTH Poltiical Writer

Lt. Governor Robert .W Scott told nearly 400 students and guests at the Scott College dedication Sunday that trustees of state - supported colleges and universities should control policy - making of their schools.

Scott made the remark during a speech dedicating the residence college named for his former governor and U.S. Senator father, W. Kerr Scott.

After listing the benefits of research and development which a good university can offer the industry of the state, Scott said, "If we are to conduct research, then there must be freedom of inquiry.

"A university is not alive, alert and vital unless it searches for the truth," he said.

Scott said the "controversy" surrounding the university and state - supported institutions of higher learning was "nothing really unusual."

Calling for an upgrade of standards in North Carolina schools, Scott said, "Our educational system from the grade schools on up must be freed from political pressure.

"I for one, have confidence in the trustees, in Bill Friday, the chancellors, the presidents of our senior colleges, the faculty and the overwhelming majority of college men and women," he said.

He called for a continuance of the consolidated university concept.

Scott cited the rising number of in - state students seeking admission to schools of higher learning, and warned that more facilities must be built to meet their needs.

"Unless the necessary financing is made," he said, we will see a worsening of this situation.

"I hope future General Assemblies will recognize these problems," he said.

"We hear a lot about freedom these days," Scott said. "I think Thomas Jefferson was right when he said, 'If a nation expects to be ignorant and free, it expects to be what never was and never will be.'"

Scott praised the concept of the Residence College System and its plan to give students a new identity.

"We need to dispell the feeling that the University is cold and impersonal and student is merely a number in a computer in the basement of some building," he said.

All Residence Colleges Soon—Sharp

By DAVID ROTHMAN
DTH Staff Writer

Chancellor Paul F. Sharp said Sunday the residence college system will include all men's dorms "by this time next year," if the plan has student support.

Speaking at the dedication of Scott Residence College, Sharp said the system "symbolizes our concern for individuality . . .

"The life of the University must revolve around the individual."

Without this view, he said, UNC would not function effectively as a university.

Nearly 400 persons attended the ceremonies, including Student Body President Paul Dickson, who sat on the platform with Sharp, Lt. Gov. Robert W. Scott and other officials.

Scott College Governor Bob Hunter praised Dickson, former MRC President Sonny Pepper, Dean of Men William Long and other student and faculty leaders for their supporting the residence college idea.

Also on the platform was Mrs. W. Kerr Scott, widow of the senator for whom Scott College was named.

Thomas Bolch, president of the Young Democratic Club, presented the college with the senator's portrait.

Scott College Chaplain James Cansler gave the invocation and benediction.

"God of Our Fathers" was sung by the UNC Glee Club, accompanied by the UNC Band, which traveled with Scott's motorcade as it approached Teague residence hall.

After the ceremonies, Mrs. W. Kerr Scott dedicated the Teague social room, whose furnishings are worth about $4,000.

LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR Robert W. Scott, left, talks to Chancellor and Mrs. Paul Sharp at Sunday's dedication ceremonies for Scott Residence College, named for Scott's father. — DTH Photo By Ernest Robl.

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of the Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. Letters and columns, covering a wide range of views, reflect the personal opinions of their authors.
ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

A Gag Foe Says So

Tom Wicker has decided to drop consideration of a speaking engagement at N. C. State because of his opposition to the gag law.

His reaction is characteristic of those who, while not legally affected by the ban, are morally insulted by it.

Conversation with Wicker, head of the New York Times Washington bureau, syndicated columnist and UNC graduate, reveals that he had tentatively accepted the May 6 speaking date at State because it was his impression that the ban applied only to the Chapel Hill campus. Informed of the law's statewide coverage, he said he would have to reconsider his decision to come to Raleigh.

George Nicholson, chairman of the Carolina Forum, had also invited Wicker to speak here. His schedule prevented his appearance here, but at the same time Wicker's letter to Nicholson explained why he might have some ban-created misgivings.

"If these reasons (schedule conflicts) did not apply, however, I would have been given pause by the existence of the so-called speaker ban at the University of North Carolina," he said.

"I am fiercely opposed to such a limitation as that on free speech, and while the ban could not apply specifically to me, I believe that it might well be that anyone concerned for freedom of speech should refuse to appear at the University while the ban is in effect.

"This would be from no lack of love for the University; quite the opposite: it would be because I would wish to do all in my power to remove this blot from its record.

"I have every confidence, however, that the blot will be removed, and that if this kind invitation ever comes to me again I will be able to accept without qualm," Wicker said.

The General Assembly may soon have the chance to fulfill Wicker's confidence. If a special session is held, the legislators would do well to remember this example and realize that men of integrity and principle find the law totally repugnant — and the University loses in countless little ways so long as the law remains.

Put Friday On Wheels?

In an editorial last week, the Raleigh News and Observer said, in effect, that UNC President William C. Friday is neglecting the other branches of the University and ought to pull out of Chapel Hill.

"As head of a four branch university system, the president should not have his office, his most frequent contacts, his life and inescapably some of his home interests on the campus of any one branch," it said.

"Some students and alumni of other branches have sometimes resented what they felt was a Chapel Hill sense of superiority as 'the University' within the university system.

"Under any conditions some such feelings, perhaps juvenile and unjustified, but real all the same, will remain. Much would be done to eliminate them if the president of the Consolidated University did not have his office and his residence under the shadow of one branch," it concluded.

What that editorial conveniently overlooks is that Friday does have an office on the Raleigh campus and he is there every Monday that he is in the state. There are facilities available for him and his staff at Greensboro and there will be space at Charlotte, according to a Consolidated University official. Friday meets frequently with the chancellors of each branch, and not all the meetings are in Chapel Hill. If any of the campuses feel slighted, they haven't said anything about it.

The N and O doesn't say just what it thinks Friday ought to do to get out of the "shadow" of Chapel Hill. Maybe it thinks the Consolidated University offices should be moved into a house trailer. Then Friday could stay on the road all the time, traveling from campus to campus and maybe even spreading the "gospel of the University" along the highways and byways.

And in the meantime, feeling as he does, we can't understand why the editor of the Raleigh paper doesn't set up an office in every city in his circulation area and spend each day working from a different town.

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; John Jennrich, associate editor; Barry Jacobs, managing editor; Fred Thomas, news editor, Pat Stith, sports editor; Gene Rector, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; John Greenbacker, political writer; Ed Freakley, Andy Myers, Lynne Harvel, Lynne Sizemore, David Rothman, Ray Linville, staff writers; Jack Harrington, bus. mgr.; Tom Clark, asst. bus. mgr.; Woody Sobol, ad. mgr.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all ap news dispatches.

"Finished With The Catsup Yet?"

Liberal Comment

'Deplorable' Recall Is Symbol Of Public Face Versus Private Morals

By BANKS O. GODFREY, JR.

Recent events in our national and local history have raised once again the old problem of how a public mind deals with private events which are thrust upon public consciousness by publicity. And once more it has become transparent that the duplicity in the public mind of American allows us to condemn openly that which we tolerate and enjoy privately. The bridge between the hiatus of public and private worlds is a disclosure, usually in the newspaper, to everyone of the taint in the lives of one or two people. This is a very cynical business.

What is so disasterous about this duplicity is that no one is helped by it. Instead, everyone is delivered a suffering which usually exceeds the alleged crime. It is duplicity, more than crises in identity and sexuality, which makes American public life corrupt. As Hannah Arnt writes: "In the public world, common to all, persons count, and so does work, that is, the work of our hands that each of us contributes to our common world; but life qua life does not matter there. The world cannot be regardful of it, and it has to be hidden and protected from the world." Let it be considered, therefore, that in American public life, if not in all public life (as Kierkegaard thought), the possibility of forgiveness and the restoration of a deteriorated, or destroyed persons, is simply impossible. Such restoration is closed out because the deplorable way in which we expse the private lives of public men and delight in doing so, closes out any occasion of help, either for the exposers or the exposed. And it should be obvious that our delight in such exposure is never so euphoric as when what is to be exposed involves sexuality. Americans, who are smart-alecks about sex, and Southerners, who are self-righteous about it, are so easily convinced by so little evidence that private sexual activity, once exposed, deterministically infects the large and small duties and responsibilities of men's public acts. With such a literalistic combination of delight and cynicism at work, it is then a short step before the exposed people are transformed into scapegoats for all sorts of causes and fronts. Such a destructive force, deployed publicly, about particular, unique human beings, is blasphemous.

That is why the demands of the student leaders for a recall of Paul Dickson are deplorable, and why the pronouncement of the chancellor and the Dean of Student Affairs is a miscalculation. The students wrote self-righteously, and the officials attempted to deal generally with the particularities of the Dickson case. Everyone was very pious, especially the women. And when an unbiblical and sentimental piety is unleashed on a moral issue, the piety becomes propaganda. This public exhibition runs the risk of being more outrageous than Dickson's punished breaking of a university rule.

Ironically, one woman, Lady Bird Johnson, of all people, expressed honest, appropriate and life-loving reaction in her statement about Walter Jenkins, whom, she said, we must all look upon with compassion. It is this compassion which we have unlearned to practice in the public and private worlds of our time .

By its absence, we have had to endure the libelous statements of Armistead Maupin against not only the SDS and the SPU, but against the responsible students who chair these organizations. Why have the issues been upstaged by childish, personal attacks? Newspapers, after all, are the chief bridge across the communities of the public consciousness. But in recent local issues it appears that more news has been made up than has been reported, and the same is the case in most of the state's papers. It must be noted that the language of emergency, the use of scape-goats, and the vulgar treatment of human beings, is a serious deviation from that tradition of journalism which knows its writers to be the keepers of the notebooks of the culture, which tradition is marked by the names and work of Ralph McGill, W. J. Cash, Jonathan Daniels, Harry Ashmore, Hodding Carter and Mark Ethridge. In such a tradition, opinionated detachment and personal slander are intrinsically destructive, and therefore unthinkable.

The risk of being a public figure (and this university is a training ground for that) is that a public man, in the limelight, has to fight constantly the growth of emptiness in himself, which is the frequent gift of power. It is to Paul Dickson's credit politically, that he has been the one who has been the most articulate, the most responsible, the most honest and the most objective in this whole issue. Politically, one can only hope that, in their public and private worlds liberals and conservatives alike will suffer themselves such loss of pride as will allow us all to petition, about our public and private lives, in the prayer which Reinhold Niebuhr wrote upon the founding of the Americans for Democratic Action:

> O God, give us serenity to accept what cannot be changed, courage to change what should be changed, and wisdom to distinguish the one from the other.

There is a freedom which is more liberal than what the liberal university teaches and by which even the university lies, and the gifts of that freedom, sorely needed in our public and private worlds, are humility before one's self and others, born out of self-knowledge, and compassion about one's strengths and weaknesses.

Mike Jennings

Tony Mason Is "Just A Fellow Who Likes To See People Vote"

Tony Mason is a UNC student who believes people should vote. He devotes much of his time to getting them to vote.

Tony is a member of the Chapel Hill Voter Registration Drive. He is also co-chairman of the UNC-YMCA Human Relations Committee.

Tony doesn't demonstrate or picket for voting rights. He doesn't think that's necessary. Instead he works in his office at the Y. There he checks voter registration lists against lists of those old enough to vote to find who among Chapel Hill's Negro community are not registered. He helps send out information sheets about registration procedures, candidates and issues to Negro homes.

Tony works quietly. He speaks quietly as well. He chooses his words slowly and carefully. His height adds emphasis to his words. Tony has short brown hair and dresses in old but neat clothes. He usually wears a patched sweater.

A native of Chapel Hill, Tony is a senior history major.

Tony began voter registration work before he left high school. He carried on this work with various groups in the community until the Chapel Hill Voter Registration Drive was formed in December, 1963. This year, Tony is trying to recruit other students to work for the drive, but he is not having much success.

Tony will eagerly take from his desk a sheet showing in figures the success of the drive.

"When the drive started work in December, 1963, 746 Negroes were registered in Chapel Hill Township. Before the primaries in May, 1964, we registered 454 more. By the time of the 1964 presidential election, the total Negro registration was up to 1,462.

Tony does not need figures, however, to tell the story of voter registration problems.

"We found that it was very hard to get people to register. People heard about the killings and persecution in the Deep South. They felt the only reason it hadn't happened here was that nobody had been fool enough to register.

"People remember or have heard from their parents how everyone in Orange County once had to go to Hillsborough to register. They remember or hear now Negroes who went there to register were arrested for disturbing th peace. Nothing like that happens anymore."

Tony says that many Negroes felt their votes wouldn't count anyway. "Some people thought Negroes' votes were burned. Others thought some votes were counted as two or three votes each."

To dispel false notions, the Voter Registration Drive began a voter education campaign. Members of the University's political science department helped write information sheets to be sent out in newsletter form.

Tony claims that the "excellence of the Orange County Elections Board" is the reason that "there has been no direct, obvious discrimination in Orange County" in recent years.

"The problem in rural areas is very much different from that in town. A Negro tenant farmer may be thrown out by his landlord if he registers. We can't ask him to take that risk."

While the discrimination problem is largely dead, Tony says its effects still operate and cause Negroes to be suspicious of the drive workers. But when we show we really want to help they aren't suspicious anymore.

To demonstrate their desire to help, the drive workers go from house to house in the Negro community on Saturdays. They distribute information, check on who is registered and urge those elibigle to vote. If the registration station at the high school is open and anyone in the house wants to register, the workers will take him to register and bring him back.

On one such Saturday "field trip" Tony demonstrated the way the drive workers overcome distrust.

Tony went to eight houses. Nobody was home at four of the houses. At the other four houses nobody was home who was old enough to vote but unregistered.

One house Tony visited had a blue and white sedan parked in front. A Carolina sticker was on its rear window.

Tony knocked and a man in a checked bathrobe opened the door.

Tony told the man he was from the Voter Registration Drive. He asked the man if he and his wife were registered. The man seemed reluctant to answer. But finally he said he and his wife were not registered.

Tony checked his record. "Yes you are, but your wife isn't."

The man was surprised and a little hostile. "What do you mean?"

Tony explained to him that when he registered once he was registered for life unless he moved away or the county board called for a whole new registration. Since the man had registered for the last presidential election, he was permanently registered.

The man then seemed eager to see that his wife registered. He said she wasn't home, but she would probably be back later. Tony offered to stop back by later to take her to the high school.

The man was grateful.

At each house where he found registered voters, Tony urged them to vote in the November highway and school bond referendums.

Tony was back in his office the next week, drawing up new lists and trying to get people to help in the Drive.

And so the campaign goes.

But call Tony Mason a campaigner and he'll disagree with you. Ask him if he's a civil rights worker, and he'll say no to that too.

Ask him to describe himself. He'll probably stop and think a minute. Then he may grin and say, "I'm just a fellow who likes to see people vote."

Otelia Connor's Vision Of World Finds Opposition

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Otelia Connor is very willing to condemn others who are also tired of war and the rumors of wars. Perhaps the protesters see war as a factor which debases and weakens man. Killing a human being, whether in passion or duty, neither strengthens nor ennobles man. The tree of liberty may have to be bloodied every twenty years, but that does not make willing killers out of all.

History also seems to show wherever there is man, there is conflict. Surely no "moral equivalent of war" is going to make man see eye-to-eye with his neighbour. (Indeed, just what does "moral equivalent of war" mean; aren't these just words?) No man cares to have his freedom impinged upon — some are willing to give up some of their freedom so others may obtain theirs, and some are not so willing. A man should be able to make this choice himself.

Mrs. Connor wants a wonderful, beautiful world. Just how wonderful and beautiful would it be if "universal military training" and "strict harsh discipline" were compulsory? Discipline comes from the inside of man; imposed discipline brings resentment against the "ordered society" which demands it. Does Mrs. Connor want a society where man does not have the right to express his conception of peace and freedom?

Jane Marcotte
5-A Towne House Apts.

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel welcomes letters to the editor on any subject, particularly on matters of local or University interest. Letters must be typed, double spaced and must include the name and address of the author or authors. Names will not be omitted in publication. Letters should be kept as brief as possible. The DTH reserves the right to edit for length or libel.

Some Campus Activities On Schedule At Carolina

All Campus Calendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date (by 10 a.m. Saturday for Sunday's DTH). Lost and Found notices will be run on Tuesday and Saturdays only.

TODAY

Student Committee on Honors will meet in the Grail Room of GM at 4 p.m.

SPU-SDS Viet Nam, Education, and action Committees will meet at noon upstairs in Lenoir Hall. All interested in studying history and ramifications of Viet Nam crisis please attend.

All men and women Symposium residence hall solicitors are reminded to bring all their collections by the second floor of Y-Court between 2-5 p.m. If for any reason you cannot be there, check with the Symposium office (942-5950) or with the men or women's chairman.

UNC Caro-biners meet at 7:30 in 205 Mitchell. Special election and final plans for caving trip.

WRC meeting at 6:45 in the Grail Room.

Coke party for the residents of Winston, Smith, and Spencer Dorms in the parlor of Spencer from 4 - 5:15 p.m.

Picture will be made of the Communications committee of SG at 6:30 in Memorial Hall.

CWC will meet at 5 p.m. in Roland Parker I.

Dorm meetings of freshmen officers will be at 9 p.m. in Aycock, 10 p.m. in Graham, and 11 p.m. in Cobb.

Student Wives will meet in 08-09 of Peabody at 8 p.m. Judy Hallman will present a demonstration of wigs and hairpieces. This is a regularly scheduled meeting.

Folk dancing at 7:30 in the Presbyterian Student Center.

Budget Committee at 8 p.m. in the Grail Room.

Dean of Women's office has received information from the International Student Information Service regarding jobs abroad for men and women in the summer and year-round positions. More information at 202 South Building.

Tuesday Evening Concert Series in Hill Hall. William S. Newman will present a piano concert of French Sonatas. The public is invited to attend free of charge.

Afghanistan Students' Program in Carroll Hall Auditorium at 8 p.m. Chancellor Sharp will introduce Mr. Abdul Latif who will speak on his country. Films will also be shown. Everyone is invited.

Interviews for the men's and women's attorney general staff will be held from 2-4 p.m. Interviews are open for freshmen and sophomore men and freshmen, sophomore, and junior transfer women. Apply at 213 GM.

Ping - Pong tournament sponsored by GM will be held Nov. 8-12 at Woollen Gym. There will be both singles and doubles competition. The winners are to represent UNC at the Regional V tournament and amateur status is required. Sign up for the GM Information Desk.

Order of the R.P.C. from 7-8 p.m. in Roland Parker III, GM.

Dr. Harry Orlinsky will lecture on the subject, "The Bible in the Light of Archeology" at 8 p.m. in the Howell Hall Auditorium. An informal reception honoring Dr. Orlinsky will be held at the Hillel Building from 4-5 p.m. All are invited to attend these events.

WEDNESDAY

MRC Points Committee meets at 7 p.m. in the Grail Room of GM.

The Joint Duke - UNC Colloquium will feature Professor Roy Glauber from Harvard University speaking on "Optical Coherence and Photon Statistics" in room 215, Phillips Hall, at 4 p.m. Tea and coffee will be served one half hour before the talk in the Lounge, room 277 Phillips Hall.

Film Committee meets at 3 p.m. - 4:30 p.m. in the Woodhouse Room.

Thanksgiving Day Committee meets at 4 p.m. in Roland Parker I in GM.

Das Deutsche Verin, the German Club, will have its first meeting at 7:30 in the Faculty Lounge on the 4th floor of Dey Hall. Dr. Taylor will speak on his past 15 months in Europe and there will be refreshments and music. All interested persons are welcome to attend.

All seniors who have not selected Yack proofs, please do so before Wed.

Dorm meeting of freshmen officers from Stacy at 9 p.m., Everett at 10 p.m., and Lewis at 11 p.m.

All students interested in working with mentally retarded children at Murdoch should meet with the Murdoch Committee in Y-Court at 2 p.m.

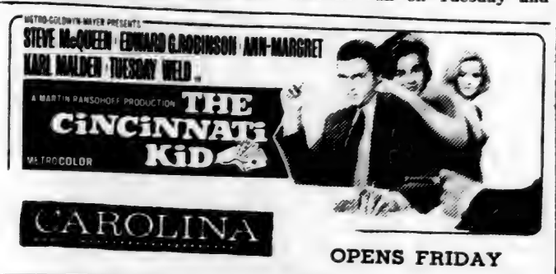
Graham Memorial Social Committee meets at 4 p.m. in Roland Parker I.

LOST AND FOUND

Lost: A tan wallet Mon. on Campus. A reward if offered. Marshall Boutwell, 752 Morrison, 966-5057.

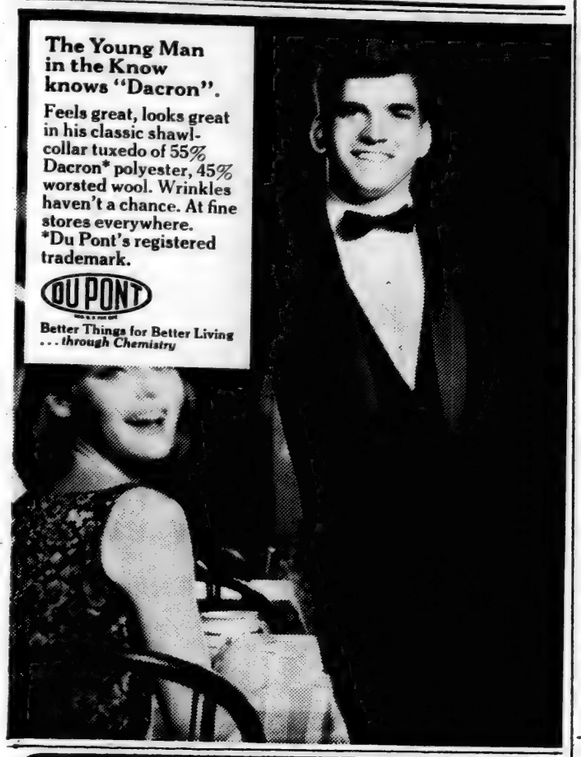
Lost: One heavy brown corduroy car coat. Name in collar. Call John Neely, 968-9062. A $15 reward is offered.

Lost: A pair of smoke grey framed glasses in a brown leather case with name in it. If found, contact Steve Lisk, 308 Alexander, 968-9105.



CAROLINA

OPENS FRIDAY



people on the go... go BURGER CHEF

College budgets and Burger Chef belong together. Burger Chef . . . where 50¢ will buy a complete meal: open-flame broiled hamburger, a rich milk shake, and a heap of crisp golden fries.

337 N. ROSEMARY ST.
OPEN 10 A.M. – 11 P.M.

BURGER CHEF HAMBURGERS

Franchised sales by Burger Chef Systems Indianapolis 7

Home of the World's Greatest 15¢ Hamburger!

CHASE DINING HALL

In addition to our regular student special (50c)

Now Features at Lunch a HOT SANDWICH COUNTER

TODAY'S SANDWICH

JUMBO CHEESEBURGER on Bun, F.F. Potatoes, Cole Slaw

.60

Open: Daily 7-2, 5-7:15 Sunday 8-2, 5-7:15

• POSITIVELY NO WAITING BREAKFAST OR LUNCH •

UNC Historical Documents Are Being Microfilmed

A project underway at UNC will help scholars across the nation gain access to a number of important manuscript collections.

The Southern Historical Collection here, directed by Dr. James W. Patton, is currently microfilming 20 to 30 of its 3,700 manuscript groups in order that they will be more readily available to interested persons.

A grant for the first year of the proposed two-year program has been provided by the National Historical Publications Commission, National Archives and Records Service.

UNC is one of 16 institutions now participating in the National Historical Publications Commission program for microfilm documentary publication.

WINS TROPHY

Pi Beta Phi sorority has received the Sigma Phi Epsilon trophy for the best homecoming display.

Varsity

NOW PLAYING

It's Children's Book Week

Especially for this occasion, we've tracked down a special lot of the old-timey titles that are still in print.

Add to these the pick of the recent crop, and it's the nicest batch of junior delight imaginable!

FREE BALLOONS!

All this week, there's a Free balloon for each child who brings in a parent!

Enjoy a second childhood this week at the Intimate!

The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill
open every day until 10 pm

JOSEPH'S HAIRSTYLISTS

Featuring its . . . Deeyā cosmetic studio

Come in and enjoy a FREE Thirty-Minute Cosmetic Demonstration

Also, choose from our wide selection of human hair wigs, wiglets, and eyelashes and dynel braids. Individual hairstyles by Joseph, Kitty, Janet, and David.

THE CAROLINA BEAUTY SHOP

CLASSIFIED ADS

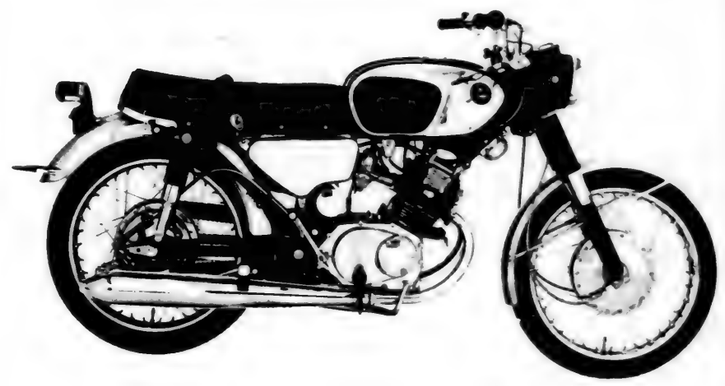
FLY — CHARTER FLIGHTS for three persons. 8 cents per mile per person. Two aircraft available. Departure from Chapel Hill. Advance notice please. Contact Bob O'Quin. 968-9033.

FOR SALE: 1962 COMET 4-door, radio, heater. Excellent condition. Best offer accepted. Bob Payton, 212 Teague, 968-9190.

FOR RENT: COMPLETELY furnished 2 bedroom, air conditioned 10 x 45 mobile home. Available Oct. 30. $80 per month. Call 942-3268 or 942-1749.

ROOMS FOR RENT FOR boys. Large bedrooms. Quiet location. Call 968-3761.

STUDENT COMMUTING daily from Raleigh wants to join car pool or find someone to share expenses. Call 833-7093, Raleigh.



Three Minutes from Craige to Lenoir . . . . IMPOSSIBLE??

Our new price for C.B. 160 is only $560.00

Travel - On Motorcycle Co.
"Headquarters for Adventure"
504 W. Franklin St.
Chapel Hill, N. C.

"WE ABSOLUTELY REFUSE TO BE UNDERSOLD"

With this one exception, GT&E provides total communications

Small boys have an edge on us when it comes to communicating with non-humans. General Telephone & Electronics makes only this one concession to outside experts.

In all other areas of communication we have an edge. Telephoning, teleprinting, telemetering, teledata, telewriting. And, of course, radio, TV, stereo and military electronics.

Our 30 Telephone Operating Companies serve areas in 33 states. Most of the equipment is manufactured by Automatic Electric, Lenkurt Electric and Sylvania, all members of GT&E's family of companies.

With so much revolving around GT&E, it is small wonder that we have become one of America's foremost corporations.

We're interested in having you know still more about our activities in total communications. So we've prepared a booklet on GT&E that you can obtain from your Campus Director, or by writing General Telephone & Electronics, 730 Third Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017.

GT&E
GENERAL TELEPHONE & ELECTRONICS
730 THIRD AVE., N.Y. 10017 • GT&E SUBSIDIARIES: General Telephone Operating Cos. in 33 states • GT&E Laboratories • GT&E International • General Telephone Directory Co. • Automatic Electric • Lenkurt Electric • Sylvania Electric

Pat Stith

DTH Sports Editor

You have heard it said that it matters not whether you won or lost but how you played the game. As a rule I don't subscribe to that philosophy. But rules are made to be broken and mine was yesterday.

Coach Marvin Allen's booters played Maryland here on Fetzer Field and they lost 1-0. To them it was THE game. They didn't give a hoot about playing a "good" game. They wanted to win, and they didn't and that disappointment must sting.

But they did win it in a way. They won if you count heart and desire and all of those other overused words that sportswriters use to try to describe a team with the guts to throw its whole being into battle.

Since 1962 I've seen at least a part of almost every home Carolina contest. And never have I ever seen a Tar Heel team play with the determination that Allen's boys played with yesterday.

Somebody said that there is not substitute for victory — and perhaps there isn't. Eventually most wins are forgotten, along with losses, but the 3,000 who cheered Carolina soccer team yesterday may never forget that display of raw desire.

It is no shame to lose to Maryland by any score. Since the ACC was formed in 1953 the Terps have never lost a league conference game.

Today though, Maryland can look back over all those victories and say that this was their closest call. After four full quarters of play neither team had scored. The Terps booted one in in the first half of a ten minute overtime and that was that.

Allen's men, undefeated in seven games, wanted it bad and their desire was infectious. The crowd caught their determination and applauded their every move.

They didn't have any cheerleaders and they didn't need any. They were watching a team with heart and they knew it.

Many of them didn't know what the game of soccer was all about but it didn't make any difference. They put their own emotions on the line and cheered that thing called desire.

Jim Tatum said winning was the only thing, but I don't believe it, not any more. Not since I watched those soccer players lose to Maryland 1-0. Not since I watched that Carolina team throw its whole self into the fray and lose.

That game is one I'll long remember, long after those cheap victories, won by teams without the courage to lay their hearts on the line, are forgotten.

An unidentified Carolina player takes a shot at the Maryland goal. It didn't go in—no UNC shots did—and the Terps won 1-0.

Tar Heels Lose In Overtime

Terps Edge UNC, 1-0

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

Mighty Maryland had its hands full with a valiant North Carolina soccer team Monday on Fetzer Field before squeezing out a spine-tingling 1-0 win in overtime.

The Tar Heels played their hearts out, kept up with the Terrapins for four quarters, and seemed on the verge of scoring several times. But the ball refused to go into the net when it seemed that it must.

After the regulation game ended in a scoreless tie, the first of two overtime periods was played. Carolina started a threat immediately, but Maryland bunched its defense around the goal and prevented a score.

Maryland boomed the ball out of their half of the field and Jim Dill passed to Guy Fraiture, with 3:15 gone, Fraiture drilled the ball through the Carolina defense and by goalie Tom Roberts, who apparently never saw the shot.

It was an odd play; Fraiture seemed to come out of nowhere and kicked the ball in before Carolina realized what was happening. It took the spark out of the Tar Heels, who never mounted a threat after that goal.

In the second overtime period Maryland completely dominated the play, merely keeping the ball away from the Tar Heels and playing down on the Carolina half of the field virtually the whole five minutes. Every time a Carolina player would get the ball into Maryland territory a red shirt would knock it back to the other end again.

Maryland took several other good shots at the goal in the second overtime period but failed to score again. As the horn ended the game a crowd of some 3,000 filed silently out of the stands. It was a bitter defeat.

Coach Marvin Allen, shooting for his 100th coaching victory, was dejected after the game, but proud of his boys.

"Everyone played a fine game," he said, "but we probably just weren't meant to win. We played extremely well, well enough to win. We didn't beat ourselves, we just lost to Maryland."

Maryland coach Doyle Royal could not be reached after the game, but manager Jim Teeple said this was "the best Carolina team we've ever played. We thought that whoever won this game would win the conference championship."

The win virtually wraps it up for Maryland. They preserved their record of never having lost an ACC match and scored their fifth win of the year. They have been beaten by Army, 2-1.

Both teams played ruggedly in the first period. Numerous fouls were called and the officials warned both teams several times. There were not too many scoring threats, although Carolina goalie Tom Roberts made a great save on a kick that seemed headed for the high corner of the net.

In the second period the going got rougher and some tempers flared on both sides. Eddie Belmont, Bill Polak and John Loud all had good shots at the goal that were missed or blocked. Maryland's Fraiture blasted one that nearly cut Roberts in half, but the goalie hung on to the ball.

In the third quarter Maryland put heavy pressure on the Tar Heels but couldn't ram the ball in. Then Carolina attacked and Bill Johnston set up Drew Murphy beautifully, but Murphy's shot was just a shade high. Jim Hammer made some fine defensive moves for Carolina in this period.

The fourth quarter was a heart - stopper. The Tar Heels attacked for the entire period and seemed sure of a goal, but it never came.

Bill Johnston scorched a high one that just sailed over the top of the net. Jackie Writer had a good shot but Bill Scarno, Maryland goalie, scooped it up before Writer could kick the ball. Then Scarno was caught out of position and a Carolina shot whizzed by, but hit the edge of the net on the wood and stopped dead.

The fourth quarter ended and still no one had scored. Then came the overtime and Carolina's first soccer defeat after seven wins.

Laggards Sent To Showers

By SANDY TREADWELL
DTH Sports Writer

Larry Brown made it big in the game of basketball because he has one major philosophy — when you're on a court with a ball in your hands you hustle for all you're worth.

As a freshman coach Brown demands hustle above all else.

The Coach has his boys warm up by charging from one side of the court and then back again and again and . .

During the scrimmage he yells, "Come on push it. Move. Stick with that man."

Yesterday afternoon in the Tin Can Brown looked on as several of his boys jogged down the boards while gasping for air. "That's really miserable," he said. "We haven't been at this for more than a quarter and already you guys are beat."

Minutes later a big tall boy let his man drift behind him and push the ball down through the strings. Brown blew his whistle long and hard.

The Coach stopped the scrimmage and looked at his tall athlete. "All I'm asking of you guys is to give me two hours of hard work every afternoon. If you're not willing to hustle then you're not willing to play ball. And you can march right through that door and stay the hell through it."

Then the small man turned to some of his other boys. "That goes for some of the rest of you also. You, you, and you act like you want a little vacation. Go ahead, get out of here. You fellas are through for the day."

Brown's a small man and for a large part of his life he's played a game that requires long arms and longer legs.

Brown more than existed in the world of basketball. He became a star.

He was a guard at Carolina and he more than compensated for his height. Brown plowed around the floor. He scrambled and streaked from one basket to another.

Larry Brown is a coach who doesn't play games. Coach Larry Brown is tough. He demands the one thing out of his players that must be demanded. And for it he has earned respect in his first few weeks at his job.

Harriers Face Virginia In Final Duel Meet

North Carolina's varsity and freshman cross country teams journey to Charlottesville, today to run the Cavaliers in the last dual meet of the season.

The varsity harriers will be shooting for their sixth win of the season against one loss, to Maryland.

The Tar Babies, 5-0, will be going for a perfect season.

Next Monday the harriers will try for the state cross country championship where they will have to face Duke again. Last Wednesday they upset the Blue Devils 28-29 while the freshmen did the same 23-24.

Then in another week Coach Joe Hilton's runners will try to win back the cross country crown the Terps stole from them last year at the ACC Championship Meet.

The championship meet, November 15, will give the Tar Heels a rematch with Maryland. North Carolina lost to the Terps 16-47 earlier in the season.

The Terps are undefeated, but Duke whom the harriers beat, came within 10 points of them, the closest anyone has come all season long.

Sports Schedule

Today: Frosh and varsity harriers take on Virginia away.

Friday: Frosh footballers go after Big Four Championship against Wake Forest here. Frosh booter play Appalachian here.

Saturday: Hickey's men take on Clemson in the final home game of the year. The soccer team plays national defending champion Navy away.

Carr Is Out

Coach Jim Hickey announced yesterday that junior George Zadjeika will replace wide end Charlie Carr in Saturday's game against Clemson.

Carr injured his hand in the final minutes of the Georgia game. He will see only limited action as a kicker against the Tigers.

The Tar Heels worked extensively on defense yesterday after giving up 436 yards and 47 points to Georgia.

Clemson is undefeated in conference play. Their only losses have been to Georgia Tech and Georgia.

Carr's injury was the only one the team suffered in Saturday's game.

Same Old Danny

The national sports publications seem to be running a contest with each other, seeing who can throw the most whammies on the top college and professional teams and players.

When Texas was unbeaten and top-ranked three weeks ago, Sports Illustrated printed a story on the team, centering around All America linebacker Tommy Nobis. That Saturday, Texas lost to Arkansas, and now has dropped three straight.

Then The Sporting News ran a feature on Duke's Scotty Glacken when the Blue Devils were 4-0. Now Glacken is out with an injury, and Duke has lost three straight.

This week, the pro Green Bay Packers rated the front page feature of SN. So before the issue was in the hands of its subscribers, the Packers were upset.

But try as they might, they couldn't do it to Carolina's dandy dan of dauntless deeds, Danny Talbott.

They ran a feature on Talbott several weeks ago, but last Saturday Danny broke the single-game total yardage record at UNC and boosted his total offense total for the season to 1,110.

Nice goin', Danny.

MILL OUTLET SALES ROOM
Ladies First Quality HOSE
Three Pairs $1.25
"All Popular Fall Shades, Also Nurses' White Hose
UPSTAIRS OVER SUTTON'S Drug Store

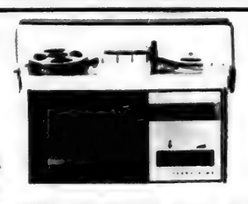
WINNER OF 3 ACADEMY AWARDS!
ANTHONY QUINN
ALAN BATES
IRENE PAPAS
in MICHAEL CACOYANNIS PRODUCTION
"ZORBA THE GREEK"
LILA KEDROVA
RIALTO, Durham
Fri.-Sun. at 1:42, 4:07, 6:33, 9:00
Mon.-Thurs. at 1.05, 3:30, 6:00, 830

SENIORS and GRADUATE STUDENTS!
Don't miss this bet!
Put the important story of you and your skills in front of employers who do NOT send recruiters to your campus.
Top-flight companies—large and small—from all over the U.S. use Q E D to find seniors and graduate students who fit their job opportunities.
Write for details TODAY.
QED Box 147 Bronxville New York 10708

Auto Bridge
Play-yourself Bridge Game
Play Bridge
Learn Alone
Become an Expert
only $1.75
BILLY ARTHUR
Expert

BRITISH BUFFERCOAT
SUEDE CLOTH with half inset sleeve and shawl collar. Pure wool body lining in contrasting colors.
$49.50
Julian's
Chapel Hill, N. C.

GINA LOLLOBRIGIDA · ELKE SOMMER · VIRNA LISI · MONICA VITTI
bambole!
those sensational DOLLS ....Italian Style!!
A Royal Films International Presentation
CAROLINA
LAST TIMES TODAY



Norelco Continental '101'
100% transistorized for on the spot record/playback . . . up to 2 hours on a single reel. 2 track 1⅞ ips constant speed machine weighs 8 lbs. with 6 flashlight batteries. Features dynamic microphone, tone control, record/level/battery condition indicator. Includes direct recording patch-cord. Frequency response 80 to 8000 cps. 11" x 3¾" x 8".
Wholesale Prices on Tubes, Speakers, Tape Recorders, Tape, Batteries, Microphones, Hi-Fi and Stereo Components, Kits, and Wires, etc.
Vickers Electronics
506. EAST MAIN STREET
Phone 684-0527 DURHAM

DISTINCTIVE SPORT SHIRTING
with so many sport shirts being worn on campus we feel that distinctiveness is an important criteria.
EAGLE'S AFFERBACK cloth (20% wool 80% cotton) and imported flemish flannel have been early favorites. Bold plaids and checks compliment our selection.
Our fine sport shirts start at 5.95.
Varsity Men's Wear
Clothiers of Distinction
147 E. Franklin

Have a big weekend?
We make loans on typewriters, pistols, guns, radios, record players, musical instruments, watches, rings, cameras, microscopes, tape recorders.
FIVE POINTS LOAN CO.
339 W. Main St. . . . at Five Points
Downtown Durham

KING WILLIAM RESTAURANT
Specializing in
STEAKS CHICKEN
SEAFOOD
"Choice Selection of Imported and Domestic Beverages"
All New and Modern, featuring
1½ Miles From Campus on 15-501 South
Seating Capacity of 300
• Spacious Parking
• Four Private dining rooms
• Tasteful background music
• Catering facilities
Open Seven Days a Week 8:00 A.M. 'til Midnight

FLY NEW YORK $49.50 Round Trip
THANKSGIVING
Lv. Raleigh-Durham 2:00 p.m. Nov. 24
Ar. JFK 3:30 p.m.
Lv. JFK 9:40 p.m. Nov. 28
Ar. Raleigh-Durham 11:10 p.m.
FLY CHICAGO $60.00 Round Trip
CHRISTMAS
Lv. Raleigh-Durham 2:00 p.m. EST Dec. 18
Ar. Ohare 3:15 p.m. EST
Lv. Ohare 9:00 a.m. EST Jan. 2
Ar. Raleigh-Durham 12:15 p.m. EST
All flights NONSTOP in 104 DC-7C's
WRITE: A&J Travel Box 4728, Duke Sta. Durham
SAVE! MONEY, TIME, TROUBLE!
Offer Limited — Call or Write Soon!!

If You Like
Voltaire
We've just added a clump of his books to our 68c shelf. Lots of other good buys there, too
The INTIMATE BOOKSHOP
119 E. Franklin St.
Open Till 10 P.M.

Imported and Domestic Country Gentlemen
TWEEDS with Tradition
These handsome tweeds in a kaleidoscope of rich and robust textures are well suited for either town or country wear. Every detail of model and tailoring has been carefully interpreted to achieve a truly natural shoulder suit.
FROM $59.95
Varsity Men's Wear
Clothiers of Distinction
Charge Accounts Invited

GANT
SHIRTMAKERS

Woolster
All luxury—this luxuriant all-wool worsted Gant sport shirt. In rich-hued monotones; in not-often-seen multi-colored patterns. Can be worn in or out.
Town & Campus

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Tough Loss

North Carolina lost a heartbreaking soccer game to Maryland yesterday, 1-0. Read about the Heels' first loss on page four.

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Vol. 74, No. 42 | CHAPEL HILL NORTH CAROLINA TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 2, 1965 | Founded February 23, 1893.

Calendar

Wondering what's coming at UNC? Read the Campus Calendar on page three to find out.

Voters Deciding On Roads, Court

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina voters will decide today the fate of a $300 million road bond issue and a proposal to establish an intermediate court of appeals.

Despite efforts by Gov. Dan Moore and other state officials to arouse voter interest, a light turnout of 360,000-400,000 is expected.

The center of pre-election attention has been the road bond issue. It would permit North Carolina to borrow $300 million to finance road construction and to repay the loan from the one-cent-a-gallon gasoline tax enacted in 1949.

The other issue would give the legislature authority to establish the court of appeals. It would operate at a level between the superior and state supreme courts.

Both issues have had many vocal and active supporters. A scattering of opposition has been noted on the bond issue, none of the appeals court.

Joe Hunt, chairman of the State Highway Commission has stumped the state in support of the bond issue. He has asked for a heavy turnout and overwhelming approval.

Gov. Moore has called for passage of the $300 million proposal in almost every speech he has made in recent months. He said the money is needed to insure a continuing increase in tourism and industry for North Carolina.

The governor, who will cast his vote in his home precinct at Canton, said North Carolinians have everything to gain and nothing to lose by voting and asked for its passage.

Kelly Alexander, president of the North Carolina chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said Negro voters would support the road bonds.

The civil rights leader estimated some 290,000 Negroes were registered to vote Tuesday.

The only organized opposition has come from the Ku Klux Klan. Robert Jones, North Carolina grand dragon, asked all klansmen to vote "no" on the bonds.

A few yellow and pink leaflets, attacking the bond issue, were distributed last week in three areas of Raleigh.

The court reform amendment has received the staunch support of supreme and superior court justices, plus the State Bar Association.

The state bar has appointed committees in every section of the state to serve as information centers for the amendment.

The proposed intermediate court would reduce some of the heavy work load now borne by the supreme court.

Polls are open from 6:30 a.m. until 6:30 p.m.

THE TAR HEELS have control of the ball in this action from yesterday's soccer game with Maryland. However, the undefeated Terrapins remained that way by handing UNC its first loss of the season, 1-0. See the story on page four. — DTH Photo By Ernest Robl.

State Delegates Chosen For Student Legislature

Delegates, alternates and observers to next February's meeting of State Student Legislature in Raleigh were announced by the SSL Committee of Student Government yesterday.

Delegate members will sit in session with other representatives of North Carolina colleges and universities in Raleigh's old capitol building to pass mock legilsation of interest to students.

Delegates include: Britt Gordon; Charlie Mercer; Baxter Linney; Caron McKnight; Eric Van Loon; Mary King; Barry Schochet; Bob Powell; Franklin Freeman; Jim Little; Jeff Adams; Jim Brame; Kathy Cauble; David Kiel.

Alternates are: John Greenbacker; Steve Jolly; Eva Lee Blaine; Jim Smith; Bob Wicker; Sherry O'Donnel; Sandy Hobgood.

Observers are: Dwight Allen; Lanny Shuff; Bob Wilson; Janice Newton; Dudley Price; Patty Delany; Jerry Price; Pete Hellebush; George Teague; Ed Bristol; E. J. Simmons; John Henley; Phil Kirstein and Dwight Thomas.

Also: Frank Longest; Bill Purdy; Sandra Burden; Dick Young; Steve Hockfield; Paul Dickson; Sterling Phillips; John Lovell; Don Wilson; Jerry Rutledge; Johnny Winborne; George Ingram; Johnny Turner; Paul Whitton; Ken Starling; William Anderson; Natasha Kern; Steve Thomas.

ANITA WRAY WILKINSON, one of UNC's majorettes, was crowned queen of Morrison Residence College in a ceremony Saturday night; Mrs. William Long, wife of the dean of men, crowned the sophomore fine arts major from Durham. In the background is Jim Brame, Miss Wilkinson's escort. — DTH Photo By Ernest Robl.

Morrison Chooses Nita

Nita Wilkinson was crowned "Miss Morrison College" during the intermission of "Homecoming-A-Go-Go in the Morrison main lounge Saturday night.

The sophomore and former Miss Durham was selected by the Morrison College Executive Council from a court of 10 sweethearts — one from each house in Morrison.

She represented the Cavalier House (fourth floor).

Mrs. William G. Long crowned the queen before 700 students as "The Seductives" provided a background of "September Song."

After the crowning Dean William G. Long was presented a plaque making him the honorary house father of Morrison College for 1965-66.

Opposes Speaker Ban Law

Newsman Cancels Speech At State

Tom Wicker, Washington bureau chief for The New York Times, has canceled a scheduled spring speech at North Carolina State because he is opposed to North Carolina's speaker ban law.

Wicker, an alumnus of UNC, had been tentatively booked for a May 6 speech at State.

However, yesterday he said, "I have just written Lee McDonald (assistant program director at Erdahl-Cloyd Union) that I was withdrawing from my engagement to speak on May 6."

Wicker added that this was a "purely personal" matter with him and that he was not trying to lead a crusade.

Last week Wicker turned down an invitation to appear on the Carolina Fourm. He wrote George Nicholson, III, chairman of the Forum, that he would not be able to come to UNC bcause of two previously scheduled speeches in North Carolina, at State and at Wake Forest.

However, he added that even if he had had time to speak, he would have hesitated because of the "Speaker Ban Law."

"I am fiercely opposed to such a limitation as that on free speech," he wrote, "and, while the ban could not apply specifically to me, I believe that it might well be that anyone concerned for freedom of speech should refuse to appear at the University while the ban is in effect."

Wicker was at first under the impression that the ban applied only to UNC. However, when he learned that all state-supported colleges, including North Carolina State, were affected, he canceled his speaking engagement at the Raleigh campus.

"I have rectified the inconsistency in my position," he said after writing McDonald.

Wicker emphasized that the real issue is not whether he speaks in North Carolina, but whether the ban is repealed.

Won't Make Ruling

No ruling will be made on whether Robert Jones, North Carolina Grand Dragon of the Ku Klux Klan, would have been barred from speaking on a state supported campus.

In a letter from Attorney General Wade Bruton to Consolidated University President William Friday, Bruton stated that since Jones cancelled his scheduled talk at N. C. State the "need for advice" was no longer necessary.

Friday had requested a ruling from Bruton after Jones took the fifth amendment to avoid answering questions before the House Committee on Un - American Activities last week.

Jones said he would not speak at State because HUAC had asked him to return to Washington to testify. He was to speak at State later this month.

Friday said he received Bruton's letter Saturday morning. It read:

"Since receipt of your letter, all press reports indicate it is general information and knowledge that Mr. Jones has canceled this scheduled appearance and all others made to speak on campuses of State-supported institutions, and the need for the advice requested terminated. Without further request, I shall so conclude."

Friday said he would make another request for a ruling "should a similar situation arise." He added that Bruton usually advises the University on interpretation of statutes enacted by the General Assembly.

European Study Offered

The American Language and Education Center of Michigan State University will offer European study programs for college students during winter, spring and summer terms beginning next year.

Programs aimed at promoting use of foreign language and offering opportunity for students to learn more about their European contemporaries are scheduled for Paris, France; Lausanne and Neuchatel, Switzerland; Florence, Italy; Cologne, Germany; and Barcelona and Madrid, Spain.

Winter programs start Jan. 10, and the spring programs, April 18, with the exception of the Madrid course which begins April 11. The deadline for winter term applications is December 10, and for spring term, March 18.

Details for the summer credit and informal courses will be available soon.

The programs will feature classes in conversation, composition, grammar and reading. Participants will also visit points of historic and geographic interest, which become the topics of lectures and seminar-type discussions covering cultural, political, social and economic institutions of the country in which they are residing.

A descriptive brochure and application forms can be obtained by contacting AMLEC, 58-A Kellogg Center, Michigan State University, East Lansing, Mich.

Announcers

WUNC-TV, the University's educational television station, has openings on its announcing staff for experienced announcers.

Applicants should be mature, dependable, versatile and have the ability to communicate to an educational television audience.

The part-time work will require nighttime availability three nights a week. Interested persons should contact David Miller in 216 Swain Hall.

German Club Sets Meeting

The German Language Club will hold a fund raising and organizational meeting tomorow night at 7:30 in the faculty lounge on the fourth floor of Dey Hall.

Dr. Ramson Taylor will speak about a recent 15 month trip to Europe. Taylor's address will be followed by music, singing and a discussion of future programs which include a full length German movie, a Christmas party, and a spring picnic.

Refreshments will be served and anyone who has an interest in German culture of the German language in invited to attend.

The newly elected officers of the club, who are also officers of the national German honor fraternity Delta Phi Alpha, will preside over the meetings.

The new officers are Blane Yelton, president, Eric Van Loon, vice president, Mary Susan Kirk, secretary, and Ralph Levering, treasurer.

Delta Phi Alpha will hold its fall initiation meeting Nov. 17 at 7 p.m. Thirty-five new bids will be accepted at the meeting.

HILL APPOINTED

Watts Hill Jr. of Chapel Hill, chairman of the State Board of Higher Education, was appointed last week by Governor Dan Moore to the board of control for Southern Regional Education Board.

Attorney General Receives Appeal Of Board Ruling

Attorney General Van MacNair received a formal appeal yesterday of the Elections Board's recent ruling disqualifying the presidential recall petition.

The appeal of the board's decision was made by David Kiel, an organizer for pro-petition forces.

MacNair said yesterday he would convene the Constitutional Council of Student Government, the body which will rule on the board's decision, at the "earliest possible time."

The petition seeks the recall of Student Body President Paul Dickson, who was convicted by the Men's Council last August for a violation of the Campus Code.

Petitions for recall of students occupying campus-wide positions must be signed by 15 per cent of the student body.

The presidential recall petition was disqualified by the board Oct. 29 after over two weeks of investigation when 55 signatures on it were ruled invalid.

Duplicated or false signatures and signatures which utilized untraceable "nicknames" were disqualified by the board.

Kiel made the appeal after "some questions were raised about the disqualification procedure."

Kiel took over the leadership of pro-petition forces after the petition's original sponsor, student legislator Sharon Rose, urged students to accept the Elections Board's decision in the matter.

She said the majority of students on campus support Dickson and the board's decision was just.

Tryouts Set For Today

The Playmakers will hold final tryouts for three plays by William Butler Yeats today at 4 p.m. in the Playmakers Theatre.

The plays — "Calvary," "Purgatory," and "Resurrection" — will be presented as part of a festival commemorating the birth of the Irish poet - playwright. They will be performed Nov. 17 in Baldwin Auditorium at Duke and Nov. 18 at the Playmakers Theatre here.

The festival is sponsored by The Cooperative Program in the Humanities of Duke and UNC.

Directors Randolph Umberger, Lynda Benson, and James Boothby, all graduate students in the Department of Dramatic Art, have announced that excellent parts are still open for the three plays, which together require 20 male actors. They have invited all students, faculty, and townspeople to tryout.

Special Session

Student Legislature will hold a special session tonight at 7:30 p.m. on the fourth floor of New East.

Important legislation selected for vote by the floor leaders will be considered, and all legislators are expected to attend and have their Yack picture taken afterwards.

Scott Supports Trustees

By JOHN GREENBACKER
DTH Poltiical Writer

Lt. Governor Robert .W Scott told nearly 400 students and guests at the Scott College dedication Sunday that trustees of state - supported colleges and universities should control policy - making of their schools.

Scott made the remark during a speech dedicating the residence college named for his former governor and U.S. Senator father, W. Kerr Scott.

After listing the benefits of research and development which a good university can offer the industry of the state, Scott said, "If we are to conduct research, then there must be freedom of inquiry.

"A university is not alive, alert and vital unless it searches for the truth," he said.

Scott said the "controversy" surrounding the university and state - supported institutions of higher learning was "nothing really unusual."

Calling for an upgrade of standards in North Carolina schools, Scott said, "Our educational system from the grade schools on up must be freed from political pressure.

"I for one, have confidence in the trustees, in Bill Friday, the chancellors, the presidents of our senior colleges, the faculty and the overwhelming majority of college men and women," he said.

He called for a continuance of the consolidated university concept.

Scott cited the rising number of in - state students seeking admission to schools of higher learning, and warned that more facilities must be built to meet their needs.

"Unless the necessary financing is made," he said, we will see a worsening of this situation.

"I hope future General Assemblies will recognize these problems," he said.

"We hear a lot about freedom these days," Scott said. "I think Thomas Jefferson was right when he said, 'If a nation expects to be ignorant and free, it expects to be what never was and never will be.'"

Scott praised the concept of the Residence College System and its plan to give students a new identity.

"We need to dispell the feeling that the University is cold and impersonal and student is merely a number in a computer in the basement of some building," he said.

All Residence Colleges Soon—Sharp

By DAVID ROTHMAN
DTH Staff Writer

Chancellor Paul F. Sharp said Sunday the residence college system will include all men's dorms "by this time next year," if the plan has student support.

Speaking at the dedication of Scott Residence College, Sharp said the system "symbolizes our concern for individuality . . .

"The life of the University must revolve around the individual."

Without this view, he said, UNC would not function effectively as a university.

Nearly 400 persons attended the ceremonies, including Student Body President Paul Dickson, who sat on the platform with Sharp, Lt. Gov. Robert W. Scott and other officials.

Scott College Governor Bob Hunter praised Dickson, former MRC President Sonny Pepper, Dean of Men William Long and other student and faculty leaders for their supporting the residence college idea.

Also on the platform was Mrs. W. Kerr Scott, widow of the senator for whom Scott College was named.

Thomas Bolch, president of the Young Democratic Club, presented the college with the senator's portrait.

Scott College Chaplain James Cansler gave the invocation and benediction.

"God of Our Fathers" was sung by the UNC Glee Club, accompanied by the UNC Band, which traveled with Scott's motorcade as it approached Teague residence hall.

After the ceremonies, Mrs. W. Kerr Scott dedicated the Teague social room, whose furnishings are worth about $4,000.

LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR Robert W. Scott, left, talks to Chancellor and Mrs. Paul Sharp at Sunday's dedication ceremonies for Scott Residence College, named for Scott's father. — DTH Photo By Ernest Robl.

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of the Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. Letters and columns, covering a wide range of views, reflect the personal opinions of their authors.
ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

A Gag Foe Says So

Tom Wicker has decided to drop consideration of a speaking engagement at N. C. State because of his opposition to the gag law.

His reaction is characteristic of those who, while not legally affected by the ban, are morally insulted by it.

Conversation with Wicker, head of the New York Times Washington bureau, syndicated columnist and UNC graduate, reveals that he had tentatively accepted the May 6 speaking date at State because it was his impression that the ban applied only to the Chapel Hill campus. Informed of the law's statewide coverage, he said he would have to reconsider his decision to come to Raleigh.

George Nicholson, chairman of the Carolina Forum, had also invited Wicker to speak here. His schedule prevented his appearance here, but at the same time Wicker's letter to Nicholson explained why he might have some ban-created misgivings.

"If these reasons (schedule conflicts) did not apply, however, I would have been given pause by the existence of the so-called speaker ban at the University of North Carolina," he said.

"I am fiercely opposed to such a limitation as that on free speech, and while the ban could not apply specifically to me, I believe that it might well be that anyone concerned for freedom of speech should refuse to appear at the University while the ban is in effect.

"This would be from no lack of love for the University; quite the opposite: it would be because I would wish to do all in my power to remove this blot from its record.

"I have every confidence, however, that the blot will be removed, and that if this kind invitation ever comes to me again I will be able to accept without qualm," Wicker said.

The General Assembly may soon have the chance to fulfill Wicker's confidence. If a special session is held, the legislators would do well to remember this example and realize that men of integrity and principle find the law totally repugnant — and the University loses in countless little ways so long as the law remains.

Put Friday On Wheels?

In an editorial last week, the Raleigh News and Observer said, in effect, that UNC President William C. Friday is neglecting the other branches of the University and ought to pull out of Chapel Hill.

"As head of a four branch university system, the president should not have his office, his most frequent contacts, his life and inescapably some of his home interests on the campus of any one branch," it said.

"Some students and alumni of other branches have sometimes resented what they felt was a Chapel Hill sense of superiority as 'the University' within the university system.

"Under any conditions some such feelings, perhaps juvenile and unjustified, but real all the same, will remain. Much would be done to eliminate them if the president of the Consolidated University did not have his office and his residence under the shadow of one branch," it concluded.

What that editorial conveniently overlooks is that Friday does have an office on the Raleigh campus and he is there every Monday that he is in the state. There are facilities available for him and his staff at Greensboro and there will be space at Charlotte, according to a Consolidated University official. Friday meets frequently with the chancellors of each branch, and not all the meetings are in Chapel Hill. If any of the campuses feel slighted, they haven't said anything about it.

The N and O doesn't say just what it thinks Friday ought to do to get out of the "shadow" of Chapel Hill. Maybe it thinks the Consolidated University offices should be moved into a house trailer. Then Friday could stay on the road all the time, traveling from campus to campus and maybe even spreading the "gospel of the University" along the highways and byways.

And in the meantime, feeling as he does, we can't understand why the editor of the Raleigh paper doesn't set up an office in every city in his circulation area and spend each day working from a different town.

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; John Jennrich, associate editor; Barry Jacobs, managing editor; Fred Thomas, news editor, Pat Stith, sports editor; Gene Rector, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; John Greenbacker, political writer; Ed Freakley, Andy Myers, Lynne Harvel, Lynne Sizemore, David Rothman, Ray Linville, staff writers; Jack Harrington, bus. mgr.; Tom Clark, asst. bus. mgr.; Woody Sobol, ad. mgr.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all ap news dispatches.

"Finished With The Catsup Yet?"

Liberal Comment

'Deplorable' Recall Is Symbol Of Public Face Versus Private Morals

By BANKS O. GODFREY, JR.

Recent events in our national and local history have raised once again the old problem of how a public mind deals with private events which are thrust upon public consciousness by publicity. And once more it has become transparent that the duplicity in the public mind of American allows us to condemn openly that which we tolerate and enjoy privately. The bridge between the hiatus of public and private worlds is a disclosure, usually in the newspaper, to everyone of the taint in the lives of one or two people. This is a very cynical business.

What is so disasterous about this duplicity is that no one is helped by it. Instead, everyone is delivered a suffering which usually exceeds the alleged crime. It is duplicity, more than crises in identity and sexuality, which makes American public life corrupt. As Hannah Arnt writes: "In the public world, common to all, persons count, and so does work, that is, the work of our hands that each of us contributes to our common world; but life qua life does not matter there. The world cannot be regardful of it, and it has to be hidden and protected from the world." Let it be considered, therefore, that in American public life, if not in all public life (as Kierkegaard thought), the possibility of forgiveness and the restoration of a deteriorated, or destroyed persons, is simply impossible. Such restoration is closed out because the deplorable way in which we expse the private lives of public men and delight in doing so, closes out any occasion of help, either for the exposers or the exposed. And it should be obvious that our delight in such exposure is never so euphoric as when what is to be exposed involves sexuality. Americans, who are smart-alecks about sex, and Southerners, who are self-righteous about it, are so easily convinced by so little evidence that private sexual activity, once exposed, deterministically infects the large and small duties and responsibilities of men's public acts. With such a literalistic combination of delight and cynicism at work, it is then a short step before the exposed people are transformed into scapegoats for all sorts of causes and fronts. Such a destructive force, deployed publicly, about particular, unique human beings, is blasphemous.

That is why the demands of the student leaders for a recall of Paul Dickson are deplorable, and why the pronouncement of the chancellor and the Dean of Student Affairs is a miscalculation. The students wrote self-righteously, and the officials attempted to deal generally with the particularities of the Dickson case. Everyone was very pious, especially the women. And when an unbiblical and sentimental piety is unleashed on a moral issue, the piety becomes propaganda. This public exhibition runs the risk of being more outrageous than Dickson's punished breaking of a university rule.

Ironically, one woman, Lady Bird Johnson, of all people, expressed honest, appropriate and life-loving reaction in her statement about Walter Jenkins, whom, she said, we must all look upon with compassion. It is this compassion which we have unlearned to practice in the public and private worlds of our time .

By its absence, we have had to endure the libelous statements of Armistead Maupin against not only the SDS and the SPU, but against the responsible students who chair these organizations. Why have the issues been upstaged by childish, personal attacks? Newspapers, after all, are the chief bridge across the communities of the public consciousness. But in recent local issues it appears that more news has been made up than has been reported, and the same is the case in most of the state's papers. It must be noted that the language of emergency, the use of scape-goats, and the vulgar treatment of human beings, is a serious deviation from that tradition of journalism which knows its writers to be the keepers of the notebooks of the culture, which tradition is marked by the names and work of Ralph McGill, W. J. Cash, Jonathan Daniels, Harry Ashmore, Hodding Carter and Mark Ethridge. In such a tradition, opinionated detachment and personal slander are intrinsically destructive, and therefore unthinkable.

The risk of being a public figure (and this university is a training ground for that) is that a public man, in the limelight, has to fight constantly the growth of emptiness in himself, which is the frequent gift of power. It is to Paul Dickson's credit politically, that he has been the one who has been the most articulate, the most responsible, the most honest and the most objective in this whole issue. Politically, one can only hope that, in their public and private worlds liberals and conservatives alike will suffer themselves such loss of pride as will allow us all to petition, about our public and private lives, in the prayer which Reinhold Niebuhr wrote upon the founding of the Americans for Democratic Action:

> O God, give us serenity to accept what cannot be changed, courage to change what should be changed, and wisdom to distinguish the one from the other.

There is a freedom which is more liberal than what the liberal university teaches and by which even the university lies, and the gifts of that freedom, sorely needed in our public and private worlds, are humility before one's self and others, born out of self-knowledge, and compassion about one's strengths and weaknesses.

Mike Jennings

Tony Mason Is "Just A Fellow Who Likes To See People Vote"

Tony Mason is a UNC student who believes people should vote. He devotes much of his time to getting them to vote.

Tony is a member of the Chapel Hill Voter Registration Drive. He is also co-chairman of the UNC-YMCA Human Relations Committee.

Tony doesn't demonstrate or picket for voting rights. He doesn't think that's necessary. Instead he works in his office at the Y. There he checks voter registration lists against lists of those old enough to vote to find who among Chapel Hill's Negro community are not registered. He helps send out information sheets about registration procedures, candidates and issues to Negro homes.

Tony works quietly. He speaks quietly as well. He chooses his words slowly and carefully. His height adds emphasis to his words. Tony has short brown hair and dresses in old but neat clothes. He usually wears a patched sweater.

A native of Chapel Hill, Tony is a senior history major.

Tony began voter registration work before he left high school. He carried on this work with various groups in the community until the Chapel Hill Voter Registration Drive was formed in December, 1963. This year, Tony is trying to recruit other students to work for the drive, but he is not having much success.

Tony will eagerly take from his desk a sheet showing in figures the success of the drive.

"When the drive started work in December, 1963, 746 Negroes were registered in Chapel Hill Township. Before the primaries in May, 1964, we registered 454 more. By the time of the 1964 presidential election, the total Negro registration was up to 1,462.

Tony does not need figures, however, to tell the story of voter registration problems.

"We found that it was very hard to get people to register. People heard about the killings and persecution in the Deep South. They felt the only reason it hadn't happened here was that nobody had been fool enough to register.

"People remember or have heard from their parents how everyone in Orange County once had to go to Hillsborough to register. They remember or hear now Negroes who went there to register were arrested for disturbing th peace. Nothing like that happens anymore."

Tony says that many Negroes felt their votes wouldn't count anyway. "Some people thought Negroes' votes were burned. Others thought some votes were counted as two or three votes each."

To dispel false notions, the Voter Registration Drive began a voter education campaign. Members of the University's political science department helped write information sheets to be sent out in newsletter form.

Tony claims that the "excellence of the Orange County Elections Board" is the reason that "there has been no direct, obvious discrimination in Orange County" in recent years.

"The problem in rural areas is very much different from that in town. A Negro tenant farmer may be thrown out by his landlord if he registers. We can't ask him to take that risk."

While the discrimination problem is largely dead, Tony says its effects still operate and cause Negroes to be suspicious of the drive workers. But when we show we really want to help they aren't suspicious anymore.

To demonstrate their desire to help, the drive workers go from house to house in the Negro community on Saturdays. They distribute information, check on who is registered and urge those elibigle to vote. If the registration station at the high school is open and anyone in the house wants to register, the workers will take him to register and bring him back.

On one such Saturday "field trip" Tony demonstrated the way the drive workers overcome distrust.

Tony went to eight houses. Nobody was home at four of the houses. At the other four houses nobody was home who was old enough to vote but unregistered.

One house Tony visited had a blue and white sedan parked in front. A Carolina sticker was on its rear window.

Tony knocked and a man in a checked bathrobe opened the door.

Tony told the man he was from the Voter Registration Drive. He asked the man if he and his wife were registered. The man seemed reluctant to answer. But finally he said he and his wife were not registered.

Tony checked his record. "Yes you are but your wife isn't."

The man was surprised and a little hostile. "What do you mean?"

Tony explained to him that when he registered once he was registered for life unless he moved away or the county board called for a whole new registration. Since the man had registered for the last presidential election, he was permanently registered.

The man then seemed eager to see that his wife registered. He said she wasn't home, but she would probably be back later. Tony offered to stop back by later to take her to the high school.

The man was grateful.

At each house where he found registered voters, Tony urged them to vote in the November highway and school bond referendums.

Tony was back in his office the next week, drawing up new lists and trying to get people to help in the Drive.

And so the campaign goes.

But call Tony Mason a campaigner and he'll disagree with you. Ask him if he's a civil rights worker, and he'll say no to that too.

Ask him to describe himself. He'll probably stop and think a minute. Then he may grin and say, "I'm just a fellow who likes to see people vote."

Otelia Connor's Vision Of World Finds Opposition

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Otelia Connor is very willing to condemn others who are also tired of war and the rumors of wars. Perhaps the protesters see war as a factor which debases and weakens man. Killing a human being, whether in passion or duty, neither strengthens nor ennobles man. The tree of liberty may have to be bloodied every twenty years, but that does not make willing killers out of all.

History also seems to show wherever there is man, there is conflict. Surely no "moral equivalent of war" is going to make man see eye-to-eye with his neighbour. (Indeed, just what does "moral equivalent of war" mean; aren't these just words?) No man cares to have his freedom impinged upon — some are willing to give up some of their freedom so others may obtain theirs, and some are not so willing. A man should be able to make this choice himself.

Mrs. Connor wants a wonderful, beautiful world. Just how wonderful and beautiful would it be if "universal military training" and "strict harsh discipline" were compulsory? Discipline comes from the inside of man; imposed discipline brings resentment against the "ordered society" which demands it. Does Mrs. Connor want a society where man does not have the right to express his conception of peace and freedom?

Jane Marcotte
5-A Towne House Apts.

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel welcomes letters to the editor on any subject, particularly on matters of local or University interest. Letters must be typed, double spaced and must include the name and address of the author or authors. Names will not be omitted in publication. Letters should be kept as brief as possible. The DTH reserves the right to edit for length or libel.

Some Campus Activities On Schedule At Carolina

All Campus Calendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date (by 10 a.m. Saturday for Sunday's DTH). Lost and Found notices will be run on Tuesday and Saturdays only.

TODAY

Student Committee on Honors will meet in the Grail Room of GM at 4 p.m.

SPU-SDS Viet Nam, Education, and action Committees will meet at noon upstairs in Lenoir Hall. All interested in studying history and ramifications of Viet Nam crisis please attend.

All men and women Symposium residence hall solicitors are reminded to bring all their collections by the second floor of Y-Court between 2-5 p.m. If for any reason you cannot be there, check with the Symposium office (942-5950) or with the men or women's chairman.

UNC Caro-biners meet at 7:30 in 205 Mitchell. Special election and final plans for caving trip.

WRC meeting at 6:45 in the Grail Room.

Coke party for the residents of Winston, Smith, and Spencer Dorms in the parlor of Spencer from 4 - 5:15 p.m.

Picture will be made of the Communications committee of SG at 6:30 in Memorial Hall.

CWC will meet at 5 p.m. in Roland Parker I.

Dorm meetings of freshmen officers will be at 9 p.m. in Aycock, 10 p.m. in Graham, and 11 p.m. in Cobb.

Student Wives will meet in 08-09 of Peabody at 8 p.m. Judy Hallman will present a demonstration of wigs and hairpieces. This is a regularly scheduled meeting.

Folk dancing at 7:30 in the Presbyterian Student Center.

Budget Committee at 8 p.m. in the Grail Room.

Dean of Women's office has received information from the International Student Information Service regarding jobs abroad for men and women in the summer and year-round positions. More information at 202 South Building.

Tuesday Evening Concert Series in Hill Hall. William S. Newman will present a piano concert of French Sonatas. The public is invited to attend free of charge.

Afghanistan Students' Program in Carroll Hall Auditorium at 8 p.m. Chancellor Sharp will introduce Mr. Abdul Latif who will speak on his country. Films will also be shown. Everyone is invited.

Interviews for the men's and women's attorney general staff will be held from 2-4 p.m. Interviews are open for freshmen and sophomore men and freshmen, sophomore, and junior transfer women. Apply at 213 GM.

Ping - Pong tournament sponsored by GM will be held Nov. 8-12 at Woollen Gym. There will be both singles and doubles competition. The winners are to represent UNC at the Regional V tournament and amateur status is required. Sign up for the GM Information Desk.

Order of the R.P.C. from 7-8 p.m. in Roland Parker III, GM.

Dr. Harry Orlinsky will lecture on the subject, "The Bible in the Light of Archeology" at 8 p.m. in the Howell Hall Auditorium. An informal reception honoring Dr. Orlinsky will be held at the Hillel Building from 4-5 p.m. All are invited to attend these events.

WEDNESDAY

MRC Points Committee meets at 7 p.m. in the Grail Room of GM.

The Joint Duke - UNC Colloquium will feature Professor Roy Glauber from Harvard University speaking on "Optical Coherence and Photon Statistics" in room 215, Phillips Hall, at 4 p.m. Tea and coffee will be served one half hour before the talk in the Lounge, room 277 Phillips Hall.

Film Committee meets at 3 p.m. - 4:30 p.m. in the Woodhouse Room.

Thanksgiving Day Committee meets at 4 p.m. in Roland Parker I in GM.

Das Deutsche Verin, the German Club, will have its first meeting at 7:30 in the Faculty Lounge on the 4th floor of Dey Hall. Dr. Taylor will speak on his past 15 months in Europe and there will be refreshments and music. All interested persons are welcome to attend.

All seniors who have not selected Yack proofs, please do so before Wed.

Dorm meeting of freshmen officers from Stacy at 9 p.m., Everett at 10 p.m., and Lewis at 11 p.m.

All students interested in working with mentally retarded children at Murdoch should meet with the Murdoch Committee in Y-Court at 2 p.m.

Graham Memorial Social Committee meets at 4 p.m. in Roland Parker I.

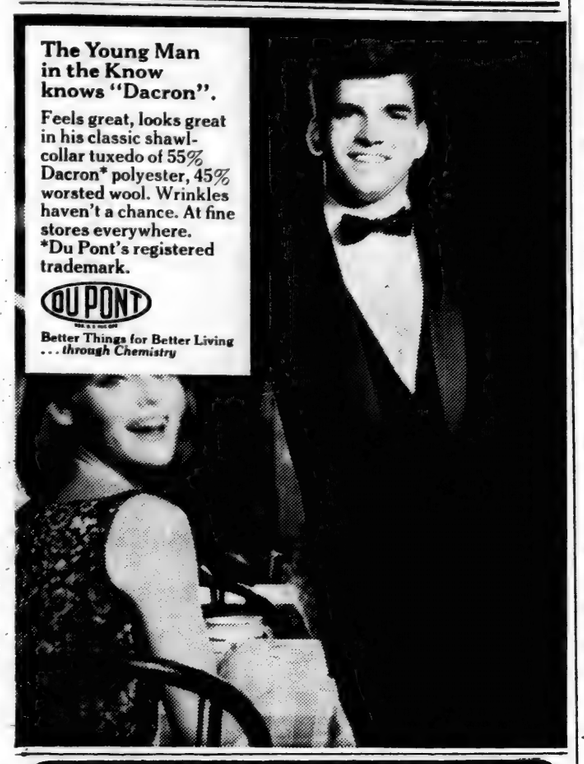
LOST AND FOUND

Lost: A tan wallet Mon. on Campus. A reward if offered. Marshall Boutwell, 752 Morrison, 966-5057.

Lost: One heavy brown corduroy car coat. Name in collar. Call John Neely, 968-9062. A $15 reward is offered.

Lost: A pair of smoke grey framed glasses in a brown leather case with name in it. If found, contact Steve Lisk, 308 Alexander, 968-9105.

METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER PRESENTS
STEVE McQUEEN · EDWARD G. ROBINSON · ANN-MARGRET
KARL MALDEN · TUESDAY WELD
A MARTIN RANSOHOFF PRODUCTION
THE CINCINNATI KID
METROCOLOR
CAROLINA
OPENS FRIDAY



The Young Man in the Know knows "Dacron".

Feels great, looks great in his classic shawl-collar tuxedo of 55% Dacron* polyester, 45% worsted wool. Wrinkles haven't a chance. At fine stores everywhere.
*Du Pont's registered trademark.

DU PONT
Better Things for Better Living ... through Chemistry

people on the go... go BURGER CHEF

College budgets and Burger Chef belong together. Burger Chef ... where 50¢ will buy a complete meal: open-flame broiled hamburger, a rich milk shake, and a heap of crisp golden fries.

BURGER CHEF HAMBURGERS

337 N. ROSEMARY ST.
OPEN 10 A.M. – 11 P.M.

Franchised exclusively by Burger Chef Systems, Indianapolis 7

Home of the World's Greatest 15¢ Hamburger!

UNC Historical Documents Are Being Microfilmed

A project underway at UNC will help scholars across the nation gain access to a number of important manuscript collections.

The Southern Historical Collection here, directed by Dr. James W. Patton, is currently microfilming 20 to 30 of its 3,700 manuscript groups in order that they will be more readily available to interested persons.

A grant for the first year of the proposed two-year program has been provided by the National Historical Publications Commission, National Archives and Records Service.

UNC is one of 16 institutions now participating in the National Historical Publications Commission program for microfilm documentary publication.

WINS TROPHY

Pi Beta Phi sorority has received the Sigma Phi Epsilon trophy for the best homecoming display.

Varsity
NOW PLAYING
"FROM HERE TO ETERNITY" WAS JAMES JONES' GREATEST... UNTIL THIS ONE!
THE THIN RED LINE
A.C.E. Films, Inc. presents A Philip Yordan Production
THE THIN RED LINE
starring KEIR DULLEA (The Star Of "David & Lisa") JACK WARDEN
CINEMASCOPE • Released by ALLIED ARTISTS

It's Children's Book Week

Especially for this occasion, we've tracked down a special lot of the old-timey titles that are still in print.

Add to these the pick of the recent crop, and it's the nicest batch of junior delight imaginable!

FREE BALLOONS!

All this week, there's a Free balloon for each child who brings in a parent!

Enjoy a second childhood this week at the Intimate!

The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill
open every day until 10 pm

CLASSIFIED ADS

FLY — CHARTER FLIGHTS for three persons. 8 cents per mile per person. Two aircraft available. Departure from Chapel Hill. Advance notice please. Contact Bob O'Quin. 968-9033.

FOR SALE: 1962 COMET 4-door, radio, heater. Excellent condition. Best offer accepted. Bob Payton, 212 Teague, 968-9190.

FOR RENT: COMPLETELY furnished 2 bedroom, air conditioned 10 x 45 mobile home. Available Oct. 30. $80 per month. Call 942-3268 or 942-1749.

ROOMS FOR RENT FOR boys. Large bedrooms. Quiet location. Call 968-3761.

STUDENT COMMUTING daily from Raleigh wants to join car pool or find someone to share expenses. Call 833-7093, Raleigh.

JOSEPH'S HAIRSTYLISTS

Featuring its . . . Dreya cosmetic studio

Come in and enjoy a FREE Thirty-Minute Cosmetic Demonstration

Also, choose from our wide selection of human hair wigs, wiglets, and eyelashes and dynel braids. Individual hairstyles by Joseph, Kitty, Janet, and David.

THE CAROLINA BEAUTY SHOP

Three Minutes from Craige to Lenoir . . . . IMPOSSIBLE??

Our new price for C.B. 160 is only $560.00

Travel - On Motorcycle Co.
"Headquarters for Adventure"
504 W. Franklin St.
Chapel Hill, N. C.

"WE ABSOLUTELY REFUSE TO BE UNDERSOLD"

With this one exception, GT&E provides total communications

Small boys have an edge on us when it comes to communicating with non-humans. General Telephone & Electronics makes only this one concession to outside experts.

In all other areas of communication we have an edge. Telephoning, teleprinting, telemetering, teledata, telewriting. And, of course, radio, TV, stereo and military electronics.

Our 30 Telephone Operating Companies serve areas in 33 states. Most of the equipment is manufactured by Automatic Electric, Lenkurt Electric and Sylvania, all members of GT&E's family of companies.

With so much revolving around GT&E, it is small wonder that we have become one of America's foremost corporations.

We're interested in having you know still more about our activities in total communications. So we've prepared a booklet on GT&E that you can obtain from your Campus Director, or by writing General Telephone & Electronics, 730 Third Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017.

GT&E
GENERAL TELEPHONE & ELECTRONICS
730 THIRD AVE., N.Y. 10017 • GT&E SUBSIDIARIES: General Telephone Operating Cos. in 33 states • GT&E Laboratories • GT&E International • General Telephone Directory Co. • Automatic Electric • Lenkurt Electric • Sylvania Electric

CHASE DINING HALL

In addition to our regular student special (50c)

Now Features at Lunch a HOT SANDWICH COUNTER

TODAY'S SANDWICH
JUMBO CHEESEBURGER on Bun, F.F. Potatoes, Cole Slaw
.60

Open: Daily 7-2 5-7:15 Sunday 8-2 5-7:15

• POSITIVELY NO WAITING BREAKFAST OR LUNCH •

Pat Stith

DTH Sports Editor

You have heard it said that it matters not whether you won or lost but how you played the game. As a rule I don't subscribe to that philosophy. But rules are made to be broken and mine was yesterday.

Coach Marvin Allen's booters played Maryland here on Fetzer Field and they lost 1-0. To them it was THE game. They didn't give a hoot about playing a "good" game. They wanted to win, and they didn't and that disappointment must sting.

But they did win it in a way. They won if you count heart and desire and all of those other overused words that sportswriters use to try to describe a team with the guts to throw its whole being into battle.

Since 1962 I've seen at least a part of almost every home Carolina contest. And never have I ever seen a Tar Heel team play with the determination that Allen's boys played with yesterday.

Somebody said that there is not substitute for victory — and perhaps there isn't. Eventually most wins are forgotten, along with losses, but the 3,000 who cheered Carolina soccer team yesterday may never forget that display of raw desire.

It is no shame to lose to Maryland by any score. Since the ACC was formed in 1953 the Terps have never lost a league conference game.

Today though, Maryland can look back over all those victories and say that this was their closest call. After four full quarters of play neither team had scored. The Terps booted one in in the first half of a ten minute overtime and that was that.

Allen's men, undefeated in seven games, wanted it bad and their desire was infectious. The crowd caught their determination and applauded their every move.

They didn't have any cheerleaders and they didn't need any. They were watching a team with heart and they knew it.

Many of them didn't know what the game of soccer was all about but it didn't make any difference. They put their own emotions on the line and cheered that thing called desire.

Jim Tatum said winning was the only thing, but I don't believe it, not any more. Not since I watched those soccer players lose to Maryland 1-0. Not since I watched that Carolina team throw its whole self into the fray and lose.

That game is one I'll long remember, long after those cheap victories, won by teams without the courage to lay their hearts on the line, are forgotten.

An unidentified Carolina player takes a shot at the Maryland goal. It didn't go in—no UNC shots did—and the Terps won 1-0.

Tar Heels Lose In Overtime

Terps Edge UNC, 1-0

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

Mighty Maryland had its hands full with a valiant North Carolina soccer team Monday on Fetzer Field before squeezing out a spine-tingling 1-0 win in overtime.

The Tar Heels played their hearts out, kept up with the Terrapins for four quarters, and seemed on the verge of scoring several times. But the ball refused to go into the net when it seemed that it must.

After the regulation game ended in a scoreless tie, the first of two overtime periods was played. Carolina started a threat immediately, but Maryland bunched its defense around the goal and prevented a score.

Maryland boomed the ball out of their half of the field and Jim Dill passed to Guy Fraiture, with 3:15 gone, Fraiture drilled the ball through the Carolina defense and by goalie Tom Roberts, who apparently never saw the shot.

It was an odd play; Fraiture seemed to come out of nowhere and kicked the ball in before Carolina realized what was happening. It took the spark out of the Tar Heels, who never mounted a threat after that goal.

In the second overtime period Maryland completely dominated the play, merely keeping the ball away from the Tar Heels and playing down on the Carolina half of the field virtually the whole five minutes. Every time a Carolina player would get the ball into Maryland territory a red shirt would knock it back to the other end again.

Maryland took several other good shots at the goal in the second overtime period but failed to score again. As the horn ended the game a crowd of some 3,000 filed silently out of the stands. It was a bitter defeat.

Coach Marvin Allen, shooting for his 100th coaching victory, was dejected after the game, but proud of his boys.

"Everyone played a fine game," he said, "but we probably just weren't meant to win. We played extremely well, well enough to win. We didn't beat ourselves, we just lost to Maryland."

Maryland coach Doyle Royal could not be reached after the game, but manager Jim Teeple said this was "the best Carolina team we've ever played. We thought that whoever won this game would win the conference championship."

The win virtually wraps it up for Maryland. They preserved their record of never having lost an ACC match and scored their fifth win of the year. They have been beaten by Army, 2-1.

Both teams played ruggedly in the first period. Numerous fouls were called and the officials warned both teams several times. There were not too many scoring threats, although Carolina goalie Tom Roberts made a great save on a kick that seemed headed for the high corner of the net.

In the second period the going got rougher and some tempers flared on both sides. Eddie Belmont, Bill Polak and John Loud all had good shots at the goal that were missed or blocked. Maryland's Fraiture blasted one that nearly cut Roberts in half, but the goalie hung on to the ball.

In the third quarter Maryland put heavy pressure on the Tar Heels but couldn't ram the ball in. Then Carolina attacked and Bill Johnston set up Drew Murphy beautifully, but Murphy's shot was just a shade high. Jim Hammer made some fine defensive moves for Carolina in this period.

The fourth quarter was a heart - stopper. The Tar Heels attacked for the entire period and seemed sure of a goal, but it never came.

Bill Johnston scorched a high one that just sailed over the top of the net. Jackie Writer had a good shot but Bill Scarno, Maryland goalie, scooped it up before Writer could kick the ball. Then Scarno was caught out of position and a Carolina shot whizzed by, but hit the edge of the net on the wood and stopped dead.

The fourth quarter ended and still no one had scored. Then came the overtime and Carolina's first soccer defeat after seven wins.

Laggards Sent To Showers

By SANDY TREADWELL
DTH Sports Writer

Larry Brown made it big in the game of basketball because he has one major philosophy — when you're on a court with a ball in your hands you hustle for all you're worth.

As a freshman coach Brown demands hustle above all else.

The Coach has his boys warm up by charging from one side of the court and then back again and again and . .

During the scrimmage he yells, "Come on push it. Move. Stick with that man."

Yesterday afternoon in the Tin Can Brown looked on as several of his boys jogged down the boards while gasping for air. "That's really miserable," he said. "We haven't been at this for more than a quarter and already you guys are beat."

Minutes later a big tall boy let his man drift behind him and push the ball down through the strings. Brown blew his whistle long and hard.

The Coach stopped the scrimmage and looked at his tall athlete. "All I'm asking of you guys is to give me two hours of hard work every afternoon. If you're not willing to hustle then you're not willing to play ball. And you can march right through that door and stay the hell through it."

Then the small man turned to some of his other boys. "That goes for some of the rest of you also. You, you, and you act like you want a little vacation. Go ahead, get out of here. You fellas are through for the day."

Brown's a small man and for a large part of his life he's played a game that requires long arms and longer legs.

Brown more than existed in the world of basketball. He became a star.

He was a guard at Carolina and he more than compensated for his height. Brown plowed around the floor. He scrambled and streaked from one basket to another.

Larry Brown is a coach who doesn't play games. Coach Larry Brown is tough. He demands the one thing out of his players that must be demanded. And for it he has earned respect in his first few weeks at his job.

Harriers Face Virginia In Final Duel Meet

North Carolina's varsity and freshman cross country teams journey to Charlottesville, today to run the Cavaliers in the last dual meet of the season.

The varsity harriers will be shooting for their sixth win of the season against one loss, to Maryland.

The Tar Babies, 5-0, will be going for a perfect season.

Next Monday the harriers will try for the state cross country championship where they will have to face Duke again. Last Wednesday they upset the Blue Devils 28-29 while the freshmen did the same 23-24.

Then in another week Coach Joe Hilton's runners will try to win back the cross country crown the Terps stole from them last year at the ACC Championship Meet.

The championship meet, November 15, will give the Tar Heels a rematch with Maryland. North Carolina lost to the Terps 16-47 earlier in the season.

The Terps are undefeated, but Duke whom the harriers beat, came within 10 points of them, the closest anyone has come all season long.

Sports Schedule

Today: Frosh and varsity harriers take on Virginia away.

Friday: Frosh footballers go after Big Four Championship against Wake Forest here. Frosh booter play Appalachian here.

Saturday: Hickey's men take on Clemson in the final home game of the year. The soccer team plays national defending champion Navy away.

Carr Is Out

Coach Jim Hickey announced yesterday that junior George Zadjeika will replace wide end Charlie Carr in Saturday's game against Clemson.

Carr injured his hand in the final minutes of the Georgia game. He will see only limited action as a kicker against the Tigers.

The Tar Heels worked extensively on defense yesterday after giving up 436 yards and 47 points to Georgia.

Clemson is undefeated in conference play. Their only losses have been to Georgia Tech and Georgia.

Carr's injury was the only one the team suffered in Saturday's game.

Same Old Danny

The national sports publications seem to be running a contest with each other, seeing who can throw the most whammies on the top college and professional teams and players.

When Texas was unbeaten and top-ranked three weeks ago, Sports Illustrated printed a story on the team, centering around All America linebacker Tommy Nobis. That Saturday, Texas lost to Arkansas, and now has dropped three straight.

Then The Sporting News ran a feature on Duke's Scotty Glacken when the Blue Devils were 4-0. Now Glacken is out with an injury, and Duke has lost three straight.

This week, the pro Green Bay Packers rated the front page feature of SN. So before the issue was in the hands of its subscribers, the Packers were upset.

But try as they might, they couldn't do it to Carolina's dandy dan of dauntless deeds, Danny Talbott.

They ran a feature on Talbott several weeks ago, but last Saturday Danny broke the single-game total yardage record at UNC and boosted his total offense total for the season to 1,110.

Nice goin', Danny.

MILL OUTLET SALES ROOM
Ladies First Quality HOSE
Three Pairs $1.25
"All Popular Fall Shades, Also Nurses' White Hose
UPSTAIRS OVER SUTTON'S Drug Store

20th Century-Fox WINNER OF 3 ACADEMY AWARDS!
ANTHONY QUINN
ALAN BATES
IRENE PAPAS
in MICHAEL CACOYANNIS' PRODUCTION
"ZORBA THE GREEK"
LILA KEDROVA
RIALTO, Durham
Fri.-Sun. at 1:42, 4:07, 6:33, 9:00
Mon.-Thurs. at 1.05, 3:30, 6:00, 830

SENIORS and GRADUATE STUDENTS!
Don't miss this bet!
Put the important story of you and your skills in front of employers who do NOT send recruiters to your campus.
Top-flight companies—large and small—from all over the U.S. use Q E D to find seniors and graduate students who fit their job opportunities.
Write for details TODAY.
QED Box 147, Brownsville, New York 10706

DISTINCTIVE SPORT SHIRTING
with so many sport shirts being worn on campus we feel that distinctiveness is an important criteria.
EAGLE'S AFFERBACK cloth (20% wool 80% cotton) and imported flemish flannel have been early favorites. Bold plaids and checks compliment our selection.
Our fine sport shirts start at 5.95.
Varsity Men's Wear
Clothiers of Distinction
147 E. Franklin

Have a big weekend?
We make loans on typewriters, pistols, guns, radios, record players, musical instruments, watches, rings, cameras, microscopes, tape recorders.
FIVE POINTS LOAN CO.
339 W. Main St. . . . at Five Points
Downtown Durham

KING WILLIAM RESTAURANT
Specializing in
STEAKS CHICKEN
SEAFOOD
"Choice Selection of Imported and Domestic Beverages"
All New and Modern, featuring
Seating Capacity of 300
• Spacious Parking
• Four Private dining rooms
• Tasteful background music
• Catering facilities
1½ Miles From Campus on 15-501 South
Open Seven Days a Week 8:00 A.M. 'til Midnight

FLY NEW YORK $49.50 Round Trip
THANKSGIVING
Lv. Raleigh-Durham 2:00 p.m. Nov. 24
Ar. JFK 3:30 p.m.
Lv. JFK 9:40 p.m. Nov. 28
Ar. Raleigh-Durham 11:10 p.m.
FLY CHICAGO $60.00 Round Trip
CHRISTMAS
Lv. Raleigh-Durham 2:00 p.m. EST Dec. 18
Ar. Ohare 3:15 p.m. EST
Lv. Ohare 9:00 a.m. EST Jan. 2
Ar. Raleigh-Durham 12:15 p.m. EST
All flights NONSTOP in 104 DC-7C's
WRITE: A&J Travel
Box 4728,
Duke Sta. Durham
SAVE! MONEY, TIME, TROUBLE!
Offer Limited — Call or Write Soon!!

If You Like
Voltaire
We've just added a clump of his books to our 68c shelf. Lots of other good buys there, too
The INTIMATE BOOKSHOP
119 E. Franklin St.
Open Till 10 P.M.

Imported and Domestic Country Gentlemen
TWEEDS with Tradition
These handsome tweeds in a kaleidoscope of rich and robust textures are well suited for either town or country wear. Every detail of model and tailoring has been carefully interpreted to achieve a truly natural shoulder suit.
FROM $59.95
Varsity Men's Wear
Clothiers of Distinction
Charge Accounts Invited

BRITISH BUFFERCOAT
SUEDE CLOTH with half inset sleeve and shawl collar. Pure wool body lining in contrasting colors.
$49.50
Julian's
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Auto Bridge
Play-yourself Bridge Game
Play Bridge
Learn Alone
Become an Expert
only $1.75
BILLY ARTHUR
Expert

GINA LOLLOBRIGIDA · ELKE SOMMER · VIRNA LISI · MONICA VITTI
bambole!
those sensational DOLLS ...Italian Style!!
A Royal Films International Presentation
CAROLINA
LAST TIMES TODAY

Norelco Continental '101'
100% transistorized for on the spot record/playback . . . up to 2 hours on a single reel. 2 track 1⅞ ips constant speed machine weighs 8 lbs. with 6 flashlight batteries. Features dynamic microphone, tone control, record/level/battery condition indicator. Includes direct recording patch-cord. Frequency response 80 to 8000 cps. 11" x 3¾" x 8".
Wholesale Prices on Tubes, Speakers, Tape Recorders, Tape, Batteries, Microphones, Hi-Fi and Stereo Components, Kits, and Wires, etc.
Vickers Electronics
506 EAST MAIN STREET
Phone 684-0527 DURHAM

GANT
SHIRTMAKERS

Woolster
All luxury—this luxuriant all-wool worsted Gant sport shirt. In rich-hued monotones; in not-often-seen multi-colored patterns. Can be worn in or out.
Town & Campus

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Bring 'Em In

Wanted badly by DTH business staff — Oct. 28 copies of The Daily Tar Heel. If you have one please bring it by the DTH office.

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Vol. 74, No. 44 | CHAPEL HILL NORTH CAROLINA THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 1965 | Founded February 23, 1893

Let There Be Love

DTH Editor Ernie McCrary comments on Otelia Connor's proposal for "love - making" nooks. See page 2 for the heart-warming editorial.

Speaker Ban Commission Will Give Report Friday

RALEIGH (AP) — The Speaker Ban Study Commission will make its report to Gov. Dan Moore Friday. The report may lead to a special session of the General Assembly later this month consider amending the controversial law.

Rep. David M. Britt of Fairmont, chairman of the Commission created by the 1965 General Assembly, said yesterday the report will be made to the governor in the old House Chamber at the State Capitol at 2:30 p.m. Friday.

If the commission should recommend repeal or amendment to the law, the governor may call a special session of the General Assembly to act on the recommendation. Some Capitol Hill observers believe a special session will be called for later this month.

The report follows public hearings and long weeks of study by the nine-member commission.

The speaker ban law forbids communist or persons who have pleaded the Fifth Amendment in loyalty hearings from speaking on the campuses of state - supported colleges.

At the study group's hearings, representatives of most of the state - supported colleges appeared to urge that the law be repealed or substantially amended.

They contended it violates the principal of academic freedom and takes from the college trustees the power to decide who is to speak on the campuses.

The college spokesmen also pointed out that the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools has stated the law threatens the accreditation of State - supported colleges and universities.

They said loss of accreditation would mean the loss of faculty members.

Some said the schools already have lost faculty members because of the law.

A number of persons appeared before the study group to urge that the speaker ban be retained without change. These included representatives of the American Legion.

The Southern Association of Colleges and Schools will meet at Richmond, Va., the last of the month. An official has expressed the opinion the state-supported colleges and university will be placed on probation if the law is not repealed or amended.

Constitutional Council Says Recall Petition Not Valid

THE CONSTITUTIONAL COUNCIL listens to testimony from David Kiel, standing, at yesterday's hearing on the appeal of the Elections Board's ruling disqualifying the recall petition. Members of the Council are, left to right: Bill Robinson, Valerie Gwynne, Leith Merrow, Van MacNair, Stu Kagel, Emily Cathey, and Bill Miller. At the table with Kiel are Alvin Tyndall, left, Elections Board chairman, and Arthur Hays.—DTH Photo By Ernest Robl

More Names Can Still Be Put On Lists

By ED FREAKLEY
DTH Staff Writer

The Student Government Constitutional Council ruled last night that the Dickson recall petition "has not attained the status of a valid petition."

But the council also said the petition was still "living" and that names could be added or subtracted until an election is held or the student in question leaves office.

After hearing two hours of arguments from David Kiel, who represented the petitioners, and Arthur Hays, who represented the Elections Board, the Council reached a decision after a 50 minute deliberation.

Chairman Van MacNair read the unanimous decision of the seven member council: "This petition has not attained the status of a valid petition because approximately 33 of the sheets were signed with the intention that a recall election would be held 'on or before Tues., Oct. 12, 1965, or on Tues., Oct. 19, 1965.' Since these dates have passed we feel that the names there on are definitely invalid.

"We feel the rest of the names are valid and will remain so until a recall election is held or the student in question leaves office. In other words, we feel that the signatures represent a 'living petition,' the names of which can be added or subtracted until the election.

"We realize the inconvenience of this action, but until laws are passed in this area we are given no other alternative."

Following the decision Kiel said, "I can't help feeling that the Council in this matter based its decision upon a minor technicality. This is not the first time the rights of the students have been frustrated by legalisms.

"Nevertheless it is still heartening that the record will show that 1,900 students, almost half the normal voting students, had enough concern about their Student Government to support this petition. I share their disappointment."

Kiel said he would have to think about further action before saying whether he would continue with the petition.

During the arguments Kiel maintained that the Elections Board was not the proper body to make decisions which were not covered in the constitution and the validating of the petition should be supervised by the Council.

Keil also said there was much ambiguity and mismanagement on both sides.

Hayes argued that the Elections Board did their best and the most any "reasonable man" could expect.

"Dragging this out makes many students feel Student Government is Mickey Mouse. I sincerely do not believe it is."

Hayes said the students accept Paul Dickson as their president. "I'm sure the administration accepts him also," he said.

Hayes alleged DTH Editor Ernie McCrary had called a "certain organizer" of the petition to tell him to bring in more names the night the petition was invalidated.

Di-Phi Resolution Asks Faculty Support Of Code

The Di-Phi Senate passed a resolution Tuesday night calling for all faculty members to observe the Honor Code "in the fullest spirit of cooperation."

John Harrison, President of Di-Phi, said, "The faculty should be under the same discipline in regard to the Honor System as the students." He said today they are not and added, "This is a dual standard and is intolerable."

Harrison said that faculty members that violated the code should be tried by a faculty court with fines imposed for violations.

He said the Honor System needed "the continued support of all the members of the university community."

The resolution was introduced by Baxter Linney, Critic of the Society, who handles all complaints given to the Senate. The Di - Phi Senate heard the complaint "about non - adherance to the Code by certain members of the University Community" since the two societies were "the creators of the Honor Code."

Harrison said fines for violations should be $100 or less. He said repeated offenses should mean suspension. If a faculty member refused to abide by the code, "he should be fired," Harrison said.

Harrison said the first time an instructor proctored a quiz, students should refuse to sign the pledge. The second time, students should refuse to take the quiz, he said.

The resolution was passed after debate on whether the U.S. should legalize the sale of dope. Richard Starling of the State Bureau of Investigation was the principal speaker. The Senate decided "no" on the question.

Netherlands Orchestra To Perform Sunday Night

The Netherlands Chamber Orchestra, one of Europe's finest small ensemble, will play a program of Bach, Bartok, Haydn and Flothuis in Memorial Hall Sunday night at 8.

The 25 young virtuoso string players, conducted by famed violinist Szymon Goldberg, are appearing on campus under the auspices of the Chapel Hill Concert Series.

The balcony of Memorial Hall will be set aside for students, who will be admitted free of charge upon presentation of their I.D. cards.

Marius Flothuis is the only unfamiliar name on the Dutch group's program for Sunday. He holds the post of artistic director of the Amsterdam Concertgebouw Orchestra and is also one of Holland's leading contemporary composers.

This year marks the fourth North American tour for the Netherlands Chamber Orchestra since its organization in 1955. In addition to its Chapel Hill appearance, the group will be playing in New York's Lincoln Center, Boston, Washington, Chicago and eight other major U. S. cities.

Philosophical Club Inducts New Members On Sunday

The Carolina Philosophical Society will hold a meeting for organization and initiation Sunday at 7 p.m. in 213 Caldwell Hall.

Dr. E. M. Adams, Chairman of the Philosophy Department, will speak at the meeting.

Twenty-nine new members to be inducted to the society include: Louisa Wilson; Barry Armour; Diane Travis; Sharon Rose; Wayne Baggert; Lois Black; Bill Michaux; L. B. Johnson; Bill Armfield; Jane Marcotte; Ron Kaplan; Susan Barron and Jos Carlisle.

Also to be admitted are: Dick Sayre; George Gellman; John Sauls; Borne Wiggins; Kitty Hawthorne; Richard Thayer; Ann Fowler; Bill Woodall; Franz Guenthner; Joe Burton; Chris Marney; Sharon Widdle; Scott Ackerman; Mary King; Chip Barnard; Steve Skiei.

"We are extremely pleased to see as much interest in an area that has previously been devoided of any focal organization for students," commented interim society president Bill Woodall.

Vacancies that may occur in the society membership will be filled by interested students.

Appointment System To Get Vote

By JOHN GREENBACKER
DTH Political Writer

A bill which will allow the student body to vote on constitutional amendments making the positions of student body secretary and treasurer appointive was passed by Student Legislature by a vote of 24 to 9 Tuesday night.

The referendum will be held during the fall elections next Tuesday.

According to the text of the constitutional referendum, the student body secretary will or will not become an appointee of the student body president, according to the outcome of the student vote.

If students vote "yes" to the second constitutional amendment, the formerly elective position of student body treasurer will be filled by a qualified student selected by a special Student Government board of financial experts.

'Non-Political'

The bill was supported by legislators who felt the two offices were non - political, non-policy making jobs which needed competent persons rather than attractive candidates to fill them.

The legislature voted down another constitutional amendment bill which would give the students the opportunity to require candidates for the president Government presidency and vice presidency to be elected from the same ticket.

The secretary-treasurer bill, introduced by Elaine Carlson (SP), was originally worded to propose the student body president be allowed to appoint the treasurer. Student Party Floor Leader Don Wilson successfully amended the bill to propose a special board to choose a qualified treasurer.

Board Composition

The board would be composed of the current student body treasurer, the Student Government Budget Committee chairman, the Student Legislature Finance Committee chairman, a faculty member of the Audit Board, the Audit Board chairman and the incoming and outgoing student body presidents.

The board would meet within two weeks after the spring elections to choose the new treasurer.

Wilson told the body he didn't want just the student body president to select the treasurer.

Commenting on the possible loss of direct student body control over the selection of the treasurer, Wilson said, "If the students want to deprive themselves of this right, let them do so.

"This way we will get the best possible treasurer for the student body," he said.

Committees Opposed

Wilson's proposal met opposition from Speaker Pro Tem Jim Little (SP), who said much selection boards were "cluttering up Student Government."

Wilson's selection board proposal passed 21 to 15.

Miss Carlson sought support for her bill by reading the body a statement in its favor written by current treasurer Tom White.

She listed the names of past student body secretaries and treasurers who supported the bill.

Kathy Cauble (UP) attacked the treasurer selection portion of the bill because she said there was no need for such legislation.

"The students have done a good job of selecting the treasurer in the past," she said. "This bill's supporters say they want to relieve the position of student body treasurer of political qualifications," she said. "They don't seem to realize that there is nothing more political than a political appointee."

Miss Cauble later attempted to move privileges of the floor to Student Body Secretary Sherry O'Donnell, but the body voted not to allow her to speak.

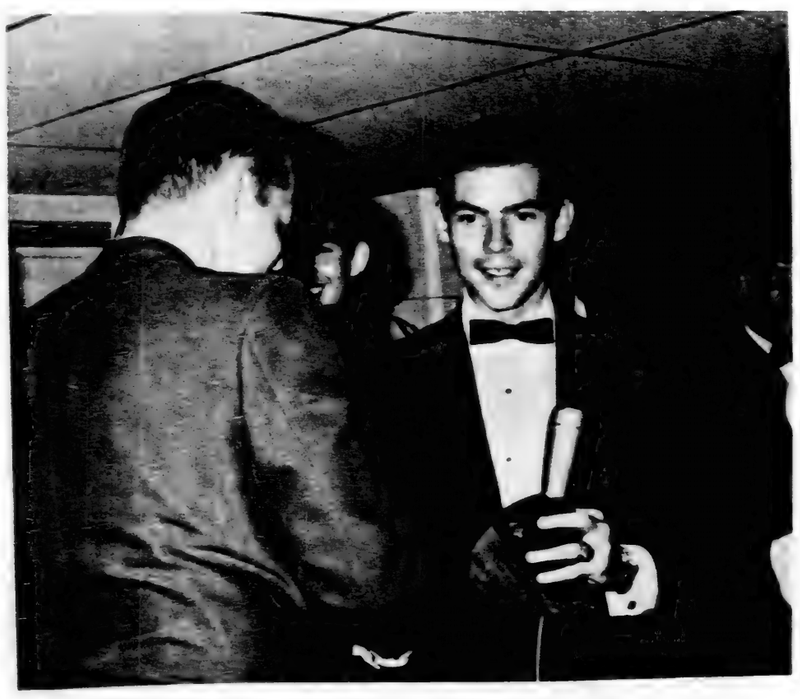
Statement

In a statement issued yesterday, Miss O'Donnell said she objected to Student Legislature's seeking to eliminate "the only campus-wide elected position that a coed can presently hold on this campus.

Coed Suffers Sever Burns

An 18-year-old coed was severely burned on her right arm Tuesday night while working on a painting in Smith Residence Hall.

Linda Ruth, a freshman from Hendersonville, is in North Carolina Memorial Hospital. A hospital spokesman said doctors have not determined how bad the burns are or whether Miss Ruth will have to undergo plastic surgery.



DEAN OF MEN William G. Long is presented with a plaque as honorary "House Father" of Morrison dorm by Big Mo Governor Byron McCoy. The happy event took place Saturday during a combo party.
— DTH Photo By Ernest Robl

Lindsay Gets Word From LBJ

WASHINGTON (AP) — New York's Republican Mayor - elect John V. Lindsay, first of his party to capture that title in 24 years, got congratulations and a promise of cooperation today from President Johnson.

Both Democrats and Republicans claimed comfort in the outcome of yesterday's off - year elections, which saw Democratic campaigners capture the other two top prizes, the Governorships of New Jersey and Virginia.

Lindsay, the lanky, 43-year-old Congressman from Manhattan's silk stocking district, hit the New York sidewalks again, this time to thank the voters who zoomed him to victory over Democrat Abraham D. Beame.

Johnson told Lindsay he will work to make sure that Federal and city officials join forces "to make New York a good place to live."

Lindsay's triumph, by a 136,-144 - vote margin in a heavily Democratic city, vaulted him to the vanguard of the GOP, even though his campaign stance shunned the party banner. Some Republicans talked of a potential Presidential future for the handsome young New Yorker.

Democrats scoffed at Republican claims the Lindsay victory would bolster the GOP, trounced across the nation in Johnson's Democratic landslide a year ago.

In the two big victories for Democrats, New Jersey Gov. Richard J. Hughes rolled up a record, 318,000 - vote re-election margin, and Lt. Gov. Mills E. Godwin, Jr. was chosen Virginia's 21st consecutive Democratic governor.

Lindsay, who refused in 1964 to endorse Republican Presidential nominee Barry Goldwater, withstood the Johnson tide to win his fourth term in the House.

Goldwater his silent today on the New York City outcome.

Democratic National Chairman John M. Bailey, said the Lindsay triumph could not be rated a victory for the Republican Party," Bailey said, "and in his campaign for mayor he stayed as far as possible from the Republican lable."

"Congressman Lindsay carefully disassociated himself from the national policy, program and leadership of the Republican party," Bailey said, "and in his campaign for mayor he stayed as far as possible from the Republican label."

GOP National Chairman Ray C. Bliss said Republican big-city gains will help his party. "The good candidates will look at this," he said, "realize that a Republican can win if things go right and get out and file."

"We did make gains," Bliss added, "and thereby provided impetus to our efforts to strengthen the Republican position in metropolitan areas of the nation." He pointed to Philadelphia, Louisville, and his home town of Akron, Ohio, as other samples of Republican victory in the cities.

In Philadelphia, Republicans won their first citywide office in a dozen years. They did it with Arlen Specter, a registered Democrat. He beat Democratic Dist. Atty. James C Crumlish, Jr., by 35,000 votes.

"The adage that Rpublicans cannot win in the big cities is now out the window," said Gov. William W. Scranton. But the GOP news wasn't so good in some Pennsylvania cities. A Democrat, James T. Walsh, topped the Republican Mayor of Scranton, the Governor's home town. Democrats ousted Republicans in Erie, Lancaster, and Allentown, too.

Honor Council

There will be a compulsory meeting for all Honor Council candidates this afternoon at 3 p.m. in Roland Parker Lounge I of Graham Memorial according to Elections Board Chairman Alvin Tyndall.

Wabash Students Angry; Depauw Has Their Bell

GREENCASTLE, Ind., (AP) — A friendly "si, si, Senor," and the next thing Depauw University knew the Monon Bell was gone.

The bell, symbol of victory in the annual football clash between Depauw and Wabash, had been at Depauw for 10 years before it was snatched by a group of Wabash students.

One student posed as a reporter from Mexico City doing an article on college life in the United States. Well versed in Spanish, he had lunch with the Depauw president, discussed scholarships with the director of admissions, conversed with other officials and finally was shown the secret hiding place of the treasured bell.

Depauw officials today confirmed Monday night's prank. They do not expect the bell to show up again until Depauw plays Wabash here Nov. 13.

Wabash is in Crawfordsville, Inc., 30 miles north of here.

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of the Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. Letters and columns, covering a wide range of views, reflect the personal opinions of their authors.

ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

No Place For Love

The self-appointed guardian of UNC's manners and morals is well-known for being as quick on the draw with her words as she is with her umbrella.

Always conscious of her "duty" to save poor bumbling students from themselves, Otelia Connor has submitted another letter to the DTH, and we think it is deserving of special attention.

She says:

Yesterday I had a card from an anonymous writer asking me to write about the necking and petting in the Arboretum. She said it was disgusting to visitors who want to see the Arboretum.

Well, I didn't think I would take her up on it, but so many people said they thought I should, that here goes.

In my opinion young people have got to have some place to neck. The Arboretum is closed to couples at night. They cannot neck in the dormitories, so the Arboretum seems to be the only private place around here, except for a few visitors. It certainly is a better place than the campus or automobiles, or the woods.

Someone said I ought to have seen them necking in the autos in the parking lot on Rosemary Street yesterday! If anyone thinks that 12,000 young people are going to spend four to seven years at the University, just sitting around twiddling their thumbs, they have another thought coming.

The dormitories and the churches should provide rooms for courting couples where they can do their love-making in private. There should always be a hostess on hand, but she will not be in evidence. And there should be a limit on the time, say eleven o'clock, when the male would have to leave. In that way we would have some control over the young people. As it is now, all love making is strictly off limits. We know what happened during Prohibition. It also applies to love-making.

This is a problem which the administration has always tried to sweep under the bed, but Otelia is not going to let it go untouched any longer.

The only factual error in her argument is her statement that couples are not allowed in the Arb after dark. Legally, couples may make nocturnal visits to the garden, but technically Otelia is right — many of them avoid the place because of the danger of being stepped on.

It is indeed a sad situation when that wild and dangerous Arb or terribly uncomfortable and non-private cars are the only places couples can go to make love.

But really, Otelia, we think it is too optimistic to ask the churches to provide such facilities, even with invisible hostesses on duty.

We think a much better idea would be for the President of the Student Body to personally investigate this vital matter, and give us his recommendations.

Things Could Be Worse

For those who feel that UNC is having a less-than-successful football season, there is consolation to be found at Susquehanna University in Pennsylvania.

Head Coach James W. Garrett had built a proud 39-4-1 record during his five years at the school. But something went wrong this year. The team lost its seventh consecutive game last week, and Garrett and his three assistants blew the whistle and called it quits Monday — they all resigned.

The team has two games left this season, and University President Gustave Weber has left his desk to fill the coaching shoes. He isn't exactly without experience, though, because he won nine letters in football, baseball and basketball during his college days.

It's handy to have a versatile school administration. And by the way — President Friday, did you ever play football?

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; John Jennrich, associate editor; Barry Jacobs, managing editor; Fred Thomas, news editor, Pat Stith, sports editor; Gene Rector, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; John Greenbacker, political writer; Ed Freakley, Andy Myers, Lynne Harvel, Lynne Sizemore, David Rothman, Ray Linville, staff writers; Jack Harrington, bus. mgr.; Tom Clark, asst. bus. mgr.; Woody Sobol, ad. mgr.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all ap news dispatches.

"I Don't Give A Happy Damn What Otelia Says!"

Mike Jennings

Col. Penkovsky Knew That US And Russia Were Not Compatible

Sometimes, I think, even the most patriotic American wonders whether the issue between communism and democracy is really so clear-cut.

Peaceniks — and some political scientists — tell us that clear-cut differences between governments don't exist anymore, if they ever did. Russia's evolving image is that of a rambunctious adolescent who is finally learning some responsibility. It would seem that Russia and the U. S. will become increasingly more compatible as each plugs along toward the Great Society, until finally all differences are erased. Then, in a world swathed in a blue haze of consumption and socialism, colleges in the two countries can exchange folk singers to further cultural understanding, and all will be well.

I'm not so sure. All Will Rogers knew was what he read in the papers. If he were alive today, he'd know this:

Communist countries are jails. They lock people inside.

Whenever communist countries open their doors, as they did in Hong Kong, people stream out by the thousands. Nobody goes in.

No communist government has ever ever been elected by a popular vote.

Colonel Vladimirovich Penkovsky probably didn't read those facts in the papers, but he knew they were true. Colonel Penkovsky was an intelligence officer in the Russian Army. He was also the most successful spy in modern history. He was a spy for the West.

Penkovsky rocked Nikita Khrushchev's regime to its foundations. He began furnishing high-priority information to Western officials in April, 1961. For two years he transmitted a flood of Soviet secrets, concerning such projects as the Cuban missile buildup and Russian nuclear capabilities.

Penkovsky's own story of his thoughts and activities as a spy will soon be published by Doubleday. Here are some excerpts:

". . . I happened to marry a general's daughter and quickly found myself in a society of the Soviet upper classes. I was one of the privileged.

"But I soon realized that their praise of the party and communism was only in words. In their private lives they lie, deceive, scheme against each other, intrigue, inform, cut each other's throats . . .

"The ideals which so many of our fathers and brothers died for have turned out to be nothing more than a bluff and a deceit. I know the army and there are many of us in the officer corps who feel the same way. But they are afraid . . . Each man here is alone.

"From what I have learned and what I have heard, I know that the leaders of our Soviet state are the willing provocateurs of an atomic war . . .

"In Moscow I have lived in a nuclear nightmare . . . I know the poison of the new military doctrine, as outlined in the top-secret Special Collection — the plan to strike first, at any cost . . .

"This you must understand. That is why I write these observations of mine to the people of the United States and Great Britain. I ask only that you believe the sincerity of my thoughts. Henceforth I am your soldier . . ."

It seems ironic that a Russian should be willing to be our soldier, when many of our own people are not.

Penkovsky was caught in October, 1962. He pleaded guilty at his trial; apparently he did so in order to secure decent treatment for his family. In May, 1963, he was shot.

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel welcomes letters to the editor on any subject, particularly on matters of local or University interest. Letters must be typed, double spaced and must include the name and address of the author or authors. Names will not be omitted in publication. Letters should be kept as brief as possible. The DTH reserves the right to edit for length or libel.

David Rothman

Roger Retard And The Draft, Or How To Beat The Mental Standards

What happened after the Army lowered its mental standards?

To find out, I visited a training center.

The first soldier I encountered there was Roger Retard.

"How'd you get into the Army?" I asked him after learning he had an I.Q. of 67.

"I told my Selective Service Board I wanted to get drafted," he said. "Ordinarily, they're quite suspicious in these cases, but since the adoption of the new mental standards, they've changed their minds. Now they figure that anybody wishing to get drafted is dumb enough to serve. So they promptly snapped me up and sent me to Officers Candidate School."

"And?"

"They knew right away I was top-notch material when I volunteered for K.P. duty. They said that showed I had initiative."

"Did you continue to progress through the ranks?"

"Sorta. I informed my base commander I barely managed to graduate from elementary school never read books and always had to be told where the men's room was. 'Excellent,' the commander said, 'you're obviously the type who'll feel compelled to follow orders.' "

"But tell me, Retard, didn't the Army worry about your lack of book learning?"

"The people said: 'There's only one way — the Army way, and we're very happy you've never learned to do things another way.'

"Then they explained how proud they were of the Army's history. You know, that tank they used during World War II was quite a machine. But why the heck did they name it after a humorist like Allen Sherman?"

"I bet they didn't take you into the Army because of your personality."

"Sure they did. They especially liked my cussing — said they wanted me to tutor the drill sergeants."

"How far have you gone through the ranks?"

"Far enough to quarrel with Secretary of Defense MacNamara."

"Why'd they send you back to the training center?"

"I know it's a sad story but I'll tell it to you anyway. Here's why I'm no longer a major general:

"I stopped filching liquor from the PX.

"I went on to college and did graduate work in sanitary engineering.

"I didn't show up at the right cocktail parties.

"I no longer chewed tobacco.

"I worked overtime.

"I had dinner at the MacNamara's

"Immediately, everybody said I'd lost the necessary esprit de corps. They insisted my character was unsatisfactory for military service.

"Moreover, they resented the fact that I no longer did the dirty work the other major-generals so bitterly detested.

"Yes — the final blow came after I stopped volunteering for everybody else's K.P. duty."

Nobel Peace Prize Is Overdue For UNICEF

By ALAN BANOV

Both the United Nations and the Nobel Prizes have been criticized for some time for various reasons.

Recently both institutions were given a deserved boost when the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund (UNICEF) was awarded the 1965 Nobel Peace Prize.

The Nobel Prize Committee was criticized last year by segregationists for awarding the peace prize to Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., the civil rights leader. The committee is always under attack for its selections in literature.

The Nobel Peace Prize has the noble purpose of recognizing the person, persons or institution which "shall have most or best promoted the fraternity of nations and the abolishment or reduction of standing armies and the formation and extension of peace congresses."

Past winners have included Ralph Bunche, Theodore Roosevelt, Woodrow Wilson, George Marshall, Lester Pearson, Jane Addas, the International Red Cross (several times) and the American Friends Service.

UNICEF is the second U.N. organization to receive the award. The U. N. High Commission for Refugees was honored in 1954, and various U. N. leaders have often been considered for the prize.

Almost since its inception, though, the international organization has been criticized — for having too much power, for having too little power and for other reasons. In this country such conservatives as Robert Welch, Edwin Walker and Robert Shelton have demanded that the U. S. withdraw from the U. N. Liberals have deprecated the omission from the world body of Communist China and other states.

Such criticism has often reared its ugly head at this time of the year when children and adults "Trick or Treat for UNICEF." In some areas of the country the John Birch Society and other conservative organizations have waged active campaigns against the UNICEF drives.

UNICEF, which has been headed by Americans since its beginning, is the branch of the U. N. that collects monies in affluent countries such as the U. S. to be used to feed and heal the needy children of the world. The organization, like CARE, is able to send a great deal of food and medicine abroad for amazingly small amounts of money.

For exmple, a few cents given in the U. S. are enough to furnish a starving child in Brazil with several quarts of milk or a hungry kid in Algeria with a few loaves of bread.

It is very fitting that UNICEF was honored during U. N. Week, which was celebrated at Chapel Hill, in North Carolina and throughout the world.

Some forms of nuclear disarmament may not be economically or politically feasible, but feeding hungry children has always been an effective cure for social problems and an important aid for world peace.

No one should expect to see complete peace in the world in the foreseeble future. However ,the Nobel Peace Prize is a meritorious incentive to those few persons who are striving conscientiously for it.

Letters To The Editor

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

I wish to call attention to a serious typographical error made either by me or you in my article, " 'Deplorable' Recall Is Symbol Of Public Face Versus Private Morals," published in the "Liberal Comment" column on November 2. In the concluding paragraph a phrase of a sentence reads ". . . and by which even the university lies . . ." The phrase should read ". . . and by which even the university lives . . ." I do not wish to suggest that the university exercises its freedom by lying.

There is also a typographical error, or misprint, in the name of one of our most distinguished political philosophers, quoted in the second paragraph. The philosopher is Hannah Arndt.

Banks O. Godfrey, Jr.
Chapel Hill

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Although Castro's offer to let Cubans leave their country is not the same as free elections, it is a humane action. The U. S. should reciprocate by encouraging the emigration from the U. S. of the small minority, including SPU "soup-fast" enthusiasts and SDS backbiters, dissatisfied with our country and its policies, so that they can seek a happier life in Cuba, North Viet Nam, or any other paradise.

Don Thompson
113 Mangum

GM PRESENTS

NANCY WILSON

With SI ZENTNER and His Band

Coming Sat. Nov. 6 at 8 p.m.

TICKETS GO ON SALE
THIS WED. — FOR U.N.C. STUDENTS
U.N.C. STUDENTS — $1.00
GENERAL PUBLIC TICKET SALES BEGIN
NOV. 3 — $1.50 for GENERAL PUBLIC

Prof Tells TX About Canadians

"The one thing that ties Canadians together is they don't want to be Americans," a noted Duke University professor told UNC's 30 Toronto Exchange students Monday afternoon.

Dr. Richard H. Preston, Duke's W. K. Boyd Professor of Commonwealth History, explained that Canadians believe their culture is in many ways different and in some ways superior to that in the United States.

"Each of the Canadian provinces is culturally different, but their desire to remain independent keeps Canada from disintegrating and rapidly falling under total United States influence," he continued.

A native of Kingston, Ontario, Dr. Preston fears not military or political takeover by the United States, but a slow cultural absorption of Canada by "the giant to the south."

"The separate French Canadian culture is tremendously important since this the French culture in Quebec Province is the main thing that distinguishes Canada from the United States.

"Here you tend to try to integrate all races and nationalities under the same linguistic and cultural traditions — the phrase 'melting pot' symbolizes this idea. In Canada even the constitution guarantees the right of the French Canadians to a separate culture and language. This is as it should be, though political disunity is the price we have to pay."

Dr. Preston, who is a member of the dominate English - speaking segment of the Canadian population, fears that the 1967 celebration of the Canadian political union (1867) may spark wide-spread violence and opposition to the union.

"But," he added, "the trend in the last six months has been toward less violence and more understanding."

According to Hubert Wooten and Sylvia Wall, co - chairmen of the Exchange, plans for entertaining, feeding, and accommodating the University of Toronto students are nearing completion. They will arrive on campus Nov. 18 and return Nov. 21.

A Saturday night banquet at the Voyager Inn in Durham, the Duke game and the Louis Armstrong concert will be among the highlights of the Canadians' stay. Also emphasized in the program will be a series of discussions on topics of mutual interest to Canadian and American students.

Girls Should Reserve Dorm Room Now

Women students of the University requiring dormitory space for the Spring semester are asked to sign up in their dormitories by Monday.

A woman student should obtain from her Hostess or House President a mimeographed housing sheet. She should complete the section which pertains to her and return the sheet to her House President.

A $25 deposit is not required to reserve a room; however, the full rent payment of $120 is due on, or before, January 10. Cancellations of rooms between November 10 and January 10 subject the applicant to a charge of $25.

Failure to sign up for a room for the Spring semester during the indicated period means that the student may not be able to live in the dormitory or room of her choice. Space remaining within the dormitories (after the sign-up period) will be reserved for incoming women students.

In the event that women students who have been living in town or who have been away from Chapel Hill on field work wish to move into a dormitory for the Spring, they should go or write to the Office of the Dean of Women, 202 South Building, by Monday in order to reserve a room.

Should there be any questions concerning the sign-up period for reserving space in a woman's dormitory, please communicate with the Office of the Dean of Women.

CAROLINA

TODAY ONLY

SINNER! ELMER GANTRY WANTS YOU!

BURT LANCASTER
JEAN SIMMONS
in SINCLAIR LEWIS'
ELMER GANTRY

Eastman COLOR
Released thru UNITED ARTISTS

FOR ADULTS ONLY
No Children Under 16 Admitted Unless Accompanied By An Adult

Funny, what women will do for men in Paris.

They'll show their wild side to men in Paris Reversibles. Two-faced steerhide glove leather. Harness Brown, with the flip side Black. Saddle-stitched and tanned. Even the buckle and the links reverse. Heads you win. Tails you win, too. $5.00.

Send the belt tag with just $2 to Paris for a regulation-size (22"x3½"x½") hard (ouch!) maple fraternity paddle with a leather thong. Beautifully grained and finished. Decorate it, hang it up or keep classmates in line with it! Shipped postpaid. Write: Paris Belts, P.O. Box 3836, Chicago, Illinois 60654. Please indicate your college or university.

PARIS BELTS

AVAILABLE AT THESE CAMPUS STORES:

JULIANS COLLEGE SHOP

THE MEYERS COMPANY

Come Join the 1st Anniversary of

Hickory Farms

of Chapel Hill
EASTGATE SHOPPING CENTER
NOW through SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 7th

Hickory Farms BEEF STICK
Reg. $1.49 lb.
Anniversary Special $1.29 lb.

126 Different Kinds of NATURAL CHEESES

59 Varieties of IMPORTED CANDIES
Reg. 98c lb.
Anniversary Special 79c lb.

- 103 Kinds of Spices
- Jams and Jellies
- Wide Selection of Salad Dressings

— FREE — Coffee Samples

FREE! Your Choice of 1 Box Bremners Wafers or Hickory Farms Old Fashion Crackers with each purchase of CHEESE BALL or CHEESE LOG

Advance Showing Christmas Baskets and Gift Packages
Special Attention to Commercial and Executive Accounts

HOURS: Open Monday - Friday — 9:30 a.m. 'til 9:00 p.m.
Saturday — 9:00 - 6:00 Sunday — 1:00 - 6:00

Hickory Farms Eastgate Shopping Center Chapel Hill, N. C.

NANCY WILSON

Zentner Band Will Perform With Nancy

Si Zentner and his orchestra will perform Saturday during the Carmichael Auditorium program featuring Nancy Wilson.

Zentner, a Jimmy Dorsey veteran, is well known for his rich, high notes.

He has also worked with Les Brown, Harry James and the MGM studio orchestra.

But, he once told an interviewer, "during my nine years at MGM . . . I found . . . I was deteriorating . . . Senility was creeping up on me — and no amount of money is worth that!"

Zentner then organized his own band.

His hit recording of "Up A Lazy River" won him the Grammy Award.

He has received numerous other honors.

The program, sponsored by GM, starts at 8 p.m.

FLY NEW YORK $49.50 Round Trip

THANKSGIVING

Lv. Raleigh-Durham 2:00 p.m. Nov. 24
Ar. JFK 3:30 p.m.
Lv. JFK 9:40 p.m. Nov. 28
Ar. Raleigh-Durham 11:10 p.m.

FLY CHICAGO $60.00 Round Trip

CHRISTMAS

Lv. Raleigh-Durham 2:00 p.m. EST Dec. 18
Ar. Ohare 3:15 p.m. EST
Lv. Ohare 9:00 a.m. EST Jan. 2
Ar. Raleigh-Durham 12:15 p.m. EST

All flights NONSTOP in 104 DC-7C's

WRITE: A&J Travel
Box 4728,
Duke Sta. Durham

SAVE! MONEY, TIME, TROUBLE!

Offer Limited — Call or Write Soon!!

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS

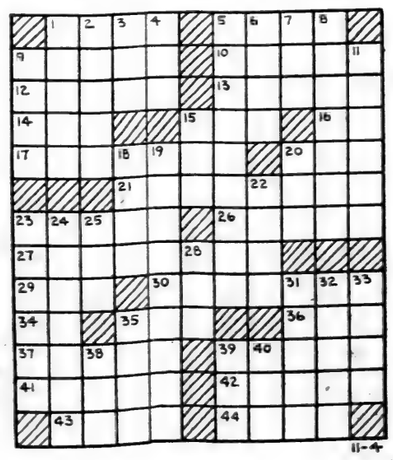
1. Seize
5. Boy's school
9. Cut
10. American black snake
12. Coffee shops
13. Habituate
14. Lubricate
15. Question
16. Not: prefix
17. Encircle
20. Indo-Chin. tribe
21. Tropical American trees
23. Biblical land of gold
26. Units of electromotive force
27. A pause to rest: colloq.
29. Organ
30. Ejecting
34. Mile measure: Jap.
35. Fade
36. Born
37. Iris root
39. Old Scratch
41. Relative
42. French river
43. Ogles
44. Sailors

DOWN

1. Raw white of egg
2. Pillage
3. Tennis stroke
4. God of pleasure: Egypt.
5. Saves
6. Rancid
7. Shield
8. An amulet
9. Tug trailer
11. Irresponsible
15. Gazelle: Asia
18. Continent
19. Turtles
20. Sanskrit school
22. Classify
23. Fairy king
24. Schooner or wolf
25. Pronoun
28. Monotonous sound
31. Bury
32. Approaches
33. Hereditary factor
35. Gaming cubes
38. King: Sp.
39. Perch
40. Third king of Judah

■	H	A	L	S	■	A	H	A	B	■
■	A	D	I	T	■	L	A	M	E	■
G	L	A	R	Y	■	B	R	I	L	L
L	I	M	E	■	P	E	A	R	L	Y
A	B	■	■	S	O	S	■	■	E	S
S	U	R	P	L	I	C	E	■	■	■
S	T	E	R	E	■	E	L	S	I	E
■	■	■	Y	E	A	N	L	I	N	G
O	P	S	■	P	I	T	■	A	R	■
R	E	T	E	L	L	■	M	I	N	E
S	T	A	V	E	■	H	A	B	I	T
■	A	R	E	S	■	O	M	I	T	■
L	E	S	S	■	E	A	S	Y	■	■

Yesterday's Answer



11-4

Interviews Today For Cotton Maid

The 1966 Maid of Cotton could come from Carolina.

Miss Patty Povall of the National Cotton Council, Memphis, will be on campus Nov. 4 to interview prospective candidates.

The new Maid will be selected from a group of 20 finalists in Memphis Dec. 28-29. Her first official appearance as the cotton industry's fashion and good will representative will be at the Cotton Bowl Festival in Dallas on New Year's Day. Later, she will fly to New York to be fitted with a high fashion all-cotton wardrobe for her tour of the United States, Canada, and leading fashion centers of Europe. At the completion of her tour next summer, she will be presented with a new automobile.

The Maid of Cotton selection is open to girls between 19 and 25 who were born in a cotton-producing state. Candidates must be at least five feet five and one-half inches tall and have never been married. Beauty, poise, intelligence, and background are other important qualifications.

Applications may be obtained from the National Cotton Council, 1918 North Parkway, Memphis, and deadline for entries is midnight, Dec. 1.

MILL OUTLET SALES ROOM

Ladies First Quality HOSE
Three Pairs $1.25

"All Popular Fall Shades, Also Nurses' White Hose

UPSTAIRS OVER SUTTON'S Drug Store

Ushers Needed

Ushers are needed to work the following concerts:

Nancy Wilson, November 6
Louis Armstrong, November 20
The Supremes, November 21

For further information, see Charlie Shapard at the GM Information Desk from 2-4 any afternoon this week.

JANE PARKER REGULAR 49¢ ANGEL FOOD CAKE
STOCK YOUR FREEZER
3 for $1.00
1-Lb 1-oz Rings

JANE PARKER CHERRY PIE
SPECIAL! 39¢

CHOOSE FROM 5 DELICIOUS FLAVORS
MARVEL ICE MILK
2 Half Gallon Carton 75¢

☆ "SUPER-RIGHT" QUALITY Specially Priced FRESH FRYERS
Whole LB. 26¢ ☆ Cut-Up LB. 30¢
PRICES IN THIS AD EFFECTIVE THROUGH NOV. 6th. COME SAVE

PRE-PRICED LABEL ON A&P INSTANT COFFEE
10-Oz. Jar $1.09

PRE-PRICED LABEL ON A&P BLENDED COFFEE
2 Lb. Can $1.39

A&P

Freshly Baked Jane Parker FRUIT CAKE
AMERICA'S FAVORITE — OVER ½ FRUIT & NUTS!
5 LB. CAKE $3.99
1½-LB. CAKE $1.49 | 2-LB. CAKE $2.89

SUNNYFIELD BRAND Pancake Flour
2 Lb. Pkg. 23c

ANN PAGE BRAND Pancake & Waffle SYRUP 1½ Qt. Bottle 69c

ALL MEAT FRANKS
"SUPER-RIGHT" QUALITY
1-LB. PKG. 49¢

"SUPER-RIGHT" QUALITY SLICED BACON
THIN SLICED 1-Lb. Pkg. 69¢

5-Lb. Bag Russet Potatoes
5-Lb. Bag White G-Fruit
4-Lb. Stayman Apples
3 BAGS FOR $1.00

SHOP A&P FRESH FRUITS & VEGETABLES

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of the Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. Letters and columns, covering a wide range of views, reflect the personal opinions of their authors.
ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

No Place For Love

The self-appointed guardian of UNC's manners and morals is well-known for being as quick on the draw with her words as she is with her umbrella.

Always conscious of her "duty" to save poor bumbling students from themselves, Otelia Connor has submitted another letter to the DTH, and we think it is deserving of special attention.

She says:

Yesterday I had a card from an anonymous writer asking me to write about the necking and petting in the Arboretum. She said it was disgusting to visitors who want to see the Arboretum.

Well, I didn't think I would take her up on it, but so many people said they thought I should, that here goes.

In my opinion young people have got to have some place to neck. The Arboretum is closed to couples at night. They cannot neck in the dormitories, so the Arboretum seems to be the only private place around here, except for a few visitors. It certainly is a better place than the campus or automobiles, or the woods.

Someone said I ought to have seen them necking in the autos in the parking lot on Rosemary Street yesterday! If anyone thinks that 12,000 young people are going to spend four to seven years at the University, just sitting around twiddling their thumbs, they have another thought coming.

The dormitories and the churches should provide rooms for courting couples where they can do their love-making in private. There should always be a hostess on hand, but she will not be in evidence. And there should be a limit on the time, say eleven o'clock, when the male would have to leave. In that way we would have some control over the young people. As it is now, all love making is strictly off limits. We know what happened during Prohibition. It also applies to love-making.

This is a problem which the administration has always tried to sweep under the bed, but Otelia is not going to let it go untouched any longer.

The only factual error in her argument is her statement that couples are not allowed in the Arb after dark. Legally, couples may make nocturnal visits to the garden, but technically Otelia is right — many of them avoid the place because of the danger of being stepped on.

It is indeed a sad situation when that wild and dangerous Arb or terribly uncomfortable and non-private cars are the only places couples can go to make love.

But really, Otelia, we think it is too optimistic to ask the churches to provide such facilities, even with invisible hostesses on duty.

We think a much better idea would be for the President of the Student Body to personally investigate this vital matter, and give us his recommendations.

Things Could Be Worse

For those who feel that UNC is having a less-than-successful football season, there is consolation to be found at Susquehanna University in Pennsylvania.

Head Coach James W. Garrett had built a proud 39-4-1 record during his five years at the school. But something went wrong this year. The team lost its seventh consecutive game last week, and Garrett and his three assistants blew the whistle and called it quits Monday — they all resigned.

The team has two games left this season, and University President Gustave Weber has left his desk to fill the coaching shoes. He isn't exactly without experience, though, because he won nine letters in football, baseball and basketball during his college days.

It's handy to have a versatile school administration. And by the way — President Friday, did you ever play football?

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; John Jennrich, associate editor; Barry Jacobs, managing editor; Fred Thomas, news editor, Pat Stith, sports editor; Gene Rector, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; John Greenbacker, political writer; Ed Freakley, Andy Myers, Lynne Harvel, Lynne Sizemore, David Rothman, Ray Linville, staff writers; Jack Harrington, bus. mgr.; Tom Clark, asst. bus. mgr.; Woody Sobol, ad. mgr.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all ap news dispatches.

"I Don't Give A Happy Damn What Otelia Says!"

Mike Jennings

Col. Penkovsky Knew That US And Russia Were Not Compatible

Sometimes, I think, even the most patriotic American wonders whether the issue between communism and democracy is really so clear-cut.

Peaceniks — and some political scientists — tell us that clear-cut differences between governments don't exist anymore, if they ever did. Russia's evolving image is that of a rambunctious adolescent who is finally learning some responsibility. It would seem that Russia and the U. S. will become increasingly more compatible as each plugs along toward the Great Society, until finally all differences are erased. Then, in a world swathed in a blue haze of consumption and socialism, colleges in the two countries can exchange folk singers to further cultural understanding, and all will be well.

I'm not so sure. All Will Rogers knew was what he read in the papers. If he were alive today, he'd know this:

Communist countries are jails. They lock people inside.

Whenever communist countries open their doors, as they did in Hong Kong, people stream out by the thousands. Nobody goes in.

No communist government has ever ever been elected by a popular vote.

Colonel Vladimirovich Penkovsky probably didn't read those facts in the papers, but he knew they were true. Colonel Penkovsky was an intelligence officer in the Russian Army. He was also the most successful spy in modern history. He was a spy for the West.

Penkovsky rocked Nikita Khrushchev's regime to its foundations. He began furnishing high-priority information to Western officials in April, 1961. For two years he transmitted a flood of Soviet secrets, concerning such projects as the Cuban missile buildup and Russian nuclear capabilities.

Penkovsky's own story of his thoughts and activities as a spy will soon be published by Doubleday. Here are some excerpts:

". . . I happened to marry a general's daughter and quickly found myself in a society of the Soviet upper classes. I was one of the privileged.

"But I soon realized that their praise of the party and communism was only in words. In their private lives they lie, deceive, scheme against each other, intrigue, inform, cut each other's throats . . .

"The ideals which so many of our fathers and brothers died for have turned out to be nothing more than a bluff and a deceit. I know the army and there are many of us in the officer corps who feel the same way. But they are afraid . . . Each man here is alone.

"From what I have learned and what I have heard, I know that the leaders of our Soviet state are the willing provocateurs of an atomic war . . .

"In Moscow I have lived in a nuclear nightmare . . . I know the poison of the new military doctrine, as outlined in the top-secret Special Collection — the plan to strike first, at any cost . . .

"This you must understand. That is why I write these observations of mine to the people of the United States and Great Britain. I ask only that you believe the sincerity of my thoughts. Henceforth I am your soldier . . ."

It seems ironic that a Russian should be willing to be our soldier, when many of our own people are not.

Penkovsky was caught in October, 1962. He pleaded guilty at his trial; apparently he did so in order to secure decent treatment for his family. In May, 1963, he was shot.

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel welcomes letters to the editor on any subject, particularly on matters of local or University interest. Letters must be typed, double spaced and must include the name and address of the author or authors. Names will not be omitted in publication. Letters should be kept as brief as possible. The DTH reserves the right to edit for length or libel.

David Rothman

Roger Retard And The Draft, Or How To Beat The Mental Standards

What happened after the Army lowered its mental standards?

To find out, I visited a training center.

The first soldier I encountered there was Roger Retard.

"How'd you get into the Army?" I asked him after learning he had an I.Q. of 67.

"I told my Selective Service Board I wanted to get drafted," he said. "Ordinarily, they're quite suspicious in these cases, but since the adoption of the new mental standards, they've changed their minds. Now they figure that anybody wishing to get drafted is dumb enough to serve. So they promptly snapped me up and sent me to Officers Candidate School."

"And?"

"They knew right away I was top-notch material when I volunteered for K.P. duty. They said that showed I had initiative."

"Did you continue to progress through the ranks?"

"Sorta. I informed my base commander I barely managed to graduate from elementary school never read books and always had to be told where the men's room was. 'Excellent,' the commander said, 'you're obviously the type who'll feel compelled to follow orders.' "

"But tell me, Retard, didn't the Army worry about your lack of book learning?"

"The people said: 'There's only one way — the Army way, and we're very happy you've never learned to do things another way.'

"Then they explained how proud they were of the Army's history. You know, that tank they used during World War II was quite a machine. But why the heck did they name it after a humorist like Allen Sherman?"

"I bet they didn't take you into the Army because of your personality."

"Sure they did. They especially liked my cussing — said they wanted me to tutor the drill sergeants."

"How far have you gone through the ranks?"

"Far enough to quarrel with Secretary of Defense MacNamara."

"Why'd they send you back to the training center?"

"I know it's a sad story but I'll tell it to you anyway. Here's why I'm no longer a major general:

"I stopped filching liquor from the PX.

"I went on to college and did graduate work in sanitary engineering.

"I didn't show up at the right cocktail parties.

"I no longer chewed tobacco.

"I worked overtime.

"I had dinner at the MacNamara's.

"Immediately, everybody said I'd lost the necessary esprit de corps. They insisted my character was unsatisfactory for military service.

"Moreover, they resented the fact that I no longer did the dirty work the other major-generals so bitterly detested.

"Yes — the final blow came after I stopped volunteering for everybody else's K.P. duty."

Nobel Peace Prize Is Overdue For UNICEF

By ALAN BANOV

Both the United Nations and the Nobel Prizes have been criticized for some time for various reasons.

Recently both institutions were given a deserved boost when the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund (UNICEF) was awarded the 1965 Nobel Peace Prize.

The Nobel Prize Committee was criticized last year by segregationists for awarding the peace prize to Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., the civil rights leader. The committee is always under attack for its selections in literature.

The Nobel Peace Prize has the noble purpose of recognizing the person, persons or institution which "shall have most or best promoted the fraternity of nations and the abolishment or reduction of standing armies and the formation and extension of peace congresses."

Past winners have included Ralph Bunche, Theodore Roosevelt, Woodrow Wilson, George Marshall, Lester Pearson, Jane Addas, the International Red Cross (several times) and the American Friends Service.

UNICEF is the second U.N. organization to receive the award. The U. N. High Commission for Refugees was honored in 1954, and various U. N. leaders have often been considered for the prize.

Almost since its inception, though, the international organization has been criticized — for having too much power, for having too little power and for other reasons. In this country such conservatives as Robert Welch, Edwin Walker and Robert Shelton have demanded that the U. S. withdraw from the U. N. Liberals have deprecated the omission from the world body of Communist China and other states.

Such criticism has often reared its ugly head at this time of the year when children and adults "Trick or Treat for UNICEF." In some areas of the country the John Birch Society and other conservative organizations have waged active campaigns against the UNICEF drives.

UNICEF, which has been headed by Americans since its beginning, is the branch of the U. N. that collects monies in affluent countries such as the U. S. to be used to feed and heal the needy children of the world. The organization, like CARE, is able to send a great deal of food and medicine abroad for amazingly small amounts of money.

For exmple, a few cents given in the U. S. are enough to furnish a starving child in Brazil with several quarts of milk or a hungry kid in Algeria with a few loaves of bread.

It is very fitting that UNICEF was honored during U. N. Week, which was celebrated at Chapel Hill, in North Carolina and throughout the world.

Some forms of nuclear disarmament may not be economically or politically feasible, but feeding hungry children has always been an effective cure for social problems and an important aid for world peace.

No one should expect to see complete peace in the world in the foreseeble future. However ,the Nobel Peace Prize is a meritorious incentive to those few persons who are striving conscientiously for it.

Letters To The Editor

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

I wish to call attention to a serious typographical error made either by me or you in my article, " 'Deplorable' Recall Is Symbol Of Public Face Versus Private Morals," published in the "Liberal Comment" column on November 2. In the concluding paragraph a phrase of a sentence reads ". . . and by which even the university lies . . ." The phrase should read ". . . and by which even the university lives . . ." I do not wish to suggest that the university exercises its freedom by lying.

There is also a typographical error, or misprint, in the name of one of our most distinguished political philosophers, quoted in the second paragraph. The philosopher is Hannah Arndt.

Banks O. Godfrey, Jr.
Chapel Hill

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Although Castro's offer to let Cubans leave their country is not the same as free elections, it is a humane action. The U. S. should reciprocate by encouraging the emigration from the U. S. of the small minority, including SPU "soup-fast" enthusiasts and SDS backbiters, dissatisfied with our country and its policies, so that they can seek a happier life in Cuba, North Viet Nam, or any other paradise.

Don Thompson
113 Mangum

GM PRESENTS

NANCY WILSON

With SI ZENTNER and His Band

Coming Sat. Nov. 6 at 8 p.m.

TICKETS GO ON SALE
THIS WED. — FOR U.N.C. STUDENTS
U.N.C. STUDENTS — $1.00
GENERAL PUBLIC TICKET SALES BEGIN
NOV. 3 — $1.50 for GENERAL PUBLIC

Prof Tells TX About Canadians

"The one thing that ties Canadians together is they don't want to be Americans," a noted Duke University professor told UNC's 30 Toronto Exchange students Monday afternoon.

Dr. Richard H. Preston, Duke's W. K. Boyd Professor of Commonwealth History, explained that Canadians believe their culture is in many ways different and in some ways superior to that in the United States.

"Each of the Canadian provinces is culturally different, but their desire to remain independent keeps Canada from disintegrating and rapidly falling under total United States influence," he continued.

A native of Kingston, Ontario, Dr. Preston fears not military or political takeover by the United States, but a slow cultural absorption of Canada by "the giant to the south."

"The separate French Canadian culture is tremendously important since this the French culture in Quebec Province is the main thing that distinguishes Canada from the United States.

"Here you tend to try to integrate all races and nationalities under the same linguistic and cultural traditions — the phrase 'melting pot' symbolizes this idea. In Canada even the constitution guarantees the right of the French Canadians to a separate culture and language. This is as it should be, though political disunity is the price we have to pay."

Dr. Preston, who is a member of the dominate English - speaking segment of the Canadian population, fears that the 1967 celebration of the Canadian political union (1867) may spark wide-spread violence and opposition to the union.

"But," he added, "the trend in the last six months has been toward less violence and more understanding."

According to Hubert Wooten and Sylvia Wall, co - chairmen of the Exchange, plans for entertaining, feeding, and accommodating the University of Toronto students are nearing completion. They will arrive on campus Nov. 18 and return Nov. 21.

A Saturday night banquet at the Voyager Inn in Durham, the Duke game and the Louis Armstrong concert will be among the highlights of the Canadians' stay. Also emphasized in the program will be a series of discussions on topics of mutual interest to Canadian and American students.

Girls Should Reserve Dorm Room Now

Women students of the University requiring dormitory space for the Spring semester are asked to sign up in their dormitories by Monday.

A woman student should obtain from her Hostess or House President a mimeographed housing sheet. She should complete the section which pertains to her and return the sheet to her House President.

A $25 deposit is not required to reserve a room; however, the full rent payment of $120 is due on, or before, January 10. Cancellations of rooms between November 10 and January 10 subject the applicant to a charge of $25.

Failure to sign up for a room for the Spring semester during the indicated period means that the student may not be able to live in the dormitory or room of her choice. Space remaining within the dormitories (after the sign-up period) will be reserved for incoming women students.

In the event that women students who have been living in town or who have been away from Chapel Hill on field work wish to move into a dormitory for the Spring, they should go or write to the Office of the Dean of Women, 202 South Building, by Monday in order to reserve a room.

Should there be any questions concerning the sign-up period for reserving space in a woman's dormitory, please communicate with the Office of the Dean of Women.

NANCY WILSON

Zentner Band Will Perform With Nancy

Si Zentner and his orchestra will perform Saturday during the Carmichael Auditorium program featuring Nancy Wilson.

Zentner, a Jimmy Dorsey veteran, is well known for his rich, high notes.

He has also worked with Les Brown, Harry James and the MGM studio orchestra.

But, he once told an interviewer, "during my nine years at MGM . . . I found . . . I was deteriorating . . . Senility was creeping up on me — and no amount of money is worth that!"

Zentner then organized his own band.

His hit recording of "Up A Lazy River" won him the Grammy Award.

He has received numerous other honors.

The program, sponsored by GM, starts at 8 p.m.

Interviews Today For Cotton Maid

The 1966 Maid of Cotton could come from Carolina.

Miss Patty Povall of the National Cotton Council, Memphis, will be on campus Nov. 4 to interview prospective candidates.

The new Maid will be selected from a group of 20 finalists in Memphis Dec. 28-29. Her first official appearance as the cotton industry's fashion and good will representative will be at the Cotton Bowl Festival in Dallas on New Year's Day. Later, she will fly to New York to be fitted with a high fashion all-cotton wardrobe for her tour of the United States, Canada, and leading fashion centers of Europe. At the completion of her tour next summer, she will be presented with a new automobile.

The Maid of Cotton selection is open to girls between 19 and 25 who were born in a cotton-producing state. Candidates must be at least five feet five and one-half inches tall and have never been married. Beauty, poise, intelligence, and background are other important qualifications.

Applications may be obtained from the National Cotton Council, 1918 North Parkway, Memphis, and deadline for entries is midnight, Dec. 1.

MILL OUTLET SALES ROOM

Ladies First Quality HOSE
Three Pairs $1.25

"All Popular Fall Shades, Also Nurses' White Hose

UPSTAIRS OVER SUTTON'S Drug Store

Ushers Needed

Ushers are needed to work the following concerts:

Nancy Wilson, November 6
Louis Armstrong, November 20
The Supremes, November 21

For further information, see Charlie Shapard at the GM Information Desk from 2-4 any afternoon this week.

Funny, what women will do for men in Paris.

They'll show their wild side to men in Paris Reversibles. Two-faced steerhide glove leather. Harness Brown, with the flip side Black. Saddle-stitched and tanned. Even the buckle and the links reverse. Heads you win. Tails you win, too. $5.00.

Send the belt tag with just $2 to Paris for a regulation-size (22"x3½"x½") hard (ouch!) maple fraternity paddle with a leather thong. Beautifully grained and finished. Decorate it, hang it up or keep classmates in line with it! Shipped postpaid. Write: Paris Belts, P.O. Box 3836, Chicago, Illinois 60654. Please indicate your college or university.

PARIS BELTS

AVAILABLE AT THESE CAMPUS STORES:

JULIANS COLLEGE SHOP

THE MEYERS COMPANY

CAROLINA

TODAY ONLY

BURT LANCASTER
JEAN SIMMONS
in SINCLAIR LEWIS'
ELMER GANTRY

Eastman COLOR
Released thru UNITED ARTISTS

FOR ADULTS ONLY
No Children Under 16 Admitted Unless Accompanied By An Adult

FLY NEW YORK $49.50 Round Trip

THANKSGIVING

Lv. Raleigh-Durham 2:00 p.m. Nov. 24
Ar. JFK 3:30 p.m.
Lv. JFK 9:40 p.m. Nov. 28
Ar. Raleigh-Durham 11:10 p.m.

FLY CHICAGO $60.00 Round Trip

CHRISTMAS

Lv. Raleigh-Durham 2:00 p.m. EST Dec. 18
Ar. Ohare 3:15 p.m. EST
Lv. Ohare 9:00 a.m. EST Jan. 2
Ar. Raleigh-Durham 12:15 p.m. EST

All flights NONSTOP in 104 DC-7C's

WRITE: A&J Travel
Box 4728,
Duke Sta. Durham

SAVE! MONEY, TIME, TROUBLE!

Offer Limited — Call or Write Soon!!

Come Join the 1st Anniversary of

Hickory Farms

of Chapel Hill
EASTGATE SHOPPING CENTER
NOW through SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 7th

Hickory Farms BEEF STICK
Reg. $1.49 lb.
Anniversary Special $1.29 lb.

126 Different Kinds of NATURAL CHEESES

59 Varieties of IMPORTED CANDIES
Reg. 98c lb.
Anniversary Special 79c lb.

- 103 Kinds of Spices
- Jams and Jellies
- Wide Selection of Salad Dressings

— FREE — Coffee Samples

FREE! Your Choice of 1 Box Bremners Wafers or Hickory Farms Old Fashion Crackers with each purchase of CHEESE BALL or CHEESE LOG

Advance Showing Christmas Baskets and Gift Packages

Special Attention to Commercial and Executive Accounts

HOURS: Open Monday - Friday — 9:30 a.m. 'til 9:00 p.m.
Saturday — 9:00 - 6:00 Sunday — 1:00 - 6:00

Hickory Farms Eastgate Shopping Center Chapel Hill, N. C.

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS

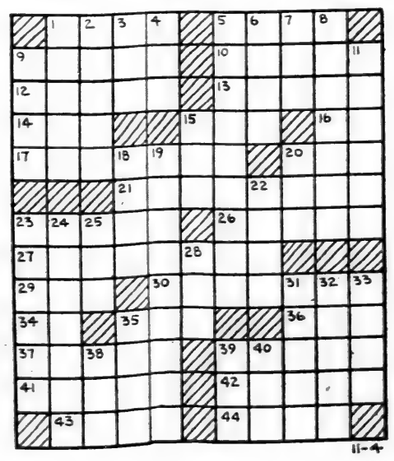
1. Seize
5. Boy's school
9. Cut
10. American black snake
12. Coffee shops
13. Habituate
14. Lubricate
15. Question
16. Not: prefix
17. Encircle
20. Indo-Chin. tribe
21. Tropical American trees
23. Biblical land of gold
26. Units of electromotive force
27. A pause to rest: colloq.
29. Organ
30. Ejecting
34. Mile measure: Jap.
35. Fade
36. Born
37. Iris root
39. Old Scratch
41. Relative
42. French river
43. Ogles
44. Sailors

DOWN

1. Raw white of egg
2. Pillage
3. Tennis stroke
4. God of pleasure: Egypt.
5. Saves
6. Rancid
7. Shield
8. An amulet
9. Tug trailer
11. Irresponsible
15. Gazelle: Asia
18. Continent
19. Turtles
20. Sanskrit school
22. Classify
23. Fairy king
24. Schooner or wolf
25. Pronoun
28. Monotonous sound
31. Bury
32. Approaches
33. Hereditary factor
35. Gaming cubes
38. King: Sp.
39. Perch
40. Third king of Judah

HALS AHAB
ADIT LAME
GLARY BRILL
LIME PEARLY
AB SOS SES
SURPLICE
STERE ELSIE
YEANLING
OPS PIT AR
RETELL MINE
STAVE HABIT
ARES OMIT
LESS EASY

Yesterday's Answer



11-4

JANE PARKER REGULAR 49¢ ANGEL FOOD CAKE 3 $1.00
STOCK YOUR FREEZER 9-Lb 1-oz Rings

JANE PARKER CHERRY PIE SPECIAL! 39¢
CHOOSE FROM 5 DELICIOUS FLAVORS

MARVEL ICE MILK 2 Half Gallon Carton 75¢

☆ "SUPER-RIGHT" QUALITY Specially Priced FRESH FRYERS
Whole LB. 26¢ Cut-Up LB. 30¢
PRICES IN THIS AD EFFECTIVE THROUGH NOV. 6th. COME SAVE

PRE-PRICED LABEL ON A&P INSTANT COFFEE 10-Oz. Jar $1.09

PRE-PRICED LABEL ON A&P BLENDED COFFEE 2 Lb. Can $1.39

A&P

Freshly Baked Jane Parker FRUIT CAKE
AMERICA'S FAVORITE — OVER ⅓ FRUIT & NUTS
5 LB. CAKE $3.99
7½-LB. CAKE $1.49 | 3-LB. CAKE $2.89

SUNNYFIELD BRAND Pancake Flour 2 Lb. Pkg. 23c

ANN PAGE BRAND Pancake & Waffle SYRUP 1½ Qt. Bottle 69c

ALL MEAT FRANKS
"SUPER-RIGHT" QUALITY
1-LB. PKG. 49¢

"SUPER-RIGHT" QUALITY SLICED BACON
THIN SLICED 1-Lb. Pkg. 69c

5-Lb. Bag Russet Potatoes
5-Lb. Bag White G-Fruit
4-Lb. Stayman Apples
3 BAGS FOR $1.00

SHOP A&P FRESH FRUITS & VEGETABLES

Enrollment

RALEIGH (AP) — Enrollment of North Carolina colleges this fall totals 104,852, a gain of 12.2 per cent over the 93,433 enrolled in the fall of 1964, the State Board of Higher Education reported Tuesday.

The board reported that the number of commuter students increased by 32.6 per cent while the number of resident students was rising only 5.5 per cent. In state - supported colleges the number of commuter students rose by 48 per cent.

Dr. Howard R. Boozer, director of higher education, said the big increase in the number of commuter students indicated that the colleges' dormitories "are filled to overflowing and many more students than ever before had to make their own arrangements for housing off campus."

Enrollment of state - supported colleges increased by 16 per cent to a total of 60,922. They included 20,072 commuter students. Enrollment in private colleges totaled 43,930 for a gain of 7.4 per cent. The total included 10,721 commuter students for a gain of 10.8 per cent.

The Consolidated University of North Carolina reported an enrollment of 29,742 for a gain of 10 per cent over 1964. The total included 6,261 commuter students, a gain of 17.9 per cent.

Bill Smith Plays Father In Playmakers Production

Bill Smith will play the part of Floyd Ramsey, the loud, recalcitrant father, in "The Summer Tree," which has its world premier here Tuesday at 8 p.m.

The Ralph Umberger play will have a seven-performance in the Playmakers Theatre. Umberger is UNC's Schubert Fellow in Playwriting.

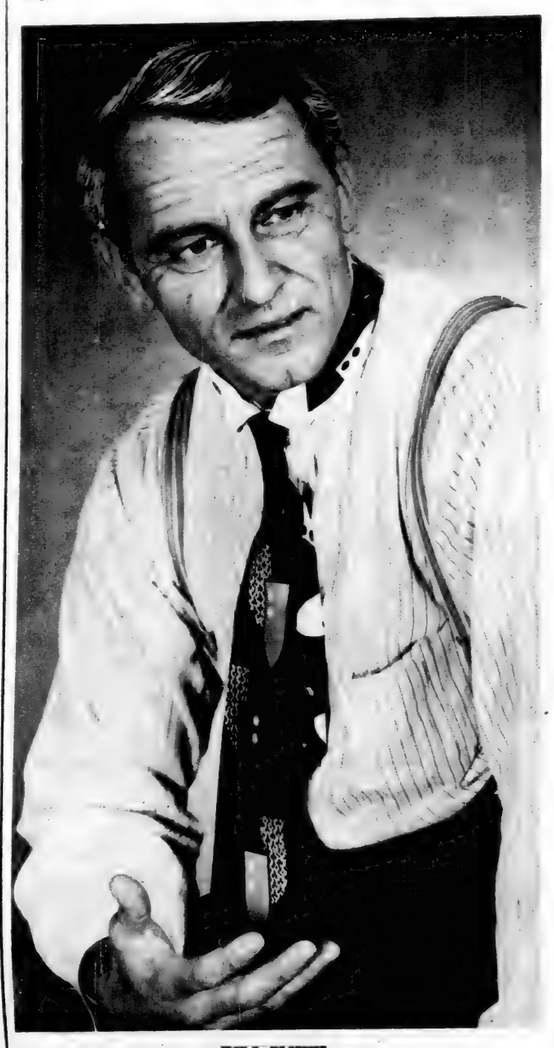
This will be the Playmakers' second major production of the year.

A senior at UNC, Smith is continuing his studies in the Department of Dramatic Art after serving three years in the armed forces. Busy as an actor even in the service, he appeared in "The Rose Tattoo" and "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" while stationed at Fort Gordon, Georgia, and in "Bus Stop" while on a tour of duty in Nationalist China.

Triangle area audiences will remember Smith as the rough-and-ready Jenkins in "Billy Budd," and as the hard-boiled, animalistic Stanley Kowalski in the recent Playmakers production of "A Streetcar Named Desire." Last summer he enacted the famous role of Sir Walter Raleigh in Paul Green's "The Lost Colony."

In "The Summer Tree," Smith has the difficult task of being the first actor to interpret the role of Floyd. "It's quite a challenge," he said, "but one I readily accept. Umberger has written some sensitive, dynamic characters into this play, and the cast is very pleased and excited."

Tickets for "The Summer Tree" will be on sale to the general public today at the Playmakers business office, 214 Abernethy Hall, and at Ledbetter - Pickard's in downtown Chapel Hill.



BILL SMITH

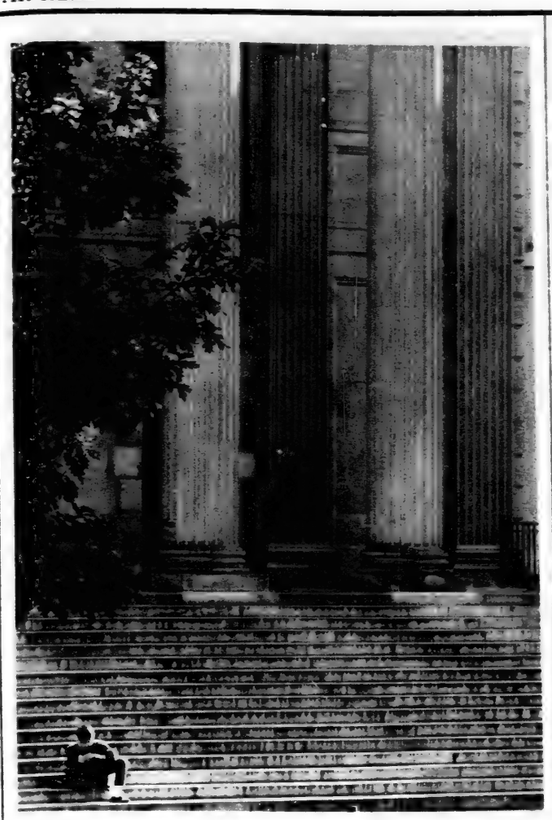
Planetarium Giving Program For Scouts

"Skyways," a special program to aid Boy, Girl, Explorer and Cub Scouts of America to recognize stars and constellations, is being presented at 12 noon on Saturday and 5 p.m. on Sundays during November at The Morehead Planetarium. The opening program was given Saturday at noon.

Reservations may be made by writing or phoning the Planetarium.

Preceding each one - hour "Skyways" program, will be the current public presentations, "Earth in the Universe."

Scout groups may see both programs on the same day on the Planetarium's "dual - reservation" plan.



SOME PEOPLE didn't go to the football game last Saturday. Alert DTH Photographer Warren Nye caught this picture of one studious individual on the steps of Wilson Library.

Water Safety

A course for water safety instructors will be offered by the Physical Education Department during the second eight weeks of this semester.

Interested students may register or obtain further information in 311 Woollen Gym. Deadline for registration is Nov. 12.

Instructors for the course will meet Nov. 11; students will meet for the first time on Nov. 16. These meetings will be in 304 Woollen Gym.

If you collect
Messages of the Presidents
You'll find odd volumes of this important set in our 97c shelf. Lots of other treasure, too.
The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Open Till 10 P.M.

Job Interviews

The following companies will recruit on campus next week:

Monday, Nov. 8 — Boy Scouts of America (also summer jobs); United Aircraft, Research Labs; Security Life & Trust Company (also summer jobs); Union Bag-Camp Paper Corporation

Tuesday, Nov. 9 — Coca-Cola Company; Procter & Gamble Distributing Co.; Swift & Company; Rohm & Haas

Wednesday, Nov. 10 — U.S. Atomic Energy Commission; Koppers Company; Army & Air Force Exchange Service; Air Products & Chemicals Inc.; Cannon Mills Inc.; (summer work for juniors); Norton Company (summer jobs)

Thursday, Nov. 11 — Monsanto - Chemstrand; Pan American Petroleum; Battelle Memorial Institute; N. C. National Bank; Burroughs Corp.

Friday, Nov. 12 — Radio Corporation of America (summer work); Corning Glass Works; American Tobacco Company; Arthur Young & Company; Arlington State College

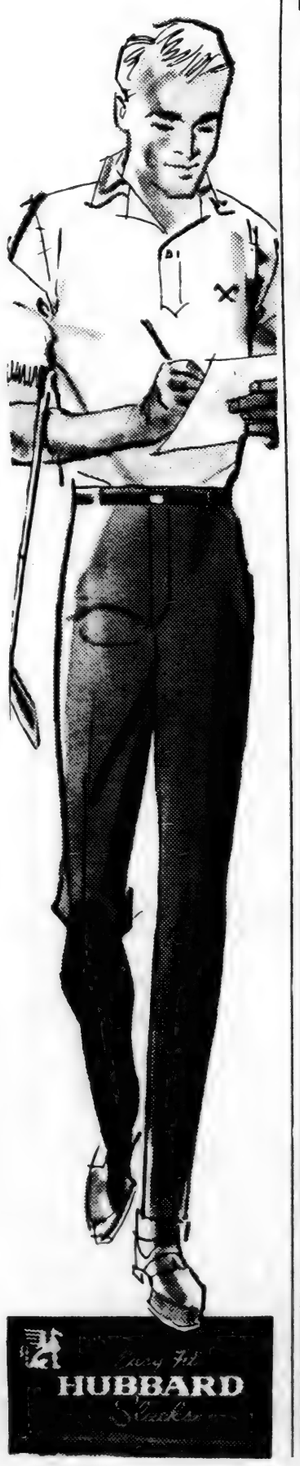
NETHERLANDS CHAMBER ORCHESTRA

Directed by SYMON GOLDBERG
Sponsored by
GRAHAM MEMORIAL
and
CHAPEL HILL CONCERT SERIES
SUNDAY, NOV. 7
8:00 P.M.
MEMORIAL HALL
50c UNC Tickets
$1.00 for Dates

The most walked about slacks on Campus are HUBBARD slacks with "DACRON"

Great Hubbard styling with the lasting neatness and care free comfort of "Dacron", in these slacks of 55% Dacron polyester, 45% worsted wool.* Styled in traditional Classic and Gay Blade plain front models, in all the favorite colors, at better stores everywhere. Also available in blends of 70% Orlon* acrylic, 30% worsted wool, or "Dacron" with "Orlon".

*du Pont Reg. T.M.



Carry Pal HUBBARD Slacks

CAROLINA
OPENS FRIDAY

Steve McQueen as THE CINCINNATI KID
Women, money, excitement, action, ...and the game— WINNER TAKE ALL!

MATH COLLOQUIUM

Dr. Ross L. Finney of Princeton University will be the speaker at the UNC Mathematics Colloquium tomorrow at 4 p.m. in 332 Phillips Hall.

"He is the fire of life itself, a piece of the sun in the shape of a man!" —Time
WINNER OF 3 ACADEMY AWARDS!
ANTHONY QUINN
ALAN BATES
IRENE PAPAS
in the MICHAEL CACOYANNIS PRODUCTION
"ZORBA THE GREEK"
LILA KEDROVA

RIALTO, Durham
Fri.-Sun. at 1:42, 4:07, 6:33, 9:00
Mon.-Thurs. at 1.05, 3:30, 6:00, 830

people on the go... go BURGER CHEF

BURGER CHEF HAMBURGERS

College budgets and Burger Chef belong together. Burger Chef . . . where 50¢ will buy a complete meal: open-flame broiled hamburger, a rich milk shake, and a heap of crisp golden fries.
337 N. ROSEMARY ST.
OPEN 10 A.M. – 11 P.M.
Franchised exclusively by Burger Chef Systems, Indianapolis
Home of the World's Greatest 15¢ Hamburger!

Sur-Sav HEALTH AND BEAUTY AIDS
OVER 3000 ITEMS
SAVE UP TO 50%
Sur-Sav HEALTH AND BEAUTY AIDS

VO-5 SHAMPOO
Reg. Price 1.00 39c

LADIES' WOOL TRI TOPPER
For THE Fashion Accent
Reg. Price 1.00 only 59c
By Glamourette

CUE TOOTH PASTE
Family Size
Reg. Price 89¢ only 49c

We Reserve the Right to Limit Quantities

JERGEN'S
Bath Size Lotion Mild
SOAP
Reg. Price 11¢ only 7c

Listerine ANTISEPTIC
20-Oz. Family Size
Reg. Price 1.29 only 79c

CREST
TOOTH PASTE 79¢
w
TOOTH BRUSH 33¢
Regular Value 1.12 59c

SCHOOL NEEDS
NOTEBOOK FILLER
300 Count 69c Value 43¢
CELLOPHANE TAPE
29c Value only 17¢

CHRISTMAS

33c
CARDS
WRAPPING PAPER
GIFTS

Sur-Sav HEALTH AND BEAUTY AIDS
BE SURE ALWAYS SAVE
SUR SAV
Sur-Sav HEALTH AND BEAUTY AIDS

Carolina Calendar Of Activities

All Campus Calendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date (by 10 a.m. Saturday for Sunday's DTH). Lost and Found notices will be run on Tuesday and Saturdays only.

TODAY

Dr. Ross L. Finney of Princeton University will be the speaker at the UNC Mathematics Colloquium at 4 p.m. in 332 Phillips Hall. His topic will be "Pseudo-isotopies on compact manifolds." Coffee and tea will be served in room 385 at 3:30.

Christian Science Organization will meet in the Woodhouse Room of GM from 7-7:30 p.m. All interested students are invited.

Anyone wishing to write or sell ads for the "Open Forum," a Student Party newspaper, should contact Alan Banov at 550 Ehringhaus or Gary Nordan at 523 Ehringhaus.

Fellowship of Christian Athletes meeting at 7:30 upstairs in Woollen Gym. All members and those interested please attend.

V I G A H Program Development Committee will meet at 3 p.m. in Roland Parker III.

Intervarsity Christian Fellowship will meet at 6:30 upstairs in Lenoir Hall and discuss selections from Acts.

Conversation with Mr. Geer at 4 p.m. at the Wesley Foundation on Pittsboro Street.

The UP Caucus will meet at 6:45 p.m. in the Grail Room.

All delegates, alternates and observers for state student legislature will have an organizational meeting at 4:30 p.m. in Roland Parker I and II.

New Morality, the current issue of New Wine is on sale at the following places: Y-Court, Lenoir Hall, Chase Cafeteria, Bull's Head, Carolina Coffee Shop, Kemp's and GM. This present issue discusses the implications of the new morality in the world today.

Dorm meeting of freshmen officers in Ehringhaus at 9 p.m. Craige at 10 p.m. and the Nurses' Dorm at 11 p.m.

MRC Points Committee meets at 8 p.m. in the Woodhouse Room of GM.

There will be a meeting of Bill Taylor's Related Discussion Committee in the Carolina Symposium room on the second floor of the Y Building at 4 p.m.

Rod and Gun field meet at 1 p.m.

FRIDAY

Phi Eta Sigma members will meet at 2 p.m. in the Woodhouse Room of GM. All members interested in directing campus tours for the National Merit Program on Sunday.

Hillel Foundation Sabbath evening services at 7 p.m.

Co-Op Committee meets in the Grail Room at 4 p.m. All new and summer members.

Dorm meeting of freshmen officers in Parker at 9 p.m., Teague at 10 p.m., and Avery at 11 p.m.

National Merit Scholarship committee at 5 p.m. upstairs in Lenoir Hall.

Morrison Residence College presents an evening with the Four Winds from 8-12 p.m. in the Go-Go Room. Featuring The Four Winds, Morrison's go-go girl, special guest guitarist, and MC'ed by WKIX's Tommy Walker. Open to all students. Tickets go on sale in Y-Court Thursday and Friday. A limited number of tickets will be sold. Couples only. Dancing.

Westminster Fellowship Bowling Party. Rides will leave the Presbyterian Student Center at 7:30 p.m.

Combo Party starring "The Manhattens," from 8 - 12 p.m. in the GM Rendezvous Room.

Fraternities Pledge Twenty-Three

Twleve of UNC's 23 social fraternities took a total of 73 pledges during fall rush.

By class, 47 sophomores, 24 juniors and two juniors joined the Greek ranks. Twenty-three of the pledges were transfer students.

ALPHA TAU OMEGA: David M. Avery, David L. Riggs.

CHI PHI: George W. Armfield, W. LeGrand Bennett, R. Thomas Feamster Jr., David J. Howell, Thomas R. Lund, Davis W. Nelson, Pressley R. Rankin, Louis B. Seaman, Jerry S. Starnes, Frederick Van Wagenen.

DELTA KAPPA EPSILON: Edward B. Dudley III, James G. Kenan, Steven M. McCarroll, Randolph B. Old, Willard J. Overlock Jr., Philip Riker III.

DELTA UPSILON: C. David Benbow, Samuel Bledsoe, Charles J. Hupfer, William N. Mees, David M. Watkinson.

KAPPA ALPHA: Thomas V. Barnett, King W. Brett, Clifford R. Butler Jr., Robert F. Orr, Richard T. Perry, Robert M. Travis, Thomas N. Williams, Douglas T. Worsham Jr.

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA: Fred B. Emmerson Jr., J. Michael Fitzpatrick, Warren G. Haugen Jr., James R. McCoy, Roger R. B. McLean, William C. Renfrow II, James F. Streaker.

PHI GAMMA DELTA: Page C. Keel Jr., Richard J. Miller, Ronald W. Miller, David S. Morris, Frank H. Shields, Steve R. Smith.

PHI KAPPA SIGMA: William R. Amlong, George L. Baucom, David B. Bwon, Finley B. Clarke, T. Henry Clarke IV, James F. English III, Thomas L. Frisbee, William H. Helms, Edward A. Hutson Jr., Charles K. McCotter Jr., J. Douglas McCullough, Timothy S. McKeithan, James P. Meadows, Raymond G. Taylor, Richard A. Urquhart, Jimmy N. Whitley.

PI LAMBDA PHI: John R. Coffey, Gordon M. Davis, Arthur Eisenband, Emanuel J. Friedman, David M. Ginsberg, David Q. LaBarre, Leonard P. Pollane.

SIGMA NU: Bryan C. Berger, Joe G. Bost, James E. Jester, David G. Ray, Richard N. Wright.

ZETZ PSI: Michael L. Wood.

ST. ANTHONY HALL: Donald McD. Chambers.

Varsity
THURSDAY

FRI.-SAT.-SUN.-MON.
Charlie, Sidney, Roger... The names and places didn't matter... only when!
"A RAGE TO LIVE"
SUZANNE PLESHETTE
BRADFORD DILLMAN
BEN GAZZARA as ROGER BANNON
PANAVISION
RELEASED THRU UNITED ARTISTS

ONE HALF OF
BIG CHICKEN
TOSSED SALAD
Heaps of FRENCH FRIES
TOASTED ROLLS
99c
Thur. 4:00-7:30
All the Ice Tea you can drink 15c
GRANTS
EASTGATE SHOPPING CENTER

KING WILLIAM RESTAURANT
STEAKS CHICKEN SEAFOOD
"Choice Selection of Imported and Domestic Beverages"
All New and Modern, featuring
Seating Capacity of 300
1½ Miles From Campus on 15-501 South
• Spacious Parking
• Four Private dining rooms
• Tasteful background music
• Catering facilities
Open Seven Days a Week 8:00 A.M. 'til Midnight

AFSC Officer Will Talk On Viet Nam Tomorrow

A Quaker, who has been to Viet Nam and met with leading Buddhists, will speak in Gerrard Hall at 4 p.m. tomorrow.

Sponsored by th3 UNC - YMCA, Stephen G. Cary, associate executive secretary of the American Friends Service Committee, will describe his tour of Viet Nam and how these people see Americans.

Cary's group maintained a base in Saigon and traveled to the principal cities and many villages, as well as to Laos, Cambodia and Thailand.

One of his associates said the group saw "hopeful signs in Viet Nam . . there is the emerging leadership of youth, a development which premier Ky is at present helping to foster."

Cary's group talked to Vietnamese students and professors, government ministers, Catholic and buddhist priests and laymen, labor leaders and journalists, as well as Americans and representatives of other nations on the scene.

"Though the Vietnamese people see us largely now in terms of the 'ugly America,' there seems to be some disposition on their part to forgive and forget once the military phase of our involvement is over," a group spokesman said.

FOR RENT: NEW 10 x 50 completely furnished, 2 bedroom mobile home. Available immediately. Telephone 942-3268 or 942-1749.

FOR SALE: '59 AUSTIN Healey Roadster. Wire wheels, overdrive, luggage rack, new black paint, red and black interior. 6 months on engine overhaul. $750 — best offer. Call 942-3048.

QUIK FOOD MART
(Near the Main Intersection of Town — A Stone's Throw from the Zoom-Zoom)
CARTON CIGARETTES $1.88
BEER CHAMPAGNE WINE

CHASE DINING HALL
In addition to our regular student special (50c)
Now Featuring Daily at Lunch a HOT SANDWICH COUNTER
TODAY'S SANDWICH
HICKORY SMOKED BARBECUE On Bun
F.F. Potatoes Cole Slaw
.60
Open: Daily 7-2 5-7:15 Sunday 8-2 5-7:15
POSITIVELY NO WAITING BREAKFAST OR LUNCH

How to make a snap course out of a tough one!
Obviously, Olds 4-4-2 crammed for its finals. It masters miles with a 400-cubic-inch V-8, 4-barrel carb and a rumbling pair of pipes. Cools corners with heavy-duty suspension and front and rear stabilizers. Goes to the head of its class with the sportiest configuration ever to top four red-line tires. All this, and straight A's in economics, too . . . like matching its modest price to your pocket! LOOK TO OLDS FOR THE NEW!
STEP OUT FRONT IN '66 . . . in a Rocket Action Car!
TORONADO • NINETY-EIGHT • DELTA 88 • DYNAMIC 88 • JETSTAR 88 • CUTLASS • F-85 • VISTA-CRUISER • STARFIRE • 4-4-2
OLDSMOBILE
GREAT TIME TO GO WHERE THE ACTION IS . . . SEE YOUR LOCAL AUTHORIZED OLDSMOBILE QUALITY DEALER TODAY!

If you're looking for a nice comfy place to work after graduation, forget about General Electric.
We don't have any place where you can curl up and snooze away the next forty years of your career. There are no quiet little nooks in any of General Electric's 130 operating businesses in 19 countries round the world.
But if you're the wide-awake type, G.E. can provide the excitement to keep you that way. Your first assignment may be helping us find applications for a whole new family of plastics recently developed by G.E. Or you may be working at Cape Kennedy on the Apollo moon program. Or you may be working on the marketing team for a new home appliance.
One thing is certain: You'll be working. You'll have plenty of responsibility. What you won't have is a chance to doze off in the prime years of your career.
Talk to the man from G.E. when he visits campus. Come to General Electric, where the young men are important men.
Progress Is Our Most Important Product
GENERAL ELECTRIC

Pat Stith

DTH Sports Editor

I received a letter yesterday that I'd like to share with you:

"At the University of Georgia the Red and Black supports the football team. Win or lose, the Sports Editor has something good to say about the game. Why not at the University of North Carolina?

"Here the writers predict victories for the football team. Why not at the University of North Carolina?

"Our reporters believe in the football team and let them know it. Why not at the University of North Carolina?

"We love our football team. Why not at the University of North Carolina?"

—John O. Martina Jr.
University of Georgia

This week I have also received letters from the wife of a football player and a cheerleader in that same vein. I hope the rest of this column serves as an answer.

In the first place, the DTH sports staff doesn't "love" the UNC football team. We don't "love" the cross country team, or the soccer players, or any other group of athletes.

Sure, we'd like to see them win. But winning is not our job, it's theirs. Our job is to report the news and comment on it. If we err in our comment, we'd like to err in their favor.

But we are not press agents. We are not morale builders. We are not clipping producers. We are not alibi-makers for any team or any athlete.

Our job isn't to set the athlete on a pedestal and praise him. And any "athlete" who expects that sort of treatment isn't worthy of the name.

When an individual's play is the key to a UNC victory, we want to give him credit. And when an individual's play is the key to defeat, we want to give him credit too.

Support the football team? As students we support them as much — more, I'd say — than anyone. But that has nothing to do with "saying it like it is."

During the first six week's of publication we have both defended Coach Jim Hickey and criticized him.

We said of the Ohio State victory "If North Carolina teams play football for 1,000 years, still they may say that this was their finest hour."

But when Hickey said his team's performance against Virginia was "sorry" we not only quoted him — we agreed with him.

We have defended Athletic Director Chuck Erickson over the seating arrangement in Carmichael Auditorium and we have chided the cheerleaders for making no effort whatsoever to make the trip to Columbus with the football team.

We are going to continue to report news that athletes make as accurately and fairly as possible. And we are going to continue to comment — and let the chips fall where they may.

Meade Is In Sick Bay

Cross country Captain Jim Meade is in the infirmary with a sore throat. His doctor, Warren Morgan, hasn't made a diagnosis yet, but he fears Jim may have mono.

Over the past two years Joe Hilton's number one boy finished the winner in every meet but three.

Meade may miss the State Championship Meet next Monday, an event Carolina has dominated for the past five years.

All Weather COATS

Just arrived new shipment of All Weather coats made by LONDON FOG and RAINFAIR.

Select from oyster, natural, olive, navy, and grey in unlined from 27.50.

The lined favorite comes in olive, black and natural from 39.95.

Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin St.
"Clothiers of Distinction"

Natural fit and natural comfort are the prime requisites of the natural shoulder fashions. Now here is this tradition better exemplified than in the finely tailored suits at

THE HUB

In every detail they reflect the confidence of the men who wear them—the shoulders, the lapels, the buttons, the slightest suppression at the waist—every refinement pays tribute to the lasting good taste of natural shoulder styling. Available in a wide variety of sizes and colors, in styles that range from the richest muted plaids to the casual smartness of the chalk stripe.
.... from 59.95

It's Children's Book Week

Especially for this occasion, we've tracked down a special lot of the old-timey titles that are still in print.

Add to these the pick of the recent crop, and it's the nicest batch of junior delight imaginable!

FREE BALLOONS!

All this week, there's a Free balloon for each child who brings in a parent!

Enjoy a second childhood this week at the Intimate!

The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill
open every day until 10 pm

COMING AT YOU are frosh cagers (l. to r.): Joe Brown, Dick Adams, Dick Grubar, Paul Camnitz, Jim Bostick, Rusty Clark, Cecil Harrison, Wayne Dillard, Doug Saunders, Rixey Todd, and Mike Higgins. (Not Pictured: Gerald Tuttle, Pete Mallison, Bill Bunting, and Don Rindfleisch.)

Freshmen Stress Defense

By BILL ROLLINS
DTH Sports Writer

You'd think that a coach with a wealth of offensive potential at his disposal would center most of his early practice time around the development of a high-geared scoring attack.

Well, you'd think wrongly.

At least, that's not the way freshman basketball Coach Larry Brown views the situation.

Brown has this theory about basketball:

"If a team works hard and develops a real good defense, it builds up unity among the boys. If a certain player's man scores, he feels that he has let the team down. Then he goes even harder to prevent it from happening again."

"Most of these boys came here with excellent prep scoring averages, so we know they can score. By stressing defense, we hoped to bring something out of the boys that maybe they hadn't fully used before.

After two full weeks of practice, what have been the results

"The boys are playing some great defense. They still make mistakes, but they all have a lot of personal pride."

* * *

The "we" in Brown's quotes includes Charlie Schaffer, former UNC co-captain and John Lotz, who are helping the former Olympic backcourtman mold the team.

Brown continued:

"Offensively, we've been very disciplined so far, just trying to install the system and get the boys familiar with it. Because of this the boys themselves have not even begun to develop their offensive potential yet."

The guy with perhaps the best shooting hand on the club is 6-3 Jim Bostick, a Morehead scholar from Westminister Prep in Atlanta.

Brown will probably use Bostick as a "swing man," between guard and forward, and holds the same tentative plans for 6-3 Dick Grubar from Schenectady, N. Y.

Grubar, who has operated mainly at guard thus far, possesses the ability to shoot well from short range with either hand.

Doing most of the work in the backcourt with Grubar has been 5-11 Gerald Tuttle from London, Ky.

For the first time in a good many years, the timber is growing tall in the UNC frosh front court. And in the tall trunks of that timber there is talent.

The real tall guys are Bill Bunting (6-8) from New Bern and Rusty Clark (6-10 1-2), another Morehead man, of Fayetteville. Then there is Joe Brown of Valdese, a 6-5er who stands every bit as tall as his two counterparts when it comes to playing the game.

"Joe was a little overweight when practice started but he's worked back down to normal and now his quickness is showing up."

Brown is proud also of the nine boys who have made the present squad of fifteen from among the 80 original candidates.

He is especially high on Wayne Dillard (5-10), Cecil Harrison (5-10) and Rixey Todd (6-1), his three guards who are pushing Grubar and Tuttle.

Along the front line, Pete Mallison (6-6) and Mike Higgins (6-5) are at center, and Don Rindfleisch, Bill Adams, Paul Camnitz and Doug Saunders — all 6-4 — contest Bunting and Brown at forward.

Tar Babies Lose Guard Mike Smith

There will be one major change in the North Carolina freshman offensive lineup when it battles Wake Forest here Friday afternoon at 2 p.m. Mike Smith, star guard from Wheeling, W. Va., will be watching from the sidelines.

Smith was injured in the North Carolina State game last week on a kickoff return. Doctors advised surgery and Mike underwent a knee operation the next day. He is recovering nicely and should be as good as new in a few months.

"We have moved Tom McCain to Smith's position," said Freshman Coach George Barclay. "Smith will be missed, but McCain can do the job. I was real high on Smith's play. He should make a fine addition to the varsity next fall."

Smith stands 6-1 and weighs 235 pounds. He was one of Barclay's fastest linemen and was an excellent blocker.

Wake Forest arrives here with a 2-2 record. The young Deacs lost to Clemson and N. C. State and have wins over South Carolina and Duke. The Blue Imps were stopped, 23-20, by Coach Joe Popp's forces.

"I will be playing most of my boys both ways," said Popp. "That means we will be pretty much outmanned. But these kids play hard and they want to beat Carolina."

Duke and N. C. State have been common foes between the two teams. UNC whipped the Blue Imps 31-0; Wake won 23-20. The Tar Babies have beaten State twice, 9-0 and 21-13; Wake lost to NCS 50-7

Barclay will start a 220-pound line against Wake and a backfield which averages 198. He says his squad definitely will be "up" for the final contest of the year.

Both Popp and Barclay have special reasons for wanting a win. The Deaclets have not posted a winning season since 1956. A victory over Carolina would elevate them to 3-2. The Tar Babies are looking for a piece of silver.

Antique Stained Wooden Musical Old Well that Plays "Hark The Sound"

Julian's
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Chi Phi Downs Kappa Psi 21-0 In Intramural Ball

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

Chi Phi scored 21 points in the first half and coasted to a 21-0 victory over Kappa Psi in intramural tag football on Wednesday. Loving Swasey scored two TD's for Chi Phi and Rob Myrch added the third. Bob McLean, Doug Polk and Lloyd Coley each had an extra point.

ATO Blue I blanked the Phi Gam White Owls, 24-0. Joe Vaughn was the big gun for ATO, scoring three times. Bob Wicker had one touchdown.

In Tuesday action, the ZBT Zebes sneaked by Pi Lamb, 4-0. Frank Rosenbaum scored a safety in the first half and Rick Blue had one in the second half to account for ZBT points.

ATO Blue I crushed TEP-B, 59-0. Sammy Starling and Leon Woodruff scored three TD's each while Jerry Liebhart and George Tennille chipped in with two and one.

Phi Delt Blue over St. A. Blue, 28-0; Kappa Psi over Phi Gam Fijis, 13-7; KA Blue I over AK Psi, 18-6; Kappa Sig Klowns over Lambda Chi, 19-7; Joyner Supporters over Connor Cronies, 6-0; Victory Village over Geology, 14-0; DKE Red over Phi Kappa Sig J-Birds, 6-2; Beta Brewers over SAE Blue II, 12-0.

In Tuesday volleyball results, Pi Kappa Phi White beat DU Blue IX, 2-0 (15-2, 13-2); DKE Blue downed DU Blue 5, 2-0 (15-2, 15-3); Lambda Chi Green defeated SPE Cossacks, 21 (10-2, 12-15, 5-3); SPE Poles beat Phi Delta Chi, 20 (15-5, 8-6); and Beta I beat AK Psi, 2-0 (11-4, 13-2).

In other results it was KA Blue III over Kappa Psi, 2-0 (12-3, 10-4); Navy DD's over Med Whites, 2-0 (8-6, 11-9); Med School Reds over Med School Edipitous, 2-0 (15-11, 15-13); Med Blue I over BSU, 2-0 (10-1, 14-6); Law II over Peacocks, 2-1 (10-4, 6-8, 72); and Navy I over Law III, 20, (13-5, 151).

JUST ARRIVED
New Shipment
FARAH
STAY PRESSED SLACKS
from 6.98
Traditionally Tailored, Perfect for Class. Select from our heather tones.
Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin

Let's take a trip with Saturn Airways! Dependable charter flights, any time, for special outings, football games, vacations. Anywhere in the States, Europe, Caribbean, Hawaii. College groups everywhere depend on Saturn. We're charter specialists. Over 17 years' experience. Luxurious DC-7C aircraft. Personalized service. Rock-bottom fares to write home about (or for). Phone or write for details.

Make advance reservations NOW for low-fare Spring/Summer transatlantic charters

Saturn AIRWAYS, INC.
Certificated Supplemental Air Carrier

GENERAL OFFICES: MIAMI, FLORIDA 33166
4471 N.W. 36th St.—TU 7-6725
New York, N.Y. .....545 Fifth Avenue, MU 7-2640
Chicago, Ill. .....6 North Michigan Avenue, AN 3-0663
San Antonio, Texas ...International Airport TA 4-6921
Los Angeles, Calif. .....P.O. Box 75-501, DU 1-1573
London, W. 1, England ..81 Piccadilly, Hyde Park 0167
1 Berlin 42, Germany
Zentral Flughafen, Templehof Airport, 69801

All Angel LP's at Huge Discounts

THIS WEEK AT THE RECORD BAR

FEATURING THE NEW ANGEL RELEASE

"THE TALES OF HOFFMAN" 3 Record Set by Offenbach

Mono regular 16.00 ..... NOW 9.49

Stereo regular 19.00 ..... NOW 10.99

FOR BIG-TIME NAME-DROPPERS
CORELLI CALLAS GIULINI KLEMPERER

Here's the most brilliant cast ever assembled for "TALES OF HOFFMANN." These great names make this exhilarating new Angel release a notable event in music: Nicolai Gedda, Gianna D'Angelo, Elisabeth Schwarzkopf, Victoria de los Angeles, George

London, Ernest Blanc—and André Cluytens conducting the Paris Conservatoire Orchestra. SCLX-3667

ALL reg. 5.00 LP's .... NOW 2.99

ALL reg. 6.00 LP's .... NOW 3.49

ALL OTHER LP's 25% off

THE RECORD BAR
Across from the Post Office on Henderson Street
DURHAM, UPTOWN JACKSONVILLE, FLA. DURHAM, WELLON'S VILLAGE

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Sweet Flick

"A Taste of Honey" is tonight's Free Flick. Shows begin at 7 and 9 p.m. in Carroll Hall.

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Vol. 74, No. 75 | CHAPEL HILL NORTH CAROLINA FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1965 | Founded February 23, 1893.

Pep Rally

A pep rally will begin tonight at 8 p.m. in Planetarium Parking Lot. Torches will be provided for the parade to Emerson Field. Beat Clemson!

N.C. Legislature Will Meet To Consider Ban

Most Expect Commission To Recommend Changes

By ED FREAKLEY
DTH Staff Writer

Word leaked off Raleigh's Capitol Hill yesterday that Nov. 15 has been set as the date for a special session of the General Assembly to consider the recommendations of the Speaker Ban Study Commission. The Commission will present its report to Gov. Moore this afternoon.

Informed sources, who refused to be identified, said yesterday that legislators have been notified of the date by the Governor.

Commission Chairman David Britt will formally present the report to Moore at 2:30 today in the old House Chamber.

Several legislators contacted by the DTH said they had only heard rumors and that they had not received any official communications from the Governor.

Orange County Rep. Donald M. Stanford, who lives in Chapel Hill, said he has heard nothing.

"I will be sorely disappointed if the commission does not return a favorable report," Stanford said.

It has also been rumored that Nov. 22 might be a possible date for the special session. However, the sources, who would not make a statement until after the Governor makes it all official, said Nov. 15 was the definite date for the session.

Most people think the commission will ask that the law be amended so all university policies will be placed in the hands of the trustees.

If so the boards will have the power to rule on who should or should not be allowed to speak on the various campuses.

It is assumed that Britt, who speeded up his commission report, has already given the results of the investigation to Moore.

The Commission ended its hearings in Raleigh six weeks ago. Britt said at that time he felt it would take until "about the end of November" to go through the four days of public hearings and come up with an answer to the problem.

He later said it would be about the middle of November. Then he speculated that Nov. 10 would be the day.

This leaves time for the legislature to meet and amend the law before the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools meets Nov. 30.

It has been rumored that the association plans to place North Carolina's state supported colleges and universities on probation because they feel the law is an abridgement of academic freedom.

Rep. Phil Godwin, who introduced the bill in the House, has said he may call for a statewide referendum on the law to the last word to North Carolina voters.

Moore has said he will uphold whatever the Speaker Ban Commission recommends.

The law which was passed on the last day of the 1963 session of the General Assembly forbids Communists and pleaders of the Fifth Amendment in subversive cases from speaking on State-supported college campuses.

Consolidated University President William Friday, Chancellor Paul Sharp, former student body president Robert Spearman and Student Govstudent body President Paul ernment President Paul Dickson all testified at the Commission hearings against the law.

They argued the statue violates academic freedom and subjects the institutions of higher learning to political control.

A compromise recommendation, halfway between reapeal and retention of the law, is expected to gain legislative approval.

Many backers of the ban law have hinted they would support a compromise at a special session.

It is felt supporters of the law could work to place men who would enforce the ban on the board of trustees.

The American Legion has promised to fight against any amendments in the law.

After much controversy over the law Gov. Moore set up the study commission. Hearings were held in September and in October.

Are Fraternities Dying?

Residence Colleges Pose Threat

(First of a series of articles on the status of social fraternities on American College campuses.)

By FRED THOMAS
DTH News Editor

Is "taps" being sounded for the social fraternity on the American college campus?

"I don't know if the Greeks will make it," says Dean of Men William G. Long.

In 1957 UNC boasted an enrollment of 6,000, and 25 per cent of its students were affiliated with one of 24 social fraternities.

Today, with more than twice that number of students, fraternity members comprise 19 per cent of the enrollment and there is one less fraternity.

If this indicates a decline in the strength of the fraternity system, what brought it on?

Residence Colleges

One of the greatest threats to Greek organizations nationwide is the thriving Residence College system.

UNC got its first taste of this idea in residence hall living last year, and it has met with great success on campus, Petitions are presently being circulated by students whose residence halls are not now in the Residence College System asking that they be incorporated into the system this year.

But Dean Long thinks fraternities are more worried about possible harm from the Residence College System than actual harm.

"If a fraternity reaches its full potential it will always be one step ahead of the best residence college," he said.

"The Residence College Systm was never intended to threaten fraternities."

Long explained that the system was designed to provide meaningful social experiences for people who live in residence halls.

"The plan was undertaken to improve what was originally a bad situation," he said. "Activity has got increasingly better."

Long said of a residence college party he attended Saturday night, "I didn't believe I would ever see what used to be called 'dorm rats' throwing that kind of a party."

Need Good P. R.

In light of the new availability of social facilities, fraternities should "accentuate the positive and decentuate the 'Mickey Mouse' aspects of Greek life," he said.

"I believe the end result will be that fraternities will be strengthened in what they offer and in what they stand for" because of pressure from the Residence College System.

Another weakness in the fraternity system pointed out by Long is the fact that "fraternities are transitory."

"Fraternities could do many long - term things to perpetuate themselves. But students are not long term," he said.

He said he finds that many of UNC's fraternities have alienated themselves with their national offices and with alumni, and have lost much of their tradition and continuity.

WILLIAM G. LONG

Long contrasted the Greeks' year-to-year change - over with the system in residence halls whereby a resident advisor works through the MRC and the administration in carrying out long-range programs.

Most campus offices are still held by fraternity men, but Long predicts that as residence hall life get more vigorous men will get their political acquaintances in their residence halls and will have a greater opportunity to move into Student Government from there.

Inferiority Complex

"Fraternities have almost got an inferiority complex like the residence halls used to have," he said, "but not in the same sense.

"Many fraternities are looking at their future in the 'what the hell' sense."

He also noted that the faculty is becoming negatively disposed toward fraternities.

"Many on the faculty wonder if such a selective group is in place at an institution of public education.

"Fraternities are going to have to find ways to put the soft pedal on bad aspects and put the loud pedal on the many positive aspects," he said again.

Long says he sees two ideas that might help solve the Greeks' problem.

1) The alumni could take up the cause of perpetuating the local fraternity.

2) The faculty could assume a more or less parental role.

"I very much want to see fraternities make it, because they have very great potential to contribute positively to this campus — more than any other single group," he said.

"It is impossible to get so close a grouping working in the Residence College System.

"But if fraternities keep up their black-balling and Brooks Brothers bigotry I don't care if they don't succeed.

"There is no place in the middle of the 20th century at a public institution for such practices."

Long said the Greeks could keep the faculty off their backs if they cut out "joy rides" and the practice of keeping students up all night during class weeks.

"Also, if fraternity men consistently performed higher than the rest of campus men, they would have no problem with the faculty," he said.

He predicted that the fraternity of the future will have to put more emphasis than ever before on academics.

He cited two reasons for this: 1) The matter of appeasing faculty and administration, 2) The fact that every year's students are of higher intellectual potential and are looking for an atmosphere condusive to learning.

"By this I do not mean that I think fraternities should breed Little Lord Fauntleroys who sit around in philosophical discussions all the time," he said.

Restrictive Caluses

There has been national speculation that many frater-

(Continued on Page 3)

Pro-Campus Radio Forces Circulate Petition Calling For Student Vote

By JOHN GREENBACKER
DTH Political Writer

Supporters of the proposed campus carrier current radio system said yesterday they will circulate a petition on campus within 24 hours which, if successful, will allow the student body to vote on all radio legislation.

The announcement was made by Campus Radio Committee Chairman John Stupak.

Student Legislature defeated a key radio organization bill Oct. 22 which would have established the non-commercial radio's governing body and station management.

The organization bill's defeat was considered by some to be a death blow for campus radio.

SL defeated the radio bill after a campus - wide referendum on the issue held early last month in which students voted three to one in favor of campus radio.

Campus - wide referendums are not binding on the legislature.

If the pro-radio petition is signed by ten per cent of the student body, a referendum on the radio bills will be held.

If students vote in favor of the radio, the bills will be declared passed without action by Student Legislature, and they will be sent to the student body president.

Campus radio would provide low-power AM broadcasting to all university residence halls and FM broadcasting to areas within a five-mile radius of Chapel Hill.

Opponents of campus radio have criticized its initial expense of nearly $35,000 and the fact that AM signals would not immediately be made available to off-campus areas such as sorority and fraternity houses.

In a statement issued yesterday, Stupak and radio committee member Richard Conely said they will seek the student body's personal approval for the radio bills "if the legislature fails to reconsider campus radio and recognize the student mandate for its passage.

"We do not believe we have witnessed representative government in action as pertains to the entire campus radio program," the statement reads in part.

"The Student Legislature has flaunted the wishes of the student body, disregarding a referendum which they, the legislators, demanded."

Stupak and Conely singled out in their attack representative Sandy Hobgood (SP), who told the legislature before voting against campus radio, "A thousand referendums couldn't change my vote on this issue."

"We were told that if the student body, like a sleeping giant, were suddenly to be awakened with full knowledge of this power, that no one would be safe," the statement reads.

"If that means that the students would demand responsibility from their representatives, that is those legislators who stood with Mr. Hobgood in defiance of the referendum, we will awaken them to their power and be proud of the fact we did."

Ban On TV

WUNC-TV will broadcast Gov. Moore's announcement about the Speaker Ban Commission report today at 2:30 p.m.

Kiel Says He Will Stop Efforts For Recall Vote

David Kiel, leader of the presidential recall forces, said yesterday all efforts to seek a recall election by his forces have ceased.

Kiel made the announcement after yesterday's decision by the Constitutional Council of Student Government to disqualify 33 pages of the recall petition.

"As the request of the over 1,900 students for a recall election has been denied," Kiel said, "the student body will never have the opportunity to speak its will on this issue.

"We can only hope that, in the future, more responsible leadership will restore to student Government the respect and confidence it has lost through the action of our chief executive," said.

Kiel referred to Student Body President Paul Dickson's conviction last summer by the Men's Council of a Campus Code violation.

'Beanbirds' Induct 18

To compensate for the annual loss of some of its higher-flying birds, the Order of the Old Beanbirds rose from its mystic roost this morning to complement its flock.

Flying low over the Campus and chirping joyously, the Beanbirds rousted 18 fledglings at dawn and received them home to nest in a myster ceremony.

The new birds are Joe "Long - Legged Loon" Exum, Jay "Pomarine Jayer" Fountain, Henry, "Man-O-War" May, Schooner "Dumping Duck" Nowell, Jack "Nigger Goose" Dunn.

Bill "Bush-Tit" Parham, Jim "Red-Eyed Vireo" Van Ness, Bobby "Gliding Puffin" Parker, William "Wagtail Walloon" Ward, David "Hell Diver Parrot" Poer, Joyce "Worm - Eating Warbler" Watt.

Gaye "Hop - O - My - Thumbs" Harris, Martha "Pumpkin Blossom Pumper" Powell, Janet "Pale-Breasted Pigmy" Price, Ada Lea "Bay - Breasted Bunting" Bernie.

Macon "Rose - Breasted Grosbeak" Remsburg, Ann "Crackling Creeper" Crutchfield, Susan "Rough - Legged Reef Goose" Russell.

Journalist Says Argentina Has Activists On Campus

Colleges and universities in the United States can claim no monopoly on beatniks, campus activists and demonstrators, it was said here Tuesday by a visiting Argentine newspaperman and professor of journalism at the University of the Plata.

Prof. Miguel A. Escalante, on a U. S. State Department visit to U. S. universities and cities, compared Argentine activists to those on campuses in the United States.

Campus agitators of Argentina and the United States are alike, he said. He also declared that the activists make up only a small minority of the total student population on any campus, whether in South America, Europe, Asia or North America.

However, they make noise and construct a public image of subversion all out of proportion to their size and influence — and do damage to colleges and universities, in the opinion of the Buenos Aires newspaper La Nacion's capitol correspondent in La Plata. Escalante has observed and written about rioters, demonstrators and other activists at the University of the Plata and other institutions. He teaches journalism and literature.

The Argentines have a descriptive term for a certain kind of campus activist: "idiota util," which means "useful idiot."

A useful idiot is a campus activist who really doesn't know much or care about what he is demonstrating for or against. But he is ready to join a cause at the drop of a hat. The real leadership rests in others who do understand basic motives and goals. The leaders, tiny in number use the larger contingents — joiners and hangers-on who can be led in almost any direction, if they are furnished literature and slogans suitable to their emotional needs in their readiness to rebel against authority.

Showing that campus activists are much the same the world over, Escalante said he can recognize similarities between Latin - American "idiota util's" and their counterparts in the U. S. who commit nuisances in colleges and universities in this country.

Some of the activists in Argentina seem to be inspired by Communists, he said. But there are many followers, leftists, Peronists, and many who are joiners of any movement that might be developed.

MISS AMERICAN 500, Samantha Townsend, presents the winner's trophy to stock car driver Cirtus Turner after the 500-mile race at New Rockingham Speedway Saturday night. The senior from Fayetteville was selected from a field of 23 girls from North and South Carolina to reign over the race.

Torches Burn At Rally Tonite

Pyromaniacs and UNC rooters are invited to a pep rally tonight scheduled to start at 8 p.m. in the Planetarium lot.

Torches will be provided and there will be a procession from the parking lot to Emerson Field for the bonfire.

New cheerleader head Larry Roadman will lead the rally. Pete Haynesworth and Jack Betts are the new alternates.

Freshman girl cheerleaders are Romano Taylor, Ann Martin, Betty Lou Higgenbotham, Sandy Kelse, Carnie Rouse and Linda Sieber. Ginny Webb is an alternate.

Frosh men are Bill Tate, Dave Strickler, Ray Lyles, Dave Bennett, Pat Patterson and Stuart Williams. Murry Peel and Lloyd Miller are alternates.

Writer-In-Residence Tells Of Book

By DAVID ROTHMAN
DTH Staff Writer

UNC Writer - in - Residence Thomas Leon Rooke says he will probably finish his new novel "by Christmas."

There won't be much in it about Chapel Hill, however, although Rooke told the DTH he has "moved a sun dial from UNC to New Orleans."

During the interview, he also suggested the establishment of a writer's workshop on the UNC campus and facetiously said a Klansman could possibly speak here to protest the speaker ban if it is not repealed or modified.

Several publishers are interested in buying his book, Rooke said, but the Atlantic Monthly Press has first grabs.

The novel is set in New Orleans' French Quarter, he explained, and "really isn't simply a serious probing book.

"It just deals with the activities of four people in one day."

A preliminary reading of the manuscript reveals one character who has a 44-26-41 figure, and there's some modeling involved.

Rooke called his new work "deeply psychological."

The four people have a "love affair with the human race," he said, but did not explain exactly what the phrase meant.

"There is a turning point in their lives . . .," said Rooke, ". . . this is not surface writing."

Looking up from a pile of papers, he suggested the writer's workshop for the UNC campus "where there would be chairs and room for typewriters."

The workshop would be open "24 hours a day," he said. "It would primarily be a place for writers to work and talk . . . It would make the writer - in - residence program more meaningful . . ."

Rooke recommended that the workshop not have a sponsor "as such," though it could be associated with The Carolina Quarterly.

He praised the existing creative writing courses at UNC, especially those taught by Jessie Rehder. "She is very loyal to her students," he said, "and always seems interested in them, as well as their work."

Rooke does not think UNC students should bring a Communist to speak on campus if the speaker ban law is not repealed or modified.

"We ought to bring a Klansman instead," he said, referring to North Carolina Grand Dragon Robert Jones' frequent use of the Fifth Amendment when testifying before congressional committees.

T. L. ROOK

"At least this would have the same effect as having a Communist speak," he joked.

Political activity is nothing new to Rooke, who participated in civil rights demonstrations here in 1963.

He said, however, that his novel has kept him too busy to be active in the integration movement this year.

Rooke recently wrote a short story about the South's race problem. "I did it mostly as a challenge to myself," he said, adding he does not usually write about this subject.

Chapel Hill, according to Rooke, has been used as a setting for many novels "because of the large number of writers here . . . Many of them in the past studied or worked here."

Rooke himself came to UNC in 1955 after attending Mars Hill College, where he took three playwriting courses.

At UNC he worked on an honors course.

He was a student of John Elbe, author of "The Free Men."

Rooke once worked with the UNC Press Bureau.

Correction

The DTH erroneously reported yesterday that students would vote Tuesday on a constitutional amendment to make the office of treasurer of the student body an appointive position.

Student Legislature in fact did not pass this section of the constitutional referendum bill. Only the office of secretary of the student body could become appointive if the students approve.

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of the Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. Letters and columns, covering a wide range of views, reflect the personal opinions of their authors.
ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

Of Course They Knew What They Were Doing

Every campus has its little mysteries, and UNC is certainly no exception. It's one of those things you can't do much about, but sometimes when there isn't much else to do — you wonder.

The puzzle we're thinking of is Joyner Residence Hall.

It's backward.

UNC Business Manager Arthur Branch denies it, because he says so many people — the Building and Grounds Committee, the Chancellor and the trustees — approved the plans, that it must be like they meant it to be.

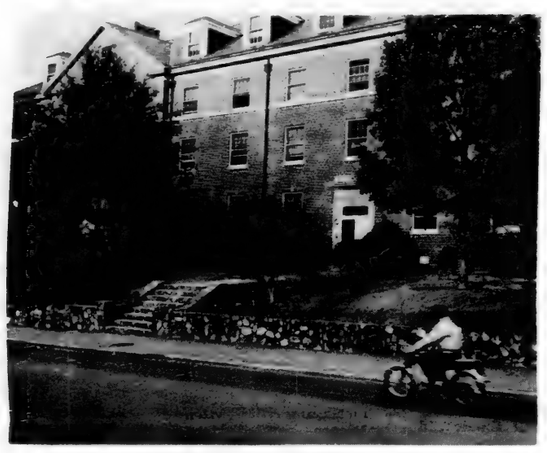
Well, maybe they wanted it to be backward.

Admittedly, the bathroom windows are on the side facing Raleigh Street and the first floor social room has a nice view of a bank and rock wall surrounding the tennis courts on the other side.

But perhaps there isn't such a mystery after all. Maybe Joyner is a monument to the foresight of the planners of the University.

We'd like to think that they knew when they faced Joyner to the east in 1948, that 24 years later women would be moving into Cobb Dormitory, directly opposite. Obviously they didn't want the men turning their backsides to the women.

So that's why Joyner got turned around. Man, that's planning.



BACK AT THE FRONT?

FRONT AT THE BACK?

Looking For A Chancellor

The Charlotte Observer

The five-member committee to recommend a chancellor for the University of North Carolina at Charlotte held another meeting recently without reaching a decision.

We take this as a further indication that the committee is going about its important assignment thoughtfully and cautiously, as indeed it should.

UNC-C is still in its infancy. The decade ahead is full of problems and of promise. The person selected for the chancellorship faces three great challenges:

1. To expand the building program, including the first dormitory units, until the basic plant is complete and in operation.

2. To broaden and strengthen the undergraduate program.

3. To begin to plan the superstructure of graduate education so desperately needed by business, industry and the professions in this area.

Past experience, administrative ability, age, imagination and creativeness are among the qualifications for the chancellorship.

In recent weeks, members of the committee have received endorsements from individuals and groups, mostly in the Charlotte area. These endorsements are undoubtedly well-intentioned and perhaps understandable, although we consider them out of order.

The selection of a chancellor for UNC-C is not a popularity contest. It is not a feminist movement.

The committee ought to be free of any pressure from any source as it goes about its search. We hope the members of the committee interpret these endorsements from laymen for what they are — expressions of devotion and esteem — and that they will not consider themselves under any pressure as they continue their deliberations.

"Tell Me, Are You In A . . . Dormitory?"

Letters To The Editor

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

The following letter was received by Mr. Tom Bost of the Alumni Office of Annual Giving and was felt to be of interest to the University community:

Dear Tom,

All alumni do, I'm sure, take the time to let their schools know if they do something they don't like — this is one time I'm taking the time to let them know when they do something right.

Our youngest daughter, Susan, is a National Merit Scholarship semifinalist — and since shortly after her name and the others were announced Sept. 22nd, has been getting all the mail in the family — from schools all over the East wanting her to come to them to college. A congratualtory letter from UNC was one of the first ones she received, and now they have followed that with an invitation to be their guest Nov. 6-8. This last was from the Student Government and signed by Wyatt McCallie, Chairman of the National Merit Scholarship Committee.

Susan, and others from her high school are looking forward to the visit, as I am sure others from over the state are. She very much plans to attend, and has so indicated by returning the card to them, even though it entails breaking a prior engagement.

Just wanted you to pass along to the proper authorities the fact that Carolina is very much "on the ball" in seeking out these students — other colleges are after them, too, but none is doing more about it than UNC, and of course that thrills me.

A Greensboro Alumna

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Everyone seems to be excited about Danny Talbott's performance last Saturday. I will certainly admit that Danny did a great job, but I am not one to say that he is another Charlie Justice. Most of the students on campus today have no way to compare the two since not many of us have ever seen Justice play.

The DTH and other papers over the state have stimulated this comparison, and that is why I am approaching you.

I believe that there is enough interest in this matter to request that someone show some films of Justice in action. Even better would be a film of the Georgia game in which Justice set his record.

Brooks Gulledge
36 Old East

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

(The following letter attempts to expose part of the fallacy of J. Edgar Hoover's letter of October 30. I quote directly from his letter, replacing "communist" with "capitalist" and Soviet State Bureau of Investigation for Federal Bureau of Investigation.)

With respect to your inquiry, I wish to reiterate that the Soviet State Bureau of Investigation has no authority to prevent capitalist speakers from appearing on college campuses. The Capitalist Party, U.S.S.R., is most anxious to expand its influence among the youth of our nation. Capitalists are following an extensive program seeking young members and in those instances where actual converts are not made, the Party hopes to create a new image of respectability and legitimacy as a liberal political faction free from foreign domination.

Capitalist speakers cleverly espouse American views on peaceful coexistence, disarmament and other similar issues. One principal objective is to gain status by appearing on the same platform with legitimate (Communist) political leaders and educators. The capitalists are highly trained and skilled in the ways of deception and distortion of the truth. These conspirators are not bound by any obligation to be honest or factual in their statements. While we all believe in academic freedom and freedom of speech, I do not feel these privileges grant license to deliberately present distortions and falsehoods.

Some students are capable of recognizing and exposing capitalist propaganda and propagandists — others are not. Therein lies the danger because capitalists have made and are making recruits in our schools, colleges, and universities. for that reason, I do not believe that capitalist spokesmen should be allowed to speak on our campuses.

Ralph B. Levering
240 Morrison Hall

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

I have been reading in the papers about the furor going on in North Carolina as to whether or not non-conformist speakers should be allowed to speak on college campuses.

I hope this will be published as it represents a victory for freedom.

In dismissing a charge by the police against a member of the Socialist Labor Party who was accused of littering the streets while handing out Socialist Labor Party leaflets, it is pertinent to repeat what New York City Criminal Court Judge Amos Basel said:

"But the right of freedom of speech is basic to our system of government and makes the difference between the United States and the Iron Curtain countries. The right of everyone of us to espouse unpopular causes with which the majority disagrees makes the difference between the U. S. and the Communist countries.

If we are truly anti-Communist, we must fight for the right of the Socialist Labor Party to have its say. To deny that right is un-american and un-democratic."

The Judge also said: ". . .I think I would be remiss to my oath of office . . . if I did not allow the people of that party to distribute their literature."

Good or Judge Basel!

Nathan Pressman
Ellenville, N.Y.
(Member of the Socialist Labor Party).

Book Review

Capote Investigates Psychological Motives Behind Clutter Murder

By JOE DePRIEST

The forces of evil were gathering that Saturday night — Nov. 14, 1959 — even as pretty Nancy Clutter kissed her boy friend good night at 11 p.m. It was a date night in Holcomb, Kansas like in every other town in the country.

With pleasant thoughts of the past evening on her mind, Nancy made a few short notations in her diary before she went to bed. Then she turned out the lights and climbed between the sheets.

The Clutter house, a fine white farmhouse on the outskirts of rural Holcomb, was dark and quiet.

In separate rooms slept: Mr. Herbert Clutter, a big but gentle man who had provided well for his family with his wheat farm; his wife, a high - strung but loving mother; and Kenton, 15, a particularly bright and inventive young boy.

This sleeping family had no way of knowing that in that bright moonlit November night outside, people they had never seen or known would soon arrive and never allow them to see morning again.

Sometime between 11 p.m. and 1 a.m. the security of their home was invaded by a strange, malevolent pair who left behind in the Clutter home four bodies with their heads blown apart by shotgun blasts.

The Clutter murder case is the subject of novelist Truman Capote's new non-fiction work In Cold Blood, to be published by Random House on Jan. 17. The book, which represents six years work by Capote, was recently serialized in the New Yorker magazine.

In it we meet the Clutter family and follow their every move on that last day of their lives.

We meet their killers. By the time the book ends we know these two people intimately. We are alongside them each step they make before and after the murders.

As they tell about themselves, we stare point-blank into a bitter world of hatred, persecution and deprivation — a dark world of madness. We momentarily visit that world when the killers tell what happened inside the Clutter house that November night. One said: "I thought Mr. Clutter was a very nice gentleman. Right up to the moment I cut his throat."

The whole case is documented from beginning to end by Capote. It is primarily a book of quotations. Capote lets the principals in the story speak. According to a recent Time Magazine article, Capote visited the death house over 200 times, talking several hours with the killers, then transcribing the conversations from memory.

We follow the officers of the Kansas Bureau of Investigation as they try desperately to solve a crime with no apparent motive.

The reaction of Holcomb residents, their suspicions, their fears — all this is examined.

A mountain of facts are assorted and assembled and with Capote's swift, evocative prose, In Cold Blood emerges a work of art — a staggering job of reportage that reads like a novel.

Certain to be one of the largest literary events of 1966, In Cold Blood deserves a wide audience. The movie rights have been sold to Columbia pictures, with Richard Brooks directing and Capote writing the screenplay.

It is at once a tender story and a frightening one. If for no other reason, In Cold Blood should be read as a brilliant character study of two disturbed individuals — two pathetic and dangerous people out of that shadowy undercurrent of society that often rears its ugly head and explodes, as it did in Holcomb, Kansas in 1959.

David Rothman

Distressed Republicans Reverse Their Stand On US Foreign Policy

By DAVID ROTHMAN

The truth's now out: The Young Republicans have infiltrated the Student Peace Union, Students for a Democratic Society and the Communist Party.

The YRC subversives were very distressed after the election when President Johnson began following the foreign policy recommendations of Senator Goldwater.

Johnson okayed the bombing of North Viet Nam, the buildup of U. S. troop strength in Asia, active intervention in the affairs of the Dominican Republic, and, to show his implacable anti-communism, the sending of the "Hello Dolly" performers to Viet Nam.

In other words, Johnson's policies were respectably "hardline."

Naturally this proved shocking to the Young Republicans. How could they continue to say the President wasn't fighting Communism?

"Darn it," the YRC leaders said, "we've got to figure out some new way of making the Johnson administration look bad. Maybe we oughta switch our tactics and stop saying he's soft on Communism."

So they told the YRC members of join radical student groups and raise hell about bombs and troop buildups.

For advice, the Young Republicans turned to the John Birch Society, which naturally was delighted to learn there would be new Communist activity.

The Birchers gave them helpful hints on subverting PTAs, writing letters to congressmen and infiltrating churches.

The YRC people did not particular enjoy parading around in tennis shoes, sweat shirts and beards; however, they settled this problem after much careful thought. "Gosh," a YRC lad remarked, "nothing could be as silly as wearing those cowboy hats at our convention last June."

Every radical movement must not limit itself to verbal protests, so Klansmen offered the Republicans suggestions on burning draft cards since they'd already learned how to set crosses afire.

Several YRC members objected to the tiresome "prayer vigils" to protest Johnson's handling of the Vietnamese war. They also disliked the publication of lurid illustrated pamphlets showing mothers with mutilated children. Another source of friction was the Viet Cong colors carried in the peace parades. Eventually, however, the Young Republicans solemnly agreed: "It is our duty to honor God, Mother and Flag."

Some of the hardier YRC boys even refused to pay their income tax to support the war in Viet Nam. "I know this will weaken the armed forces," one YRC stalward declared, "but not paying the government is an excellent way of protesting the progressive income tax."

Certain hostilities prevented the Young Republicans from talking with NAACP representatives to find out how to fit in with a minority group like the peace movement.

But finally the issue was resolved when the YRC leaders remembered they were in a minority group to begin with. "We acquired that status last November," one of them said.

—Threat To Fraternities

Continued from Page 1

nities will suffer because of discriminatory clauses in their national charters.

Long explained that letters were sent to the national offices of all UNC fraternities last year asking for a document certifying that all locals would be free to choose members regardless of race, color or creed.

Seventeen of the 23 have complied. And Long said he does not believe any fraternity will move off campus rather than comply with this stipulation if pressure is exerted in the future.

"I believe in local autonomy for every fraternity — freedom from the national office and freedom from the university," he said.

Long said he recognizes as a definite sign of weakness the trend among juniors and seniors to move out of fraternity houses into apartments, leaving the running of the fraternity up to sophomores.

"A predominately sophomorish organization won't make it in today's atmosphere," he said.

Housing Problem

This pointed up another of the fraternities' great problems in Long's opinion — that of housing.

"More than half of the fraternity housing here is substandard," he said. "And there isn't much they can do.

"If a fraternity wants to add a story to its house, the town won't permit it.

"And the town's zoning regulations make it impossible for a fraternity to buy or build in a new location.

"Finally, most fraternities can't afford to move out to the new fraternity court. This unavailability of funds goes back to the fact that they have alienated their nationals and alumni," he said.

Today's Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date (by 10 a.m. Saturday for Sunday's DTH). Lost and Found notices will be run on Tuesday and Saturdays only.

TODAY

Phi Eta Sigma members will meet at 2 p.m. in the Woodhouse Room of GM. All members interested in directing campus tours for the National Merit Program on Sunday.

Hillel Foundation Sabbath evening services at 7 p.m.

Co-Op Committee meets in the Grail Room at 4 p.m. All new and summer members.

Dorm meeting of freshmen officers in Parker at 9 p.m., Teague at 10 p.m., and Avery at 11 p.m.

National Merit Scholarship committee at 5 p.m. upstairs in Lenoir Hall.

Morrison Residence College presents an evening with the Four Winds from 8-12 p.m. in the Go-Go Room. Featuring The Four Winds, Morrison's go-go girl, special guest guitarist, and MC'ed by WKIX's Tommy Walker. Open to all students. Tickets go on sale in Y-Court Thursday and Friday. A limited number of tickets will be sold. Couples only. Dancing.

Westminster Fellowship Bowling Party. Rides will leave the Presbyterian Student Center at 7:30 p.m.

Combo Party starring "The Manhattens," from 8 - 12 p.m. in the GM Rendezvous Room.

Anyone wishing to write or sell ads for the "Open Forum," a Student Party newspaper, should contact Alan Banov at 550 Ehringhaus or Gary Nordan at 523 Ehringhaus.

New Morality, the current issue of New Wine is on sale at the following places: Y-Court, Lenoir Hall, Chase Cafeteria, Bull's Head, Carolina Coffee Shop, Kemp's and GM. This present issue discusses the implications of the new morality in the world today.

Baptist Student Union Supperstudy at 5:45 in the BSU Center. The topic will be Church Morality in the University Community.

Budget Committee will meet at 2:30 p.m. in front of GM to have pictures taken.

Faculty Council meeting at 4 p.m. in the Courtroom of Manning Hall.

"He is the fire of life itself, a piece of the sun in the shape of a man!" —Time

Old Lampshade Names Sixteen

Sixteen coeds were honored in pre-dawn ceremonies Monday for their "outstanding ability to do nothing, and not even do this well."

The Order of the Old Lamp Shades inducted the girls because "some are active in campus affairs, but participate in a do-nothing spirit."

The worthless group includes: Judy Kearns, Jane Davis, Linda Waring, Barbara Doby, Janie Lowery, Rene Clark, Brenda Ballard, Mary Susan Kirk, Phyllis Kesler, Bev Craige, Jeanne Mason, Nita Wilkinson, Fran Dayvault, Maggie Hunt, and Dee Dee Dayo.

Varsity

FRI.-SAT.-SUN.-MON.

Charlie, Sidney, Roger... The names and places didn't matter... only when!

"A RAGE TO LIVE"

SUZANNE PLESHETTE
BRADFORD DILLMAN
BEN GAZZARA as ROGER BANNON

PANAVISION — RELEASED THRU UNITED ARTISTS

He'd take on anyone, at anything, anytime ...it was only a matter of who came first!

METRO GOLDWYN MAYER presents
STEVE McQUEEN · EDWARD G. ROBINSON · ANN-MARGRET
KARL MALDEN · TUESDAY WELD
A MARTIN RANSOHOFF PRODUCTION
THE CINCINNATI KID
A FILMWAYS-SOLAR PICTURE — METROCOLOR

SHOWS AT: 1:15-3:15-5:15-7:15-9:15
NOW PLAYING
CAROLINA

U.N.C. Vs. WAKE FOREST
FROSH FOOTBALL
Today on WCHL
2:00 P.M. 1360

things go better with Coke

DRINK Coca-Cola

DURHAM COCA-COLA BOTTLING CO.

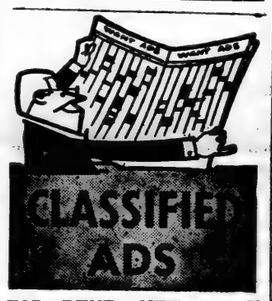
LUNCH from 1.10 to 1.65
DINNER from 1.75 to 5.50
Featuring U. S. Choice Steaks,
Back Fin Lump Crabmeat,
Baked Country Cured Ham
Breast of Young Chicken
Six attractive dining rooms of varying size and decor afford flexible facilities for serving
BANQUETS AND RECEPTIONS
Recommended by Mobile Travel Guide
Best of Hillsway

Blair House

Durham-Chapel Hill Boulevard
Tel. 489-9128

20th Century-Fox presents
WINNER OF 3 ACADEMY AWARDS!
ANTHONY QUINN
ALAN BATES
IRENE PAPAS
in the MICHAEL CACOYANNIS PRODUCTION
"ZORBA THE GREEK"
LILA KEDROVA

RIALTO, Durham
Fri.-Sun. at 1:42, 4:07, 6:33, 9:00
Mon.-Thurs. at 1:05, 3:30, 6:00, 830



CLASSIFIED ADS

FOR RENT: NEW 10 x 50 completely furnished, 2 bedroom mobile home. Available immediately. Telephone 942-3268 or 942-1749.

FOR SALE: 1965 VW VARIant squareback sedan. Less than 5 months old — under 8,000 miles. Excellent condition. Radio, heater. Call 942-3769 after 6 p.m.

FOR SALE — 1965 HONDA CB 160 under 900 miles, 2 mos. old, perfect condition, must sell immediately. $480.00. Contact Pete Snyder, 968-9117.

1960 CHEVROLET IMPALA convertible. White body, white one year old top. Full power, radio & heater. Good price. Call 942-4554 after 6:30.

If You Like
Readers Digest Condensed Books
You'll find dozens of them, almost new, on our 29c shelf.
Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill, North Carolina
open evenings

That doesn't run right? Want completent service by factory trained mechanics?
SEE
OPEN ROAD INC.
IN DURHAM
Real service for all makes, specializing in HONDAS.
Morning pickup, evening delivery service in Chapel Hill every day. Call for appointment.
OPEN ROAD INC.
Durham 681-6161
SALE SERVICE PARTS

GM PRESENTS
NANCY WILSON

With SI ZENTNER and His Band
Coming Sat. Nov. 6 at 8 p.m.
Tickets on sale at GM information desk and at the door
FOR U.N.C. STUDENTS
U.N.C. STUDENTS — $1.00
GENERAL PUBLIC TICKET SALES BEGIN
NOV. 3 — $1.50 for GENERAL PUBLIC

KING WILLIAM RESTAURANT
STEAKS CHICKEN
SEAFOOD
"Choice Selection of Imported and Domestic Beverages"
All New and Modern, featuring
1½ Miles From Campus on 15-501 South
Seating Capacity of 300
• Spacious Parking
• Four Private dining rooms
• Tasteful background music
• Catering facilities
Open Seven Days a Week 8:00 A.M. 'til Midnight

INTEGRITY
For 26 Years

WELDON'S JEWELERS
327 W. MAIN STREET DURHAM
THE STUDENT'S JEWELER FOR 26 YEARS

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Assist
5. Nobleman
9. Hodgepodge
10. Spindle
11. Endowed with
12. Systems of worship
14. Worldly
16. Hawkeye State: abbr.
17. Yes, in Madrid
18. Small wild horse
20. Polish river
21. Malarial fever
22. Mexican Indian
25. Leg joints
26. Hawaiian garlands
27. Shanty
28. A kind of road surface
30. College degree
32. Mulberry
33. Repeat in error
36. Pacific island group
38. Russian mountains
39. Carpenter's need
40. Location of Taj Mahal
41. Clothing: slang
42. Spreads grass to dry

DOWN
1. Apertures
2. Resin
3. Speech defect
4. River into Chesapeake Bay
5. South American rodents
6. Triumphant
7. Old measure
8. Escort
11. British rank: abbr.
13. Wise men
15. Move swiftly
19. Grow old
20. Kind of bone or cartilage
22. Dancing girls: Egypt.
23. Island of Denmark
24. Muscular twitch
25. Citrus fruit
27. Auxiliary verb
29. Tunes in (a radio program)
30. Piece of timber
31. Legendary burdened giant
34. Importune
35. Plural ending
37. Tsetse fly

GRAB PREP
SLICE RACER
CAFES ENURE
OIL ASK IM
WREATHE TAI SOUR SOPS
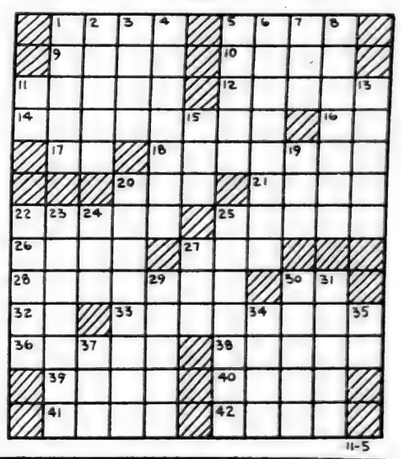
OPHIR VOLTS
BREATHER
EAR OUST I'S
RI DIM NEE
ORRIS SATAN
NIECE TSERE
EYES TARS

Yesterday's Answer



11-5

THE RECORD BAR and CAPITOL RECORDS
WELCOME

MISS NANCY WILSON
APPEARING AT CARMICHAEL AUDITORIUM
This Saturday Night at 8:00 P.M.
(TICKETS ON SALE AT GM)
COMPLETE STOCKS OF ALL NANCY WILSON LP's
Available At THE RECORD BAR At A
25% DISCOUNT
THE RECORD BAR
Across from the Post Office on Henderson Street
DURHAM, UPTOWN JACKSONVILLE, FLA. DURHAM, WELLON'S VILLAGE

CHASE DINING HALL
In addition to our regular student special (50c)
Now Featuring Daily at Lunch a
HOT SANDWICH COUNTER
TODAY'S SANDWICH
GRILLED MINUTE STEAK
ON TOAST
F.F. POTATOES
65c
Open: Daily 7-2 5-7:15 Sunday 8-2 5-7:15
POSITIVELY NO WAITING BREAKFAST OR LUNCH

DKE, Beta, Phi Gam Win

In Thursday tag football it was DKE White 6, DU Blue I 0; Beta Buckers 19, ATO Blue II 0; Phi Gam Fijis 28, AK Psi 0.

Wednesday it was Chi Phi 21, Kappa Psi 0; DKE Blue 12, ZBT Zebes 6; KA Blue II 29, Phi Delt Red 0; Zete I 9, Phi Delt White 4; ATO BLUE I 24, Phi Gam White Owls 0; Morrison E Elations 23, Morrison D Ponies 6; Law IV 48, Navy Operating Rods 6.

In Wednesday volleyball it was the Manly Dorm Rats over Grimes Grossmen, 2-0 (15-6, 15-6); Morrison G Spikers over Morrison A Boppers, 2-1 (6-8, 8-6, 14-7); Joyner Savages over Alexander Playboys, 2-0 (15-0, 15-7); Alexander Mooses over Joyner Jokes, 2-0 (15-6, 8-6); Stacy Studs over Graham Crackers, 2-1 (12-15, 15-7, 15-9).

Atcock Aardvaarks voer Graham Bells, 2-0 (11-4, 9-7); Morrison D Ponies over Morrison C Cavaliers, 2-0 (8-6, 14-7); Parker Peanuts over Parker Pumpkins, 2-0 (10-3, 9-4); Teague Trojans over Parker Fugitives, 2-1 (10-6, 4-8, 12-7); Joyner Heels over Joyner Playboys, 2-1 (11-2, 5-13, 7-5); Law I over Church St. Crusaders, 2-0 (15-3, 15-9).

Fall Means Football, and Football Means Fine Fashion, And The Very Finest Fashions May Be Found At THE HUB, Famous For Its Fabulous Selections In:

SUITS: For any occasion, in an unbelievable variety of styles, including plaids, herringbones, stripes and solids . . . from 59.95

Be at home anywhere — plaids, Herringbones, tweeds and elegant blazers . . . . from 29.95

SHIRTS: A generous selection of sport and dress shirts, tailored in the finest tradition. Solids and stripes. . . . from 5.95

THE HUB OF CHAPEL HILL

WHERE can you buy a Honda, Triumph, Ducati, and Norton all in the same day — at the best possible prices!

Travel-On Motorcycle Co.
504 W. Franklin St.
Chapel Hill, N. C.
"Headquarters For Adventure"

WE ABSOLUTELY REFUSE TO BE UNDERSOLD

I'M SO PROUD— I JUST PICKED OUT A UNIQUE GIFT FOR MY GIRL FRIEND

UNC
BEER MUGS
SCARFS — ANIMALS
PENNANTS
RED NIGHT SHIRTS

Ledbetter Pickard

Old Well Charms

Sterling Silver $4.00
Gold Plate $5.00
Solid Gold $17.00

T. L. KEMP JEWELRY
The Home of the Old Well Charm
135 East Franklin St.

NETHERLANDS CHAMBER ORCHESTRA

Directed by SYMON GOLDBERG
Sponsored by
GRAHAM MEMORIAL
and
CHAPEL HILL CONCERT SERIES
SUNDAY, NOV. 7
8:00 P.M.
MEMORIAL HALL
50c UNC Tickets
$1.00 for Dates

Pat Stith

DTH Sports Editor

Po' 'ol Frank Howard. Talked to him over the phone yesterday and he sure is down in the mouth. He said he's worried to death about getting thumped when he brings his Tigers here Saturday.

"They got a good team — we're scared to come up there," he said tongue-in-cheek. "Fact is, they're tough as anybody we've played," he lied.

Now Howard has a little bit of a team himself, according to the record. His Tigs are 4-0 in the ACC and 5-2 overall. And while they humiliated Wake last week, Howard took care of North Carolina in advance.

He told sports writers after the game that his Tigers had played terrible but he was just thankful that Wake Forest was the kind of team you could play terrible against and still beat.

MR. CLEAN?

Now that doesn't sound too bad until you recollect how the Hickeymen came out against Wake.

For years the Chrome Dome from Death Valley has had Hickey in his back pocket — though not any more. He beat him 20-18 in 1959, blanked him 24-0 and 27-0 in 1960 and 1961, took him 17-6 in '62 and 11-7 in '63. Five straight.

But last fall, down in the Valley, North Carolina went a long way toward making up for all that, winning 29-0.

"The reason Hickey beat me so bad last year is that he had a lot of horses and I didn't have any. Now this year he's got another good team and we're about the same," he camouflaged.

After the game last fall Howard kissed Ken Willard and Eddie Kesler, the twin-engines of the UNC attack, goodby. He said he was glad to be rid of the both of them.

"But I ain't gonna kiss none of 'em goodby this time," he snapped. "I ain't had none of them seniors this year to torment me like them other two did."

Jim Hickey has said he doesn't want any part of a feud with Howard. He said that his boys'll wear blue and Frank's white and that his men will be there at 1:30 or thereabouts and that Howard'll know he has been in a game.

Well, Frank must have taken Hickey's promise to heart. 'Cause he's afraid. Or, at least, he says he's afraid.

"I'm not planning any surprises for Coach Hickey," he crossed-his-heart-and-hoped-to-die. "No, sir, we just want to come up there and try to play football with him — and we're scared to come, I tell you."

Yeah, sure, Frank, and we're going to the Sugar Bowl.

QUIK FOOD MART
(Near the Main Intersection of Town — A Stone's Throw from the Zoom-Zoom)
CARTON CIGARETTES $1.88

BEER CHAMPAGNE WINE

THE IMPECCABLE PLAID

All the classics aren't found in literature. Pictured above is the classic of men's suitings . . . tailored in the traditional manner, of course! Look the part this season in one of our exclusive plaid patterns, chose from the largest collection in Chapel Hill. from $59.95

Charge Accounts Invited

Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin St.

Frosh Battle WF In Season Finale

By RON SHINN
DTH Sports Writer

North Carolina's Tar Babies take the field against Wake Forest's yearlings in Kenan Stadium today at 2 p.m. in a game that could give frosh boss George Barclay his second consecutive undefeated season.

The game originally scheduled for earlier in the year, was postponed because of rain. No admission will be charged.

A win today will also give the Tar Babies their third Big Four title in a row. Previous wins this season came at the expense of N. C. State by 9-0 and 21-13, Duke, 31-0, and Virginia, 40-7.

Wake Forest holds a 2-2 record going into today's game and a win will give them their first winning season in nine years. In 1956 the Baby Deacs defeated South Carolina, Duke, and North Carolina. Strangely, their first two victories this season are over South Carolina and Duke.

Today's tilt is billed as depth against a thin but scrappy Deacon squad. Wake has only 27 men listed on its roster. Carolina has 50.

Carolina is in near perfect physical shape for the clash. The only casualty is starting guard Mike Smith from Wheeling, W. Va. Smith was sidelined in last week's game with a knee injury and underwent surgery the next day. He will be replaced by Tom McCain.

The Carolina frosh will be directed from the field by quarterback Gayle Bomar. The southpaw has been an outstanding performer all season, both in the passing and running departments. Last week against State Bomar rushed for 126 yards and completed five tosses for 94 yards.

Ski, the hard - running Canadian who has drawn nothing but raves all season, will start at running back. Fellow Canadian Mark Mazza will be at fullback and Billy Dodson will start at wingback. Dodson is also the kicking specialist of the team.

The Carolina offensive line backfield tips the scales at 198 pounds. The defensive squad did not allow a single point to be scored on it until the pair of touchdowns by State, while the explosive offensive machine has produced 91 markers in four outings.

Barclay thinks that his team will definitely be "up" for the final game. "We have won four games, but we know a good season could become just an average one with a loss today. We can't afford a letdown now."

Last week Wake Forest edged Duke's Blue Imps 23-20 (UNC turned back the Imps 31-0). They were soundly beaten by State, 50-7, two weeks ago.

Both teams have a special reason for wanting to win. To Wake Forest it means a winning season after a long famine, and to Coach Barclay it means another perfect season plus a piece of silver for the trophy case.

GM PRESENTS

TONIGHT:
Combo Party Starring the "Manhattans"
8-12 p.m. G.M. Rendezvous Room
"To Catch A Thief" 7, 9:30 Carroll Hall.
An Alfie Hitchcock flick. Cary Grant, an ex-jewel thief, falls in love with Grace Kelly, wealthy American looking for a husband. The "old thief is suspected of becoming active again, and the plot becomes a real Hitchcock thriller.
— SATURDAY —
"The War Lover" 7, 9:30 Carroll Hall.
John Hersey wrote the book, Steve McQueen and Robert Wagner star in the movie . . . An examination of a war hero whose talent for annihilation becomes an obsession; a tense drama with psychological implications about the personality type Hersey calls the "war lover."
— SUNDAY —
"Richard III" 6:30 and 9:15, Carroll Hall
Richard III stars Laurence Olivier, John Gielgud, Claire Bloom and Sir Cedrick Hardwicke. Written by Bill Shakespeare.
It is the definitive interpretation of one of the great roles in dramatic literature; it is a work of cinematic genius. Richard III has been called "the best acted picture that has ever been produced."
Clip this out for reference this weekend.

Baseballers Watch Film, Rehash Fall Practices

By SANDY TREADWELL
DTH Sports Writer

Coach Walter Rabb met with his boys on Wednesday night in Woollen Gym's room 304. The long baseball season won't begin until early March, but the coach likes to get his boys ready to roll.

Some of the varsity's established stars were there. Co-captains John Shaw and Mike McLaughlin sat up front.

A nervous group huddled together in the back of the room. These were the freshmen hopefuls desperately fighting for a foothold in college ball.

The sophomores maintained respectful attention.

Coach Rabb stood up. He started things off by demonstrating the mountain climber, the belch, and the rower.

"Do these exercises at least four times a week and play a lot of handball and you'll be in good shape come February.

"This meeting is primarily to show you films of yourselves made during fall practice," Rabb said.

"I won't make any comments. I won't have to. Your mistakes will be obvious. Lights."

What followed was baseball's answer to football skull sessions.

If there was an Olympic event for fungo hitters. Freshman Coach Bill Lookingood would have the world's distance record and a drawer full of gold medals. The room resounded with laughter every time a long towering drive fell behind a frantically scrambling outfielder.

When the film ended Rabb asked how his boys were doing with the books. "Aren't you boys having mid-terms about now? Get with them."

It's Children's Book Week

Especially for this occasion, we've tracked down a special lot of the old-timey titles that are still in print.

Add to these the pick of the recent crop, and it's the nicest batch of junior delight imaginable!

FREE BALLOONS!

All this week, there's a Free balloon for each child who brings in a parent!

Enjoy a second childhood this week at the Intimate!

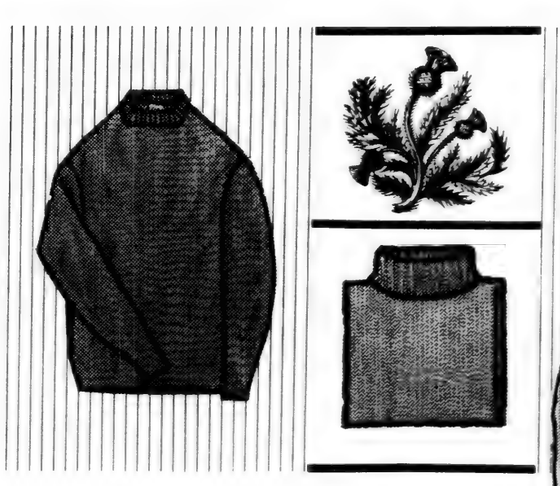
The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill
open every day until 10 pm

Powdery

A herringbone wool blended of two colors, giving it, not the crisp and masculine touch usually associated with herringbone, but a powdery, heathery dreaminess, like faraway mountains in a haze. The lined 4-button suit itself has the vigorous VILLAGER® rectitude dear to collectors. Straight skirt, curved pockets. Periwinkle/Brown, Red/Wheat, Blue/Wheat. Sizes 6 to 16.

The Villager

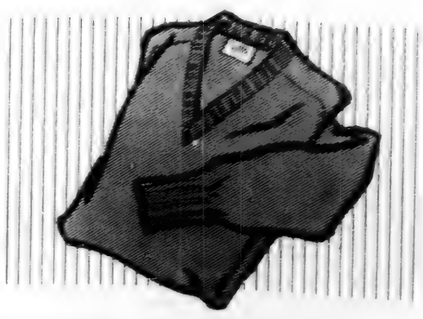
Town & Campus



Knitted to the nines:

SWEATERS NOW ABOARD

The fullest complement of sweaters is now available at these doors. Shetlands, lamb's wool versions, alpaca and those sporting trim of leather. Workmanship will be found to be superb, and fine traditional styling without flaw.



Town & Campus

...Library
...Dept.
Box 870
...

Nancy Wilson

Nancy Wilson sings tonight at 8 in Carmichael Auditorium.

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Vol. 74, No. 46 | CHAPEL HILL NORTH CAROLINA SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1965 | Founded February 23, 1893

Flick Tonite

Tonight's free flick is "The War Lover." It will be shown at Carroll Hall at 7 and 9:30 p.m.

Commission Calls For Change In Ban Law

Student Legislature Okays Residence College Funds

By JOHN GREENBACKER
DTH Political Writer

Student Legislature passed three appropriation bills totaling $3,650 for Scott, Morehead and Morrison Residence Colleges without objection Thursday night.

The bills provide money for administration, publicity, publications and especially social activities of the colleges.

Legislature also passed a special resolution introduced jointly by the members of the SL Finance Committee which said the initial residence college appropriations were of an "emergency" nature.

The resolution urged the respective college senates to collect money for their future activities by means of an increased social fee to be paid by college residents each semester.

Dickson Speaks

Terming the bills "of major importance to the future of the University," Dickson said, "Much of the future of these three colleges hangs on your votes this evening.

"The students of the residence halls are not willing to wait," Dickson said. "They want this program now, but it is up to you.

"The residence college program is a way to let a student be an individual," he said, "It is a way to give him a home, to give him a sense of belonging which cannot be achieved in a computerized multiversity."

Dickson also outlined the residence college program and cited University administration support for its establishment.

Jim Smith (UP) asked Dickson what aspect of his legislative program would benefit the off-campus legislative districts.

"I have nothing planned except the establishment of the Student Discounting Commission," Dickson said.

Finance Resolution

The resolution calling for future collection of residence college funds through social fees was introduced for the Finance Committee by chairman Hugh Blackwell (SP).

"We are appropriating this money to make sure the residence college system gets off to a good start," Blackwell said, "but it needs to be placed on a self-supporting basis in the future.

"Only 40 per cent of the student body lives in these residence halls," Blackwell said. "It is unfair to make the other 60 per cent finance these social activities."

Blackwell said a collection of funds within the colleges would save money for the majority of the student body and would prevent the "Tying down" of the legislative agenda with financial bills.

"This resolution makes it clear that Student Legislature is not obligated to give similar amounts of Student Government funds to emerging residence colleges merely because the original colleges received these amounts," he said.

Byron McCoy (SP), a legislator and Governor of Morrison Rsidence College, backed the Finance Committee's resolution.

"Car Needs Gas"

"Student Government has provided us with a car, and we have come to it for gas," he said. "We don't want the student body to buy all of it for us in the future."

The only spoken opposition to the resolution came from Teddy O'Toole (UP).

"I agree the residence colleges must be self sufficient," he said, "but what is going to happen when we pass this bill?

"Does this mean the legislature is going on record as not providing more money to the colleges if they need it," he asked.

"If we don't provide more money, the Residence College System will go out of existence," he said.

Speaker Britt Gordon reminded O'Toole that the legislature's resolutions are not binding on future actions of the body.

Other Legislation

A resolution calling for the establishment of a check cashing booth in Chase Cafeteria was passed by the body.

Minor appropriations for the National Merit Scholarship Committee of Student Government and the establishment of an excellence in teaching award were approved.

A resolution for the establishment of Publications Study Commission was passed. The commission will study improvements for the Yackety Yack and the Daily Tar Heel.

Legislature modified the by-laws of the Publications Board of Student Government to exclude the membership of the editors and business managers of the DTH and the Yack.

Bills making minor changes in the SL by-laws and Student Government codes were passed, as was a resolution approving recent Student Government appointments.

National Merit Semi-Finalists Visiting Here

More than 200 top North Carolina high school students will be here today through Monday as guests of the UNC National Merit Scholarship Committee.

The 100 girls and 120 boys, all National Merit semi-finalists, will attend the UNC - Clemson game this afternoon.

Tonight they will hear Nancy Wilson's concert.

Tomorrow afternoon they will be the guests of honor at a Student Government reception after which a banquet will be held for them at Chase Cafeteria. Former UNC Chancellor Robert House will speak after the banquet.

Later tomorrow night the group will hear Dr. David Lapkin, secretary of the faculty council on honors, at an honors program presentation at the Institute of Government.

Chancellor Paul F. Sharp will speak to the students Monday at 8:30 a.m. They will attend classes and sit in on special lectures by prominent professors in 20 different fields.

This is the fourth year the special weekend for the semi-finalists has been held and is the first time girls have participated.

REP. DAVID BRITT reads the report of the Speaker Ban Study Commission in Raleigh yesterday as Gov. Dan K. Moore looks on. — DTH Photo By Ernest Robl

Wants Trustees To Have Control

By ANDY MYERS
DTH Staff Writer

RALEIGH — The Speaker Ban Study Commission recommended yesterday that the gag law be "amended" so that the trustees not only have the "authority but also the responsibility of adopting rules and precautionary measure relating to visiting speakers."

Rep. David M. Britt, head of the Commission, made the statement in the old House Chamber of the Capitol Building. He asked Gov. Dan Moore to call a special session of the legislature on Monday, Nov 15, to consider the amendment.

Speaking after Britt, Moore said "I approve of the report and its recommendations without any reservations," adding that the Commission has found a "common gound for all those devoted to freedom and who desire to do what is best for North Carolina."

Moore called for a meeting of the UNC Board of Trustees Friday, as well as all other state supported school boards of trustees, "so that each board may consider and adopt the speaker policy recommended."

Power To Trustees

The Speaker Ban Law will probably be amended to give the power and responsibility of its enforcement to University trustees, if the trustees agree to the compromise.

President of the Consolidated University William Friday, who attended the announcement in Raleigh, said the recommendations should "greatly improve the situation of the University."

But noting, "If I understand the language of the statement correctly, if the law were amended it would return to the board of trustees the traditional authority to govern the University."

Friday said he would need time to study Britt's statement. Apparently, he said, "it would remove prior restraints on the free and open discussion at the University."

Friday added that he was "particularly pleased that the commission made such a strong statement" concerning charges of "leftist leanings" at the University.

Speaking from a prepared text, Britt's main change in the original law concerns the appearance of Communists on state - supported campuses.

The Commission feels, he said, that "anyone who advocates any ideology or from of government which is wholly alien to our basic democratic institutions should be infrequent and then only when it would clearly serve the advantage of education."

Recommendations

Friday said he would recommend the trustees make the following regulations on campus speakers:

— A faculty member preside over all speaking appearances.

— A speaker must agree to answer questions from the audience.

— Opportunity must be given at the time of speech or later for the opposing viewpoint to be presented

Friday said the commission recommendation should "satisfy the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools."

Members of the Southern Association on Schools and Colleges were not available for comment yesterday, but Britt agreed that the association should be satisfied with the amendment.

No Radicalism

On charges of "radicalism" at the University, and especially at Chapel Hill, Britt answered in his report:

"The evidence fails to justify charges of irresponsibility at Chapel Hill. There have been and always will be individuals who express themselves in ways that, some, are disturbing because they are unorthodox and the larger the institution becomes the more likely to attract this type of individual.

House Speaker Pat Taylor and Lt. Gov. Bob Scott, president of the Senate, spoke after Moore had called for a meeting of the trustees and for the special session.

Both Scott and Taylor predicted an easy passage of a speaker ban amendment. Scott said:

"This is an issue of freedom from fear of suspicion, freedom of inquiry, and freedom to search for truth.

"I am confident the General Assembly will receive these recommendations favorably and will resolve this question in an atmosphere of calm deliberations."

Taylor added that if the recommendations are followed "the objections of opponents of this law will have been met and at the same time, the objectives of those who favor it will be accomplished.

"This controversy is not helping North Carolina and it is time for it to settled. I support the recommendations of the commission and urge its support and adoption by the trustees of the various institutions affected and by the General Assembly."

Although some legislators were disappointed that the commission did not make a "strong policy, a requirement . . ." to amend the law, most were satisfied.

Senate Majority Leader Robert Morgan and also the chairman of East Carolina College board of trustees, who was disappointed with the report, said:

"We, as trustees cannot expect the power to be returned to us until we formulate the policies."

Opposition to the recommendations came from the American Legion of North Carolina.

State Commander Alvin Carver of Dunn said:

"I am disappointed. I thought the commission would require a strong resolution by the trustees.

"I don't think the people of North Carolina care much how Communists are kept away, by resolution or law.

MHC Levies Suspensions

By BILL MILLER
Special To the DTH

Two men were suspended for one semester and two were placed on one - semester probation by the Men's Honor Council Thursday night.

All the cases stemmed from Honor Code offenses involving stealing, cheating and falsifying automobile registration cards.

The first suspension arose from a charge of three counts. The main offense concerned a student's stealing two side windows for his sports car.

He pleaded indefinite to this charge since his own windows had recently been stolen, saying this provoked him to steal someone else's.

He was also charged with illegally obtaining an automobile registration sticker from a friend since he did not have the necessary grade average himself.

Because he had pledged on his Student Affairs Card at the beginning of the year not to operate a car, the student was accused of misrepresenting the truth.

The Council found him guilty of all counts.

The second student was suspended for cheating on a take-home quiz. He said he had been extremely pressured by a number of other assignments, and when he saw his roommate's finished paper, he copied a major portion of it.

The final two cases dealt with falsification of auto registration cards.

Cadets Collecting Books At Game

Paperback books to be sent to servicemen in Veit Nam will be collected at Kenan Stadium Saturday before the Clemson game.

UNC Navy midshipmen and Air Force cadets will be stationed at each of the eight gates to receive books. The project is being sponsored by the University and the USO, since there is a scarcity of paperbacks for soldiers in Viet Nam.

All students are urged to donate any paperbacks they no longer need. The books will be collected from the time the gates open until the first quarter.

Final Card Show Today

Carolina Cardboard, sponsored by the Carolina Athletic Association, will present its final halftime show of the season today.

Sitting in an ideal location, 2,400 students will present a series of clever card stunts, a UNC tradition since 1948.

The club, believed to be the largest of its kind in the eastern United States, has expanded since its organization to include about 100 members.

Stunts, directed by a member of the Cardboard, are executed by raising colored cards, indicated by instructions printed on cards located under each participant's seat.

Johnny Grover, president of Cardboard, commented on the inconvenience caused by students who throw the cards after the performance. "It would save us the trouble of sorting the sets before each game, not to mention the hazards involved," he stated.

Tar Heels Face Clemson Today

By PAT STITH
DTH Sports Editor

Frank Howard, the Baron of Barlow Bend, said earlier this week that his Tigers were "skeered" about coming to Kenan Stadium to play North Carolina.

Howard, of course, was jesting. But if his boys aren't scared, at least they have good reason to be apprehensive, because they have a lot riding on their battle with the Tar Heels.

A win would give them a perfect 5-0 mark in ACC play and an awful good shot at their first conference football championship since 1959. And there is even more than the league title to be won.

There is talk of a Bowl game for the Tigers — if they can knock off Carolina and then keep their nose clean over the last two games with Maryland and South Carolina.

Gator's Interested

The Gator Bowl selection committee has said that Howard's team is one of 14 being considered for that classic.

The Tar Heels, on the other hand, have relatively little to lose, losers in four of seven games, UNC has no conference hopes and no bowl hopes. They have no reason to be looking past this afternoon's get together.

In 1963 the situation was reversed. That time it was the Tar Heels who were sailing along with a 6-1 record (5-1 ACC) with visions of a Bowl game dancing in their heads.

Clemson upset their cart 11-7 though Carolina got a Gator Bowl bid anyway.

Not Flashy

The Tigers haven't been flashy. They have no offensive back who is in the same league with Carolina's Danny Talbott; they've managed to outscore their opponents only by six points; they've just barely managed to outgain their opposition in total yards.

But they've won — and that's what counts. They've won 'em when they're tight (3-2 over Duke, 3-0 over T.C.U.) too, something that Carolina has been unable to consistently do.

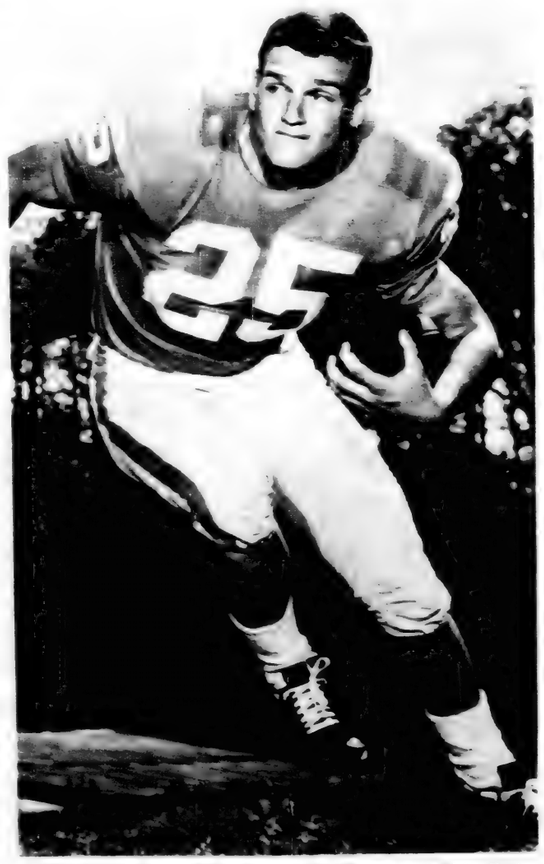
In fact, if Howard had enough sense to steer clear of Georgia and, his team would rate national recognition at this point. Clemson's two losses have been to Georgia Tech, 38-6 and Georgia, 23-9.

Tiger Edge

Jim Hickey's team beat Clemson last fall down in Death Valley, for the first time in seven years. The Tigers hold an 8-5 edge in the series.

If the Tar Heels hold to their form today, look for most of the Tiger growling to come in the last quarter. UNC has outscored it's opponents in the first period by a good margin, 42-24. They slip some in the second quarter (28-34) but still hold the lead going into halftime.

Carolina looks real good in the third (21-3) and the opponents began passing. After that it has been no contest. Opposing teams have poured over 70 desperation points (to 31 for UNC) and that has been the story of three of their four losses.



SOPHOMORE HALFBACK David Riggs made his first start of the season last week against Georgia. He had a fine day, picking up 71 yards in 17 carries. Riggs will be in the starting lineup against Clemson today.

Campus Radio Supporters Begin Circulating Petition

Campus radio supporters began circulating a petition yesterday to hold a campus-wide referendum for the passage of the key radio organization bill defeated recently by Student Legislature.

The petition reads: "We, the undersigned, hereby approve of the bill to establish a Campus Radio Board of Directors and do request that an election be held on the attached legislation in accordance with the Student Government Constitution's provision for initiative."

Extreme cost and other problems in the initial radio proposals caused a majority of legislators to vote against campus radio, despite the results of campus - wide referendum on the issue held Oct. 5.

Students who voted favored the radio's establishment by a three to one count.

John Stupak, chairman of the Campus Radio Committee of Student Government and organizer of the petition, said yesterday he hopes to have the required signatures of ten per cent of the student body within a week or ten days.

"We will present the petition to Paul Dickson for validation and once again show Student Legislature that students are serious in their desire for campus radio," Stupak said.

"We will win a second election on our proposals," he added.

Stupak said the petition will be circulated all over campus.

LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR Robert W. Scott, right, looks tired and House Speaker Pat Taylor listens intently to the proceedings at the old House chamber in Raleigh. Each had named two members to the Commission. — DTH Photo By Ernest Robl

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of the Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. Letters and columns, covering a wide range of views, reflect the personal opinions of their authors.
ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

Out Of The Ban And Into The Fire

It has been four months in the making, but the Britt Commission's report on the speaker ban was worth the wait. In the realm of the ideal, recommendation of outright repeal was the goal. Realistically, the commission's report — while not perfect — went far beyond the expectations of many ban foes.

It places the matter of responsibility for speakers in the hands of the boards of trustees of the schools — where it should have been and ought to be.

"The board of trustees or other governing authority of each college or university which receives any state funds in support thereof, shall adopt and publish regulations governing the use of facilities of such college or university for speaking purposes by any person who: is a known Communist or has pleaded the Fifth Amendment in refusing to answer questions concerning communist or subversive activity," the report said.

In "approving without reservation," Governor Dan Moore called on the boards of trustees of the state-supported schools to meet on or before Friday, Nov. 12. As chairman of the UNC board, he will call it together at 11 a.m. Friday. He ordered a special session of the General Assembly to convene Nov. 15, to take action on the recommendation to amend the law.

During the September commission hearings, University officials expressed their willingness to adopt trustee - controlled speaker regulations, and explained the kind of regulations which would be most acceptable.

such rules would bar speakers who advocate the overthrow of the state or national government, in accordance with a 1941 law. Further precautions that would be taken "when the Chancellor considers it necessary are: that a meeting be chaired by an officer of the University or a ranking member of the faculty, that speakers at the meeting be subject to questions from the audience and that the opportunity be provided at the meeting or later to present speakers of different points of view."

Obviously these regulations are sufficient for the commission members, or they would have stipulated some other rules to be adopted.

The statement contained an important "first" with regard to comment about this branch of the University. It has been common knowledge that the creation and maintenance of the ban was almost wholly the direct result of disapproval of the University at Chapel Hill. The commission publicly admitted this and to a certain extent helped clear the school's name against accusations of "communist infestation."

"A careful review of this testimony accusing the University of being a haven for communist speakers and activity indicates that these statements and allegations were directed primarily at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, covering the period from 1937 to 1965. This testimony discloses that in more than a quarter of a century fewer than a dozen speakers from among the thousands who have appeared during these years were specifically mentioned as extremists and not all of these were alleged to be Communists. Among students, not more than five were singled out from among the more than 40,000 who have graduated from the Chapel Hill campus over this span of time," the report said.

"The testimony shows that the University would not knowingly employ a member of the Communist Party in any capacity, and direct testimony by its officers indicates that no such person is employed. No evidence to the contrary was presented to, disclosed to or discovered by the commission."

Such reassurances sound needless and almost laughable to those who really know the University, but are nevertheless important — because many people are hard to convince otherwise once they make up their mind that Chapel Hill abounds with left-wing extremists.

Unfortunately the commission declined to comment on the legality of the law — which many leading lawyers have called unquestionably unconstitutional.

The General Assembly will be forced to wrestle with the job of amending the law soon, and anything can happen when that august body gets together. The governor, the president of the senate and the speaker of the house have voiced support of the commission's ideas and this makes prospects of legislative acceptance fairly bright.

But win or lose, come special session time, we commend the Britt Commission and its nine members for fair and conscientious handling of the problem and for performing the important task of exposing the "myth of the ban" to public scrutiny.

The Daily Tar Heel

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all ap news dispatches.

"Hey, This One's Rotten!

Letters To The Editor

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

This letter is in reply to Paul A. Smith's of October 31. I don't wish to criticize Smith's letter on war and peace, but rather to calm his ardor. I am in fact glad that someone has finally hit upon a solid issue or two instead of resorting to name calling. His argument that war is an occurence, and that one can only be for or against these who propose it, and not for or against the occurence itself is logical. Smith however, drops the hint that the political science department of UNC as a whole may be pro-collectivist or at least anti-war and pro-peace to the point of damage to U. S. security.

I am glad Smith calls a spade a spade, but to infer that the deck is full of spades can only be a generalization and a false one at that. All Smith has to do is look at the rest of the deck to see that there are many individuals in our political science department, not just one group. This tendency of condemning the whole barrel is not unlike the stereo-typing of group prejudice.

I don't have the permission of any of the professors in the political science department to mention their names, but if Smith is interested, I'm sure interviews could be set up to talk this out with at least four key political science professors. I am myself a major in political science and my conservative nature is daily rubbed the wrong way by talk of internal reforms, but I have never heard any professor, and I've had eleven of them, propose that we practice peace at the cost of U. S. security. (And my conservative vs. liberal grumblings may be classified as only two sides of a coin on which theer is merit on both sides.) These professors live in the U. S. just as we do, and while we may all have our criticisms of life here, we need only to look out into the world with the intention of finding a better government under which to live, to see that the United States is not so bad after all.

I am not implying that there is no need for improvement. Progress is the key to a strong America. But you will have trouble finding anti-American professors here at UNC regardless of their political ideologies. I agree with Smith that the security of the United States is vital, and that those who ignore this in criticizing our efforts to contain the Communist block are wrong.

I for one do not agree with all of our methods of containing the Communists, but as in a Presidential election, the opposition should fight for its beliefs until the election is over and the people have decided. Then the opposition must be "loyal" opposition and the criticism "constructive" criticism. This does not include contributing money for the Viet Cong to be used against our own boys who have been drafted to serve their country.

It means supporting your country today while working through the proper democratic channels to improve your country tomorrow. There is nothing in the constitution about universal agreement on policy. Criticism is the basis of healthy discussion, and I would be disappointed in the political science department if all of the professors agreed with the administration's every foreign policy-move. "Pro-collectivist" is a very grave term to use in connection with any citizen of the United States; it should be backed up by proof.

Bob Bennett
102 Avery

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

One of the responsibilities of any legislative body is to constantly better the structure of government. One of the problems in this area is that too often, long range plans are ignored in favor of short range partisan interests. This is what happened in Student Legislature Tuesday night.

The University Party legislators, almost without exception, voted against a bill that would have made the student body the final judge on the question of having the election of president and vice president of the student body a single ticket as in the national elections, whereby one would vote for the men together, instead of separately, thus eliminating the possibility of having the president and vice president in different political parties. Bob Spearman, Mike Lawler, Paul Dickson and Britt Gordon all supported the proposal, as did The Daily Tar Heel under Fred Seely and Hugh Stevens, and under Ernie McCrary.

But the University Party legislators, despite Britt Gordon's backing of the proposal, and without so much as a single word in debate against the bill on the floor of Legislature, block voted against it. One UP Legislator told me that the UP delegation had discussed the bill in a meeting before Tuesday night's session and decided to vote against it, seeing no need to debate the bill on the floor.

If Legislature is no longer the place to debate bills, if a party is willing to accept a one-sided debate in caucus and go into Legislature with no intention of debating or being open-minded, if Legislators are not willing to look at situations in Student Government as they now exist and see the leadership role and responsibility of Legislature, then the very existence of Legislature should be scrutinized.

What is so appalling is that many of the Legislators who voted against the bill Tuesday were in favor of it last year when it was introduced. It is painfully obvious that concern about immediate elections weighed much more heavily on the minds of some Legislators than did their responsibility to lead the student body. By the University Party block vote Tuesday night, the student body once again became the victim of the thinking that what's good for the party must be good for the student body.

Jim Little
Speaker Pro Tem
Student Legislature

Liberal Comment

Right Of Association Does Not Include Right Of Conspiracy To Kill

By PETER NEMENYI

Although significant civil rights legislation has recently been passed, this has not stopped segregation from being enforced by terror in many parts of the South. In Laurel and surrounding Jones County, Mississippi, for example, seven Negro stores and cafes, the COFO office at two successive locations, two churches and about 20 Negro homes have been burned this year. After every fire, the Justice Department investigates and waits for the next one. In the pervading atmosphere of fear, it is a miracle that one Negro child was transferred under Laurel's voluntary we-dare-you-to-apply school integration plan. That two other applications for transfer were withdrawn before the opening of school is much less surprising.

In the past, the use of violence and even murder to keep Negroes "in their place" was mostly accepted (by whites) locally and ignored out of state. But now that white people, some of them with good connections, are among the victims, this practice has become nationally unpopular. Thus the highly publicized investigation of the Ku Klux Klan by its own sister organization in Congress (some of whose members owe their election to the Klan), and any bill to outlaw Klan membership, will serve as a kind of safety valve, channeling the new public feeling away from the real issues and into irrelevancies.

If we take our Constitution seriously, anybody, however bigoted, has a right to associate, and have ugly or mystic conversations with his friends, in the organizations of his choice. He does not have a right to kill or intimidate people (or to conspire to do so), and these specific acts have to be stopped — by the executive. However, public denunciation of a hate group will give the Unamerican committee a certain respectability and renewed budgets. Then the committee can proceed to the next target, probably the civil rights movement (a foreign plot). Few will dare to insinuate, right after the anti-Klan spectacular, that the committee is out to halt civil rights progress, especially now that thought and discussion are becoming subversive activities again.

The real issues we must face are the corruption of the jury system, the patronage appointment of federal judges who put segregation above truth, the reluctance of the Justice Department to enforce existing laws against race violence, and the possible need for additional laws against specific acts of violence or regarding the way such cases are tried.

Some of this is documented in a report called "Southern Justice — an Indictment" by the Southern Regional Council (5 Forsyth Street, Atlanta), and in an article "The Rule of Law in the South" by Hayward Burns in the September issue of Commentary.

If you write or talk to Justice Department officials about the need for federal intervention against the terror, they will tell you: 1. We are deeply concerned; the situation in Laurel (Northampton County, McComb, . . .) is indeed serious and we are watching it closely. 2. But, alas, we have no authority to act. But, alas, we federal violation has to occur before we can do anything. 4. There is no such thing as federal police; police protection is strictly a local responsibility. 5. Lack of information, insufficient evidence and difficulties in the courts.

Thus it is advisable, before writing, to go to the law library (Manning Hall) and read certain sections of the United States Code: Title 10, Secs. 332, 333 and 837; Title 18, Secs. 241-243, 594, 1074, 3052, 3053. Also Title 28, Sec. 549 which says that marshals "may . . . exercise the same powers . . . which a sheriff of such state may exercise in executing the laws thereof." Section 3052 permits FBI agents to make arrests. Title 10, Sec. 333 tells the President to use broad powers where necessary to establish law and protect human rights.

Other sections make it illegal for two or more persons to conspire to injure, threaten or intimidate any citizen in the free exercise of his constitutional rights; for jury officers to discriminate against Negroes in selecting a panel, and for officers and courts to be extra harsh against Negroes. No federal violations?

Whenever I press for more law enforcement, I feel very embarrassed about it; because force, and the concept of punishment, of locking human beings up in a steel cage, is repugnant to me. I believe there should be no policemen and no jails, federal or otherwise.

Unfortunately we have not yet reached that point. At the present stage of our civilization, we are still dependent upon enforcement of laws to protect people from wanton abuse. I am forced to go along with this and join those who demand that the same protection be extended to Negro citizens too. The choice is still between the rule of law and a reign of fear.

The alternative to (federal) law enforcement is illustrated by a Negro home in Laurel which did not get burned. A neighbor watched this house at night, with his shotgun at hand. He saw someone prowling, fired, and some men fled — leaving two five-gallon cans of gasoline behind. There have been other similar instances, and so the number of homes burnt in Jones County in a year is now only about twenty. I would feel awkward and tongue-tied trying to preach at the neighbor that he ought to be non-violent and bury that gun. But the trend towards armed self-defense is increasing, and there is no telling where it will lead. In some places our white society simply hasn't offered Negroes any other alternative yet.

If we are serious about human rights, or just concerned about law and order and the safety of white people, then we must see to it that the Justice Department protects the right of all citizens to be secure in their homes and persons wherever the local authorities refuse to do so. I urge everyone to write to Mr. Katzenbach and say so.

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Recently WKIX Radio Station in Raleigh initiated "Operation Merry Christmas," a program designed to provide Christmas gifts for North Carolina's servicemen fighting in Viet Nam. A collection taken up in Avery Dorm yielded nearly fifty dollars for this project within half an hour. Along with the collection, a petition affirming "full support" of present U. S. policy in Viet Nam met with great enthusiasm, receiving nearly unanimous backing.

We of Avery feel that the time has come to let the American public know that the majority of college students in this country are not picket-carrying peaceniks. Wouldn't it be a good idea to extend the effort of one dorm to the entire campus and show our boys over there that we are behind them? I challenge the student body of this University to take advantage of this worthwhile opportunity.

Charles R. Morgan
President
Avery Dorm

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel welcomes letters to the editor on any subject, particularly on matters of local or University interest. Letters must be typed, double spaced and must include the name and address of the author or authors. Names will not be omitted in publication. Letters should be kept as brief as possible. The DTH reserves the right to edit for length or libel.

Philosophy Club Meeting

The Carolina Philosophical Society will hold its organizational meeting tomorrow at 7 p.m. in 213 Caldwell Hall. All new members must attend. Anyone unable to be there should contact Bill Woodall, 929-6139, by today.

What's Going On At Carolina

All Campus Calendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date (by 10 a.m. Saturday for Sunday's DTH). Lost and Found notices will be run on Tuesday and Saturdays only.

TODAY

New Morality, the current issue of New Wine is on sale at the following places: Y-Court, Lenoir Hall, Chase Cafeteria, Bull's Head, Carolina Coffee Shop, Kemp's and GM. This present issue discusses the implications of the new morality in the world today.

"Sardams" Combo will play at Maverick House from 8-12 p.m. in the Voo-Doo Room and the Red Garter Room $1 per couple.

SUNDAY

All persons working with the Murdoch program sponsored by Westminster Fellowship-Episcopal Student Congregation should meet at 1:30 p.m. at the Episcopal Church parking lot.

Westminster Fellowship sponsors four simultaneous discussion groups: "The New Morality," "The University and the Student," "The Leap of Faith," and "Comparative Religions: Judaism, Islam and Hinduism." Supper is at 5:30 p.m.

Dorm meeting of freshmen officers in Joyner at 9 p.m., Alexander at 9 p.m., and Morrison at 10 and 11 p.m.

Dr. Robert Cushman will speak at the Sunday University Worship at 4 p.m. in the Wesley Foundation.

The Sunday Evening Symposium will have the formal Opening of the Wesley Foundation Building at 4 p.m. Dean Robert E. Cushman will deliver the sermon.

The Carolina Political Union will meet at 8 p.m. in the Grail Room. Dr. Joel Schwartz of the Department of Political Science will speak about Communism - ideology vs. practice.

Graduate Christian Fellowship meets at 8-9 p.m. in Roland Parker III. Bible study on John I for all interested graduate students.

The Cosmopolitan Club will present a program entitled "From Austria Onwards" at 3 p.m. at the Presbyterian Student Center. All foreign students, host families and interested persons are invited.

The Olin T. Binkley Baptist Church will continue its church school series with Dr. Sam Hill as the leader. Coffee will be served at 9:30 a.m. and the class will begin at 10. Morning worship will follow at 11 a.m. with the Reverend William Currin speaking. The Sunday night supper seminars at 6 p.m. will be led by Rev. William Currin speaking on "Studies in Christian Education, Examination and Evaluation." Sunday's student group will be led by Dot and Jim Cansler discussing "The Morality of Romance." Rides to Binkley can be obtained at Y Court, Chase Cafeteria and the Nurses' Dorm at 9:30, 10:40 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

MONDAY

The Academic affairs Committee will meet in the Grail Room at 4 p.m.

Tennis Club meets on the varsity courts at 3:30.

WAA Council meeting at 5:15 in the Women's Gym.

Spash club meets at 6:45 in the pool.

Tickets go on sale for Norman Luboff Choir to UNC students and dates only. They will be on sale for the general public Nov. 13. Tickets may be bought at the GM Info Desk. UNC students 50 cents, dates $1., general public $2 and $3.

Interviews for Campus Chest Committees will be held Mond.-Thurs. from 3-5 p.m. upstairs in the Y Building. Positions are available on the Secretariat and on the Auction Drive, Publicity, and Carnival Committees.

ISB meeting at 7:15 p.m. upstairs in the Y.

The Student National Education Association will hold its second meeting at 7 p.m. in room 08 Peabody. Following a showing of the film, Palmour Street, Dr. Rose Butler Browne of Durham will discuss "Education and the Poverty Program." All SNEA members and others interested in joining are encouraged to attend. New memberships will be accepted at this meeting.

All people who have signed up for the GM Ping-Pong tournament please meet in Woollen Gym at 6:45.

The Toronto Exchange will meet in Roland Parker at 5 p.m. This meeting is compulsory for all exchange members.

The Hillel Foundation will have an opening session of the Bible Study Group from 9-10 p.m. in the Psychology Building, room 128, at Duke University. All are welcome.

LOST AND FOUND

Lost: ID silver bracelet, Name Dennis engraved on it. Reward. Call Dennis Chapman. 114 Graham.

Found: Transistor radio in Battle Park. To identify, call Dr. Watkins, 362 Phillips Hall, 933-2128.

Found: A man's tan cardigan sweater on campus. To identify call 942-3970.

Lost: Black leather wallet in front section of gearroll Hall on the 29th of Oct. at the first show of "Gig." Please return to Hugh Owens 11 Vance. Reward offered.

Lost: Binoculars in case after the Ga. game. Also an Econ book. Call Bob Coleman, 217 Graham. 968-9159.

Lost: Pants to Tuxedo. Reward. Call Straughan, 114 Manly Dorm.

Lost: Ring of five keys with Lyon emblem. Please return to Y office.

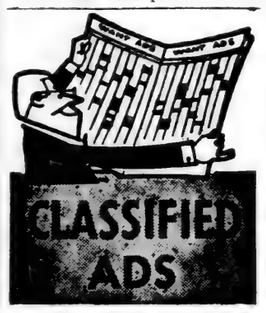
Lost: Taken from Lenoir Hall a navy London Fog jacket size 40, on Wed. Between 10-11 a.m. if Found please return to Steve Karurman, 01 Parker.

Lost: Black umbrella in vicinity of Venable. If found call 303 Manly, 968-9115.

Lost: Silver charm bracelet valued at $100, on Oct. 16 during the football game, near Kenan Stadium or Bell Tower or on playing field. Contact Mrs. Clyde Erwin, 8 Fleming Road, Glen Lennox, 929-2693. Reward offered.

Lost: Black trench coat with name Snouffer. Please write E.J. Snouffer, 208 Evergreen Lane.

Lost: 305 Super Hawk Honda, black. Take two weeks ago from front of Joyner Dorm. $100 reward. Call 416 Joyner.



FOR RENT: NEW 10 x 50 completely furnished, 2 bedroom mobile home. Available immediately. Telephone 942-3268 or 942-1749.

FOR SALE — 1965 HONDA CB 160 under 900 miles, 2 mos. old, perfect condition, must sell immediately. $480.00. Contact Pete Snyder, 968-9117.

1960 CHEVROLET IMPALA convertible. White body, white one year old top. Full power, radio & heater. Good price. Call 942-4554 after 6:30.

FOR SALE: HONDA 150 CC. 1600 actual miles, like new. Blue — $475 cash. Call 942-2312.

ROOM FOR RENT IMMEDIately rent: $30.00 per month. Location: 5 minutes from campus. Contact or phone Mrs. E. V. Leigh 204 Pritchard Ave., phone 942-5689.

Old Well Charms

Sterling Silver $4.00
Gold Plate $5.00
Solid Gold $17.00

T. L. KEMP JEWELRY

The Home of the Old Well Charm
135 East Franklin St.

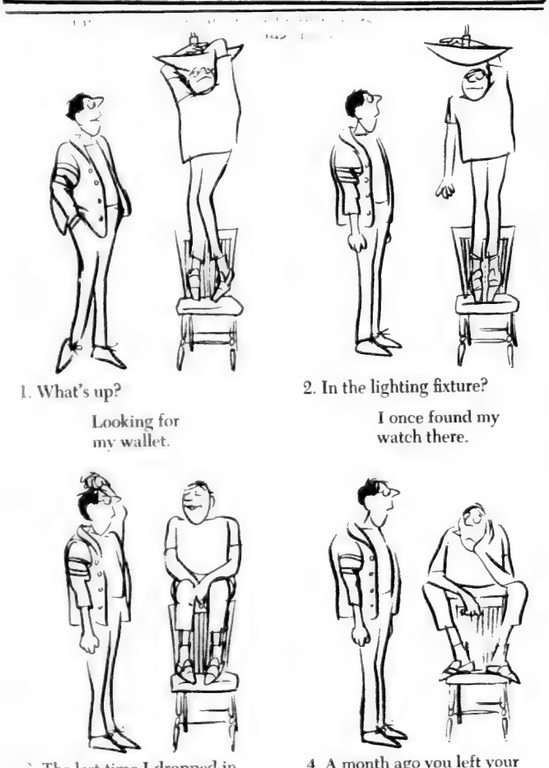
GM PRESENTS

NANCY WILSON

With SI ZENTNER and His Band

Tonight at 8 p.m.

Tickets on sale at GM information desk and at the door
FOR U.N.C. STUDENTS
U.N.C. STUDENTS — $1.00
GENERAL PUBLIC TICKET SALES BEGIN
NOV. 3 — $1.50 for GENERAL PUBLIC



For information about Living Insurance, see The Man from Equitable. For career opportunities at Equitable, see your Placement Officer, or write: Patrick Scollard, Manpower Development Division.

The EQUITABLE Life Assurance Society of the United States

Home Office: 1285 Ave. of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10019 © Equitable 1965
An Equal Opportunity Employer

Ya' Gotta Have Hope!

Miles & Miles of HOPE . . .

Something wonderful happens when you join Bob in his latest road discovery. Travel with him on every HILARIOUS step of the way he led over 70,000,000 television viewers on the twice repeated network (NBC) showing of his memorable junket of joy for our boys in Vietnam. Recorded during actual performances at U.S. Military bases in Vietnam, Thailand, Korea, etc.

CADET LP4046

There's a World of Excitement on CADET Records
(Chess Prod. Corp., Chicago, Illinois 60616)

Come Join the 1st Anniversary of Hickory Farms

of Chapel Hill
EASTGATE SHOPPING CENTER
NOW through SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 7th

Hickory Farms BEEF STICK Reg. $1.49 lb. Anniversary Special $1.29 lb.

126 Different Kinds of NATURAL CHEESES

59 Varieties of IMPORTED CANDIES Reg. 98c lb. Anniversary Special 79c lb.

- 103 Kinds of Spices
- Jams and Jellies
- Wide Selection of Salad Dressings

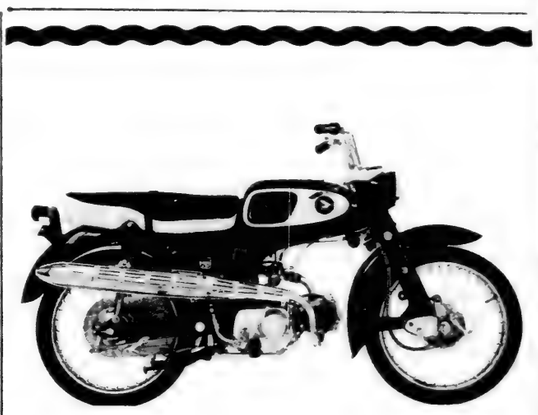
— FREE — Coffee Samples

FREE! Your Choice of 1 Box Bremners Wafers or Hickory Farms Old Fashion Crackers with each purchase of CHEESE BALL or CHEESE LOG

Advance Showing Christmas Baskets and Gift Packages
Special Attention to Commercial and Executive Accounts

HOURS: Open Monday - Friday — 9:30 a.m. 'til 9:00 p.m. Saturday — 9:00 - 6:00 Sunday — 1:00 - 6:00

Hickory Farms — Eastgate Shopping Center Chapel Hill, N. C.



Isn't riding better than walking? Isn't cycle parking easier than car parking? Would you rather get 15 miles per gallon, or would you prefer 14 times that much? Would you rather sleep 30 minutes later in the morning?

IF SO, TRY OUR
SPORTS 65 – $323.00

Travel - On Motorcycle Co.
"Headquarters for Adventure"
504 W. Franklin St.
Chapel Hill, N. C.

It's

Children's Book Week

Especially for this occasion, we've tracked down a special lot of the old-timey titles that are still in print.

Add to these the pick of the recent crop, and it's the nicest batch of junior delight imaginable!

FREE BALLOONS!

All this week, there's a Free balloon for each child who brings in a parent!

Enjoy a second childhood this week at the Intimate!

The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill
open every day until 10 pm

BELK-LEGGETT-HORTON
CHAPEL HILL, N. C.

23-6 Win Ends Perfect Year

Frosh Dump Deacs

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

North Carolina's Tar Babies put the finishing touches on a perfect 5-0 season with a 23-6 victory over the Wake Forest freshmen in Kenan Stadium yesterday.

It marked the second straight year that Goach George Barclay's freshmen forces have gone unbeaten.

Most of the scoring was done in the first half, as halfback Dick Wesolowski rambled for 101 yards.

The second half was a defensive battle, with the only score coming on quarterback Jeff Carter's 64-yard run.

Neither team moved the ball in the first quarter until Wake's Digit Laughridge returned a punt to the Carolina 33. On the first play Quarterback Ken Erickson found end Bob Brenner five yards behind the secondary and hurled a strike for the score. The extra point was missed and the Deaclets led, 6-0.

After an exchange of punts the Tar Babies finally got rolling from their own 42. Wesolowski ripped off ten yards and Gayle Bomar hit end Peter Davis for 26 yards to the Wake 20.

Wesolowski then took a handoff, shook off a tackler, and other Wake defenders. Billy Dodson's extra point put UNC ahead 7-6.

Midway through the second period John Harris stole a Wake pass and returned it 23 yards to the Wake 20. On the first play Wesolowski crashed through the line and went to within a foot of the goal. Another attempt by the Canadian failed and Bomar took the ball in on the next play.

Dodson's conversion was wide and Carolina led, 13-6.

A short punt set up a field goal by Dodson near the end of the first half to put UNC up, 16-6.

With Wake on the UNC 22 at the beginning of the fourth quarter, Landy Blank made an interception on the three by batting the ball up, catching it, and getting out to the nine.

Carter then ripped off 26 yards to the 34, but fumbled.

Wake moved to the 10, where a fourth down pass was broken up by Ronnie Lowry. Wake got it back on another fumble, but Johnny Blair swiped a pass at the Carolina 24 and returned it to the 35.

From the 36 Carter faked to Wesolowski, rolled to his right, and sprinted 64 yards to paydirt to ice the game. Carter had replaced starting quarterback Gayle Bomar, who broke a finger in the third quarter.

Wesolowski, bottled up in the second half, had 135 yards in 27 carries. Carter netted 119 in just eight attempts. Jimmy Johnson led Wake Forest with 74 yards in 22 tries.

Fauntleroy

The autumn leaves have turned and fell —
The season's stealing on.
Just two more weeks to show his wares,
And Fauntleroy is gone.

Yes, football fans, just two more weeks after this one and ol' Fauntleroy will hang 'em up for the year.

It's been fun, though. I had some interesting times. I remember the day I went up to Y-Court disguised as a guided missile. Anyway, a bunch of bearded guys began to nose around.

I was about to laugh. They brushed their beards against my "metal skin" and I almost burst out laughing. (I'm ticklish you see.)

FAUNTLEROY DISGUISED

Anyway, they weren't content to nose their way. around. They must have come prepared, because they started waving these signs about dodging a draft. (I couldn't understand that either, because I like draft beer.)

Well, someone else must like draft beer because a group of guys came up and started arguing with these guys with the signs.

It's hard to tell who won. Maybe these sign-wavers didn't like draft beer because it got clogged up in their beards — anyway, I couldn't understand what I did to start the argument.

I guess I had better get on with the business at hand. here are the picks:

UPSET SPECIAL: Ed Freakley to beat the BAND.

WAKE FOREST vs FLORIDA STATE — Well the Deacs have had more ups than downs this season. That makes such a pretty pattern, let's keep it up. Pick Florida State.

MARYLAND vs NAVY — I never liked those Navy guys, anyway, pick the Terps in a slow one.

Oh, did you hear about the deaf mute who fell in a well and broke two fingers hollaring for help? —ah-h-h—you did.

DUKE vs N. C. STATE — This should be a close one. The Blue Devils are falling down after I let them win a few at the start of the year. State on the other hand has won two in a row. Pick Duke.

VIRGINIA vs SOUTH CAROLINA — This should be another close one. Pick Virginia.

OTHER GAMES:
MICHIGAN STATE over IOWA
V.M.I. over RICHMOND
NOTRE DAME over PITTSBURGH
NEBRASKA over KANSAS
ARKANSAS over RICE
TEXAS over BAYLOR

Tar Heel Cagers Meet Tall Frosh

By BILL ROLLINS
DTH Sports Writer

North Carolina's basketball program throws all its talent onto one stage this afternoon and draws the free-admission curtain for everyone to observe. The varsity and freshman teams square off in Carmichael Auditorium at 4 p.m.

Here are some opinions as to what the varsity players think of the game.

BOB BENNETT: "This game will be more important than most freshman - varsity games, because we don't scrimmage any other schools before the season starts. They've got some good boys and height. It should be a good game."

TOM GAUNTLETT: "We've gotta win. We have everything to lose. We'll go after it with everything we've got. We really want to make a good impression on the students."

BOB LEWIS: "We're confident that we're gonna beat them. We've got experience on them, and that should make the biggest difference. The main thing is that is should show pretty well how we'll be able to do against a team with big boys. We want to win 'em all, and we want to start right here!"

JIM MOORE: "I think the people will be more impressed with the team's spirit. It's 100 per cent better."

LARRY MILLER: "It'll be a good game, though on the boards. I think our overall experience will be the difference."

Some of the freshmen commented also:

JIM BOSTICK: "Their experience will be the big thing. They've got some great players, and we'll have to be about perfect to beat them."

RUSTY CLARK: "We're gonna play 'em a good game. They should win if they're 'right,' but we've got a good chance to beat 'em if we can keep from making mistakes."

GERALD TUTTLE: "It will be important in showing how much progress has been made and where the most work must be placed before the season starts."

BILL BUNTING: "We need to control the boards to make a good game of it. I think the biggest things will be rebounding and speed. It will also show how well the new defense is going to work."

Frosh Booters Take Fifth Straight Match

Clarke Herdic's frosh booters jammed two goals into as many minutes of the third period yesterday on Fetzer Field, and made them stand up for a 2-0 win over Appalachian.

Landy Anderton and Warren Helman with an by assist Bill Paulsen tallied the goals which gave the unbeaten team its fifth straight win.

Herdic singled out goalie Bob Matheson for outstanding play.

It's enough to drive you off your rocker.

And it should.

Today, there's an endless number of styles to choose from.

COME TO KOKO'S . . . IT'S THE PLACE TO LEARN ABOUT THE LATEST FASHIONS.

KoKo's Lingerie
Eastgate Shopping Center

Sero SHIRTMAKERS
CHOICE OF THE COLLEGIAN

THE PURIST® BUTTON-DOWN
Created for the collegian with an eye for the absolute in a traditional wardrobe. Superbly-flared collar . . . masterful tailoring . . . proportionate tapering. Shirtmanship at its finest.

AVAILABLE AT
THE HUB, 103 East Franklin St.

DTH Sports

PERSONAL — to
Scratchy - chin
I'm tired of your old games, and I'm going to be browsing in the old books at the Intimate this afternoon. Meet me or not, just as you wish.
TOOTSIE-WOO

He'd take on anyone, at anything, anytime
...it was only a matter of who came first!

METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER presents A MARTIN RANSOHOFF PRODUCTION
STEVE McQUEEN · EDWARD G. ROBINSON · ANN-MARGRET
KARL MALDEN · TUESDAY WELD
THE CINCINNATI KID
A FILMWAYS-SOLAR PICTURE ... METROCOLOR
SHOWS AT: 1:15—3:15—5:15—7:15—9:15
NOW PLAYING
CAROLINA

The Record Bar and Capitol Records
Welcome
MISS NANCY WILSON

APPEARING AT CARMICHAEL AUDITORIUM
TONIGHT AT 8:00 P.M.
Tickets on Sale at GM
Complete Stock of Nancy Wilson LP's
Available at THE RECORD BAR
At A 25% Discount
THE RECORD BAR
ACROSS FROM THE POST OFFICE ON HENDERSON ST.
Durham (Uptown) Jacksonville, Fla. Durham, Wellon's Village

SCRAMBLE CHASE DINING SCRAMBLE HALL
OPEN DAILY . . . 7:00-2:00 5:00-7:15
SUNDAY 8:00-2:00 5:00-7:15
HOT SANDWICH COUNTER At LUNCH DAILY
Today's Sandwich
HOT ROAST BEEF SANDWICH OPEN FACE
Mashed Potatoes — Gravy
65c
STUDENT SPECIAL DAILY
Homemade Cakes and Pies – Fresh Salads
CLOSE TO STADIUM
CLOSE TO STADIUM
— Visitors Parking Next Door In Front — of Morrison

PINE ROOM & SNACK BAR
CHICKEN BOXES
Saturday Noon for Football Games

$1.25 Complete with Southern Fried Chicken, Potato Salad, Boiled Egg, Pickle, Roll and Cake
AT THE
PINE ROOM
SNACK BAR and CAFETERIA
Open Football Saturdays 7 A.M. - 11:45 A.M.

Varsity
FRI.-SAT.-SUN.-MON.
Charlie, Sidney, Roger... The names and places didn't matter... only when!

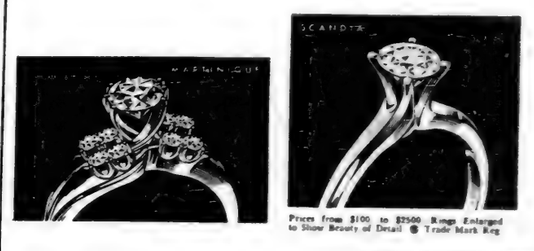
"A RAGE TO LIVE"
SUZANNE PLESHETTE
BRADFORD DILLMAN
BEN GAZZARA
ROBERT BANNING
RELEASED THRU UNITED ARTISTS
PANAVISION

"He is the fire of life itself, a piece of the sun in the shape of a man!" —Time
WINNER OF 3 ACADEMY AWARDS!
ANTHONY QUINN
ALAN BATES
IRENE PAPAS
with MICHAEL CACOYANNIS PRODUCTION
"ZORBA THE GREEK"
LILA KEDROVA

RIALTO, Durham
Fri.-Sun. at 1:42, 4:07, 6:33, 9:00
Mon.-Thurs. at 1:05, 3:30, 6:00, 8:30

KING WILLIAM RESTAURANT
STEAKS CHICKEN SEAFOOD
"Choice Selection of Imported and Domestic Beverages"
All New and Modern, featuring
1½ Miles From Campus on 15-501 South
Seating Capacity of 300
• Spacious Parking
• Four Private dining rooms
• Tasteful background music
• Catering facilities
Open Seven Days a Week 8:00 A.M. 'til Midnight

The ENGAGE-ABLES go for Keepsake®



Prices from $100 to $2500. Rings Enlarged to Show Beauty of Detail. ® Trade Mark Reg.

Each Keepsake setting is a masterpiece of design, reflecting the full brilliance and beauty of the center diamond . . . a perfect gem of flawless clarity, fine color and meticulous modern cut. The name, Keepsake, in the ring and on the tag is your assurance of fine quality. Your very personal Keepsake is now at your Keepsake Jeweler's store. Find him in the yellow pages under "Jewelers."

CAMELOT

HOW TO PLAN YOUR ENGAGEMENT AND WEDDING
Please send new 20-page booklet, "How To Plan Your Engagement and Wedding" and new 12-page full color folder, both for only 25¢. Also, send special offer of beautiful 44-page Bride's Book.
Name
Address
City State Zip
KEEPSAKE DIAMOND RINGS, SYRACUSE, NEW YORK 13202

Tickets
Ticket Sales for La Contrescarpe and the Norman Luboff Choir will begin on Tuesday. Printing difficulties have delayed the sales, which were to begin tomorrow.

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Concert
The Netherlands Chamber Orchestra, internationally famed string ensemble, will present a concert tonight at 8 in Memorial Hall.

Vol. 74, No. 47 | CHAPEL HILL NORTH CAROLINA SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1965 | Founded February 23, 1893.

Final Gun Stops Clemson; UNC Wins, 17-13

Tigers Growling As Contest Ends

By ED FREAKLEY
DTH Staff Writer

Whew! The Tar Heels grabbed the Tiger by the tail in ol' Kenan yesterday and managed to hang on for a 17-13 squeaker.

Most fans hate to see ball games end, but if that nerve racking exhibition had lasted a second longer it would have been sad, sad city all over again.

It was Leo Durocher who said ball games are games of inches. It might be well to add that they are not only inches but also fractions of seconds.

It looked like the Georgia game all over again there for awhile in the fourth quarter. With 4:55 left in the game Carolina punted and Clemson took the ball on their own 39.

From their they took the ball 61 yards in four plays with quarterback Tom Ray taking it over to make the score 17-13.

Frank Howard, Tiger coach, had his troops go for two in hopes that they could come back and get a field goal, if not a touchdown, and win the contest.

The attempt failed when Ray's pass was caught out of bounds by flanker Phil Rogers.

Clemson lined up for the kickoff, and like Georgia did last week, they tried the onsides boot.

Mad Scramble

There was a made scramble for the ball and a huge pileup at the 50. The official signaled Carolina had the ball, but then a huge groan went up from the crowd as he reversed himself and said it belonged to the Tigers.

But two plays later Bill Edwards intercepted a pass, and it looked like the threat was over.

But the Tar Heels couldn't move the ball and Edwards punted. With 1:40 left the Clemson team began a seemingly unstoppable drive for the Carolina goal line.

In 2 plays they moved to UNC's 10. With six century - long seconds left the Tiger quarterback faded back and fired to end Wayne Bell on the one foot line. Three Carolina men hit him at the instant he caught the ball and dropped him there.

The Tiger tail had almost slipped away, but as Clemson lined up for the final try that beautiful horn sounded Taps.

Frank Howard, who shook both of Jim Hickey's hands and patted him on the back after the game, summed it up the best.

Pay Again

"I tell you, when you see one like that, they ought to line the fans up again at the gate and make 'em pay again," he said.

About half way through the first half the Tar Heels rigged up their first score. Clemson booted to the Carolina 33.

Standing there was 175-pound little David Riggs. He watched the ball roll toward him and the thundering herd of Tiger linemen pouring in.

Well, little David decided he wasn't getting anything done standing there so he scooped up the pigskin and waltzed 67 yards through 11 Tigers to score.

The foot of Danny Talbott added the extra points and then early in the second quart-

(Continued on Page 5)

CAROLINA FULLBACK Tom Lampman picks up 12 yards around Clemson's right end early in the third quarter. Tacklers are Arthur Craig, 42, and Wayne Page, 45. UNC won 17-13. — DTH Photo By Ernest Robl.

Tom Ray Breaks Passing Records

By PAT STITH
DTH Sports Editor

Clemson, a team that has built a legend around its running attack, passed North Carolina silly here in Kenan Stadium yesterday afternoon — All for nothing. The Tiger's do-or-die last minute drive died on the North Carolina one yard line giving the Tar Heels a 17-13 victory.

"We took on the ACC leader and beat them and that's a pretty good day's work anywhere," Carolina Coach Jim Hickey said after the game. "It was a big one for us."

And so it was.

There were big moments for individuals on both sides. Dave Riggs' punt return, Jack Davenport's pass interception, and Danny Talbott's broken field running all resulted in scores for North Carolina.

But it was Tiger quarterback Tom Ray, a nobody in the art of throwing the football until yesterday, who stole the show — and almost stole the game.

It was Ray who broke four team and three ACC individual records and it was Ray who had the 38,500 who came to witness Clemson's bid for an ACC championship and a bowl game standing on their heads as the Tiger's mounted a desperation drive in the closing seconds of the game.

Clemson took over on the Carolina 31 with just 1:40 to go and on three occasions he came up with crucial fourth down calls — two of them passes — that kept the drive alive.

At the UNC 19 he threw down the middle to left end Wayne Bell at the UNC one but Bell was met by three Carolina secondary men there and couldn't take the final step to victory.

With the lock running and only four seconds to go, Clemson never had another real chance. Ray threw a desperation standup pass to end Edgar McGee on the right side in an effort to sop the clock but time ran out.

All in all, Ray was involved in eight Clemson records and six ACC all-time marks. He had 335 total yards gained (ACC record) which surpasses even Talbott's record performance against Georgia here last week.

Danny had his worst day ever passing (seven for 21 with two interceptions), but he moved the North Carolina attack and drew the praise of both Clemson Coach Frank Howard and Hickey after the game.

He got off two fine runs, one midway in the second quarter in which he weaved through the Clemson secondary for 41 yards to the Clemson 12 and the other a 35 yard dash for the winning score in the third period.

UNC moved the ball to the three yard line after his first run, where Clemson threw Talbott for a six yard loss as he tried to sweep his left end.

Talbott kicked a 26 yard field goal to put his team out front 10-7 at that point and Clemson, which had tied the score at 7-7 just three minutes earlier, could never catch up.

Talbott scored 11 points (a touchdown, a FG, and two PATs) yesterday to bring his season's total to 63, just nine short of the UNC season record held jointly by Charlie Justice and Jimmy Ward.

Carolina took the lead in the first period on a play by Riggs that can best be described in twin terms — daring and smart.

He took a punt from Don Barfield on the second dribble, sprinted by surprised Tigers on both sides of him, cut to his right into a pack of blue jersies and ran 67 yards for a touchdown.

UNC's secondary was leaky, as it has been all season, but it came up with four pass interceptions that changed the completion of the game.

Gene Link picked off one on the UNC 20 and returned it 10 yards to stop a Tiger drive in the first quarter; Joe Fratangelo got one on the Carolina 15 midway in the third quarter; Jack Davenport intercepted on UNC 29 and returned it 51 yards to set up the winning touchdown and Bill Edwards grabbed one on the UNC 32 in the dying minutes of the game.

Clemson moved the ball well all afternoon but there were defensive standouts for North Carolina. End Jim Masino and linebacker Jay Malobicky both were credited with seven individual tackles.

Frank Howard could have had a tie. He elected to go for two after Clemson scored in the fourth quarter to close the gap to 17-13 and failed.

Maybe it was because the Baron is just too romantic for his own good. It is Hoawrd who is credited with the quip that a tie ball game is like kissing your sister.

STATISTICS

First Downs	13	26
Yards Rushing	203	123
Passes	7-21	23-48
Passing Yardage	68	342
Total Yardage	271	465
Passes Inter. By	4	2
Punts	8-40.9	7-37.1

Score by quarters:
UNC	7	3	0	7	—17
Clemson	0	7	0	6	—13

Sherry O'Donnell Attacks Appointment Of Secretary

Student Body Secretary Sherry O'Donnell attacked last Tuesday's special session of Student Legislature as a "disgusting example of legistive irresponsibility" in a recent statement to the Daily Tar Heel.

Miss O'Donnell attacked the passage without debate of a constitutional referendum bill which will allos students to decide whether or not the office of student body secretary will be made an appointive position.

If students approve the amendment during the fall elections next Tuesday, the president of the student body will appoint all future secretaries.

"The student body secretary literally has the only campus-wide elected position that a coed can presently hold on this campus," she said. "She represents the only official voice of the coed to be heard in the Student Government executive offices.

"By this one act, the legislature has jeopardized the voice of one fourth of the student body," Miss O'Donnell said.

"This move will not affect me personally, but it will relegate the coed to a position of holding a valueless title in Student Government."

Miss O'Donnell criticized the legislature for not allowing her the opportunity to speak before the body Tuesday night.

"I can only assume that this refusal was due to their general closed - mindedness and willful disregard for their legislative responsibility," she said.

Miss O'Donnell rejected the argument for the amendment that the student body cannot be depended upon to select qualified coeds for the job.

"After reviewing the officers of the past two years," she said, "I cannot accept this point of view."

Miss O'Donnell predicted the student body will "rubber stamp" its approval of the amendment.

She said it was inconsistant for legislature to recommend the appointment of a non-policy making officer such as the secretary and yet refuse to recommend the appointment of the student body treasurer, too.

Di-Phi Will Debate NSA

Armistead Maupin and Eric Van Loon will be the principal speakers at a Di-Phi senate debate on Student Government's affiliation with the National Student Association Tuesday night at 7:30 on the third floor of New West.

Maupin, Vice President of the Senior Class and former student legislator, is an outspoken foe of NSA affiliation and has frequently criticized that organization for its liberal stands.

Van Loon is the Student Government's Coordinator for NSA and was a delegate to the 1965 NSA national congress this summer.

Di-Phi President John Harrison said yesterday the Senate has sent out 1,800 cards advertising the event, and he expects a capacity crowd of partisans in the chambers Tuesday.

NSA has been severely criticized by national conservative organizations in recent years for its "ultra - liberalism" in national and international affairs.

Students narrowly defeated in a campus-wide referendum last fall a move to disaffiliate the University from NSA.

No One Has Blueprint For Viet Future—Cary

By TREVA MITCHELL
Special To The DTH

Stephen G. Cary told an audience in Gerrard Hall Friday that in his three-month mission to Viet Nam he found no one who had a blueprint for the future.

"Those with the blueprints are the farthest away," he said.

Mr. Cary is the associate executive secretary of the American Friends Service Committee. He was in Viet Nam from mid - May until mid-August, during the period of intensification of the war.

He spoke at the invitation of the International Relations Committee of the YMCA.

"Never in my life have I seen anything to compare with what is happening to the people of Viet Nam," said Cary. He added that "One does not get the impression of a nation laid waste. This is a war against people."

"There is tremendous pressure from abroad to have us believe that the war is generated from North Viet Nam," stated Cary. "The historic fact is that the resentment and bitter disillusionment of the South Vietnamese eventually reached the point where rice paddy farmers took to the swamps with their weapons. The roots of the violence are in the south."

In Cary's words, the U. S. went into Viet Nam "to forge another link in the defense chain we're building around the perimeter of China."

He thinks that those who object to the U. S. policy in Viet Nam should fully understand the situation, suggest an alternative, and "speak with all the vigor we can muster to try to change what is wrong."

In closing his speech, he stated that there are positive forces at work, but "the odds against their success are less with every day that the war goes on."

The Speaker Ban Controversy: Part One

History Of Gag Law Has Been Brief, But Turbulent

Editor's Note — From its passage in the closing minutes of the 1963 General Assembly, House Bill 1395, now better known as the speaker ban law, has been a searing issue whose controversy has spread beyond the limits of North Carolina.

Last summer a special legislative commission examined the implications of the law; Friday the panel made its report to the governor, calling for amendment of the law.

DTH Staff Writer Ernest Robl covered the speaker ban hearings for both the summer Tar Heel and The Daily Tar Heel. In the series beginning today, he looks back on the brief but turbulent history of H.B. 1395, and presents an analysis of some of its many aspects.

First In A Series
By ERNEST ROBL
DTH Staff Writer

"If I could do it all over again it would have been done differently . . . When the bill was presented, I honestly couldn't see anything wrong with it."

These were the words of Rep. Phil Godwin used this summer in looking back on House Bill 1395, which he coauthored and introduced in the closing minutes of the 1963 General Assembly.

Entitled "An Act To Regulate Visiting Speakers At State Supported Colleges And Universities," H.B. 1395, passed June 26, 1963, is now far better known as the communist speaker ban or simply the gag law.

And while Rep. Godwin stated that he "couldn't see anything wrong," there have been many individuals and organizations which have found much wrong with the law.

The law states in part that "No college or university which receives any state funds in support thereof, shall permit any person to use the facilities of such college or university for speaking purposes, who:

"(A) Is a known member of the Communist Party;

"(B) Is known to advocate the overthrow of the Constitution of the United States or the state of North Carolina;

"(C) Has pleaded the Fifth Amendment of the Constitution of the United States in refusing to answer any questions with respect to communist or subversive connections, or activities, before any duly constituted legislative committee, any judicial tribunal, or any executive or administrative board of the United States or any state."

SPEAKER BAN Study Commission Chairman David Britt shows some of the strain of the long hearing on North Carolina's controversial law.
— DTH Photo By Ernest Robl

Critics Of Law

Foremost among the critics of the law have been the Consolidated University and the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. This criticism has been based on two major contentions: first, that the law usurps the administrative powers of the boards of trustees; and second that the law, as it stands, is extremely vague, and therefore almost impossible to apply.

But the controversy centering on the legislation has by no means been one-sided. Outspoken defenders of the law have appeared, headed by spokesmen for the North Carolina Department of the American Legion and State Senator Tom White, who termed the law "wholesome."

However, had it not been for a telegram which arrived in Raleigh late last spring, the "Act To Regulate Visiting Speakers," might have remained merely an issue — to be debated pro and con but to be ignored when the time for action arrived.

This telegram from the Commission on Colleges and Universities of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, signed by Dr. Emmet B. Fields, informed Governor Dan K. Moore that the speaker ban constituted a threat to the accreditation of affected institutions.

This telegram — having been duly considered by state officials, including the governor — finally crystallized the entire nebulous issue, focusing on a single concrete and very imminent danger.

Unable to put the issue off indefinitely, Governor Moore announced a short time later that he would ask the General Assembly, then in session, to create a special study commission to come up with a recommendation on the future fate of H.B. 1395.

Nine Members

The act creating the commission passed both houses and provided for a nine-member panel: Five members to be selected by the governor, two members by the lieutenant governor and two members by the speaker of the House of Representatives.

The commission, consisting of eight men and one woman, met for the first time July 14, and conducted two two-day sessions of hearings on the ban law Aug. 11-12 and Sept. 8-9.

In opening the first day of hearings, Commission Chairman David Britt of Fairmont told the audience, "I doubt that this is going to be an entertainment program. It is going to be a little bit tedious at times as we try to go into documents, as we try to ask people questions."

And at times the hearings did become extremely tedious.

In the end, the printed transcripts of testimony and documents submitted for the record amounted to well over a thousand pages — And it was on the basis of this volume of testimony that the commission finally came to a decision, providing the basis for Friday's recommendation.

The group to which the fate of House Bill 1395 was entrusted came from a varied background; it was composed of five lawyers, one newswoman, one minister and two industrialists. Five of the members served in the immediately concluded session of the General Assembly.

Representative David Britt, who skillfully chaired the sessions and kept the seemingly endless parade of witnesses flowing along smoothly, is considered the most likely prospect to fill the position of speaker of the house during the next General Assembly.

He was appointed to the commission by Governor Moore, of whom he was a major supporter in the 1964 gubernatorial race. The Robeson County lawyer is considered a potential candidate for governor in 1968.

Britt was instrumental in helping the Moore administration push its court reform program through the General Assembly last spring.

During the proceedings of the study panel, Britt attempted to keep above what often amounted to bickering over fine points between a commission member and a witness; usually Britt supplied the routine questions asked of every witness, occasionally demanding further clarification of an

(Continued on Page 3)

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of the Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. Letters and columns, covering a wide range of views, reflect the personal opinions of their authors.
ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

DTH Awards Of The Week

Quote of the Week: Barry Goldwater, in criticizing Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara and his Viet Nam policy, offered this suggestion — "I would like to see him go back making Edsels."

Best Protester of the Week: The person who sent an envelope full of ashes and this letter to the mayor of St. Joseph, Mo.: "In protest against the recent increase of overdue library book fines from three to five cents, I have burned my library card."

Best Headline of the Week: In the Chapel Hill Weekly: "Leaders Warn Chest Campaign May Fall Flat."

Loser of the Week: Anybody who tries to use one of those new light-weight quarters in a vending machine.

Versatility Award: Two Klansmen, described by the House Un-American Activities Committee as demolitions instructors who also run a "disorderly house" in their klavern.

Lizard of the Week: The "friend" who told reporters that Luci Baines Johnson was thinking about getting married, touching off so much romantic speculation that she and her boy friend finally told newsmen to get lost.

Cop of the Week: Greensboro Patrolman S. J. Staron, who stopped a driver doing 65 miles per hour in a 50-mph zone. When he asked the caught motorist his occupation, the answer was, "Grand Dragon." It was James Robert Jones.

Misery Is . . .

Remember all those cute little sayings that began with "happiness is" or "security is"?

Well, we came up with a more appropriate little quip for these darker days.

Misery is . . .

Misery is sitting in Kenan Stadium waiting for the Tar Heels to score.

Misery is taking a shower and someone flushes the john.

Misery is an 8 o'clock class on a cold winter morning when the radiator isn't working.

Misery is a roommate who comes in at 2 Sunday morning after you've been studying all night and tells you about his great date.

Misery is waking up in the morning and running outside the dorm in your pajamas to get The Daily Tar Heel and that girl you have been wanting to date walks by.

Misery is getting up for your eight o'clock class and the professor doesn't show up.

Misery is economizing by going to Lenoir Hall for dinner and finding out the Rat is selling pizzas at half price.

Misery is getting your $6 shirt back from a Chapel Hill laundry.

Misery is getting to the Dairy Bar at 12:01 Sunday morning to buy a six-pack of beer.

Misery is lighting the wrong end of your last filter tip cigarette.

Misery is trying to quit smoking.

Misery is a "T" sticker.

Misery is finding a Honda in the only parking space on the block.

Misery is finding a parking place and when you come back you find a parking ticket.

Misery is getting a B on that real tough test and everybody you brag to got an A.

Misery is writing a term paper and later learning that it is on your professor's specialty.

Misery is selling your books and finding out that you flunked the course.

Misery is a 1.99999 quality point average on graduation day.

Misery is bumping into Otelia Connor and you're already five minutes late for class.

Misery is laughing at the coed walking in front of you and then you turn around and there are two coeds laughing at you.

Misery is finding out that the girl you took to the Arboretum last night has mono.

Misery is spending two weeks in the infirmary with mono.

Misery is knowing you voted for LBJ.

Misery is worrying about HHH becoming president.

Misery is being in the KKK and having to plead the fifth fifth fifth.

Ed Freakley

The Daily Tar Heel

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all ap news dispatches.

"Gunsmoke On Yet?"

Maupin Clarifies His Editorial

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

I have been asked to clarify several items that appeared in my "soup editorial" on the Student Peace Union. I am happy to oblige.

Contrary to a statement in the editorial, the SPU has never picketed the Naval Armory. Furthermore, it has never been proved that the ban-the-bomb blitz of building defacement last May was carried off by members of the Peace Union. It is true that the SPU symbol appeared in conjunction with the anti-Viet Nam epithets that were scrawled on the library, South Building and other campus buildings, but this is not concrete proof that SPU members were responsible for the action. The hierarchy of the group, in fact, publicly denounced such methods for expressing their "dissent."

In regard to the defacement of guns at the Naval Armory, it has been pointed out to me that the people involved were merely "attending" SPU meetings and not official members of the organization. They did not become members of the SPU until after their trials by the Honor Council.

In regard to the picketing of South Building and the administration, it has been brought to my attention that the Peace Union was never officially involved in the "Goodykoontz Affair" last spring. Members of the group may have picketed, but they were simply operating on their own initiative.

Several people have questioned my judgment in using the word "odorous" to describe the SPU. They were right.

I looked up "odorous" in the dictionary and it means "fragrant or sweet-smelling."

I would like to retract that remark.

Armistead Maupin, Jr.
715-A Gimghoul

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel welcomes letters to the editor on any subject, particularly on matters of local or University interest. Letters must be typed, double spaced and must include the name and address of the author or authors. Names will not be omitted in publication. Letters should be kept as brief as possible. The DTH reserves the right to edit for length or libel.

It's OK Kid, Everybody Does It

(Reprinted from the bulletin of the First Methodist Church, Cherryville, N. C.)
By JACK GRIFFIN

When Johnny was six years old, he was with his father when they were caught speeding. His father handed the officer a five-dollar bill with his driver's license "It's O.K., Son," his father said as they drove off. "Everybody does it."

When he was eight, he was permitted at a family council, presided over by Uncle George, on the surest means to shave points off the income tax return. "It's O.K., Kid," his uncle said. "Everybody does it."

When he was nine, his mother took him to his first theater production. The box office man couldn't find any seats until his mother discovered an extra two dollars in her purse. "It's O.K., Son," she said. "Everybody does it."

When he was twelve, he broke his glasses on the way to school. His Aunt Francine persuaded the insurance company that they had been stolen and they collected $27.00. "It's O.K., Kid," she said "Everybody does it."

When he was fifteen, he made right guard on the high school football team. His coach showed him how to block and at the same time grab the opposing end by the shirt so the official couldn't see it. "It's O.K., Kid," the coach said. "Everybody does it."

When he was sixteen, he took his first summer job at the big market. His assignment was to put the over-ripe tomatoes in the boxes and the good ones on top where they would show. It's O.K., Kid," the manager said. "Everybody does it."

When he was eighteen, Johnny and a neighbor applied for a college scholarship. Johnny was a marginal student. His neighbor was in the upper three per cent of his class, but he couldn't play right guard. Johnny got the scholarship. "It's O.K., Kid," they told him. "Everybody does it."

When he was nineteen he was approached by an upperclassman who offered him a set of test questions for three dollars. "It's O.K., Kid," he said. "Everyone does it."

Johnny was caught and sent home in disgrace. "How could you do this to your mother?" His father asked. "You never learned anything like this at home." His aunt and uncle were shocked also.

If There's anything the adult world can't stand, it's a kid who cheats . . .

David Rothman

Jerkeley University Solves Arboretum Petting Problem

DTH editor Ernie McCrary is right — many UNC students avoid the Arb because of the danger of being stepped on.

Here's one school's solution to the problem:

After the University of Jerkeley arboretum became overcrowded, Dean of Men William Short announced a new set of petting regulations, noting that Jerkeley has 8,800 petters and only 5,316 petting spaces.

He added:

"If anyone thinks 12,000 young people are going to spend four to seven years at the university just sitting around twiddling their thumbs, they have another thought coming.

"Let's face reality:

"All of us may be thinking about building that multi - story petting facility, but we'll never get the necessary funds from the state legislature.

"Daytime petting will be restricted to specified areas," the Dean said. "Curb petting will be eliminated in heavily crowded automobiles.

"Failure to comply with the new regulations will result in the couples' being towed to a compound near the University Airport."

The regulations also provided for a $5 petting fee.

Originally, there was a $2.50 fee, but the university needed the increase to finance the construction of new petting facilities in dormitories and churches.

Graduate students, married students and veterans over 21 received petting privileges without restriction.

The university prohibited single students from registering more than one coed at a time. It permitted couples to pet overnight only in designated lots.

Freshmen and all other undergraduates with less than a "C" average were denied petting privileges.

Dean Short predicted it may be possible to have off-campus petting fields with a shuttle bus service within 10 years.

"That's 10 years too far away," said an editorial in The Daily Cowlifornian.

"The rule that petters may be sent home after three honor code violations rather than five may reduce the number of them on campus," the paper said, "but we feel the present regulations are sufficient."

The Daily Cowlifornian also commented:

"Once all petters are removed from the streets, there is little doubt the traffic will increase. Then the street walkers will become more visible.

"Instead of sneaking out from behind darkened cars, Jerkeley students will be able to walk out into the paths of the Arb in full sight of the housemothers.

"Towing away couples petting in the wrong zone is a bit extreme, and it will probably keep every moral squad in Jerkeley overtime.

"Nevertheless, this regulations is unavoidable because there simply is not enough space for everybody to pet near the center of the campus during class hours."

'Today's Chuckle' Lives In Chapel Hill

By MARY RICHARD VESTER

Chapel Hill won out over California, Florida, Mexico, Washington, Oregon and the Rio Grande Valley (important retirement area) for the Tom Collins family, 15 Lake Shore Drive. Mr. and Mrs. Collins retired here with three teenage boys three years ago this January when Tom Collins retired as executive editor of The Chicago Daily News.

The writers of "Today's Chuckle" and "The Weekend Chuckle" (famous little conversation pieces that bring a smile every day) wanted just "to be home and write together."

They first saw Chapel Hill in 1956 when they were location hunting with the dream of retirement in mind. After looking thoroughly over the United States, they were drawn back to the village by its "seasons, the atmosphere and people and being in a college town. The snow is pretty here," Mrs. Collins said, "because it seldom stays long enough to be the slushy, dirty mess it is in Chicago."

Mrs. Collins has been writing chuckles such as "Football player: A man who gets a living out of kicks" and "An eight-year-old's definition of thinking: When you keep your mouth shut and your head keeps on talking to itself." since 1954. Her husband started writing them in 1946, the same year he married Mrs. Collins. He still writes two syndicated columns on retirement — "The Golden Years" weekly and "The Senior Forum" five times a week. They appear regularly in about 50 newspapers around the country.

Chuckle is the most widely syndicated front-page text feature in the world. It appears in 275 newspapers across the country: nine of them are North Carolina papers. General Features Corporation, New York newspaper syndicate, frequently sells it in Australia, Japan and Canada as well.

Mrs. Collins syas she can't understand it. She doesn't know whether it is printed in English or translated. But since it is "a play on words that often depends on a double meaning for its humor," the whole idea might be lost in another language.

She works on a 50-50 basis with General Features; some comic writers manage to get 60 per cent, she explains, but no better. She stays about four weeks ahead on "Today's Chuckle," but works two months ahead on "The Weekend Chuckle" because Eugene Payne, staff artist for "The Charlotte Observer," creates pictorial cartoons to accompany them.

Where does she find ideas? She has "a very large mailing list," but modestly admits some chuckles are original twists of old sayings, combinations or rearrangements. Do friends contribute their brainstorms? Although she's sure it would be interesting, Mrs. Collins doesn't solicit or accept ideas of this kind because of the legal risk; they could be stolen. "I'm afraid to," she said frankly.

She calls the chuckle "a quip rather than a joke," but stresses it never involves vulgarities. Her husband explained why the chuckles caught on and lasted: "News was grim during war years when the chuckle was born, especially front-page news. Chuckle guaranteed at least a smile a day."

Are favorite chuckles often quoted around the house? Mrs. Collins says she tries to refrain, "But some mornings I get up feeling unusually good and tell the boys about four before they go to school. Then they go off moaning."

The two oldest — Kent, 17, and Paul, 15 — play guitar in combos. And now Todd, 13, is starting. "I don't know whether we can stand another," Mrs. Collins said. "We can't decide whether it's worse to let them practice downstairs in the den and have the sound rise or to have them practice up here and let it seep down." Kent is current manager of "The Nomads"; Paul's group is "The Shackles." His mother said, "Paul must've written lyrics and music for about 50 songs by now, folk and rock 'n' roll."

The freezer door in the kitchen is Mrs. Collins' medium for conveying sentence sermons to her family. She has clipped and taped to it morals she wants to get across. Imagine reaching for ice cream and reading: "I would rather sit on a pumpkin and have it all to myself than be crowded on a velvet cushion," by Thoreau.

The Collinses are a family devoted to journalism. Mrs. Collins earned her journalism degree in her home state at the University of Iowa, Iowa City. She's a graduate student here in the Department of Comparative Literature. Although her ob-jective is gathering background for a woman's novel that she plans, she says her writing time now will be spent on the thesis she hopes to complete by the spring. She has done a collection of jokes for ministers, "For Benefit of Clergy," which probably will come out next fall. It has been accepted by Grosset and Dunlap in New York, and they are looking for an illustrator now.

Her first job was as managing editor for the Ames Daily Tribune in Iowa. Then she worked for the publicity department of a book publishing company, D. C. Heath and Co., in Boston for a year. She met her husband when both were working in public relations for the Navy in Washington, D.C. She was an aid to the admiral, who was the public relations director. For seven years she wrote a column of down-to-earth family experiences, "Spouse - Keeping," six times a week. Yes, she sometimes used her own family for subjects, but she put their words in someone else's mouth whenever possible because she feels "there's nothing duller than someone writing about his own children."

Tom Collins was reared in Chicago and graduated in journalism from the University of Georgia. His book is titled like his column, "The Golden Years." His wife borrowed the title of his other column, "The Senior Forum," for another book on retirement. And Dartnell Corporation soon will release Collins' 12 booklets for industry on retirement's various phases. The Executive Editor and former Foreign News Service Director of 20 years said, "You do some good in newspapering if you're any good. The field is wide open; you can conquer the world."

Parental encouragement, inherited abilities, favorable environment or simply natural inclination — something — just might have bred four more journalists: Tom Collins' daughter Carol was a reporter before her marriage, and all three boys aspire to the profession.

At any rate, the Collins family is as addicted to "the cause" as they are to Chapel Hill, which they call "a good place to rest between trips." They've made three trips to Europe, just returned from Italy, and say traveling is one of the joys of retirement. "The boys accuse me of always planning our next trip on the current one," Mrs. Collins said.

"But I think this is it," her husband added. "I've bought five cemetery lots. We're here to stay."

MR. and MRS. TOM COLLINS

Speaker Ban Has Had Hectic Life

(Continued from Page 1)

answer to another commission member.

Most Active

Probably the two most active members of the panel, as far as actual questioning of witnesses was concerned were Senator Gordon Hanes and Representative Lacy Thornburg.

Hanes, an attorney serving his second term as senator from Forsyth County, is the owner of Hanes Hosiery Mills. He was named to the commission by Lt. Gov. Robert W. Bob Scott.

Thornburg, from Sylva in Jackson County, is serving his third term in the House. Considered one of the leaders of the bloc of Democrats from western North Carolina, Thornburg was named to the study group by Speaker of the House Pat Taylor.

Questions from both Hanes and Thornburg usually made the witnesses somewhat ill at ease.

Addressing himself mostly to fine legal points, Col. W.T. Joyner, an elderly corporation lawyer from Raleigh, sat through most of the sessions wearing dark glasses to protest his eyes from the glaring television klieg lights. Frequently he conferred privately with Chairman Britt.

Only oman

Mrs. Elizabeth Swindell, editor and publisher of the Wilson Daily Times, was the only woman member of the panel. She is a past president of the North Carolina Press Association, the only woman ever elected to that position.

Both Col. Joyner and Mrs. Swindell were named to the panel by Moore.

Other members of the commission were:

Senator Russel Kirby, a lawyer from Wilson County, appointed by Scott.

Representative A. A. (Gus) Zollicoffer, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee. The Henderson lawyer was chosen for the commission by Taylor, of whom he is a close friend and former college roommate.

Charles Myers of Greensboro, president of Burlington Industries, appointed by Moore. Myers was a strong supporter of unsuccessful gubernatorial candidate Richardson Preyer.

Rev. Ben C. Fisher from Wake Forest, chairman of the Baptist State Convention's Commission on Higher Education, named to the ommission by the governor.

It was only after long study of the volumes of testimony, and drawing on their varied backgrounds that this group reached its final decision, voiced in the recommendation made Friday afternoon.

* * *

(Next in the series: Accreditation and the University.)

UP Meeting

The University Party will hold a meeting Monday at 7:30 in Gerard Hall to fill four legislative vacancies: one in Men's District I, two in Men's District III, and one in Men's District IV.

Further information can be obtained from University Party Floor Leader George Ingram.

All Party members are encouraged to attend the meeting.

WINTERIZE HABITS

Winter's far different than summer, and the driving skills of all motorists meet their severest test in the cold weather months ahead.

Activities For The Next Few Days

All Campus Calendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date (by 10 a.m. Saturday for Sunday's DTH). Lost and Found notices will be run on Tuesday and Saturdays only.

TODAY

Toronto Exchange will meet today at 5 p.m. in Roland Parker I.

Meeting of SDS at 8 p.m. in 205 Alumni to discuss the Speaker Ban Law.

All persons working with the Murdoch program sponsored by Westminster Fellowship-Episcopal Student Congregation should meet at 1:30 p.m. at the Episcopal Church parking lot.

Westminster Fellowship sponsors four simultaneous discussion groups: "The New Morality," "The University and the Student," "The Leap of Faith," and "Comparative Religions: Judaism, Islam and Hinduism." Supper is at 5:30 p.m.

Dorm meeting of freshmen officers in Joyner at 9 p.m., Alexander at 9 p.m., and Morrison at 10 and 11 p.m.

Dr. Robert Cushman will speak at the Sunday University Worship at 4 p.m. in the Wesley Foundation.

The Sunday Evening Symposium will have the formal Opening of the Wesley Foundation Building at 4 p.m. Dean Robert E. Cushman will deliver the sermon.

The Carolina Political Union will meet at 8 p.m. in the Grail Room. Dr. Joel Schwartz of the Department of Political Science will speak about Communism - ideology vs. practice.

Graduate Christian Fellowship meets at 8-9 p.m. in Roland Parker III. Bible study on John I for all interested graduate students.

The Cosmopolitan Club will present a program entitled "From Austria Onwards" at 3 p.m. at the Presbyterian Student Center. All foreign students, host families and interested persons are invited.

The Olin T. Binkley Baptist Church will continue its church school series with Dr. Sam Hill as the leader. Coffee will be served at 9:30 a.m. and the class will begin at 10. Morning worship will follow at 11 a.m. with the Reverend William Currin speaking. The Sunday night supper seminars at 6 p.m. will be led by Rev. William Currin speaking on "Studies in Christian Education, Examination and Evaluation." Sunday's student group will be led by Dot and Jim Cansler discussing "The Morality of Romance." Rides to Binkley can be obtained at Y Court, Chase Cafeteria and the Nurses' Dorm at 9:30, 10:40 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

MONDAY

The Academic affairs Committee will meet in the Grail Room at 4 p.m.

Tennis Club meets on the varsity courts at 3:30.

WAA Council meeting at 5:15 in the Women's Gym.

Spash club meets at 6:45 in the pool.

Tickets go on sale for Norman Luboff Choir to UNC students and dates only. They will be on sale for the general public Nov. 13. Tickets may be bought at the GM Info Desk. UNC students 50 cents, dates $1., general public $2 and $3.

Interviews for Campus Chest Committees will be held Mond.-Thurs. from 3-5 p.m. upstairs in the Y Building. Positions are available on the Secretariat and on the Auction Drive, Publicity, and Carnival Committees.

ISB meeting at 7:15 p.m. upstairs in the Y.

The Student National Education Association will hold its second meeting at 7 p.m. in room 08 Peabody. Following a showing of the film, Palmour Street, Dr. Rose Butler Browne of Durham will discuss "Education and the Poverty Program." All SNEA members and others interested in joining are encouraged to attend. New memberships will be accepted at this meeting.

All people who have signed up for the GM Ping-Pong tournament please meet in Woollen Gym at 6:45.

The Toronto Exchange will meet in Roland Parker at 5 p.m. This meeting is compulsory for all exchange members.

The Hillel Foundation will have an opening session of the Bible Study Group from 9-10 p.m. in the Psychology Building, room 128, at Duke University. All are welcome.

TUESDAY

Folk dancing at 7:30 in the Presbyterian Student Center.

UNC Debate Team meets in 105 Caldwell at 6:30. Both varsity and novice debaters are expected.

Gamma Beta Phi Society meets at 6 p.m. in Chase Cafeteria for the monthly meeting. Attendance is urged.

Insurance
Estates
Annuities

"Time Is All It Costs To Compare"

William M. Buell

The Northwestern Mutual Insurance Company

121 W. Rosemary St.
P. O. Box 1314
Bus. 942-6966 Res. 968-6622

THIS WEEK IN THE OLD BOOK FEATURE CASE

A Library of Poetry and Literature

This seems a rather good collection to us, and we think it will appeal to English majors as well as to other lovers of good books.

Intimate Bookshop

119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill, North Carolina
open evenings

Belk Leggett Horton Co.

ONLY $1.00 PLUS 35c HANDLING CHARGE

3 DAYS ONLY

GET A HUGE 11x14 PHOTOGRAPH OF YOUR CHILD

Monday-Tuesday-Wednesday
November 8-9-10

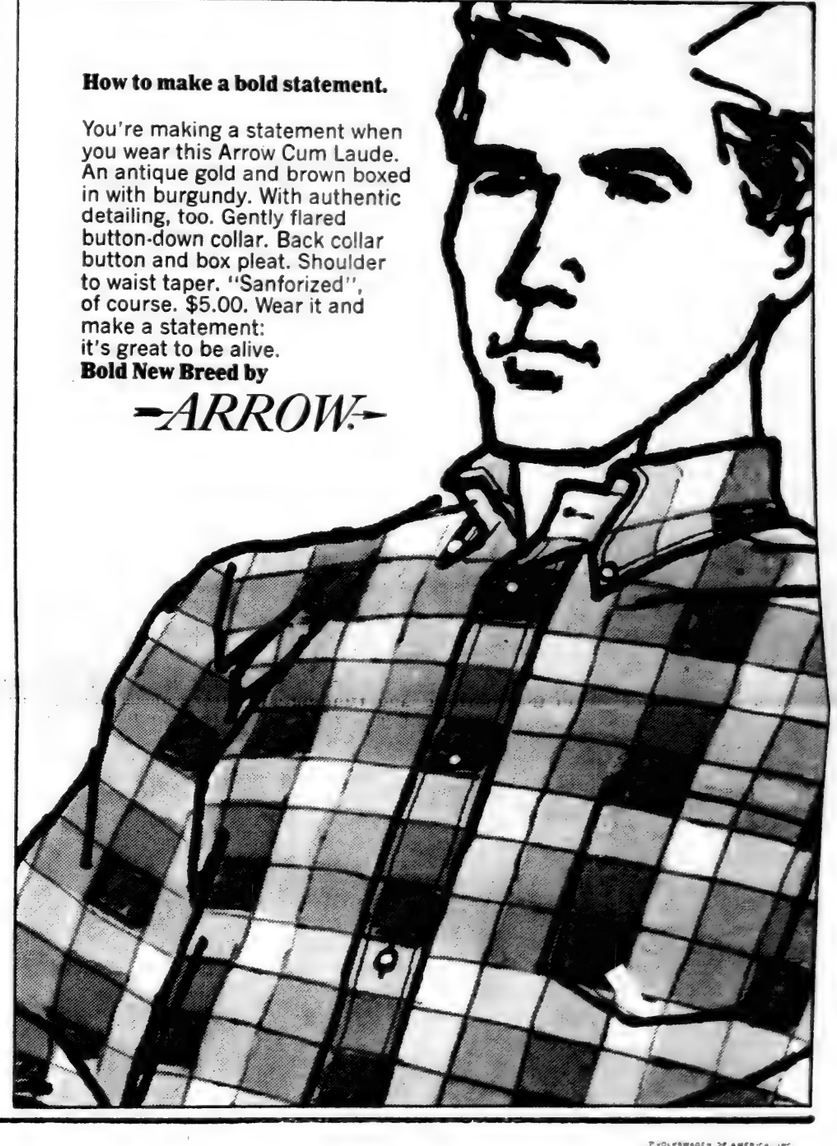
Hours: 10 A.M.-1 P.M.; 2 P.M.-5 P.M. Daily

- NO APPOINTMENT NEEDED
- SELECTION OF SEVERAL POSES
- FULL POSE PORTRAIT
- BABIES AND CHILDREN OF ALL AGES
- PORTRAIT DELIVERED AT STORE A FEW DAYS AFTER TAKEN
- SATISFACTION GUARANTEED
- GROUPS $1.00 PER CHILD

Chapel Hill, N. C.

How to make a bold statement.

You're making a statement when you wear this Arrow Cum Laude. An antique gold and brown boxed in with burgundy. With authentic detailing, too. Gently flared button-down collar. Back collar button and box pleat. Shoulder to waist taper. "Sanforized", of course. $5.00. Wear it and make a statement: it's great to be alive.
Bold New Breed by
ARROW



NETHERLANDS CHAMBER ORCHESTRA

Directed by SYMON GOLDBERG

Sponsored by GRAHAM MEMORIAL
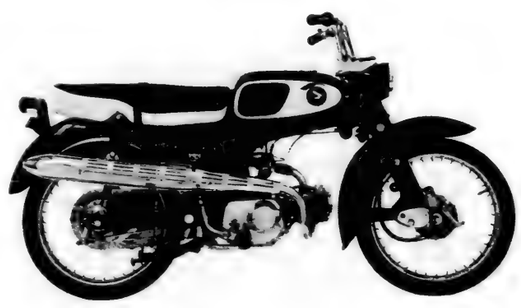
and
CHAPEL HILL CONCERT SERIES

TONIGHT, NOV. 7
8:00 P.M.
MEMORIAL HALL

50c UNC Tickets
$1.00 for Dates



Isn't riding better than walking? Isn't cycle parking easier than car parking? Would you rather get 15 miles per gallon, or would you prefer 14 times that much? Would you rather sleep 30 minutes later in the morning?

IF SO, TRY OUR
SPORTS 65 – $323.00

Travel - On Motorcycle Co.
"Headquarters for Adventure"
504 W. Franklin St.
Chapel Hill, N. C.

If this is a Station Wagon, this must be something else.

All right, students, here's today's lesson in Volkswagen logic.

Everyone knows that a real station wagon looks like a bus, right?

So everything else must be something else, right? Good. That's settled.

Now, the "something else" in question is the Volkswagen Squareback Sedan.

We call it the Squareback because that's what it is: a squared-off sedan that gives you lots of extra space that other sedans don't.

But the differences between the two are tremendous: The bus carries people (9) or things (170 cubic feet). (No other station wagon comes anywhere near it.)

The Squareback carries people or things, too. But not as many (5) and not as much (42.4 cubic feet).

Basically, the Squareback is a sedan. And basically a Volkswagen.

The engine is more powerful, but it's still in back and still air-cooled.

Every other well-known Volkswagen virtue is there, too. Plus a few of its own (like disc brakes) that just aren't well known yet.

The Squareback is just the car for people who want a Volkswagen with some extra room, extra power and nothing more.

But the bus is still the bus for people who want nothing less.

TRIANGLE VOLKSWAGEN

3823 Durham-Chapel Hill Blvd. Phone Durham 489-2371

VW DEALER

Also A Good Selection of Used VW's

"Triangle Area's Only Authorized VW Dealer"

Grad Counselor Help Girls With Problems

By LYNNE SIZEMORE
DTH Staff Writer

Who are they? Why are they here? What do they do?

These are some of the questions which may pop into one's mind when he hears the name — graduate counselor. The best way to find out who they are is by talking to them, learning their history and the history of the counseling system.

The system began back in the late 30's or early 40's. It was hoped that having a person on each hall, whom the girls might talk with about their personal problems, would give a sense of unity to the women of UNC. Carolina is such a whirlwind life, especially from the female point of view. Sororities offer unity to some, but what about the women who do not belong to one?

The counselors themselves are hand-picked. They may be graduates of UNC or come from other colleges and universities across the country. They are interviewed by the assistant dean of women, fill out applications and submit references.

Appointments are made about mid - April. The counselors are trained during the regular orientation period of the University. Meetings are held throughout the year to insure continuous training.

Presently there are 17 counselors to handle almost 2,000 women. This in coordination with the housemothers. As one can see this is not enough people to work with all the women at Carolina. The counselors are not asked to serve in an academic capacity, but to help the girls with personal problems, family problems, and to offer suggestions if the girls need additional outside help.

Each counselor is asked to keep the reception desk in the dorms from 6 p.m. to closing hours on the weekends and at various other times during the week. They keep the signing in and out slips, conduct hall meetings, act as adviser to the dormitory executive council and house council. No counselor may carry more than 3-4 or 2-3 of an academic load.

FATMA RAMAZANOGLU

Three graduate counselors were interviewed to learn of their backgrounds, their studies and their future plans. It is hoped that this will give the students at Carolina a better idea of what these women do and that their role is highly important to life at Carolina.

Having spent a year abroad, studying at the Sorbonne, L'Institute Britanique and L'Ecole D'Science Politique, Fontaine Belford is continuing her studies here.

During her education career, she has received a B.A. in English from Hollins College, a Master's in Religion from Yale and after three years will receive her Ph.D. in Comparative Literature from Carolina.

She has taught a year in Jordan and hopes to return to Europe or the Far East to teach. Her father is head of the Department of Religion at New York University.

Fontaine feels that teaching in the Far East is a challenge because women are just now receiving a status in society. She wants to be a part of the self - realization that is taking place within these relatively young countries. She feels that they are breaking out of their shells realizing that they are an individual country which can stand on its own feet.

She feels that the graduate counselor puts the girl in touch with a little of the outside world. Most of the counselors have been out of school for at least two years. They have a little taste of life and act as a mediator between campus life and the life of the world. She feels that all graduate counselors need to have had this experience.

News broadcasting is one of the aims of Ann Vick who is a graduate of Carolina after two years at Greensboro College. She is now working on her Master's in communications in hopes of working with the Voice of America or as a foreign correspondent.

She is at the moment taking courses in radio, television and journalism. After graduating from Carolina she taught history at a school in Bakersfield, Cal. Her family lives at Cape Kennedy, Fla.

Ann is a Freshman counselor. Her floor in West Cobb is composed entirely of Freshmen. She feels that she looks at things quite differently than they do, but is not so far removed in age that she can't remember what her Freshman year was like. She draws on her past experiences and is so thankful for them.

Ann feels that the college life at Carolina is highly competitive, something most new students at Carolina are not used to. She things that the graduate counselor acts as a tempering agent for the girls.

FONTAINE BELFORD

She would like to set up a college system for the girls so that they would not have to go out to eat for all their meals. A dining hall set up between dorms would give the girls a definite place to go with a relaxed atmosphere such as is found within the sorority house.

This graduate counselor is interested in people and in what they are doing. She feels that even though her time is not often her own, that if she were not always available to them, then they would not come and this would weaken the counseling system.

Istanbul, Turkey is the home of the third graduate counselor, Fatma Ramazanoglu. She is the daughter of a cotton plantation owner who is also a poet and philosopher.

Her family dates back to 1337 when they were one of the founders of a Turkish city-state. She feels, however, that America, and especially Chapel Hill, is her second home.

Fatma said that she would have had a more difficult time adjusting to the customs of the United States if it hadn't been for her natural exposure to this western culture. She has been taught by American professors living in Turkey and had seven years of English prior to her trip to the states. She is a transfer from Wingate and received a degree in psychology from UNC in 1962.

After graduation she returned to her country and taught English reading, and psychology at an academy for girls. Presently she is working on her Master's degree in philosophy and plans to return home in June to teach Turkish students in English.

Fatma said it was thrilling for her to transfer from one country to another and to learn that people were basically the same everywhere.

Being the sort of person that people want to talk to is the core of the graduate counseling program according to Fatma. She says that it takes a person who is a good listener to make a good graduate counselor. It takes not only training but a deep personal interest.

ONLY $1.00 PLUS 33¢ HANDLING CHARGE

GET A HUGE 11x14 PHOTOGRAPH OF YOUR CHILD

Mon.-Tues.-Wed.
Nov. 8-9-10

BELK-LEGGETT-HORTON
Chapel Hill, N. C.

WHAT A WEEKEND!
SEND ONE OF OUR CARDS
TO PUT THE CHERRY ON TOP
STUDIO CARDS
Ledbetter Pickard STATIONERS

Villa Tempesta
IS OPEN
Dinner 5:30 - 9:30
Will Reopen for Luncheon Soon.
CLOSED SUNDAYS

Eye-Lure by Deeya

When lips are glossed with only the palest beauty, the eyes are where the action is. Deeya stresses a natural, subdued make-up, soft lips, and the more seductive eye. Learn how to light good features, shadow bad ones. Use the white shadow stick to contour—utterly natural looking. Come in for a free cosmetic demonstration, no obligation.

Joseph's Hairstylists
CAROLINA BEAUTY SHOP

Deeya cosmetic studio
131 East Franklin St.
942-4058

CHASE DINING HALL
Open Daily
HOT SANDWICH COUNTER DAILY
THIS WEEK'S MENU
— Monday —
JUMBO HAMBURGERS ON BUN
Cole Slaw — F. F. Onion Rings
60¢
— Tuesday —
JUMBO HAMBURGER ON BUN
F F Potatoes—Carrot & Cabbage
60¢
— Wednesday —
2 RED DEVIL FRANKS
Chili — Cole Slaw
50¢
— Thursday —
HICKORY SMOKED BARBEQUE
On Bun — F. F. Potatoes — Relish Slaw
60¢
— Friday —
GRILLED MINUTE STEAK
On Toast — F. F. Potatoes
65¢
— Saturday —
HOT ROAST BEEF SANDWICH
Mashed Potatoes — Gravy
65¢
CLIP OUT AND SAVE

Harriss-Conners Chevrolet Inc.
TOPNOTCHERS

61 VW Stock No. 303-5A	Karmann Ghia	$1095
64 BUICK Stock No. 274-5A	4-dr. Sedan, straight drive, Grey, V-6.	$1595
60 CAD Stock No. COP-1A	Sport Coupe, Auto. trans. Radio-Heater. Beige.	$1495
62 CHEV Stock No. 109-5A	Biscayne, 4-dr., Straight 6, white.	$1195
63 CHEV Stock No. 173-5A	Sport Coupe, auto. trans. White & red. Radio-heater.	$1995
62 CORVAIR Stock No. 123-5B	Monza, radio, heater, 4-speed, 6 cylnd., white.	$795
63 CHEV Stock No. APO-1A	Super Sport, 4-speed, 300 h.p., radio-heater, blue.	$1995
61 FORD Stock No. 17-6A	Falcon Wagon. Radio-heater, auto. trans.	$695
61 BUICK Stock No. 273-5A	4-dr. Sedan. Auto. trans., radio-heater, beige.	$995
61 FORD Stock No. 242-5A	Galaxie, 4-dr., brown and beige. Radio-heater, str. 6.	$995

Harriss-Conners Chevrolet Inc.
"FOR ECONOMICAL TRANSPORTATION"
Chevrolet NO. 1 BUYS
[illegible] Blvd. PHONE [illegible]

Capezio

J. B. Robbins

Chapel Hill's Finest Shoe Salon

Yes, We Are Collegiate!

Left: The popular buckle skitter in Newport blue, black, bronze ore, red or burnished brown, 11.00. Above: Black and [illegible] 11.00

Below: The Ghillie Tie in red and black kid, 11.00

All the dash and excitement of an 8:00 class or a big-game weekend! These are fashion leaders on campus. CAPEZIO.

'Murals Have Busy Week

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

Intramurals had a busy week, with tag football games, volleyball games and residence hall wrestling all on the slate.

In Friday tag football, SAE Blue I defeated Chi Psi, 22-13. George Simpson, Frank Cathey and Jim Vanness all had touchdowns for SAE while John Harmon and Mike Taylor scored for Chi Psi.

Sig Ep scored 10 points in the first half to beat Pi Kappa Phi Drawfs, 27-13.

Law III used TD's by Sharp, Craver, Evans and Robbins to beat the Navy Op Tars, 32-10. Spencer scored for Navy.

DKE Blue downed the Beta Brewers as Edgerton, Shuford and Crudup all tallied. Betts had a touchdown for Beta.

On Thursday it was the Phi Kap Sig J-Birds over AZT Zooboys, 20-0 on touchdowns by Bill Deegan, Ed Hudson and Bill Pope. Sigma Nu B blanked DKE Red 18-0 with two touchdowns by Pat Taylor and one by John Bason.

Lambda Chi easily defeated St. A Blue, 26-0 on two scores by Young and a host of safeties. DU Blue I had a touchdown by John Brennan in its 7-2 squaker over ATO Blue II.

Chi Phi used a touchdown and extra point by Loring Swasey and a safety by Doug Polk to beat KA Blue I, 9-0. Chi Psi blasted DKE White in a continued game, 26-0. Kappa Psi won a forfeit over Delta Sig.

Volleyball

Friday volleyball results saw Maverick B White beat Ehringhaus B, 2-1 (2-13, 11-9, 6-; Everett Zins over Aycock Addaxs, 2-0 (12-6, 9-3); Everett Dirksons over Everett B.O.'s, 2-0 (9-4, 15-4); and Aycock Aardwolves over Everett Pits, 2-1 (7-8, 11-8, 13-11).

In Thursday volleyball, Delta Sig downed Chi Psi White, 2-0 (15-2, 15-1); PiKA Blue beat Pi Lambda, 2-0 (15-2, 15-2); Sigma Nu A beat Lambda Chi Gold, 2-1 (15-2, 6-8, 12-4); Phi Delt Blue defeated DU Blue 8, 2-0 (15-6, 15-1).

Pi Kap Phi Baena defeated SAE Blue I, 2-0 (11-9, 6-3); KA Red II beat Sigma Chi BIRDS, (10-6, 6-10, 11-5); TEP Tornados forfeited to Kappa Sig Scarlet and Delta Sig Rigs and St. A Blue I was a double forfeit.

Tigers Growling

(Continued from Page 1)

er that same foot put Carolina back out in front following a Clemson TD. This time it was a 26 yard field goal.

Talbott came back in the fourth quarter with a darting 35-yard scamper for UNC's final tally. He also added the point after.

The Carolina air arm was stopped for the most part yesterday. They only got 68 yards passing. But they got 203 yards on the ground against a strong Clemson line.

Pass defense wasn't very sharp as Clemson quarterback Tom Ray rewrote the ACC record book, picking up 342 yards via the airways. Clemson and Ray also set more than 12 other records.

The Tar Heel secondary came up with four important pass interceptions to help hold back the Tigers. The most impressive was Jack Davenport who returned one 51 yards to the Clemson 20.

The defensive line had a hard time rushing the Clemson quarterback and he had plenty of time to pass. But the line also held the supposedly strong Tiger running attack to 141 yards.

Hickey said, "It was a big one for us. We took on the ACC leader and beat them and that's a pretty good day's work anywhere."

It was Carolina's last home game of the season and the 38,500 fans seemed to think it was a real good ball game.

Clemson not only has a hard hitting and tough football team, but also have the number one band in the conference. Throughout the game they never stopped playing and the strains of "Hold That Tiger" brought many cheers, even from the UNC side.

The Marching Tar Heels, as Fauntleroy said, didn't have a very good day. During their halftime show it appeared that five or six of them got a little lost wandering around out there.

But it wasn't all bad. The music was pretty fair and the majorettes were . . . well, they were nice(?).

On to Notre Dame. And then hopefully we can get over to Durham.

Five Will Vie For Running Title

By BOB ORR
DTH Sports Writer

Who is the best cross country runner in the ACC?

The answer will have to come in the conference championship meet Nov. 15. Any one of five individual runners could conceivably win the title.

The three most likely candidates for the crown are Carolina's Jim Meade, Paul Rodgers of Duke and David Starnes of Maryland. They have perfromed best during the season.

Meade, UNC's senior captain, was second in the ACC last fall. He's won every meet but one this season. His only loss came at Maryland. Most people will concede that it was an off day for the Tar Heel star.

Rodgers defeated Starnes at Duke this fall. The win labeled the Blue Devil sophomore as the man to beat. Meade did just that, beating Rodgers by seconds at UNC. The Duke star owns all the cross country records at Duke and is definitely a threat to win.

Top Terp

Starnes moved into the number one position for Maryland by consistently beating teammate George Henry. Henry placed third in the championship meet last fall. Starnes's biggest victory came over Meade. However, the Terp sophomore described his loss to Rodgers as, "He just outran me."

South Carolina's Bob Crombie is the defending champion. He is a serious threat to win — is he is in shape. The Gamecock ace was soundly beaten in the opening meet with UNC. Whether he's ready to go 4 miles with Meade and company remains to be seen.

Maryland's George Henry must be considered an outside threat to the title. He's a good runner and if he's at his best he could make "Bride's maids" of the others.

Meade, Starnes, and Rodgers won their BIG race at home. The race for the conference championship should be all the more interesting since the meet will be held at Wake Forest — a neutral course is four miles long. It is composed largely of a grassy dirt surface over rolling hills. There are few if any large hills for the runners to climb.

The course is narrow in places resulting in difficult passing. With the large number of entrants, the leaders must get out in front early.

Strategy and mental attitude should play a big part in the meet. Meade and Rodgers will profit most from a very fast pace. They're the type that must run every one into the ground, then "out-gut them."

Crombie needs a relatively slow pace to win. He's a 4:06 miler with an excellent kick. Chances are Meade and Rodgers will never give him a chance to use it.

The two Maryland stars will probably try to set an even pace. If he's not too tired Starnes can out kick the others at the finish. A steady pace will benefit him most.

Maryland, the defending champion, is the favorite to win the team title. Besides two of the top runners they have considerable depth. However, don't count Duke and UNC out. Both have good teams.

Thre is no clear cut favorite for the individual title. The man who wins will be the one who runs the "smartest" race. All are in top shape and want to win. Four miles is a long way. It will take a supreme effort to be number one in the ACC.

Discussions Begin Today

Westminster Fellowship presents four simultaneous discussion groups beginning today and continuing the next two Sundays.

Each group will meet for an hour each week beginning at 6:30 p.m. at the Presbyterian Student Center. They are:

— "The New Morality," led by Thomas Miller.

— "The Leap of Faith," led by Clay Stalnaker.

— "The University and the Student," led by Harry Smith.

— "Comparative Beliefs," led by Marguarite Bou-Raad.

DECOUPAGE TALK

The Chapel Hill Art Guild will sponsor a talk and demonstration on decoupage by Mrs. Archie Davis on Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Faculty Lounge of the Planetarium.

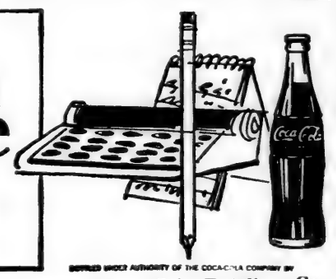
Imported
Pipes and Tobaccos

• Pouches • Humidors
• Accessories
VARLEY'S

Used
Children's Books
Back in our Old Book Corner there's a case of 'em priced so low that the youngsters can buy them themselves!
THE INTIMATE BOOKSHOP
119 East Franklin Street
Open Till 10 P.M.

Thomas P. Lloyd, Jr.
942-6863
942-2208
The BLUE CHIP Company since 1846 that's low in net cost.
•
Superior management, investments, and risk selection have made possible our history of a dividend to every policyholder for 119 years.
Connecticutt Mutual Life

things go better with Coke



DRINK Coca-Cola
BOTTLED UNDER AUTHORITY OF THE COCA-COLA COMPANY BY Durham Coca-Cola Bottling Co.

SHOWS AT: 1:15—3:15—5:15—7:15—9:15
NOW PLAYING
CAROLINA

FOR SALE: HONDA 150 CC. 1600 actual miles, like new. Blue — $475 cash. Call 942-2312.

FOR RENT: NEW 10 x 50 completely furnished, 2 bedroom mobile home. Available immediately. Telephone 942-3268 or 942-1749.

ROOM FOR RENT IMMEDIately rent: $30.00 per month. Location: 5 minutes from campus. Contact or phone Mrs. E. V. Leigh 204 Pritchard Ave., phone 942-5689.

1960 CHEVROLET IMPALA convertible. White body, white one year old top. Full power, radio & heater. Good price. Call 942-4554 after 6:30.

Town & Campus

Stamp of discernment:

the deft commixture . . .

of color stripings . . .

on superior oxford . . .

exclusively Gant

Hue-Striped Oxford: if you're a fancier of button-downs, here's a choice-luxuriant cotton oxford worth adding to your collection. In distinctive two-color stripings of rust/blue, gold/blue or red/olive. Like all Gant Shirts, Hue-Striped Oxford has élan in a gentlemanly manner. About $7 at discerning stores.

GANT
SHIRTMAKERS

(As advertised in The New Yorker and Esquire)

Julian's
Chapel Hill, N. C.

This is the only line we'll ever hand you:

Your name: _____

Sign on it now at your placement office for an interview with IBM December 1-2

Majors in Math, Science, Engineering, Liberal Arts and Business Administration—seniors and graduate students—we'll talk to you straight about career opportunities with IBM Data Processing.

We'll tell you about the vital role of IBM's Marketing Representative. How he goes into America's major businesses to help solve their most urgent management and control problems.

We'll spell out the challenges which face IBM's Systems Engineer. How he studies customer needs and computer requirements, and develops systems solutions to their problems.

We'll make sure you know about IBM's Computer Systems Science Training Program. (CSSTP is something every Math, Science and Engineering grad will want to hear about.)

In short, we'll level with you about all the exciting assignments in IBM's more than 200 offices from coast to coast—and about your opportunities to go places with the leader in America's fastest-growing major industry: information handling and control.

Be sure to visit your placement office for our brochures. Be sure to sign up for an interview. If for any reason you can't arrange an interview, visit your nearest IBM branch office.

Or drop us a line. (We'd enjoy getting one from you.) Write to: Manager of College Relations, IBM Corporate Headquarters, Armonk, N.Y. 10504.

Whatever your area of study, ask us how you might use your particular talents at IBM. Job opportunities at IBM lie in eight major career fields: (1) Marketing, (2) Systems Engineering, (3) Programing, (4) Field Engineering, (5) Research and Development, (6) Engineering, (7) Manufacturing, (8) Finance and Administration.
IBM is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

IBM
DATA PROCESSING DIVISION

Clemson QB Fell Half-Foot Short

By GENE RECTOR
DTH Asst. Sports Editor

Three - hundred and thirty-five yards was a half foot too short for Clemson quarterback Thomas Ray Saturday in Kenan Stadium.

An 18-yard completion to end Wayne Bell hit the Tar Heel one-foot line — but no more.

"I couldn't tell if Bell was over or not," said a tired Jim Hickey. "I guess it was 15 seconds before I realized he did not make it."

But Saturday was just an average day in the life of Jim Hickey.

"My heart was in my mouth all day," he said. "It stayed that way. But this wasn't the most exciting game of the year — just average I'd say. Things usually get real chummy in the last three minutes."

Hickey had praise for all concerned.

"We have played hard all year," he said. "Some people have been criticizing our efforts, but we hung in there today and played a great game.

"Sure Clemson threw some passes on us late in the game," Hickey added, "but the situation was not out of control. Besides, it's hard to get that good pass rush late in the game when you are protecting against the long ones.

"Their offense is much like ours," he said. "Their passer rolls out to the side and it's hard to get good pass rush.

"Contrary to statistics, we knew that Clemson could throw well. We worked on our defense all week and we defensed them pretty well.

"Frank Howard had a good game plan," he continued. "He tried to run over us at the start. Of course we expected that. If you can't stop that sort of thing you can't expect to stop the rest of their offense.

"Our defensive line played well. We stopped their running game."

Howard, who was mixed up in a hand-shaking squabble with Wake Forest coach Bill Tate last Saturday, made up for lost time this week.

"He shook hands with me left - handed and right - handed," said Hickey.

"Frank and I are real good coaching friends," said Hickey, "but in this business, you like to beat your friends too."

'Came Alive Late' —Frank Howard

By RON SHINN
DTH Sports Writer

Clemson Coach Frank Howard was far from his usual jovial self Saturday.

He brought his pack of Clemson Tigers to Chapel Hill as the undefeated king of the Atlantic Coast Conference gridiron wars, but they left with a blemish on their record.

He was a hurt man, to say the least, after his team had been beaten 17-13.

"We just didn't come alive until the last minute," said Howard immediately after the game. "North Carolina played a good game, but we came along just fine too."

The dejected Clemson boss demanded that everyone but reporters leave his open-air press conference. A well carved chunk to tobacco came out of his pocket.

"That Talbott is great," he said tearing off a chew. "He is the best that we've seen in a long time."

The questioning soon centered on his attempt for the two point conversion in the final period that was ruled no good because the receiver stepped out of bounds.

"We wanted to get the two points and then try to get into position for a field goal," he said as the tobacco juice began to ooze out of the corners of his mouth.

What did you think about the officials call on that play?

"It's hard to tell exactly what is happening in the opposite corner of the field," he replied, "so I'll have to see the films first. In that built a legend around its run-situation you have to rely on the judgment of the officials."

Clemson fans surrounded Howard at that point and congratulated him on the fine game. His sister and daughter were among the first.

He headed towards the dressing room but stopped to sign a small boy's program.

He did make one last comment concerning his much publicized hand shaking.

"If it means anything, and I don't think that it does, I shook hands with Coach Hickey after the game — both the left and right hands."

An insistent reporter asked about his remaining two games this season.

"We're playing pretty good ball, and we've got two more to go. They'll be tough ones, but we'll just have to come back."

Clark, Bunting Lead Attack

Frosh Cagers Win

By BILL ROLLINS
DTH Sports Writer

Bill Bunting and Rusty Clark scored 20 points each and dominated the rebounding yesterday as the Freshmen upset the Varsity 78-74 in the season's first scrimmage game.

Bob Lewis, high scorer in the game with 27 points, led an early surge which shot the Varsity into a 12-6 lead. But the Frosh battled back, with Clark tapping in a rebound and guard Gerald Tuttle scoring at the end of a fast break to put Coach Larry Brown's team into a 25-22 lead which it never lost and shared only once.

That was when Varsity guard Johnny Yokely sank two free throws to tie it up at 36 each just before halftime. At that point, however, Tuttle scored again, Bunting hit two free throws, and Dick Crubar stole a pass and drove in for a score which gave his team a 42-36 lead with the game half over.

Bunting led the offense in the opening 20 minutes for the freshmen, tallying 14 points largely because of his hustle around the basket. The 6-8 forward from New Bern drew six fouls and connected 10 straight times from the line to make the big difference in the early going.

Joe Brown, the 6-5 Valdese contribution to the Frosh, hit three straight baskets just after the start of the second period, and Jim Bostick of Atlanta added two more to run the Frosh lead to 10, 56-46.

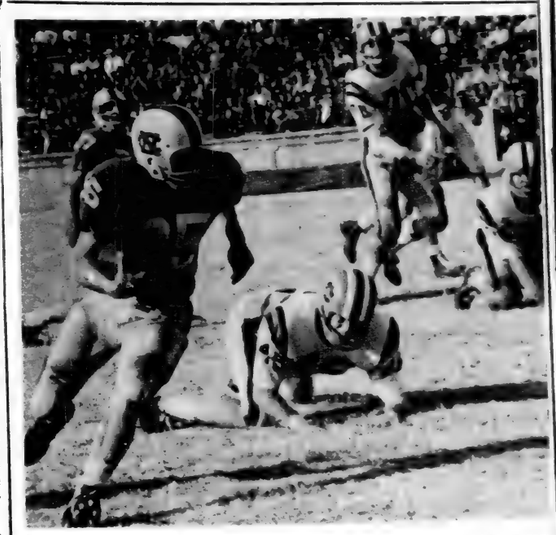
A three-pointer by Lewis started the upper-classmen on a rally, and Mark Mirken and Larry Miller contributed key goals to the surge which cut their deficit to 67-63.

But Clark went high on the boards to stick in seven of his team's last 11 points, and his goal with :21 left wrapped it up.

For the victorious Frosh, Brown followed Bunting and Clark in scoring with 11, Grubar had 10, Tuttle 8 and Bostick 7.

Following Lewis (27) for the Bennett (10), Miller (9), Mirken (8), Donnie Moe (4), and Smithwick (2.

VARSITY	36	38—74
FROSH	42	36—78



TACKLERS FALL by the wayside as Tar Heel back David Riggs returns a Clemson punt 67 yards for first UNC score.

Duke Student Tickets Go On Sale Tomorrow

Tickets go on sale for the Duke game at the sales window in Woollen Gym tomorrow at 8:30 a.m.

All student tickets cost $2.50. If you're planning on taking a date or your wife the price is $5.00.

The tickets won't be handed out in Woollen. Instead you'll be handed coupons enabling you to pick up tickets at the gate of Duke Stadium.

ONLY $1.00
GET A HUGE 11x14 PHOTOGRAPH OF YOUR CHILD
Mon.-Tues.-Wed.
Nov. 8-9-10
BELK-LEGGETT-HORTON
Chapel Hill, N. C.

OPPORTUNITIES IN SELLING
Free to College Students 25¢ to others
A new booklet, published by a non-profit educational foundation, tells which career fields lets you make the best use of all your college training, including liberal-arts courses—which career field offers 100,000 new jobs every year—which career field produces more corporation presidents than any other—what starting salary you can expect. Just send this ad with your name and address. This 24-page, career-guide booklet, "Opportunities in Selling," will be mailed to you. No cost or obligation. Address: Council on Opportunities, 550 Fifth Ave., New York 36, N. Y., UNC 11-1.

WANT ADS DO THE JOB!

EASTGATE BARBER SHOP
Welcomes All Freshmen And Transfer Students
For that extra fine finish on any hairstyle and for the extra benefits of a razor cut see us. We now have 3 BARBERS for quicker service.
Eastgate Shopping Center
(Next to Sears and Roebuck)

KING WILLIAM RESTAURANT
STEAKS CHICKEN SEAFOOD
"Choice Selection of Imported and Domestic Beverages"
All New and Modern, featuring
1½ Miles From Campus on 15-501 South
Seating Capacity of 300
• Spacious Parking
• Four Private dining rooms
• Tasteful background music
• Catering facilities
Open Seven Days a Week 8:00 A.M. 'til Midnight

Navy Whips UNC Booters 2-1 In 2nd Overtime Loss

ANAPOLIS, Md. — North Carolina's soccer team dropped its second game of the season, this time to defending national champion Navy, 2-1, in overtime here yesterday.

North Carolina's lone tally came on a goal by Danny Galves with an assist by John Loud.

The Tar Heels led the game after a goal by Danny Galves late in the second quarter.

Navy came back in the third quarter to tie it up after a penalty against UNC.

Navy controlled the ball in the overtime and managed one goal to thwart the upset minded Tar Heels. Their tally came after one minute in the first half of overtime.

"Bob Johnson, the goalie, played an exceptionally good game," Coach Marvin Allen said after the game. "On a whole the team did a good job."

Johnson managed 28 saves out of the 38 shots the Middies took.

The booters other loss was to nationally ranked Maryland last week, 1-0, in overtime.

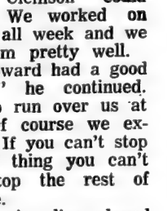
Navy's two points were only the sixth and seventh the defense minded booters have given up. They have scored 34 in earning a 7-2 record.

The soccer men encounter Trenton State next Thursday on home grounds.

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Shoe ribbons
6. Gounod opera
11. Past: archaic
12. Speak
13. Warbles
14. Stone pillar
15. Torrid
16. Skimpy: colloq.
17. Less difficult
20. Disembarked
22. Crust on a wound
26. Old times
27. False hair
29. Exist
30. Pant
32. Kind of sleeve
34. Lodged
36. Lament
39. Ribbed fabric
42. Prayer endings
43. Convex moldings
45. Scorch
46. Cleanse of soap
47. Facing a glacier
48. Packing boxes

DOWN
1. Flog
2. Exchange premium
3. Vies
4. Language course: abbr.
5. French pronoun
6. Railroad signal flare
7. Volatile oils
8. Indians
9. Vend
10. Three-spot
16. Golf club
18. Public notice
19. Stitch
20. Support
21. Axilla
23. Large kettles
24. Constellation
25. Peak: Scot.
28. Herd of whales
31. Tines
33. Earth as a goddess
35. Caravan stops
36. Game fish
37. Give forth
38. Less: music
40. Otherwise
41. Desserts
43. Grampus
44. By way of



Saturday's Answer

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X B
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Varsity
FRI.-SAT.-SUN.-MON.
Charlie, Sidney, Roger... The names and places didn't matter... only when!

"A RAGE TO LIVE"
SUZANNE PLESHETTE
BRADFORD DILLMAN
BEN GAZZARA as ROGER BANNON
RELEASED THRU UNITED ARTISTS

THE ORIGINAL DESERT® BOOT
Born on the South African Veldt, now worn around the world...
• British craftsmanship
• featherlight and flexible
• smart but rugged
Come in for a fitting. You'll "swear by them."
BY Clarks OF ENGLAND

LACOCK'S SHOE SHOP
143 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Demand more "big" in your big car. Insist on Dodge Polara!

Go ahead. Be rebellious. Demand more "big" in your big car. And get it at a price that won't take a big bite out of your budget.
By Dodge, you've got it. Polara! More "big." More "hot." More of everything others have not.
Ever see the likes of it? Neither has your next door neighbor or the doorman at the club or the parking attendant who can easily pick Polara from a lot full of "me, too" cars.
Polara's different, all right. Looks, drives, performs like the elegant piece of machinery it is. Covered by a 5-year/50,000-mile warranty.* Complete with all these items that used to cost extra: Outside mirror. Padded dash. Variable-speed electric windshield wipers and washers. Backup lights. Turn signals. Seat belts, two front and two rear.
Insist on Polara at your Dodge Dealer's. A beautiful new way to break old buying habits.
Enlist now in the Dodge Rebellion.

DODGE DIVISION CHRYSLER MOTORS CORPORATION '66 Dodge Polara
*HERE'S HOW DODGE'S 5-YEAR, 50,000-MILE ENGINE AND DRIVE TRAIN WARRANTY PROTECTS YOU. Chrysler Corporation confidently warrants all of the following vital parts of its 1966 cars for 5 years or 50,000 miles, whichever comes first, during which time any such parts that prove defective in material and workmanship will be repaired or replaced by Chrysler Motors Corporation Authorized Dealers place of business without charge: 426 cubic inch engine block, heads and internal parts, intake manifold, water pump, transmission case and internal parts, torque converter, drive shaft, universal joints, rear axle and differential and rear wheel bearings.
REQUIRED MAINTENANCE: The following maintenance services are required under the warranty—change engine oil every 3 months or 4,000 miles, whichever comes first, replace oil filter every second oil change, clean carburetor air filter every 6 months and replace it every 2 years, and every 6 months furnish evidence of this required service to a Chrysler Motors Corporation Authorized Dealer and request him to certify receipt of such evidence and your car's mileage. Simple enough for such important protection.
Join the Dodge Rebellion at your Dodge Dealer's.
WATCH "THE BOB HOPE CHRYSLER THEATRE" WEDNESDAY NIGHTS ON NBC TV. CHECK YOUR LOCAL LISTINGS

U.N.C. Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

VOTE

The Daily Tar Heel

TODAY

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Vol. 74, No. 48 CHAPEL HILL NORTH CAROLINA TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1965 Founded February 23, 1893.

Party Candidates, Platforms

STUDENT PARTY
JUNIOR CLASS

Mel Wright, candidate for president — Student Legislator from Morehead College. Past Athletic Director of Freshman Camp, member of Carolina symposium his freshman year and of class executive committee his sophomore year.

Tom Gauntlett, candidate for vice president — Member of the varsity basketball team.

Penny Comartie, candidate for secretary — Co-Chairman of the Campus Chest Carnival, member of class cabinet her freshman year, Co-Chairman of Sophomore Class Secretariat, member of Sophomore Class Executive Committee, past coordinator YW-YMCA Dormitory Speaker Program, past secretary of Campus Chest.

Peggy Paul, candidate for treasurer — Co-Chairman of YW-YMCA International Bazar, member of Carolina Symposium.

Jan Wuehrmann, candidate for social chairman — member of the elections Board.

Platform

1. Sponsor a student caravan to the Duke game on November 20, 1965.
2. Hold a Junior Class Merchants Day in early December, 1965 with a class dance following on Saturday evening.
3. Increase publicity of class activities through more comprehensive use of available news media and publication of a Junior Class Report.
4. Initiate a Winter Carnival Weekend for the entire campus early in February, 1966.
5. Sale of set-ups at Jubilee in spring of 1966 to increase class treasury.
6. Sponsor a speaker for benefit of entire campus community.
7. Reactivate the Inter-Class Council.
8. Develop a strong class committee system.
9. Plan a Class Weekend to be held in conjunction with an out-of-town football game in the fall of 1966.

STUDENT PARTY
SOPHOMORE CLASS

Bill Long, candidate for president. In high school — Class president. Member of student council, Beta Club, Varsity Club. Played football, basketball and track. Exchange student to South America. Two-time state champion in public speaking and first runner-up in National Championship Match. At UNC — Member Student Legislature and chairman of Rules Committee. Delta Upsilon fraternity.

Bob Neely, candidate for vice president. In high school — Class vice president. Played football and track. At UNC — Has served on several executive committees. Chi Psi fraternity.

Patti Fields, candidate for secretary. In high school — Class secretary, member of student Council. At UNC — Yack Beauty Court, Homecoming Court, Consolidated University Court. Miss Maverick, Miss Orange County. Semi - finalist and "most photogenic" in Miss North Carolina pageant. Orientation counselor.

Mike Rabb, candidate for treasurer. At UNC — has been active in executive branch of Student Government. NROTC. Delta Upsilon fraternity.

Betty Thompson, candidate for social chairman. In high school — Served on yearbook staff. At UNC — Alpha Delta Pi sorority.

Platform

1. Reactivation of the Interclass Council to coordinate activities of the classes.
2. Formation of a Winter Jubilee in connection with the Interclass Council to raise funds for the classes.
3. Usage of Carmichael Auditorium for Class functions.
4. Sponsoring of Sophomore socials.
5. Establishment of a class office and regular office hours for use of officers and committees.
6. Organization of sophomores throughout the campus by way of Area Coordinators in each living unit.
7. Organization by Area Coordinators of sophomore mixers between residence halls.
8. Examination of sophomores' opinions and ideas concerning deferred rush.
9. Establishment of a Sophomore publication on a regular basis.
10. Provide the University with a distinguishable class momento.

STUDENT PARTY
FRESHMAN CLASS

Ben White, candidate for president. In high School — Validictorian. Selected for English - Speaking Union for an International Fellowship. At Wellington College, London — varsity track and cross country. At UNC — Member freshman honors program, State Affairs Committee, wrestling team.

Buddy Farfour, candidate for vice president. In high school — Class vice president, Key Club, business manager for yearbook. At UNC — Member Communications Committee.

Deane Mullis, candidate for secretary. In high school — Editor yearbook. Holds three AAU Jr. Olympic records in swimming for North and South Carolina.

Lance Reaves, candidate for treasurer. In high school — President of Raleigh Junior Civic Council, president of honor society. Representative from six states to the Volkswagon Youth Exchange program in Germany. At UNC — Serves on Special Legislative Commission.

Phyllis Balding, candidate for social chairman. In high school — Editorial staff of school newspaper. Has worked as fashion model in almost all Southern states.

Platform

1. Reactivation of the Interclass Council.

A. This long neglected organization can provide vehicle for many joint projects and activities and in cooperation with the other three classes.

B. A giant entertainment program in Carmichael Auditorium co - sponsored by the freshman, sophomore, and junior classes. Such a performance would attract a large audience, and would be immensely profitable to all three classes.

UNIVERSITY PARTY

(Qualifications for the UP junior and sophomore candidates and the platform for the juniors were unavailable at press time.)

UNIVERSITY PARTY
JUNIOR CLASS

Steve Salmony, president
Bill Nuciarrone, vice president
Liz Scott, secretary
Susan Warren, treasurer
Becky Tatum, social chairman

UNIVERSITY PARTY
SOPHOMORE CLASS

Dick Young, president
Garland Gribble, vice president
Karen Gibbon, secretary
Elliott Dahan, treasurer
Liza Robb, social chairman

Of the many proposals that have been considered, we the University Party candidates for Sophomore Class Office, have only presented those which we consider most feasible. However, nothing can be attained without non-apathetic class officers and especially without a non-apathetic Sophomore Class. With these considerations in mind, we, the Sohpomore Class Candidates of the University Party, present to you, for your consideration and approval, our platform — our promise.

I. A Class Co - ordinating Committee will be formed to promote unity and better communication within the class. It will consist of one representative from each residence hall and one representative from each fraternity and sorority district. The purpose of this committee will be dual: (1) to carry the ideas and demands of the class members to the officers, and (2) to take information, bulletins, and announcements to the class members.

II. An Inter-Class Council. the logical extension of the separate Class Co-ordinating Committees, will be formed. This body will consist of the President of each class and an elected member from each Class Co-ordinating Committee. By combing class cotees in this Inter-Class Council, ordinating Committ- it will be easier to have bigger and better social functions through the resources of one or more classes. This Council will concern itself with other problems in addition to sponsoring social and fund-raising functions.

III. We propose to have a Merchant Sale, where our class will receive a percentage of the profits from sales from selected stores in the Chapel Hill area. The money from this project along with the money raised by our class last year.

IV. We propose to sponsor mid-week combo dances at the Naval Armory as another small fund-raising project.

V. Our class will sponsor or co-sponsor a big - name group at Carmichael Auditorium.

a. Price of tickets will be less than last year's Freshman fund-raising weekend, so that Sophomores and the student body will enjoy the event and raise money at the same time.

b Money that is made will be used either for supporting a free dance or similar concert in the spring.

VI. As a service to the student body, the Sophomore Class will sett plastic covers for the Yackety Yack.

FRESHMAN CLASS

Rusty Clark, candidate for President. Morehead Scholar, Class president, student body president and treasurer.

Aaron Clinard, candidate for Vice President. Twice Class President, served as Vice President of the N. C. Central District Student Councils, and was elected President of the State Student Councils. Worked last summer gained work for N. C. Representative Harold Cooley in Washington, D. C.

Ann Martin, is the candidate for secretary of the freshman class. President of her class and vice president of her student council, Honor Society member, secretary of her high school athletic association, Freshman cheerleader.

Tony Gore, candidate for treasurer of the freshman class. Served for four years on his high school student council, headed the finance committee of his high school, editor of the annual, and business manager of the high school newspaper. Page in the N. C. State Senate, President of the Eastern District MYF, and vice chairman of the State Teen - Dems Convention.

Sarah Mendelsohn, candidate for freshman Social Chairman. A member of her high school student council for four years, served as chairman of the social committee, President of her homeroom four straight years, member of the yearbook staff, handled the social affairs for the Anchor Club. At Carolina, a member of the Campus Affairs Committee.

I. Class Co-ordination Council
This council will be the key to class organization and participation. One representative from each dorm and one from each Residence College area will bring any ideas, suggestions, or complaints from members of the class to the bi-monthly meetings.

II. Public Relations Committee
This committee is established to correspond with Freshman Classes throughout the state and all over the country in order to exchange successful ideas and bring better programs to you.

III. Class Communication
A. Through the Daily Tar Heel, regular coverage of Freshman Class news.
B. Through a Freshman Newsletter, published whenever necessary to supplement the DTH in publicizing particularly important class functions and projects.

IV. Fund-Raising Projects
In order to function, the class must earn the necessary funds.

Light Turnout Is Expected In Class Elections Today

A FULL BULLETIN BOARD is a good indication that an election is near. In this case, the election—for class officers—is today.. —DTH Photo by Ernest Robl

By JOHN GREENBACKER
DTH Political Writer

Members of the freshman, sophomore and junior classes will select their class officers today in an election turnout which is expected to be light, according to Elections Board Chairman Alvin Tyndall.

"The Elections Board is expecting one of the smallest turnouts in the history of Student Government, "Tyndall said yesterday. "There has been no furor or excitement over the campaigns."

Polls will open at 7:30 a.m. and will close at 6 p.m.

Polling places will be lcoated in university residence halls for hall dwellers and at Graham Memorial, the Scuttlebutt, and Y-Court for students living off-campus.

For the first time since they were built, Ehringhaus, Craige and Morrison residence halls will have their ballot boxes located in the respective lobbies rather than in Y-Court.

Election results will be counted by hand tomorrow night rather than by computer process, according to Tyndall.

Computer tabulation was utilized for the first time on campus Oct. 5 during the campus radio referendum.

Tyndall said special ballots for computer tabulation were not ordered by the Board for the fall elections due to an oversight.

"We became so involved in the process of validating the presidential recall petition," he said, "we neglected our other duties."

Students will also vote on candidates for the Men's and Women's Councils and a constitutional amendment to make the position of student body secretary appointive.

Students voting in Men's Districts four and five for Men's Council vacancies will have to fill them by a write-in vote, as will coeds voting for Women's Council members in Women's district six.

The proposed constitutional amendment to allow the student body president to appoint future student body secretaries has caused a controversy in Student Government in recent days.

Current secretary Sherry O'Donnell opposed the amendment in a recent statement, defending her office as the highest and the only campus-wide elective position open to coeds.

She called on the student body to defeat the amendment

(Continued on Page 3)

WCC Trustees OK Policy

RALEIGH (AP) — Western Carolina College's Board of Trustees is the first to approve a speaker policy recommended by North Carolina's Speaker Ban Law Study Commission.

Paul A. Reid, Western Carolina president, notified Gov. Dan Moore of the action in a telegram yesterday.

The study commission report suggested the controversial speaker ban law be amended so boards of trustees could determine who should talk on the campuses of state - supported schools.

Included in the report was a recommended speaker policy to be adopted by all boards of trustees before the law is amended.

The policy requires trustees to take this stand:

"We are unalterably opposed to communism and any other form of government which has as its goal the destruction of our basic democratic institutions."

The trustees also were advised "to remember the appearance of Communists . . . should be infrequent and then only when it would clearly serve the advantage of education."

The trustees for the Consolidated University of North Carolina will meet in Raleigh Friday to discuss the speaker policy.

The WCC trustees' action came only a day after the state commander of the American Legion had urged veterans in Newton Grove to obtain pledges from their legislators to vote against modification of the speaker ban.

Maupin, Van Loon Will Lead Debate On NSA

"Should Student Government remain affiliated with the National Student Association" will be the topic of a Di-Phi Senate debate tonight at 7:30 on the third floor of New West.

Armistead Maupin will be lead speaker for the negative and Eric Van Loon will lead the affirmative in the debate.

Maupin, vice president of the Senior Class and a former student legislator, is an outspoken critic of the liberal stands NSA congresses have taken on national and international issues.

Van Loon is currently serving as Student Government NSA Coordinator and was a delegate to last summer's national NSA congress.

The congress last summer was criticized for supporting the Berkeley riots and attacking U. S. policies in Viet Nam.

UNC students voted to continue NSA affiliation last fall in a hotly contested referendum issue.

All interested persons are invited to attend and join in debate, and refreshments will be served after the meeting.

A total of 1,800 cards advertising the event have been sent out to students, according to Di-Phi President John Harrison.

Founded in 1795, the Senate is a joint session of the Dialectic and Philanthropic societies, oldest debate and literary societies in the nation.

'Tree' Opens Tonite At 8

There is still a semblance of summer in Chapel Hill in the form of a new play by Randolph Umberger. The world premier of Umberger's new play, "The Summer Tree," opens tonight at 8 p.m. in the Playmakers Theater.

Set in Raleigh in 1919, "The Summer Tree" is basically a story of growing up — of the innocent, unnamed feelings which appear to a young girl on the edge of maturity.

It is also the story of a hemmed-in father who wields a defense of zealousness agains his feelings of failure, and of a grandfather who believes the world is still a place in which to dream.

The young girl is played by Kristine Hoover of Virginia Beach, with Bill Smith of Raleigh as the father and Ben Jones of Chapel Hill as the grandfather.

Others in major roles include Anne Peacock, James Lenz, Pat Tone, Wendy Farer, Paul Baker, Jene Williams, and Sandy Linker.

Thomas Patterson, veteran Playmakers director, is staging the world premier. Settings are by Tommy Rezzuto, lighting by Russell B. Graves, and costumes by Patricia Erwin.

A graduate student in the Department of Dramatic Art at UNC, Umberger also has to his credit a dozen short stories and poems, a short play entitled "The Little Cloud," and a rambling 196-page dramatic piece called "The Mouse Trap." In 1963 his two-act play, "Father Apparent," was produced by the Triangle Theatre of Durham.

Reserved seat tickets for the seven - performance run of "The Summer Tree," which includes a Sunday matinee, are still available. They may be prchased at the Playmakers business office, 214 Abernethy Hall, at Ledbetter Pickard's in downtown Chapel Hill, and at the Playmakers Theatre boxoffice one hour prior to curtain time.

"THE SUMMER TREE"

String Quartet Presents Show In Music Series

The North Carolina String Quartet will present its first concert of the season tonight at 8 o'clock in Hill Hall.

The program, sponsored by the Department's of Music's Tuesday Evening Series, is open to the public without charge.

Jan Sibelius' Quartet in D Minor, subtitled "Voces Intimae," will be featured in a commemorative performance of the 100th anniversary of the great Finnish composer's birth. Quartets by Haydn and Mendelssohn will frame the Sibelius composition.

This is also a birthday for the North Carolina String Quartet, founded 15 years ago by UNC Music Professor Edgar Alden. The group presently consists of violinists Alden and Earl Wolslagle, violist Dorothy Alden and violoncellist Charles Griffith.

The four make their headquarters in Chapel Hill, though botn as individuals and as an ensemble, they perform, throughout a wide area.

Dr. Alden earned the degree Ph. D. Here. Earl Wolslagle, also a University alumnus, is now a member of the Duke University News Bureau staff. Newest quartet member. Charles Griffith, joined the University Department of Music as instructor in 1964.

Tar Heel Harriers Take Second

By BOB ORR
DTH Sports Writer

RALEIGH — Minus their star runner, Jim Meade, North Carolina's defending champions took second here in yesterday's North Carolina state cross country championship meet.

Duke took individual and team honors in the field of eight teams, scoring 37 points to Carolina's 57 (low man wins). The Blue Devils were paced by sophomore star Paul Rodgers. He ran the four mile N. C. State course in 20:52.4, winning easily over John Hodsdon of Wake Forest.

The loss for Carolina in the State Championships was the first in the last six years.

Sophomore Mike Williams ran the finest cross country race of his career. He came from 7th place at the two mile mark to finish fourth in the meet.

The Tar Heels enjoyed with one of their best team performances of the season. Meade, out with a sore throat, was sorely missed. But Bill Janowitz responded with another good race, finishing seventh.

Sophomore Fred McCall, and juniors Trip MacPherson and Charles Worley turned in good efforts to help pick up the slack left by Meade's absence.

The odds were heavily against Carolina when the meet started. The Tar Heels had beaten Duke once this season thanks to a tremendous winning performance by Meade. Yesterday, he was gone — and he was the difference between winning and losing.

Wake Forest finished third in the meet with 81 points.

Carolina's undefeated frosh closed out the season with an impressive win in the freshman division.

Led by their outstanding "threesome" of Jim Hotelling, Truett Goodwin, and Joe Lasich, the Carolina yearlings scored 38 to second place Duke's 58.

Individual honors went to Peter McManus of N. C. State with a record breaking time of 12:24.5 over the 2 1-2 mile course. Second place went to Eddie Stanberg of Duke.

Rounding out the first five for Carolina were Steve Williams and Bobby Lock. Both finished in the top 15 in a field of over 100 runners.

The varsity closes the season next Monday with the ACC championship meet at Wake Forest.

Whether Meade will run is the big questions mark for UNC. He's a definite threat to win if he's well with him the Tar Heels may give favored Maryland a run for the money.

VARSITY TOP TEN: 1. Rodgers (Duke), 2. Hodsdon (Wake Forest), 3. Guy (Duke), 4. Williams (UNC), 5. Woodcock (State), 6. Hudson (East Carolina), 7. Janowitz (UNC), 8. Little (Davidson), 9. Viehman (Wake Forest), 10. Robinson (Duke).

FRESHMAN TOP TEN: 1. McManus (State), 2. Stanberg (Duke), 3. Hotelling (UNC), 4. Goodwin (UNC), 5. Morse (Duke), 6. Smith (East Carolina), 7. Lasich (UNC), 8. Massenburg (NC College), 9. Talbott (Duke), 10. Clitherow (Wake Forest).

UP Headquarters Suffer Two Recent Break-Ins

University Party Headquarters in Davie Hall has been broken into twice in the past week according to George Ingram, U.P. floorleader.

Ingram and Phil Kirstein, a member of the U.P. executive committee, reported that $60 worth of campaign posters were taken early last week.

They said the headquarters, which consists of three rooms of the second floor was broken into again over the weekend and all committee appointments, memberships lists and all files since September were taken.

Other files were thrown about the room and the words "How was your summer buddy?" was written in red paint on the wall. There were also other splotches of paint.

According to Ingram the door to the head quarters was not forced open.

"They either had a key or picked the lock," Kirstein said.

Ingram said they reported the break-ins to Campus Police Chief Arthur Beaumont today.

"We weren't overly concerned about the posters, but the loss of the files is a serious one," Kirstein said.

Frank Hodges, SP chairman, reported that SP headquarters also had been broken into about two weeks ago. A rug was later stolen.

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of the Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. Letters and columns, covering a wide range of views, reflect the personal opinions of their authors.
ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

"Doing Our Duty"

If anyone was surprised when Student Legislature dropped campus radio out the fourth floor window of New East a few weeks ago, he shouldn't have been.

Last spring the bill that would have set campus radio on its way to operation was hemmed in committee until it finally died a slow "death by verbosity" on the floor.

Some of our fine and conscientious student representatives said they were worried about spending the money campus radio would require. "We need to know how our constitutents feel. Before we authorize this expenditure we have to be sure they really want it," they said. "We want a referendum."

That sounds noble and worthy. But close observers of the phenonenon of Student Legislature were skeptical of the sincerity of that plea of "let the people speak."

The people did speak—4,400 of them—and more than two-thirds of them said "yes." That early skepticism was justified when the legislators, two and a half weeks after the election, neatly disregarded the vote and did what they had intended to do from the start.

Some argued that it was unfair to let those 3,301 who voted for the proposal in the campus-wide election speak for the rest of the students.

But was it unfair to let 2,966 students decide last fall that UNC would continue its affiliation with the National Student Association? Was it unfair to let 2,875 students speak for all the others in selected a president of the student body last spring?

To argue that the turn-out in the refendum was too insignificant for the busy legislators to bother themselves with approaches the ultimate in hypocrisy. Privately, they admit the number of voters and the affirmative three-to-one majority were nothing short of fantastic. Publicly, they try to discount them.

The Campus Radio Committee is a bunch of dedicated die-hards who are not going to give the project up until every possible resource has been used. They have started an initiative petition which, when it gets about 1,200 signatures, will be submitted to the president of the student body. When he determines the petition is "in good order," according to the constitution, he will direct the Elections Board "to conduct an election on this bill in not less than six, nor more than fifteen days after he shall have received the petition and bill . . . A majority of the votes cast in the election shall be sufficient to pass the bill."

Pardon us if we choke a bit whenever we hear any of the 19 legislators who voted campus radio out talk about "representing the wishes of our constituents" in the future. Indeed, that is their job, and for the enlightenment of those constitituents whose representatives voted against radio, we offer this information concerning district, name and referendum vote in that district:

Dwight Allen, SP, MD VII, Aycock, Graham, Stacy, Everett, Lewis—384 for, 127 against.

Ellen Allen, UP, WD III, Spencer, Smith, Whitehead—162 for, 32 against.

Hugh Blackwell, SP, MD II, town students—70 for, 74 against.

Jim Brame, SP, MD II, town students—70 for 74 against.

Kathy Cauble, UP, WD I, sororities, Victory Village, town—49 for, 28 against.

Clark Crampton, UP, MD III, town students—88 for 44 against.

Miriam Dorsey, SP, WD V, East and West Cobb—126 for, 28 against.

Gail Feik, SP, WD VI, Winston—54 for, 20 against.

Sandy Hobgood, SP, MD VIII, Joyner, Alexander, Connor—203 for, 88 against.

Don Johnson, SP, MD XI, Craige—313 for, 84 against.

Steve Jolly, SP, MD VI, Grimes, Manly, Ruffin, Mangum—269 for, 72 against.

Bryan McCoy, SP, MD XII, Morrison—524 for, 139 against.

Don McPhaul, UP, MD VII, Aycock, Graham, Stacy, Everett, Lewis—384 for, 127 against.

Jim Robinson, UP, MD VI, Graimes, Manly, Ruffin, Mangum—269 for, 72 against.

Dave Rowe, UP, MD IV, town students—88 for, 44 against.

Alexa Smith, SP, WD I, sororities, Victory Village, town—49 for, 28 against.

Leon Soloman, UP, MD III, town students—88 for, 44 against.

Charlie Morgan, SP, MD IX, Avery, Parker, Teague—229 for, 95 against.

In every instance, save two, these legislators voted against the proposal which voters in their district soundly endorsed.

If we had voted for radio in the referendum and our legislator is one of these, we would be inclined to provide him with a little "feedback" and let him know that once he is elected he should not plug his ears and close his eyes.

The thoughts of yet another petition are not particularly tasteful, but it is the price of dealing with a group of individuals who play by the rules—whenever it suits them.

The Daily Tar Heel

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all ap news dispatches.

"Are You Gonna Bother To Vote Today?"

David Rothman

Speed Traps In Carolina

By DAVID ROTHMAN

Gov. Dan Moore recently asked the State Highway Patrol to see if policemen here pass out too many tickets to Florida-bound tourists.

The Automobile Legal Association, a Boston-based organization, had charged that eight "speed traps" are operating in Eastern North Carolina.

All this is public knowledge, but what isn't known to most people is the secret talk Moore held with the association's representatives.

I didn't attend, but I've got a good idea of the Governor's remarks:

". . . Of course we notice an alarming increase in law enforcement . . .

". . . I know it's disturbing that the police are catching more motorists . . .

". . . Certainly . . . It is totally unfair for us to request anybody to respect the speed limits . . . but I simply can't go along with your suggestion that we remove the radar sets from our patrol cars . . .

". . . You man we oughta put a governor on the motors of all police vehicles so they couldn't go over the limit to catch speeders . . . Yes, I agree . . . it's fine to be consistent . . . However, . . .

. . . That's one approach . . . We could send any patrolman who gives out too many tickets back to driver training school . . .

". . . Yes, many of younger patrolmen are highly irresponsible . . . If they continue giving out as many tickets as they have been, we'll send 'em to juvenile court . . .

". . . No, I don't think we should automatically take away the driving licenses of highway patrolmen who bag too many motorists . . . Doing this would deprive them of their livlihood . . .

". . . But you've gotta remember that many patrolmen haven't the time to show up in court . . . Why don't we let them pay their fines by mail? . . .

". . . I know those big patrol cars are too powerful for immature highway patrolmen . . . Okay . . . In the future we'll buy Volkswagens. . .

". . . I fully realize it gives the police an unfair advantage and costs lots of tax money . . . We'll remove the radios from the Patrol cars as soon as possible . . .

". . . Yes, sirens are also an unnecessary expense . . . I guess there's no reason in the world why the police can't attract the motorists' attention with hand signals . . .

". . . Of course the period of twilight is the most dangerous time to be on the highway . . . That's when they give out the most tickets . . .

". . . I know they are getting too powerful for the good of the state . . . That's right . . . The average citizen is 100 per cent against this terrorism . . . I'll recommend that the HUAC immediately investigate these charges of 'extreme police activity' . . .

. . . Certainly . . . We have good reason to suspect that many police forces are operating under cover and calling themselves hunting lodges or improvement associations . . .

" . . . I am indeed suspicious of any group which conceals its activities . . . The cops will probably take the Fifth Amendment, but we'll at least try and see if they'll reveal the locations of those speed traps . . ."

Letters To The Editor

Social Fraternities Are Here To Stay

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

After reading the Nov. 5 article in the DTH "Residence Colleges Pose Threat" in which Dean Long so expertly expressed his views on the social fraternities here at Carolina, I, as a fraternity member, feel compelled to express my criticism.

I cannot believe the logic I read was quoted from a dean of any school, much less the school at which I decided to persue my highest education. Dean Long seemed to base his entire argument on the fact that social fraternities are on the decline, or more aptly as he expressed it himself, "I don't know if the social fraternity will make it." Dean Long said that in 1957 UNC boasted an enrollment of 6,000, and 25% of its students were affiliated with one of 24 social fraternities. He further went on to say that currently with more than twice that enrollment, fraternities comprise only 19% of the enrollment with one less fraternity.

After careful thought on this matter and with due respect to Dean Long, I would like to ask out of which comic book he produced such unsound and erroneous logic? I completely agree with the facts as Dean Long presented them, but I do not think that these mere facts should be worded in such a manner as to cause misinterpretation of the entire fraternity system.

The impression that one would obtain after having read the article is that fraternities are declining gradually in size when in actuality this concept is completely contrary to fact. Twenty-five per cent of the 6,000 students of 1957 would result in 1,500 students being in fraternities. Nineteen per cent of the approximately 12,000 students this year would result in 2,200 of the students in fraternities. Is it not true then that there are more students in fraternities currently then in 1957, indeed, some 700 more students. Suppose we divide this figure by 24 (the number of fraternities in 1957,) this would mean an average addition of 25 members to each fraternity. It is rather difficult for me to understand why fraternities are being "threatened."

As for "Brooks Brother bigotry," should it be "Arrow bigotry?"

I quote Dean Long as having said, "I very much want to see fraternities make it." . . . Is this really true?

Gary Hankins
Sigma Nu

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Residence Colleges Pose Threat?

Obviously poor-informed and misdirected parties have made the interesting observation that the Greeks' long-established institutions are being threatened by the thriving Residence College System. The fraternities at the University of North Carolina hardly consider the success of the Residence College System a threat since they have endoresed and strongly promoted these newly founded institutions. Last fall at the Reidsville Conference on the Residence College System the participating students, a large majority of whom were members of fraternities helped to develop and gave their whole-hearted support for the establishment of these institutions.

Thursday evening Student Legislature passed three bills whose total of $3650.00 is to be distributed among three Residence Colleges: Scott, Morrison and Morehead. The bulk of each of these allotments will be spent for social functions. Fraternity members in Student Legislature voted unanimously for these bills.

Dean Long states, "fraternities have almost got an inferiority complex . . ." As I review the most recent Social Fraternity Scholastic Averages and Rankings for the school year of 1964-65, I find that the all-fraternity average was higher than the all-men's average. Inferior? Going further, it seems that the majority of campus leaders are fraternity members. Inferior? With so many students participating in rush each year, it is quite evident that the Greeks are here to stay, and, may I add, in fine standing.

For many years fraternities have housed and fed many hundreds of students. The University would not be able to provide for these students if they were to suddenly request housing. I am sure that Dean Long would agree that fraternities are a great aid to student housing.

Fraternities as institutions are able to accept but a small quota of those going through rush each year, and thus, those who are not accepted are black-balled. In most instances, those back-balled are refused because of the fraternities' limited facilities to house, feed and entertain them. Dean Long's feeling that, "If fraternities keep up their black-balling and Brooks Brothers bigotry, I don't care if they don't succeed" is misdirected and hardly justifiable. Any reference to Brooks Brothers or their faithful patrons is more properly directed toward individual taste than to fraternities.

Fair consideration is due to fraternities by Dean Long and the faculty. Our position is well-established and will remain so. As to Residence Colleges, fraternities are one hundred per cent for their success.

David W. Goodnow
Chi Phi

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

The article by Fred Thomas surprised us so much that we feel it a necessity to write this letter. Surely Dean Long or Fred Thomas doesn't expect anyone to believe the 'information' published in the Friday, Nov. 5, Daily Tar Heel concerning fraternities? In the first place anyone who has had an elementary math course in high school would have sense enough to know that if the number of members of the social fraternities at UNC stayed the same while the enrollment increased the percentage of fraternity members would naturally drop. The fact is 25% of 6,000 students is 1,500; while 10% of 12,000 students is 2,280. This shows clearly, for the benefit of Fred Thomas, that there has not been "a decline in the strength of the fraternity system," but a rise of 52% or 780 student affiliates.

"The Residence College System was never intended to threaten fraternities." Dean Long, they never will so long as administration allows them to function under their own government. This past year there were no ill effects felt by any fraternity because of the new Residence College idea as Thomas would believe people believe. The only effects felt have been because of restrictions imposed by the I.F.C. or the faculty. The one fraternity that has dissolved since we have been here did so not because of the Dorm Revolution but because it could not survive the strong competition among the other fraternities.

If fraternities have an inferiority complex we would certainly like to see a group with a superiority complex. Surely Dean Long isn't serious. If he is may he never awake from his deam world . . . The shock may shake the snug nest in South Building basement.

There is a term we would like to Dean Long to define, "Brooks Brothers bigotry." If this infers what we think it does, Dean Long is not only in a dream world, he is a long way out of touch with a system in which he used to be an active member and one with which he is supposed to be acting in an advisory capacity. This so called "B B b" is a method used not only by fraternities, to tell if a rushee is aware that other people are looking at him, but also by the numerous companies interviewing on the campus. (I guess Dean Long doesn't "care if they don't succeed" either.) In the fraternity with which we have been associated, and I know in many others, clothes, as well as looks, grades, and background is considered only slightly as much as one's personality and one's ability to impress favorably during rush. I hope Dean Long or Fred Thomas wouldn't have the reader believe that anyone dressing according to style will be passed by every house on campus. If this were true 90% of the men at Carolina would be in fraternities. On the other hand, fraternities do not black-ball a person strictly on his nonconforming dress. If you don't believe this, take a look in big or little fraternity court some Saturday after a football game.

We would like for Dean Long to be more specific about "predominately sophomorish organization." We don't know of any fraternities that allow themselves to be run by last year's pledges. It is true that many upperclassmen move out of the house into apartments, but they do so for various reasons.

Again we know of no fraternity that has a president or vice president in his second year. We think that if the Dean of Men would spend less time speculating and more time investigating it would not only broaden but also enlighten his thoughts.

Finally we find Dean Long's opinions highly contradictory; "I believe in local autonomy for every fraternity — freedom from the national office and freedom from the university." But he says, "Also, if fraternity men consistently performed higher than the rest of the campus men, they would have no problem with the faculty." Also, he predicted that the fraternity of the future will have to put more emphasis than ever before on academics. He cited two reasons for this: (1) The matter of appeasing the faculty and administration, (2) The fact that every year "students are of a higher intellectual potential . . . Many on the faculty wonder if such a selective group is in place at an institution of public education."

Facts:

You will find even with "joy-rides," all night sessions, parties every weekend, work details to keep the "sub-standard" house in repair, rush, pledge training and chapter meetings that the overall fraternity grade average is higher than the overall men's average.

Also even with "sub-standard housing," "Brooks Brothers bigotry," "Mickey Mouse aspects" and Residence College threat, fraternity membership has increased by 52%.

It is also a fact that even with their numerous other responsibilities fraternity men have in the past and still do hold the majority of student government and activities offices. This doesn't seem to suggest that they are hiding from responsibility.

Fraternities are not dying.

Ernie McDonald
Bob Shipman
Bill Honan
Haynes Willingham
Carl Ferguson
KA House

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel welcomes letters to the editor on any subject, particularly on matters of local or University interest.

Today's Meetings And Events On Campus

TODAY

YMCA meets at 7 p.m. in Y-Court.

Student Physical Therapy Club meets at 6 p.m. in the Clinic Auditorium. Dr. Brashear and Dr. Farmer of the hospital will speak.

The Carolina Symposium executive Committee and all committee chairmen will meet in Roland Parker I at 6:30 p.m.

Student Committee on Honors meets at 4 p.m. in GM. Check the board for location.

SSL Delegates have a compulsory meeting at 4 p.m. in Roland Parker I.

Folk dancing at 7:30 in the Presbyterian Student Center.

UNC Debate Team meets in 105 Caldwell at 6:30. Both varsity and novice debaters are expected.

Gamma Beta Phi Society meets at 6 p.m. in Chase Cafeteria for the monthly meeting. Attendance is urged.

Volleyball intramurals are in the Women's Gym at 5, 7, and 8 p.m.

Hockey Club meets in the Women's Gym at 3:30 p.m.

Meeting of the Rules Committee at 3:30 p.m. in Roland Parker III.

Armistead Maupin vs. Eric Van Loon on the topic "Should the University of North Carolina Get Our of NSA?" This burning issue will be the topic of debate at 7:30 p.m. in Di Hall, 3rd floor, New West. All are invited to attend and comment. Refreshments will be served.

LOST AND FOUND

Found: A pair of men's heavy black framed glasses on Fetzer Field in the mud a week ago. Can be picked up at GM Information desk.

LOST: A Cross and Century ball point pen in the men's locker room in Woollen Gym. Has the initials L.F.D. The pen has sentimental value, a reward is offered. Contact Leonard Doucette at R.F.D. 1, Box 84, Durham, or call Chapel Hill 942-1535 and ask for Mike Chappell.

Lost: A light brown straw bag in the Pine Room Tuesday night. It contains all papers and identification. Joyce Watkins, 321 Winston.

Lost: Brown Buxton men's wallet with identification papers. Return to GM.

Lost: A wallet, a navy blue beret, and a scarab bracelet at the game. A reward is offered. Call Jim Richbourg, 968-9176.

Election

(Continued from Page 1)

and preserve the "voice" of the coed in Student Government.

In a statement issued yesterday, Student Party Legislative Floor Leader Don Wilson urged the amendment's passage and cited prominent past and present student leaders who support the change.

Wilson said the secretary's job is a non-policy making position which should be filled by the most qualified coed, not the most attractive candidate.

Tyndall has called on all volunteer vote-counters to come to the second floor of Graham Memorial tonight at 6:30 and help tabulate the results.

VOTE

for

FRESHMAN CLASS

BEN WHITE ..... President

BUDDY FARFOUR ..... Vice President

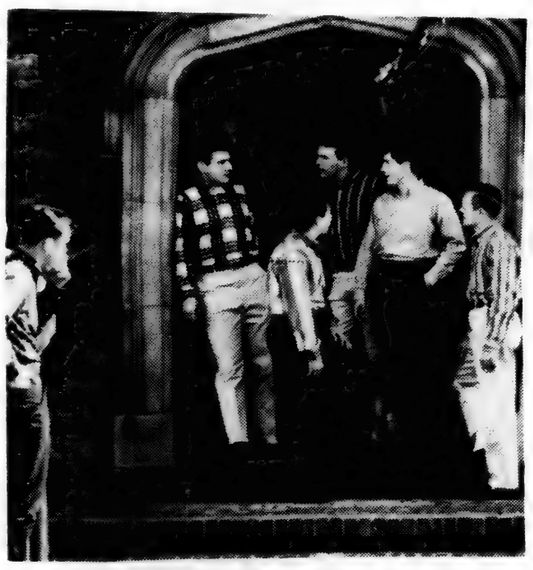
DEANE MULLIS ..... Secretary

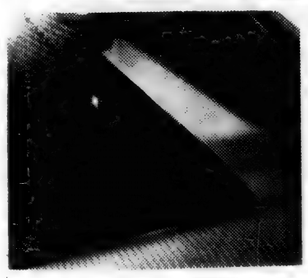
LANCE REAVES ..... Treasurer

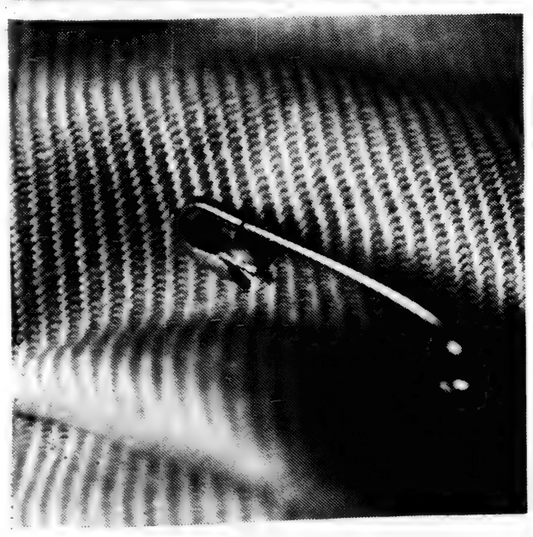
PHYLLIS BALDING .. Social Chairman

IDENTITY, UNITY, PARTICIPATION

To find out what others will do next year...







look at Enro today

(shirtbuilders)

FASHION LEADERSHIP
AT FINER CAMPUS STORES EVERYWHERE
FROM AMERICA'S FAMOUS SHIRTBUILDERS

THE HUB
of CHAPEL HILL

FOR RENT: UNFURNISHED apartment (single unit and one year old) for couple or mature individual. Near campus. Call 942-4291 after 5:30 p.m.

FOR SALE — ELECTRIC guitar. Practically new. Have been drafted — will sacrifice. Call 942-6855.

1960 CHEVROLET IMPALA convertible. White body, white one year old top. Full power, radio & heater. Good price. Call 942-4554 after 6:30.

COLLEGE MEN

Part-time work available for 3 men who have 20-25 hours free per week. Must have a car and neat appearance. Earn $40 per week.

For interview call 968-4446 Thursday, Nov. 11 between 1:00 - 5:00 p.m.

Ask for Mr. Faulkner

Clip Me Out

YOUR MENU FOR THE WEEK OF NOVEMBER 9

Zoom Zoom

Luncheon Specialty

99¢

— TUESDAY —
Pepper Steak
Two Vegetables
Salad, Bread

— WEDNESDAY —
Baked Chicken
with Sauce
Two Vegetables
Salad, Bread

— THURSDAY —
Barbecue Rolls
Two Vegetables
Salad, Bread

— FRIDAY —
Choice
Flounder
or Barbecue Ribs

WEDNESDAY NIGHT
½ Price Pizza
7:30 - 8:30

THURSDAY NIGHT
Spanish Hamburger
All You Can Eat
$1.25

CLOSED MONDAY
104 W. Franklin St.

Clip Me Out

Save Money for Christmas

Without starving the old grey cells.
Discover the Treasure on our 29c Shelf
The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Open Till 10 P.M.

SHOW BIZ QUIZ

1. This performer is:
   A. "Satchmo"
   B. "The King of Jazz"
   C. Louis Armstrong
2. He'll perform at UNC
   A. On Beat Dook Saturday, Nov. 21
   B. At 8 p.m.
   C. In Carmichael Auditorium
3. UNC Students had better:
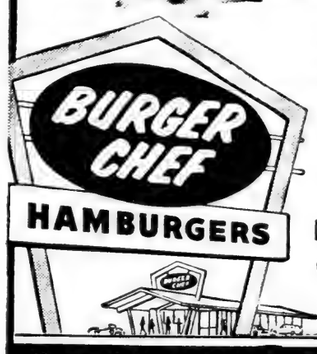
   A. Yell: "Don't give a damn for Dook University" until they are hoarse.
   B. Forget that Saturday night combo — this is a once-in-a-life-time opportunity.
   C. GET TICKETS EARLY! This one will be a sure sell-out.

All of the answers are correct, of course. Tickets go on sale at G.M. TOMORROW. Only $1.00 for students. But get your tickets early. . . . Get your tickets early.

BROUGHT TO YOU BY GRAHAM MEMORIAL

Every Tuesday
LADIES DAY
$1.50
Tar Heel Car Wash
426 E. Main St.

people on the go...
go BURGER CHEF



College budgets and Burger Chef belong together. Burger Chef . . . where 50¢ will buy a complete meal: open-flame broiled hamburger, a rich milk shake, and a heap of crisp golden fries.

337 N. ROSEMARY ST.
OPEN 10 A.M. - 11 P.M.

Franchised exclusively by Burger Chef Systems Indianapolis

Home of the World's Greatest 15¢ Hamburger!

BELK-LEGGETT-HORTON

La Marick Beauty Salons

Phone 968-4467

Holiday Beauty begins here—

LA MARICK FAMOUS PERMANENTS

Imperial Lanolin, 27.50 ..... Now 13.00

Grey & White Elegant, 25.00 ..... Now 10.00

La Fan Cold Wave, 12.50 ..... Now 7.00*

Each Wave Priced Complete

*Monday, Tuesday & Wednesday Only.

HAIR COLORING

Bleach & Toners $20.00

Frostings or Tipping ..... $12.50 up

Use Your Belk-Leggett-Horton Charge Account

Open 'til 8:30 P.M. Friday

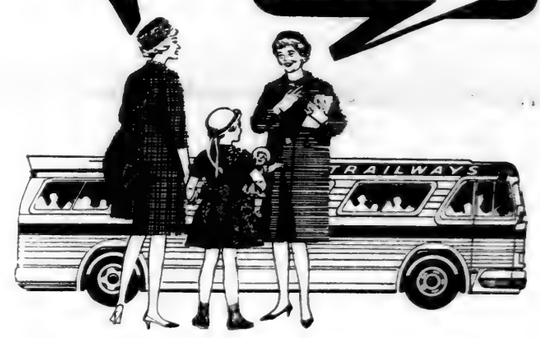
PHONE 968-4467

DON'T MISS
The Norman Luboff Choir
MEMORIAL HALL TUESDAY, NOV. 16
A G.M. Presentation

Tickets for UNC Students go on sale Nov. 8—50c. dates $1
General Public Tickets go on sale Nov. 13 — $2 and $3
Tickets on sale atG.M. Information Desk

Norfolk?
Charlotte?
Asheville?
Richmond?
Gr'nsboro?

Trailways has Many Trips daily to these cities



DISCOVER AMERICA

take Trailways 99 day circle tour to any destination for $99. Reduced family plan round trips, and Mid-week excursion fares. Ask about them today.

From CHAPEL HILL	1-way
NEW YORK (Thru Express—reserve the seat of your choice)	$17.05
MEMPHIS (Thru (no change) via Chattanooga)	$22.80
CINCINNATI (Only 1 change enroute)	$16.05
RALEIGH (11 Convenient trips daily)	$ .95

CHARTERS / TOURS / PACKAGE EXPRESS
UNION BUS TERMINAL
311 West Franklin Phone 942-3356

TRAILWAYS.
Easiest travel on earth

VOTE
University Party

RUSTY CLARK
President

AARON CLINARD
V. President

TONY GORE
Treasurer

ANN MARTIN
Secretary

SARAH MENDELSON
Social Chairman

FRESHMAN CLASS

GOT A HONDA
T... doesn't run right?
W... competent service by factory trained mechanics?

SEE
OPEN ROAD INC.
IN DURHAM

Real service for all makes, specializing in HONDAS.

Morning pickup, evening delivery service in Chapel Hill every day. Call for appointment.

OPEN ROAD INC.
Durham 681-6161

SALE SERVICE PARTS

Pack Captures Fugitives

The Parker Pack defeated the Parker Fugitives in tag football on Monday, 20-7. Danny McNally, Steve Zachary and Robert Long scored touchdowns for the winners.

Lewis White beat the Graham Bells, 15-0.

In volleyball, the Manly Riverrats defeated the Mangum Wumps, 2-0 (15-2, 9-7); the Aycock Aardwolves beat the Stacy Studs, 2-1 (14-8, 8-10, 6-4); and the Teague Trojans downed the Avery Aces, 2-0 (7-5, 7-4).

Wrestling

Residence hall wrestling opened last Tuesday in nine classes. Here are the latest available results:

In the 123-pound class, Bob Tracy of Morrison D won a forfeit over Polk Rutherford of Old West and David Potts of Aycock won a forfeit over Bill Ellison of Morrison H.

At the 130 level, W. G. Broadfoot of Parker pinned Steve Blood of Everett in the second period. Steve Harper of Ruffin pinned Bob Young of Alexander in the second period.

In the 137 class, Goldstein of Everett pinned Jay Miller of Alexander in the third period and Duncan Hite of Ruffin outpointed Lloyd Folks of Graham, 10-7.

Jon Launt of Everett beat Bruce Jolly of Morrison H, 4-0 in the 145-pound class. Tom Whitlock of Mangum won a forfeit over Stan Oakley of Manly. Ted Burns of Ruffin beat John Fairly of Carr, 3-1.

In the 152 division, John Liles of Lewis and Cherry of Morrison E had a double forfeit. Burel Williams of Mangum beat Tom Brown of Ruffin, 2-1. Sidney Grimes of Morrison E edged Wilbur Atkinson of Old East, 3-2. Mike Daniel of Aycock beat Mike Caire of Graham, 2-1.

At 160, Bob Coleman of Graham beat Tony Holland of Old East, 7-2. Richard Rudisill of Craige won a forfeit over Dave Saum of Old West. Heys of Morrison A won a forfeit over John Speas of Avery.

Charles Markle of Ruffin pinned Bob Steele of Morrison A in the third period in the 167 class. Mark Manship of Avery won by default over Richard Wagstaff of Ruffin. Mike Chaney of Mangum won a forfeit over Don Woodall of Aycock. Mike O'Bryan of Alexander beat Ben Gilbert of Stacy, 6-1 and Scott Mills of Parker pinned John Hamilton of Old West in the third period.

Varsity, Frosh Scrimmage Again

By BILL ROLLINS
DTH Sports Writer

The varsity Tar Heels came up short in the first scrimmage game against the freshmen last Saturday, but they are getting a quick chance for revenge.

The two clubs meet again in an open-to-the-public clash Wednesday night. The time has not yet been set, but will be posted here tomorrow.

Said varsity Coach Dean Smith: "Working against the freshmen is the best way to improve our play against big men. When you are going against someone with a heighth advantage, you just naturally have to stick closer and work harder. In the first scrimmage Bob (Bennett) and Larry (Miller) got into foul trouble early, and we've got to keep this from happening. We'll work on it against the freshmen."

Larry Bown was understandably pleased with the winning effort of his freshmen, but declared there were many mistakes to be corrected.

"The boys played a very unselfish game. They worked together and hustled all the way and that's all you can ask."

Brown was pleased with everyone's play, but he was particularly encouraged with the way 6-5 forward Joe Brown came back to play an outstanding second half after getting off to a noticeably slow start.

He scored three quick goals at the start of the second period and was impressive as a rebounder.

"Dickie (Gruber) and Gerald (Tuttle) played a strong game both ways," Brown said, "and Bill (Bunting) and Rusty (Clark) did a real good job inside." They scored 20 points each.

Jim Bostick played equal time with Brown and scored 11 points.

Bob Lewis, the 6-3 varsity forward who poured in 27 points, suffered a tightly pulled cramp in his right calf near the game's end. However, he reported today that, except for slight lingering soreness, it was okay.

350 Tickets Left. Get 'Em While Hot

Students snapped up about 2,750 Duke tickets yesterday at Woollen Gym. Only 350 tickets remain from the original allotment.

They will be on sale this morning starting at 8:30 Student tickets are $2.50.

An effort is now being made to secure more student tickets. At no time in the last decade has the demand for student tickets to Duke games away been so great.

ADULT GAMES
by 3-M, Avalon-Hill, Drueke and others
BILLY ARTHUR
Eastgate Shopping Center

BRITISH BUFFERCOAT

SUEDE CLOTH with half inset sleeve and shawl collar. Pure wool body lining in contrasting colors.

$49.50

Julian's
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Timeless good taste is waiting for you in every fine sweater at THE HUB. V-Neck classics in a wide variety of colors, including navy, tan, autumn gold, cinnamon, and heather tones all featuring saddle shoulders —and full fashion cardigans with the same classic shoulders and ample patch pockets. Wool blends, 100% lambswool, and cashmeres— all hand washable and guaranteed mothproof

. . . . from 12.95

THE HUB
OF CHAPEL HILL

things go better with Coke
Drink Coca-Cola

Durham Coca-Cola Bottling Co.

He'd take on anyone, at anything, anytime
...it was only a matter of who came first!

STEVE McQUEEN · EDWARD G. ROBINSON · ANN MARGRET
KARL MALDEN · TUESDAY WELD
A MARTIN RANSOHOFF PRODUCTION
THE CINCINNATI KID
METROCOLOR
NOW PLAYING
CAROLINA

JUST ARRIVED
NEW SHIPMENT
ALPACA SWEATERS

Select from new colors such as brandy and bottle green also we have received more of the favorite cinnamon & frosted lemon. All sizes.
V-Neck 25.95 Cardigan 29.95

Varsity Men's Wear
Clothiers of Distinction
147 E. Franklin St.

Classic Understatement

100% Imported WOOL PULLOVER by PRINGLE

Everything about this soft, warm pullover speaks with full confidence. So it speaks quietly. Its fine gauge imported wool is sheer luxury to the touch. Classically styled with the V-neck in today's narrow rib.

14.95

Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin

SHOW BIZ QUIZ No. 2

1. This group is:
   A. The Three Stooges
   B. The Dook Backfield
   C. THE SUPREMES!
2. They'll be here at UNC on:
   A. Bastille Day
   B. Armistead Maupin's Birthday
   C. Sunday afternoon, Nov. 21 at 1:30 p.m.
3. They will sing in:
   A. The Lenoir Hall Kitchen
   B. coherently
   C. CARMICHAEL AUDITORIUM!
4. This show is brought to you by:
   A. The Imperial Wizard
   B. The friendly bottlers of Moxie
   C. GRAHAM MEMORIAL!

Answers: All C's.
Tickets for the Supremes go on sale TOMORROW MORNING AT G.M. Please get your tickets early, students ... sales are limited to students only for now. Only $1.00. Repeat — Students buy your tickets early!
BROUGHT TO YOU BY GRAHAM MEMORIAL

BIG BOOKS

A special lot of recent beauties and last year's favorites. Picked from all over the shop, they're crowded into one big display this week —at the Intimate. Feast your eyes, chum. Prices range from $7.50 up— and browsing's always Free!

The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill
Open Till 9 P.M.

PERSONAL — To Tootsie-Woo

Don't be mad, honey. I just couldn't miss that game. Let's get together in the quiet print room at the Intimate and talk it over, this afternoon.

SCRATCHY-CHIN

MILL OUTLET SALES ROOM
Ladies First Quality HOSE
Three Pairs ... $1.25
"All Popular Fall Shades, Also Nurses' White Hose
UPSTAIRS OVER SUTTON'S Drug Store

Have a big weekend?
We make loans on typewriters, pistols, guns, radios, record players, musical instruments, watches, rings, cameras, microscopes, tape recorders.
FIVE POINTS LOAN CO.
339 W. Main St. . . . at Five Points
Downtown Durham

Reynolds Coliseum
Tomorrow, Nov. 10 8 P.M.

The Rolling Stones
Admissions $2.50, $3.00 and $4.00
• The Vibrations • The Rocking Ramrods
• Patti LaBelle and the Blue Bells • The Embers
Tickets now available at Coliseum Box Office, Thiem's Record Shop, Village Pharm. Camera Shop and RECORD BAR Durham & Chapel Hill.

VOTE U. P.

FOR THOSE WHO THINK YOUNG, NOW IT'S
The Carolina Coffee Shop
85c STUDENT SPECIAL
open
9-9 weekdays 9-11 weekends

DUKE STUDENT UNION
PRESENTS:
THE LETTERMEN in CONCERT
Sat. Nov. 13 – 6:30 P.M.
Duke Indoor Stadium
All Tickets not Reserved
$1.50 at the door or write
Duke Student Union
Box K.M.
Durham

Varsity NOW PLAYING

From the pages of Cervante's famous novel comes...

LUNCH from 1.10 to 1.65
DINNER from 1.75 to 5.50
Featuring U. S. Choice Steaks,
Back Fin Lump Crabmeat,
Baked Country Cured Ham
Breast of Young Chicken
Six attractive dining rooms of varying size and decor afford flexible facilities for serving
BANQUETS AND RECEPTIONS
Recommended by Mobile Travel Guide
Best of Hillsway
Blair House
Durham-Chapel Hill Boulevard
Tel. 489-9128

ANNOUNCING THE OPENING
of
BELK-LEGGETT-HORTON'S
FINE JEWELRY DEPARTMENT
Featuring:
DIAMONDS WATCHES by Bulova
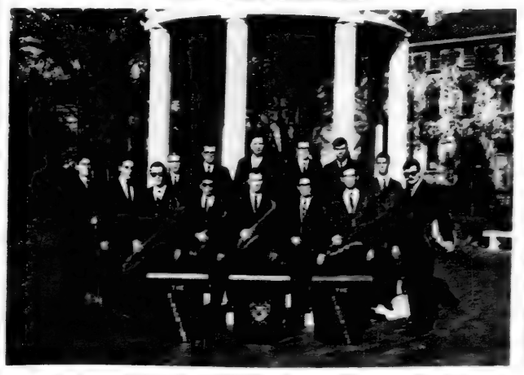
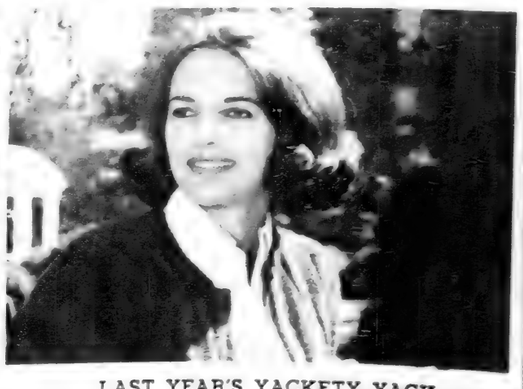
Longine-Whittnauer
Expert Watch Repair
Use Your Belk's Charge
C. Owen Dewar
Watchmaker & Jeweler

THE BIG EVENT THIS WEEKEND WILL BE THE 1965
FALL FESTIVAL of JAZZ
STARRING
THE SINFONIANS



MODERN BIG BAND MUSIC AT ITS DRIVING, SWINGING BEST.

MISS BECKY RHODARMER



LAST YEAR'S YACKETY YACK QUEEN IS THIS YEAR'S SINGING SENSATION.

Also: THE JAZZ SOULS-An All-Star Contemporary Septet
Featuring: Mike Adams vs. Keith McClelland in a Thundering
DIXIELAND DRUM BATTLE!!
FRIDAY, NOV. 12 MEMORIAL HALL General Admission $1.00

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Accreditation Chief Issue In Ban Evaluation

Editor's Note — This is the second in a series on the history of the controversial and much - debated communist speaker ban law.

Friday the commission appointed to study the implications of the law recommended to Governor Dan K. Moore that the law be amended, and Moore called for a special session of the General Assembly to convene Nov. 15.

Throughout the hearings conducted by the commission, one of, if not the most debated issue was that of accreditation: what it is; how the speaker ban might affect it; and what the loss of it would mean to North Carolina institutions.

Second In A Series

By ERNEST ROBL
DTH Staff Writer

"The commission devoted considerable time to studying the significance of accreditation on our state-supported colleges and university. Suffice it to say accreditation means much, financially and otherwise. For any institution to lose accreditation would be substantially damaging."

The above sentences, taken from the report the Speaker Ban Study Commission presented Friday afternoon, contain somewhat of an understatement. It would be a conservative estimate to say that at least half of the total time spent on the hearings was devoted to the issue of accreditation.

Almost an entire day — of the four days of hearings on the law — was devoted exclusively to accreditation, and every witness, regardless of his stand, was questioned on his attitude toward it.

More than anything else, a threat to the accreditation of state - supported institutions, provoked by the speaker ban law, was reponsible for the creation of the study commission.

At its organizational meeting in July, the commission decided to open testimony with representatives of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. Immediately after this decision, one commission member noted that he knew almost nothing about the association and its relationship to member institutions.

Other Members

Other members of the panel, including Chairman David Britt, quickly concurred on this point.

This raised the questions: What is the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools? Who runs it? What does it do? And why are its decisions of such vital importance to the University?

Vice President of the Consolidated University Dr. Arnold K. King phrased it as follows: "The primary purpose of the association is to guarantee the public certain minimum standards in educational institutions.

"The association, which has no political and no religious connections, carries this out by periodical evaluation of member institutions."

The Southern Association is one of six regional accrediting organizations in the United States, which now handle accreditation of educational institutions ranging from universities to elementary schools.

The organization was founded in 1895 in Atlanta, Professor Edwin Mims of UNC being one of the originators.

Original Purpose

The association was first organized for the purpose of accrediting high schools, on the premise that students from schools which met certain standards would be more acceptable to colleges and universities than students coming from other high schools.

This program was later extended to the accreditation of Colleges and universities, affecting the transfer of students, grades and credits, and providing a basis for admission to graduate schools.

There are currently 411 member colleges and universities in the 11 states covered by the Southern Association: Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Tennessee, Mississippi, Alabama, Louisiana and Texas.

In addition to handling the accreditation of educational institutions in this area of the United States, the Southern Association also handles accreditation of institutions in all of Latin and South America.

(Dr. Arnold Perry, dean of UNC's School of Education, is currently serving as chairman of the association's committee on Latin American relations, and has been working with the association for 16 years.)

Three Commissions

Most of the current work of the Southern Association is handled through three commissions — a Commission on Colleges and Universities, a Commission on Secondary Schools, and a Commission on Research and Services.

It was the first of these, the Universities, which threatened North Carolina's state-supported institutions of higher education with revocation of accreditation last May because of the state's two-year-old speaker ban law.

What effect would such a loss of accreditation have on UNC

"Loss of accreditation for a university is comparable to loss of credit rating for an individual," was the analogy used by King. "It's not entirely hopeless, but it is always difficult to rebuild confidence."

Shortly after it was learned that the accreditation of the University might be endangered, William C. Friday, president of the Consolidated University, outlined the following areas in which this revocation would affect the University:

— Individual departments and professional schools which are accredited separately by respective professional organizations, would all lose accreditation simultaneously with the University, since the accreditation of the University is a prerequisite to the accreditation of departments and schools.

— Students of the University would find it difficult to transfer to an accredited school or to enroll in a graduate program at another institution.

— Private foundations, donors, and governmental institutions which make research grants, would turn to accredited schools.

— Faculty recruitment would become difficult and the University would lose many of its top professors.

— Loss of accreditation from the Southern Association would not only affect the University's relationship with other colleges and universities in the South, but with those all over the country as well as abroad.

Loss of Prestige

The over-all effect of loss accreditation cited by Friday and a number of other University officials was a general loss of prestige.

The preceding points, cited by Friday were confirmed by spokesmen for the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools when that organization presented testimony before the Speaker Ban Study Commission this summer.

Dr. Emmett Fields, chairman of the association's Commission on Colleges and Universities, and Gordon Sweet, acting secretary of the Commission, presented the association's case.

Fields contended that the decision of who can and who cannot speak on a campus should be left to the "governing boards." He further noted that the respective board of trustees should be "as sensitive to feelings (in the state) as it can be, but must, by standards of the Southern Association, be finally responsible."

Warning that accreditation was actually jeopardized by the ban law, Fields noted that a final decision on the status of North Carolina institutions would have to be made by the association's 54-member delegate assembly.

During Fields' appearance before the Speaker Ban Study Commission, he was asked by the Commission Chairman David Britt if the "action of the commission (on colleges and universities) was precipitated by people in North Carolina."

(Continued on Page 3)

Tryouts

Tryouts today at 4 p.m. in Playmakers Theatre for one-act plays to be produced Nov. 22 and 23. Sixteen mixed parts are open. Scripts are available in 307 Bynum Hall.

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Vol. 74, No. 49 | CHAPEL HILL NORTH CAROLINA WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1965 | Founded February 23, 1893

Cancel Rooms

Occupants of men's residence halls who do not want a room for the spring semester must notify housemasters by Monday or they will be charged for next semester's rent. Failure to cancel may result in a minimum charge of $10.

Student Group To Support U. S. Policy In Viet Nam

A group of students announced yesterday that they will hold a gathering affirming administration policy in Viet Nam in conjunction with Veterans Day ceremonies in Polk Place Thursday.

Official Veterans Day ceremonies, in which members of Navy and Air Force ROTC units will participate, will be held around the flag pole beginning 4 p.m. tomorrow.

The student group, headed headed by Otto J. Reich, a Charlotte senior, has obtained permission to participate in the ceremonies from the University administrators and the ROTC units. The student group is not affiliated with any campus organization.

Reich said that the students are attempting to "show the American public and the soldiers in Viet Nam that the majority of U. S. students stand behind administration policy."

"I feel that the student body of UNC has been given a bad name due to the demonstrations by a minoirty of the students," he said.

The participating students will make a public statement and will lay a wreath at the base of the flagpole.

The ceremonies in Polk Place will be held in conjunction with Veterans Day observances across the nation.

The Associated Press reports that citizens in all states will be using Veterans Day ceremonies in reaffirmation of American Policy in Viet Nam. Some anti-war groups plan to use the occasion for renewing their protests against America's combatant role in Viet Nam.

However, an Associated Press survey of many cities across the nation shows that most of the ceremonies are designed to demonstrate support of the President's policy.

Vice President Hubert Humphrey will place a presidential wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery, highlighting the day's observances. He will address what is expected to be one of the greatest throngs ever to attend such a ceremony.

A large part of the crowd in Arlington is expected to be college students in the area, who have said that they will demonstrate at Arlington that pacifists who burn their draft cards are only a small percentage of their generation.

Carolina Takes Honors In Debate Tournament

Four UNC debaters took top team and individual awards at the Appalachian State Debating Tournament in Boone Friday and Saturday.

Another UNC foursome won honors in Atlanta at the nationally - ranked Emory Peachtree Invitational Debate Tournament last weekend.

David Kiel, Craig Bradly, Jerry Wagner and Don Bumgardner compiled a 10-2 record at Appalachian. Bradly and Kiel went undefeated for six straight rounds.

This pair received "superior" speaker ratings and Wagner, received one of the few "excellent" ratings.

UNC edged out such traditional rivals as Wake Forest and Duke.

Steve Kemis, Sue Whitt, Bob Powell and Eric Van Loon competed against more than 300 debaters at Emory, arguing the topic "Resolved: That law enforcement agencies should be given greater freedom in the investigation and prosecution of cime."

UNC emerged the eighth - ranked team in the tournament with a record of 5-3 and 4-4.

Among the nationally - powerful teams there were Pennsylvania, Northwestern, Emory and Davidson.

ALAN NEWCOMB

Alan Newcomb Tells Press Club Of WBTV's Ban Stand

By DAVID ROTHMAN
DTH Staff Writer

Alan Newcomb, public affairs director of WBT-WBTV in Charlotte, said Monday night he hasn't compromised his convictions by broadcasting editorials supporting the speaker ban.

Newcomb, who says he is against the ban, told more than 80 journalism students in Howell Hall that he is merely "the print on the page, the means by which the message gets across to the public."

"If you analyze the issues and figure out a better way to use TV to broadcast editorials, then let me know about it," he said.

Anyway, Newcomb explained, he does determine his station's editorial policy, but only as one of six editorial board members.

But once the board has made its final decision, he said, he would even be willing to contribute arguments contrary to his opinions.

Newcomb does not consider this practice a form of dishonesty.

He said single individuals probably shouldn't determine the editorial policies of a multi-million dollar broadcast stations.

Newcomb called TV editorializing "still experimental," though eventually "regular professional standards like those in newspaper work will be established."

He noted that WBTV frequently gives opponents to its editorial policies chances to reply over the air but usually they send tapes or letters rather than personally visiting the station to broadcast their views.

Newcomb said the Federal Communications Commission "exercises a tremendous degree of tolerance despite flagrant violations of fair practice rules."

One station, he said, that FCC claims has not given its opponents equal time on the air is WRAL-TV, Raleigh, whose methods it called "high-handed."

He says he believes TV stations should hesitate to endorse political candidates, lest the stations be called "the Democratic station, the Republican station, the Moore station or the Sanford station."

Turnout In Election Heavy, Says Tyndall

A surprisingly heavy turnout of student voters flocked to the polls in the fall elections yesterday to voice their opinions on a number of candidates.

At press time last night ballots were still being counted. No results had been tallied on the class officers elections. Returns were incomplete in the Honor Council voting. The constitutional amendment has been defeated. Here are the returns as of 9:45 p.m.

Constitutional Amendment (two ballot boxes missing):
For: 1137; Against 2,581.

Honor Council: WD IV—Checksfield 114, Burden 51;
WD V—Appel 78, Bernasek 36, Merrick 46;
WD VI— Runoff between Caldwell and Chipman.
MD II—Eastwood 51, Abbott 35, Yates 40;
MD III—King 122, Taylor 67;
MD IV—Powell 22, Lovell 17;
MD V—Hedman unopposed;
MD VII—Thrift unopposed;
MD VIII—Mitchell unopposed;
MD X—Branch unopposed;
MD XI—Sheppard 144, Mulcahy 133;
MD XII—a recount, Finley 245, Sawyer 241.

Students voted for these:
— Officers for the freshman, sophomore and junior classes.
— Vacancies on the Men's and Women's Councils, the highest student courts at the University.

— A controversial constitutional referendum which would allow the student body president to appoint the student body secretary.

"The vote was much larger than I expected," Elections Board Chairman Alvin Tyndall said.

Estimates of the size of the vote were obtained by studying the demands for extra ballots made by campus precincts, according to Tyndall.

Final tabulation of the vote was not completed until after 10 p.m. yesterday.

"Our results indicate mostly freshmen and juniors voted during the lections," Tyndall said.

Woman Student Is Found Dead

Joan Mae Conrad, 32, a graduate student in the School of Public Health, was found dead yesterday morning in her room at 310 West University Drive.

A native of Clifton Heights, Pa., Miss Conrad was found in her bed by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Weaver, the owners of the house in which she roomed.

The cause of her death was not known, but police said an autopsy is underway. However, Campus Security Chief Arthur Beaumont said there was "no suspicion" other than national death.

Last seen at 9 p.m. Sunday night, her clothes had been laid out for the next day, Beaumont said. She had complained of chest pains last week, according to police.

Friday Meets With Faculty

President of the Consolidated University William Friday met with faculty and administrators Monday in executive session to discuss possible action the University may take if the Speaker Ban is amended.

The closed meeting was held so Friday could give his interpretations of recommendations by the Speaker Ban Study Commission.

IFC Sees No Gloom In Frat Future

By FRED THOMAS
DTH News Editor

(Second in a series of articles on the status of the social fraternity on the American college campus.)

If social fraternities are on the decline across the nation, the trend has not rubbed off onto the minds of Greekmen at UNC.

"I think the fraternity system at Carolina is as strong now, if not stronger that it has ever been," said Frank Martin, president of the Interfraternity Council.

Martin and Neil Thomas, publicity chairman of the IFC, expressed the opinion that the decrease in the percentage of campus men involved in fraternities is by no means an indication of a break-down in the system.

In 1957 25 per cent of UNC's 6,000 students were fraternity members. Today 19 per cent of a student body of nearly 12,000 participate in the Greek system.

Necessary Decrease

Martin said he feels there had to be a decrease in the percentage of students belonging to fraternities when the enrollment increased so greatly.

Thomas pointed out that although representative membership in fraternities has decreased by six per cent, there has been an actual increase from 1,500 to 2,200 men in the Greek system here.

Martin said his opinion and the opinion of many in the administration is that the fraternity system will function best when it comprises from 18 to 25 per cent of the student body.

He cited schools in the Ivy League as examples where too great a percentage of students had belonged to fraternities. The result was a strong "GDI" resentment among non-fraternity men.

Martin said he thinks this was the main contributor to the withdrawal of social fraternities from these campuses.

Solid Foundation

The IFC spokesmen said the very means of selecting members will continue to make fraternities strong.

"We don't start out with a large group of men and hope they will find common interests and build friendships," they said. "Rather, we start with a relatively small group of men who have come together because of common interests and who want to be close friends."

"As the University gets larger the fraternity will play an increasingly important role in providing a place where a group of friends can become a closely - working unit," Martin said.

Neither of the two seemed to feel that fraternities at UNC will be crippled by the Residence College System.

In fact, they both expressed their hopes that the system will continue to be the success it has been.

Different Objectives

"Fraternities and Residence Colleges are not alike, and are not trying to offer the same things," Thomas said.

It has been pointed out that students today have access to social facilities through Residence Halls which used to be expected to come from the Greeks.

Martin noted that with the swelling enrollment at the University, 23 fraternities could not possibly provide entertainment for everyone.

So if fraternities maintain a social calendar for themselves, they have not fallen down in this department, and it is fortunate that adequate social activity is being provided for non - fraternity men.

"A lot of emphasis has been

(Continued on Page 3)

FRATERNITY COURT

Doctors Won't Comment On Condition Of Twins

Doctors had no comment Tuesday on the condition of the Siamese twin girls separated at North Carolina Memorial Hospital Monday.

A surgeon said Monday that if the girls live, the operation will be the first successful one of its kind known in history.

Late Monday night the twins were reported in "very satisfactory condition," but still in danger. Doctors said they consider the next seven to 10 days the crucial period.

The girls were born last April to Mrs. David Allen of High Point.

The girls, known medically as ischiopagus twins, were joined in the lower hip region, from the hip to the common naval.

Surgeons said that each twin has two kidneys, but one in each girl is abnormal and useless. However, they pointed out that human beings can live with one kidney.

Each girl has a normal bladder outlet, but a colostomy was performed on each, meaning an opening was created in the front of the abdomen for bowel drainage.

Surgeons said that the decision to operate was based on the danger of several diseases setting in, among them kidney disease.

"MUNCH IS the word?" Today, Graham Memorial Publicity Committee members will give away free fortune cookies in Chase, Lenoir and Y-Court. But these aren't Chinese fortune cookies — they're French fortune cookies. Inside each cookie is an ad message for a French cabaret program called "La Contrescarpe." The performance, to be held in Memorial Hall on Wednesday, Nov. 17, is free to students.

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of the Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. Letters and columns, covering a wide range of views, reflect the personal opinions of their authors.
ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

Like Stung Rabbits

Fraternity men far and near have been hopping like stung rabbits since the DTH ran an interview with Dean of Men William G. Long last Friday about the status and future of fraternities.

"What he said was unfair and distorted," they are crying.

Well, maybe.

It is true that Long said some things that were not especially what the fraternity men want to hear.

"I don't know if the Greeks will make it . . . If fraternities keep up their black-balling and Brooks Broth- "I don't know if the Greeks will make it . . . If fraers bigotry I don't care if they don't succeed . . . Many on the faculty wonder if such a selective group is in place at an institution of public education," Long said.

But he also said, "I believe the end result (of the effects of the Residence College System) will be that fraternities will be strengthened in what they offer and in what they stand for . . . I very much want to see fraternities make it, because they have very great potential to contribute positively to this campus — more than any other group. It is impossible to get so close a grouping working in the Residence College System."

One out of five UNC students belongs to a fraternity today. Less than 10 years ago, when the student body was half as large, one in five belonged. This by no means indicates that the existing fraternities are not thriving and healthy, but it ought to raise the question of why new chapters cannot be organized. When the University becomes saturated, it has to expand. The same fact applies to the fraternity system.

The matter of fraternity academics has been raised. Last year the average for all active brothers and pledges was 2.241. The all-men's average was 2.28.8 If fraternity men maintain this position, we see 2.200. The all-student (including women) average was no need for that "faculty concern" which has been expressed to Long.

The residence Colleges may not be a threat to fraternities, but their impact is going to be inescapable. As a Men's Residence Council official said recently, "Right now the residence colleges can outparty the fraternities." Those houses which have in the past relied heavily on a "party atmosphere" to attract pledges will have to make the most adjustment.

A strong fraternity system is an asset which this University is not about to give up or undermine. Fraternities are strong now, but this is not to say they cannot be stronger nor that they will not have to change with the times. They are strong enough to bear criticism without panic.

Fraternity member Long said Monday, "I think fraternities are something everybody should look into carefully. They offer valuable and constructive experiences."

Obviously not everybody needs a fraternity, but many people do and we agree with Long's statement: "I don't see how we could get along without 'em."

A Demand For Justice

UP Legislator Jim Smith, representative from Men's District V (Carr, Old East, Old West, Battle-Vance-Pettigrew) has demanded justice from the DTH.

We're happy to oblige.

His name was the one which inadvertantly got left out of the Tuesday editorial which listed responsive legislators who voted against campus radio, and their constituents. The vote in his district was just 136 for, 56 against.

Sorry, Jim. It won't happen again. But it's at least partly your fault — for being so wishy-washy. You changed your vote from yes to no in the midst of the meeting and your name didn't get on the list of negativists.

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; John Jennrich, associate editor; Barry Jacobs, managing editor; Fred Thomas, news editor, Pat Stith, sports editor; Gene Rector, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; John Greenbacker, political writer; Ed Freakley, Andy Myers, Lynne Harvel, Lynne Sizemore, David Rothman, Ray Linville, staff writers; Jack Harrington, bus. mgr.; Tom Clark, asst. bus. mgr.; Woody Sobol, ad. mgr.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all ap news dispatches.

"What The Hell Do You Mean, Munch Is The Word?"

Letters To The Editor

Greek Rebuttal

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Perhaps Dean Long would like to retract some of his statements in Fred Thomas's DTH article (the decline of fraternities, Nov. 5th) before somebody mentions the fact that every year the committee on admissions "blackballs" thousands of applicants to Carolina; or that Craige Dormitory "balls" hundreds who have named Maverick House as their preference; and that the University-supported Toronto Exchange Program "screens" (backballs) many applicants before selecting the few who will represent the University.

Perhaps Dean Long would also like to clarify his position that "if fraternity men consistantly performed higher than the rest of the men on campus" there wouldn't be the problem with the faculty. The fact stands on record that fraternity averages have consistantly been higher than those of the remaining men on campus. Is there a "problem with the faculty?"

Also, maybe Fred Thomas would like to rephrase his example of "the decline of the strength of the fraternity system." In 1957, as Thomas said, 25% of the campus males were fraternity members; the campus enrollment was near the 6,000 mark. There were 1500 members in 24 houses. In 1965, the figure is only 19, but the campus population is up another 6,000. There are now 2,280 Greeks, an increase of 780. This is a decline?

Fraternity members hold positions in eight out of ten political offices of the Student Government. All four of the male student body officers are Greeks, the University Party is controlled by the major fraternities, and UNC's only Rhodes Scholar (and former student body president) was a member of a Carolina fraternity. If this is decline, we want more!

These are just but a few of the startling blunders in Thomas' article. If this is any indication of the caliber of the remainder of the series, they should be "blackballed" from the DTH as they serve no purpose.

William J. Gordon
Beta Theta Pi

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

In response to your recent interview with Dean Long on the future of the fraternity system at the University of North Carolina I feel it would be appropriate to quote part of a recent letter from Henry A. Federa, National President of Delta Upsilon Fraternity:

"After the Berkeley riots at the University of California, it would seem that university administrators should take another look at fraternities. Maybe they are not as bad as previously thought. Perhaps they are a positive need.

"With isolated exceptions, it was not fraternity men who caused the excesses which so stunned college officials and America. Indeed the group which has often been the whipping boy for administrators turned out, in the main, to be the stable citizens of the campus and it was from the ranks of the independents that the anarchists came.

"Various reasons have been ascribed for the disgraceful affair. It is said that these rioters were acting out of a need for personal recognition or that they became lost in the impersonal vastness of the University and thus acted out of a failure to be able to identify. Aren't these the very deficiencies of a large campus that a good fraternity system will help to combat? Doesn't a fraternity give a young man a group to identify with A huge campus doesn't look so large when one has a chapter in which he can fit and friends with whom he can share experiences. The feeling of being alone and not wanted can cause a violent reaction.

"Of course, fraternities have been frustrating to the Deans and faculty. Admitted that they have committed puerile acts, but generally these acts have been thoughtless or exuberant. Occasionally a serious result comes from a fraternal prank and all fraternity officers deplore this. But these are the unintentional result, not like the calculated rioting and lawlessness which flamed in California. Universities and fraternities both need law and order to exist.

"If universities will look beyond their frustrations and recognize the positive values of fraternities and if fraternities would recognize that some of their acts have not made friends, a solid beginning would be accomplished with should be helpful to university and fraternity alike."

Charles E. Downton
Delta Upsilon House

Roger Davis

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

The loss that Carolina students feel in Roger Davis is felt most deeply by those who knew him at Stanford University. Although I only knew him for two weeks in the NSA Congress at Wisconsin this summer, I found him the most wonderfully human person I've ever known.

He gave me a wonderful feeling about Carolina, and someday I'd like to see that grand old place. Although his living strength, I can no longer draw from, and am weaker for it: I shall try to build my own strength in emulating his humanness.

Lars Gantzel
Stanford University

Critical Review

Editor, Daily Tar Heel:

It seems that the staff member who reviewed Fred Chappell's novel, The Inkling, in the October 31 edition of The Daily Tar Heel went to unnecessary lengths to put across her point. I firmly believe in the right of a critic to express himself on the work in question, but he oversteps his right when he includes a slam at the writer's private background and abilities, as did the reviewer in the last part of that article.

Carol Wonsavage
University of North Carolina at Greensboro

Cheerleader's Performance Was Model Of Poor Taste

By JOHN H. JENNRICH
Associate Editor

Head cheerleader Jerry Houle is a disgrace to the University.

The Atlanta junior's performance Saturday, while not dissimilar from previous performances, was notable for one thing. It was his last (we hope) before a Chapel Hill football crowd.

Criticism of Houle is not a question of enthusiasm or lack of it. Houle has a seemingly bottomless jug of school spirit with which to sustain him throughout the game.

This is a case of Houle's disgusting lack of good taste.

It was not necessary to ridicule Clemson players as they were being introduced. Or attempt to make fun of the Clemson fight song.

It was not necessary to call the Clemson players "stupid."

And it was not necessary to bellow "shut up" over the microphone to the Boy Scouts at half time.

Perhaps Houle's greatest display of poor taste came near the end of the first half. Clemson had the ball deep in Carolina territory. And there was an officials' time out to measure for a first down. About the same time that an official signaled a first down, the game announcer said the University had as its guests that day many of the National Merit Scholars.

And at that point the head cheerleader simply said, "They cheated."

The braying jackass in the striped jacket was apparently oblivious to anyone's feelings but his own, or to the fact that his continuous drivel was being forced on several thousand Carolina students, alumni and guests.

On the other hand, maybe he thrives on a captive audience, captive in the sense that they wanted to see the ball game despite Houle's obnoxious behavior. It's obvious Houle would never make it on his own without such an audience.

Presumably Houle will make his appearance at the Duke game and at home basketball games. Hopefully someone, maybe even one of his fellow cheerleaders, will suggest to him before his next performance that he stick to Give 'Em Hell Heels.

Being enthusiastically pro - Carolina in good taste is much better than being anti-everything else in poor taste.

Mike Jennings

Let Fraternities 'Ship Out' Gracefully To Dorm Society

Dean Long says that fraternities can either shape up or ship out.

Let 'em ship out. Who needs them? And for what?

Looking for action? Is it possible to match the thrills of a tag football game played to the hilt in a four-by-six frat yard? Is there anything quite so ripping as a picnic in the mountains with your Hi Phi chummies?

Check out Morrison Residence College. For the past couple of months, Big Mo and Maverick House have been at it tooth and nail over everything from gong warfare to total number of women-within-the-walls on Saturday night. A strained hush now hangs over the Morrison-Craige battleground. But this will last only till the cloud cover lifts and reveals the new five-inch guns on the Morrison penthouse roof.

Old men have huddled around coal stoves and talked about it. Some say they've seen it. Others scoff and say it's a myth.

But in our day we may see it come to pass.

The perfect panty raid.

The Lower Quad has organization now, and leadership. Lord help McIver.

Do you want to get into Student Government? Go right ahead. Being a residence hall man won't hold you back.

What do the brothers have left that the dorm rats don't have better? Not much, unless you count the big yellow bibs.

Residence colleges don't need chummies; they need troops. They take from everybody in gross quantities, but they give back the same way.

Maybe a residence college isn't a group of buddies all pulling together in harmony. But neither is a democracy.

So take your pick.

David Rothman

Viet Nam Is Becoming A War Of Fruit Cakes

What happened after U.S. servicemen in Viet Nam were drowned in a sea of fruit cakes, beer, books, magazines and other gifts from supporters of President Johnson's foreign policy?

The soldiers soon found their superiors were forcing them to eat the fruit cakes, drink the beer, read the books and magazines, and use whatever else came their way.

"But I hate fruit cakes," Private Koob Egdelwonk protested.

Eat it anyway," his sergeant replied.

"Why?"

"If you don't eat your fruit cake, the folks back home will think we've forgotten them."

"How about dumping the cakes into the ocean?"

"Transporting them to the coast would create too much of a logistics problem."

"Why couldn't we feed the cakes to the Viet Cong?"

"They're not hungry anymore. Their stomachs are stuffed with food the Student Peace Union forwarded them through CARE. Besides, having them eat home made fruit cake would be contrary to the Geneva Convention's rules for humane warfare."

Private Egdelwonk at this point became so enraged that he grew a beard and burned his PX card.

"Well," the sergeant said, "if you won't eat these fruit cakes, maybe you'll drink the beer — unless you want to get locked up in the stockade."

"I'm a teetotaler."

"Makes no difference. If you don't drink the beer, people will think you're not supporting the President's foreign policy.

Egdelwonk got so mad he donned a dirty sweatshirt and a pair of Ho Chi Minh sandals.

Then the sergeant told him to read the books and magazines sent from the United States.

"But I don't want to read 'Candy' and Playboy," Koob insisted.

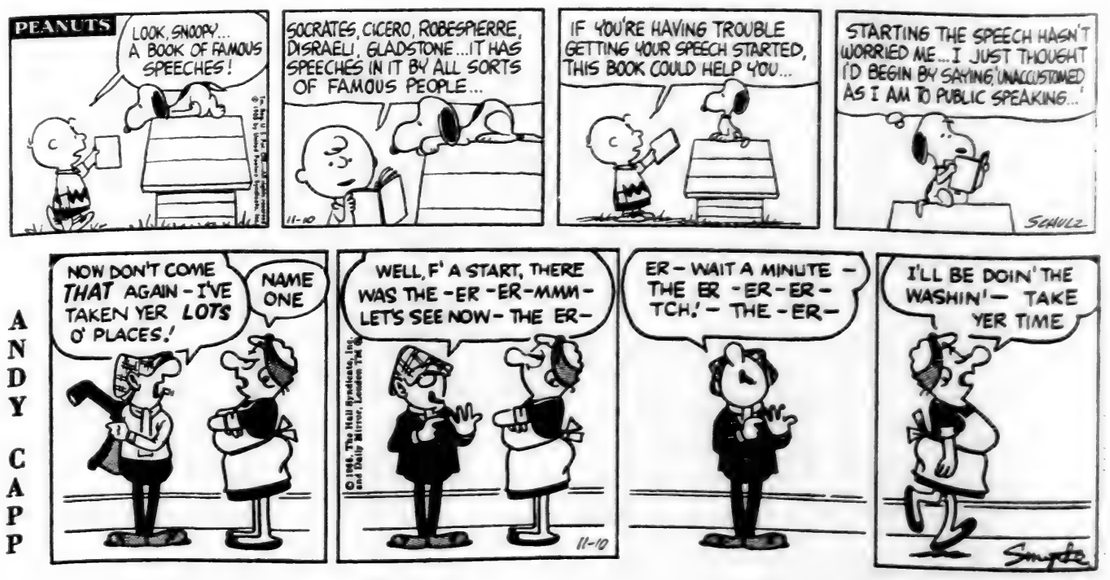
"Do as I say, Private Egdelwonk. If you don't, I'll assign you to that work detail in charge of writing letters home to college kids and school girls who must be convinced we think Johnson's doing the right thing."

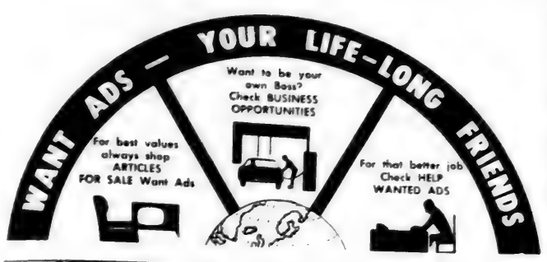
"I'd rather go to the stockade," Koob declared.

"I might just make you write the letters anyway. The kids at Berkeley and the University of Wisconsin say they're heavily outnumbered by the enemy. Those ROTC units can't survive much longer, I'm afraid, without military assistance."

"Say, sergeant, maybe we could send the kids beer, cigarettes and the other nice things of life now that we've got so much of the stuff over here."

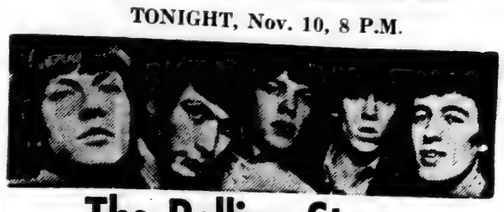
"An excellent idea, private, except they've got their logistics problems too. Nevertheless, if the parking lots get too overcrowded, we could always fly the supplies in by air."





Reynolds Coliseum

TONIGHT, Nov. 10, 8 P.M.



The Rolling Stones

Admissions $2.50, $3.00 and $4.00

- The Vibrations
- Patti LaBelle and the Blue Bells
- The Rocking Ramrods
- The Embers

Tickets now available at Coliseum Box Office, Thiem's Record Shop, Village Pharm, Camera Shop and

DURHAM RECORD BAR

KING WILLIAM RESTAURANT

STEAKS CHICKEN SEAFOOD

"Choice Selection of Imported and Domestic Beverages"

All New and Modern, featuring

1½ Miles From Campus on 15-501 South	Seating Capacity of 300 • Spacious Parking • Four Private dining rooms • Tasteful background music • Catering facilities	Open Seven Days a Week 8:00 A.M. 'til Midnight

Accreditation

(Continued from Page 1)

"Yes," Fields replied, "by the General Assembly in 1963."

Britt then restate his question: "Did the head of any institution get in touch with you or anyone you know about to take this action (threaten loss of accreditation)?"

"No," was Fields' final answer. "No one urged that we act in the way we did."

Fields was also asked why the Southern Association had waited until May 1965 — almost two years after the passage of the speaker ban — to voice its views on this legislation.

"We acted after our investigation and deliberation were concluded and not before," he answered Rev. Ben C. Fisher, the member of the study panel who had posed the question.

Last Friday, after the report of the Speaker Ban Study Commission had been read, Governor Dan K. Moore called for a special session of the General Assembly to convene Nov. 15, to carry out the study group's recommendation of amending the law.

Lt. Gov. Bob Scott estimated last week that this session "shouldn't take more than one week."

Three weeks from yesterday, the Southern Association's 54-member delegate assembly convenes in Richmond, Va.

The threat to the University's accreditation still exists and the speaker ban issue will be given priority on the delegate assembly's agenda.

Unless North Carolina's General Assembly can produce an acceptable revision of H. B. 1395 by Nov. 30, the Southern Association may still move to censure the state of North Carolina and revoke the accreditation of its state-supported institutions.

* * *

(Next in the series: Proponents of the speaker ban.)

What's Happening On Carolina Campus

TODAY

WAA Golf Club meets at 3:30 p.m. in the Women's Gym.

Applications for the Pi Kappa Alpha "Beat Dook" float parade will be accepted until noon. Turn in applications to Fred Stevens at the Pi KA house.

There will be a meeting of the Physical Arrangements Committee of the Carolina Symposium at 2:30 p.m. in GM.

The November meeting of the Student Wives Club of the School of Public Health will be held at 8 p.m. in the Student Lounge of the Public Health Building. The speaker will be Miss Ruth Faison Shaw, noted finger-painting expert. Miss Shaw is on the staff of North Carolina Memorial Hospital Dept. of Psychiatry. She will demonstrate the technique of finger-painting and will also speak about her work with the rehabilitation of psychiatric patients.

Graham Memorial Social Committee meets in Roland Parker I at 4 p.m.

The Planning Wives meet at 8 p.m. at 234 McCauley Street. The speaker will be Mr. Lowell Dodge.

UNC Physics Colloquium will feature Hendrik Van Dam speaking on "Angular Momentum is Not Conserved." The meeting will be in room 215 Phillips Hall at 4 p.m. Tea and coffee will be served one-half hour before the talk in the lounge, room 277, Phillips Hall.

Otelia Connor will speak in the Beta Room of Chase Cafeteria. Students should buy their dinner and be in the Beta Room by 6 p.m. The coat and tie affair is sponsored by Falcon House of Morrison College.

SPU-SDS Vietnam Seminar will congregate upstairs in Lenoir Hall at 5 p.m.

MRC meets at 7 p.m. on the 4th floor of New East.

All students interested in working with mentally retarded children at Murdoch Center are invited to meet with the Murdoch Committee in Y - Court at 2 p.m.

THURSDAY

Mathematics Colloquium will feature Prof. Merrill Shanks from Purdue University speaking on "Some Questions in Topological Algebra," at 4 p.m. in room 332 Phillips Hall. Coffee and tea will be served in the Common Room (Ph. 385) at 3:30 p.m. preceding the colloquium.

The Related Discussions Committee of the Carolina Symposium will meet in the Symposium office on the 2nd floor of the Y Building at 4 p.m.

—IFC Sees No Gloom—

(Continued from Page 1)

switched within the Greek system," Martin said. "Houses have realized that they have more to offer than solely being a social center."

The IFC has been instrumental in encouraging UNC fraternities to broaden their field of activities and opportunities for members, Martin said.

Service Projects

Greeks sponsor such community projects as cleaning up the four entrances to Chapel Hill and making visits to orphanages and rest homes at Christmas time. The IFC is participating in distributing Thanksgiving baskets to needy families this year.

They also sponsor the Andrew Bershak Scholarship each year.

"The IFC has recently taken a much stronger stand on hazing," Martin said. "Houses are leaning toward constructive pledge training. Pledges are encouraged to maintain good grades, become active in campus extracurriculars and do constructive work on the fraternity houses."

Martin said he feels fraternities should stress academic excellence within the brotherhood.

"The fraternity men's average was higher than the all-men's average last year," he said. "But we can do better. After all, we have a selective group to begin with."

He said the IFC recently repealed its rule requiring fraternity members to consistently make a 2.0 quality point average to remain in active status because the group felt this authority should reside within the individual houses.

"The IFC determines policy for fraternities — the fraternities should determine policy for their individual members," he said.

"We didn't feel we could deny an initiated member of a fraternity the right to participate in the running of his fraternity."

Continue SG Activity

Martin said he thinks fraternities will continue to dominate student political activities.

"Every member of a fraternity is picked because he has demonstrated good potential. Older members in each house encourage these younger students to get involved in Student Government activities and develop that potential," he said.

Thomas said he feels that if fraternities at UNC are in a weakened position it may stem from "University neglect."

"The case in point is the Interfraternity Council reception for the faculty during Greek week. One hundred faculty members were invited, and only around a dozen came," he said.

"There is a challenge to both fraternity and faculty to improve relations.

"Fraternities have changed. Now let the University change its conception of fraternities," Thomas said.

Phi Sigma Kappa

While the words are flying back and forth concerning the decline of fraternities, a new Greek group is slowly gaining solid voting on campus.

Phi Sigma Kappa, which was previously active at UNC, petitioned to reorganize a colony here last spring.

Presently they have 18 active members and are maintaining the old Phi Mu house.

According to the IFC, the group is solvent. They have been given help from their national and are starting an alumni drive.

Thomas said he feels sure they will get official recognition from the IFC as a colony very soon.

As a recognized colony they will have a non - voting seat on the IFC and will participate in intramurals, Greek Week and other IFC - sponsored activities.

LA PIZZA RIDES AGAIN

NOW MAKING DELIVERIES!!

PIZZAS
SPAGHETTI
RAVIOLI

Call 967-1451

Student Needed at Once for Delivery

Varsity NOW PLAYING

From the pages of Cervantes famous novel comes...

Don Quixote

Civil War Books

Scarce though they may be, you'll find plenty at relatively low prices in our Old Book Corner.

The Intimate Bookshop

119 East Franklin St.
Open Till 10 P.M.

Just call him "Smooth Sam"

HE'S WEARING "DACRON"®-"ORLON"® Ultramatic Prest Haggar dress slacks. Even when the humidity hangs hot and heavy, or he's soaked in a sudden shower, 70% "DACRON" polyester-30% "ORLON" acrylic keeps these fine dress slacks smooth and sharply creased. They even take repeated washings without a wrinkle. And Haggar styling gives him the trim fit he wants in fine dress slacks. No wonder the gals go for "Smooth Sam". 10.95

®Du Pont's Reg. T.M.

WIN A FORD MUSTANG or one of 50 other big prizes. See your Haggar dealer for details.

HAGGAR Slacks

Get Haggar Slacks at fine stores everywhere

THE SINFONIANS

THE JAZZ SOULS

Becky Rhodarner

Memorial Hall
Friday Nite

CAROLINA

THURSDAY

THE WORLDWIDE BESTSELLER EXPLODES WITH SUSPENSE ON THE SCREEN!

COLUMBIA PICTURES presents
FAIL SAFE

BIG BOOKS

A special lot of recent beauties and last year's favorites. Picked from all over the shop, they're crowded into one big display this week —at the Intimate. Feast your eyes, chum. Prices range from $7.50 up— and browsing's always Free!

The Intimate Bookshop

119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill
Open Till 9 P.M.

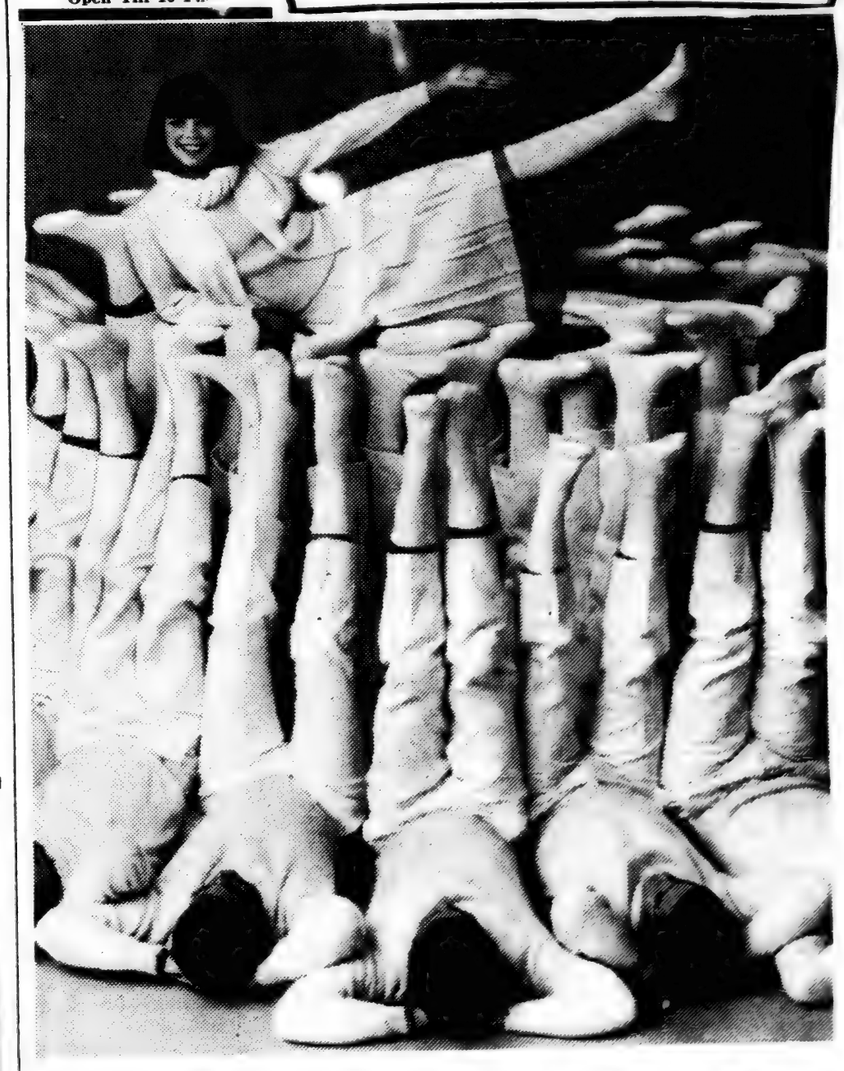
FOR RENT: UNFURNISHED apartment (single unit and one year old) for couple or mature individual. Near campus. Call 942-4291 after 5:30 p.m.

FOR SALE — ELECTRIC guitar. Practically new. Have been drafted — will sacrifice. Call 942-6855.

1960 CHEVROLET IMPALA convertible. White body, white one year old top. Full power, radio & heater. Good price. Call 942-4554 after 6:30.

MOTORCYCLE FOR SALE: 250 cc Adler, $200 or best offer. Bill Wright 213 Connor. Phone 968-9079.

FOR RENT — NEW, COMPletely furnished 2 bedroom, air conditioned mobile home. 10 x 45'. Available Dec. 1. Call 942-3268 or 942-1749.



The young bucks of America go clean-white-sock in the new crew Adler calls Adlastic

Meet the revolutionary crew of 65% lambswool plus 35% nylon with spandex for 100% stretch. Up and down. This way and that. That's Adlastic with the give to take on all sizes 10 to 15 and last far longer and fit far better. Size up Adlastic in 28 clean-white-sock colors. Clean-white-sock? The now notion with it even without the wherewithall. Whatever, get Adlastic at stores where clean-white-sock is all yours for just one young buck and a quarter. ADLER

THE ADLER COMPANY, CINCINNATI 14, OHIO

Available at:

Milton's Clothing Cupboard
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Keith "Forget" McClelland
of
New York

BATTLE ROYAL

It's the North vs. the South
in this Century's Most Spectacular

DRUM WAR

See them duel at:

The 1965 FALL FESTIVAL OF JAZZ
MEMORIAL HALL
FRIDAY, NOV. 12, 8:00 A.M.

Mike "Forget Hell" Adams
of
North Carolina

David Blossoms Out

By BOB QUINCY

The "Carolina Victory" march was appropriate for the occasion, but a more fitting tune after the 67-yard punt return for a touchdown last Saturday by North Carolina's David Riggs would have been, "It's Been A Long, Long Time."

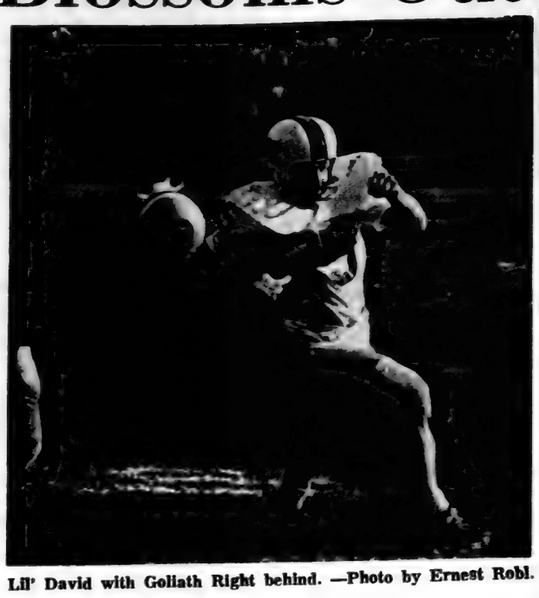
When Riggs, scampering like an elf evading elephants, hauled his 175 pounds into the Clemson end zone, it marked the first such caper for the Tar Heels in ten years. And, of course, the first since Coach Jim Hickey took reins seven seasons past.

There is an oddity concerning the two returns. The last one before Riggs turned the trick was by another fellow with the initials "DR" — one Dave Reed. Those initials to the Tar Heels are just what the Dr. ordered.

Reed pulled his scamper against North Carolina State in 1955. He took a John Zubaty punt on his 17-yard line and went 83 yards behind excellent blocking. Riggs, too, was afforded some nifty interference. It was a major play in UNC's 17-13 win.

Riggs is sort of tiny (5-9, 175) by modern football standards, but the zippy sophomore from Morganton is quite an exciting runner. He earned a starting job after the sixth game of the season, replacing Max Chapman at running back.

When Riggs was in high school, returning punts for touchdowns was a routine matter. As a UNC freshman, he continued making long runs and it was hoped he would carry his talent over to the varsity. But in early games, he got smothered before he could find a path.



Lil' David with Goliath Right behind. —Photo by Ernest Robl.

"Everyone was expecting too much of Dave," said Gene Sigmon, former captain who now helps with the frosh. "I knew he would come through, but it was going to take time. You just don't step into a varsity role and become a first-game sensation. But watch Riggs from here out. He's really dangerous."

When Riggs made the first team, he spelled Chapman, a senior. This means that UNC's entire backfield — Riggs, Danny Talbott, Tom Lampman, Bob Hume — will be back next season. A pleasant thought.

There are two more games for the Tar Heels, now 4-4 on the record book, and both are sellouts. Notre Dame had only a couple of hundred tickets remaining (in bleacher sections) on Monday. The Duke game has been sold for more than a month.

Gene Rector

ASSISTANT DTH SPORTS EDITOR

The Tar Heels are all too familiar with the frying pan. Now they'll hit the fire this Saturday at Notre Dame Stadium in South Bend, Ind.

Victories have come easy this season for the nationally fourth-ranked Irish. Only Big Ten power Purdue was able to upset the string 25-21 in the second game of the season.

The Irish have atoned for that sin, however. The clincher came last week against the Panthers of Pittsburgh. Notre Dame had a field-day, 69-13.

I saw the Notre Dame - Pittsburgh game," said assistant coach and chief scout Emmett Cheek. 'I left when the score was 69-7. I figured I wouldn't learn much more if I stayed."

"Notre Dame is solid both offensively and defensively," he said. "The line is big and experienced. The backs have real good speed, they hit hard, and they can find that hole and go all the way."

But there is one interesting thing about being in a hot situation — there is usually a way to cut the heat down.

The task will not be an easy one. But quite a number of fans forget the same Tar Heel team that lost to also - rans Virginia and Wake Forest also dumped national power Ohio State and ACC leader Clemson.

"Notre Dame will be one of the toughest teams we have played in a long while," said Jim Hickey. "All we can do is go up there and do the best job we can.

"We've been in eight cliff-hangers this season," he said. "I hope Saturday will be our ninth."

These Notre Dame fans will greet the Irish with an uproar as only Notre Dame fans are capable.

"Who are these guys," they will probably say — pointing to the blue-clad Tar Heels.

I have a feeling these Notre Dame fans will soon know this Tar Heel team. South Bend is the capital and Notre Dame is the emperor of college football.

But things may change — they just might change.

DKE, Pi Kap Phi Advance

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

Two fraternity teams, DKE Red and Pi Kappa Phi Dwarfs, won tag football games Tuesday to qualify for next week's playoffs.

DKE Red defeated Sigma Nu B, 28-15. Sawyer, Kenan, Kluttz and Carey scored touchdowns and Carey and Kenan added safeties to provide the win for the DKE's. John Bason and Piggie Potter scored for Sigma Nu.

Albert Ellis scored a second-half touchdown to lead the Pi Kappa Phi Dwarfs over KA Blue II, 7-0. Don McLeod added the extra point.

In other Tuesday results, Avery I smashed the Teague Totalers, 22-0. Bobby Biggerstaff, John Civils and Chuck DiPalma all had a touchdown for the winners.

The Alexander Poobahs slugged Connor in a wild game, 67-20. Rock Liles, Steve Spencer, and Rod Boyette all scored two TD's apiece for the Poobahs while Carl Crossman, Tom Deleot, Mike O'Bryan and Don Staley each contributed one.

On Monday the Phi Delt Blue team advanced to the playoffs by beating Lambda Chi Alpha, 14-0, and the Everett Rogah romped to a 39-6 decision over the Aycock Aardwolves.

Monday volleyball results: Old East over Carr Wheels, 2-0 (14-5, 15-1); Old West Stubs over Battle - Vance - Pettigrew, 2-0 (10-9, 9-2); Manly River rats over Mangum Wumps, 20 (15-2, 9-7); Ruffin Ramrods over Ruffin Raiders, 20 (15-5, 6-2); Teague Trojans over Avery Aces, 2-0 (7-5, 74).

Parker Fugitives over Parker Peanuts, 2-0 (15-10, 15-6); Aycock Aardwolves over Stacy Studs, 2-1 (14-8, 8-10, 6-4); Everett Pits over Graham Crackers, 2-0 (11-6, 10-6); Everett Dirksons over Lewis Blues, 21 (9-6, 8-9, 12-1); Everett Pachyderms over Lewis Reds, 21 (4-11, 9-5, 13-6).

Everett Rogahs over Lewis White, 20 (13-3, 10-7); Everett Zins over Stacy Colts, 2-0 (8-6, 12-7); Everett Grossmen over Graham Bells, 2-0 (9-7, 9-7); Joyner Heels over Alexander Phaedras, 2-0 (11-2, 12-0); Alexander Poobahs over Alexander Mooses, 21 (14-8, 14-16, 11-9).

Alexander Punies over Joyner Straps, 2-1 (7-10, 13-4, 10-2); Navy D D's over Law I, 21 (11-9, 8-10, 10-8); Law III over Navy III, 20 (8-6, 9-7).

Sports Notes

North Carolina students have bought about 3,400 tickets to the Duke - UNC football game to be played in Durham Nov. 30. About 600 student tickets — no date tickets — remain on sale.

Carolina's original allotment was exhausted Tuesday morning and Duke upped UNC's share of tickets to 4,000.

* * *

DEAN SMITH'S varsity basketball players will try again to put the freshmen in their places tonight at 8:15 — Carmichael Auditorium.

Last Saturday's scrimmage ended in a 78-74 embarrassment for the varsity. The game is open to the public.

* * *

North Carolina's varsity and frosh swimmers will combine to take on N. C. State's varsity and freshmen in an unscheduled meet here in Bowman Gray Pool Friday at 7:30 p.m. Coach Pat Earey calls it a "development" meet. No point totals will be kept.

COACH MARVIN Allen's soccer team deserves a turnout for their game with Trenton State here tomorrow at 3 p.m. on Fetzer Field.

The booters are 7-2 now with two games to go. They lost 1-0 overtime to perennial ACC champion Maryland and 2-1—also in overtime — to national defending champ Navy last Saturday at Annapolis.

They are a fine team — the best soccer outfit here ever.

It's DECORATIVE
But You Add The CATALYST of CREATIVITY!
Decorate, design, create for the season ahead. See our wide selections of instruction booklets - patterns and all materials for . . .
- Styrofoam
- Deco-foil
- Cooking Crystals

BILLY ARTHUR
Eastgate Shopping Center
Chapel Hill, N. C.

COLLEGE MEN
Part-time work available for 3 men who have 20-25 hours free per week. Must have a car and neat appearance. Earn $40 per week.
For interview call 968-4446 Thursday, Nov. 11 between 1:00 - 5:00 p.m.
Ask for Mr. Faulkner

He'd take on anyone, at anything, anytime
...it was only a matter of who came first!
MGM presents STEVE McQUEEN - EDWARD G. ROBINSON - ANN-MARGRET - KARL MALDEN - TUESDAY WELD
A MARTIN RANSOHOFF PRODUCTION THE CINCINNATI KID
METROCOLOR
NOW PLAYING
CAROLINA
A MAGNIFICENT, EXUBERANT ODE TO LIFE!
HELD OVER!
3rd BIG WEEK
WINNER OF 3 ACADEMY AWARDS!
ANTHONY QUINN
ALAN BATES
IRENE PAPAS
MICHAEL CACOYANNIS PRODUCTION
"ZORBA THE GREEK"
LILA KEDROVA
"A rare achievement in films!" — Life.
Wed.-Thurs., Mon., Tues.
RIALTO, Durham
Fri.-Sun. 1:42, 4:07, 6:33, 9:00
Mon.-Thurs. 1:05, 3:30, 6:00, 8:30

WE MAY NOT HAVE EVERYTHING, BUT WE HAVE GOT THE NEW PEANUTS SWEATSHIRTS
OH, GOOD GRIEF!
Ledbetter Pickard STATIONERS

if she doesn't give it to you... —get it yourself!
JADE EAST
Cologne, 6 oz., $4.50
After Shave, 6 oz., $3.50
Deodorant Stick, $1.75
Buddha Cologne Gift Package, 12 oz., $8.50
Spray Cologne, $3.50
Buddha Soap Gift Set, $4.00
Cologne, 4 oz., $3.00
After Shave, 4 oz., $2.50
SWANK, NEW YORK — SOLE DISTRIBUTOR

For the Traditionalist
Enjoy antique automobiles, the Flemish painters, Greek tragedies? You're a man who appreciates expressions of style which are meaningful and lasting .You want your appearance to reflect this attitude too.
Wear a classic Glenn Plaid Sports Coat by H. Borenstein and J. and F. Cricketeer. from the VMW.
From $39.95
Charge Accounts Invited
Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin St.

EVERYTHING IN BOOKS
THE BOOK EXCHANGE
AT FIVE POINTS DURHAM, N. C.
"The South's Largest and Most Complete Book Store"

Haven't Seen You Lately!!
Don't you like to browse in a bookshop!
It is a pleasure isn't it? And it's a pleasure to us to have you come by.
Browse if you like.
Buy if you wish.
Ask if you need assistance.
But do drop in and visit!
We're there from 9 to 9 Monday thru Friday, and 9 to 1 on Saturday.
Where? Thought everyone knew. On the ground floor of the UNC Library.
Be looking for you. O.K.?
BULL'S HEAD BOOKSHOP
Remember, Ground Floor UNC Library tradition

FALL PLUMAGE
Highly suitable suitings are again on hand for your inspection...tailored in the best of tradition with true shoulders, flapped pockets, hooked vents. The Proprietor invites you to consider his entire selection for all occasions of a business or social nature.
Town & Campus

Scottish cashmere by
BRAEMAR

New Scottish Colours of Bittersweet, Tartan Green, Persian Blue, Vicuna, Lovat & Lichen . . .
In Lambswool, Shetland & Cashmere . . .
Julian's

PRICES GO DOWN INSTEAD OF UP
COME IN AND PLACE YOUR BID
WENTWORTH & SLOAN
JEWELERS
167 E Franklin Tel. 942-4469

THE NEW YORK LIFE agent on your campus is a good man to know.
Write . . . Phone . . . Visit

GEORGE L. COXHEAD, C.L.U.
203½ East Franklin
(Over Dairy Bar) Ph. 942-4356
NEW YORK LIFE
NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

Belk Leggett Horton Co.

MOTHERS!
ONLY $1.00 PLUS 35c HANDLING CHARGE
LAST 3 DAYS
GET A HUGE 11x14 PHOTOGRAPH OF YOUR CHILD
Thursday - Friday - Saturday
November 11, 12, 13
HOURS: 10 A.M. — 1 P.M. — 2 P.M. — 5 P.M. DAILY AND 6:00 - 8:00 P.M. FRIDAY NIGHTS
- NO APPOINTMENT NEEDED
- SELECTION OF SEVERAL POSES
- FULL POSE PORTRAIT
- BABIES AND CHILDREN OF ALL AGES
- PORTRAIT DELIVERED AT STORE A FEW DAYS AFTER TAKEN
- SATISFACTION GUARANTEED
- GROUPS $1.00 PER CHILD

CHAPEL HILL, N. C.

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

Thought

When the moon's soft glow edges out the sun's dying rays and the cool fingers of evening announce the close of another day's toils, we birds seldon fly at night.

—Gertrude Glick

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Vol. 74, No. 50 | CHAPEL HILL NORTH CAROLINA THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 11, 1965 | Founded February 23, 1893.

Soccer

UNC soccer team squares off against Trenton State today at 3 p.m. on Fetzer Field. Coach Marvin Allen will be seeking his 100th victory as Tar Heel coach.

Coed Tells About Big, Dark City

(Editor's note: American's most stunning technological breakdown in many years left about 30 million Americans — a sixth of the population — without electricity for 10 hours Tuesday.

The blackout, still unexplained yesterday, started at 5:17 p.m. and spread through Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse, Utica, Schenectady, Troy and Albany. Four minutes later Boston was in Darkness, then the failure spread southward through Connecticut, northward into Vermont, New Hampshire, Maine and Canada.

It hit New York at 5:28 p.m., then leaped the Hudson River to parts of Northern New Jersery.

A UNC student was waiting for a flight back to school from New York when the blackout hit. Here is her reaction to the lights that failed.)

By SUZANNE MEARNS
Special To The DTH

A funny thing happened the other day. All the lights went out. There I was, sitting in the waiting-room at La Quardia airport in New York waiting for my flight to Raleigh-Durham to be announced. It was dusk in New York City and the flying commuters were all there, brief-case and trenchcoat in hand. Suddenly, the lights darkened, flickered briefly, and then all was black.

Strange things do happen in The City, and a waiting room is as good a place as any to wait. So we waited. And waited. And still no light.

The flight attendant was as confused, if not more so, as the waiting passengers were. "Ladies and gentlemen, we don't exactly know what's happened, but it seems that there has been an electrical failure here in the terminal. If you will just be patient, we'll have everything straightened out in a few minutes."

Half an hour later, "Uh, Ladies and gentlemen, uh, the power failure has been reported to be fairly wide-spread. We don't know exactly when it will be restored . . . if you live in the city, we suggest you delay your departure until tomorrow . . ."

Luckily, I have a sister living in Queens, which is about ten minutes from La Quardia. So I decided to take an extra-long weekend. I groped my way to a baggage locker in semi, very semi-darkness, left my suitcase, and went out to the ramp to find a taxi. The idea was not original. In the rapidly failing twlight, everyone wanted a taxi.

New Yorkers lack a certain Southern Hospitality. Fat ladies, old men and debonaire businessmen elbowed me out of the way, screamed "TAXI!" in my ear and stepped on my feet. But they're always that way, so I jostled back and made it to the curb where as many as ten people were piling into one taxi-cab.

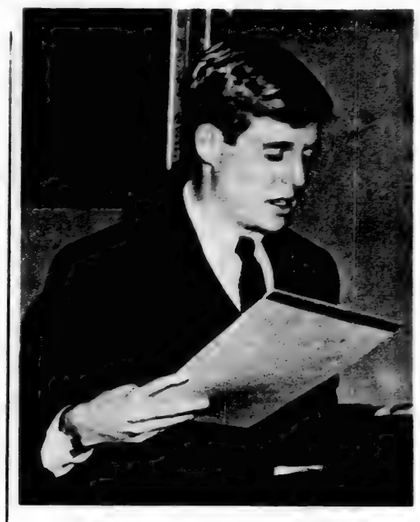
Finally an old gentleman leaned out of the window of a partially filled cab and asked me where I was going. I wasn't going where he was going, but he said to hop in anyway. I must have looked pretty pathetic by that time. As it turned out, the man was from Charlotte. The cab driver took me to my sister's apartment building first.

It was errie driving through a darkened city, particularly New York City, where the nights are hardly distinguishable from the days. People were walking around everywhere. Vendors were selling candles. Lighters flickered.

It was like a huge tapping ceremony taking place, except everyone was talking. Some were laughing and gay, others were frightened and lost. Policemen were everywhere, directing traffic and giving directions. By that time, night had fallen completely on the city but the neon signs and apartment windows remained dark.

At my sister's apartment, the doorman handed me a candle with a pleasant "Nice night out, huh?" Walking up the three flights of stairs like Lady MacBeth, I paused to watch the rescue operation going on at the elevator. The lady who finally emerged with groceries in arm said, "My husband will never believe this!" He probably will.

My sister met me at the door with a flash-light and the final witticizm, "Where were YOU when the lights went out?" I could have hit her.



MAUPIN . . . "Let's Get Out!"

VAN LOON . . . "Let's Stay In!"

Di Phi Senate Favors NSA; Audience Votes Negatively

By DAVID ROTHMAN
DTH Staff Writer

The Di-Phi Senate voted 10 to 2 in favor of UNC's continued NSA membership after listening to Tuesday's debate between Senior Class Vice President Armistead Maupin and Eric Van Loon, NSA campus coordinator.

But the majority of persons at the debate voted against belonging to the National Student Association.

Maupin, who wants NSA membership ended, said UNC students should not be compelled to support the liberal organization through student government activity fees.

He insisted there are principles involved and drew this analogy between NSA and a faulty soft drink machine:

"Our membership may cost 13 cents a student a year, but if I put a dime in a Coke machine and it doesn't give me a Coke, I'm going to kick the hell out of it."

He cited NSA's controversial stands on the Berkeley protest movement, integration and the admission of Red China into the United Nations.

Van Loon called attention to tribute paid NSA by Vice President Hubert Humphrey and other national leaders.

He said that although UNC students often disagree with NSA's positions, Carolina should remain in the organization because of services it renders like:

— Travel information.
— Insurance.
— Representation of U. S. students at international meetings.
— Advice to student governments on the handling of campus problems like parking.
— Suggestions on course evaluation and similar academic matters.

Van Loon claims that NSA's critics ave made its official policies seem more radical than they are.

He said NSA endorsed the Berkeley protest only after "all channels of communication" between students, faculty and the administration "were closed."

The campus coordinator denied his group glorifies unnecessary civil disobedience U. S. troops immediately ordered out of Viet Nam with the present situation.

Maupin said UNC students could use NSA's travel cards even if the school dropped its membership. He added:

"It's awful hard anyway to walk up to a Parisian and say, 'Give me a room at a 25 per cent discount' . . . even if the card says 'I go to school' in eight different languages."

He questioned the value of NSA's insurance plan, saying the association "gets a $1 kickback for every policy it sells."

Maupin insisted NSA's help was not needed to produce UNC's course evaluation guide.

Van Loon told the audience of more than 50 persons that the organization's insurance plan is also used by U. S. military academies. He said NSA furnished the forms for the evaluation guide.

The Senior Class Vice President constantly referred to the alleged domination of NSA by radicals. He claimed NSA had given the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee (SNCC) "funds for some project in Mississippi."

SNCC is an integration organization whose leaders have attacked U. S. Viet Nam policy.

Maupin mentioned NSA's appeal to member schools to contribute to the Free Speech Movement Defense und.

Other critics of the association did the following:

— Brought up additional examples of radicalism.
— Denounced NSA for lack of tolerance of conservatism.
— Said NSA has unwisely strayed from a policy of "regarding students in their role as students."
— Suggested their primary interest is in themselves, "not others . . . until I am prepared for it (by education)."

NSA Delegate Teddy O'Toole said the organization needs conservative delegations to balance out the radical influences cited by Maupin.

Like Van Loon, he praised NSA's services. He said he was in constant contact with NSA national headquarters, which he called responsive to students' needs.

Di-Phi Speaker Pro Tem John Greenbacker also suggested that UNC conservatives try to influence NSA.

Greenbacker warned the conservatives not to "look like a spoiled child and say we'll go back to Chapel Hill and sulk.

"They turn their backs to the intellectual intercourse of society," he said, referring to ultra-conservatives. "I hope the students of this school will not follow them."

NSA delegate Wright Doyle criticized many NSA convention delegations for advocating resolutions like the suggestion that unmarried students be given contraceptives.

But he added, "NSA is here to stay . . . We should change NSA . . . not stop it."

He agreed with Greenbacker that conservative delegations like UNC's must organize themselves better.

YRC, YDC Working Together

The presidents of the UNC chapters of the Young Democrats and Republicans are beginning to work with the newly-formed Committee on National Student Citizenship In Every National Case of Emergency (CONSCIENCE).

CONSCIENCE was created at Stanford University in response to nation-wide student demonstrations against U. S. policy in Vietnam. It is working on a bi-partisan basis through the leadership of Young Democrats and Young Republican organizations on all accredited college campuses.

Tom Bolch, head of the local YDC, and Dave Sentelle, Head of the local YRC, said yesterday they are beginning to work on a national lecture-in to be held on Nov. 22.

The purpose of the national lecture-in will be to inform President Johnson and national leaders all over the world that the great majority of American college students feel it is their responsibility to support the national government at times of international crisis.

UP Takes Eight, SP Five Offices; Others Contested

Freshman Profile Shows Top Breed

A new breed descended on Carolina this fall.

And the simplest way to describe it is a wealth of brain potential.

Statistics just released by the office of admissions show that 72.4 per cent of the class of 1970 came from the top fourth of their senior class.

Only 68.96 per cent of the boys achieved that mark, where 92.2 per cent of the girls were skimmed from the top fourth category.

Perhaps more amazing, and more revealing of UNC's rising standards of admission, is that not one student came from the bottom fourth of his senior graduating class last June.

Charles Bernard, director of admission, compiled the report. Broken into application totals, school backgrounds, college board scores and residence backgrounds, the profile also contains information on student aid, honor students and advanced placement.

Thirty-five states, the district of Columbia, two U. S. Possessions and nine foreign countries are represented.

Other than North Carolina, which donated 1,787 freshmen, Connecticut sent 21, Florida 42, Georgia 48, New York 65, Pennsylvania 46, Virginia 56, Maryland 36, New Jersey 27, West Virginia 13,, Ohio 12, and Massachusetts 12.

The rest of the states sent less than ten students each, or none. There were 1,969 freshmen and 336 women admitted.

College board averages, always a conversation piece for undergraduates, fell as follows:

North Carolina men averaged 536 in verbal and 578 in math, the women scored 563 in verbal and 577 in math. The totals were 540 in verbal and 578 in math.

Out-of-state men students scored 556 in verbal and averaged 641 in math. The women ranked 614 in verbal and 603 in math scores. Averages for out-of-state students were 564 in verbal scores and 635 for math.

Two women scored over 750 in the verbal test, 24 men scored over 750 in the math test and three women received 750 or better in math.

Some 4,870 North Carolinians applied for admission and 2,730 were admitted, or about 65 per cent. Out of state, some 3,457 applied and 651 were admitted, or about 56 per cent.

Ninety-five North Carolina counties are represented in the freshman class. Guilford and Mecklenburg sent 127 and 137 students respectively. The rest had less than a hundred, or none.

"The University has available approximately $275,000 for scholarship awards," the report said. Awards range from $175 to $1,100.

Student loans exceed $500.00.

The 364 students receiving scholarships this year in the freshman class have access to $123,250; part-time jobs totaled $32,901; and loans reached $90,480.

The total awards came to $246,631.

Students Urged To Observe Veterans Day

UNC students were urged yesterday to attend Veterans Day ceremonies by Student Body President Paul Dickson, Dean of Student Affairs C. O. Cathey, YDC President Tom Bolch and YRC President Dave Sentelle.

A student group headed by Charlotte senior Otto J. Reich had earlier obtained the University's permission to participate in the activities to show student support of U. S. Viet Nam policy.

Dickson said he would attend the occasion and told the DTH:

"This is an important day we set aside each year to recognize those who have fought and died for this county.

"I hope everybody will attend."

Dean Cathey explained he always goes to Veterans Day ceremonies. Cathey praised Reich and his followers.

"I'll be happy to join the ROTC groups when they hold their formal retreat ceremony honoring the soldiers who have fought in past wars and those who are fighting in Viet Nam," he said.

By JOHN GREENBACKER
DTH Political Writer

University Party candidates captured eight and Student Party candidates took five of the class offices in the fall elections Monday.

The vice presidencies of the freshman and junior classes and three Honor Council seats are still being contested, according to Elections Board Chairman Alvin Tyndall.

The student body defeated a controversial constitutional amendment which would have given the student body president the power to appoint the student body secretary by a vote of 2,581 to 1,137.

Vote tabulations for the junior class were marred by the loss of all junior ballots cast in Alexander Residence Hall.

Tyndall said yesterday Alexander's junior ballots were discovered missing after they had been sorted and set aside in a temporary tally room in Graham Memorial Monday night.

"We are trying to locate the missing ballots now," Tyndall said. "We may have to open the Alexander ballot box to check for them."

Tyndall said if all of the nearly 40 juniors in Alexander had voted entirely one way on each of their class office candidates, their votes could only have changed the winner of the junior class vice presidential race.

An exhaustive search for the missing ballots will be conducted before a new election between Bill Nucciaroni (UP) and Tom Gauntlett (SP) is called, according to Tyndall.

Junior class results are as follows:

— Mel Wright (SP) defeated Steve Salmony, 557 to 400, for the presidency.
— Tentative totals for Gauntlett and Nucciaroni are 472 and 484 respectively.
— Secretary is Liz Scott (UP).
— Treasurer is Susan Warren (UP).
— Social Chairman is Becky Tatum (UP).

Sophomore results are as follows:

— Bill Long (SP) defeated Dick Young, 548 to 418 for the presidency.
— Bob Neely (SP) is the vice president.
— Secretary is Karen Gibb (UP).
— Treasurer is Mike Rabb (SP).

Social Chairman is Liza Robb (UP).

Freshman results are as follows:

— Ben White (SP) defeated Rusty Clark (UP) 896 to 631 for the presidency.
— A recount will be held to confirm Aaron Clinard's (UP) victory over Buddy Farfour (SP). Totals were 781 to 739.
— Secretary is Ann Martin (UP).
— Treasurer is Tony Gore (UP).
— Social Chairman is Sarah Mendelson (UP).

Men's Council winners and their districts are as follows:

— Miles Eastwood in MD I.
— Winburne King in MD III.
— Bob Powell by write-in in MD IV.
— Kent Hedman by write-in in MD V.
— Ashley Thrift in MD VII.
— Champ Mitchell in MD VIII.
— Taylor Branch in MD X.

A recount will be held of the results in MD XII. Earlier tabulation showed Bill Findley had been defeated by L.E. Sawyer for that district's Men's Council seat by 245 to 241.

In MD XI defeated write-in candidate Mike Mulchey has claimed his opponent, Bob Shepard, was guilty of a violation of the election laws.

Mulchey said Shepard campaign literature was being handed out within 50 feet of the polling station on election day, which constitutes an illegal act.

Election results for Women's Council races are as follows:

— Madeline Grey and Valerie Gynne were elected to seats in WD I.
— Emily Cathey in WD II.
— Daryl Brinton in WD III.
— Karen Checksfield in WD IV.
— Shirley Appel in WD V.

A special runoff election will be held in WD VI between Gayle Chipman and Jean Caldwell. Both write-in opponents received 5 votes in Monday's balloting.

Party Claims

The chairmen of both the Student and the University parties claimed victory in the elections.

UP Chairman Jim Hubbard cited the greater number of offices won by UP candidates, and SP Chairman Frank Hodges pointed to the fact that SP candidates won the presidency of each class.

Tyndall said the only problem which arose during the elections other than the loss of the junior ballots was the tardiness of many poll tenders.

He said voting was very heavy for a fall election.

Students Favor Britt Amendment

Students at the University of North Carolina voted today in a poll showing that nine out of 10 students are in favor of the Britt Commission recommendations on amendment of the Speaker Ban Law.

A casual poll taken by the University News Bureau questioned 103 students at random in dining halls, on the campus, in the library, and outside classrooms.

The overwhleming majority of Carolina Students believe the Britt Commission findings and the recommendations of Governor Dan K. Moore are "a step in the right direction."

Most students would have preferred repeal. But they understand the practicality of compromise. They are willing to accept it.

The poll is considered a reasonably accurate measurement of popular opinion on the campus.

The questions was asked: "What do you think of the Britt Commission recommendations? Do you think the Legislature should amend the law as propseod? Are you pleased or displeased with the Britt Commission report?"

Of the 103 questioned, 89 said they are for amending the law as proposed by Senator Britt and Gov. Moore, as a fair compromise of a difficult problem.

Eight students said they are for outright repeal, and that no compromise suited them.

Three students are in favor of the present Speaker Ban Law as it exists.

Three more declare they are neutral or can't make up their minds. One said: "I don't know what to think. I haven't read the Daily Tar Heel today."

Special Election

A special election will be held next Tuesday in Craige Residence Hall to fill the vacancy in Student Legislature created by the death of independent Roger Davis.

Student Government by-laws state an independent resigning from legislature has the right to recommend his successor to the student body president for appointment.

Because of Davis' death, Student Body President Paul Dickson said yesterday he has requested that Craige Hall president Eddie McMahan conduct a special election among Craige residents to recommend someone to appoint to the seat.

Dickson said he will appoint whoever is selected.

"I wish to make it clear that this is not an official Student Government election but merely a means of seeking out the opinion of the residents of Craige," Dickson said.

"I fully expect that the election will be conducted as near as possible according to the relevant provisions of the General Elections Law to insure a fair and open election," he said.

McMahan said yesterday all candidates for the special election must submit their names to him before Friday.

A DTH Review

Playmakers' 'Summer Tree' Lauded

("The Summer Tree" by Randolph Umberger. Presented Nov. 9, 1965, by Carolina Playmakers.)

By PETER COWEN
Special To The DTH

"The Summer Tree" airs out issues which transcend the conflicts — old vs. new generation, urban vs. rural, ends justify means vs. strictly morality — around which the plot revolves.

In this comedy of initiation Shubert Playwright Umberger colors the 24-hour attempt of a low-income family to capitalize on its "big in" with irony, satire, country wit, fantasy and honest emotion.

An adolescent girl's misadventure with a roving Casanova set off a chain of events which eventually brings the family closer to an understanding of each other and themselves.

Floyd Ramsey (Bill Smith) is the bitter father of a family which lives in Raleigh "shortly after the end of World War I," who blames his wife for what he considers her failure to let him take the chance which might have made him a rich man.

The presence of his father-in-law, Adam Willis (Ben Jones), who lives with the family, is particularly chafing to Floyd since Mare Ramsey (Kristine Hoover), Floyd's daughter, eagerly clings to every romantic, make-believe notion fed to her by the old man.

Adam's closeness to his granddaughter is also a source of jealousy in Floyd. When Harry (James Lenz), Floyd and Meg's impetuous son comes home with the "important" car dealer, Paul Atkins (Pat Tone), each member of the family except Adam maneuvers for the brighters position in the sunlight of his favor.

Even when the family is suddenly alerted to the true nature of Atkins' character, Floyd and Harry rationalize about his attempted rape of Mare to the point that Mare is punished.

Ironically, though, the despicably insincere Atkins draws brother and sister closer to themselves and each other, as well as to Adam's earthly philosophy ("Nothing's possible when you're too rich to see the sunset.").

Kristine Hoover's portrayal of Miranda (Mare) gives substance to an almost fair-like young girl whose plight is that of a romantic in a world which doesn't understand romantics.

Miss Hoover's evocation of The Virgin at "the Virgin Tree" — with all the latter's ironic implications — and her speech to the "fire fishes" (both in Act II) are particularly powerful bits of acting. Adam Willis' memory is as keen as his wit ("you can be rich another time, huh?") and his country euphemisms are in direct contrast to Floyd's opportunism (speaking of Paul, "This is our big in") and compromising morality.

James Lenz could be more arragontly self-asserting in his role as the out-of-the-pan-into-the-fire Harry who momentarily renounces his sister to get ahead; Pat Tone is strong as the Machiavellian businessman who flatters and cons his way into all hearts except those of Adam and (strangely enough) a lady of ill repute.

Floyd's wife is both the sympathetic and reassuring mother and the appeaser of conflicts with the family as well as between the family and the neighbors. Anne Peacock does a creditable job in this respect, and Bill Smith lends tragic, if not even heroic qualities to Floyd's battle with life.

"The Summer Tree" though, would be notably lacing without is genuinely appealing Tony Cahoon. Paul Byron Baker makes this carefree country boy come alive with acting which will make future casting of the part difficult without him.

Wendy Fares is frustratingly convincing as Tony's malicious gossiping and self-righteous mother, and even the two girls of ill repute (teasingly played by Jene Williams and Sandy Tinker) seem mild in comparison to the evil which Dora Cahoon represents.

Umberger no doubt had Shakespeare's comedy "The Tempest" in mind when he wrote "The Summer Tree." Mare hopes to be called by her real name, Miranda, some day and both she and her namesake from "The Tempest" are romantic young girls, intrigued by the world of the supernatural.

The strikingly raw element of evil innate to the characters of Paul Atkins and Caliban are set against the wise old men Adam and Prospero (Floyd in some respects is also analogous to Prospero). Although Prospero's choice of reason over vengence has a different implication, Floyd also makes this choice.

Willy Loman in Henry Miller's "Death of a Salesman" may be seen in Floyd's disgust at his own failure in life and his desire to build at any cost (most obviously that of refusing to face the truth) a son who will make up for his lack of success. Willy and Adam retreat into distorted dream worlds of the past while Biff and Harry are defeated by the world they set out to conquer.

The set in each scene is skillfully constructed around the tree which gives life meaning to either Adam (Scenes I and III) or Mare (Scene I). Their dreams assume substance in the trees, just as the trees come to life in the summer (when "there isn't any school"). "The Summer Tree" will make every viewer who experiences it question his relationship to the Twentieth Century society, yet its beauty resides in the appealing simplicity of a story which defies the efforts of each generation to change it.

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of the Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. Letters and columns, covering a wide range of views, reflect the personal opinions of their authors.
ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

A Special Vets' Day

Today is Veterans' Day and the customary observance of the occasion will be held at 4 p.m. in Polk Place, behind South Building.

Usually, several hundred students — mostly those who just happen to be passing by — stop and watch the ceremonies at the flag pole.

This year, however, there will be a difference. Thanks to a very small group of students who had an idea and the willingness to work for it, the meaning of the gathering will be directed toward support of American fighting men in Viet Nam and United States policy there.

The school administration has given permission for the gathering, and the departments of Naval and Air Science heartily endorse it. All ROTC cadets, including drill teams and bands, will be present.

The ceremonies will be short and simple — the raising of the flag, the convocation and placing of a wreath at the flag pole. This is no "demonstration." The significance of the affair will be the simple act of attendance. It is not intended to be a rally of saber-rattling militarists.

It is meant to be a gathering of students and faculty who, no matter how much they abhor war of any sort, feel their first obligation is to support their nation.

A small minority of our students have had their "get out of Viet Nam" say-so here and at Fort Bragg. Now the large majority which we feel supports American policy can "speak" by appearing at Polk Place today.

Please do.

Check The Want Ads

One of the lunlieliest, but most dependable, sources of entertainment in almost any newspaper or magazine is the classified advertising section.

The New Republic probably surpasses most with its interesting ads, and we would like to share these, from the latest issue, with you:

* * *

"Silence those aggressive hucksters! Minimize commercial brain-washing! Silence commercials with simple device. Illustrated 'do-it-yourself' instructions plus safety resistor, 25 cents; complete kit, including switch wire and safety resistor, $1.50 . . . Berkeley 1, California.

* * *

"'Will Forms.' Two will forms and book on wills. $1.00 complete.

* * *

"Hotel. Modern, informal, integrated hideaway for delightful, talented, creative guests.

* * *

"Maya ruins. Yucatan, Chiapas, Quintana Roo, Cozumel Island — with Anthropologist. December.

* * *

"If you're old enough to fight, you're old enough to vote. 'Age 18 Vote!' bumper banners now three for $1.00.

* * *

"How and where to live in remote areas of the U. S. Pioneer Newsletter — monthly, $2 year.

* * *

"Society for Humane Abortion. For information, send stamped self-addressed envelope to S.H.A. . . .

* * *

"Tired of being on the fringe? An unusual new diploma in your name certifies you a member of 'The Establishment.' Send 50 cents . . .

* * *

"Freedom Christmas cards. 'The Children of Birmingham,' 'This Year the Freedom Tree.' Ten cents apiece (regularly 15 cents). Do not send cash. Orders of less than ten cards not accepted.

* * *

"Make delicious wines, beers, ciders. Fifteen famous recipes $1.

* * *

"Nut-of-the-Month Club (tm) special! Twelve kinds of nut meats in two 9-inch plastic Nibble Trays. $3.95 plus 55 cents postage. Free nutty horoscope."

The Daily Tar Heel

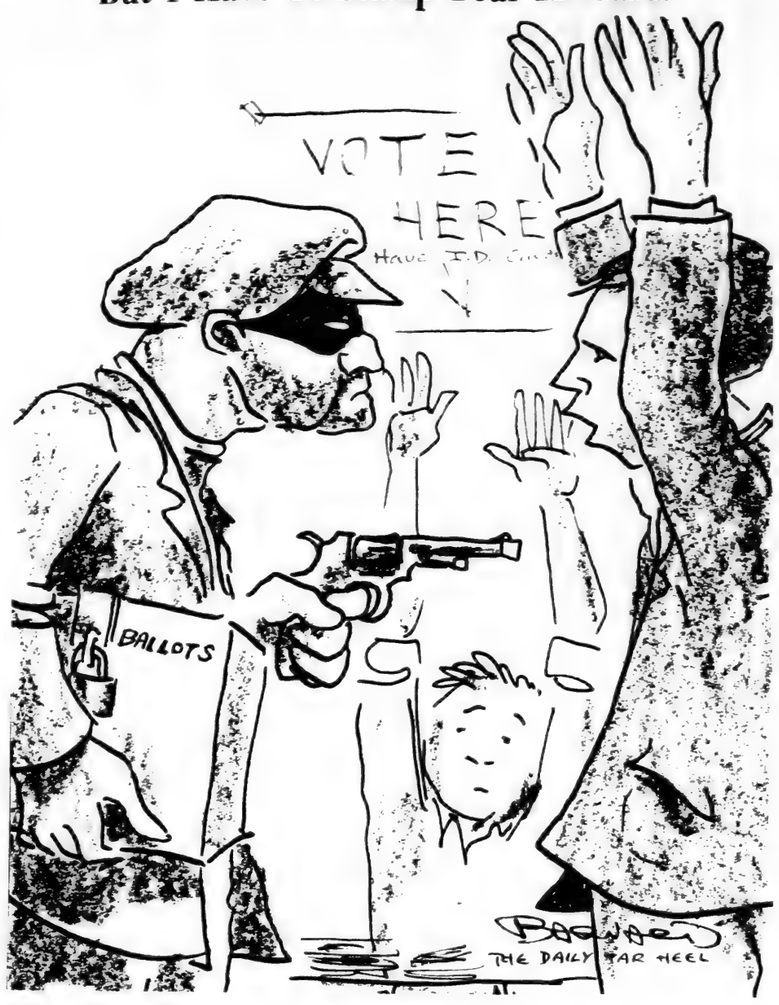
72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; John Jennrich, associate editor; Barry Jacobs, managing editor; Fred Thomas, news editor, Pat Stith, sports editor; Gene Rector, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; John Greenbacker, political writer; Ed Freakley, Andy Myers, Lynne Harvel, Lynne Sizemore, David Rothman, Ray Linville, staff writers; Jack Harrington, bus. mgr.; Tom Clark, asst. bus. mgr.; Woody Sobol, ad. mgr.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all ap news dispatches.

'But I Have To Stamp Your ID Card!'



David Rothman

Smog Tax Boosts Economy

A tax on smog and junk cars?

President Johnson's Science Advisory Committee recently suggested the government tax pollutors of the air and water rather than ban pollution outright.

Corporations could continue filling the atmosphere with soot and dumping poisonous chemicals into lakes. They'd just have to contribute to the federal treasury.

I'm convinced the committee's proposal is really a secret revenue-raising measure.

The expert cleverly realize that pollution is so essential to our nation's economy that parts of Lake Erie can't support life because of all the industrial chemicals dumped into it. The committee members even

The experts cleverly realize that pollution Just as long as they pay the government their pollution taxes so Johnson can balance his budget. Good idea.

Perhaps I support the proposal because I don't own a junk automobile (to be taxed as "personal property"). However, I know the Great Society badly needs money to finance worthy projects like the war on poverty, the space race, federal aid to education, the war in Viet Nam and press agents for Luci.

After the proposal becomes law, many public - spirited companies will patriotically continue jeopardizing the nation's health so they can pay their pollution taxes. But what about the miserly ones who'll use such unscrupulous loopholes as air filters and water purification equipment?

Here's what happened when the Internal Revenue Service began collecting pollution payments:

The year was 1970. A large automobile company had just announced plans to build a car without carbon dioxide fumes.

"But you can't do that to us," an Administration official pleaded. "President Johnson needs as much pollution tax money as possible to buy roller skates for Job Corpsmen."

"I'm sorry," said the auto company's representative. "I've got strict orders from my superiors to maintain our dividends—even if that means building non-polluting cars to lessen our taxes. Besides, I am told carbon dioxide shortens human life."

"Nonsense. Certainly smog and carbon dioxide have minor side effects like lung cancer, but we need the money to enlarge the administration's medicare program."

"I still say our company has a constitutional right to produce smog-less cars. Tampering with that right would hurt private enterprise. Furthermore, did you know that by the year 2000 there will be 25 per ent more carbon dioxide in our atmosphere than at the present time due to air pollution?"

"No, I didn't. But I don't care unless the air's so thick our rockets can't get through it.

"But excessive carbon dioxide in the atmosphere could melt polar icecaps, causing the ocean levels to rise and flood our coasts."

"Excellent. Then we won't have to build as many port facilities. Meanwhile, we'd like you to pollute the air so we'll have a big budget to fight the war in Viet Nam."

"My company absolutely refuses to pollute the atmosphere."

"Then I'm afraid the President will have to discipline you by releasing junk automobiles from government stockpiles. And he's already mad enough as it is—now that Congress says he must raise more money for that environmental health center."

Letters To The Editor

'Anemic' Infirmary And Campus Radio

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

The purpose of the infirmary is to care for and attempt to cure the ailing student. But, should it not also be able to assist the student in a medical emergency? The infirmary is our "door" to the world of medical care and, as students, we are instructed to refer to it in all cases which fall under its calling. It, in turn, should be equiped, if not directly, at least in an advisory capacity, to cope with any medical problem of the student. In my experiences with our infirmary, it has failed to adequately meet this need.

I shall cite two specific examples: Last winter upon finding myself with a roommate in need of prompt medical attention, I proceeded to call the infirmary for assistance. The receptionist not only could not procure an ambulance for me, but she DID NOT KNOW how to go about getting one. (For your own personal reference, look under "ambulance service" in the yellow pages—for the nearest funeral home. I hope that receptionist is reading this so she'll know where to find an ambulance if she ever needs one.)

My second encounter with the infirmary's anemic emergency tactics occurred more recently — last week when a coed in our dorm burned herself very badly. I immediately called the infirmary that the girl was on her way over and for them to have someone on hand. Well, the intern on duty was there but he couldn't do anything until a doctor arrived. It was 30 minutes before someone with authority came even to administer her something for the pain.

I'm sure that I'm not the only one who has noticed this "I don't give a ——" posture of much of our infirmary staff. Such a brazen lackadaisical attitude toward the well-being of the student (if merely as a human being) is not only inhuman, but in my opinion is a disgrace to the responsibilities of the medical profession.

Ann Cameron
President, Smith Dorm

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

ONLY YOU CAN BRING ABOUT CAMPUS RADIO; so read the poster put out by our committee. Little did I know how prophetic those words would be. Actually, what I meant when I wrote them was that only strong popular support for Campus Radio could make the Student Legislature get off its laurels and pass the necessary legislation to create Campus Radio. But I could hardly say all that on a poster, and besides, John Stupak and I had been cautioned not to incur the wrath of that marvelous body, the Student Legislature. Little did we know that the few "big movers" in that body would ignore the referendum that they had demanded, and in so doing slap 3,301 students in the face for being so naive as to think that they had a real voice in their government. I realize that 1,099 students voted against Campus Radio, and perhaps it looks like they were represented in the legislative decision, but rather I should think that they just happened to be on the "right side." Given another issue they might find themselves in the majority and likewise cast aside like erring children.

What am I talking about here? Of course, I am attempting to create even greater support for Campus Radio, but at the same time I am discussing one of our most precious rights as students on this campus and that is our right to responsible representation in Student Legislature. Everyone must be familiar with the theory that in the ideal democratic society, the citizenry has every right to express its views and that the government is responsible to uphold the wishes of the majority. We can't expect ideal democracy but we can and should expect that the Student Legislature would adhere to it as closely as possible. But there is clear evidence that, at present, the wishes of the majority and responsibility to the student body are being ignored by our legislature. All that is left to us is our voice, as anyone who has noticed the number of petitions circulated this year can plainly see. There is a growing discontent.

First, the Campus Radio Committee let the big movers in the Student Legislature know that we are now on a war footing and that we intend to bypass them by having the students who support Campus Radio vote it into existence directly.

The next article came from Jim Little, Speaker Pro Tem of the legislature, who stated, ". . . if legislators are not willing to see the leadership role and responsibility of Student Legislature, then the very existence of Legislature should be scrutinized." The next day, Sherry O'Donnell, Student Body Secretary, attacked the special session of Nov. 2 as a "disgusting example of legislative irresponsibility" and then accused them of a "general close-mindedness and willful disregard for the legislative responsibility.

But it need not be this way! Perhaps our legislators have forgotten their responsibility to the student body, but as a body we can remind them in no uncertain terms that they are in legislature to represent us, that our voice means a great deal more than they suppose. If we must, we can control Student Legislature. Fellow students, you have been called a sleeping giant, but the alarm has sounded. It's Time To Get up!

Richard B. Conely
2-A Bolin Heights

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Regarding the Friday, Nov. 5, editorial about Joyner, we at Alexander realize that Joyner is backward in other ways besides physical appearance, such as organization and residents. We are not shocked to see Joyner built backward since such a state of confusion exists there all the time.

In a dynamic contrast, we see Winston dorm. In a recent letter to The Daily Tar Heel, they demonstrated how progressive thinking they are by advocating a change in the rules to allow more out-of-town girls to stay in their rooms. Since they have shown that they are thinking so much of the Carolina boys, we gentlemen of Alexander would like to express our continually fine thoughts about them.

To our northern neighbor Joyner, we only wish you could attain the heights that our Southern Belles in Winston have reached.

Ken Giles, President
Alexander Residence Hall

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Thus far this year I have been in general agreement with the views expressed in the DTH editorials. I have, however, been sorely embarrassed by the utter ineptness with which these views have been defended.

Maupin managed to give the impression that the moral and political issues at stake in the controversy with the SDS were best evaluated with ones olfactory faculty. Now the "sniff test" may provide an adequate assessment of the merits of coffee or shave lotion, but most of us have a faculty more appropriate to ideas. I am convinced that our position in Viet Nam can be successfully defended without resort to such 'ad hominem' arguments.

McCrary invites "feedback" to legislators who voted against their constitutuents' wishes. I have some "feedback" for McCrary.

I voted for campus radio; my representative voted against it. But my disappointment at this setback pales beside my dismay at the view of representative government expressed in McCrary's editorial.

Under the political system obtaining in this country and on this campus, I have an inalienable right to representation. My views do not enjoy this same right. I abuse my right to vote if I vote for a legislator solely because he shares my views.

Deliberation is the essence of a legislature. Able legislators are men with the diligence to do the difficult and time-consuming job of determining the facts in the case, and the intelligence and sensitivity to decide the issue on the basis of these facts. It is unreasonable to expect of even the most conscientious of constituents such expertise as his representative should have. In many areas it is impossible for the voter to secure the relevant information, e.g. military security, etc.

Is this not the salient difference between the demagogue and the statesman? Statesmen like the late Rep. Herbert Bonner, Sen. William Fulbright and Rep. Hale Boggs have had the foresight to vote against the wishes of their constituents, when in their considered judgment the situation demanded it; and often at some risk.

Perhaps the vote on campus radio was not a case of such foresight. But the bare fact that these representatives have opposed their constituents' interests.

Referenda and other appeals to the "wisdom of the masses," if taken as the final word, are prejudicial to the perpetuity of that limited democracy which has served this country so well.

Wade Marlette
4 Terrace Apts.

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

As I was flipping through my latest radio catalogue, looking over special sales on cheap Japanese FM radios, a solution to the present campus radio controversy struck me, one which should make all parties happy. We have seen that only one-third of the campus students even had enough interest in the question of a carrier-current campus radio station to vote in the referendum, and only one-fourth of the campus students were in favor of such a costly endeavor ($36,000 I find that Student Government could purchase an FM radio for each student who voted in favor of the referendum! This would allow these interested students to hear our university's present radio station, WUNC, whether they live in a dorm or anywhere off campus (where they would not have been reached by the proposed campus radio plan), and would also eliminate the need for spending an additional $11,000 each succeeding year. And endeavor ($36,000). I find that Student Government and The Daily Tar Heel could perhaps then devote their time to considering the relevant issues which concern students.

Peter H. Campbell
413 Patterson Place

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Free Flick

"A Taste of Honey" is tonight's flick in Carroll Hall at 7 and 9:30 p.m. It's all about a young girl's seduction and its effect upon her life.

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Vol. 74, No. 51 | CHAPEL HILL NORTH CAROLINA FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 12, 1965 | Founded February 23, 1893.

Varsity Victory

Visit the Daily Tar Heel sports' page and read how the varsity Tar Heels grabbed their first victory over the freshmen.

Public Can Speak At Special Session

RALEIGH (AP) — The General Assembly's presiding officers said Thursday public hearings will be held next week during a special session to consider amending the state's speaker ban law.

House Speaker Pat Taylor and Lt. Gov. Bob Scott said in a joint statement that anyone wishing to testify at th hearings should notify them by Sunday.

The Assembly will meet to consider recommendations of a blue-ribbon speaker ban study commission. The commission recommended that the law be changed to return to university and college boards of trustees authority to regulate visiting speakers.

"In order to conserve time and expense we are hopeful that testimony can be confined to the absolute minimum," said Taylor and Scott in their statement. "Public hearings previously held by the study commission were given wide publicity and all viewpoints were thoroughly discussed. However, any organization or person desiring to be heard will be given the opportunity to do so, providing notification is received by Nov. 14."

J. Alvis Carver of Dunn, state commander of the American Legion, said he feels sure he and his group will wish to be heard. The Legion is a strong supporter of the speaker ban law.

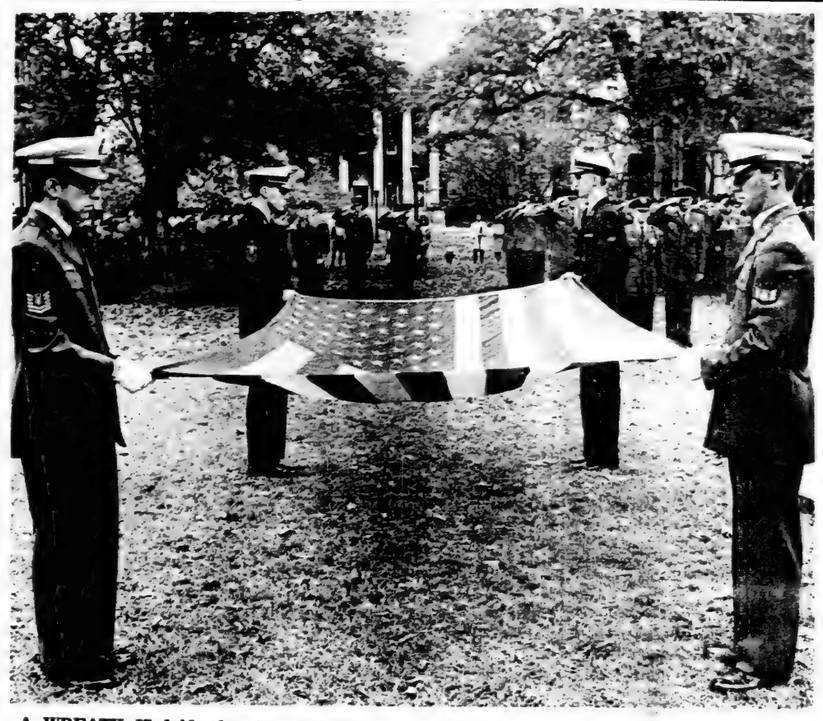
Consolidated University President William Friday, who has led opposition to the law, said he did not know whether he or any othe representative of the university will ask to be heard. Friday has endorsed recommendations of the study commission.

Meanwhile, trustees of the Consolidated University are expected to approve Friday a policy statement concerning visiting speakers to the four campuses.

The policy pledges trustees to make visits by Communists "infrequent and then only when it will clearly serve to advantage of education."

Gov. Dan Moore will preside at the meeting of trustees in the old House Chamber in the Capitol at 11 a.m.

Other state - supported colleges whose trustees already have approved the speaker ban statement include: Pembroke State College, East Carolina College, Wilmington College, A & T College, North Carolina College, Winston - Salem State College, Western Carolina College, and Asheville - Biltmore College.



A WREATH IS laid, the flag is folded and Carolina students support American life in Viet Nam.

— DTH Photo By Ernest Robl.

Chilly Air Accents Vets Day Ceremony

By ED FREAKLEY
DTH Staff Writer

More than 1,200 students, ROTC cadets, and midshipmen gathered under heavy clouds Thursday to pay tribute to American fighting men, past and present, and to support U. S. policy in Viet Nam.

The mood of the Veterans' Day ceremonies was accented by chill in the air and the bleakness of weather.

There was a still hush over the crowd and even as students gathered they whispered softly.

As the bell in South Building tolled 4 p.m. the beat of drums could be heard approaching Polk Place.

A few minutes later the Naval ROTC Drum and Bugle Corps followed by the Battalion of Midshipmen was marching into the quadrangle.

Behind them marched the Air Force ROTC Group and their band.

The companies of the Navy lined one side of the quad while the Air Force Squadrons lined the other. They stood at attention facing each other with the flag pole between them.

The two units contained about 500 UNC cadets and midshipmen, each standing straight and tall for his country. The flag swung freely in the light breeze.

Air Force, Navy, Marine and Army officers stood in the reviewing area. They proudly watched the demonstration of patriotism.

They were standing but 300 yards from where only recently a group of about 20 students had picketed in Y-Court against American policy in Viet Nam.

With the group of officers was Paul Dickson representing the student body and Dean C. O. Cathey representing the University administration.

As the program began a Naval Chaplain delivered the invocation.

The heads of all were bowed and the trees were quiet in the breeze. The Chaplain called on God to give courage and to help Americans realize their freedom and fulfill their responsibilities.

A Navy Midshipman stepped forward and told the assembly that "pressure is being brought to bear on those who would deny freedom to their neighbors."

He was followed by an Air Force Cadet who said, "Those of us who enjoy liberty salute those who have died giving this liberty to us."

President Paul Dickson said, "I personally support President Johnson's goal in Viet Nam and there is no doubt in my mind that the majority of my fellow students do also.

"We are currently engaged in a confiict many miles from home. Our involvement in this conflict is in the traditional principles of this country. Through this conflict we are seeking to gain freedom and independence for Viet Nam.

"The freedom and independence of all nations is a goal for which this country has always strived," Dickson said.

As he spoke the president and vice president of Maverick House, Eddie McMahon and Otto Reich, laid a wreath, donated by the Chapel Hill Florist, at the base of the flag.

Following the ceremonies the wreath was taken to the Chapel Hill Cemetery where it was put on the grave of a soldier who died fighting for America.

After Dickson's speech "Retreat" was sounded and then as the National Anthem drifted into the air the flag was slowly lowered.

Seven midshipmen marched forward. Three times they fired a volley. As the 21-gun salute echoed away the notes of "Taps" were sounded.

The 30 - minute ceremony was over and the students slipped away in small groups.

But the war in Viet Nam goes on. Perhaps in some small way yesterday's ceremony will help. At any rate the still and quiet voice of those 1,200 speaks much louder than the thundering and noisy voice of earlier and much smaller groups.

Ike Possibly Facing Full Heart Attack

FT. GORDON, Ga. (AP) — Doctors attending former President Dwight D. Eisenhower suggested the possibility Thursday that he could be threatened with a full-blown heart attack, but they said he "spent a comfortable day."

Eisenhower had two attacks of angina pectoris or heart pains, one early Tuesday morning and one Wednesday afternoon, and the doctors called these threatening.

Yet they said his general condition was good, and they are giving preventive treatments.

A late afternoon medical bulletin said merely that he spent a comfortable day "reading and visiting" with Mrs. Eisenhower and with his younger brother, Milton, and members of his staff.

Milton, and the Eisenhowers' son, John, showed up at a press briefing.

The doctors were not there.

Speaking for them, and giving their answers to questions reporters had put in writing was the Ft. Gordon press officer, Capt. Wallace Hitchcock.

In answer to one question, he said that a special cardiac bed was brought to the hospital Thursday and Eisenhower has been put in it.

Harry Byrd Resigns From Senate

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Sen. Harry Flood Byrd, who fought a rear guard action for economy in government for more than 30 years, resigned from the U. S. Senate Thursday.

The 78-year-old Byrd, chairman of the powerful Senate Finance Committee and Patriarch of the Virginia Democratic organization, gave physical infirmities as the reason for his decision.

His action, announced to a hastily called news conference by Gov. Albertis S. Harrison Jr. caught the state capitol by surprise. And it immediately touched off a wave of speculation on the appointee Harrison will name shortly to serve, at least, until the next general election in November, 1966.

The name of the Senator's son, State Sen. Harry F. Byrd, Jr., topped the speculation list. Usually knowledgeable politicians regarded Byrd, Jr. as the favorite although several other names were mentioned, including Rep. William M. Tuck, like the Senator, a former Virginia Governor.

Harrison would say only he expected to announce his appointment soon — without saying whether he meant a few days or a few weeks.

The retirement announcement, delivered to Harrison at 10 p.m. last night and accepted by the Governor today, marked the end of an era in Virginia politics and plainly shook the state's political structure.

The import of Byrd's retirement — effective immediately — also may be felt in the Congress, notably on the Finance Committee, a clearing house for much of the administration's major legislation.

Sen. Russell Long of Louisiana, the ranking Democrat on the committee, will succeed Byrd in the normal order of things and has been more friendly to some of the president's policies than has the retiring chairman.

A flood of expressions of regret at the necessity for Byrd's decision greeted the announcement in Washington, Virginia and elsewhere in the nation.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey said the Senate was losing one of its most distinguished members. "My friend, Harry Byrd, has given a lifetime of service to his state and nation," the Vice President said. "He is a man of sincere convictions, always a gentleman and ever a patriot."

Byrd had his political foes as well as supporters but the enmity seldom affected personal friendships.

From both sides in Washington came expressions from Byrd's colleagues.

Sen. George D. Aiken of Vermont, the Senate's senior Republican, called Byrd "a tower of strength in the Senate."

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said, "While I honor his wishes in this matter, I do so with regret."

And Virginia' Governor Harrison, calling Byrd "one of our great Americans" said he would try to get Byrd to change his mind but knew such a move would be useless.

Byrd sought to bow out in 1958, but in the face of an impending damaging fight between Tuck and John S. Battle, also a former Governor, to succeed him, Byrd acquiesced in a legislative resolution asking him to change his mind. He won reelection easily as he did last year for a sixth full senate term.

Judicial Proposals Aren't Final Position – MacNair

The proposals for judicial reform submitted to the faculty by a student committee were only intended to serve as guidelines for discussion, a committee member said yesterday.

Van MacNair, chairman of the Men's Honor Council and a member of the special President's Ad-hoc Commission on the Judiciary, added that the proposals "were in no way meant to represent a final or inflexible stand or position."

He criticized the report in The Daily Tar Heel for implying that these proposals were final and for not giving "adequate explanation or justification for the various proposals submitted."

McNair said the Commission wanted to emphasize that the proposals were only introductory suggestions to serve as a basis for discussion with the Faculty Committee on Student Discipline.

MacNair reported that two meetings between students and faculty have taken place and "have brought increased understanding, cooperation, and respect on the part of all concerned."

"Out of these and subsequent meetings will come revised and improved proposals which will be submitted to students for approval," he said.

LAST DAY TODAY to contribute paperbacks for U. S. troops in Viet Nam. Cynthia Seawell and Corky Jackson, Air Force Angels; Midshipman Larry Markham; and Cadets Robert Newlin and Robert Beckett urge students to leave their books in cardboard barrels in dorms, Y-Court, Scuttlebutt and other areas on campus.

MRC Referendum Will Ask For Increase In Room Rent

By FRED THOMAS
DTH News Editor

The Men's Residence Council Wednesday passed a resolution which might result in a $3.20 per semester hike in residence hall room rent.

The group unanimously approved a resolution authorizing MRC President Sonny Pepper to instruct the MRC Elections Board to hold a referendum in all men's residence halls Nov. 22.

An affirmative vote in the referendum would indicate a student's approval of increasing semester room rent $3.20: $1 per man for each residence hall, $2 per man for each residence college and $.20 per man for paying intramural managers.

Pepper introduced the resolution noting that he had received petitions containing signatures of an average of 75 per cent of the residents of every men's residence hall not already included in the residence college system, asking that they be included.

Pepper said all men's residence halls will be in the residence college system before the end of this semester.

Need Money

"But we run into a problem starting a residence college without money," he said.

"Student Legislature has given money to the three existing residence colleges to support them the rest of this semester.

"But they have said they will not continue to bear this huge financial burden," Pepper said.

"We are putting the residence college system to the test."

He said he does not feel it is good for residence halls to have to look to Student Government for money.

"Residence halls have been free to spend their money as they have chosen since Old East was built in 1793.

"We don't want to be bound by the shackles of Student Government because we are receiving money from them now," he said.

Pepper explained to the group that $1.50 of each student's room rent goes to his residence hall's social fund under the present system.

With the increase each residence hall would receive $2.50 per man and each residence college would receive $2 per man. In addition, intramural managers would be paid.

Students Plan Telegram For Troops

A group of UNC students is planning a Thanksgiving Day telegram for U. S. forces in Viet Nam.

David Kiel asked the Men's Residence Council Wednesday night to join the Women's Residence Council, Interfraternity Council, Panhellenic Council, and other student organizations in supporting this show of gratitude to U. S. fighting men.

The MRC unanimously passed a resolution endorsing the plan.

Kiel told the group, "We are not asking anyone to support or condemn U. S. foreign policy.

"But people our age are fighting and dying in Viet Nam. We want to send them a simple message of graditude for what they are doing on Thanksgiving Day."

He said booths will be set up at several locations on campus to get "as many thousands of signatures as possible.

"We want to send the telegram to Gen. Westmorland."

The booths will be set up Sunday and the group hopes to have a sufficient number of signatures by Wednesday.

If a great enough number of names is not obtained by Wednesday, the MRC, WRC, IFC and Panhellenic Society will be called on to work in the individual residence halls and houses for more signatures, Kiel said.

Board Meeting

There will be a special meeting of the Elections Board today from 2 to 6 p.m. in Roland Parker Lounge III of Graham Memorial.

All board members must attend, according to chairman Alvin Tyndall.

Frosh Want Money Today

Beginning today, stands will be set up in all campus cafeterias, and canvassers will be sent through the residence halls in order to solicit a quarter from all students.

This will be the first Freshman class project of the year. Part of the money will be put in the class treasury. The remainder will be used to buy post cards with a cartoon printed on the back.

The cartoon depicts a giant UNC hand holding up a plump blue devil by the tail. These cards will be sent to all residence rooms at Duke University.

Job Interviews

The following companies will recruit on campus next week:

Monday, Nov. 15 — Burlington Industries, Inc.; Union Carbide Corporation; U. S. Securities & Exchange Commission; Arthur Andersen & Company.

Tuesday, Nov. 16 — Burlington Industries, Inc.; National Biscuit Company; Scott Paper Company; Arthur Andersen & Company.

Wednesday, Nov. 17 — Sears Roebuck & Company; Cooperative College Registry; Corning Glass Works; Wachovia Bank & Trust Company; University of Pennsylvania Law School; Amos Tuck School of Business Administration of Dartmouth College.

Thursday, Nov. 18 — Merck & Co., Inc.; Humble Oil & Refining Company; W. R. Grace & Co. (summer work).

Friday, Nov. 19 — S. D. Lidesdorf & Company; Chase Manhattan Bank; Firestone Synthetic Fibers Co.; Procter & Gamble Company (summer work); Sonoco Products Company.

Hey, You Get Off Of My Cloud

By SANDY TREADWELL
DTH Staff Writer

The lights of Reynolds Coliseum dimmed and WKIX-man Charlie Brown waddled up the stairs and onto the platform.

"And now, the group you've all been waiting for. The fabulous ROLLING STONES."

The Coliseum erupted with tumultuous screams and applause.

A phalanx of young girls rushed towards the platform and jumped all over the victims in the first five rows.

Several policemen stationed themselves strategically around the platform.

Suddenly, four small men dressed in tight pants, spiked boots, and turtle-necked shirts rushed to their electric guitars and drums and the small electric organ.

The crowds shreiked with happiness and thunderous chords blasted through amplifiers and the famed Mick Jagger encompassed a microphone with his huge mouth.

"HEY, hey, YOU, you, GET OF OF MY CLOUD," the Stones yelled and mass hysteria broke out among the spectators squatting in the pit beyond and below Mick's gyrating body.

Everyone leaped to his feet and tossed crumpled love notes, programs, and cigarette butts onto the platform.

Then fights for the privilege of watching the Stones from standing on the back of chairs broke out. A Carolina student heaved a State man from a chair. A fist fight nearly broke out and the State student was sent sprawling into the crowd. "Good luck to Carolina this Saturday at South Bend," the loser sadisticly yelled. And with that he very nearly got trampled.

Teenage girls climbed onto chairs and grabbed at the arms of strangers. They pounded out Jagger's beat and sent their hands crashing down onto foreign skulls.

Jagger became quickly and totally involved in his songs. He pranced about the stage & seductively glanced at his neaderthal drummer. Sweat poured off of his agonized face. He slowly let his brown corduroy coat slip from his slim shoulders and pretended to toss it to the crowd. A riot very nearly ensued and the inevitable battle for the coat would have made Gettysburg seem like a peaceful picnic.

The screams grew louder and lounger as Jagger leaped around the platform with an assortment of kicks and gyrations.

Only the group's bass guitar player remained calm throughout. He stood beyond the blinding spot lights and eyed his worshipers with bitter hatred through long and stringy strands of black hair.

"I can't believe that they're here," someone yelled. "Pinch me. PINCH ME."

The crowds pressed towards the anxious policeman as he Stones completed their song.

"It's coming," a young girl prophesied while clawing passionately at her pimply complexion. "I know they'll sing it. They just have to." And they did.

"I can't get no SATISFACTION," Jagger groaned. And about three thousand voices accompanied him. "NO SATISFACTION. HEY, HEY, HEY HAY, HAY, TELL ME WHAT I SAY."

Then it was over. The four very rich foreigners had made their magic and had cast their spell in another of the world's cities.

With a quick wave the Rolling Stones ran to the safety of a long black car and a police escort.

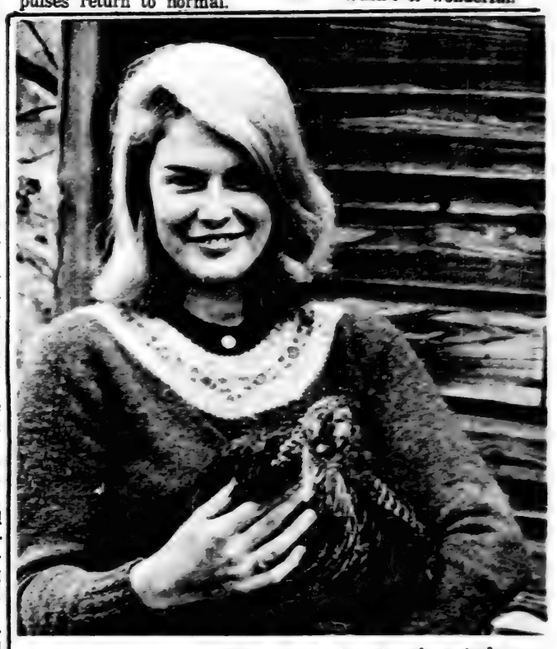
The lights of Reynolds Coliseum were snapped on and the crowds paused to let their pulses return to normal.

The Charlie Brown announced with great relief that it was all over. The people would now have to be content to listen to the sound on their plastic disks.

Two young girls staggered past the exit signs.

"They were so ugly," one of them whispered.

"Yeah," her friend answered. "Wasn't it wonderful."



MARY KING shows UNC students how to win a turkey in tomorrow's turkey shoot. The Naval ROTC is sponsoring the shoot at the old rifle range by Emerson Field from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. — DTH Photo By Ernest Robl

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of the Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. Letters and columns, covering a wide range of views, reflect the personal opinions of their authors.
ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

The Woes Of Elections

Confusion, complications and mistakes are to be expected in the handling of almost any election. The mechanics of the process are complex and extremely difficult to coordinate.

The problems encountered in Tuesday's voting for freshman, sophomore and junior class officers and other issues re-emphasize a recurring awareness that something needs to be done. The problems are not new, and we have tolerated them long enough.

Some students have charged that there was no ballot box at the Carolina Inn polling place until noon Tuesday. Elections Board Chairman Alvin Tyndall said the box was indeed delivered, but the students who had agreed to man it did not appear. Of course the chairman of the Elections Board cannot control the actions of these individuals — if they promise to be there, he can do little but accept their word and scramble for replacements if they break it.

His position is frustrating because he has no real power in this matter. Tyndall said the Elections Board will meet today to discuss these and other problems, and he wants a recommendation that a law be passed making it an Honor Code offense to fail to keep an obligation to tend a poll.

We agree with the intent, but find the approach so oppressively negative that most potential poll sitters will be scared away by this system. We suggest that our well-heeled Student Legislature increase the Election Board's budget enough to allow at least token payment to poll attendants. Polls are required by law to be open seven hours during election day. If the attendants were paid perhaps 50 cents an hour their increased enthusiasm and dependability would be well worth the rather moderate cost. If there is just one careless person, no matter how conscientious the others are, the outcome of an election can be seriously affected.

Tyndall said a training program for poll tenders is also being considered. We heartily endorse this after watching this scene Tuesday:

A student came to a ballot box, pulled out his ID card and asked the attendant which issues he could vote for as a senior. The attendant did not know, so the student checked over the available ballots and decided for himself which he should take.

The system of registration is ineffective and almost worthless. Now students sign a slip of paper at the poll saying, "I have not voted previously in today's Student Government election, and am voting at the polling station provided for residents of my election district. I realize that to falsify this statement is a violation of the Honor Code."

If it were enforceable, this would be satisfactory. But the plain fact is that sometimes these forms are lost, not filled out properly or deliberately falsified. If they are falsified there is almost no way of catching the culprit.

Pre-voting registration might be the answer, so that a person's name and residence could be checked before he is allowed to vote. With just one polling place per district, his name could be marked off the master registration list and there would be no chance of his voting again.

Increased use of computer card voting will eliminate most of the problems which regularly arise concerning counting room security, but the problem remains because all elections will not be handled by IBM. The disappearance of ballots during or just after counting is a common occurance. Such a large group is needed to count votes by hand that it is almost unavoidable unless many more monitors are used.

In the interest of electoral fairness, accuracy, speed and efficiency, we hope these and other suggestions will be considered and approved — soon.

The Daily Tar Heel

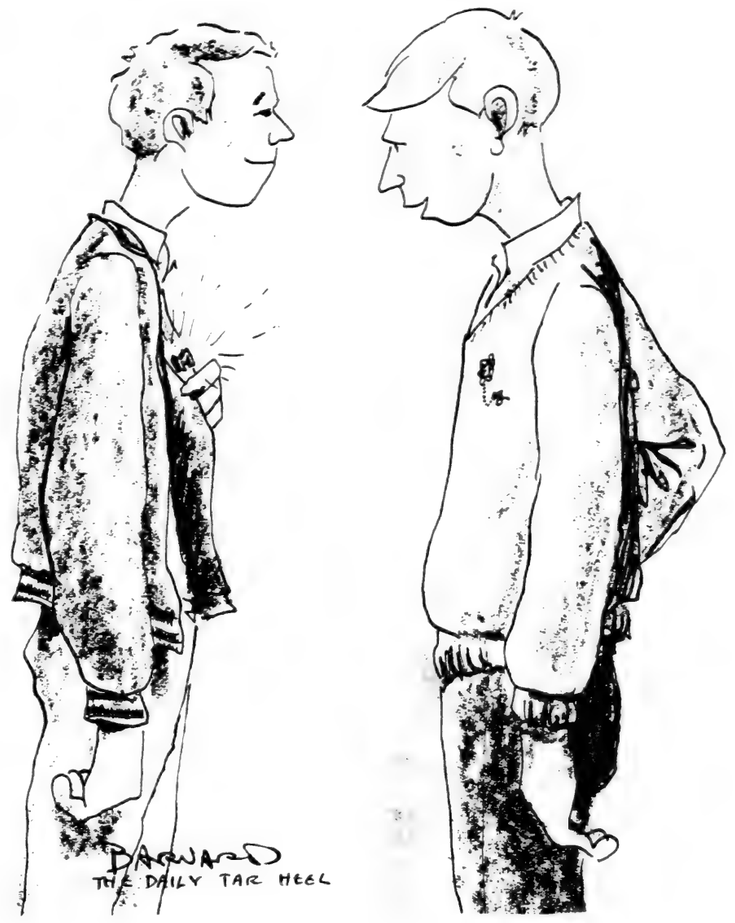
72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; John Jennrich, associate editor; Barry Jacobs, managing editor; Fred Thomas, news editor, Pat Stith, sports editor; Gene Rector, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; John Greenbacker, political writer; Ed Freakley, Andy Myers, Lynne Harvel, Lynne Sizemore, David Rothman, Ray Linville, staff writers; Jack Harrington, bus. mgr.; Tom Clark, asst. bus. mgr.; Woody Sobol, ad. mgr.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all ap news dispatches.

"But Mine's Got A Chain!"



Letters To The Editor

Criticism Of Inkling Criticism

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

All literary criticisms are a matter of personal opinion. Therefore, different people will often view the same work in a different light.

In an article in the Oct. 31 DTH, Mary Richard Vester gave her adverse opinions of Fred Chappell's new novel The Inkling. In defense of Mr. Chappell's book and in answer to Miss Vester's article, I would now like to express my own opinion of Fred Chappell and The Inkling.

First, Miss Vester doesn't give any real description of the nature of the main characters. It isn't enough to describe Jan as a "weird boy with piercing eyes" who "likes being his sister's protector." No mention is made of his fierce self-will, which is in a sense the core of the story.

It is also implied in this article that the "inkling" belongs only to Timmie. Each character, not just Timmie, as an "inkling" — an inkling of his own fate.

She also says that this book is short enough to be "easily read in one sitting" and feels that to spend more than a small amount of time on it would be worthless.

The fact that this book contains only 153 pages has not much to do with the value of its contents. Had Miss Vester spent more time trying to appreciate the imagery and perception of the author and more time trying to understand the relationship between characters in the book with real people involved in the day-to-day struggle for sanity and survival, perhaps she would not consider The Inkling so complex and incredulous.

The complexity of The Inkling is not so much in Chappell's writing, but in the minds of the characters into which he is able to see so vividly.

Chappell has a true gift of being able to see in the seemingly ordinary person the complexity and "perversity" that has always been in humans.

Chappell's use of "rare words" is not from a "desire to impress;" he is impressive. These are the same type of words one occasionally hears when talking to Fred Chappell. More frequently, however, his speech is casually peppered with "ain't," "he don't," and other choice expressions which leads this North Carolinian to believe he would have no trouble communicating with another.

It is the opinion of this reader that not only does Chappell communicate with those of us from North Carolina, but to people everywhere who are willing to accept a book which turns the reader to himself and compels him to question his own complex nature.

Chappell "managed to have" his work published because he possesses what an author needs in order to publish — talent and extraordinary insight into matters which we see as ordinary.

Miss Vester seems to feel that Fred Chappell would be serving a greater purpose if he returned to farming or selling furniture. I will agree that we would probably have another pretty good farmer or furniture dealer in our midst, but we would be without one of our most talented, potentially great young authors.

Kitty Umstead
251 West Cobb

Letters To The Editor

SPU Activities: Right Or Wrong?

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Here come the bravest and most patriotic young men in the country. They have beards and long hair and carry signs reading "Peace" and "Ban the Bomb." They want to know why our men are in Viet Nam when they should be at home with their families, happy, safe and contented. These intelligent young men wonder if the people of the United States do not realize that the presence of our men over there will only encourage hatred and promote violent death. They want to know what the government of the United States is trying to do. "Are they trying to get us in an atomic war?", the pacifist wonder. "What about the bomb?", they ask in a low whisper. They only want peace. The price does not matter.

What would the forefathers of our country say if they could hear, much less see, these insipient and outrageous acts of cowardliness and treason. Never would this nation have grown to such proportions and possess such integrity if such dastardly people had had any more influence. It is people like the "stupid little boys with the beards" that ruin a country. What would the men who died at Valley Forge, Gettysburg, Verdun, Pearl Harbor, Pork Chop Hill, and even more recently, the Mann Yann Pass in Viet Nam say to those who are so willing to forfeit everythin just so long as they can have peace? These people do not realize what they are proposing.

What good is peace if one cannot enjoy the happiness and comfort of freedom and the knowledge that no matter what may happen there is and there always shall be a country like the United States that is willing to take a position and stand by it? We did not ask the men who died fighting for the United States whether they wanted to fight or if they wanted to die. There would have been no need to have asked because no one wants to fight and no one wants to die, but there are some things in this life that are more important than one's own happiness and desires. Some things like determination, love and sheer "guts" make a man a man and a coward a damned soul.

May the United States never back down in the face of her enemies. May she never lose her self-rspect and integrity. And may God see to it that the dastardly scum such as the Student Peace Union and other such pacifist organizations never receive anything but rebuttal and scorn from courageous, upright and intelligent people. My one prayer is that never shall the dauntless spirit of Americans lower itself to such a low and prostitited state as that of the pacifist organizations.

Charles Stephen Myers
318 Parker

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

The SPU-niks are stepping way out of line. I believe in free speech, but I also believe in God: there is a difference between freedom and license. We are a nation at war. We can no longer afford to coddle irresponsible demonstrators whose every word and action casts doubt on their loyalty and our national resolve.

One of the most unprincipled assertions Lenin ever made was when the said "morality is what will advance the cause of Communism." It is worth noting that the SPU-niks are saying exactly the same thing when they equate morality with abandoning South Viet Nam to the NLF (Viet Cong). Holy-Joe pacifist slogans inscribed on crosses and raised like haloes over Christ-like, hidden-persuader beards prove only the SPU-nik's contempt for the intelligence of his would-be brainwashees, for the SPU-nik "argument" flouts one of the cornerstone precepts of our Judaeo-Christain moral heritage: the means can never justify the end. The abandonment of millions of Vietnamese peasants to the unhappiness of life under Communism would be wrong no matter how "christianly" we went about it. Living from day to day, one may forget how happy people are when they live in freedom. We should remind ourselves religiously, for it is the freedom of the people of South Viet Nam that we are fighting and dying and bombing for.

We should remember as well that Christian moral concepts were developed long befor the nation-state system and the rise of communism. Hence they are designed more for interpersonal than for modern international relations, whose labyrinthine complexities the church fathers could have had no inkling of. To follow Christian ideals unswervingly in the very unideal world of power politics would be to jeopardize our hopes for the just and lasting peace which is essential for the ultimate triumph of these very ideals. If Jesus reincarnated himself tomorrow, he would understand that our actions in Viet Nam are an expression of our dedication to freedom. It would not surprise me if He entertained our troops!

SPU-niks, then, should be drafted. All talk aside, a man who won't fight when his country calls is no man. This is bedrock reality no rationalization can conceal. If anything can make a man out of a draft-dodger, though, it's getting drafted! Especially if my grandmother gets hold of him. She's a sergeant in the Marines.

Bill Michaux

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

UNC has had a tradition that divergent points of view could be openly expressed without fear of unfair recrimination or character assassination. Through many world and national crises this rule has been honored. Now, with the Viet Nam problem, the student body is being subjected to an exhibition of democracy at its worst.

Implications have been made that liberals are communists; that conservatives are fascists; that certain groups do not bathe enough; that the political science department is subversive; ad nauseum. Any rational persons knows that none of these charges are true, and consequently it is doubtful whether they have too much influence upon the student body.

The sad thing is that these mud-slinging tactics are denying to the students a wholesome discussion of the legitimate issues.

The real issues are diverse and numerous. Both sides should have an opportunity to discuss them in a relaxed atmosphere.

Liberals have raised honest questions about the morality and logic of our role in Viet Nam. Is it our duty to oppose communism everywhere? Are we aiding in the suppression of the desires of the great mass of the Vietnamese people? The questions of where obedience to law ends and responsibility to one's conscience begins is crucially important.

Likewise, conservatives have raised several legitimate questions. Are the tactics used by Viet Nam policy protestors irresponsible? Are draft-card burning and draft-dodging methods of protest which can be allowed by our society? Are protestors destroying the morale of American servicemen and giving a false impression to Hanoi and Peking?

And most important of all is a question which should be of primary importance to conservatives and liberals alike: Is the majority so endangered that the right of minority dissent should be crushed?

All of these, plus many others, are important questions which should be the subject of public discussion. Indeed, it is a sad state of affairs when people need to be reminded of this basic precept of democracy.

Marshall Lichtenstein
ZBT House

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Discussions on peace by its advocates—liberal and conservative—have been both asinine and immature. As a result, the whole dialogue has been centered around "odor," eccentricity and rhetorical finesse.

The SPU is judged more on the eccentricity of some of its members than on the profundity of its ideas. Maupin's editorials of Oct. 15 are the epitome of this immature and irrational credo. The motive or at least the effect of Maupin's criticism of the dress of some SPU members has been to exploit the immense intolerance we Southerners share for non-conformity.

The SPU is not without blame for much of the senselessness that has surrounded the protests. Their naive and immature pronouncements are not good pacifism, to say nothing of good sense. The tragedy of "SPUism" is that it sees peace as a goal to be attained by the mere cessation of hostilities and by the rule of "love." To think that peace is this simple is to engage in fantasy and dream. The SPU misses the point on another issue also. Some are naive about the Communist role in Southeast Asia. When one SPUer was asked, "What if the Viet Cong take over South Viet Nam?" His reply was, "So what!" This worries me. Peace and freedom walk together and where freedom is incomplete, peace is insecure. If thy fail to see that a Communist Viet Nam will not be peaceful and that to surrender freedom for "peace" will not bring lasting peace, then I would agree that they are either intellectual eggheads or "impenetrably stupid."

Anti-SPUers and protagonists of war decry urgings of negotiation as appeasement and "pacifism" as treasons. We must maintain a human presepctive. War is not progressive or productive. We must constantly ask ourselves if there are not other ways to hasten the evolutionary process of peace. We can't put all the blame for the world's problems on the Communists. Let us be willing always to criticize our policy and examine our attitudes.

Not a single person on this campus is unconcerned with the problems in Viet Nam. Thousands of us may be called to fight a war we did not start in a world we did not make. We must be able to discuss and evaluate our attitudes in a sane manner. I hope that the SPU or other groups that plan discussions will hit at the central issues in a more effective manner. A low-level dialogue in Y-Court inevitably led to immature dialogue. Unless we can save honest debate, then free speech and criticism may be strangled on this campus by intolerance and emotionalism — bans more "odorous" even ban the speaker ban.

Phil Clay

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel welcomes letters to the editor on any subject, particularly on matters of local or University interest. Letters must be typed, double spaced and must include the name and address of the author or authors. Names will not be omitted in publication. Letters should be kept as brief as possible. The DTH reserves the right to edit for length or libel.

KING WILLIAM RESTAURANT

STEAKS CHICKEN SEAFOOD

"Choice Selection of Imported and Domestic Beverages"

All New and Modern, featuring

Seating Capacity of 300

- Spacious Parking
- Four Private dining rooms
- Tasteful background music
- Catering facilities

1½ Miles From Campus on 15-501 South

Open Seven Days a Week 8:00 A.M. 'til Midnight

I'M SO PROUD— I JUST PICKED OUT A UNIQUE GIFT FOR MY GIRL FRIEND

UNC
BEER MUGS
SCARFS — ANIMALS
PENNANTS
RED NIGHT SHIRTS
Carolina Blue Night Shirts

Ledbetter Pickard

Today's Events On Campus

All Campus Calendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date (by 10 a.m. Saturday for Sunday's DTH). Lost and Found notices will be run on Tuesdays and Saturdays only.

TODAY

Tickets are available for the following shows: LaContrascarpe, Norman Luboff Choir, Louis Armstrong, The Surpremes at the GM Information Desk are now on sale for students. The prices are: LaContrascarpe — free, Norman Luboff — 50 cents, Armstrong and Surpremes — $1 each. These are student prices.

Win a Thanksgiving turkey at the UNC Navy Rifle Team's "Turkey Bingo" being held from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. at the rifle range near Emerson Field.

Phi Sigma Kappa social fraternity invites all male students except 1st semester freshmen to an informal reception at their house, 211 N. Henderson Street, from 4-6 p.m.

The Baptist Student Union supper-study will have a program at the Center at 5:45. The program will be a film, "Introduction to Cybernetics." This is the beginning to a series on cybernetics.

The English Club will sponsor a lecture by O. B. Hardison, Jr. on "Poetics, Chapter I: The Way of Nature," at 7:30 p.m. in the Faculty Lounge of Dey Hall. Everyone is invited.

SATURDAY

Morrison A-Go-Go from 8-12:30 p.m. in Morrison College. The dance with the A-Go-Go girls is sponsored by Falcon House of Morrison College. Advanced ticket sales are $1 per couple, and $1.25 at the door per couple.

The Carrboro Lion's Club will sponsor a harvest square - dance at the BSU Center at 7:15. "Moonshine," doughnuts, and dancing in front of a fire on the hearth with Tom Miller calling the dances.

Annual Angel Flight spaghetti supper will be held in the basement of the Nurses' Dorm from 5-8 p.. Tickets are $1 from any Angel or Arnold Air Society Cadet.

A student forum will be presented on "A Liberal View of the Miralces in the Bible" by Mr. Bill Heriford, a graduate student in philosophy at UNC. The forum will meet at the University Baptist Church at 7 p.m.

SUNDAY

LSA supper and film night in the Church at 5:30 p.m. The film is entitled "We Are All Murderers." Discussion will follow the film.

All persons working with the Murdoch Program sponsored by Westminister Fellowship-Episcopal Student Congregation should meet at 1:30 p.m. at the Episcopal Church parking lot.

Four simultaneous discussion groups sponsored by Westminister Fellowship continues. They are "The New Morality," "The University and the Student," "The Leap of Faith," and "Comparative Religions: Judaism, Islam, and Hinduism." Supper is at 5:30 p.m.

Billards Tournament begins. It is to be held in GM. Sign up at the Information Desk or in the billards room. A trophy will be given.

The UNC Department of Religion and the Hillel Foundation will present Dr. Avraham Biran in a special illustrated lecture on "Archaeology — Israel's Link With The Past." The lecture will be held at 8 p.m. in room 111, Murphey Hall. Everyone is invited.

Meet your friends for a BEER after the Sinfonians Concert

M-HALL 8:00

Used

Children's Books

To keep youngsters — and parents — happy until Christmas. You'll find them, priced from 15c to $1.00 in the Old Book Corner.

The Intimate Bookshop

119 East Franklin St.
Open Till 10 P.M.

TONIGHT

THE SINFONIANS

and

BECKY RHODARMER

at MEMORIAL HALL

8:00 P.M.

General Admission $100

Tickets Available at the Door

FOR SALE — ELECTRIC guitar. Practically new. Have been drafted — will sacrifice. Call 942-6855.

WANTED: EXPERIENCED cook. Call 942-2266 after 5 p.m.

WANTED: EXPERIENCED waiter. Call 942-2266 after 5 p.m.

FOR RENT — NEW, COMpletely furnished 2 bedroom, air conditioned mobile home. 10 x 45'. Available Dec. 1. Call 942-3268 or 942-1749.

CYCLES FOR SALE — 1965 Bonneville triumph 650 cc. with megaphone pipes — it's fast. 1965— Ducati Monza 250 cc. 5 gears forward — 80-85 mph — it's beautiful. Call — 968-8332.

FOR SALE — 1959 OLDS Dynamic 88. Must sell this week. Full power, air cond., tan on white, low mileage. Chas. Bartlett, Mitchell Hall rm. 010. 942-3695.

Quizzes? GRE's? Law Boards? RELAX!!!

at the Fall Festival of Jazz
8:00 Tonight

Job Opportunity

Juniors & Seniors Majoring in:

Biology

Other Biological Sciences

Chemistry

Physical Education

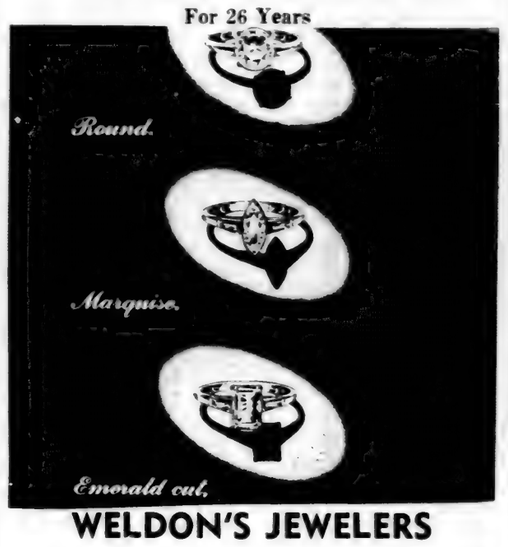
Would you like information on an interesting selective Pharmaceutical Sales career? Salaried position and profit sharing plan with excellent opportunity for advancement. Overnight traveling rarely necessary.

An Upjohn Company representative will be on Campus Nov. 23 9:00 to 4:30 to discuss employment possibilities in pharmaceutical sales.

Please arrange for an interview with your placement service.

FINE DIAMONDS

For 26 Years



WELDON'S JEWELERS

327 W. Main St. Durham

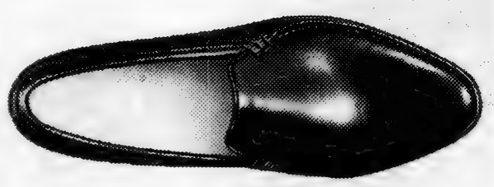
The Students' Jeweler for 26 Years

IS YOUR PRESENT MODE OF TRANSPORTATION OUTDATED?

IF SO, COME SEE US!

Travel - On Motorcycle Co.

"Headquarters for Adventure"
504 W. Franklin St.
Chapel Hill, N. C.



J.C. ROBERTS slickons

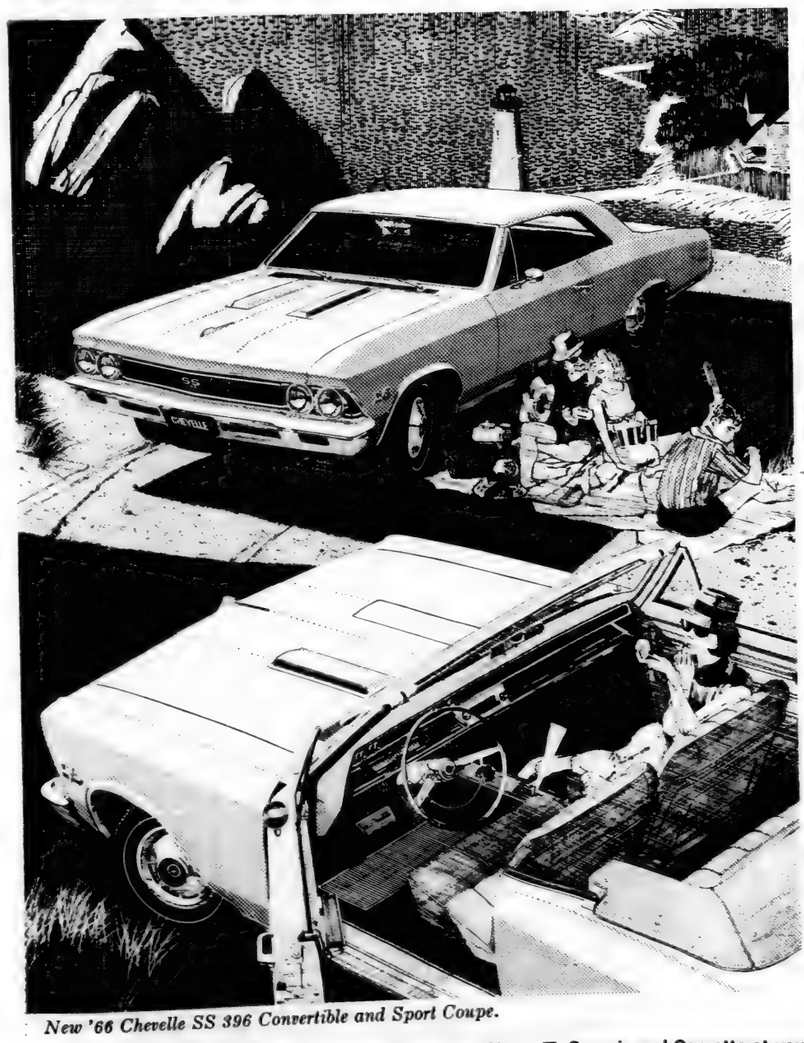
Out and out loafers with foam insoles inside. Handsewn black or cordo or antiqued ivywood leather. J. C. Roberts Shoes $12.95 to $20.95

Budget not up to J. C. Roberts, young man? Ask for Kingsway Shoes $8.95 to $10.95.
Wouldn't you like to be in our shoes? Most of America is. International Shoe Co., St. Louis, Mo.

Available at these fine stores:

CITY SHOE STORE, Thomasville, N. C.
STANLEY'S THRUWAY SHOES, Winston-Salem, N. C.
HOLLEY-SHUFFORD SHOES, INC., Hendersonville, N. C.
MONROE FAMILY SHOE CENTER, Monroe, N. C.
GRIFFIN SHOES, Eutaw Shopping Center, Fayetteville, N. C.
DELLINGER'S SHOES, Newton, N. C.
W. E. HUDSON CO., Shelby, N. C.
CUSTOM SHOE CENTER, L. A. Owen, Asheville, N. C.
FOREMOST SHOES, Oxford, N. C.
R. E. BELL CO., Burlington, N. C.

Now! New Chevelle SS 396 by Chevrolet



Equipped with a Turbo-Jet 396 V8, special suspension and red stripe tires.

These cars weren't meant for the driver who is willing to settle for frills.

They're engineered from the chassis on up as no-compromise road machines.

Standard output of the new Turbo-Jet 396 V8—which powers both models—is 325 hp. This remarkably efficient power plant is also available in a 360-hp version.

So much for what happens on straightaways. How about curves? You ride on a special SS 396 chassis—with flat-cornering suspension and wide-base wheels.

A fully synchronized 3-speed transmission is standard. Or you can order a 4-speed or Powerglide—also Strato-bucket front seats, center console and full instrumentation.

Sound like a car you could get serious over? That, as you'll see at your dealer's, is precisely how Chevrolet engineers planned it. Seriously.

CHEVROLET

New '66 Chevelle SS 396 Convertible and Sport Coupe.

See the new '66 Chevrolet, Chevelle, Chevy II, Corvair and Corvette at your Chevrolet dealer's

This Weekend At The Record Bar

Huge Savings on All Classical LP's, on Angel, Columbia, RCA Victor and London Albums

33⅓% OFF

MONO or STEREO

Reg. 5.00 ..... NOW 3.33
Reg. 6.00 ..... NOW 3.98
Reg. 7.00 ..... NOW 4.65

ALSO ✱ THE SOUND OF MUSIC

Original Soundtrack on RCA Victor with Julie Andrews and Christopher Plummer

Mono – Reg. 6.00 ..... NOW 3.77
Stereo – Reg. 7.00 ..... NOW 4.44

THE RECORD BAR

(Across from the Post Office on Henderson St.)

DURHAM (Uptown) GAINESVILLE, FLA. DURHAM (Wellons Village)

Frosh Fall, 93-82

By BILL ROLLINS
DTH Sports Writer

The Varsity came back to Carmichael Auditorium to play Wednesday night, and this time they put the talented freshmen in their place, 93-82.

Improved play on the part of both units earmarked the second pre-season skirmish, and in the aftermath both coaches seemed pleased with the progress made since last Saturday's "opener."

Head man Dean Smith said "It's surprising how much can be done in just three days. I think both our teams improved on their play of last Saturday. Our (varsity) shooting percentage is still down and we have to improve our rebounding. But the team play was good and several of our boys played their best ball so far this year."

Actually, the varsity owned a slight advantage in rebounding, 44-43, but the Frosh shooting percentage panned out to 51% besting the upperclassmen's 42.5.

Although the frosh committed 31 fouls, Larry Brown said "We made an improvement overall. It was tough to lose Clark and Bunting on fouls so early, and then Grubar went out (on fouls) too."

Rusty Clark, the 6-11 pivotman, fouled out of the game with 12:51 left and the varsity ahead 57-56. He had stormed the nets for 16 points (10 in seven minutes of the second half), getting some excellent assist passes from his team mates.

Bill Bunting, a 6-8 front courtman, had swished in 18 points before drawing his fifth foul at 10:30 with the Frosh behind, 63-60.

When 6-3 guard Dick Grubar picked up his fifth one, the varsity held an 80-74 lead and were not out of the woods yet.

Oddly, each of the three went out just after scoring a clutch basket.

Said Brown: "I think we might have won if we could have gone all the way with those three boys in, but I still feel we played a better game. Our defense didn't do its job well, but that won't happen again."

Last Saturday, one of the biggest components of the frosh win was that Bunting was fouled 10 times and hit 14 straight free throws. This time the frosh did the fouling, and that actually provided the margin of victory.

The frosh outscored the varsity from the field, 66-62, but were topped at the line, 31-16.

Bob Lewis hit two hot streaks, scoring eight straight points in the first half and 12 straight in the finale, leading his squad with 30 points.

"Bobalu" was virtually unstoppable, as was soph Larry Miller, who bagged 25 and led all rebounders with 16.

Jimmy Smithwick started the game at guard for the varsity, and scored six points in the early going, keeping his club in the lead. It was 35-35 before Dean Smith's boys hit the final eight points, climaxed by Miller's three-pointer, to take a 43-35 midway advantage.

Also outstanding for the varsity was guard John Yokeley, who rated with Lewis and Miller on Smith's player performance evaluation chart. Yokeley scored seven points and did a good directing the attack and setting up goals.

Two of the more outstanding players in the game were frosh forwards Joe Brown and Jim Bostick.

Bostick hit 18 points and Brown got 13. Both led the offensive and defensive play for the freshmen after the loss of Clark and Bunting.

Another scrimmage game is on tap for next Thursday night.

A Wide Selection
Individual Terms
T. L. KEMP
Jewelry
135 East Franklin
942-1231

BIG BOOKS

A special lot of recent beauties and last year's favorites. Picked from all over the shop, they're crowded into one big display this week —at the Intimate. Feast your eyes, chum. Prices range from $7.50 up— and browsing's always Free!

The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill
Open Till 9 P.M.

Another award of excellence for the master tailor at THE HUB. A decade of experience in fitting Carolina gentlemen insures the utmost in comfort and fine traditional styling in any garment you may choose. Natural styling available in:

Suits: In the inimitable natural shoulder that has made The Hub a leader. In plaids, herringbones, solids and stripes. Vests available . . . from 59.95

SPORT COATS: In the most colorful plaids, handsome stripes, and tweediest tweeds. . . . . from 29.95

SWEATERS: Cardigans and V-necks in a pleasing array of colors and sizes. . . . . from 12.95

TROUSERS: A guaranteed match for any coat or sweater in the store, including plaids and houndstooth checks. . . . . from 10.95

AND: An assortment of topcoats, shirts, ties, belts and other wardrobe accessories.

THE HUB
OF CHAPEL HILL

FIGHT TUBERCULOSIS
and other
Respiratory Diseases

THE SINFONIANS
THE JAZZ SOULS
Becky Rhodarner
Memorial Hall
Friday Nite

COLLEGE TEACHING COOPERATIVE COLLEGE REGISTRY

A free service of ten denominations to some 200 church-related liberal arts colleges throughout the United States. Administrative and faculty positions in all areas of curriculum. Ph.D.'s preferred. Master's required. Salaries — $6,000 to $17,000 plus fringe benefits. Make appointment for interview through the Placement Bureau, 204 Gardner Hall, for Wednesday and Thursday, November 17 and 18.

Trousered By CORBIN
the man who put natural shoulders on trousers

Preferred stock...
TROPICAL WOOLLENS

For those who prefer fine tropical worsted trousers, Corbin has them! These crisp, lightweights in 100% Wool go with everything from sport shirt and loafers to tie and jacket. Also available are our 55% Dacron® Polyester and 45% Wool blends. They are resilient and cooll Greys and olives are in abundance. Our new colors include Ancient Madder Blue, Cornmeal, Grey Mist, Butternut Tan, and Mike Fahy's Green.

Town & Campus

LUNCH from 1.10 to 1.65
DINNER from 1.75 to 5.50
Featuring U. S. Choice Steaks,
Back Fin Lump Crabmeat,
Baked Country Cured Ham
Breast of Young Chicken
Six attractive dining rooms of varying size and decor afford flexible facilities for serving
BANQUETS AND RECEPTIONS
Recommended by
Mobile Travel Guide
Best of Hillsway
Blair House
Durham-Chapel Hill Boulevard
Tel. 489-9128

Booters Bow 3-1

By RON SHINN
DTH Sports Writer

Coach Marvin Allen's soccer team continued in its losing ways yesterday as they dropped their third straight match, this time to Trenton State 3-1.

After reeling off seven straight wins Allen's team has been completely stymied during their last three matches. Allen has 99 wins to his credit as soccer coach at Carolina and will be seeking his 100th in next week's game with Duke.

The third quarter was the big one for Trenton as they scored all of their points.

Outside left Wayne Houston drew first blood and put Trenton State ahead when he nudged one in during a scramble in front of the goal. Only 1:23 had elapsed in the third period.

Less than a minute later the same Houston took a head from right halfback Jack Bell and headed another one into the left top corner.

Not satisfied with their lead, Trenton brought the ball downfield again and outside right Ed Zimbick kicked the point in over Carolina goalie Bob Johnson's head.

The first half was a defensive battle all the way as neither team could seriously threaten. Both squads took several shots at the net but could not come close.

Carolina's lone score came late in the final stanza on a solid kick by Jimmy Johnston into the far right corner.

"We got beat by a better team," remarked Allen after the loss. "Trenton played very well and they are a fine team. We fell down on our defense after they scored."

When asked about next week's encounter with Duke, he simply remarked, "Duke is going to be a tough team, but I think the boys will be ready."

Trenton's Houston has 23 goals to his credit during the 12 games this season.

* * *

Soccer Coach Marvin Allen must have a monkey on his back.

Three week ago he scored his 99th win as head soccer coach at UNC, but that magical number 100 is proving to be the hardest to get.

Allen is known as Mr. Soccer at North Carolina. He was a member of the University's first soccer team and he booted the first goal against Duke in 1938. He started soccer as a varsity sport nine years later, in 1947. He has coached the team ever since, except for a two year stretch during the Korean conflict.

Tar Heel Departure

The Tar Heels of Coach Jim Hickey will leave Raleigh-Durham Airport at 3:30 EST for South Bend, Indiana and Saturday's game with the Irish of Notre Dame.

Return will be at 8:30 Saturday evening.

Duke Tickets

Only 200 tickets remain from a third allotment for the UNC-Duke football game in Durham November 20.

The remaining tickets will go on sale this morning at 8:30 in the Woollen Gym ticket office.

USE CHRISTMAS SEALS

FIGHT TUBERCULOSIS

A MAGNIFICENT, EXUBERANT ODE TO LIFE!
HELD OVER!
3rd BIG WEEK
WINNER OF 3 ACADEMY AWARDS!
ANTHONY QUINN
ALAN BATES
IRENE PAPAS
in the MICHAEL CACOYANNIS PRODUCTION
"ZORBA THE GREEK"
LILA KEDROVA

"A rare achievement in films!" — Life.
Wed.-Thurs., Mon., Tues.
RIALTO, Durham
Frl.-Sun. 1:42, 4:07, 6:33, 9:00
Mon.-Thurs. 1:05, 3:30, 6:00, 8:30

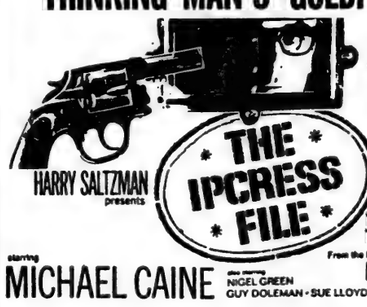
This is LOUIS ARMSTRONG
(Coming Sat., Nov. 20, 8 p.m.)

THESE ARE THE SUPREMES
(Coming Sunday, Nov. 21, 1:30)

You won't be able to see either one if you wait too long for tickets . . Students 1.00; General Public 1.50. Available NOW at G.M.

Brought to you by G.M.

When in Southern California visit Universal City Studios
"'THE IPCRESS FILE' IS A THINKING MAN'S 'GOLDFINGER'" —NEWSWEEK



"A TAUT, TINGLING FILM!" —McCALL'S
HARRY SALTZMAN presents
THE IPCRESS FILE
TECHNICOLOR® TECHNISCOPE
From the bruuuiiiing best-seller by LEN DEIGHTON
starring MICHAEL CAINE
also NIGEL GREEN GUY DOLEMAN · SUE LLOYD
NOW PLAYING CAROLINA
Shows at: 1:15 - 3:13 5:11 - 7:09 - 9:07

Varsity
FRI. & SAT.
OSCAR WILDE
Starring
ROBERT MORLEY

TOP COAT SEASON IS HERE

Top your favorite suit or sport coat in a masculine Cheviot Tweed from our wide selection.

These coats are fully lined for extra warmth.

Pick your color from greys, browns, blues & heather shades.

and at reasonable prices

Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin

USE THE WANT ADS

ALL-STATE INSURANCE COMPANY
EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY

in sales and executive development program for outstanding young man. This man should be a college graduate, married and interested in the insurance field. The selected applicant will be given extensive training in various phases of our insurance operation to assume a challenging position.

The position offers:

Good Salary
Profit Sharing Plan
Group Hospitalization and Life Insurance
Paid vacations and Illness Allowance
Management Opportunities

Opening exists in Chapel Hill, N. C.

If interested, contact or write:

T. G. Ward
Allstate Insurance Company
747 Hillsboro Street
Raleigh, North Carolina

Telephone 832-7595

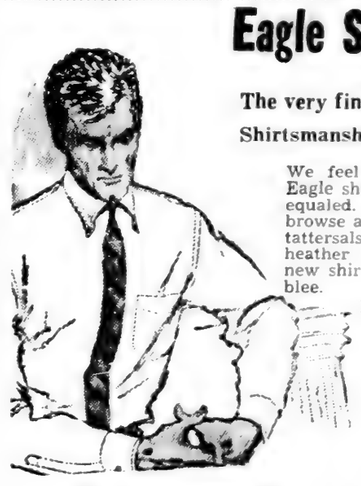
FOR THOSE WHO THINK YOUNG, NOW IT'S

The Carolina Coffee Shop

85c STUDENT SPECIAL
open
9-9 weekdays 9-11 weekends

Eagle Shirts

The very finest in Shirtsmanship



We feel our collection of Eagle shirts this fall is unequaled. Come in and browse at our herringbones, tattersals, subdued stripes, heather oxfords, and our new shirt, the Eagle Tromblee.

From 6.50

Varsity Men's Wear
Clothiers of Distinction
147 E. Franklin St.
Charge Accounts Invited

YOU ARE INVITED TO:
SIX FANTASTIC HOURS
DOORS OPEN 6 P.M. SHARP
TONITE
CLOSE AT 12 P.M. MIDNITE
100% SALE AT ½ PRICE
ALL RECORDS
ALL LABELS – MONO AND STEREO
Kemp's Records
205 EAST FRANKLIN STREET

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

Corny News

Associated Press Grain Table yesterday showed that corn opened at 67¾ and declined steadily closing at 67 during the month of July. September prices were not tabulated.

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Vol. 74, No. 52 | CHAPEL HILL NORTH CAROLINA SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1965 | Founded February 23, 1893.

Free Flick

Tonight's Free Flick is "Dancing Masters." Shows at 7 and 9:30 p.m. in Carroll Hall.

Consolidated University Trustees Approve Proposed Modifications Of Gag Law

RALEIGH (AP) — Turstees of the Consolidated University of North Carolina endorsed Friday a Communist speaker policy recommended as a prerequisite to any amendment of the state's speaker ban law.

With only State Sen. Tom White of Kinston voting "no," the trustees approved the policy which says Communists shall be invited to speak at state-supported college campuses only rarely and then only when it would clearly serve the purposes of education.

The vote came after a "stronger" speaker policy offered by White was defeated when it failed to receive a second.

With the action by the UNC trustees, board of all state-supported institutions of higher education have approved the policy on visiting speakers recommended last week by Speaker Ban study commission.

Earlier Friday, trustees of Appalachian State Teachers College had approved the policy. Board of other institutions met earlier this week to endorse it.

Under the speaker ban law adopted by the 1963 General Assembly, all communists and persons who plead the Fifth Amendment in security cases are flatly prohibited from speaking on state - supported college campuses.

The study commission called on the college boards to adopt the speaker policy as a prerequisite to its recommendation to the General Assembly that the law be changed to return to trustees the authority to regulate policy on visiting speakers.

Action of the UNC and other college trustees paves the way for a special session of the General Assembly to convene Monday to consider the proposed changes in the speaker ban law.

Before the UNC trustees voted on the speaker policy, Gov. Dan Moore again gave it his strong endorsement. He reminded them he had approved the report of the study commission "without any reservations."

"I am confident that the General Assembly will act to resolve this controversy," Moore said of the long dispute over the speaker ban law. He said the study commission reported had "received widespread acceptance across North Carolina."

Arch T. Allen of Raleigh, secretary to the UNC trustees, reported that the board's executive committee, meeting Thursday, had unanimously endorsed the policy statement.

The motion to approve the policy was made by H. P. Taylor of Goldsboro. He said, "there is nothing in this statement in conflict with what I believe to be the policy of this board."

Taylor said he felt the study commission had "come up with a solution that can be generally accepted."

William Medford of Waynesville, chairman of a special trustees' committee studying the speaker ban, reported that 13 of the committee's 14 members endorsed the study commission report. He seconded Taylor's motion.

Also seconding was Victor Bryant of Durham who said, "We should be grateful to our governor and to the commission for what they have done to make possible a proper solution of a situation fraught with danger to our university and to terminate the controversy involving the future of state-supported education in North Carolina."

As he offered his amendment to the policy statement, White observed, "I realize my voice may be one crying in the wilderness."

White said he felt the board should have a choice and that he was offering a policy that can be made effective and that is positive in its statement.

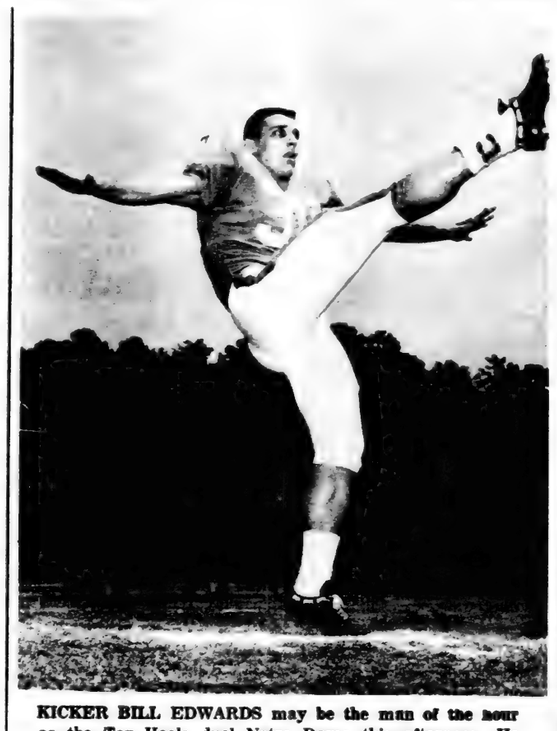
Under White's proposal, communists or Fifth Amendment pleaders could not have appeared on UNC campuses as speakers unless the board of trustees or a committee of 15 trustees determined "that persons otherwise prohibited by by the statement of policy can impart knowledge which is useful and advantageous for educational or scientific purposes and that such knowledge is not available by any other means."

Gov. Moore ruled White's amendment had lost when it failed to received a second. The commission's recommendation was then adopted with only White voting against it.

Prior to the meeting, White told a reporter he is opposed to amending the speaker ban law as recommended by the study commission.

White indicated he might look with favor on a proposal to submit the question of amending the law to a vote of the people.

"I think the people are entitled to be considered," he said, "and it looks like that is the only way they can have their opinion considered."



KICKER BILL EDWARDS may be the man of the hour as the Tar Heels duel Notre Dame this afternoon. He has averaged 40.5 on 49 kicks to date.

Heels Visit Fighting Irish

By GENE RECTOR
DTH Asst. Sports Editor

Jim Hickey's Tar Heels will face the most potent offense in college football today in South Bend, Ind.

The "Fighting Irish" of Notre Dame is the foe, and the nationally fourth - ranked charges of Coach Ara Parseghian have rolled to 250 points in eight games — the major college high.

The Irish will be pushing for their seventh victory of the season. The only loss was to Purdue in the second game of the season, 25-21. Victories have come over California 48-6, Northwestern 38-7, Army 17-0, Southern California 28-7, Navy 29-3, and Pittsburgh 69-13.

The Tar Heel defense — more reliable against rushes than passes — will get their share of business. The Irish have plowed for 1,722 yards rushing while passing for only 701.

The Tar Heels, on the other side, stack up well in the statistic department — rushing for 1,008. The Irish scoring total of 250 does hold quite an edge over the 139 of the Tar Heels.

The Irish rushing corps poses a triple-threat. Fullback Larry Conjar leads with 412 yards in 99 carries. Close behind are halfbacks Bill Wolski with 409 yards in 81 carries and Nick Eddy with 380 yards in 74 carries.

Passing has come on a "need" basis. Senior Bill Zlock leads the aerial show with 409 yards in 23 completions and three touchdowns. Next is sophomore Tom Schoen with 229 yards on 14 completions and one touchdown.

Notre Dame also has the edge in detense. The Irish have allowed 948 yards through the air while holding opponents to 459 yards rushing.

The Tar Heels have been struck for 1,209 yards rushing and 1,521 yards in the air.

UNC quarterback Danny Talbott will be the finest total - offensive performer the Irish have faced this season. Talbott has completed 84 of 173 passes for 902 yards and three touchdowns. He also is second on the team in rushing with 370 yards in 82 carries.

Halfback Max Chapman is the rushing leader for the Tar Heels. The senior halfback has hit for 410 yards in 102 carries. Dave Riggs, Chapman's replacement in the last two games, has added 210 yards in 53 carries.

Oddsmakers point to one fact in the Tar Heel's favor. The Irish could be looking ahead to their battle with top-ranked Michigan State next Saturday.

Students Will Face MHC For Part In 'Obscene' Viewings

By ERNIE McCRARY
DTH Editor

Attorney General John Ingram said Friday that his staff has turned "several" students over to the Men's Honor Council for trial because of their involvement with Monday night's showing of obscene films in Morrison Residence Hall.

He withheld details concerning the number of students charged and the exact nature of the charges "because we don't want that information made public before the trials."

Dean of Student Affairs C.O. Cathey has made recommendations to Chancellor Paul F. Sharp concerning "proper administrative reaction" to the matter. The chancellor was attending meetings yesterday and no action had been taken early last night.

The controversy was thrown open Thursday night when independent legislator Henry Skinner called for the appointment of a committee to investigate the film incident and the handling of Morrison Residence Hall funds. Student Legislature last week appropriated $1,500 in emergency funds to the college. The committee was selected, with Skinner as chairman.

Admission was charged for the movies and a number of Morrison officials and resident advisers were present, but reportedly made no attempt to stop the showings.

Men's Residence Council President Sonny Pepper said residents of the floor where the film was shown — in the social room — were charged 10 cents admission. All others were charged 25 cents.

Dean of Men William G. Long estimated that between 400 and 600 students, from several residence halls, viewed the three 10-minute films. Long confiscated the films and $103.50 in admissions money.

He and two of his staff members looked at the films Wednesday and he said they are "absolutely hard-core pornography."

MRC President Pepper said, "They started showing the films about 9 p.m. and continued until 1:30. There were signs in the residence hall advertising 'skin flicks' to be shown as a floor project, co-sponsored by the Student Party.

"These groups were announced as sponsors of the movies between each showing," he said. To my knowledge none of the SP leaders knew anything about it, though, and I want to emphasize that it was just individuals who happened to be SP members who were doing it. I think they were just showing the films to keep people from going to the meeting of University Party candidates which was going on downstairs."

Pepper denounced the entire matter as "purely a political situation," and said he is certain there is no Craige versus Morrison conflict involved.

Don Wilson, floor leader of the SP in legislature and speaker of the Morrison senate, issued a statement unanimously adopted by the senate Thursday night. It urged Morrison residents not to cooperate with the special SL committee appointed to investigate the incident.

Attorney General Ingram said Friday that he feels no obligation to work with the committee. His investigation has been in progress since Tuesday, when a student reported the showing of the films to him. Ingram said his staff's investigation probably would be finished Friday.

Long said that apparently no federal laws were violated by the showing of the films. It is a federal offense to mail pornographic material, but he said the movies were obtained by a student in his hometown who sold them to the students who screened them in Morrison.

"However," Long said, "my understanding of the law is that those who showed the film have committed a misdemeanor which is punishable by up to two years in prison."

Bulletin

Chancellor Paul F. Sharp Friday night approved these steps to be taken by the administration concerning the showing of pornographic films in a residence hall:

1. Urge Attorney General John Ingram to draw charges against all individuals involved in procuring, planning and staging the show.

2. Approve a letter of censure for floor advisers who were present at the showing and place them on employe probation until Feb. 1, 1966.

3. Turn information, including the films, over to local police.

4. Require Morrison residents to identify a worthy cause for which the money gained by charged admission to the film will be used.

Legislators Defend Radio In Debate

Two student legislators debated their vote on the campus radio bill with a largely hostile audience of constituents Thursday night.

Dwight Allen and Don McPhaul, SP legislators from MD VII, explained their "no" votes on the bill to establish a campus radio board. Their district voted 384 to 127 for campus radio in the referendum.

John Stupak, chairman of the Campus Radio Committee, also spoke and circulated a petition to hold a referendum binding the Legislature to create the board.

Dwight Allen presented his position first, saying that the Oct. 5 referendum was an inadequate measure of student sentiment on campus radio. Further, the bill discussed in Legislature was on a board to handle the project, not on the establishment of the radio system itself.

Thoug "not an expert" on campus radio, Allen said that it was his duty as a member of a deliverative body to consider facts which might not be available to his constituency, and to vote accordingly.

He read a letter published in the DTH in support of his view that under some circumstances, a responsible legislator must contradict the express views of his constituents.

"I support campus radio," he said, but added that the money required for the project might cut into funds for the residence college system and other social improvements for the dormitories. Moreover, he stated that the cost of the project was questionable, and that the Radio Committee had failed to convince him that the radio system would be a success.

Stupak said that the "formation of the radio board wouldn't have cost a cent," and that "campus radio was killed before it could show how much it will cost." He claimed that the Campus Radio Committee was inadequate to handle the problems further investigation of the proposed system would require.

Stupak said that the Radio Board should have been established now as a matter of time. The Federal Communications Commission takes about six months before it even gets to review a petition to establish a station. The petition must include an estimate of the maximum expenditures foe the first year of operation.

Don McPhaul, a member of the Student Legislature Finance Committee, cited financial data to show that, all things considered, the establishment of campus radio would leave a deficit of over $500 in the General Fund. He stated his conviction that bills to increase funds for the DTH and the Yack are a better means of promoting campus communication.

"The Carolina Campus will not be ready for radio in any less than one or two years," he said. Like Allen, he maintained that the electorate was not sufficiently informed at the time of the referendum.

Stupak rebutted that Campus Radio would not hurt The Residence College System, as that would already have been established when the greatest expenditures for Campus Radio would have to be made.

The legislators then engaged in a sometimes heated exchange with the audience. At one point a fervent supporter of campus radio shouted at Allen, "Do you mean to tell me that those lazy legislators can't pass two bills in one night?" Allen replied that there were several important bills before the Legislature, including the Residence College System, and other appropriations.

When Stupak pointed out that only a Radio Board, rather than the Legislative Committee, was needed to negotiate contracts and to petition the FCC, Allen admitted that he might have reconsidered his vote in Legislature to stop the establishment of the board.

But he said that the Legislature did not have that information at that time of the vote. He added that he was of the opinion that the establishment of Campus Radio would "hold up" so much money as to impair or cripple the Residence College System.

"As long as the revenue for Campus Radio must come directly from a limited supply of Student Government funds, with no other compensation, I will vote against it."

McPhaul added that the Student government surplus would continue when the Radio System was brought into being.

NORMAN LUBOFF brings his famous choir to UNC Tuesday night for an 8 p.m. concert. The group, on its first coast-to-coast tour, have a repertoire of songs that runs from Bach to the blues. Tickets are now on sale at the GM Information Desk. Student tickets are $.50.

SL Committee Probes Use Of Funds

By JOHN GREENBACKER
DTH Political Writer

Student Legislature Thursday night approved the establishment of a special five - man legislative committee to study the manner in which Student Government funds are being used in Morrison REsidence College.

The committee was appointed in the wake of an investigation by the Dean of Men's office of the showing of pornographic films to Morrison residents and other students Monday night.

The motion for the formation of the committee was made in a speech by Henry Skinner, an independent legislator from Craige Hall.

Pointing out that legislature had just appropriated nearly $1,500 to Morrison College, Skinner said, "Doubtless many members of the body are aware of the filthy pronography which was shown in Morrison this week as a money raising project.

"The Dean of Men's office is investigating this matter," he said, "and it is rumored that the persons involved include resident advisors, Student Party officials and officers of Morrison.

"I move that a special committee be appointed to conduct an investigation of these incidents," he said, "and further that all funds appropriated to Morrison be suspended until this body can determine who was responsible for this incident and whether Morrison College is being governed in a responsible manner."

In a statement issued yesterday, the officers of the Student Party attacked Skinner's reference to them as "a very personal sham on the collective and individual integrity of the Student Party personnel.

"We can understand how on occasion statements are made perhaps jokingly about us but we cannot understand and we will not tolerate any such blatant and irresponsible statements as that made by Rep. Skinner," the statement read in part.

"We, respectfully as possible, request that Rep. Skinner issue some apology privately or as he sees fit, particularly to the Student Party Secretary, Rep. Anne Belcher," it reads.

Skinner could not be reached for comment on the SP request yesterday.

The SP Advisory Board also issued a statement which "strongly condemns those factions which show such disregard for the integrity of the University and would escalate the incident into a full-scale statewide issue."

Speaker Britt Gordon later announced to the body he was appointing a special committee headed by Skinner to investigate the matter, and named representatives Gail Feik (SP), Jim Brame (SP), Carole Southerland (UP) and Bill Webb (UP) to sit on it with Skinner.

Speaker Pro Tem Jim Little (SP) objected to Gordon's appointing a committee without legislature's approval in a vote.

A heated floor battle followed with SP Floor Leader Don Wilson offering his interpretation of the SL by-laws on special committees and University Party Floor Leader George Ingram claiming the Speaker can appoint special committees without the body's approval.

Gordon turned the gavel over to SL Sergeant - at - Arms Teddy O'Toole (UP) and attacked Wilson and Little.

"Nobody's fooling anybody tonight," Gordon said. "I have appointed two special committees in the past without legislature's consent and I can name them for you.

"For this body to say it is going to turn its back in this issue when we have just apporpriated $1500 to Morrison is to ignore the fact that we are supposed to have honorable persons handling these funds," he said.

Turning to Wilson and Little, Gordon said, "If you think you will appeal this decision, then do it, but nothing is going to be swept under the carpet."

Wilson asked Gordon whether he was debating morality or legalism.

"I am not arguing either, but both," Gordon said.

"No legal system is worth its salt unless it has morals as its guide," he said.

Gordon's decision that the speaker can appoint special committees without legislature's consent was appealed by Little, and the body upheld Gordon by a vote of 28 to 13 with two abstentions.

Those voting against Gordon's decision and those abstaining were Student Party legislators. Eight SP legislators and independent Skinner voted with UP members for Gordon.

Anne Belcher abstained, as did Byron McCoy, the SP legislator and Governor of Morrison College.

The body also passed a bill making the course Evaluation Booklet a permanent publication of Student Government.

Council Places Three Students On Probation

The Men's Honor Council placed three men on one-semester probation and reinstated another Thursday night. Two of the cases involved lying charges, and the third concerned falsification of a car registration card.

The first student was charged with lying to a Campus Policeman. The student had parked his brother's car illegally on campus. When the officer questioned him about this violation, the boy at first denied parking the car, but soon after admitted the truth. He was found guilty of the Honor Code offense and given probation.

In a very similar case, another student admitted lying to the same Campus Officer concerning his status as a student. The policeman had asked the boy why he had no car sticker.

The student replied that he attended another college and was visiting his girl; after further questioning, he also confessed the truth. The Council found guilty of the charge.

The third student had pledged on his Student Affairs Car Registration Card that he would not operate a car in Chapel Hill, since he was ineligible to do so.

He violated the pledge by maintaining a car here. Such a violation constitutes an Honor Code offense, of which the boy was convicted. Three students were placed on probation for the same charge last week.

The Council reinstated a student who had received indefinite probation in 1960 and had since left UNC to serve in the Armed Forces.

Bill Robinson, a senior from Asheboro, was elected Honor Council Scribe, a position vacated this fall.

Probation

A University coed was placed on indefinite probation Friday by the Women's Honor Council.

The coed, who pleaded not guilty, was convicted of plagiarizing on an English theme paper.

Doctor Terms Recovery Chances 'Good' For Ike

FT. GORDON, Ga., (AP)— Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower definitely has had his second heart attack. But his chief physician said today "I think the greatest period of danger has passed. . . His likelihood of recovery I would consider very good."

That was Dr. Thomas Mattingly of Washington speaking to a packed news conference at Ft. Gordon Army Hospital about six hours after word was passed that the 75-year-old general definitely had suffered a heart attack.

And another heart specialist, Dr. Harry Harper of Augusta, Ga., said that "Yes, I would" agree with Mattingly on recovery prospects.

Mattingly said he thinks it would be a reasonably good guess that Eisenhower might remain in the hospital here another two weeks, then probably move to Walter Reed Army Hospital in Washington.

How long the perior of recuperation might take after that, Mattingly wouldn't predict. But he said it would be a good conclusion that the total period would be less than that which followed Eisenhower's major heart attack at Denver in 1955.

The general was in the hospital then for seven weeks. And Mattingly was on the medical team then, too.

Both Mattingly and Harper said that the new heart attack, beginning with a series of chest pains in the early hours of Tuesday, was a gradual development and that this is a favorable sign.

They said there is a comparatively small area of damaged heart muscle, whereas there was a large region of dead tissue resulting from the 1955 attack. The latter was an acute attack that struck suddenly, and killed muscle rather quickly.

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of the Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. Letters and columns, covering a wide range of views, reflect the personal opinions of their authors.
ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

Let It Alone

The News and Observer

It should be understood right now — before any special session of the legislature meets — that if supporters of the Speaker Ban Law are allowed to alter the proposed compromise amendment to better suit themselves, then the special session may as well not meet. The additional changes suggested by Gates Rep. Phil Godwin would amount to nullifying the compromise and keeping this divisive controversy alive.

It is not surprising that the compromise offered by the Speaker Ban Law Study Commission does not please Mr. Godwin. He should not find it strange that many equally patriotic and sincere men are displeased and disappointed that the commission failed to recommend outright repeal of the law. Mr. Godwin may want to come to Raleigh for this special session and insist that he remains right and those who disagree with him remain wrong. Some of those who disagree with him will come prepared to take an equally adamant stand.

Clearly, however, such stubbornness at this point will not represent intelligent thinking, only continued posturing.

This issue has moved beyond the time when, as a matter of legislative debate, it might have been relevant to focus public attention on speaker policies at Chapel Hill. Such attention has been given fully during the two and a half years in which this harmful controversy has raged. It is just as pointless, too, for others to argue that this law grew out of unrelated racial demonstrations in front of the Sir Walter Hotel; and pointless now to rehash and condemn the unbecoming methods used to rush the law to passage in less than 20 minutes.

The job at hand is to end the divisiveness and arrest the harmful erosion threatening the Consolidated University and other State supported colleges. The study commission spent considerably more than 20 minutes laying the foundation for this job. Those who seek substantially to alter the commission's proposed compromist are dealing lightly or blindly with a matter of grave importance.

Grading The Profs

Greensboro Daily News

The Winston-Salem Journal surveyed 11 North Carolina campuses this week and found that eight undergraduate bodies plan, or now operate, programs for grading their professors. It is a natural offspring of the human impulse to turn the tables, but hardly a new idea. At Harvard, the Crimson has long issued an impish catalogue of candid comment on teachers and courses. At Chapel Hill last year, 7,000 copies of such a directory were published.

Since students alone consume the offerings of the classroom, we suppose they are entitled to have their say, especially about the kind of teacher, increasingly pushed up by the mad premium on "research," who is a whiz in the library stacks and a drone in the classroom.

But college instruction hardly lends itself to a popularity contest, and obviously the most pleasing and conscientious teachers are not always the best.

In fact, it has always seemed to us that the best instruction runs to two rather different extremes; there are, that is to say, two kinds of reputations that get around. The types can be suitably captured only in hyperbole, but that hyperbole may jolt one's memory.

There is the natural teacher whose zest for opening a closed mind or imparting a truth is all-consuming. He is kindly and deferent; he listens without cracking a smile to the most absurd proposition. He has a reputation for making Napoleon (who he?) come alive, or for shedding tears when he reads the closing lines of Paradise Lost. He is perhaps a bit of a ham: most good teachers are.

The other type is known because his name strikes terror into the heart. His course is known (in less polite words) as an illegitimate and perhaps he is also. In the classroom he is Simon Legree with a whiplash, invariably a master of sarcasm and threat. The timid students write their mothers about him. The dull students hate him. The bright ones tremble and survive.

Who is better? The Gallup-Poll consensus inevitably shows Mr. Chips (No. 1) to be wonderful, and the holy terror (No. 2) as a dictatorial monster who ought to be running a banana republic. But time has a cruel way of playing tricks. Sometimes, in retrospect, the kindly and elegant teachings of Chips go cloudy. One remembers how he put color into the farewell of the Old Guard; but as for Napoleon's imperial policy, it has gone cold. But the brute's trenchant sarcasms, printed in iron, are unforgettable.

Let us hope that both approaches will have their due.

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; John Jennrich, associate editor; Barry Jacobs, managing editor; Fred Thomas, news editor, Pat Stith, sports editor; Gene Rector, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; John Greenbacker, political writer; Ed Freakley, Andy Myers, Lynne Harvel, Lynne Sizemore, David Rothman, Ray Linville, staff writers; Jack Harrington, bus. mgr.; Tom Clark, asst. bus. mgr.; Woody Sobol, ad. mgr.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all ap news dispatches.

"As A Rule, I Don't Blind Date Either!"

Letters To The Editor

March On Washington For Peace In Viet Nam

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

On Saturday, Nov. 27, there will be a March on Washington for Peace in Viet Nam. Those of us participating in the march feel that our government has not exhausted all means of seeking an alternative to the ever-increasing human suffering and mounting destruction in Viet Nam. A year ago the war in South Viet Nam was a civil war, even though opposing factions were instigated, supported and supplied from the outside, by both the United States and North Viet Nam. Today the struggle has become largely a war conducted by the American armed forces against a South Vietnamese revolutionary movement increasingly aided by North Viet Nam.

It is said that the United States is seeking peace and freedom from aggression for Viet Nam. Belligerents of all wars claim to seek peace. The real question is what peace terms they are trying to impose, and how. American intervention, both in men and in war materials, is now much greater than the intervention from the North. The terrorism practiced by the Viet Cong is now vastly exceeded by the terror, death, and destruction inflicted by American planes. The only victory to which this massive military action may lead is a conquest of a decimated South Viet Nam by the United States, a "victory" that would require an indefinite military occupation of an Asian country by American troops. Is this the peace we seek to achieve

American military action is defended as the only means of preserving freedom and democracy, as opposed to tyranny and foreign domination, in South Viet Nam. In truth, the United States has supported and armed a government which can make little claim to represent the people of South Viet Nam. The Saigon government has offered no more freedom and democracy, and currently receives far less internal support, than the Hanoi government of the North. The alternative in South Viet Nam is not between freedom and tyranny, but between continued destruction and a negotiated settlement worked out by those who must continue to live there with one another — a settlement which the United States or the United Nations might help to enforce, but which it is beyond our ability, or our right, to impose.

Dr. Sanford Gottlieb, who will speak on "Which Way in Viet Nam" at 8 p.m., Monday, Nov. 15, in Carroll Hall, is co-ordinator of the March for Peace. This past summer Dr. Gottlieb served as advisor to the interdenominational group of clergymen who visited South Viet Nam on the fact-finding mission sponsored by the Fellowship of Reconciliation. On his way to and from Viet Nam, he met in Paris and Algiers with officials of North Viet Nam and the South Vietnamese National Liberation Front. Concerning the purpose of the march, Dr. Gottlieb has stated: "We seek to end this war. We affirm that no party to the conflict, the U. S. included, has done all it can to bring about negotiations, and since the war will ultimately end at the conference table, we ask new actions to speed that day. These new actions must be designed to show military restraint, not military escalation. We disagree with the Administration's assumption that added military pressure will bring the North Vietnamese to the conference table. No proud nation — and the regime in Hanoi represents the only Asian people in modern times to win its independence by militarily defeating a Western colonial power — will talk peace as the result of aerial bombardment. In Hanoi's view, the United States is the aggressor in bombing North Viet Nam and should take the first step simply by stopping . . . I doubt that we can be certain of the intentions of those we facelessly call "the other side' until the Administration is willing at least to stop the bombings of North Viet Nam without conditions, ultimatums, or deadlines." This, Gottlieb stated, was "the one deed unanimously emphasized" by those with whom he talked that might open peace negotiations with Hanoi.

To those who consider this march detrimental to the morale of our forces in Viet Nam, if not disloyal to our country, we would call attention to the words of Senator Fulbright, speaking in the U. S. Senate, Oct. 22: "Responsible dissent is one of the great strengths of democracy. France, for example, is unquestionably in a stronger position today in her relations with the emerging nations of Asia and Africa because during the years of colonial wars in Indochina and Algeria a large and articulate minority refused to acquiesce in what was being done and by speaking out, pointed the way to the enlightened policies of the Fifth Republic. The British Labor Party, to take another example not only protested the Suez invasion in 1956 but did so while the invasion was being carried out; by so doing, the opposition performed the patriotic service of helping Britain to recover its good name in the wake of a disastrous adventure." We see the present March on Washington in these same terms and urge all who have misgivings about the present course of the Administration's policy in Viet Nam to join this call to mobilize the conscience of America. The tone of the march is affirmative and creative, and civil disobedience is prohibited. Among the sponsors of the march are Arthur Miller, Dr. Edwin Dahlberg, John Hersey, Erich Fromm, Saul Bellow, Martin Luther King, Jules Feiffer and Dr. Benjamin Spock, some of whom will address the marchers. Those interested in participating in the march may contact either of the undersigned.

William Wynn
Lewis Lipsitz
Chapel Hill

William Otis

Recent Liberal Victory In New York Does Not Indicate National Power

Since the recent elections, liberals everywhere have had a vertitable ball celebrating John Lindsay's ascendency to the office of Mayor of New York City. Surely, they gloat, his victory shall lead the Republican Party away from the reactionary madness which seized it last year and inter once and for all whatever ideological dispute remains in the party by burying one faction of the disputants — the conservative faction, of course.

Conveniently, if not surprisingly, the liberals have overlooked a number of significant facts of both the New York City race and other contests. Foremost among these if the fact that William F. Buckley, Jr., the Conservative Party candidate for mayor, drew some 340,000 votes. This is about 46,000 more than were cast for Lindsay on the combined tickets of the Independent Citizens and Liberal Parties, and well over twice the margin by which Lindsay won. That Buckley received any votes an all is astonishing when one considers that his opposition comprised one candidate, Abraham Beame, who had the endorsement of every important Democrat from LBJ to James Farley, and whose party enjoys a 3-to-1 registration advantage and operates an experienced machine; and a second, John Lindsay, whose press was hearty in its approbation of his candidacy, and who represented the only feasible alternative to a city administration which had been at best lacklustre and at worse entirely incompetent. The fact that Lindsay defeated Beame is much less surprising: they were about equally matched in political advantage and indistinguishable in political ideology; so people simply voted for the tall, handsome liberal rather than the short ugly one.

There have been many efforts made to gauge the effect of Lindsay's victory on the future course of the Republican Party. There can be no doubt that it portends well fo the liberal, urban wing which last year was so inept in persuading the party to choose a candidate other than Barry Goldwater. It will not cite Lindsay's triumph as evidence that the party can win if it but runs a tall, handsome candidate, well practiced in mouthing the usual liberal platitudes, somewhat more self-righteous than the Democratic nominee, unconcerned with such political archaisms as "principle," and quick to grasp the expedient above all other alternatives.

Conservative Republicans though, will point out that Lindsay's victory was entirely local in character. In New York City, he may win success by embracing extreme liberal Republicanism while suffering no decisive loss of more conservative GOP votes; but a Republican of the Lindsay stripe will be in trouble nationally. He can expect no help from the conservative and traditionally Democratic South and will be eyed with distrust and disdain by the Old Guard Republican of the middle west and plains states. Further, conservatives will rejoice that even in New York City, their candidate could receive such an astonishing and substantial number of votes.

The net result seems to be that it will be harder than ever to reconcile the conservative and liberal factions of the party.

Yet there is no reason for the Democrats to take cheer. After all, they did lose the most important mayoralty in the country, and lost it decisively. Their numerical superiority and party organization sputtered into defeat. In Philadelphia, with like advantages, the Democratic incumbent candidate for District Attorney was defeated by the Republican nominee, Arlen Specter. In heavily Democratic Virginia, the Democrat nominee won over a determined Republican bid only with the combined, simultaneous support of such strange bedfellows as urban Negroes, the AFL-CIO and Harry Bryd. Even at that, his victory was by plurality, as a third candidate, William J. Story, got about 13.5% of the vote.

At best, then, the election results are inconclusive, the ravings of Walter Lippman, Evans and Novak, the New York Times et al, to the contrary notwithstanding. Conservatives did not have the revenge some of them sought, even if not explicity, on Lindsay for his repudiation of Goldwater. Yet it is foolish to assume that so much as a large minority of New York City conservatives voted for Buckley in preference to Lindsay. The sobering prospect of four more years of Democratic decline in city hall may well have persuaded many of these to cast their votes for a heretical but relatively intelligent and independent Lindsay — who had a chance of defeating Beame, rather than a like-minded conservative, Buckley, who, though equally intelligent and more independent — had no chance.

The political future of John Lindsay is another matter of considerable specualtion. He has issued all the usual disclaimers of higher aspirations, but it is highly doubtful that he deserted a realtively tranquil and secure seat in Congress to wrestle with the infinite problems of the city government of New York simply out of a feeling of civic duty. Certainly Nelson Rockefeller has made clear his hopes for the mayor-elect. Yet if he intends to become the Republican nominee for President in 1968 or 1972, Lindsay will have to cease his reluctance to bear the title "Republican" and attempt to make himself palatable to that prevailing body of the party which at the moment views him with suspicion. Lindsay has shown that his liberalism can win against the registration advantage of the Democrats. But it is instructive to bear strongly in mind that he has won only in New York City, long a kind of greenhouse for liberal crabgrass, both Democrat and Republican; and that Democrats have proven more likely to break party lines in local and municipal elections in off-years than in major national elections; and that Lindsay's opposition was both unattractive and inept. It is quite possible, should Lindsay run for President against Lyndon Johnson, who, attractive or not, is by no standard inept, that the Democrats will vote with their party, while disaffected conservative Republicans stay home in droves. Such an election would deal to Lindsay a defeat so stunning that Goldwater's showing might look good.

Of course, all this is merely informed conjecture, but for those of you who believe in omens — exactly one week after Lindsay's election, all the lights in New York City went off.

Mike Jennings

Trial Nearly Over For Speaker Ban

The trial's about over. There may be a hanging soon. Let's not celebrate.

The speaker ban law seems doomed to radical amendment. It may even be lynched and disposed of. In either case, the Legislature is going to be a reluctant jury. Like most of us, legislators don't cotton to backing down.

We can give the Legislature a break by keeping very, very quiet until the special session is over. Catcalling at this late date would be not only useless but ungrateful as well. Yep, I said ungrateful. The Britt Commission worked hard to help clear the University's name. If the Legislature does as well, we'll owe it a vote of thanks. There's no cause to sow the seeds of further hostility with an "it's about time" attitude.

But, somewhere on campus, there's an idiot. I can seem him now, in my mind's eye. He's in his room, working on a sign. On the day the Legislature rules that the trustees should have final authority on inviting speakers, that idiot is going to march into the state house and go right into the Senate Chamber so everybody can read what's on his sign: "Guess you graybeards won't fool with UNC anymore, huh"

Then with the gag already hung and buried, they'll exhume the motley carcass and create a Frankenstein monster.

People, we've got to great that idiot before he leaves Chapel Hill.

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel welcomes letters to the editor on any subject, particularly on matters of local or University interest. Letters must be typed, double spaced and must include the name and address of the author or authors. Names will not be omitted in publication. Letters should be kept as brief as possible. The DTH reserves the right to edit for length or libel.

TODAY

Tickets are available for the following shows: LaContrascarpe, Norman Luboff Choir, Louis Armstrong, The Surpremes at the GM Information Desk are now on sale for students. The prices are: LaContrascarpe — free, Norman Luboff — 50 cents, Armstrong and Surpremes — $1 each. These are student prices.

Morrison A-Go-Go from 8-12:30 p.m. in Morrison College. The dance with the A-Go-Go girls is sponsored by Falcon House of Morrison College. Advanced ticket sales are $1 per couple, and $1.25 at the door per couple.

The Carrboro Lion's Club will sponsor a harvest square - dance at the BSU Center at 7:15. "Moonshine," doughnuts, and dancing in front of a fire on the hearth with Tom Miller calling the dances.

Annual Angel Flight spaghetti supper will be held in the basement of the Nurses' Dorm from 5-8 p.. Tickets are $1 from any Angel or Arnold Air Society Cadet.

Westminister Fellowship - BSU Square Dance. Rides will leave the BSU Center at 7:15 p.m. 25 cents a person.

SUNDAY

LSA supper and film night in the Church at 5:30 p.m. The film is entitled "We Are All Murderers." Discussion will follow the film.

All persons working with the Murdoch Program sponsored by Westminister Fellowship-Episcopal Student Congregation should meet at 1:30 p.m. at the Episcopal Church parking lot.

Four simultaneous discussion groups sponsored by Westminister Fellowship continues. They are "The New Morality," "The University and the Student," "The Leap of Faith," and "Comparative Religions: Judaism, Islam, and Hinduism." Supper is at 5:30 p.m.

Billards Tournament begins. It is to be held in GM. Sign up at the Information Desk or in the billards room. A trophy will be given.

The UNC Department of Religion and the Hillel Foundation will present Dr. Avraham Biran in a special illustrated lecture on "Archaeology — Israel's Link With The Past." The lecture will be held at 8 p.m. in room 111, Murphey Hall. Everyone is invited.

A student forum will be presented on "A Liberal View of the Miralces in the Bible" by Mr. Bill Heriford, a graduate student in philosophy at UNC. The forum will meet at the University Baptist Church at 7 p.m.

Film Forum presents "We Are All Murderers" at 8:15 p.m. in the Presbyterian Student Center. Coffee and discussion will follow.

Graduate Christian Fellowship, Sunday, 8 p.m. Home of Dr. Fred Brooks, Granville Dr. Discussion on the problem of pain will be led by C. Thorn, Information Science graduate student. All graduate students are welcome. Meet at GM at 7:45 for a ride.

The CPU meeting scheduled for Sunday has been cancelled.

Campus Calendar

LOST & FOUND

LOST — One black wallet Monday afternoon or night. Finder may keep money ($12) but please return wallet with military ID, student ID and athletic pass, Duke ticket and other important papers. Contact Ron Tanner, 302 Joyner, 968-9185.

LOST — St. Christopher's Medal given to freshman baseball player at Emerson Stadium during fall practice. Call 968-3580.

LOST — Man's signet ring with initials "R.O.D." Contact Barbara Hunnicutt, 068-9009 after 6 p.m.

LOST — Blue pen with chewed top. Has great sentimental attachment. Initials BIC on the side. Call 968-9025 and ask for Bam.

LOST — One pair of contact lenses in white plastic case. Contact W. Lovett, 306 Joyner. Reward.

LOST — One pair of tortoiseshell type frame glasses. Call 942-1767. Reward.

LOST — Math 31 (Calculus and Analytic Geometry) text book in Lenoir Hall. Contact John Shaw, 968-9011.

LOST — London fog raincoat. Gunmetal color. Initials "R.G.B. Jr." stitched on inside. Contact Ralph Buchan Jr., 223 Craige.

LOST — White London Fog overcoat in Lenoir Hall. Call 310 Alexander.

FOUND — White London Fog overcoat. Taken by mistake from Lenoir Hall. Key case in pocket with name Bobby Price. Call 310 Alex FOUND — Man's olive green herringbone sports coat in lobby of Nurses Dorm. Brand new — tag still on sleeve. Initials "JTF Jr." Size 40 long. Label is Broadway Clothes. Found over weekend.

USE CHRISTMAS SEALS

This is LOUIS ARMSTRONG (Coming Sat., Nov. 20, 8 p.m.)

THESE ARE THE SUPREMES (Coming Sunday, Nov. 21, 1:30)

You won't be able to see either one if you wait too long for tickets . . . Students 1.00; General Public 1.50. Available NOW at G.M.

Brought to you by G.M.

FOR SALE — ELECTRIC guitar. Practically new. Have been drafted — will sacrifice. Call 942-6855.

FOR SALE — 1959 OLDS Dynamic 88. Must sell this week. Full power, air cond., tan on white, low mileage. Chas. Bartlett, Mitchell Hall rm. 010. 942-3695.

FOR RENT — NEW, COMpletely furnished 2 bedroom, air conditioned mobile home. 10 x 45'. Available Dec. 1. Call 942-3268 or 942-1749.

CYCLES FOR SALE — 1965 Bonneville triumph 650 cc. with megaphone pipes — it's fast. 1965— Ducati Monza 250 cc. 5 gears forward — 80-85 mph — it's beautiful. Call — 968-8332.

COLLEGE TEACHING COOPERATIVE COLLEGE REGISTRY

A free service of ten denominations to some 200 church-related liberal arts colleges throughout the United States. Administrative and faculty positions in all areas of curriculum. Ph.D.'s preferred. Master's required. Salaries — $6,000 to $17,000 plus fringe benefits. Make appointment for interview through the Placement Bureau, 204 Gardner Hall. for Wednesday and Thursday, November 17 and 18.

Used
Religious Books

For the scholar, and for ordinary mortals, too. You'll find a big shelf of them, priced low, in our Old Book Corner.

The Intimate Bookshop

119 East Franklin Street

KING WILLIAM RESTAURANT
STEAKS CHICKEN SEAFOOD
"Choice Selection of Imported and Domestic Beverages"
All New and Modern, featuring

1½ Miles From Campus on 15-501 South	Seating Capacity of 300 • Spacious Parking • Four Private dining rooms • Tasteful background music • Catering facilities	Open Seven Days a Week 8:00 A.M. 'til Midnight

When in Southern California visit Universal City Studios

"'THE IPCRESS FILE' IS A THINKING MAN'S 'GOLDFINGER' —NEWSWEEK

"A TAUT, TINGLING FILM!" —McCALL'S

HARRY SALTZMAN presents THE IPCRESS FILE

TECHNICOLOR® TECHNISCOPE®

starring MICHAEL CAINE with NIGEL GREEN GUY DOLEMAN · SUE LLOYD

From the bestseller by LEN DEIGHTON

NOW PLAYING CAROLINA

Shows at: 1:15 - 3:13 5:11 - 7:09 - 9:07

Varsity

LAST DAY

OSCAR WILDE

Starring ROBERT MORLEY

DUKE STUDENT UNION
PRESENTS:
THE LETTERMEN in CONCERT
Sat. Nov. 13 – 6:30 P.M.
Duke Indoor Stadium
All Tickets not Reserved
$1.50 at the door or write
Duke Student Union
Box K.M.
Durham

DON'T MISS
The Norman Luboff Choir
MEMORIAL HALL TUESDAY, NOV. 16
A G.M. Presentation

Tickets for UNC Students go on sale Nov. 8—50c, dates $1
General Public Tickets go on sale Nov. 13 — $2 and $3
Tickets on sale atG.M. Information Desk

HOT OFF THE LINE!!!
THE BOLD NEW
'66 HONDA

Travel - On Motorcycle Co.
"Headquarters for Adventure"
504 W. Franklin St.
Chapel Hill, N. C.

A Wide Selection Individual Terms
T. L. KEMP Jewelry
125 East Franklin
942-1331

Do not bribe girls with candy

Unless of course it's a box of Hollingsworth's candies. Any other gift would be an insult to her ego . . . and to yours.

Hollingsworth's UNUSUAL CANDIES

Straight from the bottle?

Some people say they like their beer right from the bottle or can. No glass, please.

Well, that's okay for a fishing trip or something . . . when carrying along a glass is pretty clumsy. But when a glass is convenient, we think it's a shame not to use it. Keeping Budweiser® inside that brown bottle is missing half the fun.

See for yourself. Open a bottle of Bud and let it go tumbling into a glass. The natural carbonation will kick up a clean, white head of foam. And notice the lively bubbles as they keep streaming up to the top. They let that famous King-of-Beers aroma get through to you.

Now hold your glass up to the light. See how clear and brilliant it is? Our exclusive Beechwood Ageing has a lot to do with that. We go to a lot of trouble to brew a beer that performs like this. So you can't really blame us for wanting you to get it at its best, can you?

Just for fun, pour your next four or five bottles of Bud into a glass. If you don't agree that the extra taste, clarity and aroma make a big difference, go back to the bottle.

We won't say another word.

it's worth it...it's Bud.

ANHEUSER-BUSCH, INC. • ST. LOUIS • NEWARK • LOS ANGELES • TAMPA • and soon HOUSTON, TEXAS

The permanently pressed good looks of Farah Slacks are admired all over America. They wear better, too.

FARAH®
SLACKS, WALK SHORTS, JEANS with FaraPress™

FARAH MANUFACTURING CO., INC. EL PASO, TEXAS

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of the Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. Letters and columns, covering a wide range of views, reflect the personal opinions of their authors.
ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

Let It Alone

The News and Observer

It should be understood right now — before any special session of the legislature meets — that if supporters of the Speaker Ban Law are allowed to alter the proposed compromise amendment to better suit themselves, then the special session may as well not meet. The additional changes suggested by Gates Rep. Phil Godwin would amount to nullifying the compromise and keeping this divisive controversy alive.

It is not surprising that the compromise offered by the Speaker Ban Law Study Commission does not please Mr. Godwin. He should not find it strange that many equally patriotic and sincere men are displeased and disappointed that the commission failed to recommend outright repeal of the law. Mr. Godwin may want to come to Raleigh for this special session and insist that he remains right and those who disagree with him remain wrong. Some of those who disagree with him will come prepared to take an equally adamant stand.

Clearly, however, such stubbornness at this point will not represent intelligent thinking, only continued posturing.

This issue has moved beyond the time when, as a matter of legislative debate, it might have been relevant to focus public attention on speaker policies at Chapel Hill. Such attention has been given fully during the two and a half years in which this harmful controversy has raged. It is just as pointless, too, for others to argue that this law grew out of unrelated racial demonstrations in front of the Sir Walter Hotel; and pointless now to rehash and condemn the unbecoming methods used to rush the law to passage in less than 20 minutes.

The job at hand is to end the divisiveness and arrest the harmful erosion threatening the Consolidated University and other State supported colleges. The study commission spent considerably more than 20 minutes laying the foundation for this job. Those who seek substantially to alter the commission's proposed compromist are dealing lightly or blindly with a matter of grave importance.

Grading The Profs

Greensboro Daily News

The Winston-Salem Journal surveyed 11 North Carolina campuses this week and found that eight undergraduate bodies plan, or now operate, programs for grading their professors. It is a natural offspring of the human impulse to turn the tables, but hardly a new idea. At Harvard, the Crimson has long issued an impish catalogue of candid comment on teachers and courses. At Chapel Hill last year, 7,000 copies of such a directory were published.

Since students alone consume the offerings of the classroom, we suppose they are entitled to have their say, especially about the kind of teacher, increasingly pushed up by the mad premium on "research," who is a whiz in the library stacks and a drone in the classroom.

But college instruction hardly lends itself to a popularity contest, and obviously the most pleasing and conscientious teachers are not always the best.

In fact, it has always seemed to us that the best instruction runs to two rather different extremes; there are, that is to say, two kinds of reputations that get around. The types can be suitably captured only in hyperbole, but that hyperbole may jolt one's memory.

There is the natural teacher whose zest for opening a closed mind or imparting a truth is all-consuming. He is kindly and deferent; he listens without cracking a smile to the most absurd proposition. He has a reputation for making Napoleon (who he?) come alive, or for shedding tears when he reads the closing lines of Paradise Lost. He is perhaps a bit of a ham: most good teachers are.

The other type is known because his name strikes terror into the heart. His course is known (in less polite words) as an illegitimate and perhaps he is also. In the classroom he is Simon Legree with a whiplash, invariably a master of sarcasm and threat. The timid students write their mothers about him. The dull students hate him. The bright ones tremble and survive.

Who is better? The Gallup-Poll consensus inevitably shows Mr. Chips (No. 1) to be wonderful, and the holy terror (No. 2) as a dictatorial monster who ought to be running a banana republic. But time has a cruel way of playing tricks. Sometimes, in retrospect, the kindly and elegant teachings of Chips go cloudy. One remembers how he put color into the farewell of the Old Guard; but as for Napoleon's imperial policy, it has gone cold. But the brute's trenchant sarcasms, printed in iron, are unforgettable.

Let us hope that both approaches will have their due.

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; John Jennrich, associate editor; Barry Jacobs, managing editor; Fred Thomas, news editor, Pat Stith, sports editor; Gene Rector, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; John Greenbacker, political writer; Ed Freakley, Andy Myers, Lynne Harvel, Lynne Sizemore, David Rothman, Ray Linville, staff writers; Jack Harrington, bus. mgr.; Tom Clark, asst. bus. mgr.; Woody Sobol, ad. mgr.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all ap news dispatches.

"As A Rule, I Don't Blind Date Either!"

Letters To The Editor

March On Washington For Peace In Viet Nam

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

On Saturday, Nov. 27, there will be a March on Washington for Peace in Viet Nam. Those of us participating in the march feel that our government has not exhausted all means of seeking an alternative to the ever-increasing human suffering and mounting destruction in Viet Nam. A year ago the war in South Viet Nam was a civil war, even though opposing factions were instigated, supported and supplied from the outside, by both the United States and North Viet Nam. Today the struggle has become largely a war conducted by the American armed forces against a South Vietnamese revolutionary movement increasingly aided by North Viet Nam.

It is said that the United States is seeking peace and freedom from aggression for Viet Nam. Belligerents of all wars claim to seek peace. The real question is what peace terms they are trying to impose, and how. American intervention, both in men and in war materials, is now much greater than the intervention from the North. The terrorism practiced by the Viet Cong is now vastly exceeded by the terror, death, and destruction inflicted by American planes. The only victory to which this massive military action may lead is a conquest of a decimated South Viet Nam by the United States, a "victory" that would require an indefinite military occupation of an Asian country by American troops. Is this the peace we seek to achieve

American military action is defended as the only means of preserving freedom and democracy, as opposed to tyranny and foreign domination, in South Viet Nam. In truth, the United States has supported and armed a government which can make little claim to represent the people of South Viet Nam. The Saigon government has offered no more freedom and democracy, and currently receives far less internal support, than the Hanoi government of the North. The alternative in South Viet Nam is not between freedom and tyranny, but between continued destruction and a negotiated settlement worked out by those who must continue to live there with one another — a settlement which the United States or the United Nations might help to enforce, but which it is beyond our ability, or our right, to impose.

Dr. Sanford Gottlieb, who will speak on "Which Way in Viet Nam" at 8 p.m., Monday, Nov. 15, in Carroll Hall, is co-ordinator of the March for Peace. This past summer Dr. Gottlieb served as advisor to the interdenominational group of clergymen who visited South Viet Nam on the fact-finding mission sponsored by the Fellowship of Reconciliation. On his way to and from Viet Nam, he met in Paris and Algiers with officials of North Viet Nam and the South Vietnamese National Liberation Front. Concerning the purpose of the march, Dr. Gottlieb has stated: "We seek to end this war. We affirm that no party to the conflict, the U. S. included, has done all it can to bring about negotiations, and since the war will ultimately end at the conference table, we ask new actions to speed that day. These new actions must be designed to show military restraint, not military escalation. We disagree with the Administration's assumption that added military pressure will bring the North Vietnamese to the conference table. No proud nation — and the regime in Hanoi represents the only Asian people in modern times to win its independence by militarily defeating a Western colonial power — will talk peace as the result of aerial bombardment. In Hanoi's view, the United States is the aggressor in bombing North Viet Nam and should take the first step simply by stopping . . . I doubt that we can be certain of the intentions of those we facelessly call "the other side' until the Administration is willing at least to stop the bombings of North Viet Nam without conditions, ultimatums, or deadlines." This, Gottlieb stated, was "the one deed unanimously emphasized" by those with whom he talked that might open peace negotiations with Hanoi.

To those who consider this march detrimental to the morale of our forces in Viet Nam, if not disloyal to our country, we would call attention to the words of Senator Fulbright, speaking in the U. S. Senate, Oct. 22: "Responsible dissent is one of the great strengths of democracy. France, for example, is unquestionably in a stronger position today in her relations with the emerging nations of Asia and Africa because during the years of colonial wars in Indochina and Algeria a large and articulate minority refused to acquiesce in what was being done and by speaking out, pointed the way to the enlightened policies of the Fifth Republic. The British Labor Party, to take another example not only protested the Suez invasion in 1956 but did so while the invasion was being carried out; by so doing, the opposition performed the patriotic service of helping Britain to recover its good name in the wake of a disastrous adventure." We see the present March on Washington in these same terms and urge all who have misgivings about the present course of the Administration's policy in Viet Nam to join this call to mobilize the conscience of America. The tone of the march is affirmative and creative, and civil disobedience is prohibited. Among the sponsors of the march are Arthur Miller, Dr. Edwin Dahlberg, John Hersey, Erich Fromm, Saul Bellow, Martin Luther King, Jules Feiffer and Dr. Benjamin Spock, some of whom will address the marchers. Those interested in participating in the march may contact either of the undersigned.

William Wynn
Lewis Lipsitz
Chapel Hill

William Otis

Recent Liberal Victory In New York Does Not Indicate National Power

Since the recent elections, liberals everywhere have had a vertitable ball celebrating John Lindsay's ascendency to the office of Mayor of New York City. Surely, they gloat, his victory shall lead the Republican Party away from the reactionary madness which seized it last year and inter once and for all whatever ideological dispute remains in the party by burying one faction of the disputants — the conservative faction, of course.

Conveniently, if not surprisingly, the liberals have overlooked a number of significant facts of both the New York City race and other contests. Foremost among these if the fact that William F. Buckley, Jr., the Conservative Party candidate for mayor, drew some 340,000 votes. This is about 46,000 more than were cast for Lindsay on the combined tickets of the Independent Citizens and Liberal Parties, and well over twice the margin by which Lindsay won. That Buckley received any votes an all is astonishing when one considers that his opposition comprised one candidate, Abraham Beame, who had the endorsement of every important Democrat from LBJ to James Farley, and whose party enjoys a 3-to-1 registration advantage and operates an experienced machine; and a second, John Lindsay, whose press was hearty in its approbation of his candidacy, and who represented the only feasible alternative to a city administration which had been at best lacklustre and at worse entirely incompetent. The fact that Lindsay defeated Beame is much less surprising: they were about equally matched in political advantage and indistinguishable in political ideology; so people simply voted for the tall, handsome liberal rather than the short ugly one.

There have been many efforts made to gauge the effect of Lindsay's victory on the future course of the Republican Party. There can be no doubt that it portends well fo the liberal, urban wing which last year was so inept in persuading the party to choose a candidate other than Barry Goldwater. It will not cite Lindsay's triumph as evidence that the party can win if it but runs a tall, handsome candidate, well practiced in mouthing the usual liberal platitudes, somewhat more self-righteous than the Democratic nominee, unconcerned with such political archaisms as "principle," and quick to grasp the expedient above all other alternatives.

Conservative Republicans though, will point out that Lindsay's victory was entirely local in character. In New York City, he may win success by embracing extreme liberal Republicanism while suffering no decisive loss of more conservative GOP votes; but a Republican of the Lindsay stripe will be in trouble nationally. He can expect no help from the conservative and traditionally Democratic South and will be eyed with distrust and disdain by the Old Guard Republican of the middle west and plains states. Further, conservatives will rejoice that even in New York City, their candidate could receive such an astonishing and substantial number of votes.

The net result seems to be that it will be harder than ever to reconcile the conservative and liberal factions of the party.

Yet there is no reason for the Democrats to take cheer. After all, they did lose the most important mayoralty in the country, and lost it decisively. Their numerical superiority and party organization sputtered into defeat. In Philadelphia, with like advantages, the Democratic incumbent candidate for District Attorney was defeated by the Republican nominee, Arlen Specter. In heavily Democratic Virginia, the Democrat nominee won over a determined Republican bid only with the combined, simultaneous support of such strange bedfellows as urban Negroes, the AFL-CIO and Harry Bryd. Even at that, his victory was by plurality, as a third candidate, William J. Story, got about 13.5% of the vote.

At best, then, the election results are inconclusive, the ravings of Walter Lippman, Evans and Novak, the New York Times et al, to the contrary notwithstanding. Conservatives did not have the revenge some of them sought, even if not explicity, on Lindsay for his repudiation of Goldwater. Yet it is foolish to assume that so much as a large minority of New York City conservatives voted for Buckley in preference to Lindsay. The sobering prospect of four more years of Democratic decline in city hall may well have persuaded many of these to cast their votes for a heretical but relatively intelligent and independent Lindsay — who had a chance of defeating Beame, rather than a like-minded conservative, Buckley, who, though equally intelligent and more independent — had no chance.

The political future of John Lindsay is another matter of considerable specualtion. He has issued all the usual disclaimers of higher aspirations, but it is highly doubtful that he deserted a realtively tranquil and secure seat in Congress to wrestle with the infinite problems of the city government of New York simply out of a feeling of civic duty. Certainly Nelson Rockefeller has made clear his hopes for the mayor-elect. Yet if he intends to become the Republican nominee for President in 1968 or 1972, Lindsay will have to cease his reluctance to bear the title "Republican" and attempt to make himself palatable to that prevailing body of the party which at the moment views him with suspicion. Lindsay has shown that his liberalism can win against the registration advantage of the Democrats. But it is instructive to bear strongly in mind that he has won only in New York City, long a kind of greenhouse for liberal crabgrass, both Democrat and Republican; and that Democrats have proven more likely to break party lines in local and municipal elections in off-years than in major national elections; and that Lindsay's opposition was both unattractive and inept. It is quite possible, should Lindsay run for President against Lyndon Johnson, who, attractive or not, is by no standard inept, that the Democrats will vote with their party, while disaffected conservative Republicans stay home in droves. Such an election would deal to Lindsay a defeat so stunning that Goldwater's showing might look good.

Of course, all this is merely informed conjecture, but for those of you who believe in omens — exactly one week after Lindsay's election, all the lights in New York City went off.

Mike Jennings

Trial Nearly Over For Speaker Ban

The trial's about over. There may be a hanging soon. Let's not celebrate.

The speaker ban law seems doomed to radical amendment. It may even be lynched and disposed of. In either case, the Legislature is going to be a reluctant jury. Like most of us, legislators don't cotton to backing down.

We can give the Legislature a break by keeping very, very quiet until the special session is over. Catcalling at this late date would be not only useless but ungrateful as well. Yep, I said ungrateful. The Britt Commission worked hard to help clear the University's name. If the Legislature does as well, we'll owe it a vote of thanks. There's no cause to sow the seeds of further hostility with an "it's about time" attitude.

But, somewhere on campus, there's an idiot. I can seem him now, in my mind's eye. He's in his room, working on a sign. On the day the Legislature rules that the trustees should have final authority on inviting speakers, that idiot is going to march into the state house and go right into the Senate Chamber so everybody can read what's on his sign: "Guess you graybeards won't fool with UNC anymore, huh"

Then with the gag already hung and buried, they'll exhume the motley carcass and create a Frankenstein monster.

People, we've got to great that idiot before he leaves Chapel Hill.

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel welcomes letters to the editor on any subject, particularly on matters of local or University interest. Letters must be typed, double spaced and must include the name and address of the author or authors. Names will not be omitted in publication. Letters should be kept as brief as possible. The DTH reserves the right to edit for length or libel.

Frosh Dump Devils, 4-0

The freshman booters of Coach Clark Herdic won their sixth match of the season against no losses as they blanked Duke 4-0 yesterday at Fetzer Field.

Landy Anderton led the scoring attack with two goals. Jeff Perry and Stu London plunked in a point each.

The Tar Babies completely overwhelmed the Blue Devils. Coach Herdic made liberal substitutions but the tough Tar Heel defense prevented the Blue Imps from taking many shots.

Anderton and Perry both got goals in the first period. Stu London managed his lone tally in the second quarter. Anderton finished up the booters scoring with a point in the third period.

The freshmen try to make it a perfect season next Tuesday as they finish up against N.C. State in Raleigh.

The victory was the team's second over the Imps. Earlier in the season they downed them 5-0.

GOT A HONDA
That doesn't run right? Want competent service by factory trained mechanics?

SEE

OPEN ROAD INC.
IN DURHAM

Real service for all makes, specializing in HONDAS.

Morning pickup, evening delivery service in Chapel Hill every day. Call for appointment.

OPEN ROAD INC.
Durham 681-6161

SALE SERVICE PARTS

Fauntleroy

Don't waste your time on futile dreams,
Just bend your ear—I've got some schemes.

Well, I — For one — will be glad when the football season is over.

I mean I nearly had a heart attack at last Saturday's UNC - Clemson game. I had the situation under control — I knew the Tar Heels would take it. But even I nearly blew over when that Clemson guy got to the Carolina one foot line with seconds to go.

I can imagine how you fans felt. Well. on with the business at hand:

UPSET SPECIAL — Air Force to fly over SPU.

CLEMSON vs MARYLAND — Ol' Frank Howard took it on the chin last week against the Tar Heels. Maryland has been taking it on the chin all year. Pick Clemson by the hair left on their chinny-chin-chin. (Ugh-h-h-h)

DUKE vs WAKE FOREST — The Devils have quite a streak going — losing four games in a row after winning their first four. They are priming for their meeting with the Tar Heels next week, but they should have enough to fork the Deacs.

N. C. STATE vs FLORIDA STATE — These Florida boys have been rough on the ACC this year. Even though it's State's homecoming et all — the trend shouldn't change. Pick Florida State.

SOUTH CAROLINA vs ALABAMA — Really now — pick Alabama to set a record.

VIRGINIA vs GEORGIA TECH — Virginia has nothing to fear in this one—they haven't a chance to take anything. Pick Tech to "engineer" a victory (ugh-h-h-h even more).

Other Games:
Tennessee over Mississippi
Arkansas over SMU
Missouri over Oklahoma
Florida over Tulane
Texas over TCU

S. O. S.
STUDENT SURVIVAL KITS
Get yours now while the Supply Lasts
PRETZEL STIX, SARDINES, COOKIES, CANDY, CHEESE, RAISINS and PUMPERNICKEL BREAD
HICKORY FARMS

Lewis Red Beats Everett

By BILL HASS
DTH Sports Writer

The Lewis Red team scored all its points in the first half, then held on for an 18-13 win over the Everett Hustlers Friday. Earnhardt scored twice and Shearon once for Lewis. Mullinex and DeSanti for Everett.

Touchdowns by Ed Kouri and Allen Whitaker led the Med School Reds over the Navy Op Rods, 14-7.

The Ehringhaus C - Millers defeated Ehringhaus D, 27-6. Buck Murchison, Jim Connor, Larry Prindle and George Fouts did the scoring.

The Mangum Mugs defeated the Ruffin Rascals, 13-7.

The Ruffin Rebels made a joke of the Manly River Rats Thursday, rolling up a 61-0 win.

Another Ruffin team, the Ramblers, also scored a win, 9-0 over the Mangum Mites.

Maverick B-3 crushed Maverick B-2, 39-0.

Competition was held in the intramural all-campus swimming meet on Thursday night. Chance of Sigma Nu won the 50-yard freestyle event followed by Rick Inderfurth (Beta). Sloan Creveling (Old West), Dick Young (ATO), Al Hunter (Ehringhaus B) and Bill Bicksler (ATO).

Burger of Sigma Nu won the 50-yard butterfly. Betty of ATO was second, followed by D. Saum (Old West), Don Johnson (ATO), John Trull (Beta) and Ron Salvatti (Kappa Sig).

Jerry Beverly of Kappa Sig won the 50-yard backstroke. Second was Lou Seaman (Chi-Phi, third Thompson (Sigma Nu), fourth D. Saum (Old West), fifth Dick Frank (Chi Phi) and sixth Bill Geason (Beta).

In the 50-yard breaststroke, Jim Strikeleather of Beta captured the vent. Finishing behind him were Whitehead of Sigma Nu, Pete Williams of ATO, John Hillard of Kappa Sig, Al Smith of Lambda Chi and Reid Jones of Old West.

The 100-yard individual of medley was won by Burger of Sigma Nu, the meet's only double winner. Rick Inderfurth (Beta) was second, followed by Betty (ATO), Dick Young (ATO), Larry Wurn (Alexander), and Arthur (Sigma Nu).

Sigma Nu was first in the team medley, as Kappa Sig won second, Beta third, TEP fourth and Old West fifth.

Charlie Silver of Sigma Nu won the diving competition with a score of 83.0. Kerit Buckner of Joyner was second with 73.6, Bill Huf of Old East third with 73.1, Edward Hutson of Phi Kappa Sigma fourth with 66.0, Brooks Roughton of ATO fifth with 59.4. Others were Tom Feamster Chi Phi, 59.0; George Tennille (ATO), 56.0; J. R. Simpson (Mangum), 52.4; Bill Tillerud (Sigma Nu), 48.1.

Funny Man

Jeff MacNelly is loaded with talent.

He is the creator of the cartoons reproduced on the DTH sports page.

MacNelly spent four years at Andover, a prep school in Massachusetts, before coming to Carolina. He was editor in chief of the school's literary magazine and the yearbook.

His home is Cedarhurst in Long Island, New York, and he is an art major.

100 Student Tickets Left For Dook Game

Carolina students that want to see the UNC-Duke game Saturday at Duke stadium have another chance to buy tickets.

Until noon today 100 additional tickets will be available at the Athletic Office for the traditional grudge match.

Business manager Vernon Crook reported Friday afternoon that the demand for tickets had been greater than any time in history for an away game.

A MAGNIFICENT, EXUBERANT ODE TO LIFE!
HELD OVER!
3rd BIG WEEK
WINNER OF 3 ACADEMY AWARDS!
ANTHONY QUINN
ALAN BATES
IRENE PAPAS
in the MICHAEL CACOYANNIS PRODUCTION
"ZORBA THE GREEK"
LILA KEDROVA
"A rare achievement in films!" — Life.
Wed.-Thurs., Mon., Tues.
RIALTO, Durham
Fri.-Sun. 1:42, 4:07, 6:33, 9:00
Mon.-Thurs. 1:05, 3:30, 6:00, 8:30

SOLD OUT IN NEW YORK!
LA CONTRESCARPE
First Performance SOLD OUT
Extra Performance Tues., Nov. 23, 8:40 P.M.
AUTHENTIC LEFT BANK "CABARET LITTERAIRE" FIRST TIME IN AMERICA. HUNTER COLLEGE PLAYHOUSE
The Hunter College Concert Bureau presents the only New York appearance of "La Contrescarpe". Songs, Ballads and Poetry set to music: the finest French Cabaret Litteraire entertainment. Featuring five of the most exciting young talents in Paris today: Bernard Heller, Francesca Solleville, Helene Martin, Paul Villaz, Jacques Marchais. One Performance only, Saturday, October 30 at 9:00 P.M.
Hunter College Playhouse. Tickets: $4.50; 3.50; 2.50. Please make check payable, and send with stamped, self-addressed envelope, to Hunter College Concert Bureau, 695 Park Ave. N.Y. 10021. RE 7-3570.

The above ad appeared in the N. Y. Times . . . Note the prices! It's free to everyone at U.N.C. . . . in the area! Pick up your reserved seat tickets free at G.M. Information desk now. . . . La Contrascarpe will appear in Memorial Hall this Wednesday. Hurry, tickets are limited.

Brought to you by Graham Memorial!

PERSONAL
— To Tootsie-Woo

O.K. — You Win. I'll meet you by the Civil War Books at the Intimate this afternoon. And Sweethtart, please bring your transistor.

Scratchy-Chin

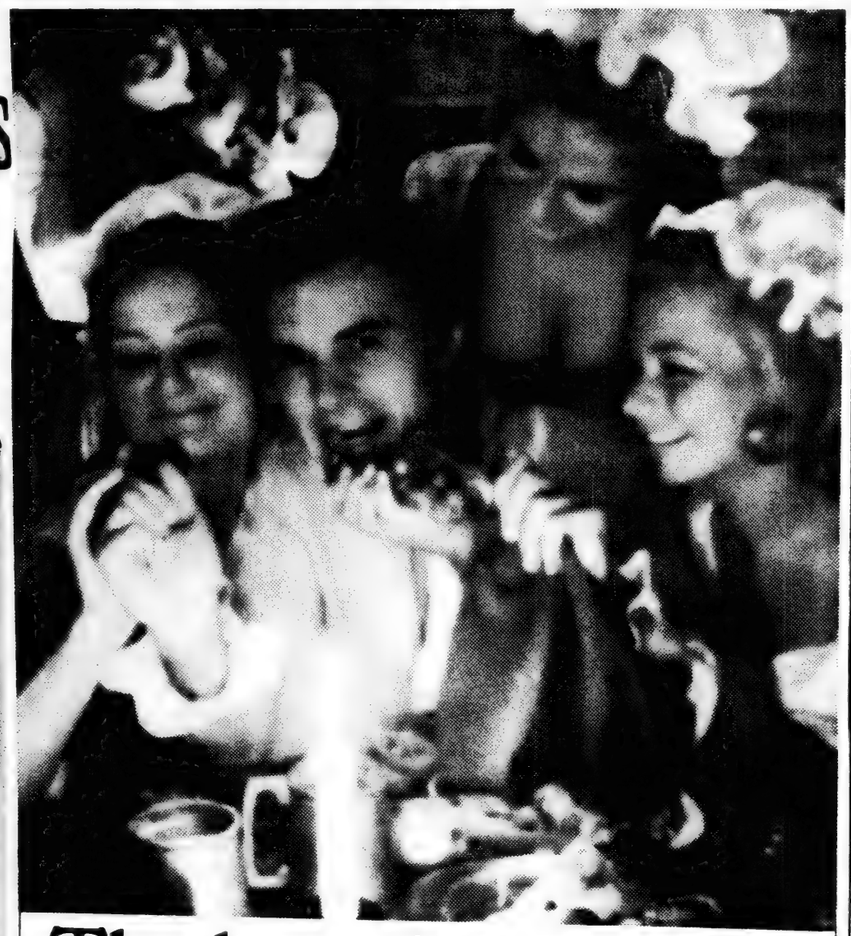
We Have a Suit for Every College Man

No matter what your clothing budget is, we have a suit in excellent traditional taste to fit your pocketbook.

Our fine quality suits start with Cricketeer at 59.95.

Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin St.
Clothiers of Distinction

INSTANT MILDNESS
yours with
YELLO-BOLE



Aristocrat, Billiard Shape, $5.95 and $6.95

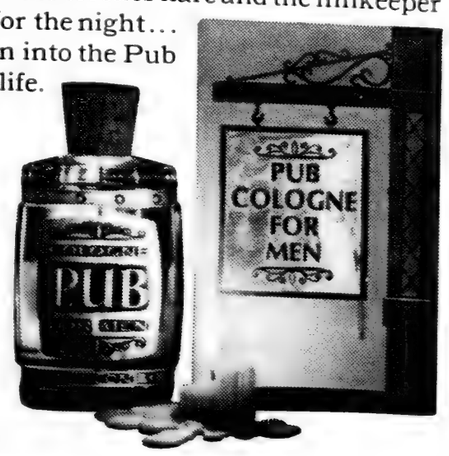
No matter what you smoke you'll like Yello-Bole. The new formula, honey lining insures Instant Mildness; protects the imported briar bowl—so completely, it's guaranteed against burn out for life. Why not change your smoking habits the easy way — the Yello-Bole way. $2.50 to $6.95.

Official Pipes New York World's Fair

Free Booklet tells how to smoke a pipe; shows shapes, write: YELLO-BOLE PIPES, INC., N.Y. 22, N.Y., Dept. 100.
By the makers of KAYWOODIE

The lusty life is back
And it starts at the Sign of the Pub

Uncork a flask of Pub Cologne. If you hear tankards clash and songs turn bawdy, if the torches flare and the innkeeper locks up his daughter for the night... it's because you've been into the Pub and unloosed the lusty life.



Pub cologne, after-shave, and cologne spray. $3.75 to $10.00. Created for men by Revlon.

Want some good answers to some big questions about your future?

Sign up now for an on-campus interview with IBM
December 1-2

If you ask, we'll tell all. About "go-places" careers with IBM. About opportunities in such areas as basic and applied research—device, new product and programing systems development—and manufacture of pace-setting equipment using the latest technologies.

You could begin by firing these questions at the IBM interviewer:

How many technologies is IBM active in?

How can IBM keep me technologically "hot" throughout my career?

How many plants, labs and technical centers does IBM have? Where are they? And what kind of choice do I have?

What about creative freedom for the engineer and scientist at IBM?

What about rewards—financial and otherwise?

The answers to these and all questions about IBM are yours for the asking. So don't miss your IBM interview. Visit your placement office and sign up now.

If for any reason you can't make it on campus, feel free to visit your nearest IBM branch office. Or write: Manager of College Relations, IBM Corporate Headquarters, Armonk, N.Y. 10504.

Once you've heard the answers, you'll probably have one more question: "When can I start?"

Whatever your area of study, ask us how you might use your particular talent at IBM. Job opportunities at IBM lie in eight major career fields: (1) Research and Development, (2) Engineering, (3) Manufacturing, (4) Finance and Administration, (5) Marketing, (6) Field Engineering, (7) Systems Engineering, (8) Programing. IBM is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

IBM

Box 870

Fun With Witches

The UNC-G Children's Theatre will present "The Unwicked Witch" Monday night at 8 in Memorial Hall. The play is the story of three witches and a granddaughter who doesn't want to be a witch.

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Vol. 74, No. 53 | CHAPEL HILL NORTH CAROLINA SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 14, 1965 | Founded February 23, 1893

Carolina Quarterly

The Carolina Quarterly will hold an organizational meeting Tuesday in Roland Parker at 7:30 p.m. Staffers are needed for poetry, fiction departments and in layout and sales.

Stubborn Heels Finally Bow To Irish, 17-0

Hubbard Hits SP For False Account

University Party Chairman Jim Hubbard has asked the Constitutional Council to "consider the disqualification of Student Party candidates" in last week's election "as soon as practicable."

Hubbard said the showing of films in a social room in Morrison Residence Hall last Monday night was admittedly "a part of the Student Party campaign." He said he has examined the party's election expense account, which is open to the public, and "the Student Party failed to list rental cost of these films as part of its campaign expenses."

For that reason, he said, he is requesting a ruling on the validity of all SP candidacies.

"They have falsified their expense account, bringing the eligibility of their entire slate of officers into serious question," Hubbard said.

Dean of Men William G. Long, who viewed the films after they were confiscated, called them "hard-core pornography."

He said his investigation of the matter has dealt with individuals rather than groups, but "we have found out that members of the Student Party were involved in conceiving the idea and carrying it out.

"I suppose it's open to debate as to whether or not the leadership of the party had anything to do with it, but there seems to be no doubt that the purpose of showing the films was to divert the residents from the University Party candidates' meeting being held downstairs in the hall," Long said.

Chancellor Paul F. Sharp Friday night approved a four-part recommendation for disciplinary action:

— Attorney General John Ingram will be urged to file charges against individuals involved.

— Letter of censure and employe probation until Feb. 1, 1966, will be given to floor advisers present at showings.

— Morrison residents will be required to donate money collected through admission charges to a "worthy cause."

— Films and information will be turned over to local police.

Dr. Gottlieb Will Discuss Viet Policy

"Which Way in Viet Nam?" will be the topic of a speech to be given by Dr. Sanford Gottlieb, Political Action director of the National Committee for a Sane Nuclear Policy, Nov. 15 at 8 p.m. in Carroli Hall.

Dr. Gottlieb, named director in February, 1960, leads the Committee, popularly known as SANE, which is a citizens organization working for worldwide, controlled disarmament and a strengthened United Nationa.

Based in Washington, Dr. Gottlieb works closely with officials of the Executive branch, members of Congress and representatives of other national organizations.

In 1965, he served as advisor to the interdenominational group of clergymen who visited South Viet Nam on the fact-finding mission sponsored by the Fellowship of Reconciliation.

On his way to and from Viet Nam, he met in Paris and Algiers with officials of North Viet Nam and the South Vietnamese National Liberation Front.

Dr. Gottlieb was graduated from Dartmouth College in 1946, and received a doctorate in labor studies from the Universty of Paris in 1952.

Alexander Juniors Given Opportunity To Vote Again

Alexander juniors, whose balots in Tuesday's election were lost, will be given an opportunity to vote again.

The Elections Board decided Friday to contact those who voted and give them a secret ballot for this purpose. The Board agreed unanimousiy on this plan.

In other decisions, the Board ruled that write-in votes for Honor Council are illegal. Chairman Alvin Tyndall said that the Board recommended that the President of the Student body appoint the members, using the popular vote as a recommendation.

The contested Honor Council election in Craige has been referred to the Constitutional Council, with the Elections Board recommendation that the results stand as announced.

The Board denied the request of Buddy Farfour, candidate for freshman class vice president, for a recount. Tyndall said the decision was based on precedent and the wide margin of defeat (42 votes).

A recount in the Morrison Honor Council race revealed no change.

IT'S ANYBODY'S BALL—Fumbled ball is just starting to leave grip of North Carolina ball carrier and Notre Dame's linebacker Mike McGill (60) and tackle Dick Afrington (63) close in for recovery in first period at South Bend today. (AP Wirephoto.)

UNC Defensive Effort Best Of Year

By ED FREAKLEY
DTH Staff Writer

A hard fighting Tar Heel football team played fourth ranked Notre Dame to a scoreless tie for 46 minutes and 21 seconds yesterday in South Bend, Ind., before the Fighting Irish continued a fourth quarter Carolina jinx amassing 17 points in last 13 minutes to win the ball game.

Tar Heel opponents have scored 161 points against UNC this season with 91 of those points coming in the last period of play.

But the real story yesterday was a terrific defensive effort by the Tar Heels. Five times Carolina rose up to hault Notre Dame drives deep in Tar Heel territory.

It wasn't until after the beginning of the fourth quarter that the Irish managed to score. They drove to the UNC 21 yard line where the Tar Heels forced them to try a field goal.

The Notre Dame booter put the ball through the uprights from 31 yards out and it was 3-0.

But Hickey's team wasn't down yet. The pounded out yardage against a tough Irish line driving up field after an exchange of punts.

But the big team held and Bill Edwards punted. On the first play bruising running back Nick Eddy circled the end, broke into the open and raced 66 yards for a touchdown and a 10-0 Irish lead.

The back had been broken. The Tar Heels, who played their best defensive game of the season, were forced to gamble.

The Irish, who intercepted three passes, grabbed off a Danny Talbott pass and brought it back with Eddy taking it in for the score, 17-0.

The Carolina offense got two good drives going in the game. In the first half they drove to the Notre Dame 20 before they

(Continued of Page 4)

Archaeology Is Subject Of Talk Tonight

Dr. Avraham Biran, famous Israeli archaeologist, will speak at 8 p.m. tonight in Murpney Hall on "Archaeology—Israel's Link with the Past."

Biran participated in excavations at Ein Gev and Ner David, and has headed the expedition to Tel Zippor.

He has held several political positions in Israel and is chairman of the board of directors of the Samuel Bronfman Biblical and Archaeological Museum.

Biran, a third - generation Israeli, has served as Israel's Los Angeles consul general.

He received a Ph. D. in Archaeology and Oriental Languages from Johns Hopkins University.

At 12:30 p.m. Sunday, Biran will speak to the Hillel Foundation's Graduate Student and Faculty Group meeting.

The 8 p.m. talk, sponsored by the Department of Religion and the Hillel Foundation, is open to the public.

Students Can Thank GI's By Signing Viet Telegram

Students wishing to express their thanks to American forces in Viet Nam on Thanksgiving Day will get their chance this week to sign a telegram to be sent to Viet Nam.

The telegram will be dispatched on Thanksgiving Day to General William Westmoreland, commander of American forces in Viet Nam.

A group of UNC students composed the following mesage of gratitude:

"This Thanksgiving Day of 1965, we the students of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill express our gratitude to the American servicemen in Sor Viet Nam for their sacrifice service to our country."

Students representing the group are Dwight Buntz, Jeff Davis, Rusty Taylor, Wright Doyle, Madeline Gray, Bob Powell, Dave Kiel, Eric Van Loon, Bill Purdy, Mary King, Phil Kirstein and Kathy Cauble.

Booths will be set up in Y-Court (10 a.m. - 3 p.m.), Lenoir Hall, Pine Room and Chase Cafeteria (11 a.m. - 2 p.m.), on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday so students may sign the message.

The group felt that the message should not concern policy, but merely an expression of gratitude. An effort was made to include a cross section of organizations and political thought on campus in forming the group.

The Panhellenic Council last week voted to be responsible for coordinating the solicitation of names at the four booths.

Campus residences will be canvassed Wednesday evening to secure more names for the telegram.

A spokesman for the group said:

"We've all heard the USO commercials enough to know that it's lonely 'being in a strange place far away from home.' In fact, we've heard it so much that it no longer provokes much thought, or even a sympathetic, 'yes.'"

The purpose of the message, he said, is to express to the GI's in Viet Nam the consensus of support from a college campus.

Some students "have been thinking that student protest demonstration around this contry, though a long way from Viet Nam, are known of nevertheless, and may be causing some GI's to reflect on how much support they do have at home, and if the long months they are spending in Southeast Asia are being appreciated," the group said.

Carolina Suffers Another Disastrous Fourth Quarter

By GENE RECTOR
DTH Asst. Sports Editor

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — A valiant Tar Heel defensive effort fell 14 minutes short Saturday as the nation's most explosive offense struck for a field goal and two touchdowns in the fourth quarter to hand Notre Dame a 17-0 victory over UNC.

Notre Dame, fourth ranked nationally and 32-point favorites to crush the Tar Heels, found their offensive guns lacking for three quarters.

The break - through came with a minute and 47 seconds gone in the final quarter. Defensive back Ken Ivey, who last week against Pittsburgh tied the Notre Dame record for most field goals in a season, split the up-rights from 38 yards out to give the Irish a 3-0 lead.

The field goal climaxed a Notre Dame drive which began on the Irish 20-yard line.

But Ivan's field goal only primed the offensive pump for the Irish. Halfback Nick Eddy took over from there.

With 7:49 left in the game and with the Irish first and ten on their own 34, Eddy skirted the right side of the Tar Heel line for 66 yards and a touchdown. Tar Heel defensive back Gene Link had the final shot at the 20, but could not make the stop.

Ivan's placement was perfect and the Irish had a ten-point margin.

But Notre Dame nor Mr. Eddy was finished. With 5:54 to play defensive back Mike McGill picked off a stray Danny Talbott pass on the Tar Heel 41.

Halfback Bob Bleier smashed for 12 yards and a first down on the Tar Heel 29. Four plays later, fullback Larry Conjar hit the line for three yards and a first down on the Tar Heel three. Eddy did the rest — hitting over left tackle for the score with 3:05 left.

Ivan's placement was again perfect and the over-flow crowd of 59,216 breathed easier with a 17-0 lead.

Except for that four-quarter flurry, the Tar Heel defense had managed to contain the Irish offensive — ranked number one in the nation.

Three costly fumbles hurt Notre Dame's scoring chances in the first half.

Mid-way through the first quarter the Irish took the ball on their own 41 and marched to the Tar Heel ten yard line in four plays. With first and ten, fullback Conjar hit four yards to the UNC six. On the next play, Irish quarterback Bill Zloch fumbled the handoff and linebacker Jay Maolbicky recovered for the Tar Heels.

History repeated itself the next time the Irish had the ball. With first and ten on the Tar Heel 34, Eddy fumbled after picking up six yards. Tackle Hank Sadler recovered on the UNC 29.

The most stunning Tar Heel defensive maneuver came late in the second period. On fourth and two at the UNC seven, Irish quarterback Zloch was stopped inches short of the first down.

While the Tar Heel defense was playing probably their finest game of the season, the UNC offense could not seem to pull the string.

The big front four of the Irish defensive line made life miserable for quarterback Danny Talbott. Talbott completed only ten passes for 67 yards and was held to minus yards rushing.

Fullback Tom Lampman was the most consistent Tar Heel rusher — picking up 64 yards in 14 carries. Halfback Dave Riggs was next in line with 26 yards in 11 carries.

Wingback Bob Hume led the receivers with four catches and 34 yards. End John Atherton had two catches for 23 yards.

The Tar Heels had only two serious scoring threats. In the second quarter, UNC moved their own 29 to the Notre Dame 26 in seven plays. On second down and three, Lampman fumbled a Talbott pitch - out and John Horney recovered for the Irish.

The final threat came in the third quarter. After recovering a Notre Dame fumble on the latter's 47, the Tar Heels moved to the Irish 31. But on fourth down and three, a Talbott field goal try of 42 yards was short and wide to the left.

	ND	UNC
First downs	23	9
Yards rushing	320	97
Yards passing	65	67
Passes attempted	13	23
Passes Completed	6	10
Passes had inter.	0	3
Punts	3	6
Punting Averag	26	32
Fumbles lost	3	2
Yards penalized	55	30

Luboff Choir Here Nov. 16

The world-famous Norman Luboff Choir makes its first UNC appearance Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Memorial Hll.

Tickets for the performance are on sale at the GM Information Desk.

The famed recording artists have cut best-selling discs on both RCA and Columbia labels, singing from a repertoire that runs from Bach to the Blues.

Conductor - arranger Luboff has provided music for more than 80 motion pictures and his arrangements have been heard on many television programs.

The Chicago native studied piano and voice as a boy but did not decide until college to make music his profession.

Cox Speaks

Harvey Cox, author of "The Secular City," will speak on "The New Morality" today at 3 p.m. in Howell Hall auditorium.

Cox's lecture is sponsored by the recently organized Religious Interfaith Council, which was initiated by the YM-YWCA Religious Emphasis Committee.

Cox, author of numerous periodical articles, was recently appointed associate professor of theology and culture at Andover Newton Theological School, Mass.

Speaker Ban Controversy: Part Three

White, American Legion Typify Law's Supporters

Editor's Note — Despite widespread criticism throughout nearly every minute of its existance, H. B. 1395 — the so-called speaker ban — has found a number of organizations and individuals which have taken strong stands for the retention of the law.

This article, the third in a series on the history of the speaker ban law, attempts to examine some of the major backers of H. B. 1395 and the position they have taken on it.

Third In A Series

By ERNEST ROBL
DTH Staff Writer

"We recognize that perhaps as many great Americans have attended the University of North Carolina as any other institution in America and we value it very highly, and we want this commission to clearly understand in the beginning that anything that we may say is not intended as to reflect on the great University of North Carolina;

"But we do respectfully say to the committee, Mr. Chairman, that as human beings we all error (sic), and we all differ in judgment from time to time, and we are simply saying that there may be incidents in which we think the judgment of the administration of the University has been different from that of the Legion."

With this statement, (taken from the official transcripts of the Speaker Ban Commission Hearings) State Senator Robert Morgan, speaking on behalf of the American Legion, introduced that organizations's stand in favor of the speaker ban.

And though the Legion's spokesman before the special commission studying the measure prefaced his remarks by saying that the Legion's defense of the controversial law should not be considered an attack on the University of North Carolina, much of the testimony offered by the Legion tended to indicate otherwise.

STATE SEN. ROBERT MORGAN, LEFT, AND CHAIRMAN DAVID BRITT

While Morgan said, "We have high regard for the administration of the University," another witness, Legionnaire Henry E. Royall of Chapel Hill, had something quite different to say about the University. The following interchange (again quote from official transcripts) took place at the Aug. 12 session of the hearings:

Disturbed

Rep. Lacy Thornburg: "I was a little bit disturbed about the indication that perhaps Commies were making inroads over there (at the University) or that it was a . . . I just was interested in to what extent, and I mean the general statement; I thought perhaps you would be able to tell."

Royall: "I can only describe that by a feeling, sort of an atmosphere, and I believe that if the cmmission really wanted to go into this matter, you could get students to tell you that they feel that to pass their work and get good grades they have to take a leftist tinge."

Thornburg: "Are you telling this . . ."

Sen. Gordon Hanes: "May I . . ."

Thornburg: "No, let me."

Royall: "That is a belief and a feeling."

Thornburg: "Are you telling this commission, sir, that in order to pass the work that is a part of the University program, and in order for a student to get a fair grade, it's necessary for him to profess or express leftist tendencies?"

Royall: "No, I'm not saying that."

Thornburg: "I misunderstood the remark then."

When the Speaker Ban Study Commission opened its hearings last summer, it knew it would not have an easy road before it.

Basically the commission had been charged with reconciling two irreconcilable points of view.

STATE SEN. THOMAS WHITE

Though the commission had been created under the pressure of mounting criticism of the 1963 "Act To Regulate Visiting Speakers At State supported Colleges and Universities," the panel attempted to be as fair as possible, and devoted as much time to hearing proponents of the law as it gave to the critics of the measure.

Typical Supporters

In addition to a number of legislators who had originally effected the passage of the law, other groups and individuals came before the commission to present their views. And though numerous individuals spoke for the law, their arguments are typified by the presentations of one group and one individual — the American Legion and State Senator Tom White.

It was White, who, speaking as an individual, called the ban law "wholesome" and expressed the opinion that the state should "let accreditation go and see what happens."

During his testimony before the commission, White also attacked "Politics USA," a supplementary text compiled by two University political science professors, claiming that the book could be used to indoctrinate students.

Under questioning by Study Commission Chairman David Britt as to what he thought the state should do if loss of accreditation should hurt state-supported institutions, White replied that the state should sue the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

This brought White into an argument with Britt, who contended that since the association is a voluntary organization which can choose its own members, it can also expel them for what it considers a valid reason.

In general, the Legion and some of the other supporters of the gag law took some of following lines in defending the measure:

— They claimed that the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools had exceeded its authority in threatening revocation of accreditation because of the speaker ban.

— They claimed that the association would never go through with its threat and take away accreditation.

— They claimed that if the institutions affected did lose accreditation, the effect of this would not be serious.

— They claimed that the speaker ban had been necessitated by communist infiltration of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Most of all, they equated the speaker ban issue with a case of Americanism versus communism.

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of the Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. Letters and columns, covering a wide range of views, reflect the personal opinions of their authors.
ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

DTH Awards Of The Week

Lizard of the Week: The guy who says football games have to have a fourth quarter.

* * *

Quote of the Week: The student who said, in a News Bureau poll of reaction to the Britt Commission's speaker ban law report, "I don't know what to think. I haven't read The Daily Tar Heel today."

* * *

Most Amazing Fact of the Week: From the Durham Morning Herald: Astronomers do not yet know how the moon came into being.

* * *

Loser of the Week: The woman who was being tried in Bristol, Va., for grand larceny. While the jury was out, she changer her plea to guilty. The jury came in and its verdict was not guilty. She is still in jail while court officials try to decide what to do.

* * *

Lone Wolf Award: Paul Schubert, 26-year-old bachelor and the only male among 560 girl students at the College of the St. Scholastica in Duluth, Minn.

* * *

Cops of the Week: Raleigh policemen who drove the shaggy Rolling Stones from their appearance in Raleigh to the airport. They used a paddy wagon to make sure the Stones would not be mobbed by thrilled devotees of the "Mersey Sound." We honor them because it obviously took extreme dedication to duty to turn the things loose once they got them to the airport.

* * *

Bargain of the Week: Luther Hodges, who was paid his yearly salary as chairman of the board of the Research Triangle Foundation Wednesday. He got $1.

* * *

Adrenaline Award: William Hawkinks, 14-year-old Ohio boy who lifted a tractor off his sister when it turned over on her. He tried again later at his farm home in Xenia and could not budge the machine.

* * *

Warning of the Week: Girls who swap mascara pencils are helping spread trachoma, the world's leading cause of blindness, according to Dr. Phillips Thygeson of the University of California's Proctor Foundation. Pencil swapping can also spread follicular conjuntivitis germs, he said.

* * *

Bravery Award: Five self-proclaimed pacifists who burned their draft cards in New York City's Union Square. Only one of them was eligible for the draft; the others were too old or classified 4F.

* * *

White Man of the Week: Marion W. Mills, sheriff of New Hanover County. He said he and six of his deputies joined the Ku Klux Klan to get undercover information, but he ordered them out when some of them ' got enthused" with the Klan. One of the deputies had been elected to a state Klan office.

* * *

Backdown of the Week: Jesse Helms, spokesman of WRAL-TV in Raleigh. He spent four days of his program of editorial commentary reading a lengthy letter defending the speaker ban. The letter was written by Douglas G. Ball, son of U. S. Under Secretary of State George Ball. He said he was surprised the letter had been read on television and Helms had used it to reach some "conclusions" which he did not support. Helms has apologized, according to Ball, and will correct his mistake in calling Ball a student at Chapel Hill. He was a graduate student last year, but is not now enrolled.

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; John Jennrich, associate editor; Barry Jacobs, managing editor; Fred Thomas, news editor, Pat Stith, sports editor; Gene Rector, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; John Greenbacker, political writer; Ed Freakley, Andy Myers, Lynne Harvel, Lynne Sizemore, David Rothman, Ray Linville, staff writers; Jack Harrington, bus. mgr.; Tom Clark, asst. bus. mgr.; Woody Sobol, ad. mgr.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all ap news dispatches.

"Great Weekend"

Liberal Comment

Justice Department Must Alter Policy Concerning Personnel In Mississippi

By PETER NEMENYI

If equal rights are to become a reality in the deep South, then the shadow of fear mut be lifted, and to this end the government must adopt a policy opposed to the intimidation that is widespread in the area. In addition, the personnel sent there by the Justice Department must be in tune with this purpose.

The Justice Department has several hundred FBI agents visible in Mississippi. So far as I know, all of them are white. I can't be quite certain, as a letter asking Wiley Branton, Special Assistant to the Attorney General, was forwarded to the FBI and has not been answered so far. The question is a very important one, in an area where The Law has always meant intimidation by white men who talk down to Negroes. Unfortunately the FBI men stationed in Mississippi do not inspire much more confidence in the Negro population.

Laurel, Miss., is lucky in that the three or four agents stationed there are not outspokenly hostile. However, they do address Negroes only by first name. They also have a traditional middle-class disdain for any human being who is not well-dressed, clean-shaven, crewcut and reasonably articulate, (including the culturally deprived poor whites who engage in violence, but not the well-dressed men in positions secured thereby.) The agents' attitude to the COFO staff who have been working in Laurel, some of whom have a college degree, was quite friendly, mixed with a little condescension and some genuine concern for their safety. The concern shows itself in small ways.

For instance, more than once, agents have warned COFO workers to be careful, because such-and-such a thing was likely to happen to them in the next few days. But they would not use their knowledge to interfere in local affairs, and without fail the predicted act took place.

Last winter, some fifteen Laurel Negroes and a few COFO workers spent two days in front of the Registrar's office in the county court house. White men, some visibly armed and some locally known as Klansmen, lined the corridor, muttering curses and threats whenever a COFO worker passed them. After many telephone calls to the local FBI and Washington, one of the agents appeared. He walked through the corridor, casually asked Chief Deputy Sheriff McMinn why these men were here, and was told they are waiting to be called for jury duty. Then he talked briefly with two COFO workers and walked out, returning once more later. No doubt, even this minimal presence inhibited the sheriff's "jurors", and there was, apart from McMinn's arrest of a Negro woman for vocally protesting the removal of benches and circulation of cold air, only one incident: one minute after Ed Dubinsky, a Tulane professor and civil rights volunteer, walked out, six jurors ran out after him, caught up and jumped on him. Outdoor spectators included the city clerk, who was seen motioning the pursuing jurors on with his thumb.

Another example of a helpful appearance occurred two weeks later, when Ed was called before the judge for being kicked in the head ("disorderly conduct by fighting"). A few COFO workers accompanied him to the city court. There were "jurors" in the court room, in the hall, at the bottom of the stairs and around the entrance. However, when the group left, one of the FBI agents was in the hall and one was downstairs near the door. Their casual presence may have saved the group from serious harm. Nothing happened.

But this is not typical, and many a Negro or civil rights worker in Mississippi has been beaten senseless in the presence of an FBI agent busily writing in his notebook. More often the FBI simply isn't around, except to investigate afterwards and then wait for the next case.

While a civil rights worker was in Jones County jail for ordering apple pie at the Pinehurst Coffee Shop, a trustee and the deputy sheriff in charge of the jail were continually working up other, white male, inmate against him, and promised to have baseball bats brought in. Worried friends on the outside were unable to get anybody in to see the prisoner and appealed to the FBI. But the agents refused to enter the jail to investigate what was going on.

Though legally authorized to deal with violations of this kind, the FBI operates under a number of handicaps which make it practically impossible. One of these is its director, J. Edgar Hoover, who is too preoccupied with other matters such as campus politics and personalities to take much interest in making it safe to break through racial barriers. His rare public utterances on questions of civil rights usually take the form of personal attacks on civil rights leaders, for instance his denunciation of Martin Luther King as a "notorious liar." In addition, any FBI agent stationed in Mississippi who really wants to uphold civil rights would be in an awful fix, because a cordial working relationship with officials such as McMinn is indispensable for tracing stolen cars and in other non-civil-rights assignments.

This is why civil rights supporters urge the Justice Department to assign a separate staff of FBI or other federal agents (white and Negro) to handle civil rights violations only.

The actions currently being taken by the Justice Department may assure that people of any race, in any part of the country, can go almost anywhere — if they are ready to take grave risks and go through an ordeal first. But only positive affirmation by the government of the laws against intimidation will secure the right of every citizen to join in a peaceful demonstration without first being gassed and clubbed at a previous try, to apply for a better job without expecting his home to go up in flames, and to drink coffee at a public accomodation without first drinking ammonia and spending time in the county jail. This is not too much freedom, nor is it too soon.

Letters To The Editor

Head Cheerleader Defended And Associate Editor Blasted

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

As a cheerleader, I have stumbled down to breakfast all to often this year and been greeted by some glowing editorial or letter from various misinformed sources concerning the cheerleaders and their inability, lack of spirit, or lack of good taste. One student felt as though the cheerleaders did not care. I wonder if he attended the pep rally prior to the Clemson game where 103 spirited fans huddled around a bonfire intented to burn before thousands who would come to see Carolina win the next day. Moreover, thirty-five of those students who did show up for the last home game pep rally were cheerleaders and members of the pep band.

This year for the first time the cheerleaders were selected by a committee composed of various representatives of the student body. The widely diversified squad was chosen solely and impartially on their ability and performance and hails from residence hall as well as fraternity and sorority houses. The squad is strictly governed by a constitution and has been characterized by outstanding leadership and organization under the direction of head cheerleader Jerry Houle.

For the first time in many years, Jerry held weekly practices and planning sessions. He organized five pep rallies including a fireworks show, three bonfires, a torch parade, and a presentation of the homecoming court and appearance of the football squad and captains. Small Carolina footballs have been thrown at each home game despite near disaster from mobs of young children. During August at each member's personal expense a week of practice was held at Virginia Beach where the cheerleaders practiced a minimum of four hours per day and prepared severn new cheers. Jerry made repeated attempts for financial aid and permission from Athletic Director Chuck Erickson to travel to Ohio State. Each time the answer was no. Other members of the squad met with the same answer. As a result, two cheerleaders are going to be sent to Notre Dame. Furthermore, many of the boys had to pay for their own uniforms. This fall, the cheerleaders recorded commercials for WCHL encouraging spirit and attendance at away games. Finally, an associate editor of The Daily Tar Heel, who himself quoted Jerry Houle's Saturday performance as "a model of poor taste," turns right around and calls our head cheerleader a braying jackass. Not only is Jennrich using poor taste himself but this is pure slander from one who in his position should know better. Maybe Jennrich or any other grandstand cheerleader would like to confront 50,000 fans on Nov. 20th and believe he can be perfect.

Dick Starnes
Chi Phi House

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Associate Editor John Jennrich has written his third article of the year — a diatribe against UNC's head cheerleader Jerry Houle.

Usually the DTH associate editor writes several columns a week, but Jennrich has written only one editorial, one column and one story for the DTH. However, we would discourage him from trying to write any more and leave him contended to clip out articles and editorials from the state's dailies.

We don't know where McCrary's graduate assistant has been these last few years, whether he attended any football games previous to the Clemson game or whether he has seen any of Carolina's past cheerleaders. Apparently, though, he hasn't done much research on the duties and characteristics of cheerleaders.

At Carolina only three things make us apathetic students get aroused enough to cheer the Tar Heels: (1) a good play, (2) good booze, and (3) a good cheerleader. We've had plenty of all three this year, in varying doses.

It takes some courage to stand before 40,000 football fans and try to make them cheer, without making an ass of oneself. Jerry Houle has had this courage and lack of inhibition.

It takes creativity to think of new cheers, to put new life into old ones, to know when to cheer. Jerry Houle has his knowledge and knack.

It takes imagination to keep the crowd's attention with jokes or unusual outfits. Jerry Houle has shown his imagination.

Every decent cheerleader at every school in the country does his best to glorify the efforts of his team and disparage those of the opponent. At U.Va. and at the Citadel, when the opposing teams are being introduced, the crowd roars after each name. "Snerdley (or whatever his name is), who's he!" This tactic is rather disarming to the visiting squad.

It wasn't necessary to call the Clemson players "stupid;" we all knew it anyway. It wasn't necessary to joke about the National Merit Scholars, but Jerry earned a laugh from his crack, keeping the fans awake and alert.

As for Jennrich's little Boy Scout friends —those honest, trustworthy, courteous defenders of the American way very nicely swamped the cheerleaders when they were about to throw the souvenir footballs into the stands. With great friendliness, kindness and obedience the cute little brats stole, swiped and absconded those footballs, which were intended for UNC students.

Perhaps Jennrich wrote his little article with tongue in cheek, hoping to invite letters of protest; perhaps he didn't. But he is getting them.

We don't think Jerry Houle reflected any implications of moral laxity, even if Mr. Jennrich doesn't like bad words.

Alan Banov

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

I would like to agree with John Jennrich in his article against our head cheerleader Jerry Houle. All Houle has is just tons of wit and enthusiasm. Why should we be subjected to laughing at his quips, and yelling along with him, just because he has somehow transmitted some of his school spirit into us ?I also think that he has insulted too many people by joking that the National Merit Scholars "cheated" or that Carolina students drink.

No, when I go to a game, I want none of Houle's dynamic personality that helps to unite the students into one thunderous, enthusiastic body. Let me instead remain seated in the upper deck, untouched by his "poor taste." As a matter of fact, for the Duke-Carolina game, I plan to completely ig nore the cheerleaders, and if necessary the whole crowd, and to allot myself exactly three "rah-rah-rahs" and only one "Give 'Em Hell Heels." This kind of open, free spirit inspires teams to win. This kind of spirit, I'm sure Jennrich will agree, is the true Carolina spirit.

Larry Kimel
117 Alexander

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

After reading Nov. 10ths DTH, I can say that I am more ashamed of the article written by associate editor John H. Jennrich than any actions that head cheerleader Jerry Houle could ever commit at a football game. I am ashamed to go to a school where the school "rag" condescends to "stabbing" in the back one who tries so hard to bolster school spirit as Jerry Houle. I have but one question to ask "associate" editor" Jennrich. If Jerry Houle's actions are the actions of a "braying jackass," then what is your article?

Ed Robbins
54D Davie Circle

Apologetic Letter

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

I have just written to a friend of mine who is in the Marine Corps, stationed in South Viet Nam. My first impulse was to write a typically Joe College letter, relating cheerfully the fun and frolics of University life. Then I realized that this would be a grave error, in view of the student demonstrations which have undoubtedly lowered the spirit of the men in Viet Nam. My letter turned out to be an apology.

If the SPU wants to question the U. S. policy in Southeast Asia, let them demonstrate. But why do they insist on attacking the soldier, who is catching all of the hell. By now it seems certain that we can't expect the noble organization, and others like it, to change their ways. I do not believe that these groups are representative of student opinion either at the University or at other schools. But how are the boys in Viet Nam to know this when they read about the demonstrations, and hear words of hate as they leave the U. S., on their way to war?

It seems to me that it is time for the student leaders to organize the majority of students' thoughts, and let the true opinion be known.

Tom Cathey
252 Craige

Vice President

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

In the Nov. 6 DTH there appeared a letter by Jim Little attacking the Universit Party for voting against a proposal to place the president and vice-president on the same ticket, as in national elections. It is the feeling of a large majority of the U.P. legislators that, unlike the vice-president of the United States, the vice-president of Student Government at Chapel Hill is responsible first to the legislature and second to the president, and that electing the best vice-presidential candidate is much more important than having the two top positions filled by members of the same party.

Little claims that a majority of the U.P. legislators voted against the bill because the proposed change would hurt them in the spring elections and that they would fare better under the present system. I wish Representative Little would explain this more fully, because we are unaware of how either system would favor either party.

George M. Ingram
University Party Floor Leader

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel welcomes letters to the editor on any subject, particularly on matters of local or University interest. Letters must be typed, double spaced and must include the name and address of the author or authors. Names will not be omitted in publication. Letters should be kept as brief as possible. The DTH reserves the right to edit for length or libel.

SCRAMBLE SCRAMBLE

CHASE DINING HALL

Hot Sandwich Counter at Lunch

THIS WEEK'S SANDWICHES

— Monday —
JUMBO HAMBURGER ON BUN
Cole Slaw — F.F. Onion Rings
60c

— Tuesday —
HICKORY SMOKED BARBECUE ON BUN
F.F. Potatoes — Cole Slaw Salad
60c

— Wednesday —
CHASE TWINS
2 RED DEVIL FRANKS
Chili — Cole Slaw
50c

— Thursday —
JUMBO CHEESEBURGER ON BUN
F.F. Potatoes — Cole Slaw
60c

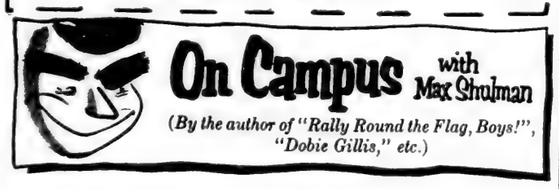
— Friday —
GRILLED MINUTE STEAK ON TOAST
OPEN FACE
F.F. Potatoes
65c

— Saturday —
HOT ROAST BEEF SANDWICH
OPEN FACE
Mashed Potatoes — Gravy
60c

POSITIVELY NO WAITING
BREAKFAST OR LUNCH

OPEN DAILY 7:00 - 11:00 11:00 - 2:00 5:00 - 7:15 OPEN DAILY

CLIP OUT AND SAVE



(By the author of "Rally Round the Flag, Boys!", "Dobie Gillis," etc.)

YOU, TOO, CAN BE INFERIOR

The second gravest problem confronting college students today is inferiority feelings. (The first gravest problem is, of course, the recent outbreak of moult among sorority house canaries.) Let us today look into the causes of inferiority feelings and their possible cures.

Psychologists divide inferiority feelings into three principal categories:

1. Physical inferiority.
2. Mental inferiority.
3. Financial inferiority.

(A few say there is also a fourth category: ichthyological inferiority—a feeling that other people have prettier fish—but I believe this is common only along the coasts and in the Great Lakes area.)

Let us start with the feeling of physical inferiority, perhaps the easiest to understand. Naturally we are inclined to feel inferior to the brawny football captain or the beautiful homecoming queen. But we should not. Look at all the people, neither brawny nor beautiful, who have made their marks in the world. Look at Napoleon. Look at Socrates. Look at Caesar. Look at Lassie.

What I mean is you can't always tell what's inside a package by looking at the outside. (Sometimes, of course, you can. Take Personna Stainless Steel Blades, for example. Just one glance at that jolly blue and white package—so bright and pert, so neat but not gaudy—and you know it has to contain blades of absolute perfection. And you are right! Personna gives you so many shaves per blade it takes a math major to count them. And they are luxury shaves—smoother, comfortabler, kinder to the kisser. Moreover, Personna comes both in Double Edge and Injector style. And as if this weren't enough, Personna is now offering you a chance to grab a fistful of $100 bills from a $100,000 bowl! The Personna Stainless Steel Sweepstakes is off and running, and you're all eligible to enter. Visit your friendly Personna dealer today to get details and an entry blank.)

But I digress. Let us turn now to the second category—mental inferiority. A lot of people think they are dumber than other people. This is not so. It must be remembered that there are different kinds of intelligence. Take, for instance, the classic case of the Sigafoos brothers, Claude and Sturbridge, students at a prominent Western university (Dartmouth). It was always assumed that Claude was the more intelligent just because he knew more than Sturbridge about the arts, the sciences, the social sciences, the humanities, and like that. Sturbridge, on the other hand, was ten times smarter than Claude when it came to tying granny knots. But no matter; everybody looked down on "Stupid Sturbridge," as they called him, and looked up to "Clever Claude," as they called him. But who do you think turned out to be the smart one when their granny almost got loose and ran away? You guessed it—good old Stupid Sturbridge.

We arrive now at the final category, financial inferiority. One way to deal with this condition is to increase your income. You can, for example, become a fence. Or you can pose for a life class, if your college is well heated.

But a better way to handle financial inferiority is to accept it philosophically. Look on the bright side of poverty. True, others may have more money than you have, but look at all the things you have that they don't—debts, for instance, and hunger cramps.

Always remember, dear friends, that poverty is no disgrace. It is an error, but it is no disgrace.

* * *

© 1965, Max Shulman

Rich or poor, you can all afford luxury shaving—with Personna® Stainless Steel Blades and Personna's partner in shaving comfort, Burma Shave®! It soaks rings around any other lather and it's available in regular or menthol.

TODAY

A student forum will be presented on "A Liberal View of the Miralces in the Bible" by Mr. Bill Heriford, a graduate student in philosophy at UNC. The forum will meet at the University Baptist Church at 7 p.m.

Film Forum presents "We Are All Murderers" at 8:15 p.m. in the Presbyterian Student Center. Coffee and discussion will follow.

Graduate Christian Fellowship, Sunday, 8 p.m. Home of Dr. Fred Brooks, Granville Dr. Discussion on the problem of pain will be led by C. Thorn, Information Science graduate student. All graduate students are welcome. Meet at GM at 7:45 for a ride.

The CPU meeting scheduled for Sunday has been cancelled.

All persons working with the Murdoch Program sponsored by Westminister Fellowship-Episcopal Student Congregation should meet at 1:30 p.m. at the Episcopal Church parking lot.

Campus Calendar

The Olin T. Binkley Baptist Church will continue its church school series with Jim Cansler leading the discussion "The Bible: The Inspiration of Scripture." Coffee at 9:30 a.m., classes at 10 a.m. Morning worship at 11 a.m. with Dr. Robert Seymour speaking on "The Christian Case Against Poverty." Sunday night seminar at 6 p.m. Rides to Binkley at Y-Court, Chase Cafeteria and the Nurses Dorm 9:30 a.m., 10:40 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Rev. Banks O. Godfrey, UNC's Methodist chaplain, will speak at the Wesley Foundation at 4 p.m.

Sunday Evening Symposium address on historical examples of "The Geography on Christian Disintegration" By Prof. John M. Headley of the Department of History at 214 Pittsboro St. 7:30 p.m.

Tickets available for the following GM shows: La Contrascarpe (free) Norman Luboff Choir, (!.50)) Louis Armstrong ($1), The Supremes ($1). At GM Information Desk.

MONDAY

The State Student Legislature will meet from 3 to 5 p.m. in Roland Parker 1 and 2 to choose a bill for the February trip to Raleigh. This is a mandatory meeting for delegates, alternates and observers. Conflicts should be reported to Jeff Adams at 968-9068.

The academic affairs committee will meet at 4 p.m. in the Grail Room.

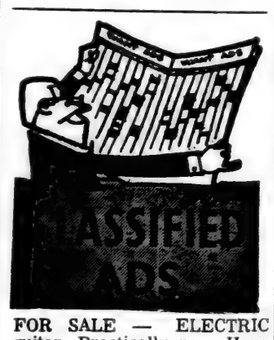
There will be a meeting of the Carolina Symposium News Bureau in the Grail Room at 7:30 p.m. Chairman Pete Cowan will conduct the meeting.

Professor J. Th. Runnenburg of the University of Amsterdam will speak on "Three Problems in Applied Probability" at the Statistics Colloquium at 4 p.m. in 265 Phillips Hall.

The student committee on honors will hold interviews for paying positions on the seminar room staff at 4:30 p.m. in 303 Wilson Library. Open to honor students.

The Judicial Committee will meet at 4 p.m. in Woodhouse to reconsider BJ-39-83.

Strictly Sophomoric: For Women Only! Come to 08 Peabody Hall at 4:30 p.m.



FOR SALE — ELECTRIC guitar. Practically new. Have been drafted — will sacrifice. Call 942-6855.

FOR SALE — 1959 OLDS Dynamic 88. Must sell this week. Full power, air cond., tan on white, low mileage. Chas. Bartlett, Mitchell Hall rm. 010. 942-3695.

FOR RENT — NEW, COMPletely furnished 2 bedroom, air conditioned mobile home. 10 x 45'. Available Dec. 1. Call 942-3268 or 942-1749.

CYCLES FOR SALE — 1965 Bonneville triumph 650 cc. with megaphone pipes — it's fast. 1965— Ducati Monza 250 cc. 5 gears forward — 80-85 mph — it's beautiful. Call — 968-8332.

Varsity
WEDNESDAY ONLY!
MICKEY SPILLANE'S
"I, The Jury"
Starring
BITT ELLIOTT
PEGGY CASTLE

Varsity SUNDAY

MONDAY & TUESDAY

"Thoughtful, provocative, stimulating, engrossing and meaningful—richly colored, brilliantly written and superbly played. A thrilling drama and one of the year's finest films!" —Zunser, Cue Mag

Written and Directed by Ingmar Bergman ... Anderssen
Max von Sydow · Gunnar Bjornstrand ...
A Svensk Filmindustri Production A Janus ...

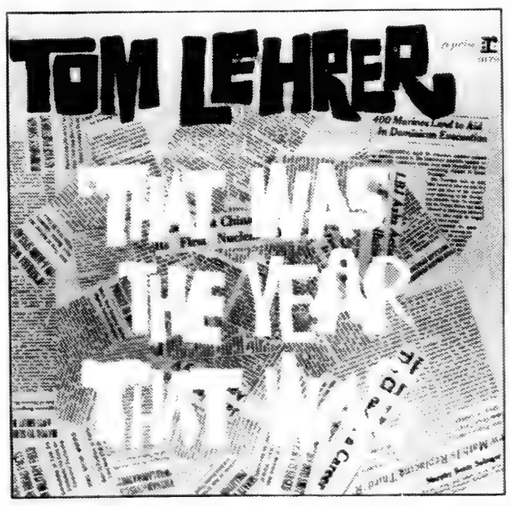
"THE IPCRESS FILE' IS A THINKING MAN'S 'GOLDFINGER' —NEWSWEEK

"A TAUT, TINGLING FILM!" —McCALL'S

HARRY SALTZMAN presents
THE IPCRESS FILE
TECHNICOLOR® TECHNISCOPE®
starring MICHAEL CAINE
also starring NIGEL GREEN GUY DOLEMAN · SUE LLOYD
From the breathless best-seller by LEN DEIGHTON

NOW PLAYING CAROLINA
Shows at: 1:15 - 3:13 5:11 - 7:09 - 9:07

SHIBBOLETH SHATTERER!



6179

MOST DEVASTATING SOCIAL SATIRIST OF OUR TIME!

reprise RECORDS

TO PLAY & PLAY AGAIN

RAND

SHANGRI LLAMAS

A new breed of shoe so relaxed you have to tie it on. But once on you're off in hand rubbed black or mulberry Shangri Llama calf. Rand Shoes $12.95 to $20.95.

Budget not up to Rand, young man? Ask for Randcraft Shoes $8.95 to $10.95
Wouldn't you like to be in our shoes? Most of America is. International Shoe Co., St. Louis, Mo.

Available at these fine stores:

Currie & Andrews Clo Co, 124 W. Wade St., Wadesboro, N. C
Query-Goodman Shoes, Kannapolis, N. C.
Woodruff Shoe Store, Lexington, N. C.
West & Call Shoe Store, Winston-Salem, N. C
Mebane Shoe Co., Burlington, N. C.
Strader Shoe Store, Reidsville, N. C.
Smithey's Dept. Store, Newton, N. C.
Stowe Merc. Co., Belmont, N. C
Paschal Shoes, Wilson, N. C.
Phillips Shoe Store, Charlottetown Mall, Charlotte, N. C.
Phillips Shoe Store, 2943 Freedom Drive, Charlotte, N. C.
A. V. Wray & 6 Sons, Shelby, N. C.

A secret handshake won't help you make V.P. at General Electric.

Something that will help move your career along at a healthy clip is a strong, steady hand when responsibility and important duties are thrust upon you. Plus a firm grip on your special field of interest, whether it's marketing, finance or nuclear physics.

And it won't hurt a bit if you also want to strengthen your grip on the subject that interests you. General Electric runs one of the world's largest "graduate schools," with courses in everything from advertising to microelectronics. You can stay on top of developments in your field by periodically going to school at G.E. . . . and learning from G-E "professors" selected from the country's top ranks of engineering, marketing and manufacturing experts.

If you want to work and study and get ahead in this kind of company, this company wants you. Come to General Electric, where the young men are important men.

Progress Is Our Most Important Product

GENERAL ELECTRIC

Insurance
Estates
Annuities

"Time Is All It Costs To Compare"

William M. Buell

The Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company

121 W. Rosemary St.
P. O. Box 1314
Bus. 942-5966 Res. 968-6622

Football Scores

Duke 40 Wake Forest 19
N. C. State 3 Florida State 0
Georgia Tech 42 Virginia 19
Alabama 35 South Carolina 14
Maryland 6 Clemson 0
Michigan State 27 Indiana 13
Nebraska 21 Oklahoma St. 17
Illinois 51 Wisconsin 0
Florida 51 Tulane 13
Syracuse 41 West Virginia 19

FIGHT TUBERCULOSIS and other Respiratory Diseases

COLLEGE TEACHING COOPERATIVE COLLEGE REGISTRY

A free service of ten denominations to some 200 church-related liberal arts colleges throughout the United States. Administrative and faculty positions in all areas of curriculum. Ph.D.'s preferred. Master's required. Salaries — $6,000 to $17,000 plus fringe benefits. Make appointment for interview through the Placement Bureau, 204 Gardner Hall, for Wednesday and Thursday, November 17 and 18.

This Week in The Old Book Feature Case

Books about Far Places

This very nice collection includes ancient travels as well as recent ones, and conventional travel as well as more exotic adventure. Prices are low.

The Intimate Bookshop

119 East Franklin St.
Open Till 10 P.M.

Free to College Students
25¢ to others

A new booklet, published by a non-profit educational foundation, tells which career fields lets you make the best use of all your college training, including liberal-arts courses—which career field offers 100,000 new jobs every year—which career field produces more corporation presidents than any other—what starting salary you can expect. Just send this ad with your name and address. This 24-page, career-guide booklet, "Opportunities in Selling," will be mailed to you. No cost or obligation. Address: Council on Opportunities, 550 Fifth Ave., New York 36, N. Y., UNC 11-8

When you can't afford to be dull, sharpen your wits with NoDoz™

NoDoz Keep Alert Tablets fight off the hazy, lazy feelings of mental sluggishness. NoDoz helps restore your natural mental vitality... helps quicken physical reactions. You become more naturally alert to people and conditions around you. Yet NoDoz is as safe as coffee. Anytime ... when you can't afford to be dull, sharpen your wits with NoDoz.

SAFE AS COFFEE

Illnesses Dampen Harriers' Chances

By BOB ORR
DTH Sports Writer

Monday is "D" Day for Jim Meade and the Carolina cross country team.

Meade will be trying to take top honors in the ACC Championship cross country meet at Wake Forest. The team will be trying to upset defending champion Maryland and regain the crown — a crown UNC has won four of the past five years.

The Tar Heels have a couple of hurdles to cross to claim victory — Maryland and Duke. The Terps are unbeaten in AC competition this fall. They overwhelmed Carolina at Maryland and have two of the conference's top runners.

The Blue Devils were beaten once by the Tar Heels, but bounced back in the State meet to top the Carolina distance runners. Meade, however, didn't run in the meet. Duke has been the only team to give Maryland a close run. They were edged by the Terps early in the season.

Meade's chances for the individual title have been hurt slightly, due to a sore throat. The Tar Heel captain missed two meets and more than a week of practice. He still should be one of the favorites. He will rely on a hard pace to win.

If Carolina is to have a chance in the race for the team title, other runners in addition must perform well.

Two of the bright spots for Coach Joe Hilton have been senior Bill Janowitz and sophomore Mike Williams. They have consistently been in the top three for the Tar Heels. A half - miler in track, Janowitz has performed admirably over the four mile runs.

Williams is better known as a miler, but has shown promise of being a top cross country runner. In the State meet last Monday he ran the best race of his career, finishing fourth. He wasn't satisfied, but good runners never are.

Sophomore Fred McCall has been a consistent runner for Coach Joe Hilton this fall. He's been the number four man most of the season. Junior Charles Worley has turned in some outstanding performances. Another good run by him could mean a lot for Carolina.

Trip MacPherson and Bill Bassett were counted on heavily by Coach Hilton. But both have had their bouts with illnesses. If they're ready, they could be the difference in the meet.

There are numerous question marks for the Tar Heels. A good performance by everyone could mean a chance for the title. A sterling effort by Meade could mean the individual crown.

Ken Willard, UNC's Big Man In The Big League

By SANDY TREADWELL
DTH Sports Writer

If you happen to be a Carolina football fan and you tuned in your TV set to this season's premier of Tom Harmon's Countdown To Kickoff you were surprised and pleased.

You saw a backfield coach spit fire at one of his college allstars. "When you see these Brown defenders just bust right on in into them Whip an elbow up into their teeth. Kock 'em off balance. You're a big man and you'll run right over 'em."

"You'll run right over 'em," The Big boy on the TV screen has remembered those words. His name is Ken Willard.

"The NFL is a different world of football," Ken said. "It's the ultimate of the game. I'm proud to be a part of it.

"I haven't had any regrets about signing a pro contract with the 49ers. Football up here is everything I thought it would be. It's glory and excitement. But it's also one hell of a lot of work.

"Green Bay's defensive end Willie Davis is the best man I've had to run against. But it's hard to single any one man out. After a while you forget the names and the numbers. All of them are tough. It's like comparing relatives."

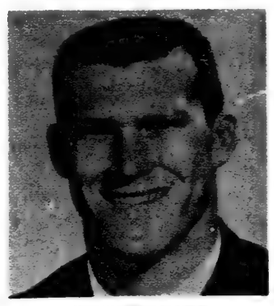
When Ken ran the ball against the Cleveland Browns in the all star game last August he was an uncertain rookie trying hard to live up to his press notices.

"I had a lot of apprehension going into that game, but as it rolled on I realized that the Browns were human after all."

After the exhibition game Ken flew straight to the 49ers' summer training camp. And like every first year man camp was his biggest headache.

"I was worried about my chances. The coaches didn't tell me anything, and a lot of rumors about cuts and trades flew around. And I put lots of pressure on myself.

Willard's confidence and



KEN WILLARD

poise plus his drive and native talent has made him one of the NFL's top rushers. He has averaged more yards per carry against the huge pros than he did last year against ACC opponents.

"There are several reasons for this," Willard said. "We gear our running attack around three or four different plays each week trying to hit at the weaknesses of the clubs we play. In college Hickey centered our running game around a couple of bread and butter plays like a run off tackle. Up here we use sweeps and a lot more draw plays.

"The four secondary defenders are easier to get by in this league than they were when I played for the Tar Heels. Their main responsibility is to cover pass patterns. They're not too concerned with the fullbacks.

"Personally I've developed my speed and power more this year than at Carolina."

Then Ken talked generally about what life is like in the NFL.

"We start out early in the morning with a team meeting. Then we practice throughout the day, we work out six days a week. They give us Mondays off. And we play a game on the seventh. It's a grinding pace.

"I think we have too many ball games. I'm already looking forward to taking a rest. I feel as though I've been playing ball ever since last January. There's only four months vacation at the end of it. This is the only time you get to yourself.

"I've been accepted at William and Mary Law School. I'd start out there next Febuary, but I haven't made up my mind yet on whether I'll go or not. I've had a lot of worries this year, and that decision is another big one."

In three years of college ball Ken Willard became a legned in North Carolina. Now the big Virginian stands tall among the men in the NFL.

Irish Top Heels

(Continued from Page 1)

lost the ball on a fumble.

In the third quarter they drove to the Irish 23 before being stopped. Talbott attempted a 33-yard field goal which was missed in the strong wind.

The 60,000 fans watched the ball game in cold weather, but they saw a hot ball game. Neither team passed well, it was all a pounding ground game.

There were several fumbles but the breaks evened out pretty well.

It as perhaps the toughest game Notre Dame has had all season with the single exception of their loss to Purdue. The Irish are now 7-1 with their biggest win over Pitt, 69-13.

Next week they meet top ranked Michigan State.

The Tar Heels come home with a 4-5 season and one game left.

The game is THE GAME. Carolina meets Duke in the annual season final in Durham next Saturday.

You can be sure the Tar Heels are a football team, although they have had bad moments, and you can bet they will be a football team next week — the best in Durham anyway.

WHAT A WEEKEND!

SEND ONE OF OUR CARDS TO PUT THE CHERRY ON TOP

STUDIO CARDS

Ledbetter Pickard STATIONERS

FOR THOSE WHO THINK JUNG, NOW IT'S

The Carolina Coffee Shop

85c STUDENT SPECIAL

open

9-9 weekdays 9-11 weekends

HOT OFF THE LINE!!!

THE BOLD NEW

'66 HONDA

Travel - On Motorcycle Co.
"Headquarters for Adventure"
504 W. Franklin St.
Chapel Hill, N. C.

DUTCH AUCTION Sale!

PRICES GO DOWN INSTEAD OF UP
COME IN AND PLACE YOUR BID

WENTWORTH & SLOAN
JEWELERS

167 E Franklin Tel. 942-4469

DON'T MISS

The Norman Luboff Choir

MEMORIAL HALL TUESDAY, NOV. 16
A G.M. Presentation

Tickets for UNC Students go on sale Nov. 8—50c, dates $1
General Public Tickets go on sale Nov. 13 — $2 and $3
Tickets on sale atG.M. Information Desk

Thomas P. Lloyd, Jr.
942-6863
942-2208

The BLUE CHIP Company since 1846 that's low in net cost.

Superior management, investments, and risk selection have made possible our history of a dividend to every policyholder for 119 years.

Connecticutt Mutual Life

KING WILLIAM RESTAURANT

STEAKS CHICKEN SEAFOOD

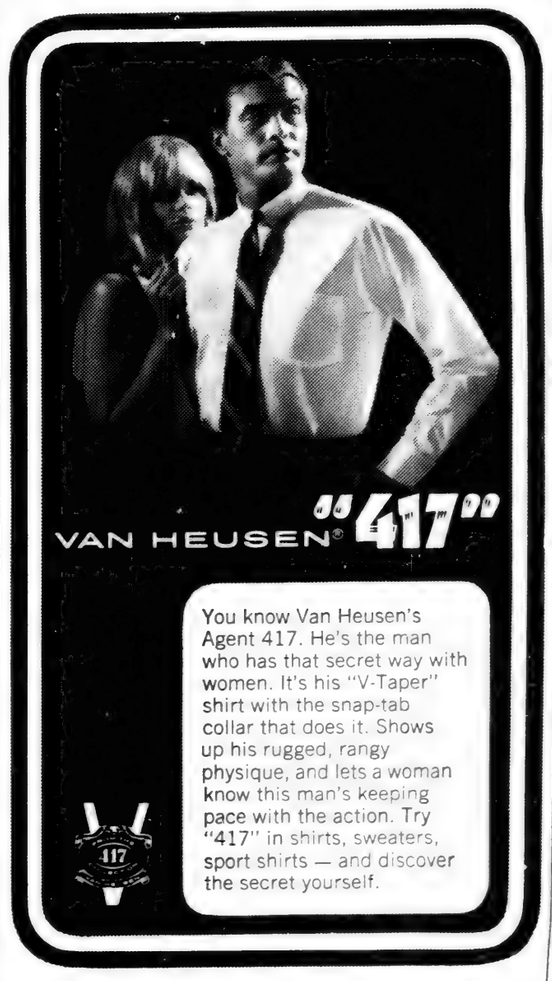
"Choice Selection of Imported and Domestic Beverages"

All New and Modern, featuring

1½ Miles From Campus on 15-501 South

Seating Capacity of 300
- Spacious Parking
- Four Private dining rooms
- Tasteful background music
- Catering facilities

Open Seven Days a Week 8:00 A.M. 'til Midnight



VILLA TEMPESTA

DINNER 5:30 - 9:30

FARINACEI $1.95

SPAGHETTI
LASAGNE
CANNELLONI
with Salad and Rolls

PIATTIDELGIORNO

ROAST LAMB
ROAST BEEF
VEAL PARMIGIANO
A Full Three Course Dinner for $2.75
Imported Wine and Beer

— CLOSED SUNDAY —

The most walked about slacks on Campus are HUBBARD slacks with "DACRON"

Great Hubbard styling with the lasting neatness and care free comfort of "Dacron", in these slacks of 55% Dacron polyester*, 45% worsted wool. Styled in traditional Classic and Gay Blade plain front models, in all the favorite colors, at better stores everywhere. Also available in blends of 70% Orlon* acrylic, 30% worsted wool, or "Dacron" with "Orlon".

*du Pont Reg. T.M.

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Press Jobs

Persons with experience with high school or college newspapers who are interested in working with the Press Secretary's Committee on University Relations should come to Student Government Offices from 2 to 3:30 p.m. any day this week.

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Vol. 74, No. 54 | CHAPEL HILL NORTH CAROLINA TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 16, 1965 | Founded February 23, 1893

MRC Meeting

Emergency meeting of Men's Residence Council for all residence hall officers, senators, MRC representatives and interested persons, 4th Floor New East, 5 p.m. today to discuss social fee referendum.

STUDY COMMISSION CHAIRMAN David Britt explains the recommendations of the commission to the combined houses of the General Assembly yesterday. Immediately behind Britt are (top to bottom right) Lt. Gov. Bob Scott, Speaker of the House Pat Taylor, and the Sergeant at Arms of the House.
—DTH Photo By Ernest Robl.

Moore Opens Session; Asks For Britt Amendment OK

'It's In Your Hands Now,' Governor Tells Assembly

By ERNEST ROBL
DTH Staff Writer

, RALEIGH — "Well, Boys. I'll leave it with you now. I've said all I can say," Governor Dan K. Moore said as he walked out of a joint session of both houses of the General Assembly yesterday.

The time was 1 p.m., and the governor had just finished delivering a 23-minute plea to the legislators to amend the controversial speaker ban law passed by the General Assembly during its 1963 session.

The special session called by Moore to deal with the law opened promptly at 12 noon, when the presiding officers of both houses gaveled their chambers to order.

This is how it went in the House:

A few seconds after the clock in the chamber had passed the mid-day mark, Speaker Pat Taylor leaned forward, adjusted his microphone and rapped the gavel sharply against its block several times:

"The House will please come to order. Guests and visitors will leave the floor. Members will take their seats."

Roll Call

As a noise of conversation subsided, the reading clerk rose, and in a rapid staccato, began running through the roll. Several representatives slipped in through side doors of the chamber just in time to answer "present."

One enthusiastic member of the House, hearing his name called, responded with a loud "Aye," and then as an afterthought, changed his answer to a quiet "present."

Following a rapid exchange of courteous messages with the Senate; the clerk again rose to present special rules for the session, adopted earlier in the day by the rules committee. The rules were adopted unanimously.

Several representatives rose to explain the absence of their colleagues. Leaves of absences of varying durations were granted by the speaker in each case.

Then came another exchnge of messages with the other chamber.

This entire procedure of cranking up the year's second session of the General Assembly took less than 15 minutes — then the legislators ran out of steam.

"We've run out of business; the house may be at ease," Taylor announced and chuckled.

A few minutes later members of the Senate were escorted into the House chamber by the Sergeant at Arms. Special seats had already been setup for the senators, so they could hear the governor.

Escort

A joint Senate - House committee was named to escort the governor down the center aisle. Then once more the session ground to a halt as the legislators awaited the arrival of the governor.

Photographers and newsmen darted back and forth on the floor. The standing-room-only audience in the galleries began to get restless.

The television crews made minute adjustments on their spotlights.

Then the doors opened, and to the words "Ladies and Gentlemen of the General Assembly, the Governor of the State of North Carolina, "the entire assemblage rose.

The governor made his way down the aisle, acknowledging greetings from legislators. He mounted the speaker's well and began his address.

GOV. DAN K. MOORE yesterday appealed to the General Assembly to follow the report of the Speaker Ban Study Commission and amend the controversial law. Moore said amendment would be "a victory for all the people of North Carolina."
—DTH Photo By Ernest Robl.

By ERNEST ROBL
DTH Staff Writer

RALEIGH—Calling for moderation and voicing an urgent plea that legislators follow the recommendation to amend the controversial speaker ban, Governor Dan K. Moore yesterday opened a special session of the General Assembly.

Moore told the legislators, "Let us accept the reasonable and honorable settlement suggested by our Speaker Ban Law Study Commission.

"If you will support legislation as recommended by the commission, there will be no defeat for anyone, but a victory for all the people of North Carolina."

Moore, speaking before the combined membership of both the House and the Senate, said, "I am convinced that this amendment to the existing law will end the bitter controversy which is dividing our people and our state."

In addition to legislators, a large audience filled the House chamber, filling even the standing room in the galleries.

Called Session

Moore himself had called the special session of the General Assembly two weeks ago when the study commission named to resolve the controversy arising over the 1963 speaker ban law recommended that the law be amended.

The law, officially entitled "An Act To Regulate Visiting Speakers At State Supported Colleges and Universities," forbids known communists and those who have taken the Fifth Amendment in loyalty hearings from speaking on campuses of state - supported institutions.

The governor requested that the special session restrict itself to the speaker ban, but just prior to his appearance at 12:30 p.m., the House unanimously passed the recommendation of the rules committee restricting the session to that purpose.

The session opened with both houses coming to order separately, then meeting together to hear the governor speak. Afterwards the two houses separated and adjourned for lunch.

Both houses resolved that the only committees to be called during the session would be committees of the whole House and Senate, to meet jointly to hear testimony.

The afternoon session began with just such a combined meeting, hearing a detailed report from Study Commission Chairman Dave Britt.

Top Prospect

Britt is himself a member of the General Assembly, as were the majority of the members of the commission; he is currently considered the top prospect for Speaker of the House during the 1967 session.

Britt gave the legislators a complete run-down of witnesses and testimony heard at the for days of hearings this summer.

The Britt Commission had recommended that the law be amended to give the respective boards of trustees the right to reject speakers.

Britt told the legislators that if the law were amended, there would be no "political communist speakers" invited to the campuses of state-supported institutions "in the foreseeable future."

Also present at the session were a number of the outspoken supporters of the speaker ban, including Sen. Robert Morgan, had been the spokesman of the American Legion before the study panel.

Both houses of the General Assembly have announced that they will reconvene at 10 a.m. this morning to deal further with the ban law.

Enthusiasm High For Dook Game; Parade Set Friday

By FRED THOMAS
DTH News Editor

The turf is still green and the Ram is safe.

Rumors circulated the campus over the weekend that "UNC" had been burned in the middle of the Duke football field sometime after Saturday's game.

Another story had some students fearing that Rameses had been ramnapped again.

However, both rumors were reported not true yesterday.

But this does not indicate that students from either school are apathetic about the annual Duke - UNC battle to be held in Durham Saturday.

Pi Kappa Phi fraternity has 31 floats scheduled for its annual "Beat Dook" parade Friday and 24 contestants have been entered in the "Beat Dook Queen" competition.

Head cheerleader Jerry Houle said the traditional Beat Dook pep rally will be held downtown after the parade.

CAA President Rick Kramer urged all residence halls, fraternities and sororities to take banners to the game Saturday.

"We have the best football team — let's have the best cheering section too," he said.

Director of Admissions Charles Bernard and Dean of Men William G. Long will be on a panel of judges who will select five finalists in the "Beat Dook Queen" contest at the Pi Kappa Alpha house Wednesday night.

The winner will be crowned just before the beginning of the parade at 3 p.m. Friday, and she and the other finalists will ride on the PiKA float.

A fire engine will lead the parade from Woollen Gym up Raleigh St. to Franklin, through town to Columbia St., down Columbia to Cameron Ave. and through mid-campus.

The parade will disband after it passes South Building.

Trophies will be awarded for the best float in each of four divisions: fraternity, sorority, men's residence hall and women's residence hall.

In addition to the 31 floats and the fire engine, the NROTC color guard, Drill Team and Drum and Bugle Corps and the AFROTC color guard, Drill Team and band will march in the parade.

Entrants in the "Beat Dook Queen" contest and their sponsors are Francis Dayvault, Spencer and Upper Quad; Annette Failese, Mangum; Patti Fields, Phi Kappa Sigma; Billie Joe Thorburn, Pi Kappa Phi; Gail MacGregor, Tau Epsilon Phi.

Susan Eschelson, Chi Psi; Lisa Robb, Delta Delta Delta; Ada Lea Birnie, Delta Kappa Epsilon; Liz Scott, Winston; Donna Hartman, Pi Lambda Scott College.

Lynda Wilson, Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia; Maureen McDermott, Phi Mu; Margaret Price, Cobb; Mary Horton, Morehead College; Sharon Waite, Sigma Phi Epsilon; Maggie Palmer, McIver.

Betty Forester, Nurses Dorm; Nita Wilkinson, Morrison College; Karen Gibbon, Morrison Falcon House; Jackie Cole, Maverick House; Susan Hayes, Old West and Smith; Zacki Murphy, Joyner.

CAPT. WM. McKINNERY

UNC Grad Student Gets Bronze Star

The Bronze Star Medal was awarded to a UNC graduate student last night for "outstanding meritorious service in connection with ground operations against a hostile force in the Republic of Viet Nam."

Capt. William N. McKinnery, Jr. of Clinton, Ill., was a sanitary engineer assigned to the Military Assistance Command in Saigon from August, 1964, to July, 1965.

He is still on active duty with the Army while continuing his education in sanitary engineering at UNC's School of Public Health.

The Vietnamese government's Medal of Honor, First Class, was also awarded to McKinnery. It is equivalent to the U. S. Army's Bronze Star Medal.

Ceremonies last night were presided over by Col. Allen P. Blade of Durham, commanding officer of the 325th Research and Development Unit, U. S. Army Reserve.

Theft Said On Upswing On U.S. College Campuses

By FRED THOMAS
DTH News Editor

Young people have to know "the three R's" to get into college today, but once there they may get a quick education in the fourth "R" — robbery.

The National Association of College Stores reports an alarming upsurge in thievery on college campuses. In an article appearing in "Esquire" (September, 1965) a writer charges, "College students steal. They steal more each year than the year before. . ."

But UNC students can consider themselves fortunate. Campus Police Chief Arthur Beaumont says he has very few reports of theft.

He said there was a series of wallet-stealing earlier this year, and he occasionally gets a complaint of a stolen ID.

"But for the most part we are very fortunate. Our students are generally of a high caliber and most of them come from good homes. We don't have the trouble that you find on college campuses in the larger cities."

He said the stolen wallets resulted in most cases from carelessness in leaving them lying in the rooms while owners were out.

The security chief for one Big Ten campus says that while there may be more theft today, there are more students and bigger campuses, too.

"We have no more crime on campus than in any other populated area," he said. He also claims that 80 per cent of the thefts of property on campus are accounted for by outsiders who come into the college to loot.

UNC had a case of outside looting last year A Chapel Hill youth was arrested in connection with theft of money and personal articles from several fraternity houses.

Thefts of cars, parts of cars and items left in cars are reported as the most common serious crimes on the campus of one big state university.

This brand of larceny has also made itself known at Carolina. Chapel Hill Police have issued warning after warning to students not to leave valuables in unlocked automobiles parked on the street.

Some of the thievery may be blamed on pranks. For example, a coed's car ground to a halt on a college campuse one warm day last spring, apparently badly overheated.

A campus policemen hurried over to help, lifted the hood, and found that the radiator had been stolen.

However, not all the thefts are just pranks. On the same campus, more than $1,000 in clothes was stolen from a car a student had packed in preparation for a trip home.

Editor Invited To Launching

DTH Editor Ernie McCrary is among 24 college newspaper editors from across the country who have been invited by Life Magazine and NASA to attend the launching of Gemini VII at Cape Kennedy in early December.

He will be the only representative from a North Carolina college paper.

McCrary will fly to Cape Kennedy Dec. 3 and will sit in on a briefing session for the newsmen.

The next day the group will observe the launching and will be taken on a tour of the base.

That night there will be a dinner for the press and a question-answer period.

Student Jobs Available As Congressional Interns

Applications of all students interested in the 1966 Summer Intern Program are to be turned into Dean of Student Affairs C. O. Cathey no later than Dec. 6.

UNC will nominate one candidate and one alternate to participate in the program in the State Department.

Nominees should have demonstrated an interest in pursuing a public service career in the international field. Applicants must be college juniors, seniors or graduate students who will be returning to an accredited college or university in the Fall of 1966 for an additional full year of study.

Applicants must also be citizens of the U. S. and have the equivalent of a B average.

Festival Will Honor Yeats

Duke University and UNC will hold a joint festival this week in honor of William Butler Yeats, one of the 20th century's greatest poets.

The Irish poet's son and daughter-in-law will appear here and at Duke during the three-day festival which starts today. It is being staged in conjunction with Yeats' birthday, Nov. 16, 1865, 100 years ago today.

Sponsored by the Cooperative Program in the Humanities, a group established last year at Duke and UNC under a Ford Foundation grant, the festival will open at 4 p.m. at Duke and at 8 p.m. here.

Special guests on the two campuses during the three-day festival will be the poet's son and daughter-in-law, Michael and Grainne Yeats. Michael has made a name for himself as a politician, serving as an Irish Senator.

Grainne is one of the most distinguished of present - day Irish harpists. Her recitals and lectures throughout Ireland, in Britain and on the Continent have won wide acclaim. She is a teacher of Irish Harp at the Royal Irish Academy of Music in Dublin and has a repertoire of over 200 songs and harp airs from the field of Irish traditional music.

Highlights of the festival will be the presentation of three Yeats plays by the Carolina Playmakers, and a lecture by Richard Ellmann of Northwestern University, noted James Joyce biographer and expert on Yeats.

Ellmann is author of a critical biography on the poet: "Yeats: The Man and the Masks," and another volume entitled "The Identity of Yeats."

Ellmann will officially open the festival at 4 p.m. by meeting informally with Duke students. At 8 p.m., he will give a public lecture in Murphey Hall.

Duke will be the site of all festival events Wednesday. At 4 p.m., the Carolina Playmakers will present "Calvary," "Purgatory," and "Resurrection" in Baldwin Auditorium on the East Campus in Durham. Grainne Yeats will give a concert at 8 p.m. in Room 111 of the Biological Sciences Building at Duke.

Thursday, the three plays will be given at 4 p.m. in the Playmakers Theatre. At 8:30 p.m., Grainne and Michael Yeats will give a public performance in Hill Hall. In his only public appearance during the festival, Michael will discuss Irish folk music at this time.

Twins Still Satisfactory

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP) — Siamese twins surgically separated Nov. 8 are reported progressing satisfactorily at North Carolina Memorial Hospital.

Four surgeons, in a four-hour operation, separated the twins, daughters born last April to Mrs. David Allen of High Point.

Physicians said Dorothea weighs 13 pounds, Althea 12 1-2 pounds. Their combined weight on Oct. 26 was 24 1-2 pounds. Since the operation, they have been put on formula diets. Previously they were on liquid diets.

A surgeon who declined use of his name said if the children live it will mark the first time in history that twins joined in such manner have been successfully separated. The twins at birth were joined in the lower hip region, their bodies fused from the hip to a common navel.

Each child has two kidneys, but surgeons said that one in each is abnormal and useless.

Their father is a High Point furniture plant worker.

Where Are You Going?

The campus Christian Science Organization will sponsor a Christian Science lecture entitled, "Where Are You Going" tonight at 8 p.m. in room 205 of the Alumni Building.

Elbert G. Slaughter will be the speaker.

Slaughter is currently on a tour of the continent as a member of the Board of Lectureship of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston.

His lecture is described as an exploration of the journey to "spiritual reality" which takes place in the consciousness of every individual.

THE FAMED Norman Luboff Choir will sing tonight at 8 in Memorial Hall. The group is in the middle of a coast-to-coast tour. Student tickets are $.50.

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of the Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. Letters and columns, covering a wide range of views, reflect the personal opinions of their authors.
ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

Politicians At Work

Campus politics is a thing which is of extreme importance only to campus politicians.

Most students would hardly notice if our legislature quit meeting every Thursday night or the office of the president quit issuing official statements or the judiciary quit adjudicating.

Generally, the system works very well here, just as it works "on the outside." Those few with the desire for power and authority usually know how to get and exercise it, while the many follow, uninformed and unconcerned.

But the system only works well so long as those entrusted with leadership demonstrate the ability to act with more than just nominal responsibility. When our campus politicians — those we let speak for us — abandon that responsibility we can no longer afford the luxury of common neglect and disinterest in their activities.

Last week's film-showing incident in Morrison Residence Hall should serve notice to every student that the line of decency has been crossed by a giant step. Our campus has always had its share of hard-hitting politics, but until now it has been mostly free of malice and filth.

Illegal use of hidden tape recorders, threatening telephone calls, whisper campaigns — all these things have been used either this semester or last by one of our parties of "respectable" student politicians.

These incidents have passed relatively unnoticed because they directly affected just a few individuals. But now an entire 1,000-man residence hall — a model for the fledgling residence college system — has been dragged into the much of a political campaign by the Student Party.

Some films were shown in Morrison last Monday night. They were shown time after time for almost four and a half hours. An estimated 400 to 600 students saw the movies, paying 25 cents to do so — or 10 cents if they lived on the floor where the films were shown.

The contents of these films have been described to the DTH and we cannot argue with Dean of Men William G. Long's opinion that they are "hard-core pornography." Whether or not the films fit the legal definitions of pornographic matter, they are not the sort of thing which can be tolerated by an administration which has to answer ultimately to the people of this state, especially those who send their children to this school.

Politics came into play when the University Party scheduled a public appearance of its freshman candidates in Morrison. Several Student Party members, who shall be forever anonymous, told the DTH that the films were shown in the social room of one of the upper floors merely as an attraction to draw residents of the predominantly freshman hall away from the UP meeting. The fact that more than $100 was raised in the process was a coincidental landfall.

Signs in Morrison identified the showing of the films as a Student Party service. Between the showing of each film an announcement of Student Party sponsorship was made.

SP leaders, of course, deny responsibility for the showing. Obviously not every party member knew the films would be shown. But top-level SPs attended the event, knew about it beforehand and welcomed guests to the door. Although the action might not have been endorsed by a majority of SP members, almost no campaign activity is. No one can deny that if the affair had been some glowing contribution to the campus which brought state-wide acclaim, only the Student Party could have taken credit for it.

Aside from the sheer pettiness of it all, the saddest fact is that Morrison is being caught in the middle and left in the lurch. Its reputation has been harmed by a few ruthless individuals who used it for political expediency.

When our junior politicians wrap themselves so tightly in this little world of schemes that they cannot see the consequences of what they are doing, it is time to give them a kick in the proper place to start the operation of their brains.

Perhaps some good will come out of the rape of Morrison after all if it will wake this student body up to the fact that politics is scraping the bottom of the barrel and has to come up for air soon — if it wants to survive.

Else many of us might decide it is not worth saving.

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all ap news dispatches.

We're Looking For The Bottle, Too!

David Rothman

Mules Mumble Story, Or How The DTH Molds Men

We're flattered.

When the University News Bureau questioned 103 students about the proposed amendment of the speaker ban law, one said:

"I don't know what to think. I haven't read The Daily Tar Heel today."

The News Bureau story got carried in many local papers, including the DTH.

It's true — students here have indeed been molded into good, God-fearing, patriotic Americans by Editor Ernie McCrary and the DTH staff. Look what happened to Mules Mumble.

Mumble's trouble was that he could hardly ever make up his mind. He just gambled on certain facts and hoped for the best.

During exams, for instance, he flipped a quarter before answering true-false questions.

He arbitrarily dated only coeds whose names began with "Q," selected the courses of freckled professors, and nearly flunked out of school after vowing to cut classes every time it rained here.

The food at Lenoir Hall was about the only subject on which Mumble could make up his mind.

Then he discovered us.

We had an opinion on everything — campus radio, the Dickson affair, plays, football games, the UNC Band and Otelia Connor.

Mumble liked Ernie's lucid prose, appreciated the depth of John Greenbacker's student government coverage, admired Ernest Robl's photography and even ate lunch after reading my columns.

In other words, he was a good guy. And more important, he agreed with us on everything — after telling his roommate he'd follow the editorial policies of the first paper he found in the Lenoir Hall men's room.

Mumble let John Greenbacker influence his vote in student elections. Armistead Maupin gave him his opinions on the Student Peace Union. Fauntleroy shaped his views on Carolina football.

Ernie McCrary determined the way he thought about Otelia Connor. John Jennrich set him straight on the head cheerleader. I told him the truth about water pollution.

Mumble, a second-semester senior, graduate in February 1965.

But wherever he went, he continued reading The Daily Tar Heel.

Our perceptive news analysis contributed to his being an incredibly well informed person (though sometimes he accidentally read the letters to the editor). People thought he should go into politics.

Mumble ran for governor of North Carolina and won.

Once in office, he never dealt with important matters ignored by the DTH — like pay for state-employed taxidermists. But he was always willing to discuss the arboretum and the campus parking situation.

Eventually, however, summer rolled around and the DTH stopped publishing. So after flipping another quarter, he casually murdered the lieutenant governor and told Ernie McCrary to come to Raleigh.

Letters To The Editor

Veterans' Day

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

I joined my fellow citizens at the Veterans' Day observance in Polk Place. I was impressed and pleased by the beauty and real dignity with which the affair was conducted. The prayer offered, the demeanor of those taking part reflected the dread with which American go to war. I was pleased too, and even a bit proud of our local SPU people who did not follow the example of some of their comrades and mar the occasion with an irreverent display of opinion. I was, however, made somewhat uneasy by the tone of the addresses given by the representatives of the Navy and Air Force ROTC. They seemed to be using a solemn and commemorative occasion to propound a political point of view, a point of view not subscribed to by some of our fellow citizens and by some of those present on Veterans' Day.

I cannot help feeling that the insertion of this political note made the observance uncomfortable and awkward for some of those who had come to pay hommage to the war dead and who are either unsure about the current Viet Nam involvement or even opposed to it. That the representatives of the military believe very strongly in what they said I cannot doubt, but I do feel that they may have taken unfair advantage of their position to advocate and defend a policy which is surely that favored by the majority but which has yet to be sealed for all citizens by a declaration of war.

Daniel Sheerin
111 North St.

Viet Nam Day

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

In reference to the Viet Nam Day demonstrations, President Johnson has been quoted as surprised "that any one citizen would feel toward his country in a way that is not consistent with the national interest." He has sadly misinterpreted the purpose of the demonstrations.

The legitimate right and moral duty of the citizen to protest and dissent are in the mainstream of American tradition: most of the protestors are more honestly "patriotic" than the jingoists who cry "treason" and "Commie" at the slightest hint of dissent. Student demonstrators are for the most part deeply concerned, highly sensitive Americans who love their country but feel that it is not fulfilling its stated ideals by attempting to napalm the South Vietnamese populace into submission. In their view, the "national interest" requires that the U. S. conduct its foreign policy in ways consistant with its constitutionally stated ideals of democracy and freedom of choice. This requires allowing the South Vietnamese people to determine for themselves the form of government they wish to have, not bombing them in the belief that they prefer being dead to being Red.

But whether others agree or disagree with this view, they feel that this country deserves a great debate on the great issues, not suppression of discussion, name-calling and red-baiting. Yet the quest for such a debate by the protestors of administration policy is presently being met by the growth of a possible neo-McCarthyite political climate in America. Throughout the government and in the mass media one can feel the growing distain and hatred towards college-age youth who profess to be somewhat less than wholeheartedly enthusiastic about going into this war. The end result of this intolerance may well be the subversion of democracy in this country through the suppression of such dissenting opinion, whether in the name of "the national interest," military security" or some other simplistic catch phrase.

The U. S. is one of the last bastions of complete political freedom in the world today — freedom to responsibly question, criticize, dissent and protest. If we are deprived of that freedom, then there is little left worth preserving.

Simon Fairfield
Airport Road

Academic Victory

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

The unprecedented landslide victory of Gov. Richard J. Hughes over Republican State Senator Wayne Dumont, Jr. in the New Jersey gubernatorial election earlier this month was a strong vindication of academic freedom.

Sen. Dumont organized his campaign strategy around the central theme that Gov. Hughes should demand the resignation of Rutgers University history professor Eugene Genovese because, in a teach-in last spring, avowed Marxist Genovese had called-for a Viet-Cong victory in South Viet Nam. Hughes, although strongly critical of Genovese's pro-Viet Cong views, said at the same time that Genovese had the constitutional privilege of vociferating his deviant opinions and that the "higher issue" involved was that of "Academic freedom."

Dumont repeatedly attacked Hughes throughout the campaign for his position on Genovese and said that the question was not one of "academic freedom" but rather, one of "academic license." Dumont iterated that statements such as those of Genovese were undermining the morale of American troops in Southeast Asia.

Two of the leading Republican politicians in New Jersey, Sen. Clifford P. Case and Bergen County GOP leader Walter S. Jones, publicly criticized Dumont for making Genovese the big campaign issue. Jones, a former gubernatorial candidate himself, is also a former Rutgers law professor, and his criticism of fellow Republican Dumont resulted in Bergen county — the strongest GOP county in the state — voting Democratic in a gubernatorial election for the first time in half a century. The influential Bergen county daily Record reiterated Jones' criticism and supported Gov. Hughes in his re-election campaign.

The victory margin of Hughes was more than 350,000 votes — far and away the largest plurality of any gubernatorial candidate in New Jersey's political history.

Gordon D. Friedman
305 Connor

DTH Is Naughty

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

We, the undersigned, have noticed that in several of the past issues of The Daily Tar Heel profanity for the sake of profanity has been used, particularly in the editorial cartoons. Whether the reason is merely that of being, for the first time, allowed to use this "expanded" vocabulary in print, or whether the person responsible knows no other words, is not for us to judge. Certainly the DTH will never benefit by the use of unneeded profanity. We feel that the omission of these "four letter words" would help the image of the paper; and the paper certainly needs help. Abstention from unneeded profanity would be meritous if only for the sake of good taste.

Tom Jones
Richard Kerr
Ronnie Laviner
Lee Swepston
Maverick House

Blind Peacenik

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

He thinks his idea is great,
But just imagine our fate
Should our soldiers feel his way too.
We would then have peace—
Peace chained in the thought:
Communism is ruling you.

He carries a sign:
"No More War,"
And most of us can see
That his mind, as well as the sign
Is totally blind
To something called reality.

C. C. Edgerton
302 Everett

Yea Rah Joyner

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

This is a reply to Ken Giles' letter debunking Joyner Residence Hall in the Nov. 10 Daily Tar Heel. How a president of a residence hall, even Alexander, could write such a frivolous, meaningless letter is beyond me; but since he did I feel this needs a strong reply.

It must be obvious to all who read his letter that he is merely trying to push Joyner into secondary position in Wolfe Residence College when what we should be doing is working together. At a preliminary meeting before the formation of the Residence College, about the only reason he could give us for his support of the college was that his hall would be able to use Joyner's Social Room. In the past few weeks we at Joyner have had an increasing number of boys from Alexander coming over and using our social room and watching our color television. As to the fact that Winston Residence Hall allows out-of-town women to stay there, we would also be willing to have the same arrangement and we might even let Alexander date a few of the girls.

Before Giles further expresses himself foolishly, I suggest he check around campus and see who has more prestige, Joyner or Alexander.

Donald F. Kemlein, President
Joyner Residence Hall

Roger Davis

Editor, the Daily Tar Heel:

I am certain that the student body will be interested in this letter which I received from Dr. and Mrs. Grover M. Davis, the parents of the late Roger Davis whose contribution to the student body will long be remembered.

Dear Mr. Dickson:

Words are inadequate to express our deep appreciation to the student body for sharing our grief and sorrow over the loss of our son, Roger.

Our heartfelt thanks for the beautiful arrangement of red roses and white stock.

Last week, we were so glad to meet many of Roger's friends and proud to learn of his great contribution to University life.

Sincerely,
Dr. and Mrs. G. M. Davis

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel welcomes letters to the editor on any subject, particularly on matters of local or University interest. Letters must be typed, double spaced and must include the name and address of the author or authors. Names will not be omitted in publication. Letters should be kept as brief as possible. The DTH reserves the right to edit for length or libel.

Have a big weekend?

We make loans on typewriters, pistols, guns, radios, record players, musical instruments, watches, rings, cameras, microscopes, tape recorders.

FIVE POINTS LOAN CO.

339 W. Main St. . . . at Five Points
Downtown Durham

EASTGATE BARBER SHOP

Welcomes All Freshmen And Transfer Students

For that extra fine finish on any hairstyle and for the extra benefits of a razor cut see us. We now have 3 BARBERS for quicker service.

Eastgate Shopping Center
(Next to Sears and Roebuck)

EVER GOT STUCK ON TWO WHEELS?

TRY A

HONDA TRAIL 90

Travel - On Motorcycle Co.
"Headquarters for Adventure"
504 W. Franklin St.
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Up To Date Listings of What's Where on the Campus

TODAY

The 603rd meeting of the Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society will be held in room 05, Mitchell Hall at 7:30 p.m. The topic will be "Critical Phenomena" by Professor O. K. Rice, Kenan Professor of chemistry at the University. The discussion should be of interest to the general scientific community.

The Student Committee on Honors will meet at 4 p.m. in G.M. Check the board for localtion.

Rules Committee meeting at 4 p.m. in Roland Parker III.

UNC Debate Team meets tonight in 105 Caldwell at 6:30 p.m.

Both varsity and novice debaters are expected.

Folk dancing at 7:30 tonight in the Presbyterian Student Center.

Carolina Quarterly organizational meeting tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Roland Parker Lounge in GM. Persons interested in working on fiction, poetry or layout for Fall edition are invited.

CWC will meet at 5 p.m. in Roland Parker I.

Alpha Epsilon Delta, International Pre-medical and predental Society meeting in room 226 of the Medical School Building at 7 p.m. The speaker will be Dr. John Cassel.

The Young Republican Club will meet at 8 p.m. in Roland Parker Lounge. The speaker will be Mr. L. Earl Stewart, State Treasurer of the Young Republican Federation.

The Student Peace Union will meet at noon upstairs in Lenoir Hall.

The Legislative Commission concerning women's government will meet from 7-8 p.m. in Roland Parker III. All members are urged to attend this meeting.

UNC Student Wives' Club will sponsor a White Elephant Sale in 08-09 Peabody Hall at 8 p.m. Bring canned food and Christmas ideas.

The Budget Committee will meet at 7 p.m. in Roland Parker II today.

WEDNESDAY

Joint Duke - UNC Colloquium will feature Professor Robert Bruce Lindsay from Brown University speaking on "The Concept of Energy." The meeting will be in room 215 of Phillips Hall at 4 p.m. Tea and coffee will be served one-half hour before the talk in the Lounge, room 277 of Phillips Hall.

GM Current Affairs Committee at 4 p.m. in Roland Parker III. This is a most important meeting. All members are expected to attend

Freshmen interested in working on Frosh Class Newspaper (editing, writing, business) come to the meeting at 3 p.m. in the Grail Room in GM. If unable to attend, notify Scott Goodfellow, 518 Ehringhaus, 968-9101.

The Americans for Democratic Action will meet at 8 p.m. in the Faculty Lounge. Students and faculty invited.

Residence Hall Improvements Committee will meet from 5-6 p.m. in Roland Parker I. All members be present.

The State Affairs Committee will meet at 5 p.m. in The Woodhouse Room. All members are asked to be present. The Yack pictures will be made at this time.

The Beta Rho Chapter of Delta Phi Alpha, the German honorary fraternity, will have its fall initiation meeting at 7:30 p.m. in the Faculty Lounge on the 4th floor of Dey Hall. Following the initation, Frau Dr. Stambaugh will speak on "Changes In the German Character." All old members and faculty members are cordially invited for the program and refreshments afterwards.

LOST AND FOUND

Lost: A Psychology 121 book, Readings in Perception by Beardslee and Wertheimer. Has a blue cover. Lost probably in Bingham or Howell last week. Finder please return to Andy Myers, 12 Old East, or at the DTH office, 933-1011

Lost: A pair of girl's prescription sunglasses with silver frames.

Found: At Duke a pair of glasses with brown and clear frames. Left in white Olds by a UNC student headed to the Duke-Wake Forest game Sat. afternoon. Check at GM Information Desk.

Lost: A pair of blue enamel pierced-earrings in a gift-wrapped package. Please contact Jack Bennett, 515, Ehringhaus, 968-9101, by Friday

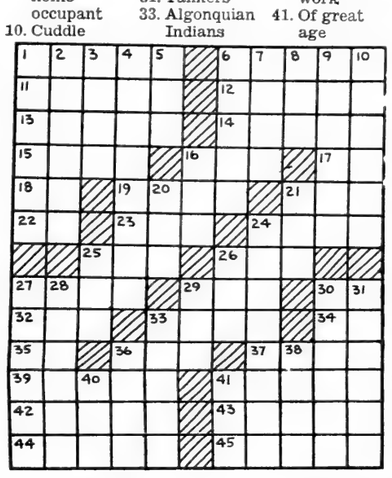
EVERYTHING IN BOOKS
THE BOOK EXCHANGE
AT FIVE POINTS DURHAM, N. C.
"The South's Largest and Most Complete Book Store"

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Carries: colloq.
6. —— Rouge: La.
11. Build
12. Harden
13. Untidy
14. Leaps and bounds
15. Tense
16. Exclamation
17. Altitude: abbr.
18. British rank: abbr.
19. Egyptian god
21. Girl: sl.
22. Plural ending
23. Old weight for wool
24. Month
25. Gratuity
26. Stoppage
27. Stylish
29. Son of Noah
30. Thus
32. Garden tool
33. Sidewalk edge
34. Chinese measure
35. Gold: Her.
36. Swedish coin
37. Precious stone
39. Girl's name
41. Harangue
42. Homer's enchantress
43. Irish novelist
44. Borders
45. Feats

DOWN
1. Place of worship
2. Mountain nymphs
3. Hardy heroine
4. Rapturous
5. Enclosure
6. Buffalo
7. Tau cross
8. Parson bird
9. Foundling home occupant
10. Cuddle
16. Seed vessel
20. Swab
21. Adhesive
24. Boy Scout rally
25. Bind
26. Jolt
27. Selection
28. Nasty
29. Color
30. Designated for appointment
31. Tankers
33. Algonquian Indians
36. At any time
38. Jewelry setting
40. Unit of work
41. Of great age

Yesterday's Answer



where are you going?

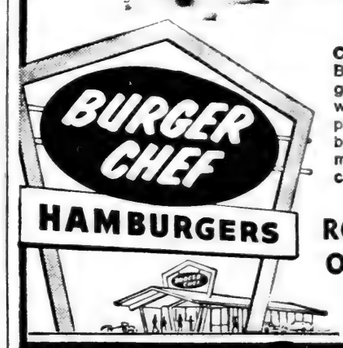
Men go where their thoughts take them. The journey to Truth is a revelation of Spirit — the kingdom "within you." Hear this lecture titled "Where Are You Going?" by ELBERT R. SLAUGHTER, a member of the Board of Lectureship of The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

Christian Science lecture

TUESDAY, NOV. 16
8 P.M.
205 ALUMNI

FOR SALE: 1961 PEUGEOT, good condition. Can be seen at Phillips 66 Eastgate. Will accept best offer. Must sell immediately. Call Tom Corbett, 111 Teague, 968-9198.

people on the go... go BURGER CHEF



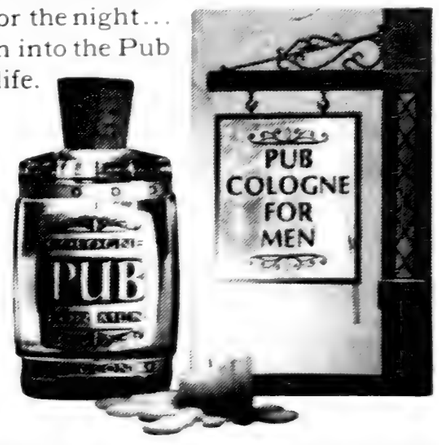
College budgets and Burger Chef belong together. Burger Chef . . . where 50¢ will buy a complete meal: open-flame broiled hamburger, a rich milk shake, and a heap of crisp golden fries.

337 N. ROSEMARY ST.
OPEN 10 A.M. – 11 P.M.

Home of the World's Greatest 15¢ Hamburger!

The lusty life is back And it starts at the Sign of the Pub

Uncork a flask of Pub Cologne. If you hear tankards clash and songs turn bawdy, if the torches flare and the innkeeper locks up his daughter for the night... it's because you've been into the Pub and unloosed the lusty life.



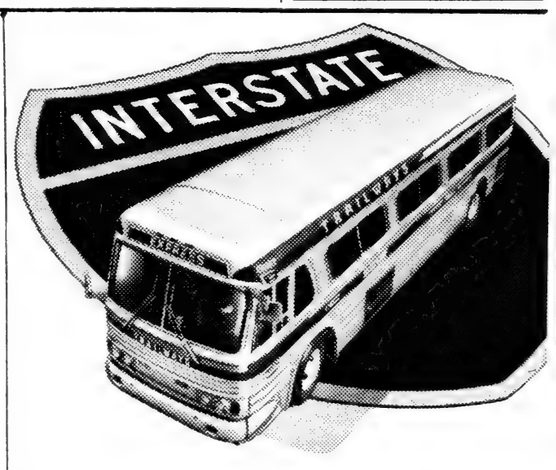
Pub cologne, after-shave, and cologne spray. $3.75 to $10.00. Created for men by Revlon.

ranch coat
WATER REPELLENT-WASHABLE-SNAGPROOF
HIJKLM NOPOR STUVW XYZ DEFG HIJ
KLSTUV WXYZA BDFGH IJKLMNOPQ
HIJKLM NOPQR STUV WXYZABI
carhartt inc.

ONLY 14.95

RANCHTONE LINING BY J. P. Stevens & Co., Inc. (52% creslan acrylic, 48% cotton)

Belk-Leggett-Horton Co.
Chapel Hill, N. C.



They go great together...

Super-line Trailways and the new super-highways

DISCOVER AMERICA

take Trailways 99 day circle tour to any destination for $99. Reduced family plan round trips, and Mid-week excursion fares. Ask about them today.

easiest travel on earth

From CHAPEL HILL	1-way
NEW YORK	$17.05
Thru Express—reserve seat of your choice
NORFOLK	$ 6.05
Thru Express—frequent departures
GREENSBORO	$ 1.45
9 Convenient trips daily
DALLAS	$37.45
Thru service via Atlanta-Birmingham

CHARTERS / TOURS PACKAGE EXPRESS

UNION BUS TERMINAL
311 West Franklin Phone 942-3356

TRAILWAYS

THE SUPER-LINE OF THE NEW SUPER-HIGHWAYS

Talbott's Field Goal Try Made Parseghian Wonder

By GENE RECTOR
DTH Asst. Sports Editor

Notre Dame coach Ara Parseghian had more than one reason to be worried with the Tar Heels' fine defensive effort against his Irish.

Danny Talbott's field goal attempt coming in the third quarter of a scoreless ballgame was almost more than he could stand.

"I had a dream Wednesday night," said Parseghian joking with reporters after Notre Dame's 17-0 victory over the Tar Heels.

"I dreamed it was late in the ballgame and the score was tied 0-0. I was about ready to settle for a tie when someone tapped me on the shoulder and said Talbott kicked a field goal and we lost 3-0.

"I told my staff about the dream, but I didn't really think too much about it until Talbott started to try for that field goal in the third quarter.

"You can bet I thought about it then," he said. "I thought 'Ara, you don't have ESP — do you' "

* * *

The secret of the Tar Heel defensive effort Saturday against the power - packed Notre Dame offense can be attributed in part to heads-up play by the defensive secondary.

Defensive backs Alan McArthur, Bill Edwards and Gene Link met quite a few Notre Dame ball carriers during the course of the afternoon.

McArthur was credited with 23 tackles (individual and assist), Edward 21 and Link 18.

Other defensive stand-outs were linemen Joe Fratangelo with 15 tackles; Hank Sadler with 11; and Bill Spain, Jim Masino, and Bo Wood with ten.

* *

The Tar Heels placed two performers on the All-America check-list compiled by the Football Writers Association of America. Juniors Danny Talbott at quarterback and Joe Fratangelo at guard made the list.

Duke and N. C. State also placed two on the roster. Guard Joe McNabb and fullback Jay Calabrese made it for the Blue Devils and tackle Dennis Byrd and halfback Shelby Mansfield were selected form the Wolfpack. All other ACC clubs placed one each.

Pat Stith

DTH Sports Editor

It is possible to study your way to athletic success.

North Carolina cross country Captain Jim Meade, who ran sick but finished fifth in the race for the ACC individual title yesterday, must credit bookwork with a major portion of his running success.

Meade is a brain, no question about it. He made nine A's, one B his freshman year. He had enough hours to qualify as a senior his sophomore year. He made his first, and only, C as a junior — taking the final course the University has to offer in Russian.

But as a runner he seemingly had little to offer. He is notoriously slow — he's never broken :56 in the quarter. He owns no driving kick.

All he had was determination and his study habits, but that odd combination collaborated to mold him into UNC's number one distance runner.

Last fall, in particular, Meade couldn't devote his afternoons to practice. He had labs to attend. But he would come about dusk and always Coaches Joe Hilton or Boyd Newnam would be waiting for him.

And then, in the gathering darkness he would go through his prescribed workout. To save time, so he could eat supper and get to his books, he would cut down on his intervals, that is, rest periods.

By compressing a full workout into less than the normal time allotted for it, Meade packed endurance into his legs and lungs.

After laying off for a week with an illness and missing the State Championship meet, he came back and ran fifth in the conference championships — a good performance.

He is a fine athlete who owes much of his success to study.

* * *

Certainly, the ACC isn't the best football league in the country, but it may be the most competitive.

Going into the final games of the season Saturday, the conference championship is not only undecided, it's practically up for grabs. Five teams have a shot at winning or sharing the crown.

If Clemson can beat South Carolina that's that. The Tigers would have a 5-2 record (losses to Maryland and North Carolina) and the title all to themselves.

But a USC win would knock Clemson out and assure the Gamecocks of a portion of first place with a 4-2 record. In that case, the winner of the UNC-Duke game would also wind up in first along with Maryland, if the Terps can beat Virginia.

Maryland Harriers Breeze To ACC Win

By BOB ORR
DTH Sports Writer

Defending champion Maryland took the first three places for an unprecedented victory in the ACC cross country championship meet at Wake Forest yesterday.

Junior George Henry edged teammate David Starnes to win the individual title with a time of 22:19 over the 4 1-2 mile couse. Another Maryland sophomore John Amoss placed third. Paul Rogers of Duke and UNC's Jim Meade were fourth and fifth respectively.

The Tar Heel placed third with 87 points. Maryland had 25 and runnerup Duke 62.

It was a disappointing day for Carolina, winner of four out of the last five championships. They were never in contention as Maryland and Duke's depth emerged victorious.

There were few bright spots for Coaches Joe Hilton and Boyd Newman. One of them was Jim Meade.

The Carolina captain was second in the conference last fall and had given indications this year of being the best in the ACC. But a severe sore throat caused him to miss two meets and over a week of valuable practice.

He still wanted to win and was determined as ever to make his bid. But it was obvious at the two mile mark that the layoff had taken its toll. Meade refused to quit and finished fifth.

Sophomore Mike Williams turned in another outstanding performance. As a freshman last year he had never run farther than a mile in competition, much less cross country. Yesterday he was 13th in the ACC.

Other finishers for the Tar Heels were Trip MacPherson, 22nd, Bill Janowitz, 23rd, Fred McCall, 24th, Ed Daw, 25th, and Charles Worley, 38th.

FIRST 15 FINISHERS: 1. George Henry (Md.), 2. David Starnes (Md.), 3. John Amoss (Md.), 4. Paul Rogers (Duke), 5. Jim Meade (UNC) 6. Bill Guy (Duke), 7. John Mitchum (USC), 8. John Hodgson (WF), 9. Charles Koester (Md.), 10. Milt Mathews (Md.), 11. Charles Harriss (Md.), 12 Reuben Beuchamp (Md.), 13. Mike Williams (UNC), 14. Walt Caldwell (Va.), 15. Fred Zodda (Duke).

TEAM SCORES: 1. Maryland 25, 2. Duke 62, 3. UNC 87, 4. Virginia 115, 5. Wake Forest 117, 6. USC 123, 7. N. C. State 198, 8. Clemson no score (did not enter 5 men.

52 Runners, 1 Could Win

Fifty-two runners representing the eight teams of the ACC lined up. Ahead lay 4 1-2 miles of physical torture.

The gun sounded and all 52 broke for the lead.

Across a wide green field they ran, around a cinder track, then up a small hill. Only 4 miles to go. The favorites were in the lead . . Meade, Starnes, Henry, and Rodgers.

The mile mark approached 4:43, Maryland's Henry had the lead. UNC's Meade and Rogers of Duke were close behind.

More green fields, a dusty path and the 2 mile mark was there. Starnes of Maryland had moved into contention Teammate Henry was right behind him. Meade and Rodgers were beginning to show the strain.

Three miles, then four and the Maryland runners had left the others in their wake. The finish approached and red jerseyed Maryland runner pulled to the lead and won.

One after another they all finished. "It was the hardest race I've ever run," they said.

Frosh Booters Finale

Coach Clarke Herdic's freshman soccer club tries to finish the season unbeaten as it travels to Raleigh to take on the N. C. State frosh in a 3 p.m. match today.

Herdic's club has whipped six straight opponents, including Duke (twice), Appalachian, Warren Wilson, Clemson, and Virginia.

DKE Earns Overtime Win

The DKE Blue team squeezed past the Beta Buckers, 13-12, in overtime in the highlight of Monday's tag football schedule. With the score tied 12-12 at the end of play, DKE moved the ball farther in overtime than the Betas did, giving them the win. The DKE's advanced in the fraternity all-campus playoff tournament while the loss eliminated the Betas. Willis and Crudup scored for DKE; Adams had two touchdowns for Beta.

The ZBT Zebes eliminated Zete II, 1-40. Eddie Natt scored a touchdown in each half to pace the ZBT win.

Maverick C-2 advanced in its league tournament by blasting Maverick B-3, 43-19. Ozie Faison was the big gun with four touchdowns, and Teddy O'Toole and Oliver Melvin contributed one each. Sammy Taylor, Howard Crocker and Larry Stigall scored for B-3.

Avery No. 1 won its league tournament by thumping the Parker Pack, 30-0. Tim Roach, Tony Nicholson, Steve Argo and Chuck DiPalma scored TD's for Avery, while Roach and DiPalma added safeties.

COLLEGE TEACHING COOPERATIVE COLLEGE REGISTRY

A free service of ten denominations to some 200 church-related liberal arts colleges throughout the United States. Administrative and faculty positions in all areas of curriculum. Ph.D.'s preferred. Master's required. Salaries — $6,000 to $17,000 plus fringe benefits. Make appointment for interview through the Placement Bureau, 204 Gardner Hall, for Wednesday and Thursday, November 17 and 18.

OLATUNJI

"Drums of Passion"

This exciting Native African and his company of dancers and singers will beat out the passionate rhythms of African folklore.

When?
Sat., Nov. 20

What Time?
6:30 P.M.

Where?
Duke University Indoor Stadium

How Much?
Singles — 1.50
Couples—2.50
Tickets at the Door

Is It Worth It?
Need you ask?
The Duke Student Union Is Presenting It

What's His Name Again?

OLATUNJI

FREE

Today and Tomorrow Only!

A reserved seat ticket for Wednesday Night's performanceance of LA CONTRASCARPE . . . fabulous French night club act. FREE with purchase of every ticket to Norman Luboff, Louis Armstrong, and the Supremes.

Supply Limited! Come now to G.M. Information Desk.

LA CONTRASCARPE
A G.M. PRESENTATION

Job Opportunity

Juniors & Seniors Majoring in:

Biology
Other Biological Sciences
Chemistry
Physical Education

Would you like information on an interesting selective Pharmaceutical Sales career? Salaried position and profit sharing plan with excellent opportunity for advancement. Overnight traveling rarely necessary.

An Upjohn Company representative will be on Campus Nov. 23 9:00 to 4:30 to discuss employment possibilities in pharmaceutical sales.

Please arrange for an interview with your placement service.

BRADY'S

Chapel Hill's Finest Restaurant invites you to the most Elegant Dining in this Area

Steaks Seafood
Fried Chicken (Southern Style)

DURHAM RD. CHAPEL HILL

When in Southern California visit Universal City Studios

"'THE IPCRESS FILE' IS A THINKING MAN'S 'GOLDFINGER'" —NEWSWEEK

"A TAUT, TINGLING FILM!" —McCALL'S

HARRY SALTZMAN presents THE IPCRESS FILE

TECHNICOLOR TECHNISCOPE

MICHAEL CAINE also starring NIGEL GREEN GUY DOLEMAN · SUE LLOYD

From the bestseller by LEN DEIGHTON

NOW PLAYING CAROLINA

Shows at: 1:15 - 3:13
5:11 - 7:09 - 9:07

Varsity LAST DAY

"Thoughtful, provocative, stimulating, engrossing and meaningful—richly colored, brilliantly written and superbly played. A thrilling drama and one of the year's finest films!" —Zunser Cue Mag

Slot Race Special
Revell Kit and Hand Control
Reg. 10.98
now only 6.25
BILLY ARTHUR
Eastgate Shopping

MILL OUTLET SALES ROOM
Ladies First Quality HOSE
Three Pairs $1.25
"All Popular Fall Shades, Also Nurses' White Hose
UPSTAIRS OVER SUTTON'S Drug Store

TONIGHT!

The Norman Luboff Choir

MEMORIAL HALL
A G.M. PRESENTATION

Tickets for UNC Students go on sale Nov. 8—50c, dates $1
General Public Tickets go on sale Nov. 13 — $2 and $3
Tickets on sale at G.M. Information Desk or at the door.

Students of HISTORY
Will find the stuff history is made of in our Old Book Corner. Many cost as little as 97c.
The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin St.
Open Till 10 P.M.

Clip Me Out
YOUR MENU FOR THE WEEK OF NOVEMBER 16
Zoom Zoom
Luncheon Specialty
99c
—Tuesday—
Pepper Steak
Two Vegetables
Salad, Bread
—Wednesday—
Chicken Cacciatore
Two Vegetables
Salad, Bread
—Thursday—
Giant Platter of Spaghetti with Meat Sauce
Salad, Bread
—Friday—
CHOICE
Stuffed Flounder
or Country Style Steak
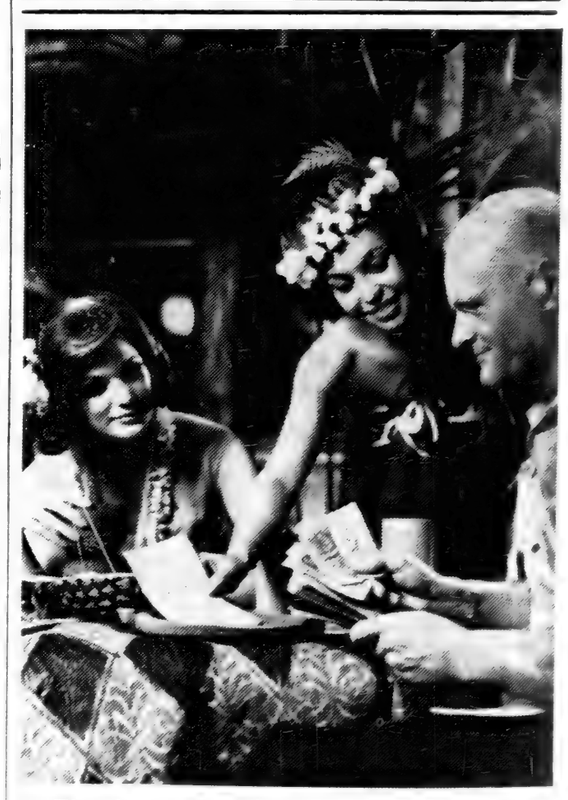
Two Vegetables
Salad, Bread
—Wednesday Night—
7:30 - 8:30
DATE NIGHT SPECIAL
Two for the Price of One
Beef Parmagiana
with Spaghetti
Salad, Bread
$1.25
CLOSED MONDAY
104 W. Franklin
Clip Me Out

Scottish cashmere by
BRAEMAR

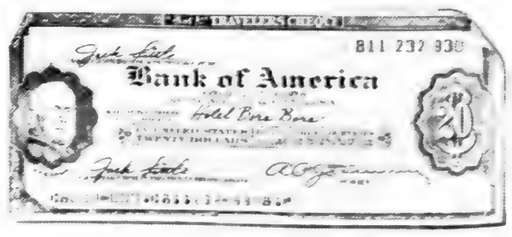
New Scottish Colours of Bittersweet, Tartan Green, Persian Blue, Vicuna, Lovat & Lichen . . .
In Lambswool, Shetland & Cashmere . . .
Julian's
Chapel Hill, N. C.

KING WILLIAM RESTAURANT
STEAKS CHICKEN
SEAFOOD
"Choice Selection of Imported and Domestic Beverages"
All New and Modern, featuring
Seating Capacity of 300
• Spacious Parking
• Four Private dining rooms
• Tasteful background music
• Catering facilities
1½ Miles From Campus on 15-501 South
Open Seven Days a Week 8:00 A.M. 'til Midnight



The franc is local currency in Tahiti.

So is this.



Papeete, Palermo or Pittsburgh—wherever you go, your Bank of America Travelers Cheques get a big welcome. Because they're backed by the world's largest bank—with a money-back guarantee against loss or theft. When you travel, carry money only you can spend—BANK OF AMERICA TRAVELERS CHEQUES.

BANK OF AMERICA NATIONAL TRUST AND SAVINGS ASSOCIATION • MEMBER FEDERAL DEPOSIT INSURANCE CORPORATION

U. . . Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870

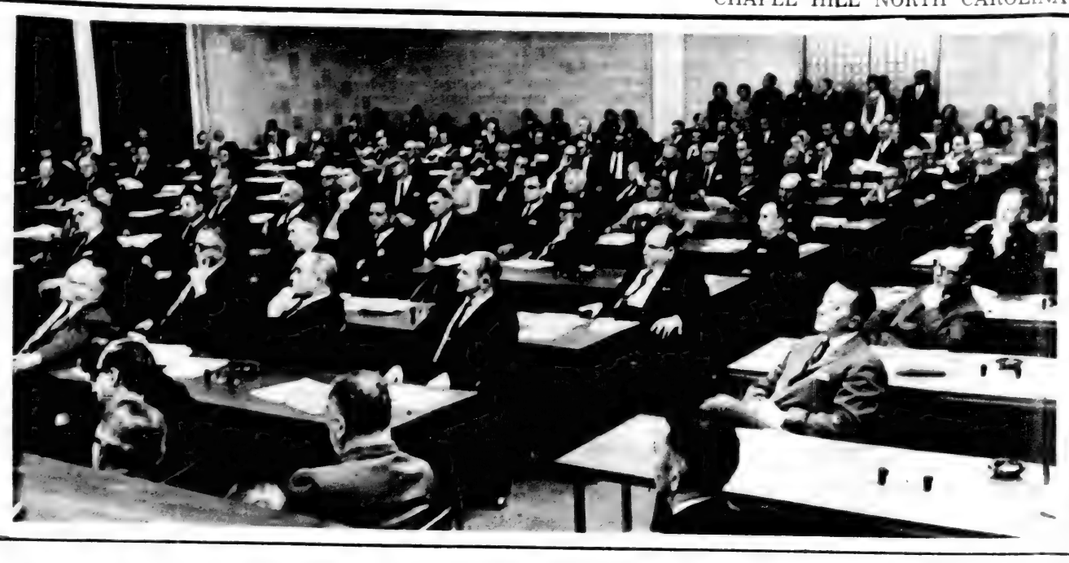
BEAT DOOK

The Daily Tar Heel

BEAT DOOK

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Vol. 74, No. 55 | CHAPEL HILL NORTH CAROLINA WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 1965 | Founded February 23, 1893.



Speaker Ban Change Approved By House

By ANDY MYERS
DTH Staff Writer

RALEIGH — Final approval of an amendment to the Speaker Ban Law is expected today in the Senate. Tentative approval was given by the Senate yesterday after the House passed the changes in a short and stormy session.

The second day in the special session of the General Assembly saw the House of Representatives pass drastic changes in the law, which are essentially those recommended by the Speaker Ban Study Commission.

The final vote in the House was 75 to 39.

The Senate gave an approval on the second reading of the bill late yesterday, but Sen. Robert Morgan of Harnett objected to the final reading.

If passed, the changes in the law will, in effect, turn over to the trustees of the Universities, the right to regulate visiting speakers on campus, rather than any legislative authority.

Tuesday's fight in the House was short but bitter. More than one legislator prefaced his remarks about how he planned to vote by lamenting that this session would mean a turning point in the influence of the legislature on the state.

The bitter fight ended in defeat of a move to put the question on a referendum next May during the spring primaries.

For the first time in his career as House Speaker, Pat Taylor left the rostrum to speak against the proposed referendum.

Taylor said a statewide referendum "could inflame all North Carolina into the bitterest debate in history." He said he was forced to set such a precedent "because I feel so strongly on this matter."

Introducer of the original Speaker Ban bill, Rep. Phil Godwin, said he favored the recommendations of the Speaker Ban Study Commission, even though he had supported the law as it now stands.

Voting against any changes in the amendment and against the referendum, Godwin said, "I am convinced the controversy caused by the Speaker Ban Law has been a healthy one . . . I am (now) willing to give the responsibility to the trustees."

An attempt to amend the bill recommended by the study commission was made which would require the president of all state supported universities to submit a monthly report to the trustees of every speaker and who he represented.

This move was defeated in both the House and the Senate, but only after a hard fight in the House.

Approval of the amendment in the House represents a moral victory for Gov. Dan Moore, who called for swift passage by the General Assembly Monday.

The 1963 law forbids known Communists or pleaders of The Fifth Amendment in loyalty cases to speak on state - supported campuses.

Rep. David Britt of Robeson, who headed the study commission on the law, said the essential difference between the speaker ban and a 1941 law prohibiting the overthrow of the constitution was that the speaker ban is directed at the person, not what he says.

After the House passed the amendment a move was made by Rep. George Clark Jr. (R) of New Hanover to investigate the activities of the Southern Association of Schools and Colleges, calling it a "foreign corporation."

Rep. Roger Kiser of Scotland objected to a study of the association because the speaker ban study commission had no money appropriated for such purposes.

Clark questioned "our need to be in the association." He said, "I don't know if we need to be a member of this organization," and then called for an investigation

Explaining his resolution, Clark said, "all it does is to give the job to the commission to explain to the state just exactly why we are in this Southern Association."

The move was defeated in a voice vote

One change was made in the amendment before passing the House. The change deleted the words "or other governing authority" from the speaker ban amendment, so there would be no question that the trustees are the sole authority in determining who shall speak on campus.

The Senate met shortly after noon to consider changes in the speaker ban law. Sen. Robert Morgan of Harnett attempted to amend the bill so that the president shall submit monthly reports on visiting speakers.

"The people have lost confidence in these boards (of trustees) to clean their own house," Morgan said. Giving them a monthly report would make them "recognize their responsibility."

Such a report "would see that the people will be looking at them for their leadership which was vested in them."

Morgan commented on a "scurrilous" story in "The University Report," published at the University and written by News Bureau Director Pete Ivey.

He said Ivey tried to show that the original speaker ban was passed, not because of fears of Communist influences, but because of "racism" and that other factors "were the real reason the gag law was passed."

Morgan brought a clipping of Ivey's story and asked that "every member" of the Senate read it in its entirety. The

(Continued on Page 3)

Order Of Valkyries Taps Eleven Undergraduates, Two Honoraries

Black - hooded figures with burning candles and tolling gong stalked the women's residence halls and called forth eleven undergraduate women and two honoraries to membership in the Order of Valkyries, the highest women's honorary organization on campus, in pre-dawn ceremonies this morning.

Tapped were Susan Gertrude Gretz, Hendersonville; Sue Stalvey Guerry, Durham; Mary Susan Kirk, Raleigh; Miriam Rose Lane, Durham; Helen Leith Merrow, Alexandria, Va.; Elizabeth Anderson Taylor, Chapel Hill.

Mary Gray Teague, Fayetteville; Sylvia Anne Wall, Albemarle; Camilla Hays Walters, Greensboro; David Kathryn Wilborn, Raleigh; and Joan Dee Woodworth, St. Petersburg, Fla.

Mrs. Sara Jo Manning and Mrs. Paul F. Sharp both of Chapel Hill were tapped as honoraries.

Valkyries, whose membership is limited to two per cent of the women student body, replaced Alpha Kappa Gamma in 1941. The order corresponds to the highest men's honorary, Order of the Golden Fleece.

Women students are selected on a basis of their ideals of scholarship, leadership, character and service.

Citations read as follows:

MISS GRETZ . . . "One who excells in pharmacy, her field of study. Miss Gretz as president of Whitehead Dormitory, is recognized as an outstanding executive who coordinates campus, dormitory and student activities with concern and sincerity.

In her work as corresponding secretary of the Woman's Residence Council, Miss Gretz is sensitive to the needs of fellow students and works earnestly to fulfill them."

MRS. GUERRY . . . "One who has shown excellence in scholarship and in her academic major, music, Her strong character and friendly manner have served to guide and inspire those in the music profession. Mrs. Guerry is to be recognized for her service to the Chapel Hill and Durham communities through her talent as an organist."

MISS KIRK . . . "One who through her radiant enthusiasm and sincere willingness to work has proven to be an envaluable asset to her sorority, to her dormitory as Vice-President, and to the Women's Honor Council.

Miss Kirk has shown excellence in her academic achievement, which is witnessed by her working membership in the Pre-medical and German honoraries. Her strong character and gentle manner have served as an inspiration to her fellow students."

MISS LANE . . . "One who has unselfishly devoted her time and energy to the National Students Association, the Carolina Forum, and the Carolina Political Union.

Miss Lane's constant striving for the highest achievements has made her a guiding light to her contemporaries. Her interest in the total university life is further reflected by her scholarly approach to her academic field."

MISS MERROW . . . "One who as Chairman of the Women's Honor Council has been an inspiration not only to council members, but also to all women students. During a most trying time of judicial system re-appraisal, Miss Merrow has strived to maintain respect for the individual as the focus of concern. She is an outstanding nursing student who has guided classmates and the Council with sensitivity and thought."

MISS GRETZ

MRS. GUERRY

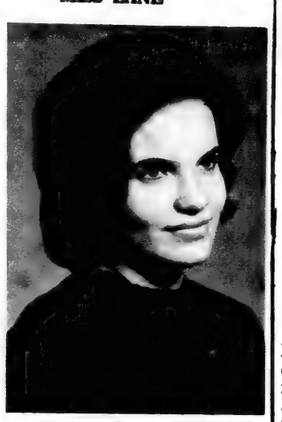
MISS KIRK

MISS LANE

MISS MERROW

MISS TAYLOR

MISS TEAGUE



MISS WALL

MISS WILBORN

MISS WALTERS

MISS WOODWORTH

TAYLOR . . . "One who has achieved excellence in her academic work, especially in English, her field of study. Miss Taylor meets every challenge with seriousness of purpose, quiet determination and a strong sense of responsibility to do her best, and to see her task through to its completion with dedication and efficiency.

We honor Miss Taylor for her service to the University as a member of the Attorney General's Staff, and to her sorority. In exemplifying the highest character, she has won the true respect of both faculty and fellow students."

MISS TEAGUE . . . "One whose quiet yet enthusiastic devotion to the University has been continuously demonstrated by her academic record and her work on the Women's Honor Council, Orientation Committee, Women's Commission, and by her service to her pharmacy class and her sorority. Miss Teague's outstanding character and sincere concern for others have gained for her the highe respect of her fellows."

MISS WALL . . . "One who has shown a unique understanding and sincere concern for foreign students, both as members of the University and as visitors to this country.

From the wealth of her own warm personality, the background of her experience and the unselfish giving of her time, she has contributed much to the life of foreign students, particularly through the International Students Board, as Chairman of the YWCA Foreign Students Committee, and as a participant and co-chairman of the Toronto Exchange. Bringing an excellence and charm to all she does, Miss Wall is respected and loved by all who know her."

MISS WILBORN . . . "One who has achieved honors in the studies of French and history. Miss Wilborn is recognized for her consistent contributions to Di - Phi, International Students Board, Student Government and in the classroom. As a member of Whitehead Dormitory, she has most willingly tutored fellow students, contributed to many facets of dormitory administration, and has been a source of friendly inspiration to fellow students."

MISS WALTERS . . . "One whose varied areas of contribution have included the University Party, Graham Memorial Activities Board, Student Government and academic excellence. Her warm personality, sincere interest in others and personal diligence have earned her the respect of the University and the love of its students."

MISS WOODWORTH . . . "One whose spontaneous interest and enthusiasm in the life of the campus has been demonstrated by her contributions to the Carolina Handbook, Orientation, Symposium, her sorority and the Toronto Exchange. Miss Woodworth's devotion to the highest standards of scholarship has been exemplified by her honors work and her unsurpassable academic record."

MRS. MANNING . . . "One who has maintained an active interest in the students at the University. Through her work in the Placement Service she has continually sought to recognize the individual needs of students. Her enthusiasm for this task makes her a delight to work with and a joy to know."

MRS. SHARP . . . "One who through the warmth and charm of her personality has endeared herself to all who know her. Because of her sincere interest in the students, her concern for their problems, and enthusiasm for the causes of the University, she is no longer thought of as a "newcomer" to the University community but as one who has always belonged here. We honor Mrs. Sharp not only as the Chancellor's wife but as a true friend and a worthy Valkyrie."

The new tapees join seven other members of the honorary organization. They are Penny Scovil of Raleigh, Kathy Cauble of Hickory, Madeline Gray of Charlotte, Muff Gibson of Chapel Hill, Eunice Milton of Marianna, Fla., Diana Foote of Chapel Hill, and Sherry O'Donnell of Annandale, Va.

Hodges Calls For Special Committee On Campaigning

Student Party Chairman Frank Hodges yesterday called on University Party Chairman Jim Hubbard to appoint a special UP committee which would meet with SP members to work out a code of fair campaign practices.

Hodges issued the appeal in a statement on recent charges made against SP officials in connection with the showing of pornographic films in Morrison Hall last week.

An extensive investigation is being conducted by the Attorney General's office of the film showing, allegedly co-sponsored by the Student Party.

Hubbard was not available for comment on the Hodges proposal yesterday.

Hodges attacked DTH Editor Ernie McCrary for an editorial published in the Nov. 16 issue which alleges SP members were aware of the films' showing and SP sponsorship of the shows.

"I consider myself a top-level Student Party member, and I deny that I in any way planned or knew about the Morrison film showing until around 11 p.m. that night," Hodges said. "The films were first shown at 9:30 p.m.

"If Mr. McCrary has charges to make, let him make them and let the proper action be taken," he said. "Otherwise absurd accusations only reflect upon his ineptness as a journalist.

"I learned about the films just like all the other 2,000 students in Ehringhaus, Craige and Morrison halls did," Hodges said.

"Realizing that a responsible DTH Editor would not purposefully twist the facts," he said, "I must assume the omniscent Mr. McCrary doesn't know what the hell he's talking about."

OOPS!

In yesterday's DTH there was a mix-up in the Greek alphabet. The wrong Pi Kappa was credited with the "Beat Dook Parade." This event is sponsored annually by Pi Kappa Alpha.

THANKSGIVING TELEGRAM — Toni Greenwood, Janet Blake and Karen Gibbon collect signatures for the telegram which will carry a Thanksgiving message from U.N.C. to U.S. servicemen in Viet Nam. Booths at Y-Court, Lenoir Hall, Pine Room and Chase Cafeteria gathered 1,146 names yesterday.

— DTH Photo by Ernest Robl

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of the Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. Letters and columns, covering a wide range of views, reflect the personal opinions of their authors.
ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

From UNC To Viet Nam

In just one day the "letter of thanks" to American servicemen in Viet Nam has been signed by more than 1,100 UNC students. This is a more-than-respectable start and hopefully an indication of thousands of other signatures yet to come.

The letter, which will be sent to Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of U. S. forces in Viet Nam, simply says, "This Thanksgiving Day of 1965, we the students of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill express our gratitude to the American servicemen in South Viet Nam for their sacrifice and service to our country."

Most students should find it hard to refuse to sign this statement, because even those who disagree with American involvement in Southeast Asia should at least be grateful that others, not they, have been sent there.

Let us push foreign policy matters aside and as a united student body give this public expression of our appreciation to those men who are doing a job which they think is necessary, whether or not they like it.

Booths have been set up in Y-Court, Lenoir Hall, the Pine Room and Chase Cafeteria.

The few seconds it will take to sign this letter will be seconds well invested.

"And Try To Get Me A Date Ticket"

David Rothman

Newspapers Doing Too Much To Publicize Self-Immolation

Have the papers prodded America's human torches onto their excruciating deaths? Did the Viet Nam protestors die because they knew their self-immolations would be big news?

Ever since Buddhist monks set themselves ablaze to protest the brutality of the Diem regime, persons throughout the United States have been grotesquely enthralled by the idea.

Is heavy press publicity responsible? Nobody really knows for sure. Most editors simply believe they have an obligation to tastefully publish all news they consider to be of interest to their readers without compromising national security.

Should the press continue giving front-page coverage to this orgy or morbidity? Maybe so, but it is still time for a thorough examination of conscience.

Usually the dead persons' suicide notes and the statements of their widows use phrases like "call attention to America's role in Asia."

"I wanted to burn myself like the monks in Viet Nam," Mrs. Alice Herz explained before dying in Detroit last March. She had written a farewell letter calling three U. S. Presidents crooks and liars.

Her fiery death received much publicity.

Then, Norman Morrison, a Baltimore Quaker, blazed in front of the Pentagon near Defense Secretary Robert McNamara's office. He left behind a wife and three small children.

Morrison, like Mrs. Herz, acted out of conviction. But that probably meant very little to his one-year-old daughter. He had brought her to the Pentagon, and she missed death only because he heeded advice from a passer-by to drop her.

Morrison's senseless martyrdom received the normal amount of publicity.

The papers played the story big, and there were the expected editorials. Nobody condoned the death, but many editors treated it as if it were the passing of another Christ rather than the end of an obviously deranged fanatic whose actions ordinarily would have gone unnoticed.

Roger La Porte, 22, was next. He burned up outside the United Nations Building in New York less than two weeks after Morrison set himself afire.

He didn't have a one-year-old child, but he was a highly educated young man who could have devoted many more years to the Catholic charity movement he was in at the time.

More publicity, more photographs, more pious editorials.

That same week, an Indiana housewife undergoing psychiatric treatment attempted suicide by burning. Besides being despondent over her baby's accidental death, she was disturbed by the Viet Nam situation.

Mrs. Celene Jankowski had earlier told her husband that "all the world's problems are my problems." She suggested they both become torches.

Another big story for the front page.

Are the papers responsible for the deaths of Mrs. Herz, Norman Morrison and Roger La Porte? That question needs answering, badly.

Bound To Happen

It was bound to happen.

The student legislature at Wake Forest College, bastion of the Baptist faith, decided to invite a commust speaker to the campus.

They went right to the top, or thereabouts, and extended the invitation to Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

Before Andrei had ever replied, a Baptist preacher, Rev. Walter A. Warfield of Winston-Salem, said that maybe the Baptist Convention — which began its two-day meeting in Charlotte Tuesday — ought to consider passing its own speaker ban law.

We would chide him for a lack of originality, except for the fact that the Baptists have been in the ban business for quite a while. They banned dancing, and of course Wake students had a big dance party in the middle of the campus.

Whether or not the resolution for a speaker ban is introduced at the meeting, Rev. Howard J. Ford of Wilmington, president of the North Carolina Baptist Convention, said Tuesday that college business is best left in the hands of trustees and administrators.

Even so, Rev. Warfield's suggestion does bring a disturbing thought to mind — what if we got rid of one speaker ban in Raleigh and gained another in Charlotte the same day?

Or, perish the thought, we have to keep one and have another added to it.

On A Warm November Day

Campus scenes on a warm mid-November day:

Sleeves rolled up; coats in arms.

Sleeping dogs; in the shade, rather than the customary sunny spots.

Thick layers of oak leaves being chewed into a dusty cloud of shreads by a tractor-drawn mulcher.

People crawling on the ground near Graham Memorial, apparently looking for the bottle hidden for a radio station contest.

Students watching the special session of the General Assembly on WUNC-TV, chuckling from time to time when the orators got especially vocal about Communists at UNC.

Two students in a parking lot, standing back to back and holding guns. They stepped off the paces, turned and fired — rubber stoppers.

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; John Jennrich, associate editor; Barry Jacobs, managing editor; Fred Thomas, news editor, Pat Stith, sports editor; Gene Rector, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; John Greenbacker, political writer; Ed Freakley, Andy Myers, Lynne Harvel, Lynne Sizemore, David Rothman, Ray Linville, staff writers; Jack Harrington, bus. mgr.; Tom Clark, asst. bus. mgr.; Woody Sobol, ad. mgr.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all ap news dispatches.

Letters To The Editor

The Daily Tar Heel welcomes letters to the editor on any subject, particularly on matters of local or University interest. Letters must be typed (preferably double or triple spaced) and must include the name and address of the author or authors. Names will not be omitted in publication. Letters should be kept as brief as possible. The DTH reserves the right to edit for length or libel.

Viet Nam Policy

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

I am wholeheartedly behind the current surge of support for U. S. policy in Viet Nam, and I believe that the people involved are sincere and well-meaning. What I cannot understand is why, while presented with several practical ways of demonstrating their desire to help our fighting men, these same groups are willing only to "wave their flags" and not to work.

I refer in specific to the "Viet Nam Paperback Book Drive" presently sponsored by the USO. This has received only minimal coverage in the DTH and token if any aid at all by the many organizations on campus which profess to back the Administration's position in Southeast Asia. In addition to the paperback book drive there are Christmas card crives, the WKIX sponsored "Operation Merry Christmas" and other local movements.

Why can't some of this energy being used in campus chauvinism be channeled into a program which will produce practical and real results for our soldiers in Viet Nam? This is our chance to show these men that we really appreciate the sacrifice they are making for us and our country.

Andy Haltom
318 Everett

Fraternity Life

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Basic to the stand of those in favor of fraternities is the belief that fraternity life adds significantly to the educational experience offered at colleges and universities. Many anti-fraternity supporters either ignore or belittle the educational opportunities offered by true fraternal living. To this end many cynical articles have appeared in magazines throughout the country. It is of course easier to make a cynical rather than a logical and considered evaluation of the true attributes of fraternal life. This does not, however, give much weight to the arguments.

We who believe in fraternities must attempt the difficult task of defending in rational terms the significance of fraternal living — a significance which is largely emotional and intangible.

At most colleges and universities there is offered to the student body a true liberal arts education. Not only are the humanities stressed, but also a more personal type of education — an education in personal responsibility and mutual respect. It is precisely in this latter area that fraternities add significantly to education.

Many recognize that benefits do accrue from the acceptance of responsibility within the fraternities but display a marked ignorance of the true nature of this responsibility. They speak of responsibility in terms of collective discipline and social life. This is, of course, a valuable aspect of self-governed fraternities. However, is this the full extend, or for that matter the most significant aspect of fraternal responsibility? I maintain that it is not.

The significant aspect of responsibility which is found in the fraternity system is the responsibility each member has to his fellow member in the fraternity; it is the responsibility to attempt to know and understand each brother and to accept him for his inherent worth. In general students do not recognize the importance of accepting this responsibility unless they do belong to a fraternity. Fraternity life and fraternal spirit demand of all that they fulfill this basic responsibility to the fraternity and to themselves. The student who conscientiously accepts this responsibility inevitably finds that his educational experience is increased immeasurably. He suddenly realizes that people whom he never before troubled to know have a great deal to offer as individuals and as scholars. Once this responsibility is accepted within the fraternity it tends to develop into a philosophy which is then broadened to cover all of one's personal relations.

This is an education in human respect and understanding. The benefactor of this education might not be as well educated in a technical sense, but he is well educated in an understanding and a willingness to understand his fellow man. This is an important segment of education.

The main criticism seems to be that fraternities are not democratic. Of course they aren't. They claim to be voluntary associations of college students who have freely chosen to enjoy each other's company.

Human beings have a natural right to voluntary association, within the framework of moral and civil law. They exercise it by selecting their own partners in marriage, their church, their friends, the candidates who receive their votes, the clubs they join, and by countless other ways. Would we abandon this natural right in the name of democracy?

Sure, fraternities have run into winds of change. Williams College has ended the fraternity era. Brown University warns its social fraternities they must increase their membership or "get the axe." Bowdoin College has a new residence tower, which will take seniors out of fraternities. These are just a few of the streams blown about by the wind of change.

Granted that some boys are hurt because they do not make the Greek letter organization of their choice. But fraternities have their features. They foster scholarship, intellectual stimulation, courtesy, physical excellence, social competence and adjustment, charitable giving not only of material possession but of one's time, maturity and personal development. And whatever abuses are found in a house are not contingent on the Greek letter system, but rather on the human condition and are as readily found on non-Greek campuses.

Fraternities are more than nostalgic memories. They are one of the charms of college and one of the rallying points for all loyal alumni.

The appeal of fraternities is emotional; it lies in the shared experiences and friendships of the brethren. It adds a personal note to the mechanics and routine of the educational process. Fraternities offer a smooth orientation to college life and open avenues of experience.

The role of the fraternity in this age of the common and Organization Men is to preserve individualism and a healthy respect for what has gone before so that it might be best coupled with what is to come.

D. Andrew Goddard
Phi Delta Theta

Sad Commentary

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

I suggest that the next time Ed Freakley composes the lead story for the front page for the DTH someone will sit down with him and review the basic elements of good journalism. Freakley's article (DTH, 11-12-65) on the Veteran's Day celebration is worthy of the Daughters of the American Revolution Magazine, but it would probably meet with instant rejection by even the lowliest rural weekly. Proper interpretation is the mark of a good reporter (Tom Wicker, James Reston and Hanson Baldwin are but a few examples), but Freakley's drivel is hard to stomach.

I was also rather shocked by a letter in the same issue, in which Bill Michaux, in a fit of religious-patriotic ecstasy, predicted that a reincarnated Christ would be entertaining our troops in Viet Nam! I wish only the best for the American soldier, but reducing the Christian Diety to a second-class Bob Hope is a rather sad commentary on the lengths to which such people will go to justify their own limited visions.

Blaine A. Brownell
602-C Hibbard Dr.

Head Cheerleader

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Congratulations are in order for head cheerleader Jerry Houle. Surely never before in the history of the University has a head cheerleader been publicly branded as a disgrace to the University community. It is doubtful, in fact, if a cheerleader has ever been branded as anything. Through the years, The Daily Tar Heel has been unswerving in its lack of support of the cheerleaders and their efforts. Week after week, year after year, there have been cheerleaders in Kenan Stadium on football Saturday afternoon. Yet, for all that anyone could ever conclude from The Daily Tar Heel, there has never been a single soul there to marshall school spirit and direct it towards support of our team and against the opposition.

It would be classic understatement to say that home football games are a big event in Chapel Hill; it probably is unnecessary to mention the fact that everyone doesn't go to Kenan Stadium to see the game or that the majority of those who attend go only to watch in enraptured silence the intricacies of the plays.

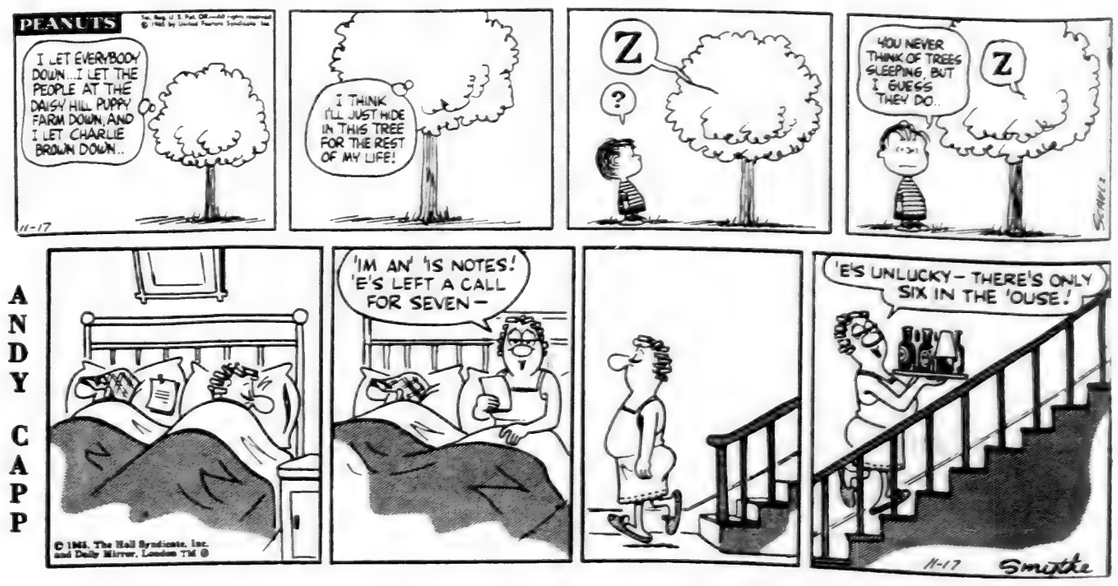
Football games bring to this campus an air of festival that is never approached at other times during the year. The cheerleaders, especially the head cheerleader, contribute much to this air of expectation and joy that fills this campus on those weekends.

It is good to see the head cheerleader receive some well deserved publicity: to expect it to be in a positive vein would be to expect a complete reversal of the entire policy of the newspaper as regards campus affairs.

No one who has attended football games this year will soon forget the image of this little blonde-headed boy, halfgrown, with a stupid looking cowboy hat twisted sideways on his head, or garbed in long flowing black robes which embody the mystical power of that ethereal quality school spirit, or clothed in a wide brimmed straw hat and a wide striped coat, week after week, trying to elicit the support and excite the spirit of thousands of students and alumni. Or will they soon forget his unique comments, perhaps not always suitable, but always suitable for the occasion. Never has one person had enough raw courage to stand up in front of a mob of Carolina students and label those lazy and apathetic members of the crowd as "a bunch of lizards."

Associate Editor John Jennrich says that cheerleader Houle's performances have been in poor taste. Those students who appreciate football and football weekends in their totality are thankful for Jerry Houle's contributions to the unity of the whole.

John Craig
109 Aycock



"As classy a spy film as you could ask to see!" –N.Y. TIMES

THE IPCRESS FILE

TECHNICOLOR® TECHNISCOPE®

NOW PLAYING

CAROLINA

Index Of Info For Today's Events

TODAY

Amateur Radio Club meets at 7:30 p.m. in Caldwell Y Annex.

Toronto Exchange will meet this afternoon at 5 p.m. All members please be present.

Joint Duke - UNC Colloquium will feature Professor Robert Bruce Lindsay from Brown University speaking on "The Concept of Energy." The meeting will be in room 215 of Phillips Hall at 4 p.m. Tea and coffee will be served one-half hour before the talk in the Lounge, room 277 of Phillips Hall.

GM Current Affairs Committee at 4 p.m. in Roland Parker III. This is a most important meeting. All members are expected to attend.

Freshmen interested in working on Frosh Class Newspaper (editing, writing, business) come to the meeting at 3 p.m. in the Grail Room in GM. If unable to attend, notify Scott Goodfellow, 518 Ehringhaus, 968-9101.

The Americans for Democratic Action will meet at 8 p.m. in the Faculty Lounge. Students and faculty invited.

Residence Hall Improvements Committee will meet from 5-6 p.m. in Roland Parker I. All members be present.

The State Affairs Committee will meet at 5 p.m. in The Woodhouse Room. All members are asked to be present. The Yack pictures will be made at this time.

The Beta Rho Chapter of Delta Phi Alpha, the German honorary fraternity, will have its fall initiation meeting at 7:30 p.m. in the Faculty Lounge on the 4th floor of Dey Hall. Following the initation, Frau Dr. Stambaugh will speak on "Changes In the German Character." All old members and faculty members are cordially invited for the program and refreshments afterwards.

THURSDAY

The Luso - Brazilian Club invites the public to attend a program presenting a panorama of Brazil through slides and commentary by Dr. Robert Daland at 7:30 p.m. in the Faculty Lounge of Dey Hall. Refreshments and informal conversation will follow the program.

Grainne and Michael Yeats, son and daughter-in-law of W. B. Yeats will give the final program in the Yeats Festival at 8:30 p.m. in Hill Hall Auditorium.

The UNC Classics Club will hold an organizational meeting at 8 p.m. in 101 Murphey. Mr. Harold Gotoff will speak on "Manuscript Traditions of Lucan." All interested persons are welcome. Coffee will be served.

There will be a meeting of all persons who have reservations on the Thanksgiving flight to New York at 7 p.m. upstairs in the Y Building to discuss transportation to the airport. A few seats are still available. Interested persons may reserve these seats at this meeting. If unable to attend, contact Joel Simpson, 929-5288.

Dr. E. McG. Hedgpeth will speak at the second meeting of the In-Service Training Program for staff members of the Office of the Dean of Women and for Associates at 4 p.m. in room 105 Hanes Hall. Dr. Hedgpeth will speak on his job and his problems as Director of the Student Infirmary. A question and answer session will follow.

The Young Democratic Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Roland Parker Lounge. The speaker will be State Senator Robert Morgan.

House Approves Change

(Continued from Page 1)

story was headlined "Big Lie Technique Directed at UNC."

It was an attempt to discredit supporters of the gag law, Morgan said. He also cited several instances of "real" Communist influence within the University.

Morgan's emotional attempt to get the bill amended failed in a voice vote. Sen. Tom White, who had supported Morgan in the change, then made a strong plea for another amendment calling for a statewide referendum.

The same move which had been defeated in the House earlier was also defeated in the Senate. White, chairman of the powerful joint Appropriations Committee, has supported the gag law since it was passed and is against any changes in the law.

Sen. Julian Allsbrook of Halifax made an emotional appeal to leave the law on the books as it stands. He said "an eroding and wearing-out process" now affecting many colleges "will begin on the trustees" if they are given the power to regulate speakers on the UNC campus.

He said the Southern Association of Schools and Colleges has "driven the General Assembly to the wall." The association is a force "whom some fear and whom I don't," he said.

Allsbrook said he would vote against amending the gag law because "I feel I'll be derelict to thousands of people who don't want the spaker ban repealed, not because of any lack of affection for the University."

Toronto Exchange Group Will Arrive Tomorrow

Thirty students from the University of Toronto will arrive on campus tomorrow evening. They will be greeted by the members of UNC's Toronto Exchange and will stay until Sunday night.

Several discussions will be held between the two groups and students are invited to attend.

The discussions will be held in 08 Peabody at the following times:

Friday, Nov. 19, 1:30 p.m. "The American Mind at Mid-Century," Dr. William Flemming and Dr. William Keech, guests speakers.

Saturday, Nov. 20, 9:00 a.m. "Student Life and Mores: Social Action in the Sixties," Mike Lawler and Banks Godfrey, guest speakers.

Sunday, Nov. 21, 4:30 p.m. "Civil Disobedience: The Consensus Society," Dr. John Dixon and Dr. Louis Lipsitz, speakers.

Friday evening there will be an informal gathering in the Naval Armory with entertainment by the Daquiris.

Saturday night the exchange students will be entertained at a banquet in the Voyager Inn at Durham. The management of the Voyager will provide many services to the students at reduced prices, according to Hubert Wooten, co-chairman of the Exchange.

THE NEW YORK LIFE agent on your campus is a good man to know.

Write . . . Phone . . . Visit

GEORGE L. COLEHEAD, C.L.U.
[illegible] East Franklin
(Over Dairy Bar) Ph. [illegible]

NEW YORK LIFE

NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

LUNCH from 1.10 to 1.65
DINNER from 1.75 to 5.50

Featuring U. S. Choice Steaks,
Back Fin Lump Crabmeat,
Baked Country Cured Ham
Breast of Young Chicken

Six attractive dining rooms of varying size and decor afford flexible facilities for serving

BANQUETS AND RECEPTIONS

Recommended by Mobile Travel Guide
Best of Hillsway

Blair House

Durham-Chapel Hill Boulevard
Tel. 489-9128

FOR SALE: 1961 PEUGEOT, good condition. Can be seen at Phillips 66 Eastgate. Will accept best offer. Must sell immediately. Call Tom Corbett, 111 Teague, 968-9198.

FOR SALE: 1964 SUZUKI 50 c.c. only 2600 miles. Cheap. Call 942-6953.

FOR SALE: 1960 RENAULT 3 speed. Good tires, good condition. Price $175. Call 968-5064.

MOTORCYCLE FOR SALE: 1965 HONDA Superhawk, 305 c.c. The machine is in excellent condition. Call 967-3169.

FREE $5.00 FREE

worth of paperback books can be yours FREE. Just identify the book from which this rubric comes.

"Three thousand miles of borderline
Nor fort nor armed host
On all this frontier neighbor ground
From east to western coast –"

—Anonymous

Bring your answer to Mrs. Hogan, at the Bull's Head Bookshop, and get your free books. The first correct answer collects!

BULL'S HEAD BOOKSHOP

Located: Ground Floor
University Library

Hours: 9 - 9 Mon-Fri.
9 - 1 Sat.

CHASE DINING HALL

OPEN DAILY
7:00 - 2:00
5:00 - 7:15

Featuring The All-Time Favorite
STUDENT SPECIAL
50c
Hot Sandwich Luncheon Counter
Bean Bowl Soup du Jour

Private Rooms for Meetings
Banquets – Buffets
Teas or Coffee

BEAT DOOK WEEKEND

Friday Night
RENDEZVOUS ROOM 8 P.M.
NANCY RHOADES
Folksinging followed by Discotheque
(Couples Only)

Saturday Night
LOUIS ARMSTRONG
and His All-Stars
CARMICHAEL 8 P.M.
Get Tickets NOW!

Sunday Afternoon
THE SUPREMES
with the Lovin' Spoonful
CARMICHAEL 1:30 p.m.
Brought to you by GM

The IBM interviewer will be on campus December 1-2

Interview him. How else are you going to find out about new ways to use your talents and skills in an exciting "go-places" career?

You could visit a nearby IBM branch office. You could write to the Manager of College Relations, IBM Corporate Headquarters, Armonk, New York 10504. But we would like to see you on campus. Why not check at your placement office today? See if you can still make an appointment for an on-campus visit with IBM. Then interview the IBM interviewer. Whatever your area of study, ask him how you might use your particular talents at IBM. Ask about your growth potential in America's fastest-growing major industry. You'll never regret it. IBM is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

IBM

DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS

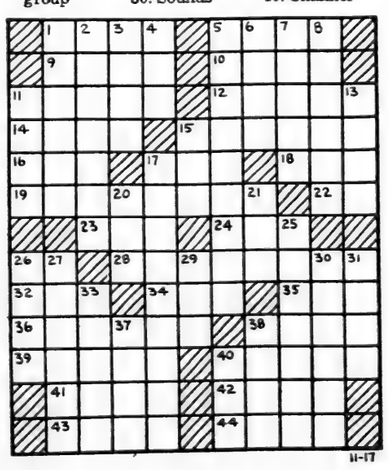
1. Scrutinize
5. Talk
9. Possess
10. Stockings
11. Sulked
12. Surprise result, in sports
14. Bird: Latin
15. Having a handle
16. Macerate
17. Unit of work
18. Affirmative
19. Bivalve barbecue
22. Paper measure: abbr.
23. Man's nickname
24. Tavern
26. Coordinating conjunction
28. Mingling
32. Edible seed
34. Loiter
35. Low
36. Unjust
38. Dry
39. Rock
40. Coarse
41. Innisfail
42. Assistant
43. Musical sign
44. Soviet news agency

DOWN

1. Earth mover
2. Ottawa or Washington
3. Birds as a class
4. Man's nickname
5. City on the Yangtze
6. Jumps
7. Analyze
8. Seesaw
11. Grape refuse
13. Sports group
15. Constellation
17. Exuberant
20. Crowd
21. Conclusion
25. Hunters
26. Musical composition
27. Tenant
29. Front page weather box
30. Sounds
31. Deities
33. Before: naut.
37. Cuckoos
38. Solo
40. Channel

T	O	T	E	S	■	S	A	T	O	N
E	R	E	C	T	■	I	N	U	R	E
M	E	S	S	Y	■	S	K	I	P	S
P	A	S	T	■	P	O	H	■	H	T
L	D	■	A	M	O	N	■	G	A	L
F	S	■	T	O	D	■	J	U	N	E
■	■	■	T	I	P	■	J	A	M	■
C	H	I	C	■	H	A	M	■	S	O
H	O	E	■	C	U	R	B	■	L	I
O	R	■	O	R	E	■	O	P	A	L
I	R	E	N	E	■	O	R	A	T	E
C	I	R	C	E	■	L	E	V	E	R
E	D	G	E	S	■	D	E	E	D	S

Yesterday's Answer



11-17

EVER GOT STUCK ON TWO WHEELS?

TRY A

HONDA TRAIL 90

Travel - On Motorcycle Co.
"Headquarters for Adventure"
504 W. Franklin St.
Chapel Hill, N. C.

A Familiar Seat

Some 3,800 North Carolina students and dates will be in the stands at Duke Stadium Saturday for the Tar Heels' arch-rival game with the Blue Devils.

About 780 of them will find themselves in oddly familiar surroundings. They will be sitting in bleachers belonging to North Carolina.

The UNC Athletic Department estimated that about 3,000 students would want to attend the game and requested that number of tickets from Duke.

But student demands far exceeded expectations — more are attending this away Duke game than ever before in the history of the series.

In order to satisfy student demand A.D. Chuck Erickson offered to have two sections of UNC bleachers carted over to Durham and erected. Duke agreed and Saturday Tar Heel fans will find themselves in familiar surroundings.

About 30 student tickets remain on sale at the UNC Ticket Office.—PAT STITH

* * *

THE FRESHMAN soccer team whipped N. C. State's frosh 9-1 here yesterday to complete its first undefeated season since 1962. The Tar Babies won seven.

Jeff Perry led the UNC scoring with two goals.

The team elected Jamie Canfield and Landy Anderton as permanent co-captains.

Pat Stith

DTH Sports Editor

Cheerleader Dick Starnes indicated in a letter to the DTH Sunday that Head Cheerleader Jerry Houle had pressured Athletic Director Chuck Erickson into sending two cheerleaders to Notre Dame.

"Jerry made repeated attempts for financial aid and permission from Athletic Director Chuck Erickson to travel to Ohio State," he wrote.

"Each time the answer was no. Other members of the squad met with the same answer. As a result two cheerleaders are going to be sent to Notre Dame."

The implication of his letter could not possibly have been more inaccurate.

* * *

I covered the Ohio State game and wondered why there were no Carolina cheerleaders there. The following Monday I called Erickson and asked him if the Athletic Department would have taken any.

He said he would have been happy to have taken at least one, perhaps more than one — but that none of the cheerleaders had expressed to him a desire to go.

So I called Houle. I asked him why he didn't send at least one member of his squad to Columbus on the team plane.

Then Jerry made a little confession.

He hadn't actually talked with Erickson, he said. No one had actually talked with him. He said it had always been the cheerleaders' policy not to accompany the team to distant games — like LSU and Ohio State.

He said he was new at this head cheerleading business and that he hadn't realized that he could have sent representatives of the squad simply by asking.

So cheerleader Starnes was off base — way off base — by implying that the Athletic Department hadn't given the cheering squad a fair shake.

When — and if — Chuck Erickson steps out of line on an issue, let's put it to 'em. But let's keep the record straight, huh?

Year Begins, Ends With Duke Tussle

By GENE RECTOR
DTH Asst. Sports Editor

The season begins and ends in Durham Saturday for Duke-UNC football fans.

The pair will hit the gridiron for the 52nd time in a series dating back to 1888. Duke has won 26, UNC 22 and there have been three ties.

"It's the big one all right," said UNC Coach Jim Hickey speaking at his Tuesday press conference.

"I have all the respect in the world for this Duke team," he said. "I imagine they will be favored — and rightly so.

"They move the ball real well; they're strong and they have good personnel."

But a Duke-UNC tussle is no ordinary game.

"I couldn't hope to predict the outcome," he said. "Every kid in it will probably play better than he really is, so you can't put too much faith in past records."

The Blue Devils will throw quite an offensive arsenal at the Tar Heels. Their lonesome end formation is their bread and butter.

"The idea of the lonesome end is to open up the other teams defense," he said. "If the defensive team puts one man on the lonesome end, Duke will pass. If they put two men on that end, Duke will run.

"The point is that you will always have the pass no matter what the defense does.

"And Duke has probably been more successful with it than any team in the country," he said.

But Hickey is conceding nothing to the Blue Devils.

"We think we have gotten a great effort out of a bunch who didn't have much experience," he said.

"We have been in the thick of nine games — pretty good for a team that wasn't picked to do so well at the start of the season.

"I can't see that anything will change Saturday. We should be in good physical shape. We had a few bruises in the Notre Dame game — but nothing serious.

"We'll be sky-high and ready to take them on."

Morrison D Wins 32-15

Morrison D Ponies whizzed by the Morrison A Colts 32-15 to highlight yesterday's intramural football. Joe Earhardt, Mike Clinard, and Herman Stephens led the scoring attack for the Ponies.

Elsewhere SAE Blue trounced DKE Red 36-20 and Law III edged out the Smith Peacocks 6-0. The Morrison H '99ers sneaked past the Morrison G Bears 13-12.

Morrison F slipped by Morrison C-SS 7-0.

In volleyball Phi Delta Chi crushed Alpha Kappa Psi 13-2 and 15-2. In a closer match the TEP Teps downed DU Blue 6-8, 7-5, and 10-4. Delta Sigma Blues knocked over Kappa Sig Scarlet 7-4 and 9-5.

SPE Cossacks eked out a win over the reluctant DKE Whites 4-7, 9-7, and 10-7.

In the finals of the G.M. All Campus Ping - Pong Tournament, Essa Abdulla of Pakistan defeated Enoch Wei of China 15-21, 17-21, 21-15, 21-18. In the doubles action, Abdulla teamed with Cobb to defeat Wei and Ho 21-8, 21-7, 21-17.

COMPETITION & SPORTS CARS, Ltd.
(Next to Tar Heel Car Wash)
• SAAB Sales & Service
• Sports and Racing Car Specialists
• Foreign Car Repairs
• Street, Safety, and Speed Accessories
• Mag. Wheels Tyres, and Roll Bars for All Cars
426 East Main Street
CARRBORO

WANT ADS DO THE JOB!

For the Traditionalist

Enjoy antique automobiles, the Flemish painttres, Greek tragedies? You're a man who appreciates expressions of style which are meaningfull and lasting. You want your appearance to reflect this attitude too.

Wear a classic Glenn Plaid Sport Coat by H. Barenstein from the VMW.

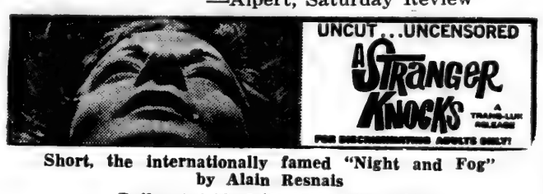
From $39.95
Varsity Men's Wear
"Clothiers of Distinction"
147 E. Franklin St.

Tradition with taste is the distinguishing mark of every one of the fine button-down classics at THE HUB. Solids. Checks, and stripes are available in fine combed oxford and broadcloth . . .
from 5.95.

For the look and feel of a winner, select a pair of our trousers, tailored in the trim traditions with plain front for a smart neat fit. Wools, wool blends, hopsack, and a new shipment of checks.
. . . . from 10.95

THE HUB
Of Chapel Hill

TODAY - TUESDAY
BY ACTION OF THE U.S. SUPREME COURT, YOU CAN SEE, NOW, "A STRANGER KNOCKS" UNCUT AND UNCENSORED!
"A genuinely adult film, it is a mature and deeply poignant glimpse of life!"
—Crowther, N. Y. Times
"I THINK THE FILM SHOULD BE SHOWN; PATRONS OF ART CINEMAS ARE, IN THE MAIN, PERCEPTIVE ADULTS!"
—Alpert, Saturday Review



Short, the internationally famed "Night and Fog" by Alain Resnais
Daily at 1:20, 3:15, 5:10, 7:06, 9:03
RIALTO, DURHAM

PLAY 7.95
DIPLOMACY
The skillful game of international intrigue.
No LUCK involved.
Your brain against another
Billy Arthur
Eastgate Shopping Center
Chapel Hill

Majors in ENGLISH
Will find a special section of rare editions and good old work-horses in our Old Book Corner. Come adventuring!
The Intimate Bookshop

GOT A HONDA
That doesn't run right? Want competent service by factory trained mechanics?
SEE
OPEN ROAD INC.
IN DURHAM
Real service for all makes, specializing in HONDAS.
Morning pickup, evening delivery service in Chapel Hill every day. Call for appointment.
OPEN ROAD INC.
Durham 681-6161
SALE SERVICE PARTS

USE CHRISTMAS SEALS

KING WILLIAM RESTAURANT
STEAKS CHICKEN
SEAFOOD
"Choice Selection of Imported and Domestic Beverages"
All New and Modern, featuring
1½ Miles From Campus on 15-501 South
Seating Capacity of 300
• Spacious Parking
• Four Private dining rooms
• Tasteful background music
• Catering facilities
Open Seven Days a Week 8:00 A.M. 'til Midnight

Just Arrived
New Shipment of Cotton Velour Shirts by Izod & Wrenn, Ltd.
in colors of Navy, Loden, Cashmere, Gold, Red, Slate, Maroon, Chocolate
from 9.95
Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin

TODAY ONLY
Varsity

BRITISH BUFFERCOAT
SUEDE CLOTH with half inset sleeve and shawl collar. Pure wool body lining in contrasting colors.
$49.50
Julian's
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Joseph's Hairstylists
SALE!
HUMAN HAIR EYELASHES
Self-Adhesive & Feathered
Reg. 6.00
3.50
131 E. Franklin St. 942-4058

things go better with Coke

DURHAM COCA-COLA BOTTLING CO.

LA CONTRESCARPE
AN UNFORGETTABLE PERFORMANCE OF FRENCH CABARET MUSIC
Direct From The Paris Left Bank
MEMORIAL HALL
WEDNESDAY, NOV. 17 at 8 P.M.
Tickets for La Contrascarpe are a) Free b) limited. They are available NOW at the the G.M. Information Desk. All seats are reserved, but get them early! Open Free to the General Public. Also.
A Graham Memorial Presentation

Town & Campus

Warm-up:

hot sun . . .

on fresh snow . . .

this Gant . . .

Woolcott shirt

Outdoors or in, Woolcott generates a warm-pleasant glow—like sun on snow on a windless winter day. And it does it with minimal weight. The catalyst: its imported-from-Denmark fabric — a rare-luxuriant commixture of 70% choice cotton and 30% Australian wool. In tartan plaids, solids and checks. Button-down or Straight-Flare collar. About $17 at discerning stores.

GANT
SHIRTMAKERS
(As advertised in The New Yorker)
Julian's
Chapel Hill, N. C.

Serials Dept.
Box 870

Peace Corps

Applications are available at Y-Building for the Peace Corps test to be given from 2 to 5 p.m. Friday in 104 Hanes Hall.

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Vol. 74. No. 56 | CHAPEL HILL NORTH CAROLINA THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1965 | Founded February 23, 1893.

N. Y. Flight

Meeting tomorrow night, 7 p.m., upstairs Y-Building, for all students signed up for Thanksgiving flight to New York to discuss transportation to airport. If unable to attend call Joel Simpson, 929-5288.

Britt Amendment Passes Senate Unchanged

UP Chairman Says Tyndall 'Incompetent'; Demands New Elections Board Head

By JOHN GREENBACKER
DTH Political Writer

University Party Chairman Jim Hubbard yesterday accused Alvin Tyndall of "incompetence" and demanded Tyndall's replacement as Chairman of the Elections Board.

Hubbard called on Student Body President Paul Dickson to replace Tyndall after irregularities were discovered in the administration of the fall elections.

Dickson said yesterday he had "no intentions" of replacing Tyndall.

Hubbard also attacked Tyndall for not impounding and investigating the Student Party expense account for the fall elections held Nov. 9.

He said an Elections Board investigation of the SP accounts was warranted by the alleged SP co-sponsorship of a showing of pornographic films in Morrison Residence Hall Nov. 8.

Admission prices of 10 and 25 cents were charged students who attended the illegal showing, which occurred the same night UP freshman class candidates in the elections were supposed to address interested Morrison students.

"The whole matter of the way in which the Student Party carried out its campaign is in question," Hubbard said.

"Equally as important," he said, "is the astonishing incompetence of the Chairman of the Elections Board, a person who has caused so much confusion and made so many blundering in the past two weeks that there are a score of reasons for protesting the entire election.

"Mr. Tyndall refuses to impound the expense accounts which are now in question," Hubbard said, "and is unable to have a majority of the Elections Board come together to rule on disputes arising from errors made during the elections.

"He made no attempt to secure responsible poll tenders, lost ballots which could have proved decisive in one election, threw away all registration of those who voted, and even called a re-election which he did not have the power to call," Hubbard said.

"Tyndall is by far the worst example I have ever seen of a chairman of a Student Government committee," he said. "This entire display of 'ability' by Mr. Alvin Tyndall has gone too far."

Dickson Speaks

"I have the utmorst confidence in Mr. Tyndall," Dickson said yesterday. "He is an individual of integrity and ability.

"He has served on the Elections Board for three consecutive years and was highly recommended for this position by Bill Aycock and Bill Schmidt," Dickson said.

"Both Mr. Aycock and Mr. Schmidt are former Elections Board chairmen," he said.

Hubbard Attacks Hodges

Hubbard also attacked Student Party Chairman Frank Hodges for his suggestion that both campus political parties meet to determine a fair campaign practices code.

"I am shocked at the child-like manner in which he attempts to escape a situation in which he is caught from both ends," Hubbard said.

"Hodges reminds me of a child who has just been caught with his hand in the cookie jar and wants to keep the cookie," he said.

Hubbard said it was his understanding that Hodges would resign as SP chairman Sunday.

"I would be glad to discuss with the new SP chairman possibilities for legislation which will describe precise penalties for violations of "gentlemanlike conduct" in our campaigning."

A PERSONAL VICTORY: Yesterday's amendment of the speaker ban is considered a vote of confidence for Gov. Dan K. Moore. In calling for the special session to deal with the measure and recommending amendment, the governor had put his influence with legislators to the test and had emerged the winner.

—DTH Photo By Ernest Robl.

Gov. Moore Lauds Change In Controversial Gag Law

By ANDY MYERS
DTH Staff Writer

A law which was "dividing the state when unity is needed," in Gov. Dan Moore's words, was amended yesterday after more than two years and four months of bitter controversy.

The North Carolina General Assembly yesterday completed action on drastic changes in the gag law. The House approved the amendment recommended by the Speaker Ban Study Commission Tuesday and the Senate followed suit only after repeated attempts to amend the bill.

On the third day of a special session of the legislature, the Senate had remaining only a final vote on the change. At 11:13 a.m. the vote, 36-13, about 24 hours after the House had voted.

Tuesday's vote in the House, 75-39, met bitter opposition but was passed with little debate.

Thus, the special session approved the recommendations of the Speaker Ban Study Commission with only one change. Both Houses of the General Assembly approved the deletion of the phrase "or other governing authority," to put the power directly into the hands of the boards of trustees of state supported colleges and universities.

Changes in the law make it possible for Communists or pleaders of The Fifth Amendment in loyalty cases to speak on state supported campuses only infrequently and for educational purposes.

Final action in the Senate came only after Sen. Tom White of Lenoir and Sen. Robert Morgan of Harnett fought repeatedly to amend the House-passed measure.

Debate raged for an hour and a half while Morgan and White, two senior members of the upper house and heads of powerful Senate and joint committees, attempted to insert a section requiring monthly reports of speakers made by college presidents.

The special session, which convened Monday noon, was adjourned at 12:15 p.m. yesterday, but long before that many members had left for their homes.

President of the Consolidated University William Firday said yesterday, "the University is grateful for the action taken by the legislature."

Sen. Morgan renewed attempts in the final moments of the session to get changes made in the bill. He and Sen. White argued that it was the "will of the people" that presidents of the universities should submit monthly reports to the trustees of who visiting speakers are, where they live and whom they represent.

This amendment was defeated after heated debate by 27-21, the same vote by which it went down after the first reading Tuesday. Morgan's original proposal was that a list be submitted to both the trustees and the governor, but was later changed when no support was found.

Sen. White then attempted two more amendments to the house-approved bill, but they were shouted down. Sen. Cameron Weeks of Edgecombe said it was an attempt "to hang the jury up."

Morgan replied, however, that he has "never stooped yet to the tactics of trying to kill a bill with an amendment."

In attempts to discredit opponents of the original speaker ban law, Morgan read Tuesday excerpts from an article by UNC News Bureau Director Pete Ivey in "Alumni Report," published in September.

Ivey's article, called "scurrilous" by Morgan, was an attempt to get together "all the falsehoods and misrepresentations, innuendoes and distortions" made against the University, according to Ivey.

"I wrote the entire thing and I'm proud of it," Ivey said. "I sat down and tried to think of each charge made against the University and wrote them down one by one, answering the charges."

Morgan charged that Ivey tried to show that the speaker ban law was passed, not because of Communist influences, but because of "racism" and that other factors "were the real reason the ga law was passed."

Ivey countered that he could document every fact in his article, "every one of them." He added:

"I'm very proud to have been attacked by Morgan, the main proponent of the Speaker Ban Law. However, I was surprised that it came."

He denied that the article was "scurrilous," but said "it was political."

"I want to let the public know that there are two sides to this question." He said he felt the necessity to set the record straight in informing the people of North Carolina that charges of Communist influence at Chapel Hill are untrue.

North Carolina legislators commented yesterday that the question on regulating speakers at state-supported universities may still be unsettled.

Sen. Morgan warned "there will be further trouble" if the trustees do not heed "the will of the people for them to govern speakers."

He said he had objected to a third reading of the bill Tuesday because "we figured more debate would have swung some votes to our side."

Gov. Moore conducted a telephone campaign early yesterday morning to assure passage of the amendment in the Senate.

"I don't think we had the votes at any time," Morgan, who is president pro tem of the Senate, said, especially after I learned of the governor's calls.

Sen. White, head of the powerful Joint Appropriations Committee, said "as far as I was concerned I was not for giving up on such an important issue."

Secretary of State Thad Eure, supposed to be the author of the speaker ban law, had no comment for the press.

Enter Uglies By Tuesday

All residence halls and fraternities must enter their candidates for Ugliest Man On Campus by midnight Tuesday.

An entrance fee of $5 is necessary to cover the cost of the nine pictures of the candidate which must be submitted. These 5x7 pictures are to be made in the Swain Hall photo lab and charged to the Ugly Man account.

Pictures and fees may be submitted to the Ugly Man chairman, Merv Sessoms, 1026 Morrison or Don Cunningham, 228 Craige; Jack Inscoe, 311 Stacy; Greg Fulcher, 3 Pettigrew; Chip Seymore, 406 Manly.

Treasurer Of Student Body Supports Social Fee Hike

By FRED THOMAS
DTH News Editor

"The residence college has become so important and integral a part of the University now that to insure its immediate financial stability this referendum must pass."

Student Body Treasurer Tom White made this statement yesterday concerning the residence hall social fee referendum to be held Monday.

If the issue gets the support of students living in residence halls, an increase of $3.20 will be included on next semester's room rent bills.

"Student Government couldn't begin to consider an out-lay of around $20,000 a year for each of these residence colleges," White said.

The resolution establishing the referendum was introduced to the Men's Residence Council last week by MRC President Sonny Pepper and was unanimously approved by that body.

The plan calls for $2 to go to each residence college, $1 to each residence hall and $.20 to go to intramural managers.

Under the present system, each residence hall gets $1.50 from each man's room rent for social functions. There is no allotment for social funds for residence colleges.

Pepper pointed out that while Student Legislature recently appropriated money to the three existing residence colleges, Student Government "will not and should not be expected to continue bearing this huge financial burden."

"Therefore," Pepper said, "the residence college system depends for its existence upon the increase in social fees — without this money the college system cannot survive."

The MRC has pointed out several areas of use for the additional social funds by residence colleges:

— Expanded social program — concerts, dances and large scale mixers with women's halls.

— Construction or improvement of college social rooms.

— Academic programs such as college quiz files, tutorial services, improvement and maintenance of study areas and speaker and lecture programs.

— College projects to provide services and a variety of programs for the college residents.

— College newspapers.

— Inviting women's halls to become associated with the colleges as sister associations.

— Chaplains for each college.

— Expand intramural activities to include intra-college competition between the individual halls.

The MRC cited these uses for the additional money by individual residence halls:

— Make it possible for the halls to eventually buy color television sets.

— Improve and maintain social rooms and lounges.

— Furnish means by which the halls can fully participate in campus activities and contests.

— Provide money for social functions such as mixers.

Each residence hall has at least one intramural manager who is paid a salary the eqivalent of his room rent. Thirty cents of each man's room rent presently goes into the intramural manager's fund.

Pepper noted that this fund has become inadequate since additional managers have been hired for the newly constructed men's residence halls.

Last year when a deficit first arose the individual halls appropriated money from their social funds to meet the deficit.

"The paid intramural managers program has proved to be an overwhelming success in that residence hall participation in intramurals has improved significantly since the program was initiated," Pepper said.

"For the program to continue to operate successfully it is necessary to provide the money for the managers fund."

Voting places will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday in all men's residence halls according to Pepper.

UP Holds Interviews

The University Party will hold interviews for students interested in positions on UP committees today, tomorrow, Monday and Tuesday from 2 to 5 p.m. in 206 Davie Hall.

Original assignments to UP committees were lost in a burglary of UP headquarters earlier this month.

Any committee members who remember their original assignments to committees are asked to call UP headquarters and have their assignments re-recorded.

Name Omitted

There's more than met the eye to the list of candidates in the "Beat Dook Queen" competition. The name of Louise Clark, sponsored by Chi Omega, was not included in Tuesday's DTH.

Halt Bombing — Gottlieb

By NANCY RALEY

The U. S. should halt its bombings on North Viet Nam for "two months" in order to allow a "spirit of relaxation" to promote negotiations, Dr. Sanford Gottlieb said Monday night.

His speech in Carroll Hall was sponsored by the Americans for Democratic Action.

Dr. Gottlieb, political action director of the National Committee for a Sane Nuclear Policy (SANE), also told the group that U. S. campuses are the only forums of free discussion on Viet Nam at the moment and so students must "sing out" their opinions.

Dr. Gottlieb urged his audience to keep the dialogue and bedate open on the issue of Viet Nam by reading all of the pertinent literature now available, forming conclusions about this reading and demonstrating these conclusion by writing letters to Congressmen, organizing marches and demonstrations, and even burning draft cards if necessary.

In this way, Gottlieb said, we make it easier for Johnson to "muster the political courage" to "unlock the door" to negotiations.

SANE is a citizens organization working for worldwide, controlled disarmament and a strengthened United Nations.

Dr. Gottlieb, a Dartmouth graduate, served as adviser to the interdenominational group of clergymen who visited South Viet Nam in the summer of 1965 on a fact-finding mission sponsored by the Fellowship of Reconciliation.

On his way to and from Viet Nam, he met in Paris and Algiers with officials of North Viet Nam and the South Viet namese National Liberation Front.

In his talk, Gottlieb emphasized the importance of negotiation as a means of attraining a peaceful settlement of the Vietnamese war. In citing why negotiation at this point is expedient, he pointed out that of the 14 million population of South Viet Nam, more than one million will be refugees by the end of this year.

He said that whether the U. S. is right or wrong, the kind of power that it uses kills many innocent people because the U. S. is "used to conducting big wars."

N. C. State Withdraws From NSA

North Carolina State University Student Legislature last week voted to disaffiliate with the National Student Assoiation.

Affilitation with NSA has been an issue in legislature at State for the last three years, NSC Student Government Vice-president Jim Ferguson said Monday.

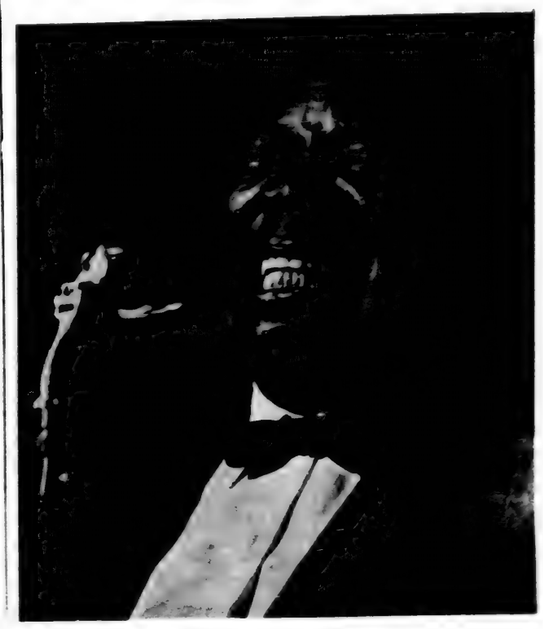
"NSA's programs are more or less oriented to a liberal arts campus. Being a technical campus, we couldn't take advantage of enough of their programs to make it worthwhile," he said

Celia Parsons, past treasurer of the North Carolina-Virginia Region of NSA, was the only speaker during the legislative discussion.

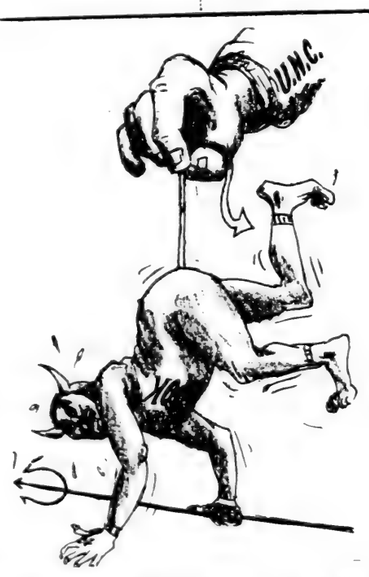
She spoke in favor of disaffiliation

Ferguson said the NCS legislature voted last spring to delete the $500 appropriation for a delegate to attend the national convention from their budget

"There was no one on campus interested enough to serve as coordinator or to attend the conventions," Ferguson said.



LOUIS ARMSTRONG brings his famous trumpet to the Carolina campus Saturday night. Satchmo will perform in Carmichael Auditorium at 8, sponsored by Graham Memorial. Tickets for students are $1.



GREETINGS FROM CLASS OF '68—A card like this one has been sent to every dormitory room at Duke by the freshman class of UNC. Seems they have been working on a detailed plan of execution for the Blue Devils.

Vietgram To Circulate Dorms, Greek Houses

Representatives of the Thanksgiving Day Committee will canvass all campus residences tonight to get the names of persons who have not yet signed the telegram for Viet Nam and want to do so.

Booths as Y-Court, Lenoir Hall, Pine Room and Chase Cafeteria will be open today and tomorrow.

The committee received a letter from Gov. Dan K. Moore yesterday morning in which he said, "This Thanksgiving season is a particularly appropriate time to show our appreciation to the United States servicemen in Viet Nam.

"I am heartened by the message being prepared by the students at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill."

The idea for the telegram was originated by Dwight Buntz, Jeff Davis, Rusty Taylor, Wright Doyle, Madeline Gray, Bob Powell, David Kiel, Eric Van Loon, Bill Purdy, Mary King, Phil Kirstein and Kathy Cauble.

The group, representing a cross section or organizations and political thought on campus, drew up the following message to be sent to the American forces in Viet Nam in care of Gen. Westmoreland:

"This Thanksgiving Day of 1965, we the students of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill express our gratitude to the American servicemen in South Viet Nam for their sacrifice and service to our country."

Pub Board To Interview

The Publications Board will meet today at 3 p.m. in the Grail Room to interview persons interested in applying for the position of assistant business manager of The Daily Tar Heel.

Hugh Blackwell, Pub Board Chairman, said the person selected by the board will assume duties as assistant business manager of the DTH immediately and will take over as business manager next year.

In the past the assistant business manager has not automatically moved into the business manager position.

Blackwell said the Publications Board is adopting the new policy to prevent a person from coming into the business manager's job without having had ample opportunity to acquaint himself with his duties.

Any interested students should come for interviews.

Sen. Morgan Here Tonight

State Senator Robert Morgan of Harnett County will address the Young Democratic Club of UNC in Roland Parker Lounge at Graham Memorial 7:30 tonight.

Morgan was present at the special session of the State Legislature which resolved the Speaker Ban controversy.

He was an active participant in the Senate debate on this issue.

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of the Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. Letters and columns, covering a wide range of views, reflect the personal opinions of their authors.
ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

Out, Damned Splinter

Students have already been to the polls a seemingly inordinate number of times this semester, but no voting day can be more important than next Monday.

On that day, the Men's Residence Council has scheduled a referendum which could make or break the residence college system.

The issue is whether or not residence hall men will approve fee increases of $3.20 per semester to finance the proposed residence college and hall social programs. They all pay a social fee of $1.80 now, so if the referendum is approved, each man will be paying $10 per year (50 cents of it for the intramural manager's fund), or $6.40 more than he is paying now.

Three residence colleges are now operating — very successfully. They needed more money than the present $1.80 fee provides, however, so Student Legislature recently made a one-time-only appropriation to these colleges which totaled more than $4,000.

We wholeheartedly support the idea of a referendum because we feel that those who benefit directly from the residence college programs should pay for them. Some have suggested that the entire system be financed by Student Government with student activity fees, but we find it impossible to justify taxing everyone for the benefit of 40 per cent of the students.

Time is a key factor in this vote Monday. If the fee increase — which would affect only those living in residence halls — is approved then, there will be time to make the necessary changes in bookkeeping and billing so that the increase would go into effect next semester and the residence colleges would have their operating funds.

Certain questions remain unanswered, however. With more than 5,000 men in residence halls, the colleges will be operating on a total budget of more than $50,000 — which should pay for a lot of socializing. We think a detailed explanation of how this figure was picked as the needed amount and exactly how it will be spent should be made.

Specifics of organizational plans for the five other colleges, which now do not even legally exist, are also in order.

The residence college system has no stronger supporter than the DTH. For that reason we want it to be flawlessly planned, to insure its success.

Perhaps the plans are now flawless — but we would like to be sure.

A Lot Of Loot

It was like a deeply embedded splinter. Its presence was always felt. At times it almost faded from awareness; at other times it caused a throbbing pain. But it was always felt.

Wednesday, after two and a half fretful years of universal discomfort, the North Carolina General Assembly yanked that splinter out of the hide of the University, It was only fitting that the assembly should do the job because it inserted that irritating sliver one day in 1963 in less time than it takes to slide down a banister.

The action in Raleigh this week was smooth, with the script written by Gov. Dan Moore and Rep. David Britt closely followed. It was a competent performance; the future should bear out its wisdom.

There are men who will find that their days seem noticeably less busy now that ban-bred problems should begin to fade away. But no lull was ever more welcome.

The amendment removed the splinter. Repeal would have healed the sore now, but time is also an effective salve.

And, if only from sheer exhaustion, the "for's" and "against's" ought to join in thanks for settlement at last.

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; John Jennrich, associate editor; Barry Jacobs, managing editor; Fred Thomas, news editor, Pat Stith, sports editor; Gene Rector, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; John Greenbacker, political writer; Ed Freakley, Andy Myers, Lynne Harvel, Lynne Sizemore, David Rothman, Ray Linville, staff writers; Jack Harrington, bus. mgr.; Tom Clark, asst. bus. mgr.; Woody Sobol, ad. mgr.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all ap news dispatches.

Ha. Ha. Ha. The Ban Is Dead!

Swedish Student Gives 'Neutral' Viet Nam View

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

I am taking keen interest in the letters to the editor on the Viet Nam issue and as a citizen of a traditionally neutral country (Sweden) it may perhaps be of interest for the readers to know something about the most common opinions in Sweden about American politics in Viet Nam as reflected in the leading papers, in radio and TV.

Perhaps the following best could aim at illustrating the lines of thought: Suppose Chinese Polaris submarines were patrolling outside the American coast, Chinese troops were fighting in northern Canada, and Chinese planes bombing southern Canada near the American-Canadian borderline, and, furthermore, the Chinese were threatening that the Americans were to encounter a heavy blow should they try to help the Canadians. What would happen? Would not U. S. utilize all her resources to develop the atom bomb, if we assume the Chinese had it, to meet that deadly threat? Of course! Well, isn't that just what happens in the world today, only the other way around? The Chinese may have the same reason to feel a deadly threat and we could not blame them for being hostile towards the U.S.A. and doing their best to equalize themselves technically with the U.S.A.

This kind of arguing may seem fantastic and irrelevant to some of my fellow-students but I hope others should see the point and feel the relevance. If so, there may be some hope for avoiding the extreme horrors of another world war. This is too serious a matter to gain but superficial interest. There seems to be little justification and an awful lot of danger in arguing like this: Communism is bad. Therefore, let's fight communism wherever and whenever it occurs and even if there is but suspicion of its occurence, should it be on campuses in North Carolina or among the suffering people of Viet Nam, or in the Dominican Republic. To most enlightened people back in Sweden this kind of irrational, prejudiced values seem to be hysterical and constituting a really strong threat to world peace. After all, we are bound to have different political systems peacefully co-existing in the world today. To deny that fact would be unrealistic. Therefore, instead of condemning and fighting communism an approach which really brings no solutions to any question of differing values and beliefs — the only fertile approach would be to try and understand communism as a political alternative for some peoples of the world living culturally, socially, economically and politically in quite another context than the western democracies. In so reasoning there seems to be little if any justification for the Americans to interfere in Viet Nam as also there seems to be serious doubt as to whether the South Vietnamese government (if there at all is one) or the Viet Cong movement are most truly meeting the hopes and expectations of the suffering South Vietnamese people.

As one of the super-powers U.S.A. will have a tremendous contribution to make and responsibility to share in the pursuit of world peace. So many peoples of the world look at U.S.A. in their hopes for high moral and ethic standards in international politics. It is not but just, in the case of Viet Nam, hopefully to look forward to U.S.A. to be the one to take the first step towards a state of normality by ending her bomb-raids and withdrawing her troops without setting ultimatum to the other parties. Such action would not be weakness, would not imply loss of prestige, but quite the opposite.

Sven Lundstedt
103-D Bernard St.

So, Why Have Editorial Pages?

By MILES H. WOLFF
In the Newspaper Public Information Bulletin

Why have editorial pages?

As simple as the question sounds, I have had a great deal of difficulty answering it.

The first reason is that we have editorials in order to let people know what the newspaper itself thinks about current affairs. Back in the good old days when the news pages were full of editorial expression and news was written to present the newspaper's policies, there really wasn't a very good reason for letting the public know from editorials how it stood on the issues. The reader could find out from the news columns.

But just to let the reader know how the newspaper feels is not enough. It is the duty of the newspaper to instruct the reader and to help him make up his mind. If the editor can convince the reader along the lines of what the editor conceives as right and just, that is fine. On the other hand, if the editor causes his reader to reason for himself, to come to a conclusion of his own, to discover the path he should take, that is better, even if the reader does not agree with the editor. In a democracy, each person ought to decide for himself what is best, and the editor can help him in this decision.

Taking a broad viewpoint, newspaper editorial pages that are alert, that do their job as it should be done, can keep their city or town from becoming self-centered, self-righteous, and self-satisfied.

In other words, the community will act as it should in a democracy such as ours.

Letters To The Editor

The Daily Tar Heel welcomes letters to the editor on any subject, particularly on matters of local or University interest. Letters must be typed (preferably double or triple spaced) and must include the name and address of the author or authors. Names will not be omitted in publication. Letters should be kept as brief as possible. The DTH reserves the right to edit for length or libel.

Joyner Speaks

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

In reply to the letter from Ken Giles, the president of Alexander Dorm, who commented on the alledged backwardness of Joyner, we would like to make it clear that any existing confusion is caused by covetous Alexander residents lounging in our luxurious social room, watching our color TV, listening to our stereo and using our telephones, bathrooms and study facilities at all hours of the day and night. However, Joyner Men do not complain, because we are only too happy to let the underprivileged boys from Alexander enjoy themselves for a change.

Giles also made a comment about the "thoughts" of Alexanderds for the ladies in Winston. Of course, everybody knows that Joyner Men do more than "think" about girls.

Pat Rhodes, Rick Kramer, Rick Draper, George Plonk, Paul Thompson, Alan B. Simpson, J. Cameron Hunt, Mike Fells, Tom Watson, Larry A. Ingram, Barry W. Corbett, David Boyle, Samuel Haddock, Neil Koonce, Wayland Townsend, Bill Yelverton, Bill Cochrane, Jim Bergeron, Ed Sessoms, Rob Schell, George Lamont, and Ronald L. Tanner.

Joyner Dorm

Campus Manners

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Many students ask me "You haven't been writing on manners lately, what's the trouble?"

I answer that I haven't felt very well recently, have had no appetite, and have been eating at home, trying to entice my appetite, with little success. Therefore, I have not been on the campus much.

Usually, I have the upper-classmen pretty well trained, but I have to start all over with the freshmen every year. If this state of affairs keeps up, there won't be anybody around to crack heads, and the freshmen won't know Otelia Connor exists.

However, there are a few things to note. The freshmen walk all over the side-walks, and if I didn't stop and hold my ground, I would be walked right over. Remember, keep to the right when walking, just as you do when driving, and respect the other person's right-of-way.

I met a professor downtown the other day. He said he wished I would get on the manners of the students — that he was in line at Lenoir when two students cut in the line in front of him. I said I was surprised that he "didn't knock 'em cold," that I usually took them by the ear and pulled them out of line. He said he did let them know that he didn't like it.

Today, I met a half-dozen professors on the campus at an intersection. I waited to see what would happen. They kept moving. I whacked one of them with a newspaper and said "I just wanted to know if you gentlemen would wait for me to pass!" They laughed, and one of them very politely said, "Thank you for letting us pass!"

Last night as I was approaching the doorway at Spencer Hall, a student came through the door and let it close. I said to him, "You go back and open that door for me!" He said, "Yes, Madam," and promptly opened the door for me. I thanked him, of course.

By-the-way, I hear the girls complain about the boys at UNC not holding the door for them. Well, I see boys hold doors for girls everyday. They don't say thank you. They go through the door and don't even look at the boy. I tell the girls if they want to be treated like ladies, they will have to behave like ladies.

I asked a boy who held the door for a girl the other day at Lenoir, "Did that girl thank you?" He answered, "No," his companion chimed in with — "If I ever held the door for a girl and she didn't thank me, I would slam the door on her nose!" Evidently, boys have cause to be sensitive at Carolina, too. I wish the students would take the trouble to put a chair back in place, and not block the aisles at Lenoir so that it is almost impossible to pass through with your tray. I am sure if one of them ever put a chair back where he got it, he would drop dead from shock, and so would everyone else.

Bless their hearts! I love them all. Most of them are mighty sweet to me. I have run counter to only a very few at Carolina who have been rude to me.

Mrs. Otelia Connor
18 Village Apts.

McIver Clocks

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Although I write this on behalf of my girl and myself, I know that I speak for at least nine other couples who were in the same situation on Saturday night, Nov. 13.

I was bringing my date into McIver dorm about five or six minutes to one o'clock. On our way up the walk, a guy told us that the doors were already being closed. We rushed to the dorm and Cathy knocked to be let in. The housemother appeared and let her in. We told the lady that both our watches had only five minutes to one. "I'm sorry but we go by the clock here," came the terse reply.

The next day Cathy and I talked the situation over. Far from a situation peculiar to us, it seems to be a common occurance. Cathy knew that she had been in on time because she had even been upstairs before the lights and phones in the halls were off. But the clock in the lobby said five minutes after one! I feel I must ask why? Was this negligence on someone's part?

I'll admit, it is a minor item to be a few minutes late getting in from a date. However, with the system of late minutes and "campusments" we have here, a few minutes become very important to the girls. I object to having arbitrary, often rude, decisions thrust upon the girls here, and would advocate the liberalizing of rules to allow them some leeway in late minutes, accounting for the frequent discrepancies in clocks. But, having observed the "Carolina way," I realize this would take years. I instead ask if the clocks in the dorms could not all be standardized. As things stand now it would at least save a few tears and frustrations for our coeds.

Joel Kaylor
402 Ruffin

Hoover On Reds

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

What are you trying to prove by soliciting J. Edgar Hoover's opinion on communism and the speaker ban when we just finished reading about it in a local paper (was it the DTH or the Durham Herald?) not too long ago? His letter merely repeated that a university's standards should be geared for the protection of those who cannot think for themselves. Are you campaigning to reduce this university to that level?

Kunio Kikuchi
401 Connor

Quick Draw

From ROLL CALL

Two girls boarded a crowded bus, and one of them whispered to the other: "Watch me embarrass a man into giving me his seat."

Pushing her way through the crowd, she turned all of her charms upon a gentleman who looked embarrassable. "My dear Mr Brown," she gushed, "fancy meeting you on the streetcar. Am I glad to see you! Why, you're almost a stranger. My, but I'm tired."

The sedate gentleman looked up at the girl. He had never seen her before but he rose and said pleasantly, "Sit down, Bertha, my girl. It isn't often I see you on washday. No wonder you're tired. By the way, don't deliver the washing until Wednesday. My wife is going to the District Attorney's office to see whether she can get your husband out of jail."

Nucciarone Junior Class Veep After Special Vote

Bill Nucciarone is the new Junior class vice president, according to a reaffirmation of 18 lost votes from Alexander residence hall.

Elections Board Chairman Alvin Tyndall said Monday that he contacted enough juniors in Alexander residence hall who voted in last Tuesday's election to put Nucciarone, the UP candidate over the wire.

The contested office was reaffirmed by a margin of one vote. When it was discovered the ballot box was missing after the election, Nucciarone had a 12-vote margin over SP candidate Tom Gauntlett.

Varsity STARTS TODAY

JEANNE MOREAU · JEAN-PAUL BELMONDO

From the New Yorker:
"Fast and Furious! An ingenious comedy melodrama. Superlative cast worth watching for hours and perhaps days on end. A pleasure!"

"BANANA PEEL"
with GERT FROBE

Directed by MARCEL OPHULS
A Pathé Contemporary Release

Exciting Events Of Today

All Campus Calendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date (by 10 a.m. Saturday for Sunday's DTH). Lost and Found notices will be run on Tuesdays and Saturdays only.

TODAY

VIGAH, Program Development Committee will meet at 3 p.m. in the Woodhouse Room of GM.

Volleyball intramurals will be held at 7 and 8 p.m. in the Gymnasium.

SSL meeting at 4 p.m. in Roland Parker II. Attendenace is mandatory. The final bill will be chosen.

Intervarsity Christian Fellowship will have a Bible Discussion on Romans at 6:30 p.m. upstairs in Lenoir Hall.

Judicial Committee of Legislature will meet at 6:30 p.m. in Roland Parker I.

Students who would like to help with activities at the Umstead Hospital one afternoon a week are asked to please leave their name and phone number in the Y student offices upstairs in the Y-Building.

Attention all Aquaholics: those of you who want to attend the lecture at Duke on Nov. 19 should contact Risden H. Hill at 933-2182 before 5 p.m. or 942-4679.

The Freshmen class officers will interview freshmen interested in serving on class committees. Interviews will be held at 5-6 p.m. in Roland Parker III, today, from 3-5 Fri. in RPIII, from 4-6 Mon. in RPI, and from 4-6 Tues. in RPII. Those unable to attend at these hours please contact Ben White, 513 Ehringhaus, 942-5618.

The Luso - Brazilian Club invites the public to attend a program presenting a panorama of Brazil through slides and commentary by Dr. Robert Daland at 7:30 p.m. in the Faculty Lounge of Dey Hall. Refreshments and informal conversation will follow the program.

Grainne and Michael Yeats, son and daughter-in-law of W. B. Yeats will give the final program in the Yeats Festival at 8:30 p.m. in Hill Hall Auditorium.

The UNC Classics Club will hold an organizational meeting at 8 p.m. in 101 Murphey. Mr. Harold Gotoff will speak on "Manuscript Traditions of Lucan." All interested persons are welcome. Coffee will be served.

There will be a meeting of all persons who have reservations on the Thanksgiving flight to New York at 7 p.m. upstairs in the Y Building to discuss transportation to the airport. A few seats are still available. Interested persons may reserve these seats at this meeting. If unable to attend, contact Joel Simpson, 929-5288.

Dr. E. McG. Hedgpeth will speak at the second meeting of the In-Service Training Program for staff members of the Office of the Dean of Women and for Associates at 4 p.m. in room 105 Hanes Hall. Dr. Hedgpeth will speak on his job and his problems as Director of the Student Infirmary. A question and answer session will follow.

The Young Democratic Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. in Roland Parker Lounge. The speaker will be State Senator Robert Morgan.

Luboff Choir Performance Receives Standing Ovation

By ANNE VICK

The Norman Luboff Choir concert was not just another concert at Memorial Hall. This one received a standing ovation.

Certainly it was not just another concert for conductor Norman Luboff either: "I alter the program for each performance to keep the music vital, inspiring and alive."

In an interview before the concert, Luboff stated, "It's an extraordinary experience to sing for a live audience. You can get technical excellence in recording, but it lacks the keenness of a live performance.

From a repertroire of 140 works, the Norman Luboff Choir presented a concert of secular and sacred music ranging from "Gloria" by Palestraina to what Luboff called the "slow and meaningful" "Dixie" from his popular album "Songs of the South."

A highly selected group, each choir member is an excellent musician in his own right. "There are a number of flutists, violinists, organists and pianists.

We work on interpretation; there's no time to teach notes," he remarked. Regarding selection, he said, "Much depends on the character of the individual. Riding all day in a bus can get extremely close."

Each member is under contract for the duration of the tour, 22 weeks, but also performs with other groups in Los Angeles such as Ray Charles, Roger Wagner and Robert Shaw.

A bearded man with eyes as intense as the music he directs, Luboff stated he prefers the concert tour to recording or performances on television.

"Of course it's like trying to decide between steak, chile, or apple pie. Each is different and each has its own place," he remarked.

As the conductor - arranger, once a professor and aspiring composer at a small college, "shirted up" for the performance, he commented on the "style" that is reponsible for one of the most successful "pop" groups in the country today.

"There is no private Luboff style. I didn't set out to produce a particular sound, just musique excellence."

And "musique excellence" it was at Memorial Hall Tuesday night. After three curtain calls, the Norman Luboff Choir effectively closed: "This sorta of music we don't know how to end . . . just stop by saying good night."

HUNTING AND HEARTS

Hunting and heart attacks need not go together, the North Carolina Heart Association points out.

FOR SALE: 1961 PEUGEOT, good condition. Can be seen at Phillips 66 Eastgate. Will accept best offer. Must sell immediately. Call Tom Corbett, 111 Teague, 968-9198.

FOR SALE — MAGNAVOX component stereo system like new. Transistorized amplifier with 5 yr. guarantee. Diamond stylus with 10 yr. guarantee. $120.00. Call 929-2009 after 6 p.m.

WANTED: ELECTRONICS technician familiar with record players for full or part time. Call 942-3556.

NEW 2 BEDROOM, AIR CONditioned mobile home. 10' x 45'. Available Dec. 1 — $80 per month. Telephone 942-3268 or 942-1749.

WANTED: RIDE TO AND from Raleigh. Starting January 3. Leave message 832-7572.

FOR SALE: CZECHOSLOvakian classical guitar. 3 months old — like new. Beautiful — $55.00 or best offer. Call or see Bennett Boyles, KA House. 968-9117.

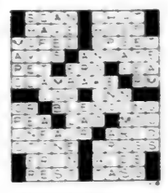
1961 JAGUAR MK-II, 3.4 LITer sedan. Four speed synchromesk with overdrive; 20 plus mpg, 120 plus mph. Owner drafted; best offer. Call 942-6944.

Visit Chapel Hill's Favorite Night Spot!
The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill
Open Till 9 P.M.

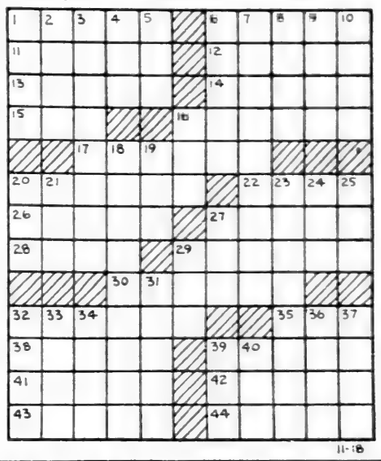
DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Vinegar bottle
6. Bound with adhesive
11. Thrust
12. Turkish city
13. Maxim
14. Like coarse diamonds
15. Enclosure
16. Well-known conquistador
17. Combat or battle
20. Formed into a rough edge
22. Rodents
26. Revoke a legacy
27. Spanish title
28. Greatest in number
29. Not rough
30. Narcotic
32. Forbidden
35. Polish
38. Capital of Guam
39. —— Selassie (Emperor of Ethiopia)
41. More crippled
42. By oneself
43. An outer garment
44. Turkish coins

DOWN
1. Mollusk
2. Impolite
3. Unexpectedly
4. Ovum
5. Golf term
6. Sacred interdiction
7. Decoration
8. Portion
9. Grafted: Her.
10. Era
16. Spanish hero
18. Flowered fabrics
19. Evening sun god
20. Cheat: slang
21. Japanese shrub
23. Inland
24. Mountain defile
25. Before: poetic
27. Ocean
29. Disease of sheep
31. Juicy fruits
32. Hairless
33. Culture medium
34. Entitle
36. Forearm bone
37. Apiary inhabitants
39. Befall
40. According to



Yesterday's Answer



11-18

FOLLOW THE TEAM WITH SATURN AIRWAYS!
DEPENDABLE GROUP CHARTER FLIGHTS ANYWHERE IN THE U.S. AT LOW, LOW FARES

Why miss those big "away" games? Get up a group and join the team on its out-of-town games, via thrifty SATURN charter flights! SATURN, first choice of college groups the country over, is the specialized charter airline. Over 17 years experience. Luxurious DC-7C aircraft. Personalized service. Full assistance on travel details. Write today for particulars; no obligation.

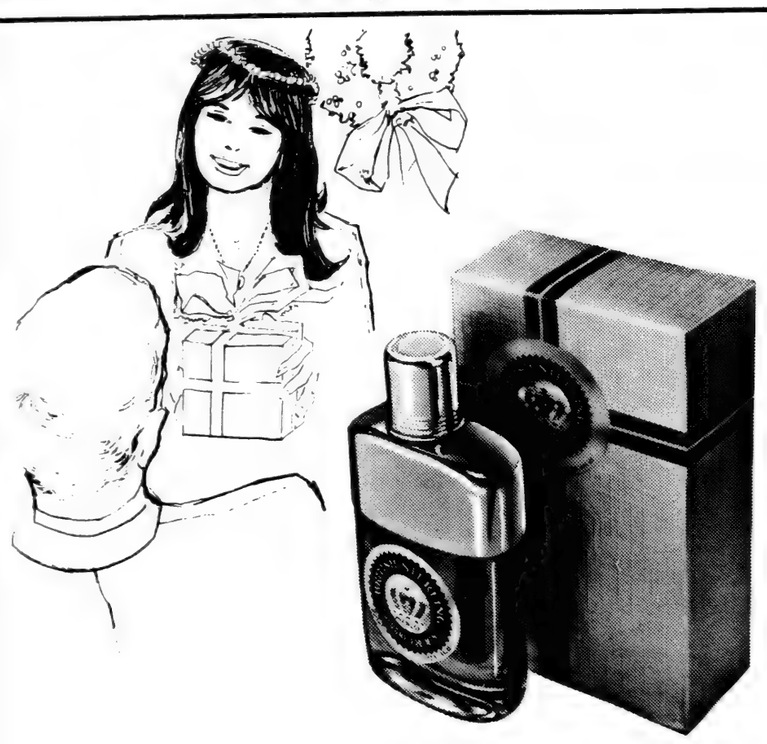
Make advance reservations NOW for low-fare Spring / Summer charter flights to EUROPE, THE CARIBBEAN, HAWAII. Information on request.

Saturn AIRWAYS, INC.
GENERAL OFFICES:
MIAMI, FLORIDA 33166
4471 N.W. 36th St.
TU 7-6725

New York, N.Y. 545 Fifth Avenue, MU 7-2640
Chicago, Ill. 6 North Michigan Avenue AN 3-0663
San Antonio, Texas International Airport TA 4-6921
Los Angeles, Calif. P.O. Box 75-501, DU 1-1573
London, W. 1, England 81 Piccadilly, Hyde Park 0167
1 Berlin 42, Germany Zentral Flughafen, Templehof Airport, 69801

AMERICAN SOCIETY OF TRAVEL AGENTS ASTA

Certificated Supplemental Air Carrier



A SMASHING GIFT FOR HIM . . .
BRITISH STERLING
EXCLUSIVE TOILETRIES FOR MEN

A smashing after shave and a cologne that lasts from dusk to dawn. Make him a legend in his own time. Give British Sterling. (You may both go down in history.)
From $3.50 to $10.00

MADE IN U.S.A.

people on the go... go BURGER CHEF

BURGER CHEF HAMBURGERS

College budgets and Burger Chef belong together. Burger Chef . . . where 50¢ will buy a complete meal: open-flame broiled hamburger, a rich milk shake, and a heap of crisp golden fries.

337 N. ROSEMARY ST.
OPEN 10 A.M. – 11 P.M.

Franchised collectively by Burger Chef Systems Indianapolis

Home of the World's Greatest 15¢ Hamburger!

HOLIDAY VALUE — TOP QUALITY YOUNG TURKEYS
10 to 14-Lb. Avg. HENS ★ LB. 35¢
16 to 22 Lb. Average TOMS ★ LB. 33¢

"SUPER RIGHT" QUALITY SMOKED
WHOLE HAMS
12 to 16 Lb. Average LB. 59c

A&P "OUR FINEST" CRANBERRY SAUCE 2 1-Lb. Cans 39c
A&P FANCY WHITE MEAT TUNA 7-Oz. Can 27c
SULTANA MAYONNAISE QT. JAR 39c
PRICES IN THIS AD EFF. THRU. SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 20TH.

MARVEL BRAND – SPECIALLY PRICED
ICE MILK 2 HALF GALLON CARTONS 75c

ONLY AT A&P CAN YOU BUY AMERICA'S FAVORITE FRUIT CAKE
JANE PARKER FRUIT CAKE
OVER 2/3 FRUIT & NUTS
5 LB. CAKE $3.99
1½-LB. CAKE $1.49 | 3-LB. CAKE $2.89

JANE PARKER — FAMILY SIZE
SPANISH BAR
No Limit On Purchases! 2 Pound Cake 49c

JANE PARKER APPLE PIE SPECIAL 39¢

FIRM, RIPE – VALUE PRICED!
BANANAS
PER LB. 10¢
• FRESH, CALIFORNIA CELERY LARGE STALK 19c
FLORIDA ORANGES 8 LB. 49c

Fauntleroy

Well, I thought I would do something special for you Tar Heel fans — it's the last game of the year and of course it's my final week to control those football games.

So you can bet you are in for a treat in Saturday's 'Tar Heel. I realize it will be tough to top some of the things I have already done, but . . .

SALESMEN

If you need extra money for Christmas, we have an opening for one or two salesmen to sell Bibles in this area, full or part-time. Highest paid commission. FREE benefits. For interview write

DWAIN WAISNER
Route 1, Albemarle, N. C.

Dollar Book Club
Novels Cost 29c ea.

Yes they do, when you find them in the Old Book Corner at

The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin St.
Open Till 10 P.M.

Barnes Pleased With Grapplers

By RON SHINN
DTH Sports Writer

Dr. Sam Barnes, North Carolina's genial combination English professor and wrestling coach, leaned back in his chair and pushed his glasses up onto his forehead. He was doing something that he likes to do about this time every year—speculate about the upcoming wrestling season.

"This looks like our year of opportunity," he said. "We have too much talent not to be good but too many holes to be great.

"Last year we had one-half of a good team but we didn't improve. This year we have two-thirds of a good team, so we should be better without any improvement at all."

Barnes is sending his squad through daily drills in an effort to be ready for the big double-header in Carmichael Auditorium Dec. 4, prior to the opening home basketball game against William and Mary.

"Actually the wrestling team will be the first UNC team to appear in the new gym," said Barnes, "and with wrestling being the way it is today I'd say that we'll probably spill the first blood in the building."

Practice has been hampered greatly by the absence of a new mat that covers the entire floor of the wrestling room.

"We ordered it in July and the company promised to have it here in August," Barnes said, "but we're still waiting on it. We haven't been able to practice our take-downs for fear of hurting somebody. I been having terrible dreams about not getting a single take-down in the first match."

The proven performers that are returning this year are Jim Goodwin in the 130 pound class, captain of the squad and a defending conference champion Roy Hagerty in the 145 division, Lane Verlender at 152, and Jay Jacobson in the 160 pound class.

Other returning lettermen are Jack Sanders (115), Bill Cook (145), Jac Robinson (167), and Steve Lister (heavyweight).

The sophomores also have their proven stars in John Stacy, Bob Blair, Alan Marshall, and Fred Preister. Barnes is depending on several other sophomores that have a lot of experience behind them to give the team depth.

On the gloomy side there is not a single true 123 pounder or a true heavyweight remaining in the group of 32 varsity "survivors," as Barne calls them.

"This year the new 152 pound classification is helping us tremendously by letting both Verlender and Hagerty wrestle at the same time. Before I had been having to alternate them," said Barnes.

The 1965-66 schedule is probably the roughest that the Tar Heel matters have ever faced.

After the grueling opening double - header with Pfeiffer and St. Andrews in Carmichael Auditorium, the squad hits the road and won't return home unl January when a pair of matches are on tap. Only one will be held at home during Feburary. The remaining seven are away

Barnes expressed delight with his frosh squad.

"There aren't any great wrestlers on the team, but we have considerable depth in good wrestlers. All around it's a very encouraging team."

ONE HALF OF
BIG CHICKEN
TOSSED SALAD
Heaps of FRENCH FRIES
TOASTED ROLLS
99c
Thur. 4:00-7:30
All the Ice Tea you can drink 15c
GRANTS EASTGATE SHOPPING CENTER

SOUND SERVICE, INC.
THANKSGIVING SPECIAL
ON ALL SETS RECEIVED BEFORE NOV. 25th, WE WILL:
1–Replace the Needle in Your Phono
2–Clean outside and inside
3–Lubricate All Moving Parts for $9.95
ALSO, 10% Discount on All Repairs
Located in the Rear of Kemp's

FROM THE CREATORS OF "THE FIRST FAMILY"

The funniest album of all time! Actual taped voices of Heads of State being interviewed by the leading newsmen of the country. The answers are the same, but the questions have been changed to unmercifully tickle your funnybone! (S) W2423

Capitol RECORDS

Gene Rector

ASSISTANT DTH SPORTS EDITOR

The Tar Heels may not lose the football game with Duke this Saturday, but the pre-game student excitement is strictly no contest.

A Durham columnist described student excitement at Duke "the highest in years."

Even the Duke Pep Band is in the act. Each evening this week the school cafeteria is filled with their music in support of the coming clash with the Tar Heels.

But where is the Duke excitement on this campus? Sure, the Beat Dook Parade is Friday, but in years past the pre-game festivities were a daily affair — not so this year.

But don't blame Mangum Residence Hall for the sudden lack of campus spirit.

The "Mugs" of Mangum kicked off the "Beat Dook" festivities late Monday evening.

A contingent of 35 Mangumites stormed the Pine Room at 10:30 p.m.

The "Mangum Fight Song" seemed to be in order — and it was. Then the fun began.

With ROTC — vet Bill Elliott calling cadence, the "Mugs" arranged themselves in some military formation and headed for Spencer dormitory — chanting "Beat Dook, Beat Dook" mixed with a chorus of "We're From Carolina."

But Spencer was only the first leg of the trek. Next came Alderman — then Cobb.

"We got quite a reception at Cobb," said dorm president Bill Elliott, dressed in his new green and orange "Mug" jersey.

"Of course we always do," he said. "We have been over there three or four times this year. At Halloween, we left a pumpkin, then danced around it. They really loved that one."

But what prompted the "Beat Dook" march?

"Well, our new jerseys arrived about 5:15 Monday," said Elliot. "So we decided it was time to march. We'll probably have another pep rally later in the week."

Let's hope they do — we need it.

BURT LANCASTER · KIRK DOUGLAS
IN HAL WALLIS' PRODUCTION OF GUNFIGHT AT THE O.K. CORRAL
TECHNICOLOR®
RHONDA FLEMING
NOW PLAYING
CAROLINA

Allen Gets 100th; Booters Top Duke

By BILL ROLLINS
DTH Sports Writer

It was a long time coming, but yesterday Marvin Allen recorded his 100th win as head man of UNC soccer, defeating Duke 3-0.

And it couldn't have come against a more worthy opponent.

After dropping three straight matches in quest of that elusive century mark, Allen's forces victimized an old friend to end the season on a good note.

In running its final record to 8-3, UNC ran up and down the field at will, firing 50 shots at the Duke goal. The Blue Devil's record dropped to 4-6, though they did a good job of staving off the numerous Tar Heel scoring attempts.

John Loud, who fired 22 shots himself, tallied twice, and Jackie Writer struck home once.

Loud's first score came early in the opening period when he started his club's victory march with a goal at 19:15.

That score stood until 5:50 had elapsed after halftime. At that point, Writer stuffed the big green net with an excellent shot, and the Blue Dukes were down 2-0.

Loud came back in the final quarter at 8:45 to stick the Devils again, and the match ended, 3-0 for UNC.

In the ACC, Carolina finished second to Maryland — by the margin of an overtime kick — suffering their only conference loss 1-0 to the Terps.

Duke, which ended the season at 4-6, has been uncommonly good to UNC athletics of late. The Tar Heels whipped them in football last year, twice in basketball, and once in soccer.

Rogah Romps

Offensive power is the word for the Everett Rogahs as they thrashed Lewis White 46-0 in intramural football yesterday. John Biddle and Phil Whittaker scored two touchdowns each to lead the scoring attack.

Mangum Wumps ran over the Ruffin Ramblers 10-4. ATO Blue I slipped by Pi Ka 8-6 on a safety.

Phi Gam White Owls outscored DU Blue 9-3 and 15-3 in volley ball yesterday. The Aycock Aardwolves trounced the Graham Crackers 15-1 and 10-6.

Phi Kappa Phi White romped past Beta II 15-4 and 14-3. In a closer battle Everett Pits knocked off the Stacy Studs 15-5, 4-11, and 10-5. TEP Tops downed Pi Lamb I 15-3 and 15-0.

Pincavage Pushes ACC Record Book

The '63 football season was a big one for Carolina. The Tar Heels went to a bowl and came out the winner was also a big year for an end named Bob Lacey.

Lacey caught 48 passes for 668 yards that season. Both are Conference records which still stand.

But this Saturday the record book looks like it may be rewritten.

Virginia's John Pincavage is the ACC's top pass catcher with 43 receptions. The catches have earned him 558 yards, and he'll be striving for the III more he needs to top Lacy.

Virginia plays Maryland this Saturday and Pincavage will be pitted against Bob Sullivan. Sullivan is the Conference all time interception king with 10 pickoffs to his credit.

Virginia fans this weekend will be wondering about two big questions. Can their team beat Maryland and can Pincavage elude Mr. Sullivan.

MILL OUTLET SALES ROOM
Ladies First Quality HOSE
Three Pairs ... $1.25
"All Popular Fall Shades, Also Nurses' White Hose
UPSTAIRS OVER SUTTON'S Drug Store

Wherever you are, you'll look good in NATURAL SHOULDER TROUSERS®

Our Natural Shoulder Cut, always correct, fits all men comfortably. Choice fabrics & colors are in abundance. Own one. They're the best.

Trousered by CORBIN
Julian's Chapel Hill, N. C.

OLATUNJI

"Drums of Passion"

This exciting Native African and his company of dancers and singers will beat out the passionate rhythms of African folklore.

When? Sat., Nov. 20
What Time? 6:30 P.M.
Where? Duke University Indoor Stadium
How Much? Singles — 1.50 Couples—2.50 Tickets at the Door
Is It Worth It? Need you ask?
The Duke Student Union Is Presenting It
What's His Name Again?
OLATUNJI

Expert Watch and Jewelry Repairing

Our watch and jewelry repair experts will restore your proud possessions to their original beauty and usefulness.

T. L. Kemp Jewelry
Charm Headquarters

Classic Understatement

100% Imported WOOL PULLOVER by PRINGLE

Everything about this soft, warm pullover speaks with full confidence. So it speaks quietly. Its fine gauge imported wool is sheer luxury to the touch. Classically styled with the V-neck in today's narrow rib.

14.95

Varsity Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin

1965 Christmas Greetings 1965
FIGHT TUBERCULOSIS

Make your first and only stop for sweaters at THE HUB, famous for years as the clothing center of Chapel Hill. On hand this year is a wide selection of shades, ranging from the classics in navy and natural to the newest fall colors, autumn gold and cinammon. Available in both V-necks and cardigans, these natural shoulder wool masterpieces are completely washable whether 100% wool, a blend, or luxurious cashmere . . . from 12.95

THE HUB
Of Chapel Hill

TODAY - TUESDAY

Short, the internationally famed "Night and Fog" by Alain Resnais
Daily at 1:30 — 3:23 — 5:16 — 7:10 & 9:04
RIALTO, DURHAM

KING WILLIAM RESTAURANT
STEAKS CHICKEN SEAFOOD
"Choice Selection of Imported and Domestic Beverages"
All New and Modern, featuring
Seating Capacity of 300
• Spacious Parking
• Four Private dining rooms
• Tasteful background music
• Catering facilities
1½ Miles From Campus on 15-501 South
Open Seven Days a Week 8:00 A.M. 'til Midnight

THIS WEEKEND AT THE RECORD BAR
ALL CAPITAL LP's 33⅓% OFF
Regular 4.00 LP's ..... NOW 2.65
Regular 5.00 LP's ..... NOW 3.33
Regular 6.00 LP's ..... NOW 3.99
INCLUDES LP'S BY THE BEATLES, NAT COLE, BEACH BOYS, NANCY WILSON
"WELCOME To The LBJ RANCH"
Regular 5.00 . . . Now Only 2.99
The New BEACH BOY LP
"BEACH BOYS' PARTY"
MONO — Regular 5.00 ..... Now Only 2.99
STEREO — Regular 6.00 ..... Now Only 3.49
The Record Bar
ACROSS FROM THE POST OFFICE ON HENDERSON ST.
Durham (Uptown) Jacksonville, Fla. Durham, Wellon's Village

Box 870

BEAT DOOK

The Daily Tar Heel

BEAT DOOK

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Vol. 74, No. 57 | CHAPEL HILL NORTH CAROLINA FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 1965 | Founded February 23, 1893

Phi Sigma Kappa Gets Colony Rank

Phi Sigma Kappa Social Fraternity was officially recognized by unanimous vote of the Interfraternity Council Monday and given a colony chapter status in the body.

Two representatives of the new group will sit in on IFC meetings, but will not be given the privilege of voting until their position on campus is permanently secured.

The colony chapter of the fraternity is living in the old Phi Mu sorority house.

Each fraternity on campus will send a basket of canned goods to the Planetarium parking lot next Tuesday at 2 p.m. for distribution among needy families in Chapel Hill.

The body voted to establish a committee to investigate a procedure for selecting a social fraternity each year which contributes the most to the Chapel Hill community.

The exact nature of the award has not been determined.

All rush greetings for Thanksgiving must be submitted to the IFC Secretary for approval before the holidays.

Dates may enter fraternity houses at 11 a.m. this Saturday rather than 12 noon because of the location of this year's Duke-Carolina football game.

Larry Ehrhart of Chi Psi proposed that coeds be allowed to enter fraternity houses at 11 a.m. on all Sunday mornings. A vote on the proposal will be held at the next IFC meeting.

IFC Publicity Chairman Neil Thomas of Kappa Sigma announced plans for a panel discussion on fraternity affairs for freshman rushees and proposed a monthly IFC newsletter fo freshmen.

RAMESES IS IN THE hands of a bunch of Dukies, but never fear, he will overcome and the Tar Heel football team will put the ram in the appropriate place tomorrow.

Rumors Are True– Rameses Has Been Captured By Duke

By ED FREAKLEY
DTH Staff Writer

Rumors have been flying around for several days that our woolly friend Rameses is gone. University officials ducked questions all week — until yesterday when they admitted that the UNC mascot was kidnapped by Duke students.

Campus Police Chief Arthur Beaumont said the ram was apparently stolen last week, but that they did not know for certain until Tuesday.

According to Beaumont Duke students were chanting "We've got the ram," at the Duke - Wake Forest game in Durham Saturday.

"We've been trying to keep this quiet so there wouldn't be any trouble between the two schools," Beaumont said.

Mrs. R. C. Hogan, of Hogan's Farm where Rameses is kept, was the first person to confirm the rumor.

"Yes, I'm afraid he is gone," she said. "They have been trying to cover it up until they got him back to keep Carolina students from getting upset and going over and tearing around the Duke campus."

Beaumont said he had arranged with Duke officials to have Rameses returned. He went over to pick the ram up Tuesday but the Duke fraternity which supposedly abscounded with Rameses showed up empty handed. Beaumont said the students told him and Duke's Dean of Men Robert Cox that the ram had been stolen from them.

Beaumont also said that a Duke cheerleader was involved in the incident.

"Officials at Duke are going their best to get him back," Beaumont said.

He added that Duke officials said if the ram wasn't returned or if it showed up at the game tomorrow the students involved might be suspended from school.

"I have been given assurance by top student leaders that they cannot find the ram," Dean Cox said yesterday.

"We are just as much concerned about the missing ram as you are, and we are doing our best to locate him. If he is here we will get him back," he said.

"Student leaders, campus detectives and the administration are deeply concerned over this and we are not taking it lightly."

The rumors about the missing ram started Monday. They cropped up again on Tuesday and Wednesday. The Dean of Men's Office was contacted Tuesday but denied knowing anything about the alleged theft.

Earlier this year three Wake Forest students kidnapped a Rameses, but he was the wrong ram. They made off with Rameses VII the father of Rameses VIII who is the present mascot and the one that is now in the hands of some Duke Blue Devils.

The Wake students returned the ram before there was any trouble and before the football game with Carolina that Saturday.

The usual "extra campus security measures" are in affect this week as they always are when Carolina meets Duke or State.

Campus and Chapel Hill Police are working over time hoping to choke off any possible trouble from "high spirited" students. The same precautions are being taken at Duke.

THE CHICKEN WIRE and staple-gun brigade is at it again. Here, Maverick House residents, with only one day left before the Beat Dook Parade, are working feverishly to surpass last year's winning entry. The downtown parade begins at 3 p.m. this afternoon.

— DTH Photo By Ernest Robl.

Vietgram Has Nearly 4,000 Signatures

The special Thanksgiving petition supporting U.S. involvement in Viet Nam now has 3,831 student signatures one it, according to petition organizer Phil Kirstein.

"We expect the total of signatures to go over 5,000 when all the petitions are turned in," Kirstein said yesterday.

Petitions have been collected from three men's residence halls, six fraternity houses, five sororities and five women's residence halls.

All other living units on campus are still circulating their copies.

The names of those students who signed the petition will be typed on a continuous roll of paper and sent to Gen. William Westmoreland, commander of U. S. forces in Viet Nam.

Presidents of all living units still circulating petitions are requested to turn their copies into the Symposium office on the second floor of the YMCA building by 3 p.m. today.

Volunteer typists who can work on the signatures Sunday and Monday afternoons are asked to call Phil Kirstein at 968-9021 or Susan Barron at 968-9142.

Rep. Horace Kornegay Says–

Apathy May Mean Federal Control

By JIM COGHILL

"Those people who are apathetic or lack interest in voting have put North Carolina in jeopardy of falling under federal voting regulations."

This statement was made Wednesday night in Durham by Rep. Horace Kornegay of the North Carolina Sixth District as he spoke before the West Durham Merchants Association.

Rep. Kornegay elaborated in his talk on the Voting Rights Act of 1965 which in part affects some 26 North Carolina counties as well as the state of Alaska and six other states in the South.

The act has been branded the "George Wallace Act" because the Alabama governor was its prime target in Washington.

The law states that if 50 per cent of the voting age population did not vote in the 1964 presidential election, federal registrars can be sent into a county by order of the attorney general of the United States.

Now the justice department under the direction of Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach plans a new census to those areas affected to determine if they fall under the law as of November 3, 1964. The sixth district as well as 23 other counties must undergo this census at a cost of some $800,000 to the taxpayers.

The Congressman said that no alleged discrimination had been reported in the Sixth District, therefore he concluded that people are not interested in voting which, in his words, "is their privilege."

Other parts of the 1965 law include that literacy tests are unnecessary in order to register, and all people regardless of present status (convicts, felons, illiterates) could vote.

THE SUPREMES will be here Sunday in Carmichael Auditorium along with Louis Armstrong and his jazz All-Stars. Tickets cost $1 for UNC students and $1.50 for general admission. They are available at GM and at the door.

Chairman Says Celebrity Series Is 'Best Bargain'

By DICK WHITE

The Graham Memorial Activities Board maintains that its celebrity series gives the UNC student the "best bargain" in the area.

"You may have seen the posters around campus for Louis Armstrong's Raleigh performance," GMAB chairman Bill Campbell said. "They charge $2 or $3.50; our price is only $1.

"We do this because we are dedicated to serving the campus, and not to profit. This is how we can take a $3,000 loss on the Nancy Wilson concert and consider it a huge success."

Why not charge a little more and make a profit?

"Because our policy is to provide the campus with fine entertainment at the least possible cost," Campbell said.

The GMAB budget is made up from part of the student fees paid with tuition. "This gives us enough money to present such high quality entertainment as Louis Armstrong, the Supremes and the Norman Luboff Choir.

"Some students might subconsciously feel that because the ticket price is so low, the entertainment might be inferior." Campbell said they have to fight this "money psychology" and let the campus know that the GM series—whether the tickets cost $1, $.50 or nothing at all — are expensive and high caliber entertainment.

"We certainly don't feel that any student has an obligation to attend our programs, but we do hope that the low price will not actually keep him from coming," Campbell said.

This weekend in Carmichael Auditorium the GMAB is presenting Louis Armstrong Saturday night and the Supremes Sunday afternoon.

Some Students Can Work In Congress Next Summer

Policitcal science majors and other students with a good political science background can work next summer as Congressional Interns in the office of a United States Senator or Congressman, or on the staff of a congressional committee.

A stipend of $750, covering transportation and living expenses, is being offered to each Intern by The North Carolina Center for Education in Politics, composed of the political science departments of 20 North Carolina schools.

Donald R. Matthews, director of NCCEP, said that applicants should be juniors or exceptional sophomores with about a "B" average. The Center recommends, but does not require, that students have courses in political parties and legislation.

Interns will work as regular staff members from June 1 until August 15. Their major duties will be processing correspondence, and after orientation, writing letters, reports and speeches.

Interns may also do research of various types and entertain visiting consituents. According to Matthews, this provides an excellent "opportunity for the student to involve himself in the activities of a congressional office."

All interns live in the same building so they can compare experiences and hold group interviews with important people in Washington. In the past, students have talked with lobbyists and top men in all branches of the government.

UNC students who have participated in the program in past years include Bob Spearman, former Student Body President; Gary Blanchard, past editor of the Daily Tar Heel; and Fred Anderson, Marshall Fellow.

TX Slates Three Talks

Mike Lawler, former president of the student body, and Rev. Banks Godfrey will speak at 9 a.m. Saturday to Toronto Exchange students on "Student Life and Mores: Social Action in the Sixties" in 08 Peabody.

Tonight Dr. William Flemming and Dr. William Keech will discuss "Politics 1965: The American Mind at Mid-Century" at 1:30 p.m.

Sunday, Dr. Louis Lipsitz and Dr. John Dixon will speak on "Civil Disobedience and the Consensus Society" at 4:30 p.m.

All talks are in Peabody and are open to all students.

Students Write Book For Professor

Dr. Fletcher M. Green, UNC professor of history, was honored yesterday with a book written for him by some of his former students.

Seventeen of the students, now scholars associated with a variety of leading colleges and universities, contributed to "Writing Southern History: Essays in Historiography in Honor of Fletcher M. Green."

Dr. Green was presented with the book in Richmond, where the Southern Historical Association is currently meeting.

The forward, which says "this book is dedicated to Fletcher Melvin Green, a master teacher," gives an idea of why and how the collection came to be. Editors Arthur S. Link of Princeton and Rembert W. Patrick of the University of Florida, quote words about Dr. Green which come from a study of Pioneer Historians of the South.

The author, W. H. Stephenson, tells of Dr. Green's graduate seminar at UNC and says that of students participating in the course through the years, some 150 have earned the masters degree, some 90 the doctorate and 25 more are working on dissertations.

Stephenson speaks with admiration of the 325 books and articles produced by the members of that seminar, of the fellowships and awards won by them. He notes they have taught in half of the states and in England, Germany, Japan and India.

When questioned about the impressive record of his students, Dr. Green says "Why they come by that zeal I cannot say."

But, says Stephenson, members of that "master teacher's" seminar, know "if the modest director does not."

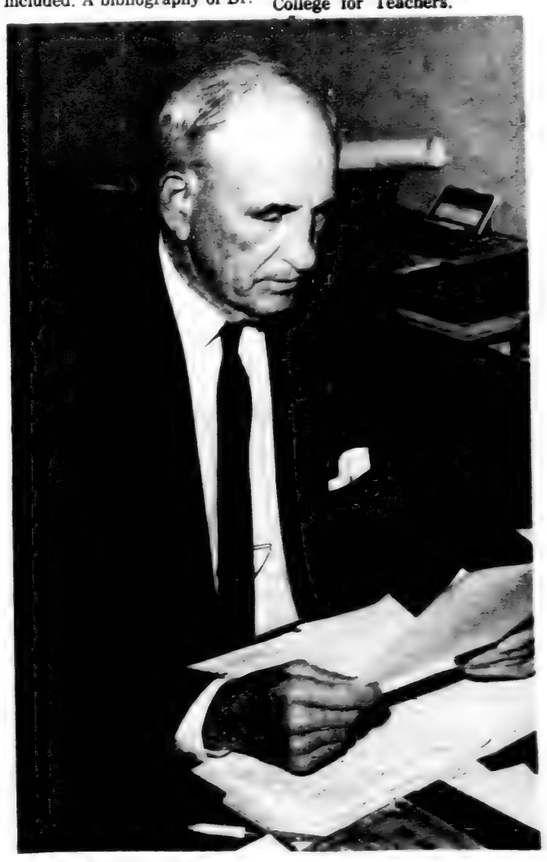
The impetus for Writing Southern History originated several years ago and a committee composed of J. Carlyle Sitterson, vice chancellor of UNC, Dewey W. Grantham, Jr. of Vanderbilt and Bennett H. Wall of the University of Kentucky were named to organize the project.

Surveying and analyzing the available writing on various aspects of southern history, the book tries to present the historiography of this region in detail.

Most of the scholars who contributed to the book began working on their articles in 1961. In addition to Dr. Grantham and Dr. Wall, the contributors include Hugh F. Rankin of Tulane, Charles G. Sellers, Jr. of the University of California at Berkeley, Ernest M. Lander, Jr. of Clemson University, Malcolm C. McMillan of Auburn, Edwin A. Miles of the University of Houston, James C. Bonner of the Woman's College of Georgia.

Mary Elizabeth Massey of Winthrop College, John G. Barrett of Virginia Military Institute, Vernon L. Wharton, late of the University of Southwestern Louisiana, Paul M. Gaston, University of Virginia, George B. Tindall of UNC at Chapel Hill, Allen J. Going of the University of Houston and Horace H. Cunningham of the University of Georgia also wrote essays.

Charles E. Cauthen, late of Wofford College, began an article before his death and it was completed by Lewis P. Jones, also of Wofford and is included. A bibliography of Dr. Green's works is in the book and was compiled by J. Isaac Copeland of George Peabody College for Teachers.



DR. FLETCHER M. GREEN

Car Collides With Cycle; Two Injured

A motorbike with two riders collided with a car as the car was turning into the Bell Tower lot yesterday, injuring both motorbike riders.

The driver of the car, James C. Mills of Hilltop Trailer Court, was arrested for failing to grant right-of-way, according to Chapel Hill Police.

John K. Bowman, driver of the motorbike, and Angus C. Randolph, his passenger, were taken to Memorial Hospital. Bowman was treated for cuts and bruises and released, and Randolph is still in the hospital in satisfactory condition, with a possible concussion.

The investigating officer, Sgt. Jimmy Farrell, said Randolph was thrown over a parked car and Bowman was thrown over Mills' car.

Job Interviews

The following companies will recruit on the campus:

Monday, Nov. 22 — Altantic Refining Company; American Viscose Division, FMC Corporation; Chemical Division, FMC Corporation (summer work); Fruehauf Corp.; W. T. Grant Company; Vick Chemical Company.

Tuesday, Nov. 23 — Upjohn Company; Hercules Inc. (summer work); Deering Milliken Service Corporation; Prentice-Hall, Inc.; Aetna Casualty & Surety Company; Arkansas Polytechnic College.

Monday, Nov. 29 — School of Law, Columbia University; Springs Cotton Mills; Bank of Virginia (summer work); U.S. Department of Agriculture; N. C. State Auditor; F. W. Woolworth & Company.

Tuesday, Nov. 30 — Prudential Insurance Company; L.P. Muller & Co., Inc. Socony Mobil Oil Company; Ortho Pharmaceutical Co.

Wednesday, Dec. 1 — American Hospital Supply Corporation; International Business Machines.

Thursday, Dec. 2 — International Business Machines; Fieldcrest Mills.

Friday, Dec. 3 — Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Co.; General Aniline & Film Corporation; General Telephone Company of the Southeast; Chatham Manufacturing Company; Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Company.

Students desiring interviews with the company representatives should go to the Placement Service, 211 Gardner Hall.

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of the Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. Letters and columns, covering a wide range of views, reflect the personal opinions of their authors.
ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

"Rameses Who?"

Rameses is gone.

And UNC students were the last to know. The Office of the Dean of Men has taken the attitude of late that no unhappy news is to be released unless it is forced out — as by publication in state papers. The approach which has been demonstrated is, "Well, if it's out I guess we'll have to talk about it."

The ram was snatched before last weekend. Rumors of the deed circulated around campus and Dean of Men William G. Long said that he knew by Tuesday that the ram was definitely gone.

But on Tuesday a representative of his office flatly denied the rumor to the DTH.

As Mrs. R. C. Hogan, who lives at the farm where Rameses is kept, said, "They have been trying to cover it up until they got him back to keep Carolina students from getting upset and going over and tearing around the Duke campus."

A noble purpose, indeed, but nevertheless we do not feel very kindly toward being on the receiving end of apparent lies — or partial truths — from the administration.

While he has not exactly told any falsehoods about the matter, Campus Police Chief Arthur Beaumont has just been referring all inquiries to the local police — because he knew they had no information to provide.

While completely sympathizing with efforts to avoid any inter-campus violence, we find it hard to swallow this "keep it a secret as long as we can" policy. Naivete is usually not a trait of school administrators, but we can think of nothing else to call it if they think that this or any other story of campus-wide interest can be permanently concealed, no matter how good they think the reason is.

In the meantime, if we don't have a burglar alarm put in Rameses' stall, with maybe a guard or three before the State, Wake Forest and Duke games, our mascot is going to be the most widely travelled ram in the history of the species.

Concerning a rescue raid to the Duke campus, we prefer to see the thieves bring the ram to the game and get kicked out of school — after the UNC football team has soundly thrashed the boys on the Duke squad.

The UP Strike

University Party Chairman Jim Hubbard is being less than fair when he accuses Elections Board Chairman Alvin Tyndall of being "incompetent" and demands his replacement.

No matter how valid or invalid Hubbard's complaints against the handling of elections, he should have first presented his case to Student Body President Paul Dickson, who appointed Tyndall. If Dickson had refused to consider the UP's protests, Hubbard would have been on considerably stronger ground in making his public charges.

Dickson said Thursday that the first time he heard Hubbard's accusations was when a DTH reporter showed him the statement and asked for his comment. He could hardly be expected to say anything except he has "no intentions" of giving Tyndall the boot.

The UP ought to be smart enough to know that if it really wants Dickson to get a new Elections Board chairman, a public statement is not the way to begin going about it. Probably the only thing it created was sympathy for Tyndall.

Crybaby politics is as worthless as dirty politics. Let's get that bi-partisan committee suggested to set up a political code of conduct in operation soon.

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; John Jennrich, associate editor; Barry Jacobs, managing editor; Fred Thomas, news editor, Pat Stith, sports editor; Gene Rector, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; John Greenbacker, political writer; Ed Freakley, Andy Myers, Lynne Harvel, Lynne Sizemore, David Rothman, Ray Linville, staff writers; Jack Harrington, bus. mgr.; Tom Clark, asst. bus. mgr.; Woody Sobol. ad. mgr.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all ap news dispatches.

"Would It Help If I Say PLEASE Get Me a Date Ticket?"

Letters To The Editor

Wynn-Lipsitz Reasoning Questioned

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

The letter from Lewis Lipsitz and William Wynn urging students to participate in the March on Washington for Peace in Viet Nam deserves an immediate reply. I respect the professional reputation of these distinguished scholars. I respect their humanitarian motives and in no way question their sincerity, their loyalty — or their right to dissent. I do, however, question their seasoning.

It is, perhaps, understandable that these scholars, in their deep humanitarian concern, should fall into the trap of substituting emotionalism for rationality and in doing so find it necessary to change facts to fit their favortie theories. This is something that many academicians are all too frequently guilty of. I believe that in this case, as always, the students will insist upon cutting the layers of verbose obfuscation to get to the core of the matter — to the truth.

Where facts have been concealed and distorted in a cloudbank of ambiguous terminology, it is well to make a point by point analysis if one wishes to get at the truth. The following is such an analysis of the Wynn-Lipsitz letter:

(1) The authors would like to say (though they seem to be rather reluctant to come right out and say it) that American assistance is the same as North Vietnamese aggression. To this end they refer to North Vietnamese action as "intervention". But the fact, is that when one sovereign nation sends across the border of another sovereign nation thousands of trained, armed, professional agitators whose purpose it is to foment revolution, such action is not "intervention". It is aggression. It is invasion. The fact is that the United States is showing incredible restraint in not wiping the collectivist aggressors in Hanoi off the map. Just as it wiped off the map that other collectivist mob — the Nazi Party.

(2) The authors wish to say that the American - South Vietnamese element and the Chinese - North Vietnamese element are equally guilty of bringing about the "terror, death and destruction" in the South. To this end they refer to both elements as "belligerents". The fact is that according to this logic, both the "belligerents" Nazi Germany and the United States share equal guilt for the terror, death and destruction of World War II.

(3) The authors say with emotion (ignoring rationality) that they are against war. The fact is that it is impossible to be "for" or "against" war. The word "war" is a description of a state of affairs and it is impossible to be for or against a description. The question is whether the authors are against the cause of war: aggression. Apparently they are not.

(4) The authors would like to say that the South Vietnamese government is not as freedom-loving as it should be. That may be. But the fact is that we know for a certainty that the North Vietnamese government is not a freedom-loving one (though the authors imply that it is, apparently being of the opinion that totalitarianism means freedom, at least in some cases).

(5) The authors would have us believe that the American presence in Viet Nam. But the inescapable fact is that there is an issue. An issue which goes far beyond the borders of Viet Nam. Indeed, an issue which has nothing to do with nations, but with something far more important — people. Individuals. It is an issue which has to do with the slaughter of the people of Hungary, the streams of refugees from Cuba, the captives behind the Berlin wall. It is an issue which has to do with all the individuals who are locked in collectivist prisons all over the world. It is the same issue we have had throughout man's history. And the parties to the disagreement are the same: the Individual, who asks only to be left alone, and the Collectivist Mob which is determined to enslave him; the Individual, who insists that means are just as important as ends, and the Collectivist Mob, which is prepared to endorse any means — including the initiation of physical coercion — to achieve its ends. It is unfortunate that the South Vietnamese nation has been turned into a battlefield for resolving this issue. But let us remember that it was Peiping and not Washington which made it so. That it was Peiking and not Washington which created the terror, death and destruction of which the authors speak.

The simple fact is that the authors should not be leading a peace march to Washington, but to Peiping.

(6) The authors would have us believe that the American presence in Viet Nam is impractical, futle. The fact,however, is that American action is much more than a gesture of assistance to South Viet Nam. It is a display of conviction, of resolve, of spirit. It is visible proof that Americans believe in what they say they believe in and are prepared to stand for those beliefs — whatever the cost. Americans are dying in Viet Nam not just for America the geographic location, but for America the Idea. And if it is futile to die for an idea — particularly the idea of freedom — then I wonder if any man has ever died a meaningful death. Or lived a meaningful life.

America (though it may be changing) is still a nation of free individuals. I believe that the resolve of these individuals will remain firm and that their spirits will not falter in the face of the collectivitst mob, however large that mob may grow to be. As that old one-time expatriate Scott Fitzgerald once put it: "France was a land, England was a people, but America, having about it yet that quality of the idea, was harder to utter. It was . . . a willingness of the heart."

(7) The authors maintain that the collectivists want peace. But they are unable to point to any "peace marchers" like themselves in Peiping or Hanoi. If the authors will show me one, just one citizen in those places who is openly picketing and marching to protest his government's imperialistic wars of "liberation", then I will believe them. Indeed, then I will even be prepared to believe that the peace-loving people of those places are free men who may freely voice criticism of their government's foreign policy at any time they please.

While you march on Washington in the cause of peace, gentlemen, I hope you will pause to ponder the fact that in the very act which you perform you completely refute your own argument. And that, like Neville Chamberlain at Munich, you are not advancing the cause of peace but are, instead, promoting a wider-spread and more horrible war.

I hope that you will pause to ponder the fact that, however sincere your humanitarian motives, you are putting your stamp of approval on collectivist aggression.

Paul A. Smith
654 Ehringhaus

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel welcomes letters to the editor on any subject, particularly on matters of local or University interest. Letters must be typed, double spaced and must include the name and address of the author or authors. Names will not be omitted in publication. Letters should be kept as brief as possible. The DTH reserves the right to edit for length or libel.

They Think So

Rolling Stones Have Sex?

By JONATHAN YARDLEY
Greensboro Daily News

SOMEWHERE IN THE GREENSBORO COLISEUM — The Rolling Stones require the talents (if that is the word) of a Tom Wolfe. The ordinary prose of an ordinary journalist fails them.

Their sounds (zowee! ! wow! ! kerbanggg ! !, Mr. Wolfe might say) escape description, and in fact I am not at all sure they are worth describing. The Rolling Stones, unlike the Beatles or the Vibrations (who appeared on the program with the Rolling Stones), are resolutely unwholesome. If they have any sense of humor —the Beatles certainly do—it was not on display here Friday night. If they have any real talent for rhythm and blues—the Vibrations do—it has been ignored.

What the Rolling Stones do have, or think they have, is sex. The leader of their band is someone named Mick, and Mick's stage maneuvers are a sight to see; they make Elvis Pressley (remember him?) look like the chaperon doing a fox trot. Mick's appeal seems to lie in his physique, which is skinny; his hair, which comes dangerously close to his shoulders; and his lisp.

Love Those Lips

Mick's lips are surely the most remarkable lips ever nurtured on the face of man. They are immense, two great flapping hunks of flesh that reduce the rest of his face to embarrassment at its inadequacy. But they exercise, as all distortions do, an undeniable fascination — mainly among the girls, I trust. One of those most fascinated is said to be Baby Jane Holzer (wowee!!! zam!! the most!?), whome my cafe society correspondent reports has been seen with him at various discotheques and the like.

Lips and all, Mick was right here on the stage of War Memorial Coliseum on Friday night. And so were the girls. Hundreds and hundreds of high-decibel little females, a few of them escorted by young men most of whom were rather glum throughout the proceedings.

The young men were glum for two reasons, I suspect: at their age it is considered manly to be unemotional, and their girl friends were doing some rather embarassin things. (One of these young men must have been a budding sociologist: he set unmoving, unsmiling and unclapping through the entire spectacle, and when the Rolling Stones left he just got up and walked right out. Probably to write a dissertation.)

Up And Down

Some of the girls embarrassed their boyfriends by jumping and gyrating. But that pursuit was dampened by the over-zealous police, who announced that if anyone rushed the stage to welcome the Stones the loudspeakers would be turned off. Since nothing could be worse than depriving the girls of the noise of Stones, they were respectfully stationary.

The only near exception to this rule occurred at the arrival of the Rolling Stones. To a girl they rose, shouting, screaming, armwaving, to greet these demigods. Since those of us toward the rear could not see, we had to rise. And thus we found ourselves standing for the Stones, something I would not as a rule do.

It was the screaming that really embarrassed the boys. No wonder. These girls can scream like meemies.

When To Scream

There is, of course, an art to it. It must be done at the right moment—a high note, a suggestive phrase, a flip of the hip. A little girl sitting near us had it right down pat. During much of the evening she simply sat there with her head in her hands, apparently overcome by the glories of the evening. But whenever screaming time came around, she was right in their with the best of them, hands cupped around her mouth and eyes flashing.

Once she was putting on lipstick when a good screaming moment arrived. She removed the stick, screamed, then resumed lipsticking. Such precision demands respect.

The final number was called "Satisfaction." It is the Stones' big smash hit, and needless to say the girls were close to delirium. It was what everyone had been waiting for and when it was over the Stones dashed off the stage, without so much as a goodbye, as though their lives were in danger. They may have been.

Away They Went

But what was puzzling was that there was no protest. All the girls screamed for a second or two, but then they got up and mached out. Fulfilled, or sated, I suppose.

Oh well, in a few years they'll all be grown up, married, with kids and bridge clubs, and somehow it doesn't seem likely that Mick and his cohorts or some obnoxious disk jockey or "Satisfaction" will have warped them. We all seem to survive, as many a middle-aged Sinatra fan will attest (while he's smashing Bob Dylan records).

Zoom! righto! shazam!!!

Mike Jennings

Consensus On Viet Nam

Thoughtful supporters of President Johnson's Viet Nam policy are murmuring at the war's current dousing in holy water. They're willing to show they agree with the administration, but they see no reason why we should all march down to the Jordan to get dunked.

Thee's every indication that we're approaching the point where a sincere opponent of the war can win his way back to grace only by shouting, "I was deep in sin, brother, but now I see the light." Even lukewarm supporters will have to show their faith. The hallelujah bandwagon is beginning to roll.

Yet it's not Daddy J. who's at the reins. His may be the loudest "Amen," but he's not preaching the sermon.

We are. We've decided it's time for consensus, so we've jumped up and started spouting glory — which, in this case, is that it's our patriotic duty to be of one opinion.

Well, maybe it is time for consensus. But it's never time for consensus of opinion.

No that's not redundant. Consensus of opinion is a very different thing from consensus of support. Witness the support given Goldwater by most Republicans. But the American tradition demands consensus of opinion in time of war, and that demand is beginning to assert itself.

Alexis de Tocqueville, the Frenchman who wrote Democracy in America, examined our burgeoning tradition in the 1840's. One of his comments on public opinion in America seems fitting here:

"As long as the majority is still undecided, discussion is carried on; but as soon as its decision is irrevocably pronounced. everyone is silent, and the friends as well as the opponents of the measure unit in assenting to its propriety."

perhaps America has never really reached the State de Toqueville describes, but she has approached it in time of war. She approaches it whenever support of national policy becomes a matter of conversion rather than of decision.

She is approaching it now.

BEAT DOOK WEEKEND
LOUIS ARMSTRONG
SATURDAY NIGHT
8 p.m.
Carmichael Auditorium

FOR SALE: 1961 PEUGEOT, good condition. Can be seen at Phillips 66 Eastgate. Will accept best offer. Must sell immediately. Call Tom Corbett, 111 Teague, 968-9198.

FOR SALE — MAGNAVOX component stereo system like new. Transistorized amplifier with 5 yr. guarantee. Diamond stylus with 10 yr. guarantee. $120.00. Call 929-2009 after 6 p.m.

WANTED: ELECTRONICS technician familiar with record players for full or part time. Call 942-3556.

NEW 2 BEDROOM, AIR CONditioned mobile home. 10' x 45'. Available Dec. 1 — $80 per month. Telephone 942-3268 or 942-1749.

WANTED: RIDE TO AND from Raleigh. Starting January 3. Leave message 832-7572.

FOR SALE: CZECHOSLOvakian classical guitar. 3 months old — like new. Beautiful — $55.00 or best offer. Call or see Bennett Boyles, KA House. 968-9117.

1961 JAGUAR MK-II, 3.4 LITer sedan. Four speed synchromesk with overdrive; 20 plus mpg, 120 plus mph. Owner drafted; best offer. Call 942-5944.

FOR SALE: 1960 CHEVROlet. White impala convertible, white one-year old top. Full power, radio & heater. Good price. Call 942-4554.

FOR SALE: 1960 RENAULT. Good condition. 3 speed. Price $150.00 or best offer. Call 942-5864.

A Brief List Of Activities

All Campus Calendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date (by 10 a.m. Saturday for Sunday's DTH). Lost and Found notices will be run on Tuesdays and Saturdays only.

TODAY

The Baptist Student Union Supper - study will have as its program "Sociological and Economic Implications of Automation." The talk will be by Sociologist Chuck Longino, followed by a discussion.

The Hillel Foundation Sabbath Evening services will be at 7 p.m.

The freshmen class officers will interview freshmen interested in serving on class committees from 3-5 p.m. in Roland Parker III.

Applications are available at Y-Building for the Peace Corps test to be given from 2 to 5 p.m. Friday in 104 Hanes Hall.

Students who would like to help with activities at the Umstead Hospital one afternoon a week are asked to please leave their name and phone number in the Y student offices upstairs in the Y-Building.

Applications are available at Y-Building for the Peace Corps test to be given from 2 to 5 p.m. Friday in 104 Hanes Hall.

SATURDAY

Open to all students and dates starting directly after the Louis Armstrong concert it's "Beat Dook-a-go-go" with the Broncglows from Fayetteville and the sensational Go-Go-Girls from 10 p.m. to 1 a.m. in the Red Room and Go-Go-Lounge of Morrison Residence College. Couples only.

Pre-registration for the spring semester for freshmen will begin on Mon., Nov. 29. Freshmen may sign up for pre-registration with their advisor beginning Mon., Nov. 22 at the General College office in South Building.

Frosh Prexy Hails Success

Freshman Class President Ben White said yesterday the first class fund - raising project has been "an encouraging success."

The class solicited quarters from students, and for each 25-cents collected three postal cards were sent to Duke University showing the Duke Blue Devil being lifted by his tail by a UNC hand.

White said the class made a 10-cent profit on each quarter collected.

BEAT DOOK WEEKEND
THE SUPREMES
SUNDAY: 1:30
Carmichael

Giftwrapping

— It's always "on the house" at the Intimate. Just ask for it!

Our crew can save you the time and trouble, and do it up for you our own special way.

And for you early birds, we've gotten out our Christmas wrapping, too.

Give that gift a little extra zing — have it giftwrapped —Free—at the Intimate!

The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin St.
Open Till 10 P.M.

BEAT DOOK WEEKEND
PLEASE! Students DON'T wait until the door for Armstrong and Supreme Tickets ... Get them NOW $1 at G.M.

SALESMEN

If you need extra money for Christmas, we have an opening for one or two salesmen to sell Bibles in this area, full or part-time. Highest paid commission. FREE benefits. For interview write:

DWAIN WAISNER
Route 1, Albemarle, N. C.

BEAT DOOK WEEKEND
NANCY RHOADES
FRIDAY, 8 p.m.
RENDEZVOUS ROOM
& Discotheque

Varsity

When that man from Rio and that woman from France meet that man from Goldfinger ... the sparks fly in a delightful adventure in Suspense!

JEANNE MOREAU
JEAN-PAUL BELMONDO
'BANANA PEEL'
with GERT FROBE
Directed by MARCEL OPHULS
A Pathe Contemporary Release
FRI., SAT., SUN. & MON.

WEEKEND SPECIALS

Prestone ..... 99¢
ANTIFREEZE
with $5.00 purchase

CAROLINA T SHIRTS 1.99

CAROLINA SWEAT SHIRTS 1.99 & 2.99

CAROLINA ZIPPER
OVERNITE BAGS 5.95

WOOD'S

I'M SO PROUD— I JUST PICKED OUT A UNIQUE GIFT FOR MY GIRL FRIEND

UNC
BEER MUGS
SCARFS — ANIMALS
PENNANTS
RED NIGHT SHIRTS
CAROLINA BLUE NIGHT SHIRTS
PEANUTS SWEATSHIRTS

Ledbetter Pickard

CHASE DINING HALL

Open Daily

HOT SANDWICH COUNTER DAILY

THIS WEEK'S MENU

— Monday —
JUMBO HAMBURGERS ON BUN
Cole Slaw — F. F. Onion Rings
60¢

— Tuesday —
JUMBO CHEESEBURGER ON BUN
F F Potatoes—Carrot & Cabbage
60¢

— Wednesday —
2 RED DEVIL FRANKS
Chili — Cole Slaw
50¢

— Thursday —
HICKORY SMOKED BARBEQUE
On Bun — F. F. Potatoes — Relish Slaw
60¢

— Friday —
GRILLED MINUTE STEAK
On Toast — F. F. Potatoes
65¢

— Saturday —
HOT ROAST BEEF SANDWICH
Mashed Potatoes — Gravy
65¢

CLIP OUT AND SAVE

Captivating Dashing
FOR MEN ONLY

COLOGNE
4 OZ. $3.50
AFTER SHAVE
4 OZ. $2.50
Imported Essence created by Lucien

KING WILLIAM RESTAURANT

STEAKS CHICKEN SEAFOOD

"Choice Selection of Imported and Domestic Beverages"

All New and Modern, featuring

1½ Miles From Campus on 15-501 South

Seating Capacity of 300
- Spacious Parking
- Four Private dining rooms
- Tasteful background music
- Catering facilities

Open Seven Days a Week 8:00 A.M. 'til Midnight

SOUND SERVICE, INC.

THANKSGIVING SPECIAL

ON ALL SETS RECEIVED BEFORE NOV. 25th, WE WILL:

1–Replace the Needle in Your Phono with a First Class DIAMOND NEEDLE
2–Clean outside and inside
3–Lubricate All Moving Parts for $9.95

ALSO, 10% Discount on All Repairs
Located in the Rear of Kemp's

"SENSUOUS AND SENSUAL FUN— A PHILANDERER'S ROMP THROUGH FIELDS OF WAVING GIRLS! — N.Y. Times

JOSEPH E LEVINE presents A CARLO PONTI Production
"BRILLIANT AND HILARIOUS FILM!" — N.Y. Journal American

starring MARCELLO MASTROIANNI
VIRNA LISI

Casanova '70

Color

co-starring MARISA MELL ENRICO MARIA SALERNO LIANA ORFEI BEBA LONCAR and with MICHELE MERCIER
Produced by CARLO PONTI
Executive Producer JOSEPH E. LEVINE
Directed by MARIO MONICELLI
C.C. Champion of Rome — Les Films Concordia of Paris Production
An EMBASSY PICTURES Release
RECOMMENDED FOR ADULTS ONLY

CAROLINA
NOW PLAYING
Shows at 1:00 - 3:03
5:06 - 7:09 - 9:12

Take Mom a Brush Stroke Print for Thanksgiving . . .

- She'll be surprised and delighted.
- Cast your bread upon the waters, and all that.
- Christmas is coming, Chum, Chrismas is coming.

The Intimate Bookshop
119 E. Franklin St. Open Till 9 P.M.

Orange Blossom

DIAMOND RINGS

VICTORIA

ALABAMA
Anniston: Couch's Jewelry Co.
Auburn: Ware Jewelers
Birmingham: Bromberg's
Birmingham: Bromberg's (Mt. Brook)
Florence: Rogers Fine Jlry Dept.
Gadsden: C. F. Hoffman & Sons, Inc.
Huntsville: Bromberg's
Mobile: Claude Moore, Jeweler
Montgomery: Bromberg's
Opelika: La Mont Jewelers
Talladega: Griffin's Jewelry
Talladega: Raff's Jewelers
Tuscaloosa: Fincher & Ozment, Jewelers

ARKANSAS
Camden: Stinson's Jewelers
Crossett: Elliott's Jewelers
El Dorado: Elliott's Jewelers
Fayetteville: Underwood's College Jlrs.
Fort Smith: Miller's Jewelers
Hot Springs: DeCoursey Jewelers
Jonesboro: Purvis Jewelers
Stuttgart: Floyd A. Denman

FLORIDA
Brooksville: A. G. Fridy Jewelers
Clearwater: Trickels Jewelers
Coral Gables: Carroll's Jewelers
Daytona Beach: Wm. A. Ritzi & Sons
Fort Lauderdale: Carroll's Jewelers
Fort Myers: Fishel & Dowdy Jewelers
Fort Pierce: Charles G. Rhoads & Son Inc.
Fort Walton Beach: Ratcliff Jewelers
Gainesville: Robertson Jewelers
Hialeah: Major's Jlrs. & Silversmiths
Hialeah: Snow's Jewelers
Hollywood: Major's Jlrs. & Silversmiths
Jacksonville: Underwood Jewelers Inc.— 3 Stores
Kendall: Major's Jlrs. & Silversmiths
Lakeland: John I. Larsen Jlr.
Miami: Major's Jlrs. & Silversmiths
Mulberry: Mulberry Jewelers
No. Miami: Farr Jewelers
North Miami Beach: Major's Jlrs. & Silversmiths
Ocala: Gause & Son
Orlando: Ray-Mears Jewelers
Panama City: Cogburn's Jewelers
Pensacola: Elebash Jewelry
Perry: Wells Jewelers
Plant City: Crescent Jewelers
Rockledge Cocoa: Lawton & Co. Jewelers
St. Augustine: Moeller's Jewel Shop
St. Petersburg: Bruce Watters Inc. —2 Stores
Tallahassee: Putnam Jewelers
Tampa: Adams-Magnon Jewelers
Tampa: Yates Jewelers, Inc.
West Palm Beach: Gillespie Jewelers
Winter Haven: City Jewelers
Winter Park: J. Calvin May Jewelers

GEORGIA
Athens: Foster's Jewelers Inc.
Atlanta: Maier & Berkele Inc.
College Park: Travis M. Harbin, Jeweler
Columbus: Kirven's Fine Jewelry
Decatur: Maier & Berkele Inc.
Gainesville: Mintz Jewelers
Gordon: Dennis Jewelery Co.
Macon: Kernaghan Inc. Jewelers
Moultrie: Cranford Jewelers
Rossville: Rossville Jly. Co.
Savannah: Desbouillons—2 Stores
Savannah: Levy Jewelers—2 Stores
Valdosta: Girardin Jewelers
Waycross: James E. Hart Jlrs.

INDIANA
New Albany: Ray's Jewelry

KENTUCKY
Bowling Green: Howard Jewelers
Covington: Motch Jewelers
Hopkinsville: Joy's Jewelers
Lexington: Victor Bogaert Co.
Louisville: Lemon & Son, Jewelers
Richmond: McCord Jewelry

LOUISIANA
Alexandria: Schnack's
Bogalusa: Gayles Jewelers
Breaux Bridge: Robert's Jewelry
Covington: Tim Wilson Jewelers
De Quincy: E. W. Rodgers Jewelry Co.
Houma: Weyl's Jewelry Store
Lafayette: Paul's Jewelry Store
Metairie: Aucoin-Hart Jewelry Co.
New Iberia: Pfister Jewelry Co., Inc.
New Orleans: Antin's Jewelers—2 Stores
Opelousas: Mornhiveg & Castille
Ruston: Grigsby's Jewelers
Shreveport: McCary's Shreve City Jlrs.
Shreveport: McCary Jewelers-Downtown

MARYLAND
Chevy Chase: R. Harris and Company
Wheaton: Winthrop Jewelers

MISSISSIPPI
Biloxi: Elliott Jewelry Co.
Corinth: Waits Jewelry Store
Grenada: Stoker Jewelry
Hattiesburg: Parris Jewelers
Hattiesburg: Rollings Jewelry Company
Jackson: Strauss-Stallings Jewelers
McComb: Hainer Jewelers
Meridan: Rose Jewelery
Oxford: Crouch Jewelers
Pascagoula: Felts Jewelers
Vicksburg: Strauss-Stalling Co.
West Point: Rowell Jewelers

NORTH CAROLINA
Albemarle: Starnes Jewelry Store
Asheville: Lee's Jewelers
Asheville: Gordon's Jewelers
Canton: Gordon's Jewelers
Chapel Hill: Wentworth & Sloan
Charlotte: Fields Jewelers, Inc.

NORTH CAROLINA
Durham: Jones & Frasier—2 Stores
Fayetteville: Hatcher's Jewelers
Gastonia: Morris Jewelers
Goldsboro: Garris Jewelers
Greensboro: Schiffman Jewelry Co.
Hendersonville: Gordon's Jewelers
High Point: Perkinson's Jewelry Co.
Kings Mountain: Dellinger's Jewel Shop, Inc.
Lumberton: A. J. Holmes, Jeweler
Morganton: Gregory Jewelers
Raleigh: Johnson's Jewelers
Raleigh: Jolly's Jewelers—2 Stores
Reidsville: Mace's Jewelry—Gifts
Rocky Mount: Gehman's Jewelry Store
Salisbury: Bishop C. Leonard, Jewelers
Sanford: Wagoner's Jewelers
Southern Pines: Perkinson's Inc.
Wilson: Churchwell's Inc.
Winston-Salem: McPhails Inc.

OHIO
Cincinnati: Herschede Jewelers—4 Stores

OKLAHOMA
Bartlesville: Josef Derryberry Jewelers
Idabel: Anderson's Jewelry
Enid: Morgan's Diamond Shop
Miami: Williams Jewelry
Oklahoma City: B. C. Clark, Jewelers
Oklahoma City: B. C. Clark, Mayfair Inc.
Shawnee: Sperry's Jewelers

SOUTH CAROLINA
Anderson: Cochran Jewelry Co.
Charleston: Hamilton Jewelers
Charleston: Charles Kerrison, Jewelers
Columbia: Gudmundson and Buyck
Greenville: Cochran Jewelry Co.
Orangeburg: Cleo's Jewelry and Gifts
Summerville: Dorchester Jewelers

TENNESSEE
Chattanooga: Fischer-Evans
Clarksville: Joy's Jewelers
Dyersburg: Lewis Jewelers
Johnson City: Beckners Jewelry
Knoxville: Kimball's
Lawrenceburg: Downey & Jones
Lebanon: McGee-Jennings
Lewisburg: Downey & Jones
Memphis: Graves—Steuwer
Murfreesboro: Aultman Jewelers
Murfreesboro: Bell Jewelers
Nashville: George T. Brodnax— Green Hills Village & Madison Square
Nashville: Phil Brodnax—6th Avenue
Oak Ridge: Kimball's
Pulaski: Rost Jewelers
Shelbyville: Henning Jewelers
South Pittsburg: Hall Jewelers
Springfield: Downey & Jones
Tullahoma: Henning Jewelers

TEXAS
Amarillo: Wagner's Jewelers— Downtown and Suburban
Austin: Joe Koen & Son
Bryan: Caldwell Jewelers
Commerce: Bilnick Jewelers
Corpus Christi: Roberts Jewelers
Corpus Christi: Taylor Brothers
Dallas: Owens Bros. Jewelers
El Paso: Holdsworth Jeweler
El Paso: Sheldon Jewelry
Fort Worth: Haltom's Jewelers
Galveston: Isenberg's Jewelry Stores— Downtown—Medical Center
Garland: Oglesby Jewelry & Gifts— Ridge Wood Shopping Center Garland Shopping Center
Hereford: Cowan Jewelry
Houston: Billings Jewelry—2 Stores
Houston: Walzel Jewelry—2 Stores
Killeen: Keen's Jewelers
Longview: Bennett's McCarley's
Lubbock: Anderson Bros.—Downtown & Monterey Center
Mason: Petermann Jewelers
McAllen: Jones Jewelry
Pasadena: Michaels Jewelry
Port Arthur: Turnbull's Jewelry
San Antonio: Leopold Jewelers
San Antonio: Shaw's—Downtown, Gunter Hotel, Suburban Wonderland Shopping City
Temple: L. S. James Jeweler
Waco: Armstrong Jewelers

VIRGINIA
Clifton Forge: Hodges Jewelry Store
Covington: Hodges Jewelry Store
Danville: Hodnett & Speer Co.
Falls Church: Winthrop Jewelers
Fredericksburg: Crown Jewelers
Lynchburg: Phillips Bros. Jewelers
Marion: Jack C. Hudson, Your Jeweler
Norfolk: D. P. Paul Co.
Pulaski: Crown Jewelers
Richmond: Schwarzschild Bros.
Roanoke: George T. Hitch, Jeweler
South Boston: A. R. Via & Bro.
Staunton: H. L. Lang & Co., Jewelers
Suffolk: Brewer Jewelry Co. Inc.
Waynesboro: Hodges Jewelry Store
Wytheville: Crown Jewelers

WASHINGTON, D.C.
Washington: Farr's Jewelers
Washington, D.C.: R. Harris and Company Downtown, Georgetown & Chevy Chase
Washington: Chas. Schwartz & Son

WEST VIRGINIA
Charleston: Galperin Jewelry Co.
Huntington: Rogers & Company
Morgantown: Robert A. Yagle, Jewelers
Wheeling: Posins Jewelers

SOLD BY FINE JEWELERS THROUGHOUT AMERICA

USE CHRISTMAS SEALS

FIGHT TUBERCULOSIS

BEAT DOOK WEEKEND
Free Flicks
Friday night, 7:30, 9
Sat. Night, 7:30, 9
Mukkinese Battledown
Room Service

TOP COAT SEASON
IS HERE

Top your favorite suit or sport coat in a masculine Cheviot Tweed from our wide selection.

These coats are fully lined for extra warmth.

Pick your color from greys, browns, blues & heather shades.

and at reasonable prices

Varsity
Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin

A Carolina Gentleman cannot afford not to make THE HUB his first port of call in preparing himself for "Dook." An experienced and courteous sales staff, with years of experience in the natural shoulder look which has made us a fashion leader in the South, is ready and anxious to assist you in stocking your fall wardrobe from our tasteful collection of:

SUITS: In the inimitable natural shoulder that has made The Hub a leader. In plaids, herringbones, solids and stripes. Vests available . . . from 59.95

SPORT COATS: In the most colorful plaids, handsome stripes, and tweediest tweeds. . . . . from 29.95

SWEATERS: Cardigans and V-necks in a pleasing array of colors and sizes. . . . . from 12.95

TROUSERS: A guaranteed match for any coat or sweater in the store, including plaids and houndstooth checks. . . . . from 10.95

AND: An assortment of topcoats, shirts, ties, belts and other wardrobe accessories.

THE HUB
OF CHAPEL HILL

Bob Bennett Feels His Time Is Here

By SANDY TREADWELL
DTH Sports Writer

Bob Bennett had a frustrating job for the last two years of his basketball career. He's had to sit on benches and watch All America Billy Cunningham play center for North Carolina.

Now Cunningham has earned a starting job with the Philadelphia 76ers and draws high praise from people like Wilt Chamberlain.

And now Bob Bennett is this year's version of the big man on UNC's starting five.

"I don't think there's any pressure on me," Bennett said. "For the first time since I've been here Carolina has a five man basketball team. Cunningham was one half or even three quarters of the Tar Heels last year. I'm just one out of five.

"We're a much better team this year. Except for Bob Lewis there are no outstanding individuals and no All Americas. But Bobby's quite an exception."

Beginning next month Bennett will finally get his long awaited start. He's won it with a lot of enthusiasm and a lot of hustle.

Last season number 32 played center and loped lazily around and set everybody on their ear. This season the Tar Heels have a center with a dark crew cut who measures 6-8. He is no Cunningham but he is a hustler.

TODAY - TUESDAY

Short, the internationally famed "Night and Fog" by Alain Resnais
Daily at 1:30 — 3:23 — 5:16 — 7:10 & 9:04
RIALTO, DURHAM

GANT
SHIRTMAKERS

Straight-Flare™

A handsome Gant shirt for dress-up wear. Its point of difference: the straight collar can be flared to your liking. Added nicety: fitted contour back for trim, tailored fit around shoulders and back. The fabric: a luxuriant-soft broadcloth in navy, burgundy or green stripings.

Town & Campus

Sport Shorts

Scuttlebutt has it that North Carolina will play only five conference football games next fall. Duke also will play only five league foes and South Carolina has scheduled only four.

To be eligible for the conference championship a team must play at least six ACC games.

If say, Maryland and Clemson also drop below the six game minimum wouldn't it be possible for Wake Forest to win the crown — by default?

South Carolina is one of the two conference teams which will not appear on the Tar Heel schedule for next fall.

* * *

Workmen have moved some of the parts for the 1,800 bleacher seats into Carmichael Auditorium A.D. Chuck Erickson said that two work crews will be assigned the job of putting them up so that the job will be finished prior to December 1.

Total cost of the aluminum-type seats — in excess of $40,000.

Students going to the Duke game will be allowed inside the gates after 11 a.m. Four lanes for students will be open at the east side gate booths.
—PAT STITH

USE CHRISTMAS SEALS

FIGHT TUBERCULOSIS
and other
Respiratory Diseases

We Have a Suit for Every College Man

No matter what your clothing budget is, we have a suit in excellent traditional taste to fit your pocketbook.

Our fine quality suits start with Cricketeer at 59.95.

Varsity
Men's Wear
147 E. Franklin St.
Clothiers of Distinction

Smith Will Have Closed Practice

By WAYNE HURDER
DTH Sports Writer

Carolina basketball fans who like to watch Dean Smith's hoop men practice found themselves locked out of Carmichael Auditorium last night.

Yesterday's varsity - freshmen scrimmage was closed to the public. In the future Smith plans to close more of his practices.

Smith has announced that practice sessions will be held in private a couple of times a week so that he can have a better teaching atmosphere.

"When it's necessary to criticize we won't have to go clear across the court to talk to the person," he explained.

Smith thinks the Tar Heels may have been injured in the past by opening their practices to the public, but he doesn't think it has made a big difference in the won-lost column.

"Having open sessions has possibly hurt us in the teaching aspect where you can't criticize in front of people for fear it would embarass the players," Smith said, "but I couldn't say it has meant losing a game."

Another reason he cited for closed practices was the people get the wrong impression of the relationship between the players.

He had two reasons for keeping Carmichael open. The first was that it allowed interested people to watch the team, and secondly, it gave the players a chance to play under game conditions.

As a rule about a hundred students and town's people usually drop in to watch the five to seven sessions even though they are timed to correspond to the supper hours.

ONE IN TEN

The North Carolina Heart Association estimates that, over a ten-year period, one family in every ten in the state will be faced with the task of caring for a stroke sufferer.

The Country Squire

"Home of the 72-oz. Steak"
WE WILL BE OPEN FOR A THANKSGIVING BUFFET
Lunch
Weekdays 12:00-2:00
Sunday 12:00-2:30
Dinner
6 days a Week 5:00-10:30
SPECIALIZING IN CHARCOAL STEAKS
Phone: Chapel Hill 929-3400 Durham 489-9768
CHAPEL HILL - DURHAM BLVD.

Everett Over Stacy, 21-0

The Everett Trojans defeated the Stacy Studs, 20-6, in tag football on Thursday and advanced in their Residence College tournament. Shep Murray, Van Smith and John McCorkle did the scoring for Everett while Dick Frank had Stacy's only touchdown.

Maverick C-2 mopped up on Maverick A-1, 38-2. Maverick C-2 piled up 36 points in the first half and coasted to the victory. Larry Poe had two scores and Mike Lombardo, Ozie Faison and Teddy O'Toole had one each.

Sig Ep advanced in the fraternity playoffs by nudging Phi Delt White in overtime, 7-6. Don Leslie had put the Phi Delts in front with a first-half score, but Sig Ep tied it in the second half on a TD by Wayne Dail.

Zete I got a sterling performance from Lanny Harer in knocking the Pi Kap Phi Dwarfs out of the tournament, 21-0. Harer had three TD's.

BEAT DOOK WEEKEND
Nancy Rhoades
LOUIS ARMSTRONG
THE SUPREMES
All brought to you by G.M.

USE CHRISTMAS SEALS
FIGHT TUBERCULOSIS

A Wide Selection
Individual Terms
T. L. KEMP
Jewelry
135 East Franklin
942-2331

BEAT DOOK WEEKEND

Friday Night
RENDEZVOUS ROOM 8 P.M.
NANCY RHOADES
Folksinging followed by Discotheque
(Couples Only)

Saturday Night
LOUIS ARMSTRONG
and His All-Stars
CARMICHAEL 8 P.M.
Get Tickets NOW!

Sunday Afternoon
THE SUPREMES
with the Lovin' Spoonful
CARMICHAEL 1:30 p.m.

Brought to you by GM

Faultless classic for any Hampton, the Northampton shetland coat. Seamed front and back; tailored with infinite care—even to that John Meyer nicety, the gentle, unbulky collar that rests so lightly on the neck. Lined and interlined. In authentic Scottish shades of blueberry, redberry, glen green and peat brown.

Town & Campus

YOU ARE INVITED
SIX MORE FANTASTIC HOURS
DOORS OPEN 6 P.M. SHARP
TONITE
FRIDAY, NOV. 19th
CLOSE AT 12 A.M. MIDNITE
100% ALL RECORDS
MONO & STEREO
1/2 PRICE
SALE
ALL LABELS
NEW STOCKS HAVE ARRIVED IN QUANTITY
KEMP'S RECORDS, CHAPEL HILL, N. C.
I know you loved the last one – so, bring more money and all of your FRIENDS and have more for your money once again – TONITE!

U. of N. Library
Serial Dept.
Box 870

Big Weekend

Remember — tonight's when Louis Armstrong visits Carmichael Auditorium. The time is 8 p.m., and the tickets cost $1 for UNC students and $1.50 for general admission. Get 'em at Graham Memorial or at the door.

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Vol. 74, No. 58 | CHAPEL HILL NORTH CAROLINA SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1965 | Founded February 23, 1893

Free Flick

Tonight's free flick is a double feature. The first is "Room Service," starring the Marx Brothers. The second, "Mukkinese Battle Horn," stars Peter Sellers.

Heels Invade Duke

Sen. Morgan Claims UNC Profs Support Gag Law

By DAVID ROTHMAN
DTH Staff Writer

State Senator Robert Morgan said Thursday he has received "letters from several distinguished UNC professors who support the speaker ban."

He would not disclose their names.

The Harnett County legislator also told the UNC Young Democratic Club he favors a new bond issue to finance enlarged physical facilities in state-supported colleges.

He said the Paul Dickson honor Code violation and the lewd movies in Morrison Residence Hall did not influence the legislature "in any way" when it considered the speaker ban's repeal.

The State Senate's President Pro Tem said he doesn't oppose aetheists speaking on campus—"I believe a man has a right to believe or not to believe."

During the special session of the legislature, he had advocated having the presidents of all tax-supported universities submit monthly reports on visiting speakers.

Thursday he again said the people have lost confidence in the University trustees' ability to determine who should speak here.

"When two of the most prominent men in the Senate, who are also trustees, tell me they were not aware that Communist speakers had ever been invited to speak on our university campuses, then I don't believe that to be the case," Morgan said.

"I don't think the Communists represent just another party," he stated. "I think it is an international conspiracy. And I don't think they are entitled to the protection of the First Amendment."

Morgan mentioned his opposition to President Johnson's voting rights bill and the plan to correct alleged injustice by Southern juries.

"I have never known of a Negro denied voting rights in my county," he told the YDC members.

Much of his talk was devoted to blasting the Republican Party. "I challenge you to point out one program initiated by the Republican Party that has benefited the people as a whole," Morgan declared.

He said he wanted the federal government "to operate within the framework of the Constitution," but added that this should not rule out "measures necessary to the welfare of the people."

Among these measures, he claimed, were:

—The Kerr-Mills Medicare Bill.

—Rural electrification.

—Social Security.

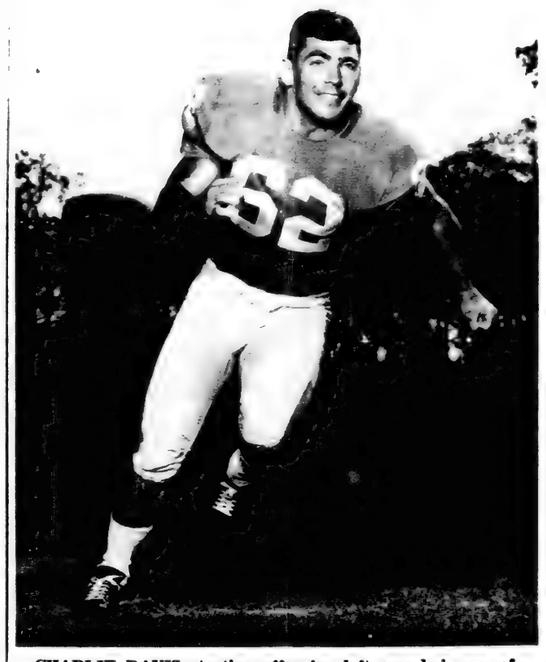
He said many Republicans opposed the second two items when they became law in the 1930's but had now changed their minds.

Morgan praised:

—North Carolina's public colleges and universities.

—Its mental hospitals — "among the best in the nation."

—Its highway program.



CHARLIE DAVIS starting offensive left guard, is one of the several Tar Heel players struck by a virus. Despite the sickness, Davis is expected to play.

Virus Hits Carolina Team On Eve Of Season Finale

By PAT STITH
DTH Sports Editor

North Carolina, hit by a virus which may have infected as many as half the members of its first three teams, will be a solid one touchdown underdog when it meets arch-rival Duke at Durham today. Kickoff is at 2 p.m.

A dozen Carolina players, six of whom are reported to have been first team players, had been admitted to the University infirmary by 3:15 yesterday. All suffered from acute gastroenteritis — an infection of the intestinal track.

UNC team physician Dr. Joseph L. DeWalt said he ordered the players admitted to the infirmary not only for treatment but to prevent the spread of the disease to other members of the squad. The players were isolated in the infirmary.

Dr. DeWalt said that he expected all 12 would be ready to play today, although they might be weak. Coach Jim Hickey said that he did not believe that the mass illness would have "any bearing on the outcome of the game."

The normal recovery period for gastroenteritis is 18-24 hours. Dr. DeWalt said he was not worried as much about the 12 who reported to the infirmary yesterday as he was about others of the team who might come in during the night.

The Associated Press identified ten of the 12 players in the infirmary as tackle Henry Sadler; defensive halfbacks Gene Link and Bill Edwards, guards Charlie Davis and Butch Clayton, backs, Bob Hume and Charlie Ephland, offensive end Charlie Carr and defensive end Steve Lister and linebacker Jay Malobicky.

Sadler, Link, Davis, Hume, Malobicky and Edwards are all starters.

A full house of some 45,000 will jam Duke Stadium for the 52nd blood - letting between these two old-time rivals. Some 3,800 of that number will be Carolina students — more bought tickets to this away Duke game than ever before.

Duke Coach Bill Murray had beaten UNC seven out of eight when Hickey took the reins at Carolina in 1959. Since then the Tar Heels have won four of six.

Both Carolina losses to Duke during those half dozen years were by three points or less — 16-14 in 1962 and 6-3 in 1961. Hickey's wins have been by 50-0 in 1959, 7-6 in 1960, 16-14 in 1963 and 21-15 last fall.

Top individual performers for Duke will be sophomore fullback Jay Calabrese and halfback Frank Ryan. Calabrese, whose effectiveness has been lessened by his tendency, to fumble (he owns the Duke record of four in one game), has gained 623 yards in 141 carried.

North Carolina will counter wit hthe ACC's number two total ground gainer and one of the highest scorers in the school's football history in quarterback Danny Talbott.

On defense for Carolina keep your eye on tackle Henry Sadler, ends Bo Wood and Jim Masino and middle guard Joe Fratangelo.

Boggs Here Monday Nite

Hale Boggs, U. S. Congressman from Louisiana and Majority Whip for the U. S. House of Representatives, will speak on "The Future of Southern Politics" at 8 p.m. Monday in Carroll Hall.

The address is sponsored by the Carolina Forum, a Student Government committee.

Boggs, who represents Louisiana's second district, is a member of the House Ways and Means Committee, the Joint Economic Committee, the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation and is chairman of the Subcommittee on Foreign Economic Policy.

He is currently serving as Vice Chairman of the Democratic National Committee and has served as a member of the President's Commission on the Assassination of President Kennedy.

A Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Tulane University, Boggs was elected as the youngest member of the 77th Congress in 1940 after gaining fame as a foe of the corrupt heirs of former Louisiana governor and U. S. senator Huey Long.

He was defeated for re-election in 1942, but conducted a successful campaign in 1946 after serving as an officer in the U. S. Navy during World War Two.

Chi Psi Tops 'Beat Dook' Parade

By DAVID ROTHMAN
DTH Staff Writer

Rameses VIII got his revenge at yesterday's big parade when he was shown atop the Chi Psi float busily spraying a blue insect buzzing around a model of Duke's chapel.

Five thousand persons watched this display win the award for the best overall "Beat Dook" float.

And if that didn't satisfy the Ram's friends, there was more.

Maverick House, chosen for the best men's dorm, float paraded through town a gigantic tissue - paper ram who knocked down Maverick maids dressed as Blue Devils.

The boys also towed a big volcano labeled "Carolina Eruption." The Devils, of course, were being washed into the lava.

Jean Jones was crowned the "Beat Dook" Queen. Her court consisted of Zacki Murphy, Lisa Robb, Patti Fields and Karen Gibbon.

SAE won the award for the best fraternity, ADPi the honors for the best sorority and Nurses won the award for the best women's dorm.

All along the parade route, the nurses injected a mysterious vaccine into an exhibit tagged "Victory." It was a big needle.

The parade also featured a little Negro boy with a Confederate flag roller skating behind a "Beat Dook" sign carried by KA fraternity members.

There was also a wrecking truck towing a bunch of Blue Devils behind it.

And then came two blue - shirted Carolina Gentlemen dragging a gigantic knife and piece of bread through town labeled "Spread Duke." It remained to see if the enemy would melt like butter.

There was also a new version of the much-discussed "Blue Wave" — which was crushing a surfer posing as a Blue Devil.

And spectators morbidly chuckled when they saw a black coffin lettered: "Kill 'em dead," part of the Chi Psi float.

Meanwhile, a small band played tunes from "Goldfinger" while a machine gun rattled in the background.

Another float showed a Blue Devil being furiously scrubbed with soap. Its sign read: "Duke — SPU-K."

ROTC units chanted "Beat Dook" (at least, they meant to spell it that way).

A jazzed up fire engine reached Franklin St. after a trip through the UNC campus.

Squealing children chased after lollipops thrown from one of the exhibits.

Bystanders wondered whether that motor cycle really burned up in front of Morehead Planetarium. But there was actually a real fire.

The parade travelled from Woollen Gym up Raleigh St. to Franklin through town to Columbia St., down Columbia to Cameron Ave. and through mid-campus.

It disbanded after passing South Building.

SL Asks Student Support Of Thanksgiving Message

Student Legislature unanimously passed a resolution Thursday night which urged students to support the Thanksgiving Day message to U. S. servicemen stationed in Viet Nam.

The message, which was circulated by an independent committee of concerned students, had collected a total of nearly 4,600 signatures by Friday afternoon.

Supporters of the message expect over 5,000 names will be collected by this afternoon.

The names of students who signed the message will be typed on a continuous roll of paper tomorrow and sent with the greeting to Gen. William Westmoreland, U. S. commander in Viet Nam.

A copy of the resolution will be sent by the legislature to Westmoreland.

"The Viet Nam defenders should know of the gratitude the UNC students feel for the hardships they are enduring for our sake," the resolution reads in part.

Bill Purdy (UP) introduced the resolution and University Party Floor Leader George Ingram called for unanimous consent.

Legislature passed a bill appropriating $1,000 annually to Student Government for the establishment of an Excellence in Teaching Award.

Ingram attempted to amend the bill to cut the stipulation to $500, but his amendment was defeated.

The body passed legislation appropriating $6,000 to the Carolina Symposium and $2,-267 to the State Affairs Committee for radio programs about the University.

A bill correcting the General Elections Law concerning recall petitions and petitions of initiative and review was passed after lengthy debate.

Rameses Still Missing; Duke Is Looking, Too

Rameses remained among the missing yesterday, but Duke's Dean of Men Robert Cox said they were still checking into the matter.

"We have tried and tried, but we have failed," he said.

Cox said student leaders have assured him that they are doing everything possible.

"We are going to be sure that Rameses isn't brought onto the field by Duke students," Cox said. "We will keep checking and if we find him we will turn him over to Carolina students and have them take Ramese to the game."

"We don't want a bloody mess," he said.

Cox said Rameses, who was heisted last Thursday from Hogan's Farm, had originally been kept at the home of an alumnus.

"Students seem to think that alumnus found out that UNC officials were planning to come over and pick up the ram, so they stole him again and hid him somewhere else," Cox said.

"You know, sometimes alumnus can be a lot more trouble than students."

According to Cox, Duke Police picked up several Carolina students Thursday night who were "hanging around some of the buildings and the statue of Duke."

"I sure wish old Rameses was back over grazing at Mr. Hogan's farm," he sighed.

Lefler Elected

The Southern Historical Association Wednesday elected UNC Prof. Hugh T. Lefler president at the Association's meeting in Richmond, Va.

Infirmary Asks Students To Get Vaccinations Now

Dr. E. McG. Hedgpeth, director of the UNC Health Service, announced yesterday that influenza vaccine is available at a cost of $1 for any student.

Students can get the vaccine from 9-11:30 a.m. Monday through Friday at the infirmary.

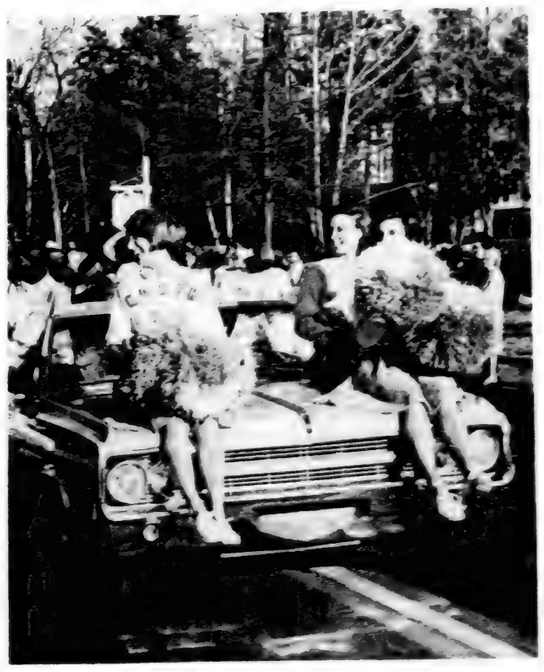
Dr. Hedgpeth urged all students to take advantage of the low-cost shots, because they do little good after an influenza epidemic sets in.

"Since the time lapse required between the injection and the development of immunity is significantly long, to wait and request the vaccine (when) the prevalence of influenza is high defeats the whole purpose of taking the vaccine," he said.

"We have an adequate supply of vaccine, and I would like to urge students to avail themselves of this opportunity before the Thanksgiving Holidays and immediately thereafter so that they will have time to derive the desired benefit," Dr. Hedgpeth said.

A Queen Was Chosen . . .

Mayonnaise Spread . . .



And Cheerleaders Led —

The Beat Duke Parade

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of the Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. Letters and columns, covering a wide range of views, reflect the personal opinions of their authors.
ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

Keeping It In The Family

Everybody says he can't be serious, but you never can tell about ol' George Wallace. He's pretty set about wanting to stay in the Alabama governor's mansion, even though he cannot run for another term.

He tried to get the state constitution amended so he could succeed himself, but that didn't work.

Not one to be overcome, Wallace is trying to skirt the obstacles by running his wife Lurleen for the office.

Apparently the reasoning is that the next best thing to a Wallace in office is a Mrs. Wallace. There is also an inherent assumption that Wallace would still be in charge of the state government as sort of an ex officio executive — just keeping it in the family, so to speak.

The only trouble is that nobody knows for sure just what a woman would do once she got all that power and it legally belonged just to her.

But the most crucial problem, should she run and be elected, is this: What would you call her — Governor Mrs. Wallace, Mrs. Governor Wallace, Governoress Wallace or Lurleen?

Send Us Your Gripes

A perennial — and justified — gripe among off-campus students is that they have a hard time finding copies of The Daily Tar Heel. There are always some who will call such a situation a real blessing to those who are DTH-less, but nevertheless our purpose is to make the papers as accessible as possible.

Each morning the Bell Tower parking lot is filled with cars of commuting students, so the DTH has placed a large mailbox near the lot entrance. Circulation Manager John Evans will leave 200 papers there each morning for students who have no other place to pick them up. The number of copies may be increased if necessary.

To the best of our knowledge the DTH has satisfied every circulation complaint received this semester, but sometimes things go wrong. So, for the sake of service and efficiency, we request that you report your gripes — preferably in writing — so they can be remedied.

Those Designing Designers

You have to give those fashion designers credit. First they make those thigh-high skirts that are so popular in England. The thigh-highest of them end six to eight inches above the knee.

Obviously it gets cold in England during the winter and obviously the girls are going to feel the effects of low temperature on all that bare skin.

So now they are selling fur knee warmers to keep those exposed areas free of frostbite.

It is all clear now. The whole thing has been a plot right from the start. They make dresses out of half the material they used before and charge more than ever for them. At the same time they create an extra expense by making the knee-covering accessory a necessity.

Economists worry about Britain's financial security, but we have no fear. So long as it has the Beatles and shrewd dress designers, England will not go on the rocks.

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; John Jennrich, associate editor; Barry Jacobs, managing editor; Fred Thomas, news editor, Pat Stith, sports editor; Gene Rector, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; John Greenbacker, political writer; Ed Freakley, Andy Myers, Lynne Harvel, Lynne Sizemore, David Rothman, Ray Linville, staff writers; Jack Harrington, bus. mgr.; Tom Clark, asst. bus. mgr.; Woody Sobol. ad. mgr.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all ap news dispatches.

"I Didn't Really Want To See The Game Anyway"

Ruark Was One Of Few Rugged, Colorful Writers

By WILSON CLARK, Jr.

Thirty years ago this past June marked the passage of another commencement program at the University of North Carolina. For two young voyageurs, the transition from the groves of Academe to the outside world was further heightened by the successful completion of a rather ingenious plot, designed to relieve much of the tedium of the ceremony in Kenan Stadium. These two gentlemen endured the graduation message of Eleanor Roosevelt with the help of periodic samplings from a crock of redeye neatly concealed under their tier of seats, facilitated by two rubber hoses (compliments of the chemistry department) leading from the source up under their gowns, for casual, but nonetheless frequent draughts of that delightful beverage.

Although the identity of his compatriot is left to conjecture, the devious mind behind this maneuver was none other than that of Robert Ruark.

One of the few really colorful, and unabashedly rugged American writers of this century, Ruark will long be remembered by those fortunate individuals who not only read The Old Man and The Boy, but grew up experiencing the Boy's kind of life. Ruark's characters evolved from the rough-hewn simplicity of the Boy (alias Craig Price, in Poor No More), to the African hunters, Brian Dermott and Peter McKenzie, and finally, the mere shell of a man, Alec Barr, in RR's posthumous The Honey Badger.

His books are somehow indicative of Ruark's own life, which began quite humbly in Southport, N. C. As he states in the introduction to The Old Man and The Boy, "Anybody who reads this book is bound to realize that I had a real fine time as a kid," which is hardly an understatement. What more does a boy need than a single barrel shotgun and a pocketful of shells, a good dog and an understanding teacher to guide him through the pitfalls and cheer him from the side?

Robert Ruark never even pretended to be a great writer, but it's more than coincidental that his books have consistently appeared in the best seller columns. As Playboy magazine stated in a review of The Honey Badger, "The caretakers of American 'letters' were scarcely broken up when Robert Ruark died last June at the age of 49." Playboy, however, termed Ruark "one of the most glittering, go-get-em storytellers of recent years."

He raced through life burning both ends of the candle, and I have a sneaking suspicion he figured out a way to fire still a third. The sage lessons of The Old Man lingered on, despite the meteoric circumstances of Ruark's own life. Whether his subject was hunitng Mau-Maus in Kenya's N.F.D. or bluefishing off Cape Fear's razor-edge shoals, he blazed a bright and memorable path.

Many years before, when the Old Man knew his days were numbered, he made a solemn promise to the Boy, who worshipped him with pure adulation. They were just coming back from a trip to Baltimore, more business than pleasure, for this was when the Old Man found out for sure that the end was near. As the two approached their old hunting grounds on the southward journey, the Old Man systematically halted the Model T before each creek, which revoked many a happy memory. The old Man knew these glances were to be his last.

When they reached Southport, he escorted the Boy through the town square, finally seating him for the ominous words. The tears were already welling up in the Boy's eyes, as he had easily predicted what was to come. The Old Man surprised him, though, with these words; "I promise you, on my word of honor, I won't die on the opening day of the bird season."

The Old Man kept his promise.

Robert Ruark couldn't.

Letters To The Editor

Viet Nam And Sex On The Campus

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

If this letter by chance gets printed your first impression of me — being that of a college student — will be, "Does this jarhead with only a high school education think that he can make me approve of the war in Viet Nam?" Well, that's just what I plan to do and if I can get a few persons to change their minds about the war then I have accomplished my mission.

When I first came to Viet Nam I was against this war also but it didn't take me long to change my mind. One day, when I first got here, a few of the men in our squadron and myself went swimming at Da Nang beach. While there a Vietnamese soldier came up and sat down next to me. After a few minutes he said to me, "Why do the American soldiers come to South Viet Nam and fight for my countrymen?"

I had to stop and think to myself — why am I in South Viet Nam? It was as plain as day why I was over here but I was too thick-headed to see it. I answered him by saying, "You and your countrymen are human beings like me and you have the right to be free. You have the right to go where you want to go, you have the right to do what you want to do, and, most important, you have the right to believe what you want to believe. And we are here to help you fight for these rights."

Then he stood up, shook my hand and said, "Thank you very much, this is number one (meaning that this is good)."

F-R-E-E-D-O-M, It's a small word with only seven letters but it has a very big meaning to the people in the Republic of South Viet Nam.

I would like to end this letter by saying that the next time you feel like demonstrating against the war in Viet Nam, remember one thing: you are free to voice your opinion. If the American troops get out of South Viet Nam now these people will never be free. And don't forget that they are human beings like you and me.

Thomas A. Miller
Cpl. USMC
FPO San Francisco

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Michaux's masterpiece of pro-American, we-can-do-nothing-wrong "gung - hoism" will be first on my list of best-selling toilet paper.

Don't get me wrong, buddy. I'm no bearded "SPU-nik" who parades around in a self-righteous air of body odor. But, I shall always defend their right to make their views known, despite the fact that it only represents a minority opinion. Perhaps you would deny the South's right as a minority during the pre-Civil War days to express their vital concern with the economic ramifications of abolishing slavery. Perhaps, you would deny the right of the minority-opinion speakers in the state as well . . . e.g. speaker ban law.

Your ultra-conservative approach shows the same lack of guts that you attribute to those who do not believe in giving their lives for some damn distant, rice-padded country. Haven't you guts enought to acknowledge the fact that we might just be wrong in our policy in Viet Nam? Or, do you hold to the revered concept of Washington, Jefferson and Roosevelt as political demi-gods?

I wouldn't fight in Viet Nam for the same reasons as Michaux. I wouldn't fight to preserve the new wave of American imperialism and over-concern with the economic-political who-loves-us? rampant in this great world of ours. I would fight to keep from being killed. I would fight to preserve the individual's right to say "no" to some creeping menace, be it over-zealous Americanism or communism.

I would not fight for you, Michaux. "With you", I would, for I cannot help but see the acute stupidity of standing for democratic principles, and then desecrating one of the most essential of them — the freedom to say what you believe in, provided it is not slanderous or libelous.

I might even be persuaded to envisage you in Peking, Michaux. The conformity there is quite nice too.

Josh Carlisle
305 Mangum

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Bill Michaux, in his invitation to Jesus to "entertain the troops" overlooks one difficulty: Patriots would boo the bearded performer off the stage !

Pete Campbell
413 Patterson Place

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

It's beginning to look like Carolina is even more sex-conscious than it appears to people like Jesse Helms.

One of our fellow students, writing as Mario Savio II, encourages us. Of course I am speaking of the widely distributed, wdely read, and widely laughed at two-page diatribe which several days ago decorated Lenoir Hall, among other places.

I think that Gebeaux doesn't quite realize what he's doing with his protest letter; moreover, I think he is not doing it of himself, but more to draw attention away from the fact that what indeed happened was the most petty case of campus politics we've seen at UNC.

While the University Party candidates were speaking downstairs at "Big Mo," these movies strangely appeared, and I am told that Student Party literature was distributed at the showings.

To be sure, whether or not they are "hard-core pornography" remains a judicial matter, and Dean William Long may have been incorrect in that point—nevertheless, if they weren't, they were surely what must have been a long way from Sunday School material to have received such an administrative blast.

Naturally, the residents of Morrison may want to see this type of entertainment, from some basic need, real or imagined, but it would seem that the dorm could arrange a lecturer on the subject who could, after all, after a more college-oriented treatment.

And if they wanted to see a film on the subject, it would seem that the elected officers of Morrison could arrange somewhat more private showings at a more auspicious time and place.

So, on this particular account, three cheers for the boys up in South Building. This is one time that the administrative nose needed to be stuck into student affairs.

James W. Sturges
President, Graham House

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

The most disgusting aspect of the Morrison "skin flick" scandal is the manner in which Don Wilson and other Student Party bosses in the dorm have reacted to their own exposure. Wilson has contracted a severe case of hoof and mouth disease and has used his position in the Morrison Senate to run a slander campaign against Dean Long, Craige, the University Party and anyone else who seemed expedient.

Wilson has desperately tried to convince the Morrison Senate that Craige and the University Party are "just out to get us," and that they are responsible for investigation of the affair, honor council trials and the wide spread publicity. The latest and most vicious rumor is that Dean Long is merely a U.P. "hack", and that Long wanted to forget the entire matter but the U.P. FORCED HIM TO BRING CHARGES.

Let's set the record straight. It was the Student Party which showed the films, not Dean Long, Craige or the University Party. Student Party chairman Frank Hodges was present for the showing as were Don Wilson and Bob Wilson, administrative assistant to student body president Paul Dickson. There were signs which announced that the Student Party was sponsoring "skin flicks" in the eighth floor lounge. Members of the Student Party collected the admission fee and showed the films.

This scandal was broken to the state's news media by a reporter for the Raleigh Times who lives in Chapel Hill. This whole affair has been common knowledge from one end of the campus to the other since Tuesday morning when the investigation began, and the Times reporter would have had to be deaf, dumb and blind not to uncover the story.

With regard to the legislative investigation, it is interesting to note that eight members of Don Wilson's SP caucus voted for the investigation after Wilson had used all his parliamentary and critical skills to block the action. There are many who believe that these eight people represent the responsible half of the SP caucus.

Student Party leaders in Morrison have ruthlessly manipulated the residents of this dorm for their own partisan purpose, with no regard whatever for our well being. That they permitted or encouraged use of these films to detract attention from candidates of another party and enhance their own chances in the election is proof positive of that fact.

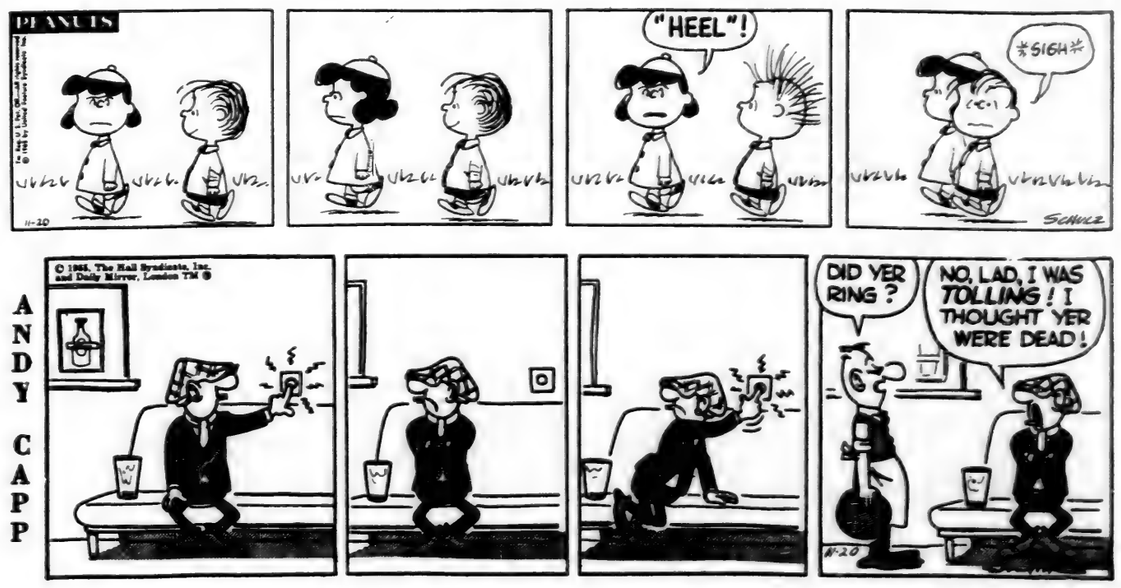
Not only have those responsible for this incident committed a crime punishable by up to two years imprisonment, they have seriously damaged the image and reputation of Morrison and the entire University and have probably jeopardized our chances for an amendment to the speaker ban. But let's put the blame where it belongs, and the blame rests squarely on the heads of the Student Party.

The Student Party machine has become a cancer on the body politic of Morrison College, and it is unlikely that we can be politically healthy and self-respecting again until that cancer is removed.

William Anderson
720 Morrison

LETTERS

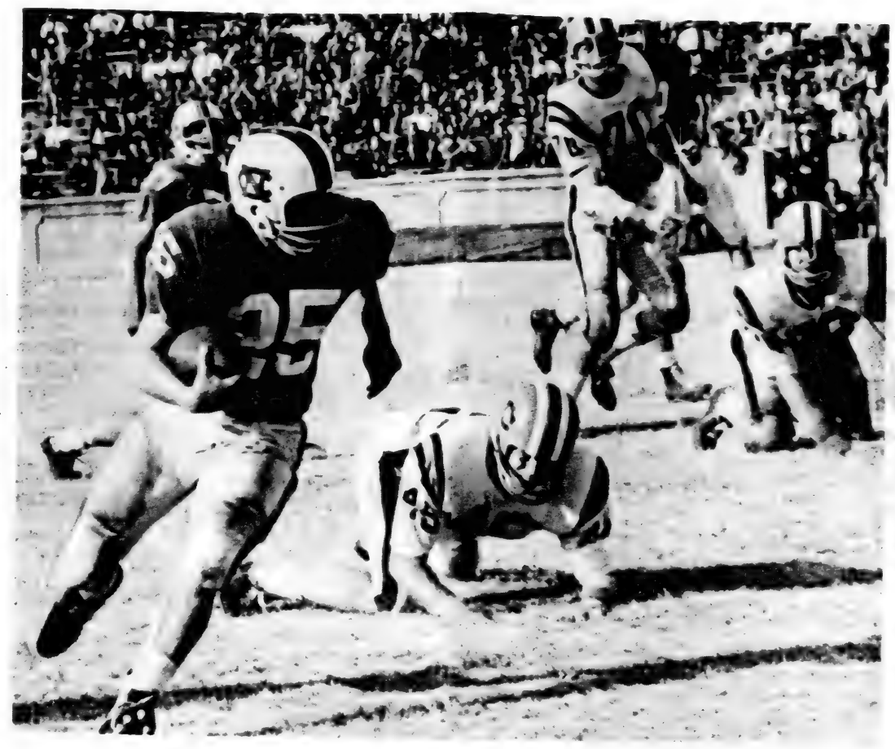
The Daily Tar Heel welcomes letters to the editor on any subject, particularly on matters of local or University interest. Letters must be typed, double spaced and must include the name and address of the author or authors. Names will not be omitted in publication. Letters should be kept as brief as possible. The DTH reserves the right to edit for length or libel.



KTBXQZ PXU DOOK!

Tar Heel Translation:

GO TO...DOOK



OFFENSIVE LINEUPS

DOOK	CAROLINA
SE–Dave Dunaway	LE–George Zadjeika
LT–Don Lynch	LT–Tom Ingle
LG–John McNabb	LG–Charlie Davis
C–Bucky Fondren	C–Ed Stringer
RG–Bob Astley	RG–Billy High
RT–Bill Jones	RT–Chuck Alexander
TE–Mike Swomley	RE–John Atherton
QB–Todd Orvald	QB–Danny Talbott
LH–Frank Ryan	RB–David Riggs
RH–Sonny Odom	WB–Bob Hume
FB–Jay Calabrese	FB–Tom Lampman

STUDENT GATES OPEN 11:00 A.M. 4 LANES FOR STUDENTS AT THE EAST SIDE GATE

STATISTICAL HISTORY OF THE CAROLINA-DOOK GAME

Historical Past

Game dates back to 1888.
This is the 52nd meeting.
DOOK holds 26-22-3 advantage.
This is the Nation's 17th oldest rivalry.
Hickey vs. Dook 4-2.
Murray vs. Carolina 9-5.
Hickey vs. Murray 4-2.
Widest Margin of Victory belongs to UNC.
UNC 50 — DOOK 0 1959

FOR PREDICTION OF TODAY'S MASSACRE
see
FAUNTLEROY
Page 4
Last year's game provided the largest victory margin in 6 years — 21-15

J. B. Robbins
The House of Fashion in Chapel Hill – for the Carolinas

Help Stamp Out Cars
BUY A HONDA
Travel - On Motorcycle Co.
"Headquarters for Adventure"
504 W. Franklin St.
Chapel Hill, N. C.

COURTS DRUG CO.
SUCCESSOR TO EUBANKS DRUG CO.
PHONE 942-5656 CHAPEL HILL, N.C.
REG. NO. 9099

GOOD LUCK "HEELS"
LET'S MAKE IT THREE IN A ROW
BENNETT & BLOCKSIDGE

CHRAMBLE SCRAMBLE
CHASE DINING HALL
Featuring
Student Special
HOT SANDWICH LUNCHEON DAILY
Private Rooms for Meetings
ABSOLUTELY NO WAITING

Compliments of
FOWLER FOOD STORE
of Chapel Hill, Inc.
306 West Franklin Street
CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA

Mill Outlet Sales Room
HOSE
SOCKS
SWEATERS
At Mill Prices and Below

Featuring the Finest in Men's Clothing
and
THE CO-ED CORNER
THE HUB of Chapel Hill
Chapel Hill's Leading Clothiers
103 E. Franklin St. Phone 942-1252

KWIKEE TAKE OUT FOODS
Fresh Pizza
Barbecue
Fish, Chicken
DIAL 942-1453
Stop in and see a Fresh Pizza made, Italian style
Convenient Location Eastgate 15-501 By-Pass

Compliments of
Belk-Leggett-Horton Co.
Chapel Hill, N. C.

The ASSOCIATES
Typing - Mimeographing
XEROX
139 E. Franklin
Over Sutton's Drugs
942-3225

For the Best in Wilson Sporting Goods and Converse Sneakers, shop at EASTGATE HARDWARE
CONVERSE ALL-STARS 8.95
Eastgate Shopping Center
Phone 942-2920 TV Rental

Foley & Hearn Shell Station
Service Is Our Business
We Give GREEN STAMPS with Gas and Oil
Across from Eastgate Shopping Center

Chapel Hill's Only
RAZOR-CUT and HAIR STYLE
CENTER FOR MEN
EASTGATE BARBER SHOP
Eastgate Shopping Center

LA PIZZA
Meet All Your Friends at LA PIZZA after THE GAME!!

COLLEGE SHU-FIXERY
Two Doors from Post Office
Chapel Hill, N. C.

THE LATEST IN WEAR
For the Young Ladies Who Care
Sharyn Lynn Shoppe
135 E. Franklin Street

CONVENIENCE
CONVENIENCE
CONVENIENCE
This Is Our Best Seller
QUIK FOOD MART
(Near the Main Intersection of Town)
CIGARETTES ..... $1.88 ctn.
BEER CHAMPAGNE WINE

J. W. PAGE Total Service
AMERICAN ATLAS
Oil Change & Lubrication
Tuneups — Brakes
Mufflers — Shocks
Tires
Batteries
Accessories
ALL CARMAKERS Maintenance Requirements
Eastgate Shopping Center
YOU CAN EXPECT MORE AT PAGE'S . . . AND GET IT

Since 1898 and Reaffirmed Each Year
"Wherever Prices Can Be Lowered, Eckerd's Will Lower Them"
ECKERD'S DRUGS, Inc.
Eastgate Shopping Center

THE RECORD BAR

ALL STAR BOWLING LANES
24 AMF LANES
Open 9:00 A.M. to Midnight
7 DAYS A WEEK
968-4404
Eastgate Shopping Center Chapel Hill

THE TAR HEEL BARBER SHOP

OPEN:
9 - 9 Mon. -Fri.
9 - 1 Sat.

Ground Floor
UNC Library
BULL'S HEAD BOOKSHOP

Compliments of
Wentworth & Sloan Jewelers

HAVE A "SICK CAR?"
come and see
CROWELL LITTLE FORD
Durham Road next to Eastgate

Evaluation Booklet Is Now Permanent SG Publication

The Course Evaluation Booklet, published for the first time last year, has been made a permanent Student Government publication.

Student Legislature passed a bill Thursday night, introduced by Representative Hugh Blackwell, calling for a booklet criticizing courses offered at the University, to be published every two years, beginning in November of 1966.

The booklet will be in the form of a catalogue with facts about courses such as amount of paper writing, grading system and policies. A project is also underway to provide information on departmental policy.

An editor and business manager for the booklet will be appointed by the Publications Board every two years in the spring of the year preceding publication.

The chairman of the Academic Affairs Committee will serve as an advisor to the Board.

UNC'S TORONTO EXCHANGE members welcomed their counterparts from Toronto Thursday. The Canadians arrived here after a 24-hour bus ride. Hubert Wooten, left, and Sylvia Wall, co-chairmen of the UNC program, discuss the schedule here with Toronto chairman Tom Faulkner and Dean and Mrs. William Long. — DTH Photo By Ernest Robl.

Adviser To Symposium Intends To Enjoy His Job

By MIKE JENNINGS
DTH Staff Writer

Many professors would shudder at the thought of advising a student committee. But not Dr. Daniel W. Patterson, adviser of the Symposium Committee. He intends to relax and enjoy the job.

Dr. Patterson just doesn't think he'll be needed. The popular English professor believes the Symposium Committee needs an adviser more in the breach than in the observance. "An adviser is someone to help out in an emergency," he says, "but this group is so capable that I don't anticipate any hitches."

Whether or not emergencies occur, it's not likely Dr. Patterson will get off so easily as he thinks. George Butler, Symposium Committee chairman, says the committee picked Dr. Patterson as its adviser because he was "the right man for the job and could help us in many ways."

Butler says Dr. Patterson showed in student - faculty planning meetings that he had good ideas and great interest in the Symposium's topic, the nature of myth in modern society. "Dr. Patterson," says Butler, "knows much more than any of us about the concepts we'll be working with. If we need any help or anything, we go to him."

The Symposium's eagerness to enlist Dr. Patterson is a reflection of his general popularity among students. Last year's course evaluation booklet described Dr. Patterson as "enthusiastic . . ., student minded . . ., intellectually stimulating with a witty and passive sense of humor."

A native of Greensboro, Dr. Patterson received his B. A. from Duke and his M. A. and Ph. D. from UNC. He began teaching here in 1957, and is presently Chairman of the Faculty Council on Honors. His specialty, American Literature, means he knows American writers — an important source of speakers for the Symposium.

Dr. Patterson is glad to be working with the Symposium, and the Symposium Committee is just as glad to be working with him. There's no reason to expect that arrangement to change.

Nine Appointed To Faculty

Nine appointments to the UNC faculty were announced Monday by Chancellor Paul F. Sharp, following approval of President William C. Friday and the Board of Trustees.

Two appointments are in the Psychology Department. They are Dr. William J. Eichman as associate professor and Dr. John P. Gilbert as the L. L. Thurstone Distinguished Fellow for a nine-month period.

A native of New Jersey, Eichman holds degrees from Rutgers and Iowa State. He has taught at Hollins and Roanoke Colleges and has been a visiting professor here since September.

A Brooklyn, N. Y., native, Gilbert received degrees from St. John's College in Annapolis, Md., and the University of Chicago, where he later served as an instructor and biostatistician. Since 1957, he has been statistical consultant for visiting fellows at the Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences at Stanford University.

Seven of the new appointments are in the Division of Health Affairs.

Dr. Mario C. Battigelli, a native of Italy, will join the Public Health and Medical School faculty Dec. 1. He holds degrees from the University of Florence, and the University of Pittsburgh, where he has researched and taught since 1959.

A native of Poland, Regina Cecylia Elandt - Johnson has been named an associate professor in the School of Public Health. A visiting professor at UNC since 1964, she holds degrees from the University of Poznan' and Poznan' Agricultural College. She served as lecturer and department head at the latter.

James R. Turner is the new Assistant Dean of Medical Administration. He received his degree from Knox College and was previously administrative associate to the Dean in the Biological Sciences Division at the University of Chicago.

Dr. Harry Stephen McGaughey Jr. replaces Dr. Robert A. Ross as chairman of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology. Dr. Ross will continue on the faculty as a professor.

McGaughey, a native of Wisconsin, was educated that the University of Wisconsin. Since 1954, he has been on the faculty at the University of Virginia.

Three assistant professors have been appointed to the Medical faculty. They are Dr. Geoffrey Haughton of Leeds, England; Dr. Charles Edward Rackley of Burlington; and Dr. Mario Perez-Reyes of Mexico.

Haughton holds degrees from the University of Southampton, where he was a demonstrator in Psysiology and Biochemistry from 1955-58. He received his degree from the University of Mexico and since 1958, has served as resident and research associate in the UNC Medical School.

A Duke graduate, Rackley was a resident at the University of Washington Hospital from 1960-61, research fellow at Veterans' Administration Hospital in Seattle from 1961-62, and chief resident at King County Hospital in Seattle the next year. Since 1963, he has been a fellow and associate in medicine at Duke Medical Center.

President Of Local SDX Chapter Wins News Award

The president of the UNC chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism society, was awarded second prize of $25 in a spot news writing competition at the national convention of SDX last week.

Charlie Stover's story was selected in competition with 104 others. All stories were based on a press conference with House Minority Leader Gerald Ford (R., Mich.) last Friday.

The UNC delegation was also selected to present to the convention their outstanding chapter activities. Only 11 of the approximately 175 chapters were selected to make these presentations.

Stover, a senior from Roanoke, Va., was selected undergraduate assistant to the director of region two of SDX which includes UNC. He has worked for the Roanoke World News and the Raleigh News and Observer.

Stover said plans were completed at the convention in Los Angeles for Ray Spangler, natonal president of SDX, to appear on campus during journalism week next spring.

Other highlights of the convention included these:

— Mark Ethridge of the UNC journalism faculty was one of three Fellows of SDX. This is the second highest award of the society.

— Julian Scheer, a graduate of UNC and assistant administrator of public affairs for NASA, spoke.

— Panel discussions were held on such topics as the Watts' riots of last summer as they affected newsmen.

— Visits were made by Hollywood celebrities.

Stover and Steve Zachary, a senior English major, were the delegates from UNC. Stover served on the credentials committee.

The UNC chapter of SDX was organized in 1958 and has 15 active members.

Thirty-Two Students Put On AG Staffs

Thirty - two students have been appointed to the Men's and Women's Attorney General's Staffs, subject to approval by Student Legislature.

Appointees to the men's staff are David R. Badger, John M. Brown, John L. Cobb, William R. Crowder, Gordon D. Fisher, Desmond E. Fowler, Thomas B. Hays, Robert H. Hobgood, Donald T. Lassiter.

Thomas J. Manley, David D. McFadden, Charles McLaughlin, Doug Moran, Victor J. Rattner, Lawrence E. Richter Jr., William J. Scott Jr., Douglas K. Soles, Ray A. Spillman, Jerry G. Thursby, Daniel T. Wall and Lee A. Whitehurst.

Appointees to the women's staff are Brenda Ballard, Anne S. Blade, Michelle Bratton, Linda Connelly, Patty DeLaney, Judy Fletcher, Patty Hamilton, Jean Miller, Diane Ricks, Gusty Russel, Susie Shearer.

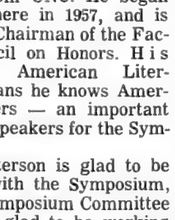
DAILY CROSSWORD

ACROSS

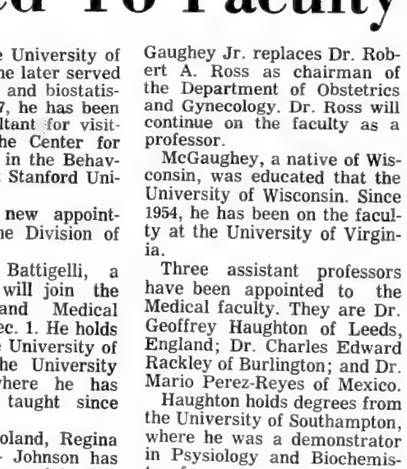
1. Upright supports
6. Stairs
11. French river
12. Foot lever
13. Proverbially, like a whistle
14. Scarf
15. Ripped
16. Tramp
17. Molt
18. Goad
21. Knocked lightly
24. Observes
28. Constellation
29. River into the Danube
30. Enclosures
31. Wampum
32. Corroded
34. Resort
37. Poss. pronoun
38. Shakesperian villain
42. Talk: archaic
44. Enticed
45. Once more
46. Correct
47. Rent again
48. Beasts of burden

DOWN

1. Early inhabitant of Britain
2. Capital of Norway
3. Prophet
4. Alter the order of
5. Japanese coin
6. Eating utensil
7. Three: prefix
8. Dutch cheese
9. Pallid
10. Killed
16. Offer
19. Denary
20. Flower box plants
21. Spinning toy
22. Part of "to be"
23. Fastener
25. Steer wildly: naut.
26. "Stowe" character
27. Polish river
29. English river
31. Pen
33. Catkin
34. Mast
35. Errand boy
36. Russian inland sea
39. God of war
40. Factor
41. Excess of chances
43. Falsehood
44. Meadow

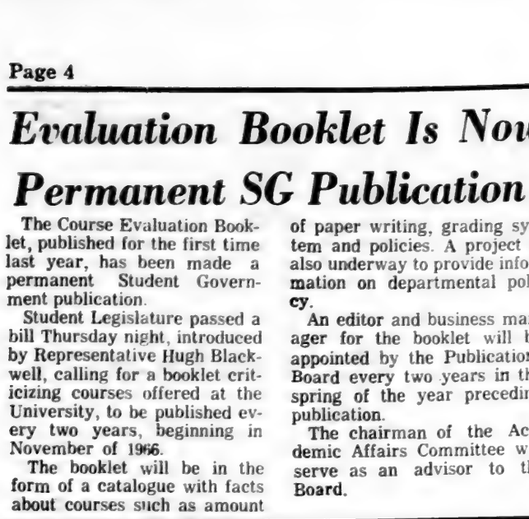


Yesterday's Answer



11-20

SHIBBOLETH SHATTERER!



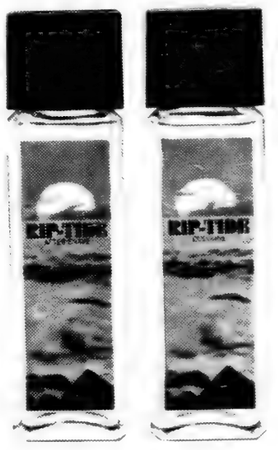
6179

MOST DEVASTATING SOCIAL SATIRIST OF OUR TIME!

reprise RECORDS

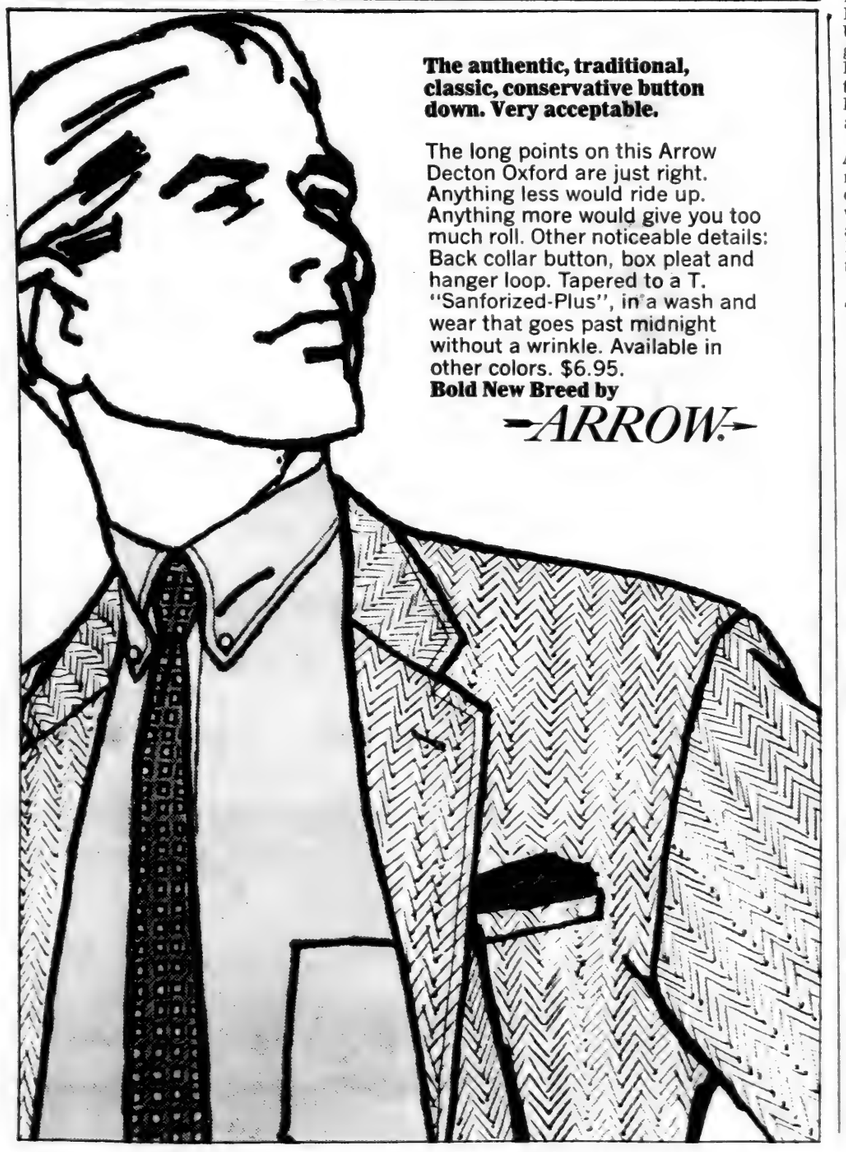
TO PLAY & PLAY AGAIN

IF YOU'RE ONLY FOOLING, DILUTE IT



RIP-TIDE
After-Shave, $3.50, Cologne $4.00
Available at these campus stores:

JULIAN'S COLLEGE SHOP
THE MEYERS COMPANY



The authentic, traditional, classic, conservative button down. Very acceptable.

The long points on this Arrow Decton Oxford are just right. Anything less would ride up. Anything more would give you too much roll. Other noticeable details: Back collar button, box pleat and hanger loop. Tapered to a T. "Sanforized-Plus", in a wash and wear that goes past midnight without a wrinkle. Available in other colors. $6.95.
Bold New Breed by
ARROW

Just call him "Smooth Sam"

HE'S WEARING "DACRON"®-"ORLON"®
Ultramatic Prest Haggar dress slacks. Even when the humidity hangs hot and heavy, or he's soaked in a sudden shower, 70% "DACRON" polyester-30% "ORLON" acrylic keeps these fine dress slacks smooth and sharply creased. They even take repeated washings without a wrinkle. And Haggar styling gives him the trim fit he wants in fine dress slacks. No wonder the gals go for "Smooth Sam". 10.95
®Du Pont's Reg. T.M.

WIN A FORD MUSTANG or one of 50 other big prizes. See your Haggar dealer for details.

HAGGAR Slacks

Get Haggar Slacks
at fine stores everywhere

Dook Weekend Events At UNC

All Campus Calendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date (by 10 a.m. Saturday for Sunday's DTH). Lost and Found notices will be run on Tuesday and Saturdays only.

TODAY

The Fall 1965 issue of the Carolina Quarterly featuring four local writers and poets is now on sale at the following places: Lenoir Hall, Chase Cafeteria, Y-Court, Bull's Head Book Store, and downtown at Sutton's Drugstore, and at the stand in front of the Tempo Room.

Tau Epsilon Phi is acting as campus coordinator for Christian House, an organization collecting and distributing toys and clothing to needy families. Please bring something back from this vacation and put it in the deposit boxes which will be provided. Pick-up will be Thurs. and Fri., Dec. 3 and 4. For further information, call Tau Epsilon Phi, 968-5007 or 968-9091.

SUNDAY

Students who would like to help with activities at the Umstead Hospital one afternoon a week are asked to please leave their name and phone number in the Y Student offices upstairs in the Y Building.

Jim Meredith and Nancy Norwood, students will perform in a recital at Hill Hall at 8 p.m. The Duo-pianists will play Brahams, Mozart, and Debussy.

LSA supper - study in the church at 5:30 p.m. Supper will be followed by the program "State Legislature, Speaker Ban, and the University" presented by Dr. Arnold Nash.

The Sunday University Worship at the Wesley Foundation at 4 p.m. will feature the Rev. Robert Johnson, the Methodist Chaplain for UNC.

The Sunday Evening Symposium at the Wesley Foundation will be at 7:30 p.m. The topic will be "The Geography of Christian Disintegration: Diary of a Country Priest," a film based on the George Bernanos novel and a winner of eight international awards.

The Rev. Bob Johnson, the Methodist Chaplin to UNC, will deliver a book review in sermonic form of Harry Cox's The Secular City. The topic will be "The Secular City and The City of God," at 4:30 p.m. in the Wesley Foundation.

The Roman Catholic Student Center and the Wesley Foundation will co-sponsor the showing of Bernanos' The Diary of a Country Priest, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wesley Foundation. The Gallery Coffee Shop will be open following the film. The Gallery now features seventeen new oil paintings by Joachim Probst of New York City.

The Cosmopolitan Club will sponsor a program featuring the music and dances of Afghanistan at 3 p.m. at the Presbyterian Student Center. Refreshments will be served. All interested persons are welcome.

The Newman club meeting will be held at the Wesley Foundation at 7:30 p.m. It will be a joint meeting with the Methodist Student group to watch the movie "Diary of a Country Priest." Discussion will follow.

The Student Peace Union will meet at 1 p.m. in front of Silent Sam.

Chancellor Paul F. Sharp will speak on "The Impact of Faith on Contemporary Life" at 5:30 p.m. at the University Baptist Church, followed by supper and a student forum on "A Re-examination of the Trinity," led by James Cansler of the Baptist Student Union chapter at 7 p.m.

LOST AND FOUND

Found: A foreign gold coin has been found in Cobb basement. The loser may contact Jerry Rouse, 110 Stacy Dorm, 968-9064.

Lost: A black wallet with $30 inside. Call Tom Rhodes, 929-5027. Reward offered.

Lost: A wallet somewhere near Lewis Hall. If found please contact Joe Pinson, 208 Lewis.

Lost: A black wallet in Memorial Hall on the left side, row K, at the Norman Luboff Concert. If found please contact Hugh Owens in 11 Vance, 968-9177.

Found: A lady's wrist watch in the Bell Tower parking lot Wednesday a.m. Call 968-0011 to identify and claim.

Lost: An AFROTC text, Applied Imagination. Please contact Jack Harrington, 218 Avery, 968-9108 or the DTH Business office, 933-1163.

Lost: A maroon nylon pitcher's warm-up jacket. Call Joe Vance, 968-9070.

Lost: A gold signet ring with the initials R.O.D. Please contact Barbara Hunnicutt at 968-9009 after 6 p.m. A reward is offered.

Lost: A navy blue London Fog chesterfield raincoat in the Pine Room. Please return them, no questions asked. Stuart Baldwin, 401 W. Franklin Street.

MHC Tries Cases

The Men's Honor Council Thursday night placed a student charged with lying, on two semester's probation. The Council also heard two of the cases stemming from the pornographic film showings in Morrison College, but the decisions reached in these trials have not been released.

According to Chairman Van MacNair, no statements will be made until the remainder of the ten cases has been tried next Monday and Tuesday nights.

The student who received probation was accused of lying to a campus policeman and pleaded guilty to the charge.

Some Get Rent Refund

A limited number of students who have lived in crowded triple rooms through Nov. 20 will receive refunds of $12.50 each from the UNC Cashier on Monday.

Refunds will be given to students living in the following Residence Halls only: Mangum, Manly, Ruffin, Grimes, Aycock, Lewis, Everett, Graham, Stacy, Alexander, and Joyner.

Refunds will be made at the University Cashier's office in James E. Wadsworth Director of Housing

USE CHRISTMAS SEALS

SALE — MAGNAVOX component stereo system like new. Transistorized amplifier with 5 yr. guarantee. Diamond stylus with 10 yr. guarantee. $120.00. Call 929-2009 after 6 p.m.

WANTED: ELECTRONICS technician familiar with record players for full or part time. Call 942-3556.

NEW 2 BEDROOM, AIR CONditioned mobile home. 10' x 45'. Available Dec. 1 — $80 per month. Telephone 942-3268 or 942-1749.

WANTED: RIDE TO AND from Raleigh. Starting January 3. Leave message 832-7572.

FOR SALE: 1960 CHEVROlet. White impala convertible, white one-year old top. Full power, radio & heater. Good price. Call 942-4554

FOR SALE: 1960 RENAULT. Good condition. 3 speed. Price $150.00 or best offer. Call 968-5064.

SALESMEN

If you need extra money for Christmas, we have an opening for one or two salesmen to sell Bibles in this area, full or part-time. Highest paid commission. FREE benefits. For interview write:

DWAIN WAISNER
Route 1, Albemarle, N. C.

Varsity

When that man from Rio and that woman from France meet that man from Goldfinger . . . the sparks fly in a delightful adventure in Suspense!

JEANNE MOREAU
JEAN-PAUL BELMONDO
'BANANA PEEL'
with GERT FROBE
Directed by MARCEL OPHULS
A Pathe Contemporary Release

NOW PLAYING

A Wide Selection
Individual Terms
T. L. KEMP Jewelry
125 East Franklin
942-1321

BEAT DOOK WEEKEND

Tonight
LOUIS ARMSTRONG
and His All-Stars
CARMICHAEL 8 P.M.
Get Tickets NOW!
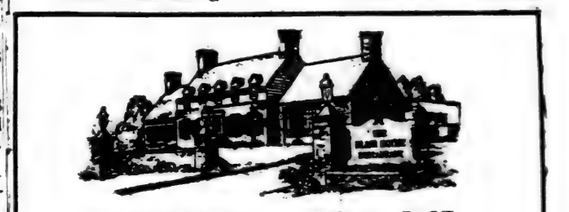
Sunday Afternoon
THE SUPREMES
with the Lovin' Spoonful
CARMICHAEL 1:30 p.m.
Brought to you by GM

TODAY - TUESDAY

Short, the internationally famed "Night and Fog" by Alain Resnais
Daily at 1:30 — 3:23 — 5:16 — 7:10 & 9:04
RIALTO, DURHAM

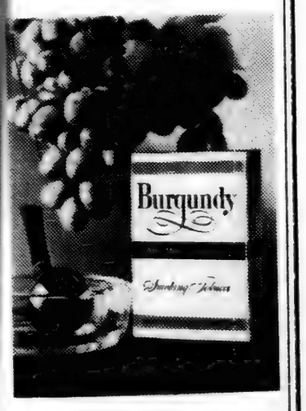
"SENSUOUS AND SENSUAL FUN— A PHILANDERER'S ROMP THROUGH FIELDS OF WAVING GIRLS!" —N.Y. Times

JOSEPH E LEVINE presents
A CARLO PONTI Production
starring MARCELLO MASTROIANNI
VIRNA LISI
Color Casanova '70
An EMBASSY PICTURES Release
RECOMMENDED FOR ADULTS ONLY
Shows at: 1:00 - 3:03
5:00 - 7:09 - 9:12
NOW PLAYING CAROLINA



LUNCH from 1.10 to 1.65
DINNER from 1.75 to 5.50
Featuring U. S. Choice Steaks,
Back Fin Lump Crabmeat,
Baked Country Cured Ham
Breast of Young Chicken
Six attractive dining rooms of varying size and decor afford flexible facilities for serving
BANQUETS AND RECEPTIONS
Recommended by
Mobile Travel Guide
Best of Hillsway
Blair House
Durham-Chapel Hill Boulevard
Tel. 489-9128

Have 18 bowls of vintage burgundy ...on us!



NEW Burgundy
AROMATIC SMOKING TOBACCO

Enjoy a free full-size pouch of Burgundy. An aromatic blend of vintage tobaccos, fine taste and pleasant wine aroma, for the smoothest smoke ever to come out of a pipe. Clip the coupon now. Cheers!

P. LORILLARD COMPANY
200 East 42nd Street, New York City 17, N. Y.
Please send me a free package of Burgundy Smoking Tobacco.
Name_____
Street_____
City_____ Zone_____ State_____

VOLKSWAGEN OF AMERICA, INC.

The Volkswagen Fastback Sedan.

No. It will not replace the bug.

TRIANGLE VOLKSWAGEN
Also Fine Selection of Used VW's
Durham-Chapel Hill Blvd. Durham

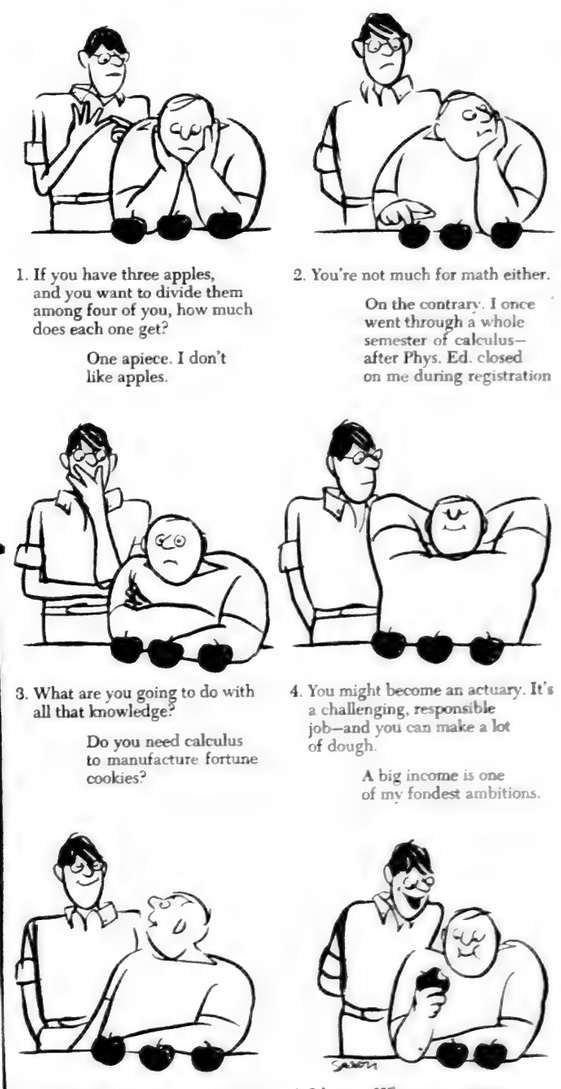
Take Mom a Brush Stroke Print for Thanksgiving . . .

- She'll be surprised and delighted.
- Cast your bread upon the waters, and all that.
- Christmas is coming, Chum, Chrismas is coming.

The Intimate Bookshop
119 E. Franklin St. Open Till 9 P.M.

FARM FRESH STORE

Chapel Hill's First Drive-In Convenience Food Store
COME AS YOU ARE — SHOP FROM YOUR CAR
Open 7 Days a Week — 8 a.m. to 11 p.m.
Pine State Milk and Dairy Products
Cheeses
Party Items and Chips
Groceries
Meats
Pizzas
Ice
OUR PRICES ARE VERY REASONABLE
CHAMPAGNE By the CASE or the Bottle
For Fraternity, Sorority, and Dorm Parties
KEG BEER or SIX PAKS
E. Franklin St. at Bolin Creek
Phone 942-2626



1. If you have three apples, and you want to divide them among four of you, how much does each one get?
One apiece. I don't like apples.

2. You're not much for math either.
On the contrary. I once went through a whole semester of calculus—after Phys. Ed. closed on me during registration

3. What are you going to do with all that knowledge?
Do you need calculus to manufacture fortune cookies?

4. You might become an actuary. It's a challenging, responsible job—and you can make a lot of dough.
A big income is one of my fondest ambitions.

5. At Equitable, they even pay you for passing actuarial exams.
You're putting me on.

6. It's true. When you pass an actuarial exam, you get an automatic increase in your Equitable salary. And since there are ten exams, you could be making quite a bundle after a while. But don't get involved unless you have an interest in math.
My mother didn't name me Archimedes for nothing.

For career opportunities at Equitable, see your Placement Officer, or write to Patrick Scollard, Manpower Development Division.
The EQUITABLE Life Assurance Society of the United States
Home Office: 1285 Ave. of the Americas, New York, N. Y. 10019 © Equitable 1965
An Equal Opportunity Employer

Lord Fauntleroy

Blue Devil halls are ringing loud,
With sounds of victory
Oh, sure it may be premature,
But true it soon will be.

I promised you Tar Heel fans a treat this Saturday. I'm not so sure you can actually call it that.

Oh, I won't keep you in suspense. I'm picking the Blue Devils to top the Tar Heels today.

But let me tell you why. You see, the Tar Heels will be facing several thousand Blue Devils when they hit the turf at Duke Stadium.

Oh, there won't be but 11 Blue Devils on the field at one time, but that's not the point.

Duke fans want to win that ball game today. They've invested their time and efforts to that end and, Tar Heels, it's going to happen.

I mean I've been on this campus about ten weeks now. I've seen you fans drink and be merry when the Tar Heels won. I've seen you throw everything but compliments at them when they lost.

The Duke campus has been a bedlam this week with "CRUNCH UNC-CH" spirit. "You can't walk on campus without bumping into some 'Beat Carolina' sign," said one recent visitor.

Everyone (yes, an unqualified generalization) on the Duke campus will be with those Blue Devils when they hit the field — just as they have been for more than a week now.

Even the school cafeteria hasn't escaped the storm. Pep Bands and cheerleaders have made the food noisier if not more palatable.

But that's not even half the tale. The very air is filled with "Beat Carolina."

That's why the Tar Heels will be outnumbered Saturday.

It didn't have to be that way. You have a bigger student body, but you blew the chance. Oh, you had the "Beat Dook" parade, but I'm not so sure the excitement was over the prospect of beating Duke. It's really nice to have the best float in the parade, you know.

I really hate to do this to the Tar Heels, they've given quite an effort this year. For the most part it wasn't appreciated, but they gave the effort anyway.

They will need those fans today, but they won't have them. We'll have a few cheers, probably, but they won't mean too much.

You blew your chance, fans. You blew it good — enjoy the game.

UPSET SPECIAL: DUKE OVER UNC.

Other games:

MARYLAND vs VIRGINIA — The Terps need this one today — who doesn't? Pick the Terps.

SOUTH CAROLINA vs CLEMSON — This is the UNC-Duke game to South Carolinians. If the Tigers take this one it's the ACC title. If the Gamecocks take it, it's a successful season. I like that last one — pick the Gamecocks.

N. C. STATE vs IOWA — The Wolfpack have won four in a row after that slow start of theirs. Iowa has won only one of nine games and scrapes the bottom of the Big Ten. The Wolfpack need this one — let them have it. Pick State.

WAKE FOREST vs MEMPHIS STATE — The Deacons are in real trouble in this one — of course they have been in real trouble for the past few weeks. They can relax after the wars. All their troubles will be over. Pick Memphis State.

Other games:

MICHIGAN STATE Over NOTRE DAME
ARKANSAS over TEXAS TECH
NEBRASKA over OKLAHOMA
L.S.U. over TULANE
FLORIDA over MIAMI

FAUNTLEROY DISGUISED

Varsity 'Try-Outs' Fill Grapple Slate

Wrestling Coach Sam Barnes has spent the week sending his squad through "try-out" drills in an effort to establish a starting lineup for the Dec. 4 double-header opener.

The drills are held each year throughout the season to tell the coaching staff who is the best wrestler in each of the weight divisions.

Jack Saunders, at 112 pounds, will try to fill a big hole in the 123 classification. Saunders is the smallest ACC letterman and the only wrestler small enough to fit into the division.

Jim Goodwin is currently on top of the 130 pound division but Bob Blair will also see action in the opener.

Johnny Stacy, at 137, will have to go against two opponents in the initial bouts because he is the only UNC wrestler in that division.

Co - captain and defending conference champ Roy Hagerty leads the highly competitive 145 pound division but letterman Bill Cook will also have a crack at it come Dec. 4.

Lane Verlendan is tops in the 152 pound category followed by Richard Urquhart. Jay Jacobson and Alan Marshall will be ready to go against the 160 pounders.

In the 167 division is Manship and Steve Roberson. Topping the 177 ranks are Hal Rainey and Galloway.

The heavyweight ranks are still undecided but John Munday and Steve Lister will get the nod in the opener.

Coach Dean Smith played on the 1953 Kansas basketball team that won the national championship.

Dean Smith was assistant basketball coach at Kansas in 1957 when the Tar Heels of former coach Frank McGuire beat the Jayhawkers for the national championship.

Larry Brown, freshman basketball coach, was an all-ACC hoop man for Carolina in 1963.

Full House At Duke Today

Every seat will have a customer at Duke Stadium in Durham today. Duke and UNC will hit the gridiron for the 52nd time in a series dating back to 1888.

Last year's contest fell to the Tar Heels 21-15, but it took a record breaking performance from departed fullback Eddie Kesler — a Charlie "Choo Choo" Justice record.

Field goals were the big weapons in 1961-63. A Max Chapman field goal with 32 seconds left gave the Tar Heels a 16-14 victory and a Gator Bowl bid in 1963.

The Devils reversed that score in 1962. Duke recovered a fumble with 47 seconds left then kicked a field goal for their 16-14 victory.

Field goals were also the big plays in 1961. The Devils kicked two, the Tar Heels one — the Devils took it 6-3.

Field goals were missing from the 1960 contest, but that had little effect on the closeness of the score. Both clubs scored touchdowns, but the Tar Heels added the extra point — winning 7-6.

That closie in 1960 was quite a follow-up to the 1959 contest. In one of the wildest tussles of the series, the Tar Heels took a favored Duke team and scored four touchdowns before halftime. The final was 50-0 and a wild one.

The extra point was the big play once again in 1958. Again the two clubs swapped touchdowns but this time the Devils added the extra touch for a 7-6 victory.

The 21-13 victory by the Tar Heels had quite an extra meaning for UNC. The victory broke a Blue Devil series win streak which had stretched from the end of the Justice era in 1949.

In 1950 through 1956, the Devils seldom were pushed to dump the Tar Heels. Duke won 21-6 in 1956, 6-0 in 1955, 47-12 in 1954, 35-20 in 1953, 34-0 in 1952, 19-7 in 1951, and 7-0 in 1950.

The Charlie Justice era (1946-49) was the "golden era" for the Tar Heels.

The Tar Heels took the Devils 21-20 in 1949, 26-0 in 1948, 21-0 in 1947, and 22-7 in 1946.

That Justice era ended another Blue Devil surge. Duke won four and tied one during the 1941-45 series.

In 1945, Duke dumped the Tar Heels 14-7. In 1944, took it with ease 33-0. In 1943 it was 14-7—Duke. In 1942, a Jim Tatum coached Tar Heel team did manage a tie with the favored Devils 13-13. It was back to the old grind in 1941—20-0 in favor of Duke.

The Tar Heels broke the string in 1940, but the Devils were back to their old tricks in 1938-39. The Devils took the honors in 1939, winning 13-3. In 1938, the Devils settled matters 14-0.

The Tar Heels pulled quite an upset in 1937. The Blue Devils were undefeated going into that final game of the season, but the Tar Heels applied the brakes 14-7.

The Blue Devils had another two-game victory streak in the 1935-36 seasons. In 1936, Ace Parker — now Duke backfield coach — led the Blue Devils to a 27-7 victory over the Tar Heels at Chapel Hill.

OPPORTUNITIES IN SELLING

Free to College Students 25¢ to others

A new booklet, published by a non-profit educational foundation, tells which career fields lets you make the best use of all your college training, including liberal-arts courses—which career field offers 100,000 new jobs every year—which career field produces more corporation presidents than any other—what starting salary you can expect. Just send this ad with your name and address. This 24-page, career-guide booklet, "Opportunities in Selling," will be mailed to you. No cost or obligation. Address: Council on Opportunities, 550 Fifth Ave., New York 36, N. Y., UNC 11-15

GOT A HONDA
That doesn't run right? Want competent service by factory trained mechanics?
SEE
OPEN ROAD INC.
IN DURHAM
Real service for all makes, specializing in HONDAS.
Morning pickup, evening delivery service in Chapel Hill every day. Call for appointment.
OPEN ROAD INC.
Durham 681-6161
SALE SERVICE PARTS

OLATUNJI

"Drums of Passion"

This exciting Native African and his company of dancers and singers will beat out the passionate rhythms of African folklore.

When? Sat., Nov. 20
What Time? 6:30 P.M.
Where? Duke University Indoor Stadium
How Much? Singles — 1.50 Couples—2.50 Tickets at the Door
Is It Worth It? Need you ask? The Duke Student Union Is Presenting It
What's His Name Again?
OLATUNJI

What Will You Do if your draft card comes in???

Come to KoKo's Lingerie to console yourself

EASTGATE SHOPPING CENTER

Open till 9 Mon. thru Fri.

AFTER THE GAME
HEAR THE COACHES' LINE
From the Locker Room
And All the Scores on
WCHL 1360
Of Course They Broadcast the Game, Too!

The Country Squire

"Home of the 72-oz. Steak"
WE WILL BE OPEN FOR A THANKSGIVING BUFFET
Lunch
Weekdays 12:00-2:00
Sunday 12:00-2:30
Dinner
6 days a Week 5:00-10:30
SPECIALIZING IN CHARCOAL STEAKS
Phone: Chapel Hill 929-3400 Durham 489-9768
CHAPEL HILL - DURHAM BLVD.

KING WILLIAM RESTAURANT
STEAKS CHICKEN SEAFOOD
"Choice Selection of Imported and Domestic Beverages"
All New and Modern, featuring
Seating Capacity of 300
• Spacious Parking
• Four Private dining rooms
• Tasteful background music
• Catering facilities
1½ Miles From Campus on 15-501 South
Open Seven Days a Week 8:00 A.M. 'til Midnight

ALL-STATE INSURANCE COMPANY
EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY
in sales and executive development program for outstanding young man. This man should be a college graduate, married and interested in the insurance field. The selected applicant will be given extensive training in various phases of our insurance operation to assume a challenging position.
The position offers:
Good Salary
Profit Sharing Plan
Group Hospitalization and Life Insurance
Paid vacations and Illness Allowance
Management Opportunities
Opening exists in Chapel Hill, N. C.
If interested, contact or write:
T. G. Ward
Allstate Insurance Company
747 Hillsboro Street
Raleigh, North Carolina
Telephone 832-7595

I LOVE A LASSIE!

LASSIE CHESTERFIELD-ZIP. Classic, single-breasted with blending velvet collar, mock-flap, 2 flap pockets and matching zip-out lining.

J. B. Robbins

Beat Dook!

Trim the rascals sails! Tackle decisively! Run them ragged! Toss the long bombs past them!

But, oh, please don't crush their spirit. They're really quite fond of Chapel Hill, and lots of them are regulars at the Intimate. The old emporium is such a lively and jolly place to visit — we'd hate to have a crowd of dejected customers.

So roll them down, ye Tar Heel warriors! But have a heart, hey?

The Intimate Bookshop
119 E. FRANKLIN ST.
Open Till 10 P.M.

Good Things for the Feast that Features
The (yum) Bird

We've a store full of good things to serve with or use in preparing Thanksgiving festivities. Right off the top of our head we think of Candies, Jellies, Relishes, Spices, (deep breath) Fruitcakes, Hams . . . come to see us!

CLOSED ON THANKSGIVING DAY . . . BUY NOW

Our Cases Are Now Filled With IMPORTED CHEESES
Hickory Farms ® OF OHIO
Eastgate Shopping Center
CHAPEL HILL
HOURS — 9:30 A.M. to 9:00 P.M. Mon.-Fri.
Open 'til 6:00 P.M. Saturday & Sunday

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Vol. 74, No. 59 | CHAPEL HILL NORTH CAROLINA SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 21, 1965 | Founded February 23, 1893

Supremes

The Supremes will perform today at 1:30 p.m. in Carmichael Auditorium. Backing them up will be the Lovin' Spoonful and Earl Van Dyke and his orchestra.

Basketball

Read about Coach Dean Smith's cagers on page four to find out the problem of "the fifth man." Smith has lost four starters this year.

DUKE 34 UNC 7

Everyone Cheered For Blue Devils

By ED FREAKLEY
DTH Staff Writer

DURHAM — More than 45,000 fans packed Duke Stadium yesterday to watch the Blue Devils roll to an easy 34-7 victory over Carolina's Tar Heels. It sounded like everybody in the place was hollering for Duke.

There was light chill in the air but it was warmed by the hot blasts coming from the Devil den. Duke coach Bill Murray, who resigned yesterday, said he had never seen more school spirit than he had in the past week.

It was the first time this year that the Tar Heels weren't in a game at the end. But the Tar Heel fans had long been dead when the merciful horn sound at the end.

You wouldn't have even known that anyone from UNC was there if it hadn't have been for the Marching Tar Heels. They came through with a very fine performance.

Rameses never did show, although the Duke cheerleaders brought some lamb chops over and threw them to Carolina students before the game started. Duke officials promised it really wasn't our horny friend, but he is still missing.

Blue paint and the letters "UNC" were on several signs on the Duke campus. The initials were also burned into the football field.

But the paint and the band were the extent of Carolina spirit. One cheerleader summed it up when she said, "They cheered more up at Notre Dame than they did here."

Following the game jubilant Duke fans ran across the field and claimed the Victory Bell which had resided in Chapel Hill for two years.

The Tar Heels only clicked once all afternoon. After their first quarter touchdown they just couldn't do anything right.

It wasn't because they did try or put out. It was just Duke's afternoon and their ball game from beginning to end.

The players walked off the field with their heads hanging low and their uniforms splattered with dirt and blood. Duke had hit and hit them hard all day. All the disappointments of a long season were on their shoulders and it was a heavy load to carry.

The curtain on Carolina's 1965 4-6 season came down hard.

But as Fauntleroy said, Tar Heel fans just didn't care and apparently they still don't.

It is not how you play the game, who you play or the final score. It is who wins that counts — and people, we just don't count, not this year.

DUKE FULLBACK Jay Calabrese (30) dives on a loose ball in yesterday's game. Tar Heel halfback Gene Link (23) is unable to reach the ball in time.

—DTH Photo By Ernest Robl.

Murray Resigns, Shares ACC Title

By PAT STITH
DTH Sports Editor

DURHAM — Duke thrashed arch-rival North Carolina 34-7 here yesterday and won a share of the ACC championship in a game Blue Devil coach Bill Murray called the "greatest" of his career.

It was also his last. Murray, head coach at Duke for the last 15 seasons, resigned immediately after the game.

"This is a day of great joy and tremendous gladness," he told a crowded press conference. "It is also one of the saddest moments in my life."

Duke scored the first time it had the ball, fell behind 7-6 early in the second period on a six yard run by Danny Talbott and then pushed over three touchdowns in less than six minutes just before the half to take a commanding, 28-7 lead.

The Ram's back, and Chief Arthur Beaumont said last night that Duke officials "knew about it all the time. I'm very disappointed with them. They promised to get him back for us."

Rameses VIII arrived at Hogan's Farm, his home, about 6 p.m. "He seems happy and healthy," Beaumont said, "horns Carolina blue."

Two Duke students turned up with the ram about the third quarter. They were intercepted by Duke campus police.

The Blue Deivls then took the second half kickoff and drove 68 yards in 14 plays, mostly on the ground, to put the game out of reach.

"We thought we could come back in the second half even though we were behind 28-7," UNC Coach Jim Hickey said after the game. "But Duke came back and scored that touchdown in the third quarter and killed us."

Hickey offered no excuses. He said that the virus, with which 12 of his players were confined to the infirmary Friday night, had absolutely no effect on the performance of his team.

Had the game been devoid of breaks the score might have been a little closer, say, 28-14.

Calabrese had a big day, leading both taems in rushing and scoring three times on runs of one, five and one yards.

The Blue Devils earned two scores mostly through the air, another mostly on the ground, picked up two others on Carolina miscues and lost a sixth on a controversial referee's decision.

Except for their 89 yard go ahead drive in the second quarter, the Tar Heels never got inside the Duke 30 yard line until the final period.

And then they threatened continually but could never push across a face - saving score. In that quarter they drove to the 30, then down to the seven, then to the 13 and the 19 yard lines.

Both Talbott, who suffered an eye injury in the first quarter and Jeff Beaver, the number two quarterback, had turns at directing the UNC attack but neither could discover a scoring combination.

Duke's crushing victory was the biggest since 1954, when the Blue Devils' 1954 Orange Bowl squad won 47-12. It was the first time in his seven years here that Hickey's team lost to a Big Four rival by more than three points.

UNC	0	7	0	0	— 7
DUKE	6	22	6	0	—34

President Wants To Make ECC Separate University

East Carolina College wants to become an independent university, ECC President Dr. Lee Jenkins said Friday.

Adding that he would rather leave it as a college than become part of the Consolidated University, Jenkins said at a meeting at the North Carolina State Faculty Club there is a need for action "as soon as it is feasible."

Citing the lagging economic growth of the Eastern part of North Carolina, Jenkins said: "The people of eastern North Carolina look to East Carolina College . . . and they say, 'Here stands a university.' Why not then declare it so?"

"We hold that the word university is a more apt decription of this institution than the word college," Jenkins said.

He emphasized that ECC should not be made a branch of UNC, noting that the state legislatures of 1963 and 1965 felt the state can support only one full university operating on several campuses.

Attempting to anticipate arguments against his proposal, Jenkins said: "The people of the East in dreaming of the university want merely to shake free of the shackles that bind us in a non-competitive position. We want to develop ourselves to our greatest capacity."

Jenkins said he would choose remaining a college, rather that become the University of North Carolina at Greenville.

"Since the eastern university should be a whole university equipped to offer a whole university program, it should continue to operate as a separate unit rather than as a branch," he said.

Gov. Dan Moore opposed Jenkins' proposal, recalling his remarks made to the 1965 General Assembly in February.

"I am convinced of the value of the one - university concept and I will vigorously oppose any effort to deprive this state of the positive benefits of consolidation."

The separate university idea, Jenkins said, would qualify ECC for many more federal foundations and grants.

Moore said Jenkins' suggestions "deserve careful consideration by the trustees of East Carolina, the Board of Higher Education and all others interested in providing the best possible system of college and university training for our young men and women."

East Carolina, the third largest school in North Carolina, will have an enrollment of 15,000 in 1970 if the present rate of growth continues, Jenkins said.

"What is envisioned," Jenkins said, "is not the mere changing of the name, an empty and meaningless thing in itself, but the creation of a dynamic regional university. The additional cost would not be great."

One Of Siamese Twins Has Severe Blood Clot

By The Associated Press

One of the twin sisters separated by surgeons last Nov. 8 after being born with their bodies joined at the buttocks, has developed a blood clot.

Officials at North Carolina Memorial Hospital reported Saturday that one of the girls had developed a "moderately severe" blood clot in the upper arm.

After the operation, physicians had said the crucial recovery period would extend a week or 10 days.

The girls, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. David Allen of High Point, were born last summer. The apparently successful operation followed several weeks of study and testing at the Chapel Hill hospital.

A University spokesman said the doctors do not know when both twins will be able to return home.

HALE BOGGS, Congressman from Louisiana and Majority Whip in the House of Representatives, will speak on "The Future of Southern Politics" Monday night at 8 in Carroll Hall.

Student Party Meets At 8

The Student Party will elect a new party chairman, administrative vice chairman, policy vice chairman and fill three vacancies on the SP Advisory Board at a meeting tomorrow night at 8 in Gerrard Hall.

A vacancy in Student Legislature for the Women's District composed of McIver, Kenan, and Alderman halls will be filled.

Outgoing Chairman Frank Hodges will address the party on his departure and will name SP members of the fair campaign practices committee which he proposed earlier this week.

Party leaders expected that a rebuttal of recent charges against the SP will be made by one of the speaker.

Anyone interested in running for party offices are asked to contact Hodges before the meeting.

The public is invited to attend.

Sharp Designates Residence College Areas

By BARRY JACOBS
DTH Managing Editor

Chancellor Paul F. Sharp yesterday designated provisional residential college areas for the 13 men's residence halls not now in such colleges.

In a letter to several administrative and student leaders, Chancellor Sharp said that the final establishment of the residence colleges is contingent upon the "resolution of many problems."

He referred to the setting up of sound college governments and to the establishment of an acceptable "structural relationship between Student Government and the residential college areas."

Chancellor Sharp requested that the funds designated for the use of the colleges be held in escrow until the permanent governments are set up and full recognition is granted.

The Chancellor referred to the money which will be provided if Monday's referendum approves a raise in the residence hall fees.

Sonny Pepper, Men's Residence Council president, pointed out that only $2 of the proposed $3.20 increase will be held up. One dollar will go to the residence halls immediately.

Five Areas

Five residence college areas have been designated. They are as follows: Connor, Joyner, and Alexander; Ruffin, Mangum, Manly, and Grimes; Ehringhaus; Craige; Old East, Old West, Battle - Vance - Pettigrew, and Carr (with Carr as an independent unit within the college grouping).

Dean of Men William G. Long said that this is the second step in the campus-wide establishment of the residence college system, following the setting up last year of three pilot colleges, Morrison, Morehead and Scott.

Dean Long added that Monday's referendum will have no effect on this step. However, Britt Gordon, Student Government vice president, and head of the Ad Hoc Committee on Residential Colleges, pointed out that if the referendum does fail students desiring to set up the residence colleges will have to find some other way to finance them.

Long, Pepper, and Gordon all emphasized the necessity of working out a permanent relationship between the residence colleges and the Student Government.

Gordon said that a task force of the Ad Hoc Committee will work on plans for such a relationship. Pepper reported that the MRC is also concerned with this problem. He said he thinks the residence colleges should be recognized by Student Government. The present residence halls are not.

Changing MRC

Pepper said that the "entire shape and form" of the MRC is being changed because of the residence colleges. He did not elaborate on the changes.

The MRC President said he didn't know how long it would take to set up the residence college government, but added it would be done as soon as possible. Gordon said the Ad Hoc Committee "will make every effort" to recognize the governments so that they can begin operating during the spring semester.

Dean Long pointed out that the administration considers the residence colleges to be part of the educational structure of the university.

"The possibilities are almost unlimited," he said, "for integrating the residence colleges into the educational fabric of the university." On the educational side, he mentioned a tutoring service and seminars conducted by a faculty member as possible ways for the colleges to aid the students.

ASTRONAUT-AQUANAUT SCOTT CARPENTER shows Consolidated University President William C. Friday yesterday a certificate sent to him by Chancellor Paul F. Sharp making Carpenter an honorary alumnus of UNC. Carpenter was in North Carolina to attend the Third International Conference on Hyperbaric Medicine. Carpenter's previous visits to Chapel Hill have been as a part of the astronaut training program at the Morehead Planetarium. Looking on is Anthony Jenzano, planetarium director.

—DTH Photo By Ernest Robl.

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of the Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. Letters and columns, covering a wide range of views, reflect the personal opinions of their authors.
ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

Here We Go Again

What next?

The University has hardly got out from under a crisis which threatened its integrity and already another timebomb is being set which could seriously damage its competence.

Dr. Leo Jenkins, president of East Carolina College, has demanded that ECC be made an autonomous university, despite a state law which says, "The University of North Carolina shall consist of one university and the only university primarily dependent for its support on the state of North Carolina."

At a speech in Raleigh Friday Jenkins said, "Since the eastern university should be a whole university equipped to offer a whole university program, it should continue to operate as a separate unit rather than as a branch" of UNC.

"There would be no advantage in bringing the eastern university under the administrative umbrella of the Consolidated University," he said.

Gov. Dan K. Moore has said that Jenkins' proposal "deserves careful consideration," but he stood by his remarks to the General Assembly last February when he said, "I am convinced of the value of the one-university concept and I will vigorously oppose any effort to deprive this state of the positive benefits of consolidation."

Ignoring this, and failing to consult his own board of trustees or the state Board of Higher Education, Jenkins has blithely called for the destruction of our single university system.

He told reporters after his speech that he would keep ECC as a college rather than let it be taken in as a fifth branch of the University.

His avowed intent is to provide the eastern part of the state with a strong university which will help overcome the "neglect" which the east has suffered.

"The real handicap confronting the development of eastern North Carolina is that no centrally directed effort to develop the region has been made which is comparable to that effort made by the universities for the Piedmont area," Jenkins said.

Regardless of the nobility of his purpose, the establishment of another university would have at least one debilitating effect — competition for funds.

In a state striving for first place in education with a per capita income near last place, there is no room for financial waste. The amount of money available for education is limited, with all schools sharing from the pool.

Jenkins admitted, "Those who support this change to a university would be less than candid if they did not state at the outset that there would be some additional expense."

This is at least an accurate understatement.

"Let us not be frightened with the words duplication and competition," he said. We think he ought to be.

The Chapel Hill branch of the University would be the one most involved in this duplication and competition because the kind of school Jenkins envisions resembles ours more than any other branch.

ECC has already tried to establish a two-year medical school and Jenkins says he would like to grant doctoral degrees in American history and biology now.

The question appears to be a choice between quantity or quality. If UNC is forced to compete with an Eastern Carolina University for funds to carry on the same type of programs now in existence here, neither will ever be able to achieve its fullest potential.

There is merit to Jenkins' contention that the east needs more educational opportunity but he seems to be talking off the top of his head now. George Watts Hill Jr., chairman of the Board of Higher Education, has promised to fully investigate the need for another university — if Jenkins submits a request for a change in ECC's status.

A better case for both sides can be presented after such a study is made.

Name change, trustee representation, Board of Higher Education abolishment, another medical school, speaker ban . . .

The University's troubles seem to never end. Does somebody plan it that way?

The Daily Tar Heel

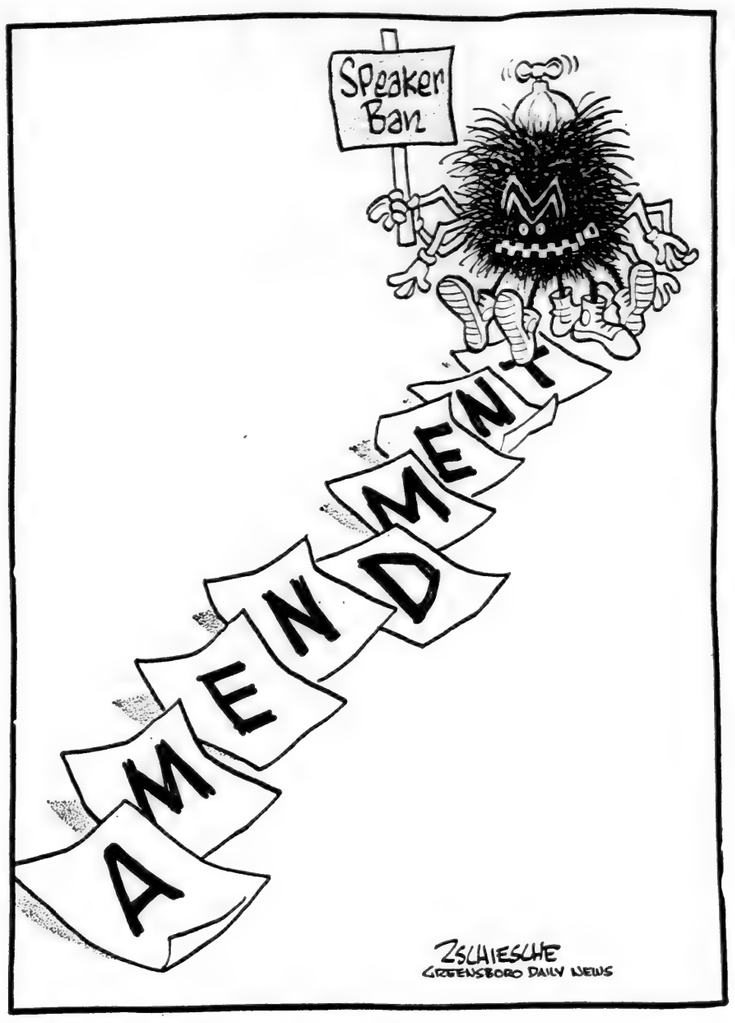
72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; John Jennrich, associate editor; Barry Jacobs, managing editor; Fred Thomas, news editor, Pat Stith, sports editor; Gene Rector, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; John Greenbacker, political writer; Ed Freakley, Andy Myers, Lynne Harvel, Lynne Sizemore, David Rothman, Ray Linville, staff writers; Jack Harrington, bus. mgr.; Tom Clark, asst. bus. mgr.; Woody Sobol, ad. mgr.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all ap news dispatches.

Walking Papers



David Rothman

Ramnapping Is Now 'In' After Hameses Swiped

JERKELEY, Calif. — Ram stealing is now quite "In" at the University of Jerkeley, but the thieves aren't going to get very far if they try it again.

Here's what Jerkeley did to solve the problem after pranksters from Duke Forest College stole Hameses, Jerkeley's prize mascot:

Immediately, students, faculty and administration called for the construction of a fortified "D" zone ringing the animal's farm.

B-52 bombers from Guam blasted the Duke Forest campus day and night, drawing anti-aircraft fire from Bowwoman-Orange Stadium.

Then, a Special Forces detachment parachuted to the scene and began laying out sandbags.

Infra-red equipment scanned the area looking for hot rod exhausts.

Anti-personnel traps were strung up at strategic points to catch motorcyclists trying to enter a parking lot near Jerkeley's stadium on football weekends. The traps were at chest level.

The soldiers had considered installing sound detection gear to listen for the cycles, but after their first encounter with the foe, this precaution was regarded as unnecessary.

Losses were heavy, but many of the enemy were later seen with twin holes in their stomachs — spaced about as far apart as the distance between two horns on a ram. It has been hoped that the more enthusiastic fighters could be restrained with barbed wire.

Meanwhile, a special propaganda warfare team was hard at work convincing the Duke Forest Heathens that Hameses was indeed a devil.

Jerkeley's dean of men expressed shock that student activists were eating their draft cards.

One of the protestors, asked to comment on his arrest, said:

"I am very disturbed by this denial of my basic human rights. Dissent is an entirely American tradition. Besides, draft cards, are what I normally eat for desert."

Other protestors wondered whether butting was contrary to the provisions of the Geneva Convention.

"At any rate," a student commented, "we must be careful not to do too much butting north of the stadium lest Red China enter the war."

In Washigton, the Selective Service wondered how to distinguish between friend and foe on the Jerkeley campus. Both wore beards.

At Jerkeley itself, members to the ROTC, together with pretty coeds, were collecting supplies for the fighters, who missed the luxuries of home, including Kentucky blue grass.

Three Duke Forest students, meantime, felt pretty embarrassed after stealing Hameses VII instead of Hameses VIII, the present mascot.

Asked to comment on the situation, Hameses VIII's only comment was:

"Bah!"

Letters To The Editor

The Daily Tar Heel welcomes letters to the editor on any subject, particularly on matters of local or University interest. Letters must be typed (preferably double or triple spaced) and must include the name and address of the author or authors. Names will not be omitted in publication. Letters should be kept as brief as possible. The DTH reserves the right to edit for length or libel.

Residence Halls

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

On Monday, Nov. 22, 1965, a referendum will be held in which residence hall men will decide whether or not to okay a $3.20 increase per semester in their room rents. The $3.20 would be used as follows:

a. $2 for Residence College Fund
b. $1 for Residence Hall Fund
c. $.20 for Intramural Manager's Fund

We now have a chance to go on a self-supporting basis in which we can spend our own money as we ourselves (you and I) so desire. Morehead College, through a special bill, received $1,100 for this semester's operations from the Student Legislature. Student Legislature has passed a resolution to the effect that such an appropriation cannot be made again because of limited finances. Thus a vote not cast for the referendum is a vote against residence colleges. Simply, we cannot maintain residence colleges, much less expand them, unless the referendum passes.

Fraternities pay from $15 to $20 per month just as a social fee. The referendum's $3.20 increase plus the present $1.80 residence hall fee is $5 for the whole semester. This covers not only socials but academic programs, intramurals, newspapers, publicity, administration and special projects and programs.

The passing of this referendum would set the stage for a new era in residence hall living. The concept of the dorm only as a four-walled place to sleep would be dead, and activity, "things-a-going-on," a place where you would like to live becomes a reality. But it also means responsibility and increased participation. The $2 per man for residence college would give Morehead College about a $1,200 budget per semester. This necessitates capable and dedicated leadership, and also a responsive and enthusiastic student body. We urge you to respond, participate, offer suggestions and constructive criticisms, and to send the best qualified men to college and house offices.

Talk to your house president and floor senator — they will be glad to explain the details of the referendum. Presidents, senators and officers of Morehead College have signed a resolution wholeheartedly supporting the referendum.

The referendum must pass in all men's residence halls and not just ours. Thus we need as near a unanimous vote as possible in favor of the referendum to help sway the rest of campus.

For these and other reasons I urge you all to vote yes on the Nov. 22 referendum.

Tim Haithcock
Governor, Morehead College

Music Award

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

May I make the following nomination for a DTH Award for Music Scorer of the Week: The UNC Glee Men, who added much to the beauty of the service at the new Wesley Foundation building last Sunday with their two excellent numbers — and this from an all-Freshman group with only six weeks of practice.

Mrs. Donald Hayman
1038 Highland Woods

Wrong Room

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Nature called on a friend of mine (who prefers to remain anonymous) and he quickly responded and went into one of Lenoir Hall's rest rooms. As he sat there "meditating," he noticed two dainty little feet stop in front of the booth. Those dainty little feet quickly turned around and ran out. A scream was not heard. My friend left the rest room in a big hustle; a burst of laughter greeted my red-faced friend as he came out of the door which was not so clearly marked "WOMEN." He later stated that he was "kinda embarrassed."

How 'bout some new signs? They would help the person who is always in a hurry. P. S. If those were your dainty little feet, please get the word out that this is not a joke.

Johnny Martin
306 Manly

U. S. Commitment

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Former President Eisenhower, in a speech to the governors' conference, Seattle, Wash., Aug. 4, 1953, said: "Let us assume we lose Indo-China . . . the peninsula, the last bit of land hanging on down there, would be scarcely defensible . . . the tin and tungston we so greatly value from that area would cease coming." (N. Y. Times, Aug. 5, 1953).

We all know, however, that the U. S. is fighting in Viet Nam now because our government must honor its long-standing commitments to Saigon in defense of the freedom of the Vietnamese people from Communist aggression. We of course assumed that president Johnson would have "reasoned together" with Eisenhower and made sure he understood that, while such statements as the one above might have been permissible twelve years ago, today our government's stand demands everyone's unconditional support, and therefore any remarks which would cast any doubt whatsoever upon our officially stated position on Viet Nam would be aiding the Communists.

But just a few months ago Eisenhower denied that while President he had made any military commitment to Saigon whatsoever! (N. Y. Times, Aug. 18, 1965).

Has President Johnson failed to discuss these vital matters with former president Eisenhower, and therefore not acted in the national interest? Or was Robert Welsh, acute conservative alumnus of U.N.C., more than just politically right when he accused Eisenhower of being a communist due? Who is covering up?

Do not, by any means, have David Rothman follow up this lead. The impressive capacity of his adept, agile, unbiased brain for penetrating examination of facts from all sides of an issue, critical analysis of all basic assumptions, and keen perception of the significant factors involved, combined with deep sensitivity for the individual and profound compassion for humanity would result in the unearthing of too many other involved issues, and therefore would cause the government great concern since matters of national security are at stake. For, once onto a story, could even President Johnson hope to persuade him that his undying quest for Truth might be Un-American?

Pete Campbell
413 Patterson Place

Legislative Study

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

In response to various distortions of truth that have reached me in the last few days, I would like to clarify the purpose for which the investigative committee was formed in Student Legislature.

When Student Legislature appropriated funds to Scott, Morehead and Morrison Residence Colleges, it was assumed that the governments of these areas were responsible and that the leaders were capable of handling the funds to the benefit of all of the residents of their college. Student Legislature saw a definite need for emergency funds in these areas and felt that it should help the residence college system through these appropriations.

However, recently an incident in one of these residence colleges has caused serious doubt as to the discretion and responsibility of its leadership. One would question the ability of a governmental system having such leaders to distribute wisely funds given by Student Legislature.

It is the purpose of this committee to assure itself and Student Legislature that Morrison Residence College has a mature and responsible governmental system to administer the funds appropriated by Student Legislature. This is the sole purpose for which the committee was appointed: that it should make certain that if the leadership in Morrison Residence College has been irresponsible in its alleged acts of indiscretion that action by the duly constituted student authorities should be encouraged by the committee to correct the situation.

As soon as the matter has been corrected, following action by the Men's Honor Council, we will report our recommendations to the Student Legislature.

Henry Skinner, Chairman
Legislative Committee
Studying Morrison College

UNC's Vietgram

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

Upon reading the DTH of Nov. 19, I found the following: "The special Thanksgiving petition supporting U. S. involvement in Viet Nam now has 3,831 student signatures on it, according to petition organizer Phil Kirstein." I immediately went to where the petitions were being signed and read the message. It said: "This Thanksgiving Day of 1965 we the students of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill express our gratitude to the American servicemen in South Viet Nam for the sacrifice and service to our country." Upon questioning, I found that this was the only telegram being circulated on campus for Viet Nam. My question then is where is the telegram "supporting U. S. involvement in Viet Nam" which The Daily Tar Heel says has all these signatures? If, as I'm sure is the case, that which I took for two telegrams is really only one, then I believe the DTH is guilty of grossly misrepresenting what the telegram says. If the DTH is only stating the organizer's purpose in sending the telegram, then the organizers are guilty of misrepresentation and are putting themselves up for libel. Why do I say this?

A distinction can, without much difficulty, be made between the means and the ends or purposes to which these means are directed. One end can be accomplished by many different means, with each means having its own logic and philosophy. When placing different means before judgment, different conclusions can be reached. An exaggerated example can be posited in the pursuit of world peace. In achieving this end, various means can be used. One could destroy all agitators and dissentors, or one could convince all to cease disputing. Obviously different judgments can be placed on these two means, even with one being called 'good' and the other 'evil.' Both of these judgments can be made without even taking into consideration a judgment on the end to which these various means are posited. To judge on the end is another task.

Thus one can be presented with a means and an end and come up with two differing judgments concerning them. Using our example, say the proposition was made that in order to preserve peace (the end), all dissentors would have to be killed (the means). One could very easily pass a positive judgement on one and a negative judgment on the other.

This sort of analysis can be applied to the Vietgram. If one would read the telegram, he would see that what the signers are expressing their gratitude to are the American servicemen's "sacrifice and service." Gratitude is not expressed to the Army as a whole, but only to certain members of the Army; not to the position (political position) of the Army or country, but the means, the American servicemen's sacrifice and service, to uphold the end. Nowhere is it stated that gratitude is expressed to the end, to the purpose, to the reason for these servicemen's sacrivice and service. In The Daily Tar Heel, the ends are mentioned as that to which the gratitude is expressed. I ask from where do they derive this understanding?

By saying that the signers of the telegram are "supporting U. S. involvement in Viet Nam," the DTH is grossly misrepresenting those who signed the telegram in expression to the serviceman's service and sacrifice, and at the same time who also disapprove and do not support the U. S. involvement in Viet Nam.

Howard L. Gebeaux
Apt. 2, Pine Bluff Trail

Quantity Of Sin

Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

It is hard to pinpoint the exact quantity of sin generated by the Morrison skin flicks. This is a task for the attorney general or a legislative committee. We do know from Dean Long, however, that the films were "absolutely hard-core pornography." We can conclude, therefore, that there was too much sin to sneeze at, and I applaud Chancellor Sharp's decision to have the "charged admission" donated to some worthy cause so as to counteract that portion of the sin which accrued to the money collected. If nothing were done, the added weight of the sin might prevent all those dimes and quarters from working in vending machines. As a resident of Morrison who must share the burden of collective guilt, I suggest that the money be donated to an organization with a long record of fighting for the freedom we are trying to make safe for the peasants of South Viet Nam: the American Civil Liberties Union.

Bill Michaux
1018 Morrison

Campus Calendar

All Campus Calendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date (by 10 a.m. Saturday for Sunday's DTH). Lost and Found notices will be run on Tuesday and Saturdays only.

TODAY

Students who would like to help with activities at the Umstead Hospital one afternoon a week are asked to please leave their name and phone number in the Y Student offices upstairs in the Y Building.

Jim Meredith and Nancy Norwood, students will perform in a recital at Hill Hall at 8 p.m. The Duo-pianists will play Brahams, Mozart, and Debussy.

LSA supper - study in the church at 5:30 p.m. Supper will be followed by the program "State Legislature, Speaker Ban, and the University" presented by Dr. Arnold Nash.

The Sunday University Worship at the Wesley Foundation at 4 p.m. will feature the Rev. Robert Johnson, the Methodist Chaplain for UNC.

The Sunday Evening Symposium at the Wesley Foundation will be at 7:30 p.m. The topic will be "The Geography of Christian Disintegration: Diary of a Country Priest," a film based on the George Bernanos novel and a winner of eight international awards.

The Rev. Bob Johnson, the Methodist Chaplin to UNC, will deliver a book review in sermonic form of Harry Cox's The Secular City. The topic will be "The Secular City and The City of God," at 4:30 p.m. in the Wesley Foundation.

The Roman Catholic Student Center and the Wesley Foundation will co-sponsor the showing of Bernanos' The Diary of a Country Priest, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wesley Foundation. The Gallery Coffee Shop will be open following the film. The Gallery now features seventeen new oil paintings by Joachim Probst of New York City.

The Cosmopolitan Club will sponsor a program featuring the music and dances of Afghanistan at 3 p.m. at the Presbyterian Student Center. Refreshments will be served. All interested persons are welcome.

The Newman club meeting will be held at the Wesley Foundation at 7:30 p.m. It will be a joint meeting with the Methodist Student group to watch the movie "Diary of a Country Priest." Discussion will follow.

The Student Peace Union will meet at 1 p.m. in front of Silent Sam.

Chancellor Paul F. Sharp will speak on "The Impact of Faith on Contemporary Life" at 5:30 p.m. at the University Baptist Church, followed by supper and a student forum on "A Re-examination of the Trinity," led by James Cansler of the Baptist Student Union chapter at 7 p.m.

Graduate Christian Fellowship meets in Roland Parker at 8 p.m. This will be a Bible study on John 2. All graduate students welcome.

The four simultaneous discussions groups presented by Westminister Fellowship continue tonight at 5:30 p.m. They are: "The New Morality," "The University and the Student," "The Leap of Faith," and "Comparative Religions."

Tau Epsilon Phi is acting as campus coordinator for Christian House, an organization collecting and distributing clothing and toys to needy families. Please bring something back from this vacation and put it in the deposit boxes which will be provided. Pick-up will be Thurs. and Fri., Dec. 3 and 4. For further information call Tau Epsilon Phi, 968-9007 or 968-9091.

The Fall 1965 issue of the Carolina Quarterly featuring four local writers and poets is now on sale in the following places: Lenoir Hall, Chase Cafeteria, Y - Court, Bull's Head Book Shop and downtown at Sutton's Drug-store and at the stand in front of the Tempo Room.

MONDAY

The freshmen class officers will interview freshmen interested in serving on class committees from 4-6 p.m. in Roland Parker I. Those unable to attend at these hours please contact Ben White, 513 Ehringhaus, 942-5618.

Tennis Club meets on the Varsity Courts at 3:30 p.m.

The Splash Club meets in the pool at 6:45.

ISB Meeting at 7:15 p.m. upstairs in the Y Building. The topic will be Orientation Education.

There will be a meeting of all men's dormitory presidents from 4-5 p.m. in Roland Parker III. Attendance is imperative.

Students for a Democratic Society will meet at 8 p.m. in room 205 Alumni Building. Bob Gilman and Peter Nemenyi, who have spent most of last year in Mississippi, will start off a discussion on "The Civil Rights Movement in Mississippi." The public is cordially invited to attend and to participate.

The Academic Affairs Committee will meet in the Grail Room at 4 p.m.

Commission on Women's Government will meet at 5 p.m. in the Grail Room. This is a change in time as it was impossible to get a room at 4 p.m.

The President's Roundtable will meet at 5 p.m. on Mondays unless notification to the contrary is made.

Ticket sales for Leonard Pennario go on sale today at the GM Information Desk. Tickets are 50 cents for students and $1. for date tickets. This concert will be held Thursday, Dec. 2 at 8 p.m. in Memorial Hall. Mr. Pennario is a pianist.

Preregistration for the spring semester for freshmen will begin on Mon., Nov. 29. Freshmen may sign up for appointments for preregistration with their advisers beginning today at the General College offices in South Building.

The Southeastern Division of the Association of American Geographers will hold its twentieth annual meeting Monday and Tuesday, Nov. 22-23, in the Knapp Building of the Institute of Government. A varied program of papers has been prepared. Of particular interest is a symposium at 1 p.m. on early mapping in the American South.

Christmas House Needs Toys, Funds

A Toy Drive for the Junior Service League's Christmas House will be held Nov. 28, beginning at 1 p.m. Those wishing to donate used and outgrown toys are asked to place them on the curb in front of their homes. The Jaycees will pick them up.

The League reports that it is still in desperate need of cash donations to provide Christmas items and food for needy families in this area.

WANTED: RIDE TO AND from Raleigh. Starting January 3. Leave message 832-7572.

FOR SALE: 1960 CHEVROlet. White impala convertible, white one-year old top. Full power, radio & heater. Good price. Call 942-4554.

NEW 2 BEDROOM, AIR CONditioned mobile home. 10' x 45'. Available Dec. 1 — $80 per month. Telephone 942-3268 or 942-1749.

Imported
Pipes and Tobaccos

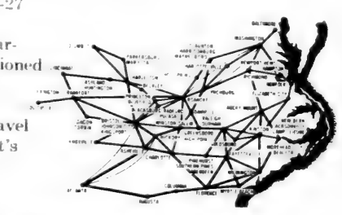
• Pouches • Humidors
• Accessories
VARLEY'S

¡Vamonos!
Allons!
Let's go!

In any language, the going's better when you fly.

For one thing, flights operate on schedules to meet your travel needs (which eliminates finding a ride, enduring long trips). For another, you enjoy complete comfort—modern F-27 prop-jets and 404 Pacemakers are radar-equipped, air-conditioned and pressurized.

So get going. Call Piedmont or your travel agent for service that's fast, convenient and economical.



PIEDMONT AIRLINES

SALESMEN

If you need extra money for Christmas, we have an opening for one or two salesmen to sell Bibles in this area, full or part-time. Highest paid commission. FREE benefits. For interview write:

DWAIN WAISNER
Route 1, Albemarle, N. C.

In the Old Book Corner
A Small Library on ART
And Another on Linguistics

Both of these collections are small, both are specialized. They will be removed from the Feature Case after Thanksgiving.

The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin St.
Open Till 10 P.M.

Thomas P. Lloyd, Jr.
942-6863
942-2208

The BLUE CHIP Company since 1846 that's low in net cost.

•

Superior management, investments, and risk selection have made possible our history of a dividend to every policyholder for 119 years.

Connecticutt Mutual Life

KING WILLIAM RESTAURANT
STEAKS CHICKEN
SEAFOOD

"Choice Selection of Imported and Domestic Beverages"

All New and Modern, featuring

1½ Miles From Campus on 15-501 South

Seating Capacity of 300
• Spacious Parking
• Four Private dining rooms
• Tasteful background music
• Catering facilities

Open Seven Days a Week 8:00 A.M. 'til Midnight

Yes, secretaries do become executives

Many of them do . . . and it's a matter of record that becoming a secretary is the best way to get started in any field.

Secretaries are needed everywhere—the better the job, the more skills and education are required.

Gibbs Special Course for College Women lasts 8½ months and includes complete technical training and essential business subjects. Free lifetime placement service.

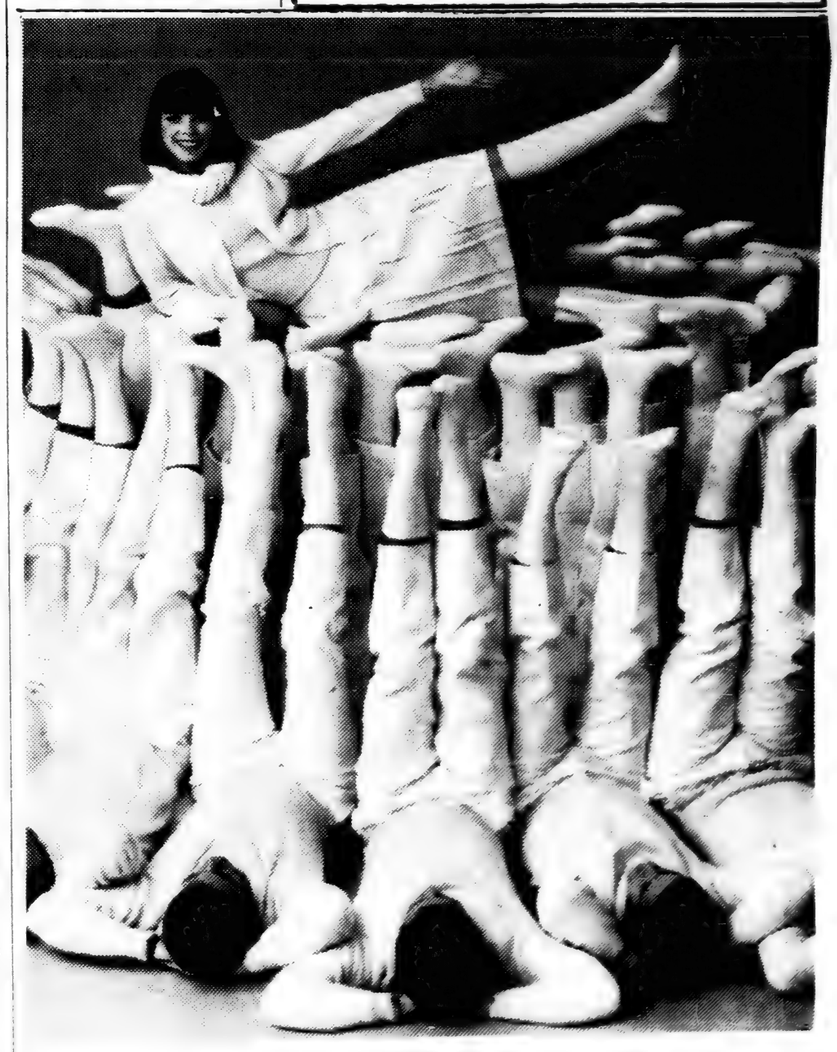
You, an executive? It could happen. Write College Dean for GIBBS GIRLS AT WORK.

KATHARINE GIBBS
SECRETARIAL
21 Marlborough St., BOSTON, MASS. 02116
200 Park Ave., NEW YORK, N. Y. 10017
33 Plymouth St., MONTCLAIR, N. J. 07042
77 S. Angell St., PROVIDENCE, R. I. 02906

The Only Thing That Would Take This Load off my Back Is a STUDIO CARD

Ledbetter Pickard

Parking a Problem ?
Get a
HONDA SPORTS 65
Travel - On Motorcycle Co
"Headquarters for Adventure"
504 W. Franklin St.
Chapel Hill, N. C.



TAME IT'S NOT

This is Jaguar for men. After-shave and cologne combined. Women like it. Because it doesn't smell like the stuff they wear. Men like it. Because it comes on stronger. Stays on longer. Jaguar is lusty. Powerful. Potent. It's bottled in a stark, strong, smoky-glass cylinder. It's only for the man who gets a bang out of living, a charge out of leading—who plays to win, whatever the game. After-shave/cologne, $3.50. Soap on a rope, $2.50. Gift soap, box of 3, $3.00. Jaguar from Yardley.

Get your sidekicks from EK®

One for loot: a Slimfold built to stay slim though stuffed with cash. Built never to bulge though you fill its passcase with pictures. One for locks: an oval Key Hold without corners so it can't hit snags in your pocket. Enger Kress of West Bend, Wisconsin presents its cases. Slimfold, $3.95 and up. Key Hold for 8, $2.95. Leathers by EK to take as gifts or go where you're going. Make a good impression anywhere.

The young bucks of America go clean-white-sock in the new crew Adler calls Adlastic

Meet the revolutionary crew of 65% lambswool plus 35% nylon with spandex for 100% stretch. Up and down. This way and that. That's Adlastic with the give to take on all sizes 10 to 15 and last far longer and fit far better. Size up Adlastic in 28 clean-white-sock colors. Clean-white-sock? The now notion with it even without the wherewithall. Whatever, get Adlastic at stores where clean-white-sock is all yours for just one young buck and a quarter. ADLER

THE ADLER COMPANY, CINCINNATI 14, OHIO

Available at:

Milton's Clothing Cupboard

CHAPEL HILL, N. C.

Murray Releases Duke Grid Reins

By PAT STITH
DTH Sports Editor

Duke football coach Bill Murray resigned yesterday immediately after his team's 34-7 victory over North Carolina.

"This was my last football game here," he told his post game press conference. "This is one of the greatest moments of my life and one of the saddest."

Bill Murray

Murray said he would take a job as Executive Secretary of the Football Coaches Association of America and assume his new duties within the next few weeks.

He said that he was not leaving Duke, where he has served as head coach for the past 15 seasons, because of disharmony with the administration or the Athletic Department.

"Mr. Cameron (E. M. "Eddie" Cameron, Director of Athletics) has been wonderful to me and I have a staff of good coaches and dedicated men," Murray said. "This has been a difficult decision but it was one I had to make."

Murray would not say if any of his assistants is being considered as his replacement.

"I made a tentative decision to resign last summer," he said. "I decided to announce my decision this afternoon. We have a number of football prospects visiting our campus this weekend and they need to know what my status here."

Murray said he did not inform his players or his assistants of his resignation until after the game.

Murray called his team's landslide win over Carolina the "greatest" of his career. It finished with a 6-4 record and a share of the ACC title with South Carolina.

His 15 year record at Duke was 94 wins, 51 losses and eight ties. This, along with his coaching mark at Delaware, makes him the 9th winningest coach in the nation.

Murray, who was voted the conference's "Coach of the Year" in 1952, 1954, 1960, 1961, and 1962, won five ACC championships outright and shared in three others.

In 15 years he coached only one loser, his 1959 squad which won only four of ten. His teams went to three Bowl games — in 1954 (Orange, Duke 34, Nebraska 7), 1957 (Orange, Duke 21, Oklahoma 48) and 1960 (Cotton, Duke 7, Arkansas 6).

He enjoyed fantastic success against Big Four rivals. In 15 games each with Carolina, N. C. State and Wake Forest the Blue Devils won 35, lost nine and tied one.

UNC whipped him five times, Wake took him once and State won one and tied one.

Tar Heels Joe Churchill and Bill Edwards team up to stop split end Dave Dunaway in yesterday's game. Duke won it going away, 34-7. —Photos by Ernest Robl.

Easy Duke Scores Plague Jim Hickey

By GENE RECTOR
DTH Asst. Sports Editor

Tar Heel coach Jim Hickey lost his third game in seven tries to the Duke Blue Devils Saturday at Duke Stadium in Durham.

His young Tar Heels lost six games and won four this season. But the big one came against the Blue Devils and for the first time this season the Tar Heels were not in the thick of the fight at the final gun.

"I have no excuses at all," said Hickey, drawing deeply on a cigarette.

"We gave them two easy touchdowns," he said, "and we never could get back into the game."

The two "easy" touchdowns Hickey referred to came in the second quarter with the Blue Devils leading 14-7.

Duke defensive back Bob Matheson intercepted a Danny Talbott pass on the UNC 35 and returned it for the score.

The other touchdown came when Tar Heel Jack Davenport fumbled a Duke punt and Jerry Barringer recovered for the Blue Devils on the UNC nine yardline. Two plays later the Devils had their 4th touchdown.

"I don't believe you can ever spot a good football team two touchdowns in this Carolina-Duke series," said Hickey.

"Of course we thought we could come back in the second half even though we were behind 28-7," he said, "but Duke came back and scored that touchdown in the third quarter and killed us."

Hickey had praise for Duke quarterback Todd Orvald, a late season replacement for injured star Scotty Glacken.

"Orvald played a great game," said Hickey. "He called a good game and, except for those two gift touchdowns, his passing was good."

The pre-game virus that struck the Tar Heels had little effect on the outcome according to Hickey.

"All the boys who were sick were in the game," he said. "And I thought they played as well as the boys who were not sick. I didn't think any of our kids quit trying. They played hard all the way."

Duke, USC Win Crown

Saturday's upsets of North Carolina and Clemson projected two dark horses into first place in the Atlantic Coast Conference race. Duke and South Carolina emerged from the conference wars as joint winners of the crown.

UNC, which could have possibly moved into first place had they beaten Duke, are in fifth with Maryland. Virginia is seventh and Wake Forest holds down the cellar spot.

Duke and N. C. State lead the conference in overall records with 6-4 seasons. Clemson and South Carolina ended up with a 5-5 year. UNC and Virginia both finished 4-6.

Other scores are as follows:

N. C. State 28 Iowa 20
South Carolina 17 Clemson 16
Virginia 33 Maryland 27
West Virginia 37 George Washington 24
Michigan St. 12 Notre Dame 3
Arkansas 42 Texas Tech 24
Missouri 44 Kansas 20
Tennessee 19 Kentucky 3
Illinois 20 Northwestern 6
Ohio St. 9 Michigan 7
Purdue 26 Indiana 21
TCU 42 Rice 7
Pitt 30 Penn State 27
Minnesota 42 Wisconsin 7
Syracuse 21 Boston College 13
Harvard 13 Yale 0

Smith Has Four Starters, Still Looking For Fifth

By BILL ROLLINS
DTH Sports Writer

The basketball season is bearing down the line upon us like Engine No. Nine.

In less than two weeks — Dec. 1 to be exact — UNC's cage show makes its first appearance against an outside foe when the varsity and freshman clubs meet Clemson's roundball aggregation.

The Tigers will present a problem, but the chief concern in the new basketball offices down in Carmichael right now is finding a fifth man to go along with four established starters on the varsity.

Coach Dean Smith is presently working five or six combos of fifth men to go with guard John Yokley, swing man Bob Lewis, forward Larry Miller and center Bob Bennett.

Smith says that 6-5 forward Ralph Fletcher has probably looked the best of the group who are fighting for that fifth position.

Jimmy Smithwick (6-5) played very well against the freshmen in the final scrimmage game, and he, along with 6-6 Mark Mirken are the other chief forward candidates.

Ray Hassell, Tom Gauntlett and Donnie Moe are vying for the other guard spot, and presently are on an equal basis.

Lewis, who was second to Billy Cunningham (25.9) in scoring last year with 20.2, will switch between guard and forward.

Across the way, Larry Brown is wailing the blues because of the five days off which he has to give his frosh troops for the upcoming vacation period.

"With time out for vacation," he said, "we are left with only six or seven days to get everything ready for Clemson. There are several areas of play we haven't yet covered completely, and I don't want to send these boys into a game without being prepared for anything and everything.

"I know the boys will work out during vacation, but it's different when nobody's 'cracking the whip,' and those days of not working with the team will hurt."

Brown reports that Rusty Clark has a stone bruise on a heel which continues to hamper him.

The only other notable injury has been to Joe Brown, who was stymied with a sprained ankle, but has gotten back into action the last few days.

Duke's left halfback Frank Ryan meets some tough opposition in the form of Carolina safety Gene Link in Saturday's season finale for both clubs.

'Free' TD's Kill Carolina

Duke had dominated the game and was leading 14-7 when it got its two backbreaking "free" touchdowns.

The first one came with 7:19 left in the second quarter. Talbott dropped back from his own 28 yard line on a second and nine play and threw into his right flat to wingback Bob Hume. Right lineback Bob Matheson picked it off on the 35 yard line and went in for the score.

The break for Duke came less than five minutes later when Jack Davenport called for a free catch on Carolina's nine yard line. He dropped the ball and guard Jerry Barringer recovered for Duke.

Two plays later fullback Jay Calabrese ran through his right tackle from five yards out for the touchdown. That put Duke out in front 28-7.

Reynolds Coliseum
Thurs., Dec. 2
8:00 p.m.

IN PERSON
DIRECT FROM ENGLAND
DAVE CLARK FIVE
Exclusively on EPIC RECORDS

LATEST ALBUMS
'GLAD ALL OVER'
'COAST TO COAST'
'WEEKEND IN LONDON'

The Embers
The Nomads
The Counts IV

Admission $2.50, $3.00, $4.00
500 premium seats at $5.00
Tickets on sale: Coliseum Box Office, Thiemes Record Shop, Honeycutt's Clothing Store in Raleigh.

Record Bar,
Durham and Chapel Hill

Varsity
NOW PLAYING
When that man from Rio and that woman from France meet that man from Goldfinger... the sparks fly in a delightful adventure in Suspense!
JEANNE MOREAU
JEAN-PAUL BELMONDO
'BANANA PEEL'
with GERT FROBE
Directed by MARCEL OPHULS
A Pathe Contemporary Release

"SENSUOUS AND SENSUAL FUN — A PHILANDERER'S ROMP THROUGH FIELDS OF WAVING GIRLS!" — N.Y. Times
JOSEPH E. LEVINE presents a CARLO PONTI Production
starring MARCELLO MASTROIANNI
VIRNA LISI
In Color Casanova '70
An EMBASSY PICTURES Release
RECOMMENDED FOR ADULTS ONLY
NOW PLAYING
Shows at: 1:00 - 3:03
5:00 - 7:09 - 9:12
CAROLINA

Insurance
Estates
Annuities
"Time Is All It Costs To Compare"
William M. Buell
The Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company
121 W. Rosemary St.
P. O. Box 1314
Bus. 942-8986 Res. 968-6622

Don't Let Sunday Blues Get you down!
Cheer up with a visit to the Intimate! Find something new and interesting to look at. Browse undisturbed all you want.
No need to get grumpy just because you're not charging along at your usual pace. Make the most of it today, chum, with a leisurely browse through the Intimate!
We're open all Sunday afternoon and evening just for folks like you!
The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill
Open Till 10 P.M.

Enjoy BUFFET DINNER at the RANCH HOUSE
4 MEATS 6 VEGETABLES
6 SALADS BEVERAGE DESSERT
ALL YOU CAN EAT $2.95

How to get to Britain next summer
— a travel guide for students
You'd like to go to Britain, but your parents blanch at the cost? Here's a way to convince them it needn't be all that much.
1. Mail the coupon. It will bring you 8 free booklets on Britain. One of them has tips on group travel and inexpensive ways of crossing the Atlantic.
2. Decide how long you want to stay, then use the booklets to work out living costs. Examples: bed and breakfast in college halls of residence cost between $2 and $4.50; in Youth Hostels—under $1. You can get a good lunch in a pub, or dinner in a restaurant, for around $1.
3. Add costs for getting about. The booklets report on bargains like 900 miles of rail travel for $30, buses that go everywhere for 2¢ a mile.
4. Put plays and festivals on your schedule. You can afford to. London theatre seats start at 42¢. Tickets for the Shakespeare season (at Stratford-upon-Avon from April to November) start at 70¢.
5. See your travel agent for information on student tours. Then present your budget to your parents at some well-chosen moment. (Hint: Christmas is coming.)
—CLIP COUPON FOR FREE STUDENT'S TRAVEL KIT—
British Travel Association
680 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10019
Name _____ (Please print clearly)
College _____
Address _____
City _____ State _____ Zip _____

USE CHRISTMAS SEALS

DON'T DO IT CLEO! CLIFF'S NOTES WILL SAVE THE DAY!

SHAKESPEARE IS EASIER.....
...when you let Cliff's Notes be your guide. Cliff's Notes explain most of Shakespeare's plays including Antony and Cleopatra. For each play Cliff's Notes gives you an expert scene-by-scene summary and character analysis. In minutes, your understanding will increase. Cliff's Notes cover more than 125 major plays and novels. Use them to earn better grades in all your literature courses.

125 Titles in all—among them these favorites:
Hamlet • Macbeth • Scarlet Letter • Tale of Two Cities • Moby Dick • Return of the Native • The Odyssey • Julius Caesar • Crime and Punishment • The Iliad • Great Expectations • Huckleberry Finn • King Henry IV Part I • Wuthering Heights • King Lear • Pride and Prejudice • Lord Jim • Othello • Gulliver's Travels • Lord of the Flies
$1 at your bookseller or write:
Cliff's Notes
CLIFF'S NOTES, INC.
Bethany Station, Lincoln, Nebr. 68505

Want to be treated like a man?
Then Treat her like a lady with Nunnally's
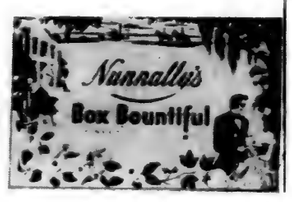
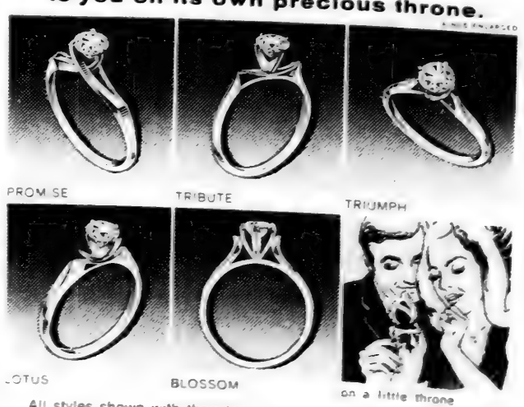
THE CANDY OF THE SOUTH



Surprise!
your ArtCarved Diamond Ring comes to you on its own precious throne.



All styles shown with their little thrones, charmingly gift boxed from $150 to $1200 backed by the written ArtCarved guarantee and Permanent Value Plan
ArtCarved
DREAM DIAMOND RINGS
For free folder write J. R. Wood & Sons, Inc. 216 E. 45th St. New York 10017

See Dream Diamond Rings only at these Authorized ArtCarved Jewelers:
ASHEVILLE — Carpenter-Matthew, Jewelers
CHARLOTTE — Fields Jewelers
CHARLOTTE — Garibaldi & Bruns
FAYETTEVILLE — Henebry's Jewelry
FAYETTEVILLE — Hoffer's Jewelry Store
FAYETTEVILLE — Rome's Jewelers
GREENSBORO — Schiffman's Jewelers
HIGH POINT — Lester's Jewelers
JACKSONVILLE — Walton's Jewelers
KANNAPOLIS — Whitmore Jewelers, Inc
LENOIR — Tuttle Jewelry
NEWTON — Joseph O. Goble
RALEIGH — Johnson's Jewelers
ROCKY MOUNT — Samuel A. Temko
WINSTON-SALEM — McPhail's, Inc.

U.N.C. Library
Serial Dept.
Box 870
Chapel Hill, N.C.

Happy

The Daily Tar Heel

Thanksgiving

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Vol. 74, No. 55 | CHAPEL HILL NORTH CAROLINA TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 1965 | Founded February 23, 1893

Petition Started; Improved Football Program Desired

By ED FREAKLEY
DTH Staff Writer

A group of unidentified students began circulating a petition yesterday calling for the chancellor "to take any necessary steps or make any needed changes in personnel" to improve Carolin's football program.

Numerous rumors followed Carolina's 34-7 loss Saturday that Jim Hickey would resign or be fired has head football coach.

Speculators had Y. A. Tittle or Otto Graham in line for Hickey's job. Some people said Hickey would resign to take retiring Bill Murray's job at Duke.

Hickey said last night that "All the rumors are new to me. I haven't really thought about resigning."

Athletic Director Chuck Erickson discounted the rumors saying "There are a lot of rumors flying around as there always are at the end of the season, but that's all they are."

He said Hickey makes between $17,000 and $18,000 a year. Erickson said he believes Hickey's present contract runs until the end of the 1967 football season.

If Hickey were fired his contract would have to be bought up.

It is rumored that an alumni has offered to put up the first $2,000 to buy Hickey's contract.

The petition which is circulating through men's resident halls and fraternities reads: "We the undersigned, believing fully in the concept of a program of overall University excellence (athletic as well as academic), hereby petition the chancellor of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill to take any necessary steps or make any needed changes in personnel to put our football program on a competitive basis with other leading universities of the South and the nation."

Hickey, 45, came to Chapel Hill in 1956 to be an assistant under Jim Tatum. He became head coach in 1959 following the death of "Big Jim."

The totals of Hickey's seven year reign show 34 wins and 37 losses. He is the first coach in Carolina history to come up with a bowl victory.

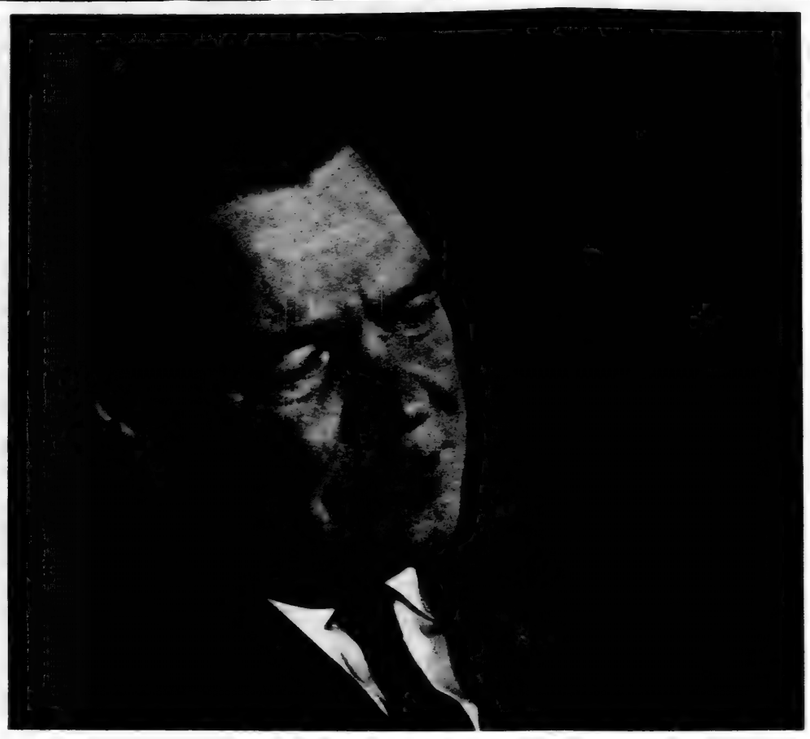
His 1963 team with an overall record of 8-2 beat the Air Force 35-0 in the Gator Bowl. He was voted ACC "Coach of the Year" for that fine record.

He is also the first Tar Heel coach to beat Notre Dame. His 1960 team turned the trick 12-7.

Against arch - rival Duke, Hickey has mounted triumphs of 50-0, 7-6, 16-14 and 21-15, while losing three times 6-3, 16-14 and 34-7.

Hickey graduated from the College of William and Mary in 1942 with an A. B. in history.

He was a three-year letterman in football and, in his senior year he was a starter on the basketball squad.



Hale Boggs At Press Conference

Hale Boggs Says Voting Rights Must Be Enforced

By BARRY JACOBS

Congressman Hale Boggs of Louisiana said yesterday that a person's right to vote must be protected even if it means sending Federal voting registrars into Southern states.

The House Majority whip pointed out that he voted for the Voting Rights Act of 1965. "There is no more fundamental right than the right to vote," he said.

Boggs also emphasized that the United States would stay in Viet Nam and "will do whatever is required to maintain a just peace in that area of the world."

In answer to a question about sending Federal registrars into the South, Boggs said that the Federal authorities are attempting to cooperate with local registrars by giving them the opportunity to enforce the law.

However, he added, "Where a local registrar continues to discriminate against a person because of race, the law should be enforced as written," Boggs pointed out that only three or four of Louisiana's 64 parishes have had Federal registrars sent in.

When asked about the problem raised by the addition of illiterates to the voting rolls, Boggs replied that this was another problem that Louisiana was now attacking.

Boggs claimed that there has been a lessening of racial violence in Louisiana and said that the "solution is the same the world over," namely, the enforcement of law and order.

The Louisiana Democrat said that he believes the House probe of the Ku Klux Klan has had a beneficial effect. He said that Americans don't stay with this type of organization for very long.

Four Homes Of Charlotte Rights Leaders Bombed

CHARLOTTE (AP) — A city councilman, a federal court official, a dentist and the state president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People were the targets of pre-dawn bombers Monday.

The stillness of a foggy, rainy morning was broken by explosions at the large, modern homes of the four Negro civil rights leaders. They and their families escaped injury although damage was extensive.

Windows were blown out and the front doors shattered at the newly elected city councilman, and his brother, Kelly Alexander, state NAACP president. The sprawling brick homes sit side by side in northwest Charlotte.

Two miles away and equidistant in another direction, blasts rocked the home of Dr. Reginald Hawkins, a dentists and militant civil rights leader, and the home of Julius Chambers, a lawyer and U. S. commissioner.

Police Chief John S. Hord said the blasts all occurred about 2:30 a.m. and were the work of "a well organized group, possibly four or five people in two or three cars."

"Whoever it was knew explosives and they knew the sections of Charlotte and how to get in and out quickly," Hord added. Both Hawkins and Chambers live on dead-end streets.

A team of Army demolition experts and the Federal Bureau of Investigation were called in and Hord said preliminary reports indicate sticks of dynamite caused the explosion.

Police had no recent reports of threats against any of the four men or their families and were at a loss to pinpoint a single cause.

Gov. Dan Moore labeled the bombings "dastardly acts and cowardly action" and pledged the full resources of our state investigative and law enforcement agencies in the search for the "terrorists."

Mayor Stan Brookshire of Charlotte, expressing shock at the bombings, issued a statement saying:

"We have worked hard to promote peaceful and constructive race relations in which the leadership of our city has joined and which has been supported by the community at large. We will do everything possible to get to the bottom of this matter."

Charlotte, a city of 235,000 and largest in North Carolina and South Carolina, is one of the few major Southern cities that has not had racial trouble in recent years. Schools were integrated on a limited basis in 1957 and public accomodations were desegregated before enactment of the Civil Rights Act.

Moore Wins Grail Prize As Best Self-Help Frosh

Ronald A. Moore was cited last week by the Order of the Grail as the outstanding freshman self - help student at UNC for 1964-65.

The Grail award is made each fall to the member of the previous freshman class who, while holding a part-time job, has compiled the highest academic average and been most active in campus life.

Moore, a Florida native whose father is a naval officer in Sicily, plans to major in English preparatory to entering medical school.

As a freshman he was an MRC representative, dormitory secretary, and member of the Alpha Epsilon Delta pre - medical society. He holds a University scholarship and works 15 hours per week in the Reserve Reading Room of the library.

His name will be added to those of previous Grail award recipients on the permanent plaque in the GM television room.

Jim Little Captures SP Chairmanship, Wins By One Vote

By JOHN GREENBACKER
DTH Political Writer

Jim Little defeated Hugh Blackwell for the chairmanship of the Student Party Sunday night after a secret ballot vote of 54-53 with one abstention.

The close vote followed a lengthy floor fight over whether or not the party would use a secret or an open ballot to elect its chairman.

Both candidates promised to increase the responsibilities of the SP Advisory Board and work to increase membership.

Little also promised to work for the frequest publication of the "Open Forum," the SP newspaper, in order to combat what he termed "propaganda from The Daily Tar Heel."

Blackwell did not call for a recount of the ballots and accepted the results of the voting.

Attack Accusers

Bill Withrow, SP Administrative Vice Chairman, attacked opponents of the Student Party for "questioning the integrity of the entire SP membership."

Without naming any particular offenders, Withrow said, "These charges were made without consideration for the best interests of Student Government, and in certain instances they have been a great disservice to our University.

"We have refrained from enflaming the campus with additional unfounded accusations," he said.

Withrow urged University Party leaders to join with the Student Party in the formation of a fair campaign practices committee.

"We hope this will lead to the reestablishment of the former friendly competitive relationship which once existed and was the cornerstone of our system of student self-government," he said.

Levy Speaks

Dick Levy, the SP member who was the principal planner of the Morrison "skin flick" showing earlier this month, addressed the party and called for a reevaluation of Student Government ideals.

"I speak tonight partially because I am embarrassed and partially because I am ashamed," he said. "Yet I am not prepared to deliver to this body a plea for mercy.

"I hope that the Student Party, the only group remaining which stands for dreams, unbounded by expediency, will indulge for a few moments another whose feet may be a little on the ground," Levy said.

He urged everyone in Student Government to end "their self-righteous attacks" and act for the common interest of the University.

"In two months the University administration has become alienated from the student body," he said. "The Student Legislature has been the scene of petty partisanism.

"The Honor System and the court system have been shown to have need of strengthening, perhaps even beyond that encompassed in judicial reform.

"The Daily Tar Heel has sometimes been ludicrous in its venom," Levy said. "The student political parties have failed to set the proper example of progressive thinking and principle which they claim to represent."

He called on the SP to become a forum of new ideas and "restore to prominence" its principles.

Outgoing SP Chairman Frank Hodges announced five appointments to his proposed fair campaign practices committee and said he intends to join the domestic peace corps next semester.

Student Body President Paul Dickson praised Hodges as "one of the finest, most sincere, most principled individuals I have ever known."

Hodges received a standing ovation from party members.

Dorm Referendum Approved Easily

The men's residence hall students voted yesterday to raise the residence fees by $3.20 per semester. The count was 1,606 to 588.

One dollar of the raise will go to the residence halls now. Two dollars will go to the residence colleges now being formed. This money will be put in escrow, pending the establishment of sound residence college governments and a working relationship between the residence colleges and Student Government.

The other $.20 of the hike will go to intramural managers.

Currently, each men's residence hall gets $1.50 from each student's room rent for social functions. No funds are alloted the residence colleges for social purposes.

Before the referendum, the Men's Residence Council mentioned several uess the residence colleges will have additional funds. They included an expanded social program with concerts, dances, and mixers with women's residence halls, academic programs with such things as quiz files and tutoring service, and residence college newspapers.

Student Government voted emergency funds last week to help the financial situation in the colleges. It was made clear at the time that this would not be a permanent arrangement.

Student Body Treasurer Tom White said Wednesday that the yearly cost of about $20,000 per college couldn't possibly be absorbed by Student Government.

The resolution calling for the referendum was introduced into the MRC by President Sonny Pepper. It passed that body unanimously.

Dean of Men William G. Long said Saturday that the existing residence colleges — Scott, Morrison, and Morehead — should receive their funds from the $2 increase sooner than the colleges that are only beginning to be formed.

Help Wanted

Students who would like to help with activities at the Umstead Hospital one afternoon a week are asked to please leave their name and phone number in the Y Student offices upstairs in the Y Building.

Do You Want Federal Job?

Students interested in participating in the "Careers for Carolina" program on Dec. 10 must sign up at GM immediately after the Thanksgiving holidays. The number of participants will be limited to 100.

The program, sponsored by Student Government and the Institute of Government, will enable interested students to learn about career opportunities in federal, state, and local government.

The all - day program will consist of speakers, a luncheon, and four panel discussions.

UNC COEDS admire the 70-foot long petition of thanks which is being sent to General William Westmoreland, U. S. commander in Viet Nam. The petition, signed by 5,021 Carolina students, thanks the soldiers for the "personal sacrifices they are making." — DTH Photo By Ernest Robl

Three Detroit Girls Make Good

By SANDY TREADWELL
DTH Staff Writer

An old bus was parked behind Carmichael Auditorium. A long line of students and their dates filed out of the new building and past the bus.

Only a group of young teenagers remained stationary. They huddled together out of the rain. Their noses pressed against the glass of one of the doors leading into Woollen Gym, and excited pairs of eyes searched for a peek at their idols. Two students walked past the shrieking group.

"There's no chance," one of them said.

"Sure there is," his friend answered. "You've got nothing to lose. Tell 'em you're from the Tar Heel."

The student took a deep breath and plowed through the young girls. He grabbed an old and crumpled sheet of paper and broke through the door. Then he crept into the nearest locker room.

A small man in a blue suit hurriedly folded papers together and shoved them into a brown briefcase. A young man with long stringy hair and sun glasses sat in front of a row of tin lockers. Anlooked at the students through other man stood over him. He round steel rimmed glasses and smiled.

"Sure I'd be glad to talk to you," he said. "My name's John Sebastian." He pointed at the sunglasses. "That's Joe Butler. He plays the skins for us.

"We started the Lovin' Spoonful nine months ago in Greenwich Village," Sebastian said. "We met hangin' around the Village. We were working at different jobs there, and we decided to make a try in this business. 'Magic' has sold over the five hundred thousand mark.

"The Supremes know us, and we get along well. That's why we're on this tour together."

"Is there any chance of me getting an interview with them," the reporter asked nervously."

"Don't know," Sebastian answered. "Speak to their manager. That's him over there."

The boy collected his pad and ball point and scrambled to a huge Negro who resembled Rosie Greer.

"Don't know," the manager said. "We're in a hurry. Got a plane to catch."

A small group of people gathered around the entrance to Woollen's training room, and the student hurried toward them.

"Barry Gordy must be making quite a pile," one member of the group commented.

"Yeah," a stocky man said. "Being the boss at Motown pushes out his wallet." He laughed. "I can call him Barry outside the city limits. But inside it's MR. Gordy.

A boy from G.M. was with them. He turned to the nervous young reporter and told him no interviews. Then a Negro woman walked out of the training room. She passed out several autographed pictures of her girls. Then the young student walked up to her.

"Ma'am, can I get a short interview with one of them?"

"What's it for," she asked.

"The college newspaper."

She smiled and asked him to wait a minute. Seconds later she reappeared. "Sure," she said, "they'll be glad to talk with you. What's your name?"

The student stumbled into the training room. Then he heard the Negro woman introduce him to one of the world's most famous and finest female vocal groups.

He glanced frantically around the old faded green room.

An old woman closed several suitcases and carefully placed the shining dresses back into their shining containers.

A girl sat in a fold-up chair and took a long pull on a cigarette. The student walked toward another young woman dressed in tight tan slacks and a light blue sweater. She looked up from a magazine and pointed towards a third girl who sat silently upon the soft covered table. "Diana's the one you should talk to."

Diana Ross, the group's lead singer, flasned her warm smile. "Hi," she said.

"We all come from Detroit. The same neighborhood," Diana began. "As soon as we graduated from high school we had an audition at Motown. It took us three long years to get starter. But each of our nine records before we had a hit sold better than the last. Ooops, wait a minute. Don't look."

Diana struggled with her tight black slacks and finally managed to button them up. Then her large eyes laughed at the embarrassed interviewer. Then she leafed through several sheets of typed paper.

"We've got lots of clubs and TV shows to do along with long tours like this one. Let's see, we won't get a vacation until October, '66."

"I don't get tired of this much work. We sing our songs differently each time, and we sing them better. When the lights dim and we start the show something happens. If

(Continued on Page 3)

The Daily Tar Heel

Opinions of the Daily Tar Heel are expressed in its editorials. Letters and columns, covering a wide range of views, reflect the personal opinions of their authors.
ERNIE McCRARY, EDITOR

DTH Awards Of The Week

Lizard of the Week: Anybody with something nice to say about Duke.

★ ★ ★

Good Guys of the Week: Graham Memorial Director Howard Henry and his staff who were responsible for salvaging part of the weekend with Louis Armstrong Saturday night and the Supremes Sunday.

★ ★ ★

Most Amazing Fact of the Week: The city of Tokyo now has 5,569,143 males and 5,292,707 females.

★ ★ ★

Contest of the Week: Car-packing contest at Southern Methodist University, where 37 squirming girls stuffed themselves into a four-door sedan — with the doors closed. Unfortunately they did not break the collegiate record of 38 in a car.

★ ★ ★

Cops of the Week: Paris police who ruled that a woman found dead in her apartment two months ago committed suicide. This was her condition: Bound hand and foot, gagged and pinned to the floor with a Japanese dagger through her back. They even made a film to show how it was possible.

★ ★ ★

Driver of the Week: The Wood River, Ill., girl who, desiring to listen to the car radio, turned the ignition. She turned it the wrong way, the motor started and the car ran through two yards and slammed into a porch. She said she tried to put the brake on, but it turned out that she had her foot on the accelerator.

★ ★ ★

Poll of the Week: First Union National Bank's poll of customer opinion of above-the-knee skirts. Results: 83 per cent of the women said the skirts just won't do, 46 per cent of the men agreed, teenage girls were evenly divided on the issue and teenage boys favored short skirts 63 per cent to 37.

★ ★ ★

Quote of the Week: Comment on a Charlotte girl-watcher about the results of that skirt poll just mentioned. He said, "I'm shocked, but you must remember that North Carolinians have a habit of drinking wet and voting dry."

★ ★ ★

Crook of the Week: The bandit who walked into a San Francisco bank Thursday, showed a gun and said "Give me all your money." The woman teller just smiled and he ran out the door.

Nobody Is Safe

If this keeps up, they might as well outlaw automobiles.

Safety councils advise drivers to stay off the roads during heavy-traffic holiday periods. And don't drive in bad weather, they say.

Don't drive when you're sleepy — pull off the road and take a nap, they command. And certainly don't drive after taking "stay-awake" pep pills.

Of course nobody but a fool would get behind the wheel after having a nip of holiday spirits.

But now the Greater New York Safety Council has issued this statement, "Overeating produces a condition of torpor that leads to traffic accidents for motorists and pedestrians. If you indulge in heavy eating, don't go into traffic for at least two hours."

So now you ought to stay home if you eat too much.

No wonder the highways are so dangerous these days.

The Daily Tar Heel

72 Years of Editorial Freedom

The Daily Tar Heel is the official news publication of the University of North Carolina and is published by students daily except Mondays, examination periods and vacations.

Ernie McCrary, editor; John Jennrich, associate editor; Barry Jacobs, managing editor; Fred Thomas, news editor, Pat Stith, sports editor; Gene Rector, asst. sports editor; Kerry Sipe, night editor; Ernest Robl, photographer; Chip Barnard, editorial cartoonist; John Greenbacker, political writer; Ed Freakley, Andy Myers, Lynne Harvel, Lynne Sizemore, David Rothman, Ray Linville, staff writers; Jack Harrington, bus. mgr.; Tom Clark, asst. bus. mgr.; Woody Sobol, ad. mgr.

Second class postage paid at the post office in Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Subscription rates: $4.50 per semester; $8 per year. Send change of address to The Daily Tar Heel, Box 1080, Chapel Hill, N. C., 27514. Printed by the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., Inc. The Associated Press is entitled exclusively to the use for republication of all local news printed in this newspaper as well as all ap news dispatches.

David Rothman

A Satirist's Nightmare

Nearly all good satirists have unhappy childhoods, according to Art Buchwald. Throughout my entire life, I'd been very happy, and with that in mind I asked my editor to drop my column.

"Please," I begged. 'I'm really entirely incapable of turning out decent work. I never wet my bed. I did well in kindergarten. I was popular with my peers. And I would have fainted had anybody suggested I run away from home like Buchwald."

"Well, Rothman," the editor declared, "you may have had a happy childhood at home, but there's absolutely no reason why you can't have a miserable one at college."

I wouldn't have listened to him, except he threatened to burn up all my comic books.

The next step was a talk with Buchwald when he came to Raleigh. I threatened to libel him in The Daily Tar Heel if he didn't share his trade secrets.

So the nationally syndicated humorist gave them to me, and I libeled him anyway.

After the column got started, everybody began interpreting my message differently. Among those who offered the most expert analysis were the members of the psychology department.

The truth, of course, is that I wrote serious columns and depended on the printer to make them funny by throwing in a few typographical errors.

Naturally, fame did bring its complications. Once, for instance, I stopped by Paul Dickson's office while doing a news assignment. "What is your name please?" the secretary asked.

"David Rothman," I proudly proclaimed.

"Are you sure that's your only name?"

"Pretty sure."

"Well, I don't think you're telling the truth. That face looks fairly familiar. Are you certain you're not the student whose identity card photo I found on the floor of the Lenoir Hall ladies' room?"

And then there was the time I thought somebody was holding the door for me.

"Thanks," I complacently oozed.

"The hell I held that door open for you!" the somebody replied. Whereupon he slammed it in my face.

"You'll have a paranoid on your staff if this keeps up," I advised my editor.

He grinned and said my misery would help me become a better satirist.

From that point on, the editor did his best to make my life as wretched as possible. I was given the poorest typewriter in the office. All our pretty female staff writers were instructed to shun me. I had to scrub the floors, empty all the ash trays and make sure the radiators were working.

"Damn it!" I cussed. "You can't do this to me!"

"Oh yes I can!" he snapped. "My approach has been entirely successful. Your satires are becoming more professional; your wit is at its best; your brilliance is unequaled. Besides, we no longer have to pay for a janitor."

"Thanks!" I croaked, convinced he thought my columns should be nationally syndicated.

Then the editor smiled and exclaimed: "Art Buchwald sure was right! People indeed write their best satires when they're miserable. That's why from now on you'll no longer receive your paycheck."

Students Robbed Of Points

By BOB BETTIS

Help! We college students are being robbed!

You might also call it mistreated, cheated, taken advantage of, and pushed around. In short, we're getting a rotten deal.

What's the source of this brutal suffering, you ask? Stated generally, it's the case of the pluses and the minuses. Stated specifically, it's the hurt and waste of not getting great big, academic, quality point credit for all those A minuses, B pluses, C pluses, and D pluses we occasionally make.

Now the University has set up what it considers a neat system of rewarding students for diligence in academic matters. Our studious efforts are translated into A's, B's, C's, D's, and F's, which in turn are awarded a quality point value of four, three, two, one, and zero respectively.

That's all fine and dandy as far as it goes. Unfortunately, the situation is complicated by the several hundred faculty members who have their own ideas as to what constitutes an A, B, C, D, or F. They express these ideas in the form of a grading scale. Assuming that the average grading scale is 95-100 equals A; 90-95, B; 80-90, C, and on down the list, a unique question is posed: What happens to the student whose semester average comes out to — say 89.5? It has been claimed by some observers — mainly professors — that good attendance and displayed interest in the course will influence the professor to give his pupil the benefit of the doubt. Thus the grade in this instance would be B minus. However, our experiences have been quite to the contrary. More than likely the student receives a C plus, which automatically drops to a C the moment it leaves the professor's office.

Therefore, we recommend a slight revisions the quality point program in order to recognize pluses and minuses. A method that would make us happier goes like this: A pluses, rare as they are, would be equivalent to 4.5 quality points. An A, instead of the usual 4.0, would be equal to 4.2. An A minus, rather than being disregarded, would have a 4.0 value. And so this equation applies to the other letter grades.

Such a method would undoubtedly be better for all concerned. Students would be happier for obvious reasons and professors would be happier because they no longer would be regarded with contempt for downgrading us bright scholars with useless pluses and minuses.

Film Scandal Party, Not Moral Problem

By JOHN GREENBACKER
DTH Political Writer

For about two weeks now, students and partisan politicians have been offering their opinions about the Morrison obscene film scandal.

It takes a while to piece any big story like this together, but if you talk to enough people, you will get a few things straight.

The films were advertised as being co-sponsored by the Student Party, but the party leaders were not contacted before the films were shown.

The three student politicians who planned the films were SP members, but two of them were freshmen and the other involved could not be regarded as a truly high SP official. Several high SP officials did view the films, but had no foreknowledge of the showings and had not offered official SP approval of the function for their party.

The showing of the films was a partisan move. The freshmen who planned the thing originally did so on the spur of the moment as a means of drawing crowds in Morrison away from the University Party freshman class candidates' campaign speeches in progress on the first floor.

Not only did members of the SP attend the film showing, but also present were some of the UP freshman candidates who tired of talking to themselves.

Members of the Men's Council, Morrison officers and resident advisors also showed up.

Those who sponsored the movies went to bed that night satisfied that they had "helped" their party, collected some money, and at least temporarily shaved the horns of hundreds of male students.

If the SP leaders present worried about their party's involvement in the movie show, they probably felt it was too late to stop the proceedings, and at the time it seemed like a reasonably clever, if very dangerous idea.

The next day, however, the UP was hopping mad. The fact that the Dean of Men's office was investigating the matter along with the Attorney General's staff was of little consequence. The fact that those actually responsible for the film showing would receive Men's Council sentences didn't matter.

Former student body vice president Don Carson, the true leader of the UP, saw the necessity for making the case public information and making sure the SP got its share of the scandal blame.

Carson is a very hard-nosed politician. A formidable opponent, he will not let the other side get away with anything without a fight.

If the information were made public, would it hurt the University? Carson knew it could, but the story would get out anyway with a little time.

Carson also knew that breaking the story in the height of the Speaker Ban controversy would not hurt the vote on the law's amendment. The votes had already been promised to Gov. Dan Moore, and the fact that the controversy had no effect on the vote was confirmed by State Sen. Robert Morgan recently.

Henry Skinner, an independent legislator from Craige, Carson's residence hall, blew the whole thing up in Student Legislature after consultation with Carson.

The very least one could say about Skinner's statement is that it was worded in an unfortunate manner. Maybe he didn't sit back and think about it before he said it.

The tone of the statement was highly self-righteous, denouncing "filthy pornography" and speculating that because some Morrison officers may have participated to some degree in the film showing, they may be guilty of mismanagement of Student Government funds.

Actually the investigation of fund usage was an excuse to get SL in on the controversy, even though no one seriously thought such mismanagement could have occurred. The recent $1,500 appropriation by Student Government to Morrison Hall hasn't as yet cleared the student body president's desk.

Skinner adroitly laid all suspicion on the shoulders of "resident advisors, high Student Party officials and officers of Morrison."

His remarks were followed by a wave of horribly pious statements by several legislators.

The SL investigation committee will in all probability turn up no instances of misuse of funds, and fortunately funds to Morrison will continue.

Why couldn't the UP have merely issued a statement itself on the unfair campaign tactics of certain SP members? It would have made the issue so much clearer, and the SP would have not been forced into the position of defending the actions of all their members.

With the issue having been placed by the UP on a moralistic basis rather than on a partisan one, the terrible yoke of moral condemnation has been extended to cover the reputations of many basically good persons were only slightly involved in the Morrison incident.

The actual perpetrators of the illegal and unfair activities in Morrison will probably be punished severely, as will many students whose only crime was their possession of natural human frailties.

Those foolish persons who spoke so loudly and piously about the matter will probably be satisfied with the results of their statements.

Maybe, some day, one of those individuals who spoke so self - righteously on this issue will lock his door, sit back, and pick up a battered copy of "Playboy."

And when he does, he may come to realize that there is a bit of "filthy pornography" in every man.

LETTERS

The Daily Tar Heel welcomes letters to the editor on any subject, particularly on matters of local or University interest. Letters must be typed, double spaced and must include the name and address of the author or authors. Names will not be omitted in publication. Letters should be kept as brief as possible. The DTH reserves the right to edit for length or libel.

Letter To The Editor

Smith Confuses Words

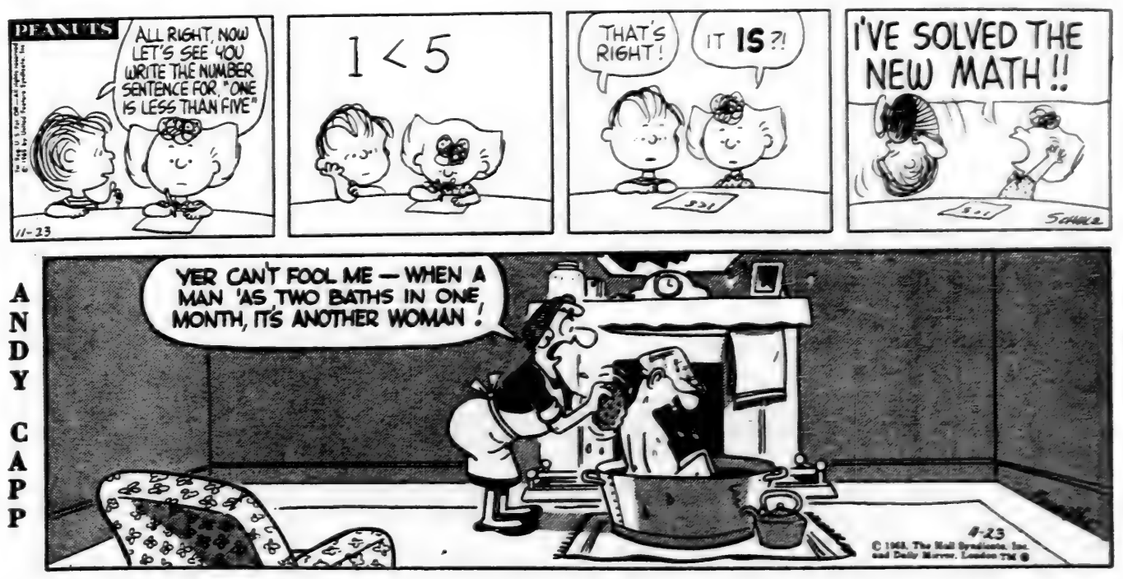
Editor, The Daily Tar Heel:

In a letter attacking the views of Lipsitz and Wynn, Paul A. Smith repeats the following argument, which has appeared before in the DTH: "The authors say . . . that they are against war. The fact is that it is impossible to be for or against war. The word war is a description of a state of affairs and it is impossible to be for or against a description. The question is whether the authors are against the cause of war: aggression."

It is Mr. Smith, not Lipsitz and Wynn, who is confusing the description with the state of affairs. It is quite possible to be against the application of a description to a particular situation, but this is not the issue. No one is arguing here about whether to call the situation in Viet Nam "war." What Wynn and Lipsitz oppose is war, not "war"; the actual state of affairs, not the term used to describe it. If Mr. Smith's point were valid, he could not possibly be against aggression either.

As one who is interested in hearing both sides of the question, I object to this kind of argument, which is found throughout Mr. Smith's letter. Surely the opponents of the views of Wynn and Lipsitz can find some points of disagreement without resorting to this. But at least we are indebted to Mr. Smith for a classic case of the confusion of use and mention.

Nancy Thompson
134 Bagley Drive



What To Do Before Thanksgiving

All Campus Calendar items must be submitted in person at the DTH offices in GM by 2 p.m. the day before the desired publication date (by 10 a.m. Saturday for Sunday's DTH). Lost and Found notices will be run on Tuesday and Saturdays only.

TODAY

Tau Epsilon Phi is acting as campus coordinator for Christmas House, an organization collecting and distributing clothing and toys to needy families. Please bring something back from this vacation and put it in the deposit boxes which will be provided. Pick-up will be Thurs. and Fri., Dec. 3 and 4. For further information call Tau Epsilon Phi, 968-9007 or 968-9091.

The Fall 1965 issue of the Carolina Quarterly featuring four local writers and poets is now on sale in the following places: Lenoir Hall, Chase Cafeteria, Y - Court, Bull's Head Book Shop and downtown at Sutton's Drugstore and at the stand in front of the Tempo Room.

The freshmen class officers will interview freshmen interested in serving on class committees from 4-6 p.m. in Roland Parker I. Those unable to attend at these hours please contact Ben White, 513 Ehringhaus, 942-5618.

The Southeastern Divison of the Association of American Geographers terminates its twentieth annual meeting with a banquet at 7:30 p.m. at the Carolina Inn. The address will be given by the President of the AAG, Dr. Meredith Burlof the U. S. Department of the Interior.

Entries to the Ugly Man contest are due Dec. 5. All dorms and fraternities wishing to submit entries must submit nine pictures and $5 before Dec. 5. In order to have pictures made, an appointment must be made with Swain Hall photo lab. The entries should be submitted to the following persons: Merv Sessoms, 1226 Morrison, Don Cunningham, 228 Craige, Jack Inscoe, 311 Stacy, Greg Fulcher, 3 Pettigrew, Chip Seymore, 406 Manly.

WRC meeting tonight at 6:45 in the Grain Room.

Paul A. Erickson, C.S.B. of Chicago, Ill., will speak on "The Values of a Spiritual Outlook" at 8 p.m. in Gerrard Hall. This lecture is sponsored by the First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Chapel Hill.

Folk dancing at 7:30 p.m. at the Presbyterian Student Center.

UNC Debate Team meets in 105 Caldwell at 6:30 p.m. Both varsity and novice debates are expected.

Volleyball intramurals for WAA will be held in the Gymnasium at 7 p.m.

The 603rd meeting of the Elisha Mitchell Scientific Society will be held in room 05, Mitchell Hall at 7:30 p.m. The topic will be "Critical Phenomena" by Professor of chemistry at the University. The discussion should be of interest to the general scientific community.

Freshmen should sign up with their advisors for an appointment to preregister for the spring semester in the General College offices.

LOST AND FOUND

Lost: Two paperbooks, a novel, Quentin Durward, by Scott, and Readings in Perception up Beardsless and Werthmeier. Please call Andy Myers at the DTH office. 933-1011.

Lost: A 1965 aquamarine high school class ring was left in the restroom in the basement of Wilson Library on Sat. Finder please see Guy Edwards at 532 Ehringhaus or call 968-9101. A $5 reward is offered and no questions will be asked.

Lost: An alligator wallet, pocket - secretary type. Probably lost in the vicinity of Carmichael Gymnasium after the Sunday concert. If found, return to Thomas N. Chewning, 942 - 1229, 1004 Pittsboro Rd.

Lost: Three textbooks — Mark Twain Portable. Three Gothic Novels, Blake Portable. Reward offered. Call Susan Stone, A-2 Oak Terrace, 968-6421.

Louis Armstrong Remains King Of The Trumpeters

By WALTER JACKSON

UNC took what will probably be its last look at the king of jazz Saturday night.

Louis Armstrong, a veritable "little boy blue," has been blowing his horn for more than 50 years. And you can tell it.

Now 65 years old, the king is making his last tour before retirement. The sounds which emanate from the Armstrong trumpet today may not be quite as good as those which he produced two or three decades ago. But they are still far better than those that other musicians can hope to make.

There are many good newer groups of musicians who produce "smooth" sounds. The Ramsey Lewis trio is a notable example. But they don't even begin to compare with the old line of jazz performers which Armstrong symbolizes.

"I used to stand on the corners and play until the cops came along and ran us away," says Satchmo, speaking of his childhood experiences with the horn.

Looking at Louis Saturday night, one could easily see that it is this same sheer joy of playing that has kept him going for so long. The Armstrong horn has been heard in live performances and recordings by many people at many times and in many lands.

He would have been financially able to retire years ago, and live a comfortable life for the rest of his years. But he didn't. His love for music kept him going.

When Louis Armstrong goes marching in the worlds of jazz and music will lose one of their all - time greats. And when Armstrong goes to heaven, Gabriel will probably refuse to blow his horn, recognizing the presence of one far greater.

DTH Photo by Jim Rossman

The Supremes

Five Hundred Have Signed Radio Petition

More than 500 names have been collected on a petition for the establishment, by initiative, of a campus carrier current radio station, according to Campus Radio Committee Chairman John Stupak.

Stupak said 1,250 names are needed to present the petition to Student Body President Paul Dickson for validation.

If the petition is validated, a date will be set for the referendum. A "yes" vote by a majority of the student body will insure the formation of a campus radio board.

Stupak and other supporters of the petition have circulated it in Craige Hall. They plan to continue their efforts in Ehringhaus and Morrison Halls tonight.

"We hope to collect most of the 1,250 names in the Morrison, Craige, Ehringhaus area," Stupak said.

Petition circulation was hampered last week due to the academic burdens on its supporters, according to Stupak.

Detroit Girls

(Continued from Page 1)

the audience is good, I feel light and happy.

"The bad part is the traveling and the buses. It's tough on girls.

"I'm nervous before every performance. But when I hear the applause, when we walk on, it makes it all so worth while.

"You can never be too confident in this business. There are lot's more ladders for us and better things in this business. We'd like to go into movies, but we still have to persuade them that we're talented."

"Thanks a lot Miss Ross," the student mumbled as he walked slowly out of the training room.

"Goodby," the three Supremes said.

The student turned and wished them good luck and he saw Diana smile and wave to him.

He rode down Franklin Street through the pelting rain. His clothes were drenched and he couldn't see through his glasses. But he didn't mind the rain. He just remembered that smile and that wave all the way home.

Study Rooms

The following is a revised list of the classrooms available for night study:

Alumni Building — Room 111; Bingham Hall - Room 102, after 8 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays, Room 108, after 7 p.m. on Mondays and Thursdays; Caldwell Hall — Rooms 106 and 208; Murphey Hall — Rooms 101 and 107; Peabody Hall — Room 105, from 7 p.m. until 10 p.m. Monday through Thursday; Phillips Hall — Rooms 220, 303, 305; Saunders Hall — Rooms 110 and 111; and Hanes Hall — Room 104.

Clip Me Out

YOUR MENU FOR THE WEEK OF November 23

Zoom Zoom

Luncheon Specialty

99c

—Tuesday—

Beef Parmagiana

with

Spaghetti Noodles

Salad — Bread

—Wednesday—

Chicken Cacciatore

Two Vegetables

Salad — Bread

TUESDAY NIGHT

7:30 — 8:30

Pizza Special

½ Price

Plain or Pepperoni

ZOOM ZOOM

CLOSED

NOV. 25 thru NOV. 29

RATHSKELLER

OPEN

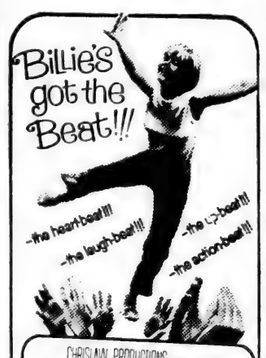
NOV. 26, 27, 29

CLOSED MONDAY

104 W. Franklin

Clip Me Out

Varsity



CHRISLAW PRODUCTIONS presents

Patty Duke as "Billie"

TECHNICOLOR UNITED ARTISTS

Last Times TODAY

WED. & THURS.

Die, Monster, Die

starring

Boris Karloff

FRIDAY

STOP TRAIN 349

Starring

Jose Ferrer

SATURDAY

BABY THE RAIN MUST FALL

starring

Steve McQueen

people on the go... go BURGER CHEF

BURGER CHEF HAMBURGERS

College budgets and Burger Chef belong together. Burger Chef . . . where 50¢ will buy a complete meal: open-flame broiled hamburger, a rich milk shake, and a heap of crisp golden fries.

337 N. ROSEMARY ST.

OPEN 10 A.M. - 11 P.M.

Franchised selectively by Burger Chef Systems, Indianapolis 7

Home of the World's Greatest 15¢ Hamburger!

Have a big weekend?

We make loans on typewriters, pistols, guns, radios, record players, musical instruments, watches, rings, cameras, microscopes, tape recorders.

FIVE POINTS LOAN CO.

339 W. Main St. . . . at Five Points

Downtown Durham

THE PINE ROOM

Wishes You

A Festive

Thanksgiving

CLOSE:

12:00 P.M., Tuesday, Nov. 23, 1965

REOPEN

7:00 A.M., Monday, Nov. 29, 1965

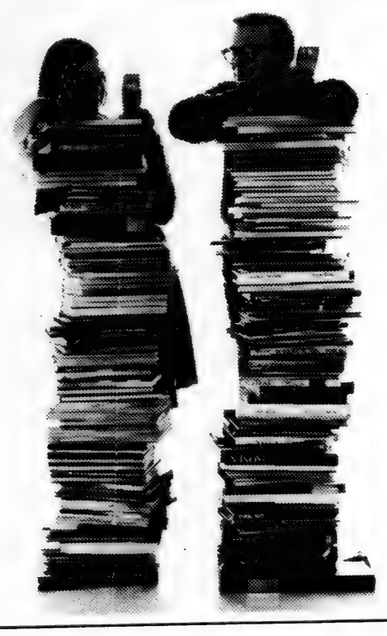
LENOIR HALL

WILL CLOSE WEDNESDAY

After Lunch, and Will Re-open

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 29th, 7:00 A.M.

"COCA-COLA" AND "COKE" ARE REGISTERED TRADE-MARKS WHICH IDENTIFY ONLY THE PRODUCT OF THE COCA-COLA COMPANY.



Studies piling up?

Pause. Have a Coke.

Coca-Cola — with a lively lift and never too sweet, refreshes best.

things go better with Coke

Drink Coca-Cola

Bottled under the authority of The Coca-Cola by Coca-Cola Bottling Co.

In the Old Book Corner A Small Library on

ART

And Another on

Linguistics

Both of these collections are small, both are specialized. They will be removed from the Feature Case after Thanksgiving.

The Intimate Bookshop

119 East Franklin St.
Open Till 10 P.M.

WANTED: RIDE TO AND from Raleigh. Starting January 3. Leave message 832-7572.

NEW 2 BEDROOM, AIR CONditioned mobile home. 10' x 45'. Available Dec. 1 — $80 per month. Telephone 942-3268 or 942-1749.

1962 OPEL REKORD 2-door sedan. Prime condition and all extras. $600. O.N.O. Call 967-2972 after 6 or see at 105 Johnson St.

FOR RENT: LARGE BEDroom for boys. Quiet location. Call 968-3761.

DAILY CROSSWORD

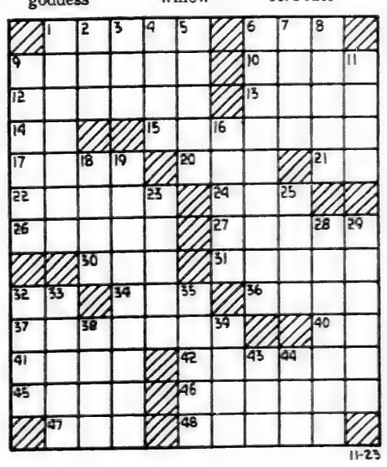
ACROSS

1. Asiatic plant
6. Mandarin tea
9. Castle
10. Flock
12. Redactor
13. Erin
14. Chinese measure
15. Lagos is the capital
17. Tart
20. Poetic contraction
21. Tin: sym.
22. Carbon monoxide, carbon dioxide, methane, etc.
24. Sup
26. Slur over
27. Tantalize
30. Perch
31. Anglo-Saxon serfs
32. Cry
34. Mongrel dog
36. Afternoon receptions
37. Flees
40. Music note
41. Uprising
42. November 28, 1965
45. Dotted with figures
46. Schools
47. One type of tape
48. Meaning

DOWN

1. Extreme
2. Eastern name
3. Cushion
4. Sacred picture
5. Weird
6. Gayest
7. Legatee
8. Molding edge
9. Covering of a mammal
11. Mr. Rusk
16. Beau ——
18. Egyptian goddess
19. Devoted
23. Plan or make-up
25. Window compartment
28. Ocean avenue: 2 wds.
29. Literary compositions
32. Possessive pronoun
33. Variety of willow
35. Pauses
38. Arrive
39. Certain
43. Masefield heroine
44. Pluto

Yesterday's Answer



11-23

Parking a Problem ?

Get a

HONDA SPORTS 65

Travel - On Motorcycle Co

"Headquarters for Adventure"

504 W. Franklin St.

Chapel Hill, N. C.

© VOLKSWAGEN OF AMERICA, INC.

We learned something from the big boys.

We're not above borrowing a good idea when we see one.

And the idea of a station wagon with all the virtues of a bus was too good to resist.

Which is why the Volkswagen Station Wagon has so much in common with other buses.

The driver is way up front, so he can see where he's going.

The engine is in back, out of the way.

There are windows all around (21) including the skylight kind on top.

The seats are chair-high. And you can even have an aisle to step to the rear.

The Volkswagen Station Wagon has a bit less headroom than a real bus, but it has more doors (5 in all) and a sunroof that slides back for lots of air and lots of view.

There's so much room inside the VW, you may think you're driving the real thing.

But not when you park: the VW Wagon is only 9 inches longer than the VW Sedan.

Lately, we've spotted a few other bus-type station wagons on the scene.

So maybe things have worked out evenly after all.

The big boys learned something from us.

TRIANGLE VOLKSWAGEN

Also Fine Selection of Used VW's

Durham-Chapel Hill Blvd. Durham

Allen Has A Hundred Wins, But Still Wants Maryland

By BILL ROLLINS
DTH Sports Writer

With the small amount of fanfare which comes to those who achieve success in a minor sport, UNC soccer coach Marvin Allen recorded the 100th win of his 17-year coaching career last week.

The big one rounded out an 8-3 season which was spurred by a seven-game win streak from its outset and marred by a three-game famine near its end.

How did Allen feel about hitting the century mark?

"It's nice to have a record like that," Allen admitted, "but actually it was beside the point. I wasn't aware of the possibility at the beginning of the season until I read about it, and thought about it very little as the season progressed."

Then he laughed. "But it did seem as if it was going to be a jinx right there at the end. Then I thought about it."

Indeed, number 100 was hard to come by.

After blitzing seven straight opponents to run their coach's win total to 99, the Tar Heel booters dropped overtime decisions to Maryland and Navy, and lost to Trenton State, 3-1.

How did Allen feel about his team's play during this losing stretch?

"I think we played our best match of the season in losing to Maryland (1-0)," Allen said, "and we were almost as good in the Navy game. But we were a little off against Trenton, and they had a good club which could take advantage of this."

About the Duke win (3-0) which made his record read 100-46-2, Allen simply said "We had a better overall team than Duke and s hould have won, which we did."

Was this his all-time greatest victory?

"No, this was certainly not the most significant win I've ever had. The best ones are those you win in overtime or in the final minutes against a good club. They are the ones you like to remember.

"Of course" he continued, "the real big one hasn't come yet. That will be when we beat Maryland."

Maryland is unbeaten in ACC play since the loop formed in 1953.

Allen annually predicts his present club is his best yet. He loses only four starters off the first team, and there is a number of good-lookers from the unbeaten (6-0) frosh club.

So don't be surprised when you pick up the DTH early next fall and read that Marvin Allen feels that his 1966 soccer club will be his best ever.

Pat Stith

DTH Sports Editor

An Open Letter to Associated Press Sports Writer Reese Hart

Dear Reese:

Until last Saturday I had no idea how versatile you are. I knew you were a big cheese sports writer for the Associated Press but I had no idea how talented you were in other fields.

But you showed me Saturday, Reese. Maybe most of the other guys in the press box knew already — being as you are an old timer and all. But I didn't know, not until the Blue Devils won the big one Saturday in Durham.

Not only are you the "unbiased" representative of the AP, you are a big Duke fan. And not only are you a big Duke fan but you are a cheerleader, Reese baby. And not a mealy mouth, closed-trap cheerleader, either.

Why, I thought you would break your fist pounding on the desk after Duke intercepted a Danny Talbott pass and took it in for a 21-7 lead.

Or bust a vocal cord or two when you screeched with joy after Jack Davenport bobbled a fair catch on the UNC nine and your boys recovered.

I have a suggestion. Why don't you give up covering the Duke-Carolina game, a task for which you are not very well suited, and limit your energy to cheering?

But not in the press box, please. Most of the writers there are professionals who have come to cover the game. You disturb them, Reese baby.

No, I suggest you go right down on the field. That's where you belonged Saturday — with your yells and fist waving, et al.

You weren't alone, if that's any consolation. If ever you should decide to form a cheerleading squad you would have no trouble recruiting a team — with yourself as the leader, of course.

First of all you should sign up Ed Seaman of the Fayetteville Observer. He sat next to you at the Duke game and I recommend his style — his cheerleading style.

Talk with Bill Brill, Sports Editor, of the Roanoke Times. He'd be a good one for your team.

It's no sin for a reporter, deep down inside, to pull for one team or the other. I'd say they weren't quite human if they never had a preference during the course of a season.

But others have the sense to be more discrete than you were. They sit there, drag on cigarettes, watch the ball game and make notes. They don't disturb fellow scribes with war cries when their favorite comes up with a big play — as you did Saturday.

I know, maybe you just couldn't help leaping out of your chair when Duke got the advantage over Carolina. Maybe you need some aids to self control — like lead weight for the seat of your pants, handcuffs to keep your hands on your keyboard and, I hate to suggest this, Reese, a gag?

I know you'd look pretty silly, Reese, down there in front of the thousands, cheering 'em on. But believe me, you looked pretty silly in the press box.

Pretty silly.

Billy's Making Good

The 'Kid' — A Pro

By SANDY TREADWELL
DTH Sports Writer

Billy Cunningham wore a light blue uniform last year with the number 32 block lettered in white across the jersey. He still wears a 32, but now his work clothes are red, and there's a 76 sown into his shorts.

Billy plays basketball in a world of long arms and longer legs. He's trying to break in with one of the finest teams in the National Basketball League. Cunningham explained what his new job and his new life are like.

"The biggest problem I have is trying to stay healthy.

"So far I haven't found the pace too bad. Our plane leaves at twelve, so we get enough sleep. The meals are what you've got to really watch. We eat cheeseburger after cheeseburger. But so far I'm single and I can afford to go get a good meal every now and then.

"We don't only get to see locker rooms. We travel all over the country and we spend at least a day in each city. That's one part of it that I've really enjoyed.

Cunningham spoke of other aspects of life in a NBA which aren't quite so rosy.

"This league is a lot different from college ball. In the ACC I'd come across some players and a couple of teams who weren't too strong, and I could relax. Now I'm playing against the best there is and I've got to run a lot more.

"Some of the men up here are specialists. Like Bill Russell is a defensive great. Some are greats. I'd say that Oscar Robertson is the best man I've ever played against. But all the men up here are tough.

"It's much rougher under the boards here than it was in college. The Celtic's Bill Russell and our Wilt Chamberlain each weigh about two hundred and eighty pounds. It's not much fun if one of them falls on me.

"The season began on Sept. 13. After camp we went on a long exhibition tour all over the country. We played fifteen games in twenty days. Right after the tour was finished we began the regular season. It lasts 'till March.

"I usually play about 27 minutes a game," he said. "And I'm tired already. All of us are really looking forward to the six day break we get over Christmas.

"I don't feel that there's much pressure on me. Philadelphia gave me a no cut contract, so that was one big headache out of the way. The pressure is really on Greer and Chamberlain because so much is expected of them.

"I feel that I'm playing as well as I did in college last year, and I'm working harder. Al Bianchi has helped me the most."

"To tell you the truth," Cunningham said, "I didn't expect any of the publicity I've had so far this year. There are two forwards in front of me. Lucious Jackson was rookie of the year last season, and the other man averaged seventeen points a game.

"In general I'm really pleased with the way things are going."

The voice that I heard over the telephone a few days ago was both happy and confident.

For the past two years Billy Cunningham was the crowned king of the ACC. Now he is holding his own against names like the Big O, Bill Russell, and Wilt-the-stilt.

BILLY CUNNINGHAM

Mangum Rips; Law, DU Advance

The Mangum Mugs beat the Ruffin Rebels 34-0 in tag football Friday, winning their league championship and setting themselves up as a good bet to win the Residence Hall title. Bob Carter led the way with three TD's while Brandon Simons and Dave Rapp contributed one apiece.

Law I moved into the semifinals of the Graduate Division playoffs by edging Med Red, 14-13. Tommy Veal and Larry Outlaw scored TD's for Law, and Outlaw had the game-winning extra points. Bob Whitley and Jerry Woodard tallied for Med.

DU Blue II slipped by Kappa Psi, 21-20, to advance in the fraternity tournament. Down 15-0 at the half, the Kappa Psi's rallied but fell short. Wright had two scores for the winning DU's.

Travel In EUROPE Summer '66

ON THE EIGHTH ANNUAL COLLEGE STUDENT TOUR

Choose from SEVEN unique tours to Germany, Spain, France, Scandinavia, Greek Islands, Istanbul, Central Europe

- Small, congenial groups led by young knowledgeable directors, independent leisure time
- Fun places on every tour . . . night spots, theatres, beach parties, water-skiing, picnics
- Native guides for visits to key cultural and historic points

I am interested; send me the free brochure.

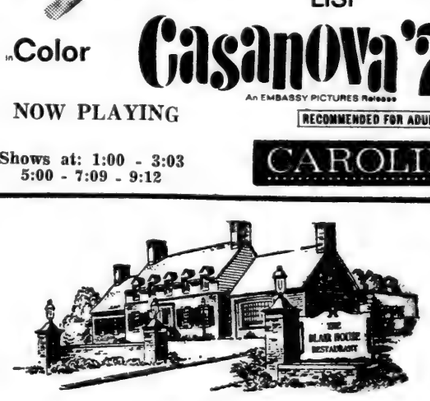
Name_____
College Address_____
City_____ State_____

Osborne Travel Service, Inc.
3379 Peachtree Road, N.E. Atlanta, Georgia 30326
"Ask the man who's been there."

USE CHRISTMAS SEALS
1965 Christmas Greetings 1965
FIGHT TUBERCULOSIS and other Respiratory Diseases

"SENSUOUS AND SENSUAL FUN— A PHILANDERER'S ROMP THROUGH FIELDS OF WAVING GIRLS!" —N Y Times

JOSEPH E LEVINE presents a CARLO PONTI Production
starring MARCELLO MASTROIANNI
VIRNA LISI
In Color Casanova '70
An EMBASSY PICTURES Release
NOW PLAYING
RECOMMENDED FOR ADULTS ONLY
Shows at: 1:00 - 3:03 5:00 - 7:09 - 9:12
CAROLINA



LUNCH from 1.10 to 1.65
DINNER from 1.75 to 5.50
Featuring U. S. Choice Steaks, Back Fin Lump Crabmeat, Baked Country Cured Ham Breast of Young Chicken
Six attractive dining rooms of varying size and decor afford flexible facilities for serving
BANQUETS AND RECEPTIONS
Recommended by Mobile Travel Guide Best of Hillsway
The Blair House
Durham-Chapel Hill Boulevard
Tel. 489-9128

CHASE DINING HALL
Best Wishes For A Safe and Happy Thanksgiving
CLOSE:
2:00 P.M. Wednesday, Nov. 24
RE-OPEN
7:00 P.M. Monday, Nov. 29, 1965
The Management and Staff

Advent Calendars
As December draws nearer, may we remind you to choose your advent calendars for the youngsters.
Usher in the holidays by opening one window each day in December, the showiest one just at Christmas Eve.
They're lots of fun, and prices range from 35c to $1.25 apiece.
The Intimate Bookshop
119 East Franklin Street
Chapel Hill
open every day until 10 pm

WARNING!
Wet Winter Weather
Lies just around the corner — and so is your protection. The HUB has on hand the finest selection of wash-and-wear all weather coats available, in navy, olive, ivory and black. These dacron and cotton lightweights are perfect accessories for any occasion, and a zip-in pile lining converts them into the warmest overcoat.
..... from 19.95
THE HUB
Of Chapel Hill

IT'S ABOUT TIME
That you took in something more than Beach Party Flicks, beer blasts, and R & R . . .
Something cultural, yet enjoyable
SO, G.M. Presents:
LEONARD PENNARIO

"Absolute Mastery of the Keyboard"
At Memorial Hall, Thurs., Dec. 2 8 p.m.
Tickets for you Culture-Seekers
Students, 50c Dates, $1.00

MILL OUTLET SALES ROOM
Ladies First Quality HOSE
Three Pairs $1.25
"All Popular Fall Shades. Also Nurses' White Hose
UPSTAIRS OVER SUTTON'S Drug Store

KEMP'S THANKS TO YOU:
BEFORE YOU GO HOME COME FOR
- ALL LABELS
- ALL STOCK
- MONO and Stereo

40% OFF ALL RECORDS
10 A.M. ——— 'Til 10 P.M.
Tuesday and Wednesday
Cigarettes — Domestic and Foreign
At Special Prices
KEMP'S FRANKLIN STREET

this is the classic Maincoat® you need

THE LONDON by LONDON FOG®
Precious few things are so right, so true, that they become classics. The London is one of them. One of the most popular Maincoats ever made, it owes its performance to superb Calibre Cloth (65% Dacron/35% Cotton), light and totally washable. Its looks are purely London Fog, smart and tailored-to-fit. In fashion, in quality, in perfect rain protection, there is no other to match The London. In the following colors:
You saw it in The New Yorker $37.50
Varsity Men's Wear

UNC Library
Serials Dept.
Box 870

$2.50

Students with T parking stickers should come by the Dean of Men's office by Friday to get their $2.50 refund. None will be made after Friday.

The Daily Tar Heel

The South's Largest College Newspaper

Vol. 74, No. 56 | CHAPEL HILL NORTH CAROLINA TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 30, 1965 | Founded February 23, 1893.

Talbott Honored

UNC's Danny Talbott has been named the ACC Player of the Year. Read about Danny's honor on page four.

Men's Honor Council Finds Seven Guilty In Film Case

One Placed On Probation, Six Are Given Reprimands

By BILL MILLER
Special To The DTH

The Men's Honor Council found seven students guilty of a Campus Code violation and two not guilty in the cases dealing with the pornographic film showings at Morrison College.

One of the guilty defendants received a two semesters' probation; the other six received official reprimand. The hearings were held on the nights of Nov. 18, 22, and 23.

The films were shown in one of the social rooms at Morrison on both Friday night, Nov. 5, and Monday night, Nov. 8. They were not shown to the Men's Council during the trials.

Dean of Men William G. Long, in a statement to the court, labeled the films as "hard core pornography." He based his decision upon the films' contents, which he briefly described in his letter. Dean Long and Arthur S. Beaumont, chief of the Campus Police, viewed the three films on Nov. 10.

Student leaders on the floor involved had originally planned a beer party for Friday night. The idea of showing a "skin flick" was raised and decided upon after someone was able to procure the pornographic films from a student in another residence hall.

Around 60 or 70 Morrison residents viewed the films that night. None of the leaders who had obtained the films knew of their pornographic nature before the showings.

The Monday night showings were prompted by an announcement made around 7 p.m. that the UP candidates for freshman class offices would meet in the Morrison lobby at 9:30 p.m. Certain members of the SP thought of showing "skin flicks" at 9:30 as a means of diverting students from the UP meeting.

The same films shown Friday night were obtained and shown five or six times, between 9:30 p.m. and 1 a.m. Leaders of the floor on which the showings were held decided to charge admission.

Four hundred to 600 students paid from 10c to 25c to see the films. The $100 collected was confiscated the next day by Dean Long. An arrangement has now been made to give the money to charity in the name of the SP and Morrison College.

The Men's Council, in its deliberations, emphasized the Monday night showings, since most of the organizers had viewed the films the previous Friday night and had full knowledge of the contents.

One student was cited as having been most responsible for the second showings. He was first to suggest that skin flicks be shown to stymie attendance at the UP meeting. He obtained the same pornographic films which he had viewed Friday, and he took an active part in the organization of the showings. The student pleaded indefinite and was found guilty; he received the probation sentence.

Four other boys who saw the films Friday night were involved to a lesser extent on Nov. 8. One student who helped to obtain the films on Friday was asked on Monday night where the films came from. He gave the room number of the owner but played no further role in the showing that night.

The Council found him not guilty of a Campus Code offense because he had no direct responsibility for the Monday showings. The other three boys were asked to collect money or run the projector, and therefore more directly participated in the showings. The Council gave a verdict of guilty and a sentence of official reprimand to each of these students.

Two high - ranking officials in Morrison College who did not see the films Friday night received official reprimand for their action on the second night. One of these students agreed to let skin flicks be shown in order to divert interest from the UP meeting and also helped to show the films the first time.

The Council felt that he was in a position to stop the films once he knew their content. The other student appropriated the $5 for a rental fee to the owner. The Council again felt that his action condoned the showing of skin flicks and was not in the best interest of the Campus Code.

The last two defendants were the owner of the pornographic films and his roommate. The owner had no knowledge of the large - scale showings in Morrison when he lent out the films, but the Council decided that he had a responsibility as a gentleman not to let this pornography out publicly.

MacNair Gives Opinion On Morrison Episode

Chairman Van MacNair and the Men's Honor Council issued the following statement in connection with the Morrison film showings:

"In deciding whether or not the defendants were guilty of a Campus Code offense, the Council was first of all concerned with the student's awareness of the contents of the films. The films have been classified beyond all reasonable doubt as lewd and base. Therefore if the student actively organized a showing of the films after having seen them himself, the Council felt he had violated the Campus Code.

"All of the students who were found guilty of organizing the film showings pleaded indefinite to the charge. They gave as their reasons the fact that similar films have been shown frequently in Craige in the past, under the auspices of the Martha P. Vineyard Lecture Series; and that the atmosphere generated during the showings and the attitude held toward the films themselves were not conducive to stopping such showings. The Council did not feel that these circumstances justified any of the students action. As a student bound by the Campus Code to act as a gentleman, each of the defendants involved had a responsibility to see that these films would not be shown as an official campus function.

"Two matters brought forth by these trials disappointed the Council. The first is that little attempt was made on behalf of the defendants to see their action in context with the Campus Code; they were too concerned with the furthering of their own interests to realize that something larger and on a higher level was involved. And along the same lines, none of the students was willing to accept the responsibility which he himself played in the cases. These boys — who on the most part were elected leaders in Morrison — made every attempt possible to minimize their role in leading the other students. Certainly it is an attribute for a leader to stand up for his action, and of course, to act responsibly."

Accreditation Of Carolina Colleges Is Probably Safe

From The Associated Press

Recent changes in the Speaker Ban law have probably prevented action against State-supported schools by the Southern Association of Schools and Colleges.

Officials of the Association, who declined to be identified, hinted that accreditation of North Carolina schools was not threatened.

The group, now meeting in Richmond, Va., is now considering the effect of the Speaker Ban law. Earlier, the Association had said the Speaker Ban endangered accreditation of state - supported schools.

Emmett Fields, chairman of the Commission on Colleges of the association, said a statement on the matter is to be issued at the college delegate assembly meeting Wednesday afternoon.

Early this month the General Assembly amended the law, removing the prohibition of Communists and pleaders of The Fifth Amendment in loyalty cases from speaking on state-supported campuses.

The change places admission of speakers on campus into the hands of the Board of Trustees.

The Association heard testimony Sunday from Watts Hill Jr., chairman of the North Carolina Board of Higher Education.

Appearing from two hours testimony behind closed doors, Hill said he hoped changes in the law "would meet the accreditation standards and prove satisfactory."

He said he was asked about the political climate in the state before and after the enactment of the 1963 Speaker Ban law, and how much the schools' faculties and administrations were involved in considering the speaker policy adopted by the 12 schools involved.

A report will be made public at 2 p.m. Wednesday when the full delegate assembly meets.

Students Can Cash Checks At Morrison

All UNC students can now cash checks in Morrison Residence College.

Tom Shetley, general manager of the Book Exchange, announced Monday that a new cashier's booth has been finished and a new cashier hired.

The booth will be placed in the canteen at Morrison and will be open from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday thru Friday and 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturday.

Shetley said, "The limit on checks will not be more than $15. Anyone who wants more than that can come either here (Book Exchange) or to the bank.

"We are quite happy to open the new booth, but if students had not come to us requesting it, we probably never would have done it."

Planetarium Director Gets Invitation To See Launch

Morehead Planetarium director Anthony Jenzano has been invited by Astronaut Pilots Frank Borman and James Lovell to witness the Gemini Titan Seven (GT7) launching scheduled for Saturday.

If this launch date prevails, Jenzano will fly to Cape Kennedy Friday to be on hand for a Saturday morning tour of the entire facility, preceeding the afternoon launching of the Titan II rocket which will boost Gemini spaceship and spacemen Borman and Lovell into an orbit hopefully sufficient for the scheduled two-week endurance mission period.

Jenzano is primarily responsible for initiation and continuation of the astronaut training program conducted at the Morehead Planetarium on the University of North Carolina campus since January of 1960.

This will be his third trip to Cape Kennedy. His first was with his family while vacationing in 1961. In 1962, he was called to the Cape by NASA for a special assignment concerning the Mercury mission by Astronaut Walter Schirra.

IT'S GETTING TO LOOK A LOT LIKE CHRISTMAS — Even though warm, clear days have prevailed so far, and the big turkey weekend is just over, Christmas is slowly drawing near. DTH Photographer Ernest Robl captured this view of Franklin Street at dusk yesterday.

Special Meeting Will Help Orient Dorm Officers

By RICK STOFF
DTH Staff Writer

A special conference to orient residence hall officers and outline their responsibilities to male residents will be held this Saturday and Sunday at the Institute of Government.

The officers' conference, sponsored by Student Government, will attempt to reorganize residence hall activities schedules and better acquaint student officers with their part in residence hall programs.

Conference planners hope their efforts will help unite male students with residence hall leadership and activities, according to coordinator Don Wilson.

The convocation will be held from 2:15 to 6:15 p.m. Saturday and from 2 to 5:15 p.m. Sunday.

Presidents and vice presidents of all residence halls, speakers of all residence college senates and all executive officers of residence colleges will participate.

Chancellor Sharp will open the program with an address Saturday afternoon.

Sharp is expected to outline for attending officers what they can contribute to residence hall and University life.

He will also speak on the plans and policies to be formed by the University administration in dealing with residence hall activities.

Student Body President Paul Dickson will explain Student Government's role in Residence College System programming.

Former student body president Mike Lawler and Morrison College Governor Byron McCoy will lead discussions on residence hall educational and social programming respectively.

How officers can get students interested in Residence Hall activities will be the subject of a short address of UNC professor Dr. H. Douglas Sessoms.

The program will include a film on leadership and an outlined seminar on the point competition for the Men's Residence Council best residence hall trophy.

Residence hall presidents are urged to bring an interested freshman each with them to provide governmental continuity in their hall leadership circles.

Wicker Changes His Mind; Will Speak At State

RALEIGH (AP)—New York Times newsman Tom Wicker has informed student leaders at North Carolina State he will fill a speaking engagement cancelled earlier because of the Speaker Ban Law.

Wicker wrote "now that the Speaker Ban has been modified, I am happy to confirm my original acceptance of an invitation to speak at North Carolina State May 6."

N. C. State student leaders asked Wicker to reconsider after the law was changed.

Wicker, who heads the Washington bureau of the New York Times, cancelled his engagement in early November because of his opposition to the Speaker Ban Law. The law prohibited known Communists and others who have pleaded the Fifth Ammendment in loyalty cases from speaking on state-supported campuses.

The law was ammended in mid-November by an extra session of the General Assembly.

Wicker was invited to speak at the third annual student activities banquet by the Student Activities Committee at North Carolina State to honor student leaders.

Wicker is a native of North Carolina and is a UNC graduate.

Chapel Hill Represented In March

By DAVID ROTHMAN
DTH Staff Writer

Saturday's Viet Nam march in Washington was attended by "as many as 75" persons from Chapel Hill, according to a spokesman for the protestors.

Prof. William Wynn of the Psychology Department said six UNC faculty members as well as students and townspeople were among the 25,000 demonstrators.

He attended the march with Prof. Lewis Lipsitz of the Political Science Department.

"One demonstration won't be effective by itself," Wynn said, "but a number of them, along with other kinds of political actions, can possibly be effective in pressuring the (Johnson) administration to seek peace.

"Now that our military policy looks like it's working well, the administration is making fewer attempts to initiate serious negotiations. I believe the Washington march was especially necessary at this point," Wynn said.

He said the majority of the picketers' signs were "moderate in their tone. The demonstrators were only saying the administration has made its mistakes.

"You can differ from people without maligning them, and for the most part," Wynn said, "the signs did not malign the troops in Viet Nam."

He continued:

"Dr. Sanford Gottlieb (the protest's coordinator and a member of SANE, one of the groups organizing the march) did everything possible to discourage extremist signs.

"He asked (the signs' bearers) to get rid of them, but when they wouldn't, he let them participate, to avoid trouble.

"And the rally's 'monitors' also let Young Americans for Freedom stay. In both directions, a big difference of opinion was allowed."

Wynn said the Washington police, and the "monitors" "did a good job" at handling the crowd. "They were highly competent."

Lipsitz said he hoped the march accomplished "at least one important thing: to change the image of the critics of the Government's Viet Nam policy.

"More of the reporting had previously focused attention on the extreme cases such as draft card burning and civil disobedience. The image of the critics had come to resemble that of beatniks.

"I wish to emphasize the moderation, the diversity and respectability of the marchers, which showed they are just ordinary concerned citizens."

Lipsitz said pro-Viet Cong demonstrators were "in the minority."

He explained, however, that the Washington march "was not organized to prove the respectability of the critics. It was organized to promote a peaceful solution in Viet Nam."

The political science professor said he is "very pessimistic about the administration taking our advice."

They Say Man Can't Fly, Will Burn Credit Cards

NAGS HEAD (AP)—Officials of The Man Will Never Fly Memorial Society Internationale have announced that participants in their annual meeting Dec. 16 will be asked to join in a mass burning of all airline credit cards they hold.

"The gesture will be a protest against the United States' policy of insisting that manned flight is a reasonable idea," said Ed North of Midland, Pa.

"Burning cards seems to be a currently acceptable form of demonstrating for some strongly held principle such as ours," said Jack Aulis of Elizabeth City. "Besides, it's a lot easier than marching in the streets. It's something we can do inside where its comfortable."

North, a physician, and Aulis, a newspaper reporter, founded the tongue-in-cheek society in 1959. It meets annually in Nags Head on the eve of the observance of the Wright Brothers' first powered flight at nearby Kill Devil Hill on Dec. 17, 1903.

The society's motto is "Birds fly; men drink."

Archaeologist To Teach Here

Prof. Yohanan Aharoni, distinguished archaeologist from the Hebrew University in Jerusalem, will be Visiting Professor of Biblical Archaeology at the University during the spring semester.

He has participated in many archaeological expeditions and is the discoverer of the Bar Kochba Caves where the famous Letters were found and is the leader of the expedition to Tell Arad where Professor Bernard Boyd and fourteen Carolina students joined him in the expedition last summer.

SP Meeting

The Student Party will meet tonight at 7:30 in Gerrard Hall to elect a policy vice-chairman, an administrative vice - chairman and three new members for the SP Advisory Board.

Party Chairman Jim Little has urged that all SP members attend.

